History-Loving Chinese Turn to Archaeology

NANKING, China (AP) — Archaeology is a big thing in modern China, not only because of love of history but primarily because it serves ideological purposes perfectly.

One of the major centers is Sian, once the eastern end of the ancient Silk Route to the Middle East and Europe. A new building, dam or railroad can scarcely be built there without the exposure of traces of ancient civilizations. When one is found, digging stops until it is evaluated by special committees. If it's found to be extraordinary, building is stopped until artifacts are removed.

China's thousands of years of history abound in instances of oppression by ruling classes' "historical materialism," the Maoists say. One tablet tells the price of one horse and a roll of silk: five slaves. Hundreds of peasant revolts took place, too, which fit into Communist doctrine of constant class struggle.

Then there is the matriarchal society of 6,000 years ago which was not unlike today's commune living. A huge building has been built over a 6,000-year-old community to preserve it against the weather. The building is well lighted and catwalks over the exposed village allow every day's hundreds of visitors to see everything a Museum of Chinese history is attached.

Sian, now a manufacturing city, abounds in bell towers, pagodas and temples turned into historical sites, including the temple where the writings of Confucius were once stored.

Among the many things on exhibit is a rice steamer thousands of years old which is precisely like those used today. A small clay pot with holes in it fits into a larger pot for boiling water.

A silk screen dating from the year 700 shows Chinese horsemen playing polo with L-shaped mallets. The curator believes the game was brought to China from ancient Arabia.

Three-cornered iron spikes 2,000 years old, designed to cripple pursuing horses, were exactly like those used in war today to punch holes in tires. Stone sewer pipes date back to 207 B.C.

Working conditions in a silk factory in Szechow would shock U.S. labor unions. It was very hot with no air conditioning. The girls worked a six-day 48-hour week with Sunday off but no vacations.

The infinite patience of Chinese workers was shown in an embroidery research institute. It specialized in producing embroidered pictures of all kinds between glass. They look exactly as though they had been painted. It is an ancient Chinese art.

Some were so skillfully done they were used as though they were three dimensional. Some were for export. Some were pictures of Chairman Mao and the revolution. Many took thousands and thousands of hours for three or four workers to produce. Despite the skills required, the young girls were paid the same as those working thread machines in the silk factory — 40 to 60 yuan monthly. That is equivalent to $16.24.

Formal dinners frequently feature glutinous rice mixtures for dessert, varying in size and taste. Someone asked how stone artifacts were held together in ancient times, before cement. The answer was: "Glutinous rice mixtures." It was food for thought.

Until you see acupuncture anesthesia in a Shanghai hospital it is hard to believe, but there is no doubt it works. Our party of 10 saw two brain operations, including the removal of a tumor the size of a child's fist, with the patient fully conscious. Two needles stuck in a foot and one in the face were activated by electricity. AP correspondent Henry Hartman, who speaks the Shanghai dialect, talked with the patient as the tumor was removed.

Of more concern to the visitors was the fact that the tiny operating room was crowded with three doctors and one nurse who were operating, six visitors, two other doctors, and two interpreters explaining what was going on.

Life-support tubes lay uncovered on the floor and the noise was considerable, but the patient and doctors seemed undisturbed by the fact a tube might be torn loose at any moment.

One of the surprises in visiting China is the plentiful supply of consumer goods in city department stores. Shopping is almost impossible for an American.

LURE THEIR EARS

CHRISTCHURCH, N. Z. (AP) — An acoustic fish lure is to be manufactured for both commercial and big game fishermen by the Christchurch firm, Elsham and Associates.

The lure, which weighs about 6 pounds, was developed by fisheries technologist Don York.

The first lure was given final trials last April in the Bay of Plenty, on the east coast of the North Island of New Zealand.

"Our aerial spotter pinpointed a school of tuna feeding on small pockets of anchovies, and from about half a mile away we saw a fishing boat pulling the fish in with live bait," York said.

As soon as we switched on the lure, all the fish came over to our boat. When we switched off, they went back to the live bait.

Circuit Court 12 Cases Rockville Session

Charges of possession of narcotic drugs were dismissed for four area teenagers and nolled for two others. They were arrested May 12 after heroin was found in a car in which they were riding. The car was originally stopped and a seventh youth, Ronald McKinley, 21, of Thrall Rd., Vernon, searched and found to be in possession of heroin. A small quantity was also found in the car.

Five of the youths claimed they were being given a ride home and knew nothing of the drugs. Gregory Thorne, 22, of Stamford was with McKinley but also claimed no knowledge of any heroin.

McKinley was sentenced in East Hartford Circuit Court Aug. 4 to one year for possession of heroin and found in violation of probation, with the 90 days he must serve on that being served concurrently.

The one count of possession of heroin charged was dismissed in the cases of Patricia A. Girard, 17, of 114 Hart Hill Rd., South Windsor; John B. Conway, 18, formerly of 24 Hale St., East Rockville; Richard Marquardt, 19, of 95 Prospect St., Rockville; and Deborah A. McVill, 19, of 44 Hillcrest Dr., Vernon.

The charge was nolled for Jeffrey Sheldon, 20, of Mile Hill Rd., Tolland, and Gregory Thorne, 22, of Stamford. These were not dismissed because of prior records. Thorne was also fined $100 for driving under suspension with $25 remitted, continued to Sept. 5 for payment.

A hearing in probable cause is scheduled Sept. 19 for Leslie C. Billings, 32, of Rt. 6, Andover, on charges of deviate sexual intercourse and rape. A motor vehicle charge of operating under the influence was continued to the same date.

