Court Strikes Down Parochial Aid Law

WASHINGTON (AP) — On an 8-1 vote the Supreme Court ruled unconstitutional today an Ohio law providing tuition reimbursement to parents of private and parochial school children.

With Justice Byron R. White dissenting, the court declared unconstitutional a variety of state programs that reimburse Roman Catholic and other church-related schools for instruction in nonreligious subjects.

In that decision the court held direct financial aid to parochial schools involved "excessive entanglement between government and religion."

Ohio officials had attempted to save the 1971 law by appealing to the Supreme Court. It provided for $90 payments a child per year.

Newspaper Claims

The letter and editorial attacks on Muskie by the Union Leader's publisher, William Loeb, prompted Muskie to make the now-famous tearful speech denouncing the newspaper editor. Then the front-runner for the Democratic nomination, Muskie subsequently began to slip in the public-opinion polls and fared worse than expected in the New Hampshire primary in March.

The Washington Post said reporter Marilyn Berger talked with Clawson and lawyer and letter on Sept. 25 and quoted the White House aide as saying, "I name in Deerfield Beach, Fla."

High Scorer
Cindy Gemmill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Gemmill of 56 Lake St., was the high scorer in the home judging contest held Saturday at the University of Connecticut. She will join three members of the Hartford County team to compete in the finals Oct. 4 to 6 at the University of Connecticut.

News Source Protection Bill Planned
MERRIDEN (AP) — State Rep. Merrid D. Papandrea, a Meriden Democrat, said Monday he would submit legislation giving newspaper and broadcast reporters privilege status on confidential communications.

His bill, which he proposed to introduce under special rules during the current special session of the General Assembly, would provide "the same legal status as wife and husband and lawyer and client, where the parties cannot be legally forced to divulge privileged information or the source of the information."

Papandrea, commenting during Newspaper Week, noted that New Jersey reporter Peter Bridge went to jail for contempt of court, rather than "betray his source."

Interviewed on the same matter, U.S. Sen. Abraham Ribicoff said Monday that Bridge's fate was a "dangerous precedent" and a threat to our liberties. It will result in an inundation of the press and its sources—and a weakening of our freedoms under the First Amendment.

Police Report
Charges of carrying a dangerous weapon in a motor vehicle lodged Sunday against Carmine M. Viterio, 18, of 118 N. Elm St., involved a BP gun, according to Manchester Police.

Yesterday's Herald reported only that a "gun" was found in the Viterio car.

Gray Won't Comment On Watergate Probe

NEW LONDON (AP) — L. Patrick Gray III, acting director of the FBI, said Monday he won't comment on his agency's investigation of the Watergate case beyond the scope of a story he had written. Bridge maintained the questions infringed on freedom of the press.

"I have never known that an individual in our society, because of a particular profession that he pursues, in any way frees himself from the obligations of a citizen," Gray said.

His reference was to an order issued last week in Washington that prohibits public discussion of the alleged break-in and attempted bugging of Democratic National Committee headquarters in Washington last summer.

On Friday, the judge modified the order to permit "political debate or news media reporting on the case. Democrats have held members of the Nixon campaign staff responsible for the break-in."

A reporter said the Nixon administration had characterized the FBI investigation as very thorough, but another report had maintained the Justice Department had put restraints on the FBI.

"As much as I would like to react to that and tell you exactly what I think of that statement," Gray said.

At the news conference, Gray also said he agreed with the

Driver Held at Fault In Fatal Auto Crash

Coroner Herbert Hannabury has found the late Charles Connell, 64, of Vernon, responsible by reason of intoxication for the instant death in an accident, March 20, of Mrs. Emily Slusarczyk, 65, of Manchester, and for his own death, 18 days later.

The accident which resulted in the double fatality and in the serious injury of three others occurred at 4:40 p.m. in Rockville.

Mrs. Slusarczyk was a passenger in a car driven by Gina M. Shaw, 50, of 27 Edison St., Manchester. The other passengers were Mrs. Mary Rattazzi of Bolton, and Mrs. Elizabeth McMullen of 30 Henry St. The four were on their way home from work at Roosevelt Mills in Rockville.

Coroner Hannabury retraced Connell's actions just prior to the accident in his report. He said "Connell had been observed some 25 miles west of the accident, at the intersection of Rt. 30 and Dobson Rd., driving his automobile in an extremely erratic manner."

"As he headed east, he drove into the westbound lane a number of times. At one point his car westbound actually drove around him, going into the east lane in order to avoid him. As he proceeded he came to a left turn, and did not observe that automobile until it was so close he had to jam his brakes to avoid striking it in the rear."

Hannabury said this happened again in Vernon Center and again at Vernon Ave. He said that time Connell stopped completely and slumped down in his seat. Shortly after this he straightened up and resumed driving down the road erratically, Hannabury said.

According to Hannabury, "Up until this point he had been driving, although erratically, at a normal rate of speed and, after caught on fire in two places. Town firemen were called to the scene at 9:15 p.m. and quickly extinguished the truck fire as well as a fire in a tree apparently caused by fallen power lines. Power company crews worked quickly to set a new pole in the sidewalk, and the power was restored at 10 p.m.

Police retraced traffic around Victoria Rd., W. Center St., and McKee St. until the accident scene was cleared.

Murphy was issued a written warning for following too closely, police reported. Investigation is continuing.

McGovern Peace Plan Crucial To Campaign

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer

Sen. George McGovern has made his statement on ending the Vietnam war, but it remains to be seen whether those who watched and heard him on television Tuesday night will also vote for him, as he has predicted.

The speech, televised nationwide, was said by McGovern aides to be one of the most crucial of his entire campaign for the presidency.

Initial reaction was predictably partisan, with McGovern supporters praising it, and those in the camp of President Nixon condemning it. Sen. Robert Dole, chairman of the Republican National Committee, called it "a promise of surrender."

McGovern said in the speech that peace in Vietnam is possible "any day that we put the saving of lives ahead of the saving of face."

Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama announced Tuesday he will not make a public choice between McGovern and Nixon for president, but will support Democratic candidates for state and local offices.

"As everyone knows," Wallace said, "I worked hard last night during the Democratic primary in my state to make my ideas known on important matters."

Silence Shrouds Secret Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Henry Kissinger's secret talks with the North Vietnamese entered their fourth day in Paris today, with speculation that hard bargaining raised diplomatic eyebrows but brought no official word of progress.

President Nixon's assistant for national security affairs had been scheduled to return to the White House Tuesday night after an unprecedented third day of talks with communist negotiators Le Duc Tho and Xuan Thuy. Instead, Kissinger left Paris today.

The latest public communist proposal demands Thieu's resignation and replacement of the Thieu government by a tripartite regime made up of the Viet Cong, neutral forces and Saigon officials unconnected with Thieu.

