

Gov. Meskill Vetoes Portion Of Bus Bill

HARTFORD (AP)—Gov. Thomas J. Meskill today issued a line-item veto, knocking down all but one portion of the mass transportation bill passed last week by the General Assembly. The only portion Meskill approved would distribute $3 million in highway funds to cities and towns.

Meskill said Democratic leaders in the General Assembly were "politically motivated" when they combined the highway fund distribution portion with another section of the bill allowing the state to give direct subsidies to bus companies from the state's Public Service Tax Fund.

Meanwhile, buses continued to roll in the state's six biggest metropolitan areas as if a bus strike had never threatened. It had, and still does. But the Amalgamated Transit Union (ATU) and the state's two biggest bus lines have agreed to extend an expired contract day-by-day while they continue to negotiate and while the question of a subsidy is settled.

Both the Connecticut Co. and Connecticut Railway & Lighting Co. say they are losing hundreds of dollars each day, and cannot afford to give their drivers and mechanics raises, without a fresh supply of money. With strikes threatening last Saturday night at both lines, Gov. Thomas J. Meskill called the General Assembly to special session, where it proceeded to pass a subsidy plan he vowed to veto. But when it landed on his desk, he didn't sign it.

Auditors Report Toll Gate Security Law

HARTFORD (AP)—The Department of Transportation hasn't made adequate security arrangements at lower Connecticut Turnpike toll stations despite a security inquiry launched by Gov. Thomas J. Meskill more than a year ago, according to two state auditors.

They said the legislature may wish to consider taking responsibility for the stations away from the Transportation Department.

Tours of the Greenwich and other toll stations in May revealed dirty physical plants and bags of money exposed to view, the auditors said in a report released Sunday. The auditors, Leo V. Donohue and Henry J. Becker Jr., said they saw no monitors being used to observe motorists paying their tolls. "We were informed that monitors were not being used at all," they reported.

The auditors noted that State Transportation Commissioner A. Earl Wood set up a new division of tolls, concessions and security on July 1, 1971.

But, they said, "there have been no personnel assigned to the security unit. The Connecticut toll operation lacks organizational status within the Department of Transportation to assure efficient administration of revenue collections which totalled more than $34 million during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1971," the auditors' report said.

"The General Assembly might wish to consider removing the responsibility for toll operations from the Department of Transportation that has as its prime objective the development of a long-range master plan of transportation for the state."

The auditors made a series of recommendations, including greater use of state police at toll stations and elimination of un-manned free lanes at toll stations now used by official state and military vehicles.

They also suggested creation of a system to alert the management of excessive revenue losses or employee malfeasance.

The report said that while revenue losses decreased at the Greenwich station during the investigation ordered by Meskill, they increased at the Norwalk, Stratford and West Haven stations.

Nixon Regime Alleged Corrupt

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer
Eleanor McGovern and Sargent Shriver have assailed alleged corruption in the Nixon administration, but Shriver says most people have been "bruised too much" to care.

Meanwhile, Clark MacGregor, President Nixon's campaign director, said Nixon "cannot lose the election." He warned, however, against costly mistakes by the campaign organization. Nixon, Democratic presidential nominee George McGovern and Vice President Spiro T. Agnew did not campaign Sunday.

Sen. McGovern's wife was on national television where she called the Nixon administration "the most corrupt regime that we have had in recent American history," citing the break-in and alleged bugging at the Democratic party headquarters at Washington's Watergate building as an example.

"...the lesson of Watergate," she said, is that "we have lost freedoms and we're not aware of it." Mrs. McGovern appeared on NBC's "Meet the Press" Sunday, the first time the wife of a presidential candidate has done so.

She also said that her husband will soon announce a specific plan for ending the Vietnam war. Shriver, the Democratic vice presidential candidate, was in Minneapolis where he acknowledged that the Watergate case and alleged Republican campaign fund irregularities had not become major issues in the minds of most voters.

"We sort of have an emerging royalty of top bureaucrats and the people at the bottom feel incapable of changing what's going on at the top," he said. "So they're apathetic. They're very skeptical. They've been bruised too much," he added. Shriver also said: "We've lost our sense of moral outrage over that form of corruption at the top levels of government. A huge number of persons are just disgusted with the government, and to them, the Watergate affair is just proof that they're right."

President Nixon spent a quiet Sunday at his retreat at Camp David in Maryland. He is scheduled to confer with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko on several matters pending in U.S.-Soviet relations today. There are no scheduled campaign trips for Nixon this week.

Two Vermont Fires Claim Nine Lives

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Two mothers and seven children died today in separate house fires in South Burlington and Randolph, Vt.

In South Burlington, an early morning fire swept a two-story house, and a woman and her four children died. Their identities had not been released.

The Randolph fire destroyed a 1 1/2-story house killing Karen Rhoades, 29, and three children by a previous marriage.

Mrs. Rhoades and her children, Cheryl Stringham, 10, Walter Stringham, 6, and Tamara Stringham, 5, were trapped in an upper floor bedroom, fire officials said.

Garrison Loses Bid For State Supreme Court

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — New Orleans Dist. Atty. James Garrison, who once charged people in high places plotted the assassination of President Kennedy, has failed in his bid for a seat on Louisiana's Supreme Court.

The New Orleans prosecutor was defeated Saturday by New Orleans civil court Judge Walter Marcus. Marcus polled 104,676 votes to Garrison's 88,406.

North Vietnam Ant Power Keeps Supply Lines Open

Editors Note: AP Special Correspondent Peter Arnett, the winner of a Pulitzer Prize in eight years of war reporting from South Vietnam, has just completed his first visit to North Vietnam. In the following story he describes the "ant power" of the North Vietnamese war effort and the wonder of a visitor, wonder not at the destruction of U.S. bombing but at the survival power of the North Vietnamese.

By PETER ARNETT
AP Special Correspondent

If you have wondered why the North Vietnamese can continue to fight on despite the biggest bombing campaign in the history of war, then ride with three U.S. pilots and me down the roads south of Hanoi and find out.

Our destination was Nam Dinh City and the Phat Diem Cathedral, both severely bombed, and showplaces of the destructive power of the American air campaign. Jane Fonda and Ramsey Clark had been there. Now it was the turn of the three pilots just released from a prisoner-of-war camp — Navy Lt. Mark Gartyler and Norris Charles, and Air Force Major Edward Elias — and myself.

But long before we reached our destination we were shaking our heads in wonder, not at the destructive power of the bombs from the sky but at the survival power of the people on the ground.

The pilots' previous view of North Vietnam was from the skies above. For years I had watched from the vantage point of South Vietnam.

Now here on the ground as we rolled along the narrow highways in the dark hours before dawn, the cliches came true.