Ernestine P. Lard, 32, of 48 Grove St., Rockville, was given a 60-day suspended jail sentence on a charge of failure to report income, and given a nolle on a charge of fraudulently obtaining aid. Probation for one year and full restitution ordered.

George P. Tulliano, 18, of 51 Huntington Dr., Vernon, was given a suspended 90-day sentence and probation for one year on a charge of larceny, third degree.

Richard K. Wilson, 17, of Windersville Rd., Rockville, was given a suspended sentence of 30 days with a six-month conditional discharge after pleading guilty to giving false name to an officer. A second similar charge was nolled. He was also fined $15, which was remitted, on a charge of operating without a license, and a similar charge of that was nolled.

Josephine Stiegel, 41, of 22 Village St., Rockville, was presented on two counts of issuing bad check and received a 30-day suspended sentence and probation for one year on each. She was not presented on six other counts.

A rearrest under $200 bond was ordered for David G. Bell, 20, of 21 Maple St., Rockville, who failed to appear on a charge of operating under suspension.

A rearrest under $500 bond was also ordered for James Braswell, 27, of 31 Vernon Ave., Rockville, who failed to appear on a charge of non-support.

Judge Henebery didn't quite believe the explanation of 21-year-old Richard J. Roberts, of 2 Minterbarn Court, Rockville, who said he was growing marijuana in back of his apartment strictly for biological experiments which he haltingly described as concerning the propagation rather than use. He was sentenced to three months, suspended, and one year probation.

A charge of possession of controlled drug was substituted with disorderly conduct and a fine imposed in each of the unrelated cases of:

Gary B. Morse, 18, of 12 Maple St., Rockville; $55; Earl P. Blinn, 21, of 31 Grove St., Rockville, $40, continued to Sept. 19 for payment; and Michael G. Marchand, 20, of 15 Prospect St., Rockville, $40.

James E. Bump, 50, of 28 Loveland Hill Rd., Rockville, was charged with operating under the influence of liquor, but explained to the court he had been given a guide to amounts deemed safe for driving and followed it, and when arrested conditionally submitted to a blood test only to find he'd exceeded the legal limit. His attorney, Leo B. Flaherty, commented that the car was "not working too well"; the judge said he hadn't heard of it down't work and fined Bump $15. A charge of improper left turn was nolled.

Other fines included:

Alice Calabro, 41, of Gehring Rd., Tolland, operating under the influence of liquor, $175.

Everette Harmon, 30, of 27 Park St., disorderly conduct, $50.

Raymond P. Hyeck, 25, of 142 Old Town Rd., Rockville, operating under suspension, $100; failure to drive right, nolle.

He will also hold a mobile bake sale Sunday from 10 to 6 p.m. and will include cookies, brownies and cupcakes.

Coelho, who will enter his junior year at Manchester High School, will appear on television Labor Day at a time and on a channel to be announced, and will report on the total proceeds he has raised for MD. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Adlene Coelho of 25 Center St.

DILEMMA
CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — Assistant City Solicitor Lawrence Burdette is in a quandary.

A couple of months ago, he helped pass a law providing that hypodermic syringes must be made useless before they are deposited in the garbage. The idea was to prevent drug users from fishing them out and re-using them, and possibly getting hepatitis. To illustrate the point, he asked police officers to bring in syringes they found in public containers. And bring in they did.

There must be about 500 here. I am in a hell of a dilemma, Mr. Burdette, and I'm afraid to give them them away or I'd be in violation of my own ordinance, and I'm afraid to give them to somebody else for fear they might not get rid of them properly. I guess I'll have to take them out the incinerator and burn them myself."

This is not to criticize the police. They know what the situation is, they have known it all along. What they need to be able to feel is the willingness of both high officialdom and the paying public to back up the fullest possible devotion of society's resources to a war to the extermination against the gangs who not only claim, and to a great measure exercise, the right to be their own law to themselves.

The Government And The Press
My specific focus here is not so much the roles of candidates and the press in the conduct of campaigns as it is of public officials and the press in the conduct of government.

Unfortunately, efforts to discuss the issues involved in this relationship too often tend toward cliché and reflex response rather than reason and thoughtful communication.

The record shows that hyper-sensitivity to criticism is in abundant supply on both sides.

Thus, while it is certainly true that some government officials have at times been imbued with a sense of their own infallibility, the same can also be said at times of some members of the Fourth Estate.

Certainly, the press is and should be zealous in guarding the hard-won protection provided all Americans by the First Amendment — as, indeed, every government official sworn to uphold the Constitution also should be.

In a free and diverse society, the right to speak out, to criticize social institutions, is not a private constitutional preserve, however, but a right belonging to every citizen.

The reverse side of that coin, of course, is that no person serving the public — whether he be public official or editor — should be immune from criticism.

My point is that the time has come to put aside the self-justifications and clichés of former times in considering the complex rights, duties and responsibilities of public officials and members of the Fourth Estate in our free society.

Let me speak directly to the point: The government you are dealing with, whether it be the Democratic Administration of a John Kennedy or the Republican Administration of a Richard Nixon, is a government chosen by and responsible to the people. And it is also responsible to the people — or it won't be in office very long.

It is not the absolutist government of an 18th Century monarch, suppressing dissent and disseminating lies in this technological age of instant communications to be compared to the frail political power of a colonial printing press operator in a bygone day.

Thus, the widely-heralded apprehension that every allusion to press shortcomings represents an attempt to destroy the Amendment freedoms, while understandable, is not well founded.

For the fact is that the impact of the American press today — and by "press" I mean both print and electronic media — is greater than at any time in our country's history.

Throughout history, there have been elements of the press which have placed their own interests ahead of the public interest — just as there have been candidates and officials who have done the same.