The United States, which publicly rejected the plan, has insisted it would never agree to any settlement that would result in an imposition of a communist government in South Vietnam.

Thieu conferred again Tuesday with U.S. ambassador Ellsworth Bunker as a Saigon newspaper with links to the Thieu government reported that there has been no change in basic U.S. and South Vietnamese positions in the Paris talks.

Later, a South Vietnamese Foreign Ministry spokesman said his government was not planning any new proposals at the Paris peace talks. "We stick to our general proposal of last Jan. 27," said spokesman Pham Dang Sun in Saigon.

"I can't draw any conclusion at all or discuss the talks," Ziegler said in a variation of his earlier statement that "I'm not prepared to characterize in any way the talks that are taking place."

Director Vivian Ferguson said, "I admire you young people for standing up for what you believe, but your timing on this request is very bad. As a Republican, I'd have to take a political stand at this time which would not jeopardize the peace negotiations in Paris. I am a Republican town official and I'm required to back President Nixon's policy."

Director James Parr did not comment, except to ask the young people whether they ever had participated in peace demonstrations. After several replies they had participated, he said, he did not explain the reason for his question.

Director Anthony Pietroniro remarked, "Our positions on the hostilities in Southeast Asia are really individual positions. I can't speak for all of Manchester. It would be futile for us to take a position."

And Director John Tani said, "A vote on the proposed resolution would violate our charter. I agree, that the war transcends politics, but our charter spells out our jurisdiction. We've an elected board and speaker for the Town of Manchester. However, we can't speak for them in this matter."

French Mission Hit By Bombs

PARIS (AP) — The French diplomatic mission's building in Hanoi was partially destroyed during an American bombing raid today, and Pierre Sualhi, the French delegate general, received a head injury, the Foreign Ministry announced.

The ministry said the Swedish Embassy in Hanoi informed it that Sualhi had been hospitalized but his condition was not considered serious.

Three other diplomats assigned to the mission and its French secretaries were reported uninjured. But four Vietnamese employees were reported missing.

Acknowledging that Congress would try to come up with a compromise bill which would combine the best points of the Senate and House versions, Mayor John Thompson said, "We cannot act until we receive sharing information. We will know Oct. 24 how we stand."

State Rep. Francis Mahoney, present last night, applauded the board's decision to reconsider. "It would be a pleasant surprise to remove the questions," he said, "one which all the taxpayers in Manchester would appreciate."

Referenda Voting Hinges On Revenue-Sharing Fund

MANCHESTER (AP) — George McGovern's Vietnam plan clashes sharply with President Nixon's on big issues dividing the negotiators at Paris—terms for a cease-fire, a U.S. withdrawal and Saigon's political future.

The Democratic presidential nominee's blueprint, set forth Tuesday night, appears much closer to conditions laid down by North Vietnamese-Viet Cong envoys, but there are differences.

However, McGovern's program could be carried out with relatively little negotiation at Paris, as he outlined it. Aside from the release of prisoners, most of his seven-point program could be accomplished by one-sided U.S. action.

The main demands by the opposing sides at Paris have been put forward publicly in recent months. Nixon's on Jan. 25 and May 8 and the Vietnamese communists' on July 1, 1971, and Jan. 31 and Sept. 11 of this year.

What is going on in the secret missions between presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger and Hanoi's Le Duc Tho has yet to be disclosed.

Here are the positions on major issues:

U.S. WITHDRAWAL
McGovern says his first step as president would be to halt all bombing and acts of force throughout Indochina, stop any shipments of military supplies that continue the war and start a pullout of all U.S. forces from Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia to be completed in 90 days.

Appearing before the directors last night were Henry McCann and Ballila Pagani, longtime residents of the West Side and State Rep. Francis Mahoney, who heads the West Side Old-timers. All asked the directors to intercede and to request the Library Board to reconsider its decision.

Vehicle Noise Hearing Set

WETHERSFIELD, (AP) — A public hearing is scheduled Oct. 19 on proposed noise regulations for all motor vehicles, from tractor-trailer trucks to snowmobiles.

The hearing at the Motor Vehicles Department will concern noise limits and testing procedures proposed by Commissioner Robert C. Leuba under legislation passed by the General Assembly last year and amended this year.

In addition to requiring older vehicles to meet noise standards in the near future, the regulations would set standards for all new vehicles sold in Connecticut after Dec. 31, 1974.

Violations of the noise regulations would be considered as equipment violations and punished as such.

Trucks would be able to get away with the most noise under the proposed regulations. Snowmobiles would have to be quieter than any other type of vehicle.

The regulations make allowances for acceleration and gear-shifting noise at intersections, and they take into account the whine of snow tires on pavement.

Stamps In The News

Stamp collectors are always searching for errors in printing which will make their "one-of-a-kind" finds worth a fortune.

Well, here's a mistake right from the presses of the U.S. Printing office on a recent stamp — but, alas, the error is NOT a rarity and thus NOT worth any added financial rewards.

The stamp is the Parent-Teacher Association commemorative issued Sept. 15 and the boo boo is an inverted plate number in the lower right pane of the sheet. It's an oddity but not a major error, says the U.S. Postal Service, since about a half million such items exist. The upside down number, yellow, is 33656.

The inversion was discovered after the issue was printed and they were allowed to be distributed.

Continuing its series of famous tourist centers, West Germany has issued two new stamps of unusual design. The areas hailed are Heligoland and Heidelberg. The former is a 30 pfennig value and the latter is 40 pf.

The artistic style of these stamps is similar to those issued earlier in the series featuring fine line drawings of the tourist locations. Heligoland is shown in an overhead view, emphasizing the island nature of the spot, while Heidelberg gives the impression of heights and spires with the river and bridge in the foreground, according to the World Wide Philatelic Agency.

Last week we reported about a beautiful new set of Christmas stamps by the Gilbert & Ellise Islands. This week two more sets have come to our attention. One is from Papua and New Guinea, while the other is from New Zealand.

The Papua and New Guinea adhesives honor four early Christian missionaries. All the stamps have the same value of 7 cents and show a portrait of the individual. The commemorated missionaries are Rev. Copland King, Dr. Johannes Flierl, Bishop Stanislaus Verjus and Pastor Ruatoka.

New Zealand's Christmas stamps bear reproductions of Virgin and Child by Murillo, the original in the Pitti Palace of Florence; the stained glass window in St. John's Methodist Church of Auckland, and the flower of the Pohutukawa — known as the New Zealand Christmas Tree.

Although World Series time is upon us here in the U.S., the sports fan of the Republic of China on Taiwan are hailing their heroes, the winners of the Little League championship held in Williamsport, Pa. The Chinese entry also won the senior league title at Gary, Ind.