Here was the "ant power" that Pentagon experts theorized lay behind Hanoi's ability to keep supplies and men moving to the southern war fronts. Where bombs had scored direct hits on railway cars on the tracks paralleling the road, dark shapes hammered at twisted wreckage, while other figures carried material and dumped it into the craters. As dawn came and we passed through the railroad junction of severely bombed Phu Le, we saw that the dark shapes were women and they weren't even using buckets; they were carrying mud in their bare hands to fill the craters in, and they seemed to be enjoying it.

When our old Russian Volga sedan bogged down at one point, the women swarmed out of the mud and gathered around us, laughing and gesticulating. "Ant Power"

This "ant power" was everywhere. Whereas in South Vietnam the war has denuded the countryside of population and sent people scurrying into the cities, in the North it is the reverse, and they swarmed on the highway.

Walking or riding bicycles along lonely roads in South Vietnam at night can mean death or capture. But in the North, nighttime is the logical time to travel for the faint-hearted, or for the supply convoys, because it affords protection from the planes that fly above.

The key to the use of the night is simply that there are no guerrillas to harass the convoys or blow up the supplies. In North Vietnam the war is only from the air.

That is why I observed no barbed wire anywhere, no barricaded militia outposts or fortified bunkers. Except for when the planes came over, the North Vietnamese countryside looked positively bucolic. But few things are ever what they seem, and Elias, who piloted a reconnaissance plane before he was shot down five months ago, enlightened me.

"See those grave mounds?" Elias asked as we waited under the trees for a ferry to cross a river where a bridge had been destroyed. About 100 yards away, buffalo grazed quietly around the heaps of earth.

"They're anti-aircraft pits with the muzzles down," Elias said. "Let a plane come over and they'll stick up their snouts and blast away. And those things are difficult to spot in pictures. It would take a very expert and very lucky PI (photo interpreter) to see them."

As we sped into the rising sun, Elias's head was twisting to left and right. "See that flak site? They're 85s." Or he would say, "There's another one, half a dozen 51-calibers." To me they looked like banana trees.

Survival Power

The rebuilding capabilities of the North Vietnamese after massive bombing raids has impressed visitors to the nation including Associated Press correspondent Peter Arnett, who begins a series today on his impressions of North Vietnam. ## State Official Lauds Pond Restoration

About 250 Manchester citizens stood at the southern end of a rejuvenated Union Pond yesterday and heard a handful of speakers dedicate the pond to them and to their fellow townspersons, many of whom took an active part in converting the pond from a North End eyesore to a recreation area.

The grassy site for the dedication ceremonies was once a smelly, unnatural swamp, the resting place for industrial wastes and other forms of pollution.

At the close of the brief festivities, Mayor John Thompson and Laurie Lee Osgood, Miss Manchester, unveiled a plaque mounted in a large stone. The plaque reads: "This park is dedicated to the people of Manchester and to the many volunteers who contributed to its development."

With the formalities completed, a number of people took to the pond in canoes and kayaks, presumably forecasting the recreational uses to which the pond will now be put.

Despite the bright sun, a chill blew across the area, encouraging the chief speaker, Nathan Agostinelli, to put aside his address and confine himself to brief remarks. Agostinelli, now state comptroller and a former Manchester mayor, echoed the remarks of another former mayor, Harold A. Turkington, when he described the accomplishment at Union Pond as a beginning and not an end.

Earlier Turkington traced the history of the town's acquisition of the pond property and the first steps in its redevelopment. "I really hope that this is not the end, that it is a beginning," Turkington said.

Turkington recalled that when the Board of Directors undertook the purchase of Union Pond in 1961 there was considerable opposition to the move. He said the position the board took then was that the town should take control of the property for the future.

Another speaker, Ted Bampton, deputy commissioner of the state's Department of Environmental Protection, said in speaking of the accomplishments at Union Pond, that "Manchester has more than its share of enlightened citizens and civic minded organizations."

He said that because Connecticut has had no law making large bodies of water public property, the state is encouraging towns to acquire them whenever possible. "What you are dedicating today is an extraordinary step in that direction," he said.

State Termed 'Barometer' For National Vote Trend

HARTFORD (AP) — Connecticut's handful of eight electoral votes means more than might be expected to President Nixon and Sen. George McGovern, their campaign directors said over the weekend.

Democratic campaign chief Larry O'Brien called Connecticut a "barometer" that the nation will be watching election night for an early clue on who has won the presidency.

If first reports are negative, he said, "it'll be a very short evening for the Democrats."

O'Brien also said Nixon considered Connecticut one of four states he especially wanted to win, a statement backed up by Clark MacGregor director of the Committee for Re-election of the President, writing in "U.S. News & World Report."

MacGregor said it was important for Nixon to carry the Northeast and Mid-Atlantic states he lost in 1968, namely, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, New York and Maryland, to strengthen his hands in foreign affairs.

Heads of foreign states, MacGregor said, "are acutely aware of a president's breadth of support, or the lack of it, as shown by the American people."

O'Brien, appearing at a $100 per plate dinner in Hartford, predicted that Nixon would make a "particular effort" in Connecticut once he started campaigning actively.

O'Brien said it would be a blow to Democrats if Connecticut reported on election night that it had gone Republican. But state Democratic Chairman John Bailey assured him that it would not. "We'll do it in the last week," he said.

Fierre Salinger, co-chairman of Citizens for McGovern, spoke with characteristic candor to a group of a University of Hartford students Sunday night.

He said McGovern suffered two major problems: the lable "radical" pinned on him by Sen. Hubert Humphrey in the California primary and the Sen. Thomas Eagleton affair.

"Once Eagleton was selected there was no way for McGovern to win," Salinger said. Sargent Shriver "would have been the first choice if he had been in the country," he said.

Shriver was in Russia on a business trip during the Democratic convention. Salinger said Humphrey had done a better job of convincing voters McGovern was a radical than Nixon has.

On election day, he said a low turnout of voters would benefit

Democrats Pick Bella

NEW YORK (AP) — Rep. Bella Abzug has been selected to succeed the late Rep. William F. Ryan as Democratic candidate for Congress.

Democratic county committeemen from the 20th Congressional District voted 553 to 327 Sunday night for Mrs. Abzug over Priscilla Ryan, widow of the congressman who died of cancer Sept. 17.

The flamboyant Mrs. Abzug, 52, lost her own district through reapportionment. She challenged Ryan, a fellow liberal, in the June primary but lost by 18,000 votes.

The vacancy created by Ryan's death allows her a chance at a second term in Congress. The Democratic nomination in the district is normally tantamount to election.