It might be argued that, even as there have been officials who would seek to advance personal interests behind a protective veil of secrecy, there also have been journalists who cloak narrow ambition behind a claim that their sole interest was the people's right to know.

Consider that twenty-five years ago, an independent Commission on Freedom of the Press declared that at times "the press can be inflammatory, sensational and irresponsible."

If it then went on to call for self-examination and self-regulation by the press to improve its performance in serving the public interest.

And I would guess that an independent Commission of Politicians would have no trouble in deciding that at times politicians can be "inflammatory, sensational and irresponsible."

The substance of my remarks then is that we all, whether government official or editor, might do well to forego harangue and cliché in favor of discussion based on reason and public interest.

Let us recognize that each of us, whether government official or editor, has responsibilities — and fallibilities as well. Let us never draw back from honest criticism where we believe it our obligation, in good conscience, to criticize. But let us never grow so assured of our righteousness or complacent in our exercise of duty as to consider ourselves or our position beyond criticism.

For whether government official or editor, we must never forget that under our system every right and power has its countervailing right and power.

The government official's right and power to administer his office is and should be subject to the responsible surveillance of an independent press. Far from being threatened, the public interest is enhanced by such responsible journalism.

Thailand Next Herald Yesterday Connecticut Yankee

By RAY CROMLEY (NEA Columnist)

The worst from contacts in Bangkok is that the situation in Thailand is gradually deteriorating. The military government is indecisive in action. The Communist underground sponsored by Peking and Hanoi grows very slowly but steadily.

The outlook is not serious for this year. But it can be said with certainty that men high in the Nixon administration are privately predicting that if the Communist underground continues to grow at the present rate we will see in Thailand within four and a half to five years of full blown insurgency comparable to the earlier days in Vietnam.

This crisis would present the President of the United States in 1977 with the same type of decision President John F. Kennedy faced in the early 1960s. Kennedy's answer to that crisis led to heavy American participation in the Vietnam war.

The alternative at that late date, his advisers said, was to let the situation in Thailand, if it becomes this government to think about alternatives.

The solutions must aim at assisting the Bangkok government to so strengthen its institutions that Thailand can handle the underground largely with its own resources.

At present, the underground is not basically a military problem, although it is being handled as if it were. The problem at this stage is political. The Communists, as in the early days in Vietnam, are politically outorganizing the government.

In part this is because the military government in Bangkok has banned political organizing by the several Thai democratic political parties. In part it is because the structure of government is weak and inefficient through the great sweep of Thailand's rural areas and in most of its cities and towns.

In similar fashion, the "people's right to know" is not threatened by government policy implemented on behalf of a demonstrated national interest involving all the people's rights, any more that it is threatened by the countervailing right-to-privacy of individuals which is basic to every American — or by the right to a fair trial, including secret grand jury hearings.

In each of these cases, we recognize that one right is offset by the paramount importance of another right in affecting our society and its values.

We must never forget that the preservation and advancement of these values is our proper concern.

Toward this end, the time is long overdue we would have to do whatever it might take to prevent the other kind of murder. If we want to keep gangsters from shooting innocent people, we have to keep gangsters from shooting gangsters.

Burger King Restaurant, 467 Center Street, opened its doors to Manchester residents in December 1970. Burger King Corp., a Miami, Fla. based company, opened its first store in Miami, Fla. in 1954. Burger King was based on the theory that the combination of quality food, fast service, and comfortable surroundings was what the American public wanted in a restaurant.

Today, nearly two decades later, Burger King Corp. has expanded from one restaurant to 1,300 company and franchisee-owned stores located throughout the United States, Canada and Caribbean Islands.

In 1967 Burger King Corporation became a wholly owned subsidiary of the Pillsbury Co., and one of their top profit-making divisions.

Since its inception the Burger King Restaurant in Manchester has been managed by Ralph H. Sayre III. Sayre, a graduate of Norwich University, Northfield, Vt., has been with Burger King Corp. for two years. He is a member of the Chamber's City Beautiful Committee and was chairman of the Annual Scout Clean-Up Day Committee. Mixing business with community affairs, Sayre was able to provide 1,300 Scouts with free "Whooper Juniors" for lunch on clean-up day. Sayre is also a member of the Chamber's recently organized public relations committee. Prior to joining Burger King Corp., Sayre worked on Wall Street for the Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. of New York as a credit analyst. He is also a captain in the Army Reserve.

From Your Neighbor's Kitchen

Corn played an important role in the lives of the early New England settlers. While the Pilgrims, who were English, cooked in the manner of the land they left, they were forced by necessity to do some cooking like their Indian friends.

The Indians raised three major crops - beans, squash and corn. Using logs that had been hollowed out, they ground the corn into samp. Samp was a crude meal from which flour could be made. After the fine flour was sifted out, the remainder became porridge, which, of course, was also usable.

The Pilgrims had brought peas and wheat with them but they did not survive the climate. Corn therefore was used for many purposes. The English ate a porridge made of oats for breakfast so they made it of corn here. It was called hasty pudding.

Hasty pudding is only corn meal mush. In another part of the world, the Italians would call it polenta. When cook, corn mush solidifies. It can then be fried, fried in butter. Some New Englanders serve it with maple syrup.

The famous Indian pudding was not made by the Indians. The settlers called corn "Indian corn" to distinguish it from wheat since the word "corn" can be applied to wheat and rye also.

We know that the Indian interpreter, Squanto, taught the Plymouth women how to make succotash. This word comes to us from the Narragansett "missick-quash." A literal translation is "something broken in pieces."

There are various recipes for succotash, the best known being made simply of lima beans and corn, in milk, with seasonings. The following early recipe provides for a complete meal in a pot.