These twin triumphs were hailed on four stamps issued on Chinese Sports Day.

Last year the Taiwan Giants won the Little League crown at Williamsport and this year is the second year in a row that a Chinese team has taken the title.

Three new airmail items will be issued Oct. 16 by the United Nations Postal Administration to meet the revised U.S. postage rates. Included are the 15-cent airmail sheet and the 9-cent as well as 15-cent airmail postal cards.

MUSIC SURVEY RESULTS
WASHINGTON (AP) — The John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts has released the results of a survey sent to 500 music critics and publishers.

In response to the question, "What do you consider the most significant work of the past 25 years?" the work receiving the most votes was Benjamin Britten's "War Requiem." Then, in order, came Krzysztof Penderecki's "St. Luke's Passion," Leonard Bernstein's "Mass" and Andrew Lloyd Webber and Tim Rice's "Jesus Christ Superstar." There were 76 replies to the survey.

Igor Stravinsky received the most votes in two categories, most influential composer and the person whose works are predicted to be performed 50 years from now.

Most influential composers, rated following Stravinsky, are Karlheinz Stockhausen, John Cage and Pierre Boulez. Other composers whose works are expected to be heard in 50 years are Aaron Copland, Benjamin Britten, Serge Prokofiev and Leonard Bernstein.

Bolton Fire Prevention Theme of Activities

This is the third year the Manchester Jayces have run the "Do Something" program. Inspired by President Nixon's Volunteer Action Program, it is a campaign to encourage local residents to help other people. This can be done by interested persons donating their time and efforts to any of several local organizations. We are not after the one time per year volunteer, but we want to sign up those individuals who will be able to donate their time on a scheduled weekly or monthly basis. Some of the volunteer needs to be fulfilled are:

Fifty (50) drivers are needed for the Manchester-Bolton Branch of the AMERICAN RED CROSS. Volunteers will have the Red Cross station wagon for making scheduled day trips or "on-call" delivery or pickup of medical supplies or equipment. Volunteers have to be between 18 and 72 years old, able to handle a busy schedule, and they can specify their own number of hours to drive. Adults and youth to WORK WITH PRE-SCHOOL CHILDREN are needed by Manchester HEAD START program. It is a federal requirement to furnish one volunteer per class daily. Manchester has four classes, therefore there is a need of twenty (20) volunteers. Volunteers should have a strong interest in such areas as music, artistic ability, story telling, and other areas that would fit into a pre-school program. Hours are 9:15-1:15 during the regular school year.

Bolton Auto Repair, Porch Granted by ZBA

The Bolton Board of Appeals approved two applications last night after a public hearing. The first, which was submitted by Ralph Clark of Rt. 85, sought removal of an automotive repair business from its present location near Bolton Dairy on Rt. 85 to the property of Charles Fenton which is across the street at Rt. 85 and Lyman Rd.

Clark who was represented by Atty. Richard Garber of Hebron, Conn., explained that the property would be used only for repair of automobiles, and said that there would be no gasoline pumps on the premises.

His attorney defended the suitability of the site for a repair business, noting that the building, which is presently a chicken coop, is set back several hundred feet from the road and is more than 240 feet from the nearest house.

Clark asserted that his proposed business would have no adverse impact on the neighborhood.

In August, Fenton sought and was granted a zone change deepening the frontage of the commercial zone from approximately 200 feet to 500 feet.

Clark's application was granted with the stipulation that no unregistered motor vehicles be permitted at the premises.

Porch Allowed
An application by Louis Cloutier of Brandy St. for a 13 foot sidewalk variance to construct a screened porch over an existing patio was also approved by the board. The patio now consists of a concrete slab which lies within 12 feet of the neighboring land. Since present zoning requirements call for a 25-foot sidewalk, Cloutier was denied a building permit by the town building department.

Information was not available as to the original date of construction of the concrete slab, and there was some speculation as to how it got there in the first place. In view of the 25-foot sidewalk requirement.

Harold Laws, who lives next door to Cloutier, asserts that the patio was laid sometime after 1961 when revised zoning regulations were in effect.

This is Fire Prevention Week and Bolton's volunteer Fire Department has several activities planned to mark the observance. Children at the elementary school will have an opportunity to take a close look at fire fighting equipment this week, when firemen bring trucks and gear to the school. As in past years, children at local nursery schools will also have an opportunity to climb aboard a fire truck.

Firemen will man a booth at the flea market to be sponsored by the Parent-Teacher Organization Saturday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. on the elementary school grounds.

Department members will sell several types of home fire extinguishers and ladders.

Bolton Republicans will sponsor a cocktail party Friday evening at 8 p.m. at Herrick Memorial Park building to raise funds for the current election campaign.

Bolton New Projects on at School

Things at Bolton Elementary School are running smoothly at the end of the first month of school, and several new projects are underway, according to principal George Patros.

Included in the new projects is a courtyard development plan being jointly undertaken by parents, teachers, and the Bolton Junior Women's Club. A steering committee has been formed to investigate the possibility of creating an outdoor classroom and nature center on the school grounds, Patros said.

The school is also participating in the Lutz Junior Museum Loan program this year, through which museum exhibits are available each month.

Students in Mrs. Lynn Anderson's reading class have been selected to read stories to pupils in kindergarten and Grades 1 and 2 in an effort to improve their own reading skills while offering an increased exposure to literature to the young students.

Parents of children in Thelma Friedman's reading class were invited to observe a reading class recently.

Music teacher Sandra Schenker has initiated a fifth and sixth grade chorus and an ensemble of 16 students who show interest and are willing to spend time beyond the normal music classes.

Bolton's new school nurse, Irma Meridy, has met with staff members to offer them her services in their programs. Mrs. Meridy, who has a college degree in addition to being a registered nurse, will be available for classroom teaching.

Resource List
The school is continuously expanding its list of people in the community who are willing to offer some of their time and abilities to the schools. Persons with special abilities or interesting occupations or hobbies may contact a PTO member or Mr. Patros.

Coventry Registrars To Have 4-Year Terms

Coventry's registrars of voters will start serving four-year terms in 1974 as the result of a new ordinance passed by the Town Council.

The four positions are on the ballot for next month's election, the last election for the two-year term, which has been in effect for many years.

There are two voting districts within the town, with each district running a candidate from each political party, making a total of four.

All four candidates are assured of automatic election, since the position of registrar is traditionally a "no contest" one.

All four women running for the posts this year are incumbents: District 1, Bradley (first district) and Rita Wisnall (second district); and Republicans Margaret Jacobson (first) and Gertrude Haven (second).

4-H Clubs Resume
The Saddle Soopers, a 4-H horse club, and Baa and Kackie, a 4-H sheep, poultry and small club, will combine their first meetings for the year Oct. 13 at 7 p.m. at the North Coventry Community House, Rt. 44.