"THE WAY I HEARD IT"
by John Cruber

Somebody asked me to repeat the series of operas scheduled for this season. I have already given them in the spring when the season subscription was in progress, but this person didn't want to subscribe to the entire series, and meanwhile has lost the issue in which I listed things. I suppose there are others in the same boat so here is a repeat.

The season starts Oct. 14, and seats are already on sale for this one. It is "Lucia di Lammermoor," Donizetti's best-known and most popular opera. In the title role will be Christina Duetekom, whose name is pronounced DOY-eh-kohm, by the way. She will be making a Hartford debut as will Giacomo Aragall who will sing opposite her. Still another newcomer to Hartford is Dimitri Nabokov, also in the cast.

Watch out for the time on this one. It is 7:30 p.m. That's right: 7:30. It is opening night and there is a big operal ball following the performance which accounts for the very early curtain. All this begins at 8 p.m.

Nov. 2 brings Rigoletto. This, too, has a bunch of newcomers to Hartford. Matteo Managuerra will sing the title role. He has been heard in this country but not in Hartford. Laise Russell will sing his daughter, Gilda. She, too, is making a Hartford debut but has been heard in the U. S. Veriano Lucchetti will sing the Duke. So far as I know this is his U.S. debut, he comes from Italy.

What with the holiday season other things, there is no opera in December. In fact you have to wait until Jan. 25th for the next one, which is "Otello." This is Verdi's greatest opera and one of which I never tire. It is not, however, in the usual tune with glorified guitar accompaniment tradition.

Pier Miranda Ferraro will sing the title role. I don't know anything about him, but the other two principals are Thomas Stewart as Lago and Evelyn Lear as Desdemona. They couldn't be better. Connecticut Opera always has done this one well in the past and I recommend it heartily.

Feb. 21 is my birthday and I can't think of nicer way to celebrate it than by going to Samson and Delila at the Bushnell. The husband and wife team of James McCracken and Sandra Warfield will sing the title roles with Chester Ludgin and Louis Sgarro in support. Ludgin is an in-and-outer, sometimes excellent and sometimes not too wonderful. Louis Sgarro always turns in a fine performance and is the singer who has been heard the most frequently in Hartford.

Frank Pandolfi has chosen a double bill for March 9. It combines "Cavalleria Rusticana" by Mascagni with "Il Tabarro" by Puccini. Last year he combined "Pagliacci" with "Gianni Schicchi" and I'm all for this breaking with tradition. Since Tabarro is not well known, I'll have more to say about it closer to the performance date.

Piccolo Domingo, the fine tenor who has been heard here before and Maria Galvany who is now in Hartford are in Cavalleria. Giovanni Ciminnelli and Rita di Carlo are in Tabarro. Rita di Carlo has sung here on numerous occasions, always to fine effect. I don't know Ciminnelli, an Italian baritone.

Sophia Expecting

ROME (AP) — Sophia Loren is expecting her second child. Her husband, movie producer Carlo Ponti, released what he and his wife had considered a family secret after a photographer caught the actress in a pose clearly showing her pregnancy. Ponti said Sophia is currently staying in Geneva, Switzerland, to be closely assisted by her gynecologist. The 38-year-old actress, who has said she cannot conceive love without a family and children, underwent medical treatment for years before she had her first child, Carlo Jr. in December 1968.

She had suffered a miscarriage nearly two years before. "When our second child will be born," said 58-year-old Ponti, "Sophia will resume acting. Her next film will probably be 'Mother of a Family' directed by Italy's Neio Risi."

Assessor Accepting Property Statements

Gerard Lavoie, town assessor, is reminding all those who own personal property in the town of Coventry that such property must be declared during the month of October. Farmers are also reminded that they must apply for their farmers exemption during September and October. Boy Scout Troop 65 will hold its first meeting of the new year tonight from 7 to 8:30 at the American Legion Hall, Wall St. All boys over 11 years of age who are interested in scouting but would like to join, are invited to attend this session and bring their parents along. The North Coventry Women's Club will hold its first meeting of the club year Tuesday with a meeting open to all interested townspeople at 8 p.m. at the North Coventry Community House. The Rev. Donald Miller of Tolland will speak and show slides of his recent three-week tour of the Holy Land. The American Legion Auxiliary has elected and installed new officers for the club year. President is Elizabeth Newcomb, first vice president, Sybil Victor, second vice president, Marie Carl, secretary, Elaine Hotchkiss, and treasurer, Mildred Korber.

Women's Group Donates Books To Library

The Manchester Community College Women's Organization has given more than 30 new books to the college library. They have been placed on a special shelf reserved for women's studies but will be available for general use. Ms. Susan Brown, teacher of English and group co-ordinator, said it is hoped that the donation will create a desire by students and teachers to learn more about the broad issues raised by the women's movement, such as working women, women in the economy, women and the law, and attitudes toward women throughout history.

Accident Basis Of $150,000 Suit

An accident involving a pedestrian and a car Dec. 26, 1970, on Main St., is the basis of a $150,000 suit filed in Tolland County Superior Court. The plaintiff is Mrs. Wills M. McLaughlin of 13 William St., the defendant is Edward and Danella McVeigh of 18 Conway Rd. Mrs. McVeigh was driver of the car. The accident occurred near St. Bridget Church, as Mrs. McLaughlin was crossing from east to west. The action is returnable in the October session of the Superior Court.

'Rent Watch' Order Issued

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has ordered a nationwide "Rent Watch" to make sure landlords don't illegally boost the rent of older persons receiving a 20-per-cent increase in Social Security benefits next week. The program was announced Friday after the President met with the Cost of Living Council. Council director Donald Rumsfeld said there have been cases in the past where Social Security benefit increases for older persons prompted rent hikes. To ensure that doesn't happen again, Rumsfeld said the Federal Reserve Service will conduct a "rent sweep" of 50,000 unlicensed mostly elderly persons—which are subject to the Price Commission's rent regulations.

A Positive Approach

The Manchester Charter Revision Commission is embarked upon a tremendous task and one, which in the final outcome, will affect each citizen of the town.

It is boldly taking a hard look at a strong mayor type of town government as opposed to the present council-manager form. If both are objectively assessed in the light of existing and future town needs, we are confident the CRC recommendation will be worth considering by the electors.

What impresses us now is the detail in which CRC, under the chairmanship of John FitzGerald, proceeds to study our governmental machinery. Too us, whether or not any significant changes are instituted, such a thorough study should be made of town and even state government periodically rather than wait until problems create the need.

The assignment of subcommittees to explore various areas of town government is good and we hope that these CRC subcommittee chairmen will be given the fullest cooperation possible by town officials elective and appointive, as they gather in the information needed for their reports to the committee of the whole.