Plymouth Succotash
1 quart pea beans
five-pound stewing fowl, cut in serving pieces five pounds corned beef
one pound salt pork
eight quarts water
five potatoes, boiled and sliced
one turnip, boiled and sliced
three quarts whole grain hominy, heated to boiling point

Suck beans overnight; then boil until very tender, about 5-6 hours. Mash and force through a fine sieve. Simmer chicken, beef, and salt pork in water until tender, about three hours. Add mashed beans, stir until all fat from the top of the liquid is absorbed. Add potatoes, turnip and seasonings. Heat just to boiling. Serve in warm bowls dotted with pats of butter. Serves six.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB Several Tests Determine TB

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.
Dear Dr. Lamb—Can you tell me what tests can be taken for tuberculosis besides chest X rays to determine whether a case is arrested or active?

Dear Reader—Chest X rays certainly help. In addition, skin testing is thought to be important by some doctors in assessing the status of tuberculosis and, of course, there are numerous cultures that can be taken. One of the most common of these is to collect sputum specimens and then streaked over a culture medium (the food material for the bacteria). If it grows, it is called pulmonary tuberculosis. The obstruction can be the pulmonary valve itself or it can involve the overgrowth of the heart muscle tissue at the outlet below the pulmonary valve.

If surgery is needed the surgeon simply enters the heart and opens the obstructed valve or cuts away the excess muscular tissue directly underneath the valve. These operations have been done for many years and are highly successful. Of course, if the obstruction is minimal, then you don't need to have your history that you have been getting along fairly well with the use of cultures. This is probably why your doctor hasn't recommended doing anything else.

Coventry CDC Gets Industrial Zone

The Coventry Planning and Zoning Commission has granted a zone change requested by the Coventry Development Corp. The change, from river zone to light industrial, affects 52 acres and was granted following a public hearing on the matter Monday night.

The CDC had requested the change for 24 acres on which it has a purchase option, but the additional acreage was included in the change by the PZC in order to eliminate spot zoning.

The CDC proposed property is the Adams tract on Rt. 31, with property of Mrs. Anna Z. Hawkes also included in the zone change.

Mrs. Hawkes was assured by commission members that her land, presently being farmed, would continue to be used for that purpose, since the change to industrial zone does not prohibit the continuation of an existing use.

However, Mrs. Hawkes would not be able to expand the use of her land by building a large poultry building or any new structures.

She was not opposed to the zone change.

Several members of the CDC board of directors were present at the hearing to explain proposed use of the land on which they have an option.

Public Corporation The corporation is publicly owned, and has deposited $500 to secure the option on the $50,000 parcel.

The CDC is working with the Small Business Administration and the State Development Commission, and will seek 40 to 50 percent of costs to finance its proposed industrial park from a commercial bank.

The remaining mortgage money will be financed by the SBA and SDC, with lower interest rates.

CDC members noted that the land is suited to light industrial development because of adequate water supplies, suitable soil conditions for on-site sanitary

Columbia School Board Scored For Renaming of Gym

The Columbia Board of Education recently voted unanimously to name the Porter School gym the Donald Tuttle Gymnasium. Tuttle is chairman of the board.

"Tuttle has given many years (25) of service to the children in town and his educational system and in some way should be honored," Mrs. Anita Ramm, local teacher, told the board.

Tuttle joined the board in 1947 when there were only three members and was named chairman a year later. There are now six members.

Action Criticized The action was criticized by a former board member, Mrs. Frances Malek, criticized the action.

She said, "It is unbelievable and ironic tragedy that the man who fought the building of the gym so vehemently when the last addition was built, and been lost in support of physical education programs should have the gym named after him."

Mrs. Malek also struck out at the school board for the manner in which they took action on the matter.

ZBA Hearing Two cases will be heard at a Zoning Board of Appeals public hearing Aug. 22 at Yeomans Hall at 8 p.m.

One application is for variance by William Tuttle, who is seeking an additional building to be used as sleeping quarters on the site of the Center Church Camp on Rt. 87.

Also, Francis Cammisia is seeking permission for a gasoline station in an existing building on Rt. 8 which would require internal and external alterations to the building. All interested may attend.

At a recent reorganizational meeting of the ZBA, Miss Gertrude Johns was elected secretary to replace Connor Olson who had resigned in April.

William Lambert was elected chairman to replace Walter Schroder who has also resigned.

Citizens Committee Forms To Push for School Wing

A Citizens Committee for Education has been formed in Vernon with an immediate objective of informing the townpeople concerning the need for expansion of Rockville High School and doing all in its power to secure a positive vote on the Sept. 20 referendum.

The committee is headed by Joseph Powers, chairman of the Board of Education and Thomas Wolf, a member of the Town Council. At a press conference held this morning, Wolf said, "The time has come to build this school. Building costs for this project are going up at the rate of $60,000 to $70,000 per month." He added that further delay will mean still higher costs or less building for the same money.

At a referendum held last March the voters were asked to approve an appropriation of $8.6 million for the expansion. Plans have now been revised and the voters will be asked to vote on a total amount of $7.7 million which would include installation of a pool and expansion of the gym complex or they will be able to vote on the expansion of the school.

Wolf and Powers said the committee is anxious to have wide community participation and will welcome help from anyone interested. Wolf's office in the Vernon Professional Building will serve as a clearing house for any information or volunteers.

The committee, assisted by Richard Borden, director of administration, is preparing a detailed report on the impact the school expansion costs will have on the average taxpayer. Wolf termed the program "the single most important issue that has faced the town in a long time."

The committee has gained the endorsement of the Board of Education, the Town Council and the Republican Town Committee. It expects a like endorsement from the Democratic Town Committee, Wolf said.