Old and new members are invited to attend and sign up.

An active member of the Saddle Soopers will have an opportunity to learn more about the correct care of his horse, and will be able to participate in club trail rides, help plan and take part in the club horse show, attend 4-H horse camp, exhibit at the town and county fairs. Also, each year the county runs a horse judging program.

Members of the Baa and Kackie learn, among other things, to care for, train, trim and show a lamb.

Paula Britton is leader of both clubs, and is assisted in her Saddle Soopers duties by Mrs. George Ross and Mrs. Herbert Council.

St. Germain's
St. Germain's Guild of St. Mary's Church will meet in the church hall at 8 p.m. Oct. 12. The program will include:

In an Orthodox synagogue, men and women sit in separate parts of the place of worship, and it is very important that heads be covered.

South Windsor Dinner To Mark UN Day

South Windsor will observe United Nations Day with a special UN Day dinner, Oct. 25 at 7 p.m. in the Lounge Restaurant in South Windsor.

Guest speakers will be Stanley Branch of St. Vincent, West Indies, and Samuel Ericson of Venezuela. Both men are sponsored by the UN to study and observe in Hartford under the Hartford Development Administration's Training Program, which is a part of the Institute of Public Services at the University of Connecticut.

All residents of South Windsor are invited. For reservations or further information contact Valerie Blume.

The United Nations legally came into existence, Oct. 24, 1945. To mark this important date, the UN in 1947 passed a resolution stating that Oct. 24 "shall henceforth be officially called 'United Nations Day' and shall be devoted to making known to the peoples of the world the aims and the achievements of the United Nations and to gaining their support for the work of the United Nations."

South Windsor residents will have an opportunity to participate in various UN Day activities throughout the community. In keeping with the theme of "communication," citizens are urged to speak up for a more effective UN and make their voices heard in Washington where U. S. policies on the UN are formulated and supported. For this purpose, "opinion ballots" are being distributed through various community organizations and will be available at the library. Residents are asked to fill them out and mail them to Rep. William Colter, Washington, D.C., 20515.

In other activities, the UN Day Committee is working with the local schools to assist in setting up UN Day programs, and has placed free pamphlets and other information in the library. Committee members include: Pat Lariviere, Evelyn Thomas, Audrey Wasik, and Valerie Beltramo.

Today in History
Today is Wednesday, October 11, the 285th day of 1972. There are 81 days left in the year.
Today's highlight in history
On this date in 1811, the first steam ferry began its run between New York City and Hoboken, New Jersey.
In 1776, during the revolutionary war, colonial forces under Benedict Arnold were defeated by the British on Lake Champlain.
In 1779, the Polish nobleman, Casimir Pulaski, was killed in fighting for American independence at the battle of Savannah, Georgia.
In 1797, a Dutch fleet was defeated by the British off Camperdown, Holland.
In 1933, Latin American countries signed a non-aggression pact at Rio de Janeiro.
In 1945, Chiang Kai-Shek and Mao Tse-Tung issued a joint statement pledging to work for peace and unity in China.
In 1943, a government study showed that American women outnumbered men by four million.
Ten years ago: Pope John XXIII opened the Vatican Council II.
Five years ago: reports from Calcutta said cyclones that struck in the Bay of Bengal left half a million persons homeless.
One year ago: President Sadat of Egypt arrived in Moscow for talks with Soviet officials on Middle East problems.

SNET's Near-Monopoly Faces Challenge

By THOMAS KENT
HARTFORD (AP) — The Southern New England Telephone Co., long accustomed to a near-monopoly over telephone service in Connecticut, is discovering some new parties on the line.

And the eventual result of SNET's new competition, say some people in the telephone business, may be a division of services resulting in more sophisticated telephone systems, more circuits and faster routing of calls.

SNET, which opposes any such division of services, has been fighting its competitors. Yet several hundred businesses in Connecticut are already using sophisticated telephone systems installed by so-called "interconnect" telephone companies, systems that SNET says it can't yet provide.

The systems can do such tasks as play music to persons waiting on "hold" and "stay tuned" to a dial number that is easy to ring when the line is clear.

Some day, according to telephone experts, "interconnect" companies may provide all the "inside" phone equipment in business residences, while SNET concentrates on cables and switching systems from one phone user to another.

Such irritations as slow dial tones, calls that don't go through, and delays caused by "busy circuits" usually stem from cable and central-office switching, says Richard Miner, president of Connecticut Management Service Corp., a Meriden consulting firm.

The money the telephone company has to spend on maintaining station customers' equipment could be better used, he says. "If they (SNET) could put their funds into central offices they should realize a better return on their investment."

SNET officials, however, are quick to claim the "interconnect" idea is impractical.

The integrated nature of a phone network would make it difficult to decide just where an interconnector's equipment should leave off and the telephone company's begin, says SNET President Alfred W. Van Sinderen.

"This is a very costly little idea, but the minute you sit down and look at it it's almost impossible to try to draw a line and say, 'Here is a place we can cut this off,'" he says. "Nobody has ever been able to figure out a way of accomplishing it."

Van Sinderen adds he isn't worried by competition between SNET and the interconnectors over who will provide internal systems to telephone customers.

"We don't worry about competition," he says. "It's fun." Despite the insistence of Van Sinderen and other SNET officials that SNET is headed for a wire-and-cable future, others in the phone industry claim that SNET is already thinking about such a switch.

"They all know what's coming ultimately," says Sheldon L. Hart, president of National Telephone Co., an East Hartford interconnect firm.

"The communications problem has just become too large for any single organization to handle. That organization is going to have to give up some of its activity in order to take care of what's left."

He thinks the hierarchy would like to welcome the interconnect approach, says Communications Consultant Miservino.

Hart bases his prediction on what he calls a decline in customer service by the giant telephone company. He says the company's service has been declining to the point where customers will rush to interconnectors for fast attention to their phone needs.

"Our ability to succeed depends on the fact that some customers are dissatisfied with SNET," he says. He says that as SNET has grown older and bigger, its "esprit de corps" and dedication to service has declined.

"The younger element doesn't have the gride the older one does," he says.

SNET, however, violently disagrees with those who say service is going downhill.

"Nobody is perfect," concedes a company spokesman, but he points to a series of company statistics designed to show how SNET is managing to handle wire and cable improvements while taking care of its customers' "inside" needs at the same time.

The data shows that from 1968 to the present, 96 per cent of all phone customers in any given month had no complaints about their telephone service. Most customers get a dial tone within three seconds of lifting their receivers, the company says, and the percentage of customers who can't go for new buildings and equipment.

The company presently is working on a stock deal to raise such capital. It increased by three cents the dividend on its stock to increase its investor appeal," a company spokesman said.