The CRC has taken a positive and progressive approach toward assessing charter change needs. Manchester citizens should take pride in the fact they have among them citizens and leaders willing to involve themselves in such projects.

The CRC is on sound, footing and faces many hard decisions in the days ahead. We are sure not all the charter change proposals will or should be adopted but we are confident all will be given a full and fair airing. This is all we can ask and all we should expect. The final decision will be ours at the polls.

Political Polls

Hardly a day goes by without some new political poll being announced and, depending on the figures, the outcome is interpreted accordingly. Point spreads, increases and decreases from the last poll, comparisons to other polls, independence or non-independence, and the batting average of the pollster, are all painstakingly detailed.

Too often not mentioned, or only referred to in passing, is that the polls reflect statistical projections on the basis of what people were thinking when the poll was taken. What might be statistically true in early October might be reversed by early November.

Sen. Hubert Humphrey in 1968 narrowed the gap and almost won the presidency in the waning days of the campaign. In 1948, Harry Truman, not only made pollsters look like something akin to a Missouri mule but embarrassed a lot of newspapers who tried the streets before all the precincts were counted.

Political polls have their role as campaign traditions, but only as indicators, and not as totally reliable gauges of public opinion.

In our assessment of the 1972 polls to date, there is only one ominous cloud which should concern the Democrats. Although the campaign has several weeks to go, it appears the bid of Sen. George McGovern is in trouble, not because of the point spread between he and the President, but because that spread is not being significantly narrowed. Where there is inherent political danger in peaking too early in a campaign, the real danger to McGovern's effort may be he is peaking too late.

This is a situation fraught with danger which out of desperation could lead to a campaign windup of reckless charges and personality attacks belouder the issues upon which the voter should make his decision.

We should all view the polls, the propaganda they generate, and the pressures to either get on the bandwagon of the "obvious" winner or sentimentally support the "underdog," as part of the great game of politics. These should be assessed for what they are and we should remember the only poll that really counts won't be conducted until Nov. 7.

I Hope This Man Is You

The kind of man I like to know
Is one sincere and true,
Who carries his heart within his breast
And imparts that fact to you.

The kind of man I like to know
Is one with a happy smile,
Who always takes his lot in stride,
And features it all the while.

Yes, the kind of man I like to know,
Is one who'll seldom frown,
Or get upset when the going is rough,
And he knows that the chips are down.

The kind of man I like to know,
Is one who works and earns,
And makes a slip from time to time,
For it's through mistakes he learns.

The kind of man I like to know,
Is one who'll lend a hand,
For it may perhaps be a stepping stone,
On his way to the promised land.

Yes, the kind of man I like to know
Is one who'll turn about,
When a word like this could comfort,
"Say, pal, can I help you out?"

The kind of man I like to know,
Is one with simple knowledge,
The kind that's known as "common sense"
That can't be learned in college.

The kind of man I like to know,
Is one who'll often say,
"I'll do this job and do it well,
For I've the will and I'll find a way."

Yes, the kind of man I like to know
Is classed among the few,
With qualities I've mentioned here,
I hope this man is you!

Pile of Garbage

WASHINGTON—Anyone who has bothered to acquaint himself with the facts—an activity seldom pursued by George McGovern's position paper on drug abuse as an "18-page pile of garbage."

Indeed, it could be argued that Ambrose, chief of the Drug Abuse Law Enforcement Office (DALE), dealt rather kindly with kindly George. In Ambrose's place, I'd have placed the blame for this horrendous problem squarely with the pervasive, do-nothing Democratic administration of the Sixties.

Because I'm completing a book on dope smuggling, McGovern's charge that the Nixon administration has dragged its feet on enforcement to me reeks of what can only be called calculated ignorance.

Before Ambrose was named to his present post, he was Commissioner of Customs. When he was named to the latter job in August 1969, the Customs Bureau had the same number of employees it had during the Coolidge administration in the twenties and was operating on an annual budget of $103-million. Within two years, the budget had been increased to $189-million and Customs' force had risen from 9,000 to more than 14,000 bodies.

Since he took office, Nixon has consistently poured more money and men into the anti-drug program. Recently, he asked Congress for $135.2-million in supplemental funds to help finance that program—pointing out that 80 per cent of the money would go toward drug addict treatment and rehabilitation.

Nixon created DALE to hit the pushers on the street because local cops weren't doing their job. In less than a year, DALE has arrested more than 1,000 arrests. Nixon also established a new $2.5-million National Narcotics Intelligence Office as an information clearinghouse to help law enforcement agencies locate narcotics offenders.

End either John Kennedy or Lyndon Johnson mount any meaningful campaign against drug traffickers? They did not. In fact, they rarely mentioned the problem during their terms in the White House. Meanwhile, drug use—especially addiction to marijuana—was considered chief by some of the more without Democratic liberals, whose patronage helped make heroes of rock band members and other assorted creeps.

As for McGovern himself, I must go along with Ambrose's comment at a news conference that during the sixties, "the record fails to disclose any significant action taken by Senator McGovern." The South Dakota has long been a respected figure in Capitol Hill.

Meany's Scoreboard

WASHINGTON—Smoldering resentment against President George Meany among second and third level labor leaders came close to a humiliating explosion when a resolution "respectfully requesting" Meany's retirement and endorsing Sen. George McGovern almost passed the North Carolina AFL-CIO state federation in mid-September.

At the last minute, a frantic telephone call from Alexander Barkan, political chief of the AFL-CIO to state AFL-CIO officials, also an AFL-CIO arm, is backing his Democratic challenger, Paul J. Krebs.

As the president of one powerful international union told the anti-Meany resolution.

Barkan, chairman of the federation's Political Education (COPE), reminded Hobby that passage of any resolution endorsing McGovern would put the state body under AFL-CIO ownership. But what really disturbed Barkan, a tough political operative, was the insult to 78-year-old Meany, architect of the AFL-CIO's neutrality in the Presidential election.

Hobby killed the resolution despite an informal headcount at the convention in Raleigh that gave it close to 75 per cent of the vote.

That near-miss attack on Meany points up this new political fact inside the AFL-CIO: despite evidence pointing to an overwhelming rank-and-file labor vote for President Nixon Nov. 7, crusty old George Meany has lost his halo with much of the federation's lower-level hierarchy such as shop stewards and local union officers.

One reason for this loss of prestige is the splinting effect of Meany's neutrality policy on political activity by national and local unions in lesser election campaigns.

This, for the first time, liberal Republican Sen. Clifford Case of New Jersey won the endorsement of the New Jersey state AFL-CIO, neutral in past case campaigns. But while the state federation is endorsing Case, the New Jersey Industrial Union Council, also an AFL-CIO arm, is backing his Democratic challenger, Paul J. Krebs.