Other members on the committee, at the present time, include Kenneth Howland, Mrs. Marie Herold, Dr. Robert Linstone, Dr. Daniel Woolwich, Henry Abuz, Mayor Frank McCoy, Donald Eden, Miss Edith Castelli, Representative Thomas Dooley, Senator Robert Houley, Mrs. Jane McCarthy, Mrs. Margaret Rak, Dr. Raymond Hamdell, Mrs. Beverly Cochran, Vincent Shaheen and Thomas Benoit. Wolf was elected chairman.

HEW Measure Killed

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon and his congressional supporters have killed a $30.5-billion spending bill for health, education and welfare. The action provoked harsh attacks from administration critics.

Nixon vetoed the bill Wednesday and pressed Congress to take out the $1.8 billion added to his original request. He called the measure "reckless federal spending."

The House hours later failed to muster the two-thirds majority necessary to override the veto. The vote was 203 to 171 in favor of overriding, 47 short of the two-thirds majority.

Although Democrats led the attack on Nixon, the party split ranks in the House and 42 Democrats voted with 129 Republicans against overturning the veto.

Democratic presidential candidate George McGovern denounced the veto and declared it a campaign issue.

"Mr. Nixon has a confused set of values when he said it is reckless to spend $1.8 billion more to meet the health, education and human needs of this country, but contends it is desirable to spend over $4 billion more on the Pentagon next year," McGovern said in a statement issued in Springfield, Ill., where he was campaigning.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., asserted, "The President's veto once again has demonstrated his insensitivity to the nation's priorities in health, education and programs affecting the elderly."

Spokesmen for the National Education Association and the AFL-CIO American Federation of Teachers joined the attack.

"The consequences of his action will be felt by every child in every school in the nation," said NEA president Catharine Barrett.

Driver Held

The driver of a car involved in a high speed chase by Manchester Police yesterday morning has been arrested on several motor vehicle and criminal charges, and has been taken to Norwich State Hospital for drug treatment, police said.

The driver, identified as Robert J. Gunther, 23, of East Hartford, was charged with reckless driving, driving without a license, attempted third-degree burglary, and illegal possession of prescription legend drugs.

Gunther was apprehended shortly after 11 yesterday morning near the intersection of Line and Gardner Sts. when his car ran off the road and hit an embankment. His small foreign car, bearing Maryland registration plates, was being chased at high speeds by Patrolman Gerald Gabe, who spotted the car on Charter Oak St.

Police said the car had been sought since Tuesday night, when it was seen leaving the scene of an attempted house break at 550 Kenney St.

Patrolman Gabe, after trying to stop the car by signaling with his cruiser's lights and siren, chased the vehicle east on Charter Oak St., and then south on Gardner St. The car ran a stop sign.

'Line' Startles Vernon People

VERNON (AP) — Residents of two streets in Vernon reported seeing Tuesday night and Wednesday a mysterious "line" above their houses.

They said the "line" had "no beginning or end" and was hovering over the houses.

Reporters who followed the line for 12 blocks, said it was about 50 feet off the ground near the houses and then rose to the tops of trees and a hill.

"Two firemen and a policeman confirmed the very thin, possibly a type of nylon filament. Reports of the 'line' in the sky drew clusters of as many as 30 persons to the sidewalks along Prospect and Mountain streets where it was first reported.

Flashing Beacon Now in Operation

A flashing beacon light at Highland and Wyllys St. was put into operation yesterday afternoon.

The installation was approved by the State Traffic Commission in his veto message, Nixon said the government cannot afford to spend the $30.5 billion appropriated for the Labor and Health, Education and Welfare departments.

The spending "just cannot be done without more taxes or more inflation, both of which I am determined to avoid," he said.

The bill carried funds for the fiscal year which began last July 1, and its demise leaves the two departments operating at last year's level of spending.

The vetoed measure contained about $800 million more than this country, but contends it is desirable to spend over $4 billion more on the Pentagon next year," McGovern said in a statement issued in Springfield, Ill., where he was campaigning.

They Count 6,375 Cars Using Parker-Colonial

Results of a 17-hour traffic survey on Colonial Rd. and on Parker St., between Colonial Rd. and Mitchell Dr., for a total of 6,375 an average of 64 minutes. He explained that, if Parker St. is abandoned between Colonial Rd. and Mitchell Dr., as the town plans to do, all of its traffic would converge on Colonial Rd., "more than doubling the load and making it even more hazardous for our children than now." He said tonight's meeting, on the empty lot on Colonial Rd., is to convince town officials to come up with an alternate plan.

He said the heaviest traffic on Parker St. was from 5 to 6 p.m. (413 vehicles), and from 4 to 5 p.m. (383). The heaviest traffic on Colonial Rd., he said, was between 9 and 10 p.m. (253), 4 to 5 p.m. (240), and 5 to 6 p.m. (230).

Mothers Wage Winning Battle Against TV Programs

NEWTON, Mass. (AP) — A four-year-old fight by a group of Massachusetts mothers aimed at improving the quality of the television programs their children watch has forced removal of prayers from orange juice commercials and cancellation of certain vitamin pill advertising.

There have been other victories for the mothers, who call themselves Action for Children's Television—ACT—but they say their children still see too many commercials and programs to which they should not be subjected.

"It's time for America to realize children are special in the TV they watch," Peggy Charren, ACT chairman, said in an interview.

And to that end the group is continuing its campaign for an end to commercials on children's programs and an improvement in network programming.