In November 1968, it filed for a $23.9 million rate boost, its first rate increase since 1957. The Public Utilities Commission allowed less than 60 per cent of the amount SNET requested.

April 27 of this year the PUC allowed the company an increase adding up to $36.8 million annually.

Most of the rate money, however, can only be used to operate the telephone system; it to get more numerous and the competition to get more intense in the days ahead. But we can compete and win."

The SNET campaign includes a board game called "Competition" that its employees are encouraged to play. Players representing "SNET" and a "Competitor" move around a Monopoly-type board acquiring commercial telephone customers like "Jerrybub Construction" and "Landubber Realty Co.," their fates determined by drawing "SNET Sales Cards" and "Competitor Sales Cards."

"SNET Sales Cards" bring such good news as "Customer is impressed by the courtesy and efficiency of SNET business rep. You make the sale." "Competitor Sales Cards," however, may inform the "Competitor" that "You offer free installation and three free sets. SNET is prohibited by Public Utilities regulations from making similar offer. You score."

SNET's plan of battle also includes a "Competition Intelligence Center" to keep track of what the interconnectors are doing and counsel SNET salesmen on how to deal with them.

"Our competitors like to picture us as a clumsy giant, tripping over our very size," Van Sinderen tells his employees. "It's up to every one of us to shatter that picture and continue to demonstrate that we are quick, responsive and so good at the game that no one else can come close to achieving the level of service that our customers expect."

True Love Conquers Red Tape

NEW YORK (AP) — Twice Stephan Menta went South Vietnam — once under orders of the U.S. Army, the second time drawn by the girl he loved.

Menta and the Vietnamese girl he calls "Lenie" were married Monday, climaxing an East-West romance that began in the summer of 1970 when he was an American GI stationed near the demilitarized zone.

When his tour of duty ended 11 months later, he promised Lenie, 22, whose real name is Thi Thi Thiet, that he would find her as soon as he was discharged.

But bureaucracy and distance took their toll and he lost track of her. Out of the Army, he decided last June the only way to find her was to go back.

Faithfully tracing her through refugee camps, he found her in Da Nang. Red Tape meted in the glare of publicity that attended his romantic mission and Menta returned with his bride-to-be July 13.

"I knew we'd make it, but I never thought it would be this quick," Menta said Monday as he left his Jackson Heights, Queens, home for Our Lady of Fatima Church three blocks away.

The people-catching dog warden of Minneapolis. He prefers to be unidentified. (AP Photo)

Dogcatcher Catches People

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — The City of Minneapolis, weary of picking up dogs that will never be reclaimed, has initiated a program aimed at finding the owners instead of just catching the dogs.

The roving patrol consists of one man who roams the city in a truck, trying to locate the owners of stray dogs and talks to them about their responsibilities.

The man, who prefers to be unidentified, says he likes animals.

"You can't have a job like this and not like dogs," he said. "The thing you get to dislike are the owners."

He cruses the city, asking people if they know who strays belong to or following the dogs to see if they lead him to home — and the negligent owner.

He also has the power to issue tags for violations of city dog ordinances, one of which requires dogs to be on a leash if they're out of the yard.

The young man is a college-trained teacher but couldn't find a job. He began as a dogcatcher about eight months ago, and moved into the new post when it opened.

Minneapolis still has seven trucks that patrol the city day and night, answering complaint calls and nabbing the roaming dogs. But officials say that will never solve the problem.

The city has about 70,000 dogs, and more than 60,000 are not licensed, John Gilbert, manager of Tonka Kennels, the city's dog pound, estimates.

In addition, picking up the dogs doesn't do much good. Only about 20 per cent of the dogs are reclaimed by their owners, he said. The rest sit in the kennel, waiting to be sold for research.

Andover Kennels and Campgrounds Approved by Planners

The Andover Planning and Zoning Commission last night voted to adopt the proposed new kennel and campground regulations effective Oct. 16, 1972.

At a meeting of the commission following the public hearing concerning these two new sets of regulations, commission members discussed further the regulations and whether any changes, additions or deletions were called for. Members felt that the regulations were adequate and approved their acceptance.

Kennel Questions

At the public hearing, which drew out about a dozen people, questions were directed to the commission primarily in the area of dogs and dog problems.

The proposed kennel regulations were acceptable to those present except in one instance. Gerald Nachman of Shoddy Mill Rd. who raises a toy breed of dog and lives on a piece of property consisting of one acre of land, objected to the number of dogs which the commission decided would constitute a kennel.

The new regulations say anyone who owns five or more adult dogs has a kennel and must receive approval of the commission, after meeting kennel requirements. The minimum lot size requirement for kennels is three acres.

Mrs. Anna Frisina, chairman of the PZC, explained to Nachman that a set of regulations could be drawn up setting a possible deviation but that the commission would consider the case of an owner of small toy breeds.

The commission subsequently tried to determine whether an amendment in the proposed regulations was called for to accommodate those persons who do raise a toy breed and do not have the same housing requirements as the larger breed. It was decided that on the whole, keeping the number of dogs which determined a kennel of five was still the most reasonable figure. As far as the minimum lot size requirement was concerned, Mrs. Frisina pointed out to Nachman, and the commission concurred, that the Zoning Board of Appeals estimates for these kinds of situations which are unique. An applicant would have recourse to the ZBA and where the regulations are shown to be unduly harsh because of its particular circumstances, a variance would be permitted. The commission felt this would be the wisest course of action than trying to regulate for every possible occurrence.

Dog Problem

Many of the questions raised at the hearing concerning dogs, reflected the citizens problems with individual instances of dog complaints.

Questions regarding primarily noise, odor, roaming dogs, etc. were raised. It was pointed out that the commission was concerned with the question of whether the town of Andover should permit kennels in town, and if so, were the proposed regulations adequate to protect the townspeople.

Dog Warden William Kowalski explained some of the legal problems of enforcement of the laws regarding dogs. Mrs. Frisina said that the new regulations, while they do not deal with dogs other than those in kennels, provide for clear enforcement and penalties in this area and would serve to strengthen the town's enforcement ability in this area.

Campgrounds

The campground regulations brought forth little discussion at the hearing, being a scant page of regulations and another half page of procedure.

Mrs. Frisina explained that the State Department of Health had enacted a lengthy and complete set of regulations for campgrounds, especially in the area of water and waste disposal, including sewage. Since these state requirements are in effect throughout Connecticut, Andover's regulations are just to cover the particular set of circumstances as they would apply to a campground in town.