Heralding Politics

By Sol R. Cohen

New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller will be the guest speaker Wednesday night when Connecticut Republicans hold their $100-a-plate "Victory on Nov. 7th" dinner. It will be at 7 p.m., at the Sheraton Park Plaza Hotel in New Haven.

On the dinner committee is John F. Shea Jr. of Manchester, GOP state central committee member from the 4th Senatorial District.

First District GOP congressional hopeful Richard Rittenband has announced the formation of Democrats for Rittenband, with Robert H. Grady of West Hartford its chairman.

Other officers, Rittenband said, are Herman F. Fretette of Manchester and Albert Green-wood of South Windsor.

An interesting sidelight of the campaign for state senator in the 3rd District concerns the ages of the two candidates, both from East Hartford.

Harry S. Burke, the incumbent Democrat running for reelection, will be 63 years old. His Republican opponent, Arthur B. Shattuck, minority leader of the East Hartford Town Council, is 32.

Burke, who has served in the state House of Representatives for five terms and the State Senate for three, was in politics before Shattuck was born. Shattuck is serving his first term in the East Hartford Town Council. The new 3rd Senatorial District

Vernon First To Report GOP Survey

A survey of about 4,000 Vernon voters, conducted by the Vernon Committee to Re-elect the President, won the local group the honor of being the first such group in the state to report its findings to the White House.

The survey also revealed that 300 of those voters contacted are not affiliated with any political party. Vernon was selected as one of the 28 towns in the state needed to support Nixon to assure him winning in the state. Of the 4,000 voters contacted, 32 per cent are registered Democrats.

New Probation Officer Pretty and Prepared

By June Linton

A pretty girl in a light orange pants suit appeared in the midst of attorneys and Circuit Court personnel on the busy side of the Rockville courtroom one day, some weeks ago. To everyone's surprise her role was that of probation officer Kathleen Santese.

It was a happening in the sense of suddenly seeing a new era for women opening up the field of probation offices as Kathleen Santese, 22, took her place in the usually all-male-occupied section of seats.

In Circuit Court 12, at least, all probation officers have been men, but a bit of investigation revealed that women have held the position for a long time in Hartford—but only two of them. Mary Agnes Pheasant is a chief probation officer for Hartford Superior Court and has worked in probation since the department began in 1956. Senior Probation Officer Mary Barrett covers Circuit Court 14.

However, in the last three years eight more women have become probation officers (four of these in the last six months) and it's likely their number will increase. There are now over 100 probation officers in the state.

McGeary admitted he had heard a 22-year-old girl was going to replace Steven Bavier, who along with Kenneth Kierman worked under McGeary in the Rockville Office of Adult Probation, a misnomer as many of the probationers are as young as 16. The office covers Tolland County Superior Court and Circuit Court 12 in Manchester, Rockville and Stafford Springs.

Bavier was transferred to a new five-man drug unit in Hartford, one of three in the state which handles cases referred from all probation offices.

One of McGeary's reservations was, in his own words, "Would you assign a 45-year-old sex offender to a 22-year-old attractive gal?"

However, he added that his reservations disappeared when Mrs. Santese came on the job and he observed her rapport with probationers. He said he's completely satisfied with his new staff member and feels sex doesn't enter into the qualifications for the job, that what matters is "genuine concern for correction and a dedication to probation," which, he said, is one of the newest concepts in corrections, the idea of confined felon serving his or her time in the community under supervision for the protection of the community. For the probationer, McGeary said, counseling attempts to offer aid. "We try to relieve their tensions of everyday life," and to find employment, "some are hard to place because of their backgrounds and problems."

Propose Tax Depletion For Humans

WASHINGTON (AP)— Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., and George D. Allen, R-Vt., believe the time has come to give humans beings a tax depletion allowance as generous as the one provided for oil wells.

They introduced a bill to permit individuals to deduct a minimum of 10 per cent of their earned income each year and up to 23 per cent for those in physically hazardous occupations. There would be an annual $1,000 limit on the deduction.

The oil depletion allowance is 22 per cent.

The allowance for individuals would be granted in consideration of the "physical, mental and emotional stress incurred in connection with the production of income during that year."

Mansfield said the limitation of present depletion allowances to oil and such common minerals as sand and gravel is one more evidence "that we as a nation have placed things over people."

"Every job has its costs," he told his colleagues. "The manual laborer may be physically depleted before the office well while collar workers may be psychologically depleted before the statutory age of retirement. The assembly-line employee may be debilitated long before his statutory retirement age."

North Vietnam 'Ant Power'

of stacked ammunition alongside the roadways and gasoline drums. These were stretched out along the 100 miles we drove. Other foreign visitors in Hanoi at the time testified they saw similar scenes on different roads.
During daylight the vehicles were usually parked at road-side. On some long, straight stretches of highway we counted as many as 40 trucks.
They seemed extremely vulnerable, but Charles commented: "We could never see those things from the air. And the moment someone comes down to get a better look — blam, man."
This simple roadside cover hid ammunition caches up to 1,000 cases in size, according to my last counts from the moving automobile. Particularly noticeable were concentrations of supplies at bomb-odd railway crossings. The pilots figured these had been dumped by trains and would soon be moved to where the railway lines were usable again.
In the evenings as the trucks began to move south loaded with supplies, the whole operation reminded me of a huge glacier forcing itself slowly but surely down a mountain valley.
Reflecting on the scenes one evening at a rest house in Ninh Binh province, Garley said, "I used to fly over this place and it seemed unhabited. But look, it is teeming with life."
Garley later said, "All the pilots really have for targets are the cities, the bridges and the railways. Yet the North Vietnamese move out from the cities and use these back roads."
We were given no information about where these supplies originated, but we presumed they came down the highways from China to the north. I got the impression that as long as those supplies were pumped down through the arteries of North Vietnam the war would go on even if the cities were destroyed.

Women's Role Topic For Gloria Schaffer

Secretary of State Gloria Schaffer will be in Bolton Wednesday as the guest of the Junior Woman's Club. She will speak on "Women in the Seventies."
Juniors' Program Chairman Janice Brown invites all members of the community to attend the program which is scheduled for 8:30 p.m. in the elementary school all-purpose room. High school students and senior citizens have been extended special invitations, Mrs. Brown said.
Mrs. Schaffer has served as secretary of state since January 1971. Prior to her election, she served six terms in the State Senate. She was a member of the joint legislative committee on education during her six terms and also served on the White House Conference on Education and the National Education Commission of the States.
Mrs. Schaffer has been involved in many other cultural, political and civic projects during her career, and has received many special awards, citations and honors in conjunction with her activities.
She is also well-known as a panelist on WIC-TV's "What in the World" weekly television program.
Town Meeting
The annual town meeting will be held tonight at 8 at Community Hall. The only item on the agenda is the reading of the annual reports by town boards and commissions.
Voter Session
There will be voter-making session tonight from 7 to 9 at Community Hall.