ACT, a privately funded pressure group, has been successful in several times before federal agencies. Last fall they told the Federal Trade Commission—FTC—and Federal Communications Commission—FCC—that one commercial during the children's program "Romper Room" on one television station said, in part: "God is great. God is good, let us thank him for our food, and now you may drink your Tropicana Orange Juice from the Pleasant Hill Dairy."

The commercial is no longer shown, and the producers of the popular nationwide program have made several format changes.

Mrs. Charren said ACT's resource chairman across the country report that ACT proposed changes of removing brand-name Romper Room toys from the program and of prohibiting the teacher-hostess from doing commercials have been adopted by program producers.

Another action ACT had sought was taken July 13 when it was announced that three major drug companies—Miles Laboratories, Bristol-Myers and Hoffman-La Roche—had agreed to withdraw vitamin pill ads from children's programs by Oct. 1.

At FTC hearings last year, ACT had said that iron-fortified vitamin pills were being sold on TV "just like candy," despite medical warnings that too much iron can lead to coma and death. Mrs. Charren called the actions of the drug companies "socially responsible." But she and other mothers, who began their drive on a shoestring budget in a living room, are far from satisfied with the format of children's television programs.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Clark who recently returned from a two-week trip to North Vietnam said, "My impression is the chances of their releasing American pilots while there is American bombing is nil except as a symbolic thing."

He added that North Vietnamese leaders with whom he spoke appeared surprised when asked if they would release the prisoners after the war is ended. Their surprise seemed to say what reason would they have for keeping them, Clark said.

Appearing before a Senate judiciary subcommittee exploring the problem of war refugees throughout Indochina, Clark also described destruction of dikes and schools, hospitals and civilian areas.

He also displayed a small grenade-like fragmentation bomb given to him by the mayor of Hanoi which Clark said was a totally antipersonnel weapon that would do little damage to structures.

"I know of no justification in law or morality for that kind of weapon," Clark said. "They have one purpose: to kill people."

The former attorney general conceded he is not a military man but said the damage to dikes and sluices which he witnessed in his tour of North Vietnam seemed to indicate that the bombing was deliberate.

Clark Warns Bombs May Hold POWs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark said today the continued U.S. bombing of North Vietnam will insure that American prisoners of war will not be released.

Clark, who recently returned from a two-week trip to North Vietnam said, "My impression is the chances of their releasing American pilots while there is American bombing is nil except as a symbolic thing."

Police Report

Scott F. Woodbury, 18, of East Windsor, was arrested by Manchester Police early this morning on charges of third-degree assault and criminal attempted break and entry, in connection with two unrelated incidents.

Police said the assault charge stemmed from an alleged sexual assault of an 18-year-old girl, who was not identified, last night. The break and entry charge was filed in connection with a house break at a Parker St. home, police said. Woodbury was released on a $500 non-surety bond for court appearance Aug. 28 at Manchester.

Other arrests reported by Manchester Police included: Robert F. Ruddy Jr., 25, of Enfield, charged last night with speeding on E. Center St. Court date Sept. 11.

Frederick A. Goltra, 25, of Montauk Dr., Vernon, charged yesterday afternoon with being an accessory to fourth-degree larceny. Court date Aug. 28.

Frank T. Quinn, 15, of 69 Corrine Dr., Tolland, charged last night with fourth-degree larceny (shoplifting) at Treasure City department store at the Parkade. Court date Sept. 11.

Russell W. Lallier, 25, of Hartford, charged yesterday morning with failure to drive a reasonable distance apart, after an accident at Center and Olcott Sts. involving his car and a town car driven by Construction Inspector Herman Passantelli of 172 New Bolton Rd. Court date Sept. 11.

Four tires reported stolen from Manchester Sand and Gravel's Depot St. warehouse were recovered yesterday afternoon in a clump of bushes at a N. Main St. address, police reported.

Vandals broke four lights at Emanuel Lutheran Church, 60 Church St., Tuesday night and threw trash on the lawn at the church, police reported.

Trash was also reported thrown on lawns at a Chestnut St. home the same night, police said.

Manchester's sesquicentennial may be 10 months away, but last night the parade committee initiated action to insure the best possible turnout and representation in the June 23 parade to start the town's week-long 150th anniversary observance. Seated, left to right, are James C. Bayliss and Peter E. Benson, co-chairmen; standing, left to right, State Rep. Francis Mahoney, coordinator; James H. Wagner, transportation; Chester A. Gromulski, commissary; and Walter A. Von Hone, publicity and public relations. Joseph A. Kowall, operations, will be seen on a special letterhead prepared for the occasion, to marching units to participate. (Herald photo by Pinto)

FISH Starts Fifth Year

FISH, the organization dedicated to offering help to those in emergency situations, is going into its fifth year of service in the Vernon area and looking forward to the coming year with optimism, according to the co-presidents, David and Shirley Howe.

A continuing need for more transportation volunteers still exists as a requirement exists for regular trips to Hartford Hospital by a local person who must use the kidney dialysis machine there. The person's appointments are for Tuesdays and Fridays at 2 p.m. Calls are also received for transportation to the Newington Children's Hospital. This type of call normally requires two to three hours of a volunteer's time.

Anyone interested in helping out as a volunteer driver should contact Mrs. John Burr, 101 South St. Telephone volunteers will be receiving a report list which itemizes some of the details of the calls taken. The committee hopes these reports will help to provide better communications between the phone duty people and the officers. It is also hoped they will provide a record of what FISH is, or has been doing.

According to Mr. and Mrs. Howe there is more need for more thorough screening of incoming calls as the committee feels too many calls of a non-emergency type are being received. The phone duty personnel are not supposed to call backup volunteer drivers unless a real emergency exists.