Campgrounds must have a minimum of 10 acres, they are permitted in all use zones in Andover, the number of campsites per acre is 15 maximum, the length of stay may not exceed 90 consecutive days, and users of the campground are not entitled to

Vernon Small Chairs Big Treat for Press

By JUNE LINTON (Herald Reporter)

Members of the press were treated to a special lunch yesterday. It was special not only because the chairs were so small and close to the floor, and one towered over one's companions at the large low table; it was special because of people like the pretty blond who would cover her face and giggle when asked any question. The atmosphere was gay and the food just fine.

The occasion was an introduction for the press to Vernon's new Hocknum Valley Child Day Care Center. It's located in the First Congregational Church classrooms in Vernon Center.

The public may see it Monday at open house from 7:30 to 9 p.m., official opening day. In the morning there will be a reception for officials and the many persons concerned with the center's development, which actually had its beginning as a dreamed-of project of the Hocknum Valley Community Services Council. It is now an independent corporation.

The day care center opened its doors in August to eight children. Now there are ten, far short, however, of its capacity to care for 30 children. Such a shortage is the last problem the staff anticipated in its planning, and the reason is undoubtedly and simply that word hasn't gotten around, and according to Helen Abum, president of the organization, she has called many persons who have never heard of it, despite what seemed to be adequate news coverage.

The children are brought or picked up by volunteers or staff at 8 a.m., in time for breakfast, if parents can't bring them. During the day their hours are taken up with group learning activity and play, two meals, and two snacks, and a nap, at which reporters were assured, they do sleep.

The dietitian for the Vernon School System, Mrs. Virginia Benson, donates extra time as dietitian for the day care center. Mrs. Kozzie Mandell is employed part time as cook.

The U.S. Dept. of Agriculture Federal Donated Foods Program provides the bulk of the food necessary each month. The center pays $13 for shipping and storage, and purchases the remainder of the food needed. Yesterday's menu for lunch included beans with slices of frankfurter, cole slaw with pineapple, a buttered roll, milk and jelly.

To be eligible children must be three to five years old, and two-thirds of them must be from economically disadvantaged families. Fees are based on the family's ability to pay and range from $5 to $30 per month. If the parent of the enrolled child is receiving welfare assistance, as half of them now are, then she must also take part in a work incentive or some such training program, although there are exceptions. If the parent is absolutely unable to pay the fee the parent may offer to volunteer some time in service at the center.

One problem expressed by Mrs. Abum is the mother who needs day care but whose child is in kindergarten, but for just a few hours of the day.

These children must be picked up at the school and have been, by volunteers and staff. However, the center will have a mini-bus in a month or so which will be the answer to many transportation problems.

Volunteers are needed for this as well as for any number of jobs. There are 12 adult volunteers now, and another 12 teenagers who come after school to play with and read to the children. The church setting provides a good deal of outdoor play area as well as five classrooms inside. As the number of children grow toward the limit of 30, more volunteers will be needed, and anyone interested to call Mary Ellen Linderman of 77 Tumblebrook Dr., Vernon.

There would be more children now in the program if applications were accepted from surrounding towns. Although the turns and share. Further information may be obtained by calling Mrs. Kapala at the center.

Federal Take-Over Seen As Only For Meeting Rising Welfare Costs

By HOWARD WHITE, Associated Press Writer

Top Massachusetts officials, looking at a welfare budget that represents nearly half the state's spending, see only one way out — let the federal government pay for the whole thing.

And a Rhode Island legislator, looking at similar facts in his state, has another idea — get out from under the federal umbrella entirely, cut back programs sharply, and save money in the long run.

Members of the First Congressional Church have played a large part in bringing about the day care center. Besides contributing the attractive space, they contribute half of the operating cost and many of the volunteers.

In commenting on this the Rev. John Lacey termed it a very happy wedding of church and community, and should be considered a proper, rather than charitable, thing to do, "a real blessing."

There is no religion involved in the program. It is strictly non-denominational in all ways.

Mrs. Abum stressed that it is not a baby-sitting service for the disadvantaged, but must satisfy a definite need.

Parents have reacted during the month and a half of child care. They have learned to relax at work instead of worry about what might have been questioned baby-sitting at home, and the children have learned to be less demanding, to recipients camped out on the lawn of the Connecticut Capitol for six days in a protest against a flat grant proposal that had built-in cuts of 5 per cent for AFDC recipients.

And Welfare Rights organizations in Vermont and Rhode Island vow fights against similar plans there.

Flat grant is simply a redistribution of welfare money. Without it, social workers are generally authorized to provide "special needs" payments for everything from clothing to furniture and back rent money. Flat grant eliminates all but emergency special needs, and pools the money that would be spent on it for distribution — usually quarterly — to all eligible recipients.

The result: those who have been successful in getting lots of extra money will get less, but those who haven't will get a bit more.

Welfare rights groups say their opposition to flat grant is that basic allowances are inadequate and the extras are necessary. But there's another reason for their opposition. Organized groups have built-in strength by helping their members get more money from the system.

"When Massachusetts got flat grant, the basic organizing tool was lost," says the Rev. Henry Shelton, a Roman Catholic priest active in Rhode Island welfare advocacy.

The move to flat grant is a state-by-state move, and some see it as a step toward eventual federal institution of a guaranteed minimum income plan. But before that happens, states will be moving in at least two other areas dictated by federal regulations: more stringent work-training rules and the mechanics of determining a recipient's eligibility and then seeing to it that he gets his check should be separated from the function of counseling him and seeing to his need for education, health, or family services.

Massachusetts has already experimented with the new approach in one of its busy Boston offices, but it is far behind Maine, which split the two functions in 1968 and has now gone a step further.

Backed up by a computer system, Maine's department of Health and Welfare not only separates the money side of welfare from the service side, but divides up the service jobs as well.

In a system that's been working for little more than a year, a Maine welfare recipient who needs more than money has his case programmed into a computer which then assigns it to a family counselor, a health worker, or whatever combination of specialists is needed.

Such experimentation in providing services is encouraged by the federal government, which offers 75 per cent reimbursement for programs intended to improve the delivery of services to recipients and help break the "poverty cycle."

But most states have been late in catching up with the program — and it may be getting too late. In Massachusetts, Gov. Francis W. Sargent said in January the state hoped to get more than $70 million in new federal aid through creative social service programs. In June the federal government announced it was reimbursing the state up to $92 million for new programs.

Yet a recent similar try by Rhode Island Gov. Frank Licht failed when the General Assembly refused to consider a major expansion of state social service programs despite Licht's contention they would bring in more than $11 million in new federal money.

And there are indications that Congress will soon clamp a ceiling on expansion of federal spending in this area.

But while New England states with heavy welfare loads have been seeking to expand federal help, they've also been moving to try to cut state spending.