67 New Voters Are Enrolled

A total of 67 new Manchester voters were signed up Saturday, in a 4 to 8 p.m. voter-making session in the town clerk's office. Of 77 new voters, 25 are Democrats, 16 are Republicans and 25 are unaffiliated.
An additional 26 unaffiliated voters added to the voting lists are long been known as voters. Regulations requiring that servicemen, when signed up at that way must be listed as unaffiliated.
Manchester's registrars of voters will conduct a voter-making session tomorrow from 7 to 9 p.m. in the Municipal Building. On Thursday, they will hold sessions at Manchester Community College, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and from 7 to 9 p.m. Also on Thursday, they will hold an 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. session at Manchester High School.
In cooperation with the Greater Manchester Chamber of Commerce, voter-making sessions will be held at various business establishments Thursday, Friday and Saturday at various times all three days. The sessions will be at Harrison's Stationers, Mott's Supermarket, Top Notch Foods, W.T. Grant Co. and King's Department Store.
Voters may sign up also on any working day, during regular office hours, in the town clerk's or registrars of voter's office.

GOP Committee Meets Thursday

A special meeting of the Manchester Republican Town Committee has been called for Thursday night to choose a replacement candidate for state representative in the 13th Assembly District. The meeting will be at 8, in the Municipal Building Hearing Room.
The new candidate will replace Leo P. Tolosano, Jr., who was endorsed Sept. 7 and withdrew. Tolosano said today he is certain the Republicans will come up with a good candidate Thursday night. He said several persons are being considered, but declined to release their names. The candidate chosen by the Republicans will oppose Democrat Francis Mahoney, the incumbent state representative in the 13th Assembly District.

Hartford County Superior Court

Leo P. Tolosano, 31, of Huntington Dr., Vernon, was sentenced Friday to the Cheshire Reformatory for an indeterminate term, not to exceed five years, on a charge of possession of heroin.
Tolosano also received a five-to-six-year suspended state prison sentence on a charge of sale of heroin.
Manchester Police earlier this year, on a Superior Court bench warrant, in connection with an alleged sale of heroin to undercover narcotics agents in Manchester.

About Town

Manchester Chapter, SPENCER, will observe tonight at 8 at the Army and Navy Club. The rehearsal is open to all men interested in singing barbershop-style harmony.
The Bolton Zoning Board of Appeals will hold a public hearing on October 10, 1972 at 8:00 p.m. to hear the following applications:
1. Ralph E. Clark, d/b/a R & R Automotive for removal of his auto repair business from its present location on Rt. 85 Bolton to the property of Charles S. Penion, located on the North side of Lyman Road, Bolton, 255 feet west of the intersection of Lyman Road and Rt. 85.
2. Louis N. Cloutier, Jr., Brandy Street, a variance to construct a screened porch over an existing patio which will be close to the property side line than the regulations now allow.
Chairman Morris Silverstein, Secretary

Connecticut Revenue-Sharing Contradicts Intent

By DON MEIKLE, Associated Press Writer

Whatever federal revenue-sharing was supposed to accomplish, it seems clear from the record that state tax cuts - particularly by Connecticut - were not free of the author of the legislation had in mind. Yet cutting taxes is what Gov. Thomas J. Meskill and the General Assembly seem bent on doing with the money - some $33 million - which the state government stands to get during the current fiscal year.

"The funds made available to state governments" under revenue-sharing "are designed to encourage them to expand their revenue efforts either by greater use of income taxes or other revenue sources," in how House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Wilbur Mills described the intent of the bill earlier this year.

"Your committee believes that the best thing it could do for the states is to help them help themselves," Mills said in the House. "Therefore, the committee decided to provide inducements for states to increase their tax effort generally, and also to some extent to encourage them to make greater use of state individual income taxes."

It may seem obvious now that both state and municipal governments can seize upon revenue-sharing as an opportunity to cut their own taxes. But that possibility went unmentioned in the Ways and Means Committee's report.

On the contrary, some dissenting members of the committee felt that revenue-sharing would give politicians at lower levels of government an excuse to spend, spend, spend and encourage them to demand more and more money from the federal government to satisfy their constituents' desires for more services and their own desires for greater popularity.

"The mayors and governors already want more," said the minority report. "Once this first step has been taken, the same pressures responsible for this bill will insure rapid growth of the program to meet the insatiable appetites of state and local officials for no strings attached revenues they can use to finance whatever the local governments' delivery systems. That's what revenue-sharing is all about. Congressmen may have no real choice but to speed up the fiscal merry-go-round, providing longer free rides for state and local officials."

Anyone who has followed Gov. Meskill's pronouncements on subsidies for commuter bus service will recognize this logic. If Meskill had still been in Congress and serving on the Ways and Means Committee, it is difficult to believe he would have voted in favor of revenue-sharing. Meskill's insistence on financial support and "fiscal accountability" on the part of municipalities is very much like the Ways and Means Committee's minority report, which said the revenue-sharing bill would "undermine a basic precept ... by separating the responsibility for collecting taxes from the authority to spend revenue."

But it is this very disparity between revenue-raising capability and ability to provide services (which provides the basic rationale for revenue-sharing) that local governments have the best delivery systems for elementary and secondary education, police and fire protection, street maintenance, public housing, sewers, and other services - but they lack the money-raising power of the state and federal governments. The federal government has incredible money-raising power through the income tax, but it lacks the ability to deliver bread-and-butter domestic services with sensitivity to local needs and preferences.

Traffic Ticket Blitz

CHICAGO (AP) - Nobody seems pleased with the rash of traffic citations being issued in Chicago, least of all Mayor Richard J. Daley.

The city's police began issuing up to five times the normal amount of traffic citations Sunday in an attempt to secure collective bargaining rights. Daley has said he would not be intimidated by the action, which has been taken in lieu of a walkout by the city's police.

"If that is what it is, they (the policemen) are making a mistake," Daley said he would be willing to meet with representatives of the police force and other city groups during preparation of the 1973 city budget.

Daley contends that Chicago's policemen are the best paid in the country. After three years on the force, a patrolman reaches a maximum salary of $14,200. Fringe benefits are valued at more than $2,300.

Want To Use Maiden Names

HARTFORD (AP) - Two married women who use the title "Ms." and their maiden names, have used the Secretary of State for the right to register to vote under their maiden names.