In addition to the special transportation needs more volunteers are needed to assist with the bingo games and to visit patients at the Hemlock Nursing Home on Friday mornings. Anyone interested in assisting in this area should contact Mrs. Goldman Levell, 103 Hillside Manor Ave., co-financial secretary.

Walter Stephen, 29, of Niederwerter Rd., South Windsor, was arrested last night by Vernon Police after they received a complaint that a man was lying in the road on Windsorville Ave. Stephen was charged with being intoxicated and is scheduled to appear in Circuit Court 12, Rockville, Sept. 5.

Board Cancels Comment Session

The Board of Directors comment session scheduled for tonight in the Municipal Building has been canceled due to a meeting between members of the board and residents of the Colonial Rd. area to discuss the proposed abandonment of Parker St. That meeting is set for 7:30 p.m. at the empty lot on Colonial Rd.

Someone once said: "The bitterness of low quality is remembered long after the sweetness of low price is forgotten."

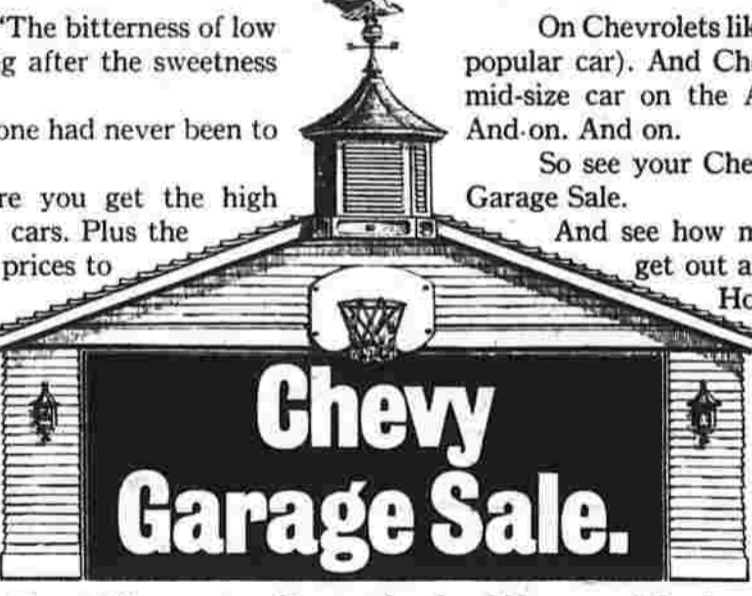

Evidently that someone had never been to a Chevrolet Garage Sale.

Because that's where you get the high quality of America's No. 1 cars. Plus the sweetness of low year-end prices to go along with them.

On Chevrolets like Impala (America's most popular car). And Chevelle (The most popular mid-size car on the American road). And on. And on. And on.

So see your Chevy dealer now during his Garage Sale.

And see how much you can save. Then get out and see some of the U.S.A. How sweet it is.

Even if they weren't on sale, they'd be good deals.

During the Change: It's Business as Usual

By JOHN CUNIFF
NEW YORK (AP) — When a store is being altered and is framed in scaffolding, it isn't uncommon to see a brightly painted sign announcing "Business as usual."

Business can go on as usual of course, but no enterprising businessman admits that he concedes nothing. He believes that a growing business accepts the challenges and turns them to advantage. It adjusts.

On an immensely larger scale, it may be said that something of the same is occurring in the American business environment today. It is being altered. The rules are changing. The scaffolding is up—but so is the sign.

The most obvious change is in the rules for pricing. Not long ago this was largely a private matter, a decision the company made in its own interests, for its own good.

No longer. As has been demonstrated by an unacceptably high rate of inflation, price is public. Today's huge corporations, if let to follow the old rule, are fully capable of challenging a governmental anti-inflation program.

Recognition of this has been made official through various government bodies, particularly the Price Commission. But the change is even greater. Presidential power also is being used to intervene directly.

Business Mirror

Pricing therefore has become political too, as General Motors, Chrysler, Ford and American Motors understand fully. If the President doesn't want a price increase you must consider the consequences of challenging him.

If you're the advertising manager, you don't make claims as readily as you did 10 or 15 years ago because you might be called upon to document them.

Consumer and government power are united in a campaign to make ads factual and instructive rather than vague and suggestive.

If you sit on the board of directors you feel a few splinters. You might, in fact, find it so uncomfortable as to quit, but if you don't you at least study the issues before you sign anything. And you have a big liability insurance policy too, because the stockholders might sue you.

As a director, and therefore as an insider, you may find yourself in a dilemma when it comes to trading the company's stock.

Once it was easier to look after your interests; at the hint of bad news you dumped your shares.

You have to watch that sort of thing today. Investigations into the trading activities of the Penn Central before its collapse have put the heat on the use of insider information for personal financial advantage.

In Wall Street, the clampdown on some of the more bizarre, scandalous, free-wheeling practices has thrown a lot of brokerage houses out of business, and those that remain now must run their affairs like businesses instead of games.

In manufacturing, some companies still haven't adjusted to the notion that they are responsible for the safety of their products, but this concept is firmly part of the new environment, as the automakers are learning.

Business is learning also that a company's obligation isn't solely to make money for its stockholders. In the new environment, it must avoid polluting, promote race and sex equality, be a good citizen.

All this, it is said, is for the public good. And while some companies insist it is anything but that, others have embraced the public good thesis in circumstances that differ from any of those mentioned before.

Coventry Town Democrats Pick Candidates

Local Democrats Tuesday endorsed their candidates for the November election, adopted new party rules, and also, in a touch of late summer lunacy, gave their "undying and vigorous" support to the Democrats' efforts on the volleyball court.

The positions to appear on this November's ballot are not contested, and all those endorsed Tuesday are assured of automatic election.