Massachusetts a year ago put into effect new regulations sharply cutting back eligibility for General Relief — entirely paid for by the state. It also began a program to require "able-bodied" recipients to accept a job or

The Boys Work on a 'Hot' Project

Herald Photos by Bucivicus

These Boys Are Busy Birdsmiths

By BETTY RYDER
(Herald Reporter)

Perched high atop a hill in Manchester is the "Lair" of the "Brazen Birch Mountain Birdsmiths."

The birdsmiths, namely, David Armstrong, 13, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willard Armstrong, of 119 Blue Ridge Dr., and Pacey Pet, 12, son of Dr. and Mrs. Donald Pet of Bette Dr. have a unique hobby. Using nuts and bolts, coils or springs, or square-headed nails of various sizes which they braze together, they design unusual items of metal sculpture.

Among them are three-dimensional wall decorations, large standing birds mounted on wooden bases, and smaller birds perched on driftwood bases.

The boys have designed a "fisherman" of nuts and bolts complete with a metal "straw" hat and a fly rod. A water skier all poised and ready to skim over the water is also in their collection.

"We also make jewelry," David said, "fashioned with a circular hoop made of wire and a dangling pendant which we designed."

"These particular items proved to be a fast seller at the recent Arts and Crafts Fair in Glastonbury," David's mom said, "and the boys were disappointed they hadn't made more."

In the garage in the Armstrong's home, the youthful sculptors have a workbench topped with fire bricks where they work on their projects.

"We use an acetylene torch for brazing," Pacey said, "and it reaches between 4,000 and 5,000 degrees."

David did receive third degree burns once during their metal working, but now, the boys have learned to take all the necessary precautions when working with the hot metals.

"We both wear safety goggles to protect our eyes from the torch's heat and brightness," David added.

Their work is very intricate, and the flame emanating from the tip of the torch must be adjusted to a very fine point so that the boys can pinpoint just the spot they want to braze.

Artistry is the keynote, and although they have only worked on their hobby in their spare time over the past year, their young minds are full of other projects yet to be tackled.

With the help of their families, they gather driftwood, let it season outdoors, and use it as bases for their birds which range in height from a few inches to nearly two feet.

"In our workshop we have a compressor, smooth some of the rough edges of the wood," David remarked.

"The large birds are made from old nails we bought from the Manchester Hardware store on Main St.," David said.

"The man at the store said he believed he had had them close to 50 years, and we bought all he had. They are smaller in size than the old railroad nails, and he thinks they may have been used years ago for concrete work."

"He doesn't know where we can reorder them, but when we get time, we hope to visit other hardware stores and see if we can find some," Pacey added.

Another project they have recently undertaken is learning to cut stones, such as quartz which they gathered from the Diamond Ledge in Somers, and fashion them into brooches. They take lessons at the Walden Gem & Rock Shop in Glastonbury.

David is also a talented photographer, whose scenic shots would put a professional to shame.

His proud dad said, "He takes the photographs with a 35 millimeter camera and develops them in his own dark room."

Amidst all the boys' garage activities, "Moose," the Armstrong's 8-year-old, 200-pound St. Bernard, gives his pals a playful nudge, or lets out with a booming "woof."

"Moose," who is appropriately named, eats about 1 1/2 pounds of chopped beef a day, plus a tray of dog meal to which a can of cat food has been added.

Why the cat food? Well it seems "Moose" is a little sensitive, and feels slightly rejected when the family cat gets cat food to eat, and he must be content with his chopped beef so to keep harmony, cat food is added to his repeat too.

David, who is in the 8th grade, and Pacey, a 7th grader, both at Bennett Junior High School, broke into big grins, when asked "what kind of a bird they had made."

David explained, "When I showed it to my dad, he said, 'what a nice ruffed grouse,' one woman at the arts and crafts fair commented on our 'turkey,' and still another little boy tugged at his mother imploring her to look at the 'chicken.'"

Just goes to prove the old adage, "it's all in the eye of the beholder," cause as the boys concluded, "we thought we were making a peacock."

Book Review

CHIMERA. By John Barth. Random House. 309 Pages. $5.95.

Near the end of "Chimera," Barth's latest work of fiction, one of the characters remarks, "... It's a beastly fiction, ill-proportioned, full of longwinded lumps, lacunae, a kind of monstrous mixed metaphor..."

The remark isn't directed at the book, of course, but it could be used to describe large portions of the text — although, in fairness, there are scattered sections which are witty, well-written, thought-provoking.

Overall, however, Barth's efforts at retelling three legends — often in contemporary idiom — fall flat, especially when that which is meant to amuse fails to do so.

The myths involved are those of Scheherazade, the comely lass with a flair for storytelling; Perseus, slayer of the turn-of-stone-with-a-look Medusa; and Bellerophon, rider of the winged-horse Pegasus and slayer of the fire-breathing Chimera.

The Scheherazade episode, narrated largely by the tale spinner's kid sister Duzayazade, ary townspeople form a vigilante committee, on the ground that the city's inadequate police force is inadequate to protect the citizens.

Of course the amateurish attempts of the vigilantes, armed with a variety of makeshift weapons, create a great deal of confusion. All the inherent virtues, meanness and backbiting of a gossipy little town blossom out as various individuals try to settle old scores.

On that level, the humor is rough-hewn. There are some pretty bizarre characters depicted at their worst.

Meanwhile, on the suspense level, it becomes evident to the reader which character is the psychopathic killer, and the tension builds on the question of whether he will be unmasked. The climax is sharp and startling.

As both suspense and satire, this novel digs deeper than most of Barth's other novels, and has a more vivid impact.

The "Seagull" has just been issued in a deluxe, illustrated edition. If you missed the original edition, it might be a good idea to read this book first, then cross over to the other one and sense how Bach's imaginative mind expanded into those upper reaches of the world below the stars.

Miles A. Smith

from an English base and get it back to some quarters in southern France. Bach has to make the return trip by flying a long route around a severe weather system. His account records the perils of that trip, with many flashbacks to his recent training, his earlier training and his experiences as a special breed of lone flier in a plane, the F-44F, designed as a ground support weapon.

The story is immensely detailed, but never dull. It is the tale of a flier proud to be a part of a man-machine combination that conquers an element man never was intended to inhabit, the upper air.

"Seagull" — call it fable, parable or whatever — and this book have in common one basic feeling, the love and joy of flight. Jonathan was a seagull who aspired to the ultimate in flight. Pilot Bach feels the same exhilaration, the same aspiration.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Dissenting Opinion

New stories about split decisions by the United States Supreme Court must surely bewilder many a reader. What the majority confidently asserts in Paragraph One, dissenters say as confidently deny in Paragraph Two.

What shall the ordinary citizen make of all this? If even the experts cannot agree on what the law is, how can plain folk be expected to know?

Of course, the law is what the majority opinion says it is. A dissenting opinion has no legal force.