Superior Court Judge Henry Narjak set a hearing next Thursday at which the state must explain its decision to accept only married names from married women.

Ms. Margo Custer of Hartford and Ms. Jane Holdsworth of New London say they were refused the right to register under their maiden names which they have used since they were married.

In their suit, aide by the Connecticut Civil Liberties Union, the women claim there is no state law which requires a married woman to use her husband's name and that a married woman has the right to use whatever name she likes as long as she uses it consistently.

Atty. Gen. Robert Killian, in a recent opinion, cited tradition and a shortened election timetable for the married name requirement.

MCC Center Attending Bar Meet For Testing

Manchester Community College, under an agreement with the College Entrance Examination Board in Princeton, N.J., administers a monthly series of tests that provide college credit at some institutions for study or work experience outside a formal academic setting.

MCC acts as a testing center for the board's College Level Examination Program (CLEP), which consists of general and subject area tests in English composition, mathematics, natural and social sciences, and business subjects. Tests are open to students and non-students. They were developed in response to a growing awareness of a need for a standardized, widely-accepted measure of individual achievement gained through independent study or employment.

At the close of each testing period, tests are sent to the Princeton testing service, where they are corrected. Scores are sent to the persons taking the tests and upon request, to any other person or institution.

While most colleges, including MCC, offer a "credit by examination" policy for their students, standards vary among institutions, and credits earned in this way cannot always be transferred. Many colleges and universities now award credit for passing grades on CLEP tests, however, and the number is expected to grow as the program gains acceptance.

In Connecticut, the Board of Trustees for Regional Community Colleges has directed all state community colleges to accept CLEP test scores for as many as 30 credits toward fulfillment of degree requirements.

Information about the tests, testing dates, costs, and applications may be obtained from Kenneth W. Elterich, director of testing at MCC.

Court Cases

CIRCUIT COURT IN EAST HARTFORD SESSION

Manchester area cases disposed of Thursday included:

Mark Beggs, 19, of 47 Hoffman Rd., Manchester, fined $25 for breach of peace; given three-month suspended jail sentence and one year probation for third-degree assault.

James K. Brice, 26, of East Hartford, fined $25 for breach of peace.

Robert J. Hughes, 17, of Emerald Dr., Vernon, fined $35 for reckless driving; a charge of evading responsibility was noted by the prosecutor.

Mark T. Humphrey, 22, of 99 Ridge St., Manchester, fined $30 for breach of peace.

Francis marked the anniversary Sunday with a traditional reception at the Royal Palace.

Members of the government, diplomatic corps and other high civil, military and church authorities of the nation were in attendance.

Request Denied

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) - A superior court judge here has denied actor Mickey Rooney the sole custody of his four children by his fifth marriage, saying Rooney "has had a poor record to date as a father."

Judge Mario Clinco said Rooney will remain a guardian, but the children will continue to live with their maternal grandmother, Helen Thomason, of Rolling Hills.

Oversight Brings Need For $3,600 in Added Funds

Because the Manchester Board of Directors did not take into account the normal step increments for library personnel when it adopted the 1972-73 town budget, it now is considering an additional $3,600 to the library appropriation.

Mayor John Thompson, in a directive to all town departments prior to the May adoption of the town budget, advised all department heads to keep salary raises to 3.5 per cent. He acknowledged at a public hearing that the 3.5 per cent raise was in addition to the step increments for library personnel. However, when the directors approved a $317,108 appropriation for the Library Account, they provided only for a 3.5 per cent raise, and did not provide for the normal step increments, estimated to be 2 per cent more.

Bus Issue Political Battle Renewed

Youth Swamp Town Clerk For ID Cards

Many 18, 19 and 20-year-olds trying to buy liquor legally are being denied the new privilege because they don't hold state-issued Identity Cards proving their age, according to a Herald check of several restaurants, bars, and package stores in Manchester.

The Manchester Town Clerk's office is swamped with applications for Identity Cards (formerly known as Majority Cards) and the State Liquor Control Commission, which issues the cards, says processing and delivery will take two to three weeks.

Lines at the Manchester Town Clerk's office yesterday extended into the hall, as about 200 youths applied for Identity (formerly Majority) Cards to prove their age in buying liquor.

Negotiators Gloomy About Settlement

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) - After a weekend of peace-making the battle of the buses in Connecticut has begun again. Partisan snipers on Capitol Hill took aim at each other Monday while negotiators headed back to the peace talks with gloom in their voices.

Gov. Thomas J. Meskill Monday vetoed part of a transportation bill that called for direct subsidies to the two ailing lines that carry 100,000 persons in Connecticut each working day. The Democrats called it illegal and threatened a court suit. Spokesman for both bus lines and the Amalgamated Transit Union said the threat of a strike was again very real. The crisis had been extended day-by-day past the Saturday midnight strike deadline at the Connecticut Co. and Connecticut Railway & Lighting Co.

Abortion Refused

WASHINGTON (AP) - Justice Thurgood Marshall today refused to stay a three-judge federal court ruling that Connecticut's 1972 anti-abortion law is unconstitutional.

The state sought permission to continue enforcing the law until the U.S. Supreme Court considers an appeal from the three-judge ruling Sept. 20. In appealing to the Supreme Court, Connecticut Atty. Gen. Robert Killian said the state hasn't had a review of our abortion statute by the Supreme Court and certainly we're entitled to it.

The Supreme Court is to hear arguments in anti-abortion cases from Texas and Georgia next Tuesday. Killian wanted to have Connecticut's records before the judges then although it was too late to include the Connecticut case in the hearing, Killian said. He said the Texas and Connecticut laws are "quite similar."

The three-judge panel in Hartford was the second time within a year that a Connecticut anti-abortion law had been struck down. After the first ruling, the legislature enacted a new bill hoping to answer some of the court's objections. In the latest ruling, the three judges said "a fetus is not a person within the meaning of the 14th Amendment," which concerns equal protection of the law.

The three-judge panel permanently enjoined the state from enforcing the 1972 law. That action allowed the state to appeal directly to the U.S. Supreme Court. Killian asked Justice Marshall to stay the lower court ruling to keep the law on the books pending the review by the Supreme Court.

Alleged Corruption Issue Pushed By Sen. McGovern

By R. GREGORY NOKES Associated Press Writer. Sen. George McGovern is trying hard to convince the voters that the Nixon administration is corrupt, but Vice President Spiro T. Agnew says such charges are reckless and won't obscure the Nixon achievements.

"No amount of verbal pyrotechnics on the part of a desperate opposition" can obscure President Nixon's record of "peace and security overseas and prosperity and progress here at home," Agnew said Monday. He said McGovern's "reckless allegation" of corruption showed "a lack of maturity, a lack of self-discipline - a lack of qualities a president should have."