They include eight justices of the peace and two registrars of voters. The party's town committee has recommended eight candidates for the justice posts, and there was one nomination from the town Tuesday, creating a caucus contest.

The name of Joseph Fowler was nominated by Barbara Johnson, and received 27 votes, knocking out the name of Joyce Carilli, who was low vote getter with 26.

Other justices endorsed were Holly Gantner with 42 votes, Lionel Jean, 40; Raymond Bradley, 39; Michael Fratiani, 38; Dorothy Cahill, 36; and Maryanne Morris and Al Meyers, 32 each.

All are incumbents except for Fowler, Fratiani and Mrs. Morris.

The two incumbent registrars, Rita Wisnall and Julie Bradley, both won unanimous endorsement.

The new party rules were adopted with one change. All references to chairman in the rules will now be "chairperson." (Otherwise, changes were relatively minor, and were recommended in conformity with state rules and suggestions of the McGovern Committee.)

The one significant change is that, from now on, all convention delegates will be chosen in open caucus rather than by the town committee only.

"Dollars for Democrats" drive. "The party as a whole is in bad financial shape," Cummings said. "We have a lot of talent but a lack of money. Soon, all committee members will be getting the word - we need the hands and the heads of all of you. The same ticket becomes more electable day. Let's get out and elect them."

He declined to identify himself to newsmen. Another leader of the Manchester Committee for Peace and Justice was at the front entrance to the Hilton Hotel when MacGovern arrived. Ellen held two signs which read, "Should We Re-elect a President that Kills 300 People a Day?" and "Stop the Senseless Bombing."

MacGovern said, "There's no truth to it. I never thought that George McGovern would go so separate so soon. The South Dakota senator, by his own words, has convicted himself of character assassination. "George McGovern," he said, "is in the position of a lawyer without a case. He's diverting the jury's attention. He's talking about issues that don't exist."

MacGovern said, "The Nixon election effort," he concluded, "is a 50-man effort. We're not writing off any state for victory, including the District of Columbia."

No Spurs Allowed

DALLAS (AP) - Airline pilots flying in and out of Love Field may not be aware of all the rules that have to contend with. Among these U.S. Air Service rules, laid down in 1920 and still on the books, are:

Don't turn sharply while taxiing. Instead, have someone lift the tail around.

Pilots should carry handkerchiefs to wipe off their goggles.

Hedge-hopping won't be tolerated.

Pilots will not wear spurs while flying.

Don't trust altitude instruments.

Don't leave the ground with your motor leaking.

And, last, but not least, if an emergency occurs while flying, land as soon as you can.

DRIVER OF YEAR

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) - Mrs. Sylvia Miller has been named Kent County School Bus Driver of the Year. She won the title on the basis of a second-place finish in the county school bus drivers' rosters, a perfect road and work record, and her loving care of passengers.

About 95 per cent of approximately 450 county school bus drivers are women.

Slakes Stolen From Collection

PORT PIERCE, Fla. (AP) - Bob Roth opened his private zoo to find that one of the main attractions, his entire collection of more than 30 snakes, had been stolen.

Roth said Wednesday that while none of the snakes are poisonous, among those stolen were three indigo snakes.

"The indigos are protected by the state and you need a license to exhibit them. On the black market, they'll probably bring about $50 apiece," said Roth.

Both said he's been hit by thieves four times since he opened his Animals of Distinction Zoo two months ago.

He says he's planning to add a new animal to his collection now - a watch dog.

British Dock Crews Rebel Against Peace

WILKES-BARRE, Pa. (AP) - The 173,000 voters in Luzerne County must re-register either before or during the Nov. 7 general election because records were destroyed by June flooding.

London (AP) - Militant dockworkers picketed outside the Transport and General Workers Union headquarters today against ending Britain's national dock strike and voted to continue their stoppage unofficially.

The 6,000 stevedores manning the west coast seaport - one of the biggest in the country - unanimously rejected a decision by union leaders to call the three-week dock blockade, a decision that sparked violent strike which has led to about 500 deaths and 1,000 injuries.

The revolt is expected to be supported at Hull, another major port.

Among the ports which decided to return to work were key container terminals at Southampton and Felixstowe and docks in South Wales and east Scotland.

As far as the Transport and General Workers Union is concerned, the strike, which has choked off exports worth millions of dollars and has started vital food imports, was ended by 30 vote by dock workers' delegates Wednesday.

Police obtained a Superior Court warrant Thursday night charging Allison with three counts of murder in the stabbing deaths of his wife Barbara, 38; her father, J. George Montano, 49; and her mother, Bernice Montano, 46.

The bodies of the three, all of whom had sustained multiple stab wounds, were discovered Monday morning in separate parts of Montana's blood-spattered home.

Mrs. Allison had separated from her husband several days before and was living with her parents, along with her seven-month-old daughter, in a mobile home in the first-floor front porch of the house.

At 1:20 a.m. today a man who identified himself as Allison called the Hartford Courant, the newspaper said.

The man said, "I know some people in Hartford. I used to live there and I want them to know that I am absolutely innocent. I'm absolutely innocent of those charges and I'm going to fight for it. I've been accused of something I've never thought of doing in my whole life."

A similar call was received by the New Haven Star-Journal. In both calls the man said he was going to give himself up immediately.

Police said Allison, a 34-year-old consultant for a Wallingford poverty agency, was seen near the Montano home about the time of the slayings.

Police said he was stopped by an officer for driving an August 1967 noty muffer at 1:35 a.m. Monday about a mile from the Montano home.

After a committee treasurer Paul Phillips reported a cash balance of $963, Cummings said efforts will be made for a