The vice president, who spoke to a meeting of editors and publishers in Washington, also said, "Never has there been a poorer climate for the cultivation of corruption." But McGovern, the Democratic candidate for president, seemed intent on trying to make corruption a major theme of the final five weeks of his campaign.

At a fund-raising dinner in New York City Monday night, he said, "The Nixon administration is the most morally bankrupt administration in the entire history of our country." "At no time in the history of our land has corruption been so deep, so pervasive as it is today... the influence of big money is corrupting the integrity of government on a scale never seen before," McGovern added.

"Lesser scandals than ITT or the wheat deal shook previous administrations to their very roots," he said. "He said a breakdown of high moral standards in this country of our country." Agnew, asked his response to McGovern's charges, said: "Barren ambition, coupled with the influence of big money is corrupting the integrity of government on a scale never seen before."

Gen. Haig Extends Visit

SAIGON (AP) - Maj. Gen. Alexander M. Haig, deputy to presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger, extended his stay in Saigon today but U.S. Embassy officials insisted his schedule was flexible.

"I can't characterize what it means," said one spokesman when asked if any significance could be attached to the change. An earlier itinerary called for Haig to leave Saigon today, but it now appears he will not leave until Wednesday.

He spent the day at the U.S. military command headquarters on Tan Son Nhut Air Base conferring with aides and Gen. Frederick C. Weyand, commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam. Haig's trip here was described as a "fact-finding" mission. He arrived Sunday and conferred Monday for 2 1/2 hours with President Nguyen Van Thieu.

It could not be learned if Haig planned any further meetings with Thieu. Haig's trip here was described as a "fact-finding" mission. He arrived Sunday and conferred Monday for 2 1/2 hours with President Nguyen Van Thieu. It could not be learned if Haig planned any further meetings with Thieu.

Waterbury Bans Night Ball Games

WATERBURY, Conn. (AP) - The Board of Education Monday night voted to ban the city's three high schools from holding night football games or night football and baseball jamborees at Municipal Stadium.

The decision followed a fight in the crowd at last week's night game between Crosby and Wilby high schools. "There were stabbings and near riots at the football games," board Commissioner Ronald Broder told parents after the vote. At night football jamborees, he said, "There were confrontations between gangs... and they were talking about having rumbles in school."

The three public high schools together have six night games ahead that will now have to be rescheduled for days. The school board's order doesn't affect the city's two parochial high schools, Holy Cross and Sacred Heart. Those two schools will be able to have night games if they play each other or an out-of-town opponent. The board's action was taken on the advice of School Superintendent Michael Wallace. "We've had some incidents... and we don't want them carried over into the schools the following day," Wallace said.

ABA President Seeks Ideas To Give Poor Legal Aid

HARTFORD (AP) - The American Bar Association's new president, Robert W. Meserve, said Monday he wants ideas for "innovative approaches" to legal services for the poor.

He offered as an example pre-paid legal insurance modeled in plans he called the concept "judicare." Meserve said the ABA was disappointed at a recent setback in Congress for funding legal services agencies, but he said that government subsidies don't have to be the only approach to innovation. "The availability of justice must never again depend on wealth," Meserve told the annual meeting of the Connecticut Bar Association.

"While it is quite evident that the legal needs of the poor cannot be met without some form of public financial subsidy," he said, "it would also seem clear that a wide range of those needs could be met" in programs using "traditional private lawyer-client relationships, sometimes, and in some forms, called judicare."

He used as an example an experiment now being conducted by the bar association in Shreveport, La., which he said "makes a broad range of legal services available to the members of a participating labor union." State police, estimating damage at more than $250,000, said there was "a possibility" that the body of a fourth victim, possibly a hobo "riding the rods," could be under the tangled wreckage of eight derailed cars. They said first arrivals at the wreck believed they saw a head underneath one of the cars. State police identified the dead as Harold G. Bullard, 62, of Brattleboro, Vt., engineer on the Central Vermont train, Harold "Zeke" Green of Brattleboro, trainman, and Francis J. Griffin of Clinton, Mass., an employee of the Boston & Maine.

The six injured were taken to Mary Lane Hospital in Waterbury, where they were treated and released. "Our efforts were set back," he said. "We plan to continue to encourage innovative approaches to the problem of legal services for the poor." Meserve said the ABA also has been trying to help set national policy toward subsidization of more traditional forms of legal aid. "Our efforts were set back," he said.

Prisoner Asks, 'Get Us Out Of Here, Will You?'

Editor's Note: AP Special Correspondent Peter Arnett has just returned from a visit to Hanoi, his first trip to the North Vietnamese capital after eight years of reporting from the battle and political front of South Vietnam. In the following story he recounts a dramatic, unexpected meeting with seven American prisoners of war only minutes before he was to leave Hanoi.

By PETER ARNETT AP Special Correspondent. Seven men. All dressed in simple blue denim prison garb. All American. And they had something else in common: a powerful desire to come home.

I could reach out across the table and touch their hands. Yet the gulf between us was immeasurable. I was a free man, about to board a plane within the hour and swing back to the United States. Not these men. One of them, Navy Cmdr. Eugene Wilbur, from Columbia Cross Roads, Pa., had sat across that table a dozen times in the past four and one half years, watching faces of free men lit by as he waited for his turn.

Wilbur and the six others were all U.S. pilots shot down over North Vietnam and held in prisoner of war camps. I was with antiwar activists in Hanoi to escort home three pilots released by the North Vietnamese. At the last moment of our today visit we were summoned to a Government building in downtown Hanoi. We were ushered into a long room and saw tables crowded with beer bottles and glasses. A few seconds later they came in, seven men with hands outstretched and faces beaming. They were more eager to see me than any other men I had ever met. Two North Vietnamese officials sat in the room with us. Reporters and television cameras flooded in for the first five minutes. The affair was obviously carefully orchestrated by the North Vietnamese, the pilots handpicked for the meeting. But only a master impresario could have created the spontaneous burst of feeling that had the pilots in bear hugs with their American visitors. It is known that most of the approximately 400 U.S. pilots officially reported held in North Vietnamese prison camps don't wish to meet with visiting journalists and U.S. antiwar activists. Apparently they are fearful of being labeled as collaborators. The Pentagon, however, says it will not hold pilots responsible for statements made while in prison. And watching those seven men animatedly discussing their letters, and families, and prison life, I felt it would take a hardened heart indeed to condemn them for coming that day. For years in South Vietnam I had watched American servicemen eagerly marking off the calendar days as their year four came to a close. There are no calendars in the Hanoi prison camps.