In fact, in many countries, dissenting opinions are simply not allowed. Once a majority decision is reached, dissenters are expected to keep their views to themselves.

But on our Supreme Court, public dissent has a long and respectable history. It has been a regular feature of the Court ever since 1806, when a holdout justice voiced his disagreement with Chief Justice John Marshall.

One great virtue of this right of dissent ("the only thing that makes life tolerable," said Justice William O. Douglas) is that it may help shape the law of the future. Major changes in the law, including even amendments to the Constitution, have had roots in earlier dissenting opinions from the Court.

Still, dissenters, if overdone, can needlessly weaken both public understanding and public confidence of a Court ruling. At least, say critics, a judge should not dissent merely because of minor disagreement or personal pride.

Statistics do show that relatively few of the dissenting opinions — even those of Oliver Wendell Holmes, the "Great Dissenter" — have ever become the law of the land.

It is surprising that dissent occurs so often? Not when one considers the kind of questions the Court must answer. At all ways, they are questions on which even the wisest and fairest of men may differ. The easy ones just never reach the Court at all.

Social Security

Q. I get Social Security payments as a widow. I do not work, but I own a small apartment building. Does my rental income count toward the $1,600 a year that I can earn before Social Security payments are reduced?

A. No. Only wages and self-employment income count as earnings for Social Security purposes. Rental income will not affect your cash benefits unless you are a real estate dealer.

Q. Before my recent death, my wife worked under Social Security for nearly 11 years. Should I continue working and supporting our two children, ages 9 and 12. Could they get monthly Social Security benefits on my wife's work record?

A. Yes. The children may be eligible for Social Security benefits on their mother's record regardless of the surviving father's work situation. You should file an application for the children.

Q. I collect monthly Social Security benefits as a widow. I have my own Social Security number, but I have never worked outside the home. Will my family be able to get a payment from Social Security to help pay my burial expenses when I die?

A. No. Your family would not receive a lump-sum death payment if you have never worked under Social Security.

Q. My husband died a few weeks ago. When I go to the Social Security office in East Hartford to apply for monthly survivor benefits for myself and my two children, do I need to take any documents along?

A. Yes, you should bring along your husband's Social Security card or some record of his number, some record of his earnings during the past year (such as a W-2 form), the death certificate, your marriage certificate, your own birth certificate, and the birth certificate for each of your children.

Q. I am 64 and was totally dependent upon my wife until she died last month. Can I receive monthly benefits from Social Security on her work record?

A. Yes, if she has enough Social Security credit.

Baking Industry Fears Damage From Wheat Deal

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The recent sale of U.S. wheat to Russia will raise flour costs and may cause "permanent and irreparable" damage to bakers, warns the American Bakers Association.

Meeting here for its annual convention, the association said in a statement: "An immediate and direct effect of these exports has been the most dramatic flour price increase to bakers in history. They said the sales to Russia equalled the amount of what the American baking industry consumes."

For many bakers—both large and small—the added costs are more than their operating profit. They cannot continue in the red for long without going down the drain, and that means plants shut, payrolls lost and men and women out of jobs.

Peak flour prices at Kansas City were recorded in early August at $6.70 per 100 pounds, up from $5.40 a year earlier and

Bush Funeral Conducted

GREENWICH (AP) — State flags flew at half-staff Tuesday as funeral services were conducted for former U.S. Sen. Prescott Sheldon Bush, who died Sunday in New York at the age of 77.

Attending the funeral were Gov. Thomas J. Meskill, New York City Mayor John Lindsay, Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr. and U.S. Rep. Stewart McKinney. After the service, Bush's body was taken to Putnam Cemetery in Greenwich for a private burial at Christ Church. He read a brief eulogy, written by Bush's widow that cited Bush's friendship with the Senate while serving as ambassador to President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Energy Crisis Motivates Way-Out Power Source Study

WASHINGTON (AP) — Whisk yourself into the 21st century. Giant windmills will offshore. Floating energy plants rely on differences in the ocean's temperature. Overhead, dumbbell-shaped spacecraft capture the power of the sun.

So go the visions of scientists seeking to ease the nation's growing energy crisis as current, environmentally acceptable sources of energy diminish. None of the proposals to capture the force of the winds, the tides, tropical ocean currents or solar energy may prove practical. But each possible way of obtaining energy, both conventional and unconventional by today's terms, is being assessed by scientists under Nixon administration orders to seek new sources of energy.

Directing the study is the White House Office of Science and Technology to which 11 advisory panels are to report soon. The proposal to harness the winds envisions huge windmills located 10 or more miles off the New England and New York coasts and fixed atop 150-foot steel towers rising from stationary floating platforms or anchored directly to the seabed of the continental shelf.

The windmills, propelled by steady westerly winds that sweep over the Atlantic, produce electricity that is used to convert ocean water into oxygen and hydrogen. The hydrogen then is shipped ashore where it is combined in fuel cells with readily available oxygen in a manner that produces enough electricity to supply all of New England and New York. Fresh water is a by-product of this proposed process.

Another scheme for producing electricity proposes use of floating heat engines that are fed on one side by warm water from the Gulf Stream's surface and on the other side by near-freezing water piped upward from the seabed more than one-half mile below the surface.

The thermal gradient, or sharp temperature difference between the two sources of water in the Gulf Stream, promotes the whirling of turbines for the production of electricity.

As with the windmill proposal, the ocean-generated electricity is used to produce hydrogen gas for combination in energy-producing fuel cells ashore.

A third proposal for creating electricity envisions a giant, dumbbell-shaped unmanned spacecraft that orbits the planet at an altitude of 22,000 miles and remains above the same spot on the rotating earth.

The satellite, equipped with a 25-square-mile array of solar cells, captures the intense sunlight at that altitude, transforms it into a strong electric current and converts the current to radar-like waves that are beamed to earth. A 30-square-mile ground antenna picks up the radar beams which are converted back into enough electricity to supply large metropolitan areas.

Still another proposal calls for solar farms that tap energy from the sun in such clear-weather states as Arizona and New Mexico.

The farms consist of thousands of acres of arid land covered with an array of hollow tubes coated with a special chemical film and filled with a heat exchange fluid. The tubes absorb the sun's radiation and retain most of it; the best exchange fluid converts the radiation to heat which is used to produce electricity-generating steam.

There are these other possibilities for obtaining electricity: —Along coastal areas of the Bay of Fundy between Maine and Nova Scotia and along the coast of Alaska, huge dams capture high-tide waters and release them at low tide.

The outpouring water from these geographic points, which have the highest tides in North America, churn giant waterwheels that generate electricity-generating turbines.

—Still more electricity is pumped downward through three or more into the earth's crust through pipes that reach prefractured areas within basalt or intensely hot rocks. The water, picking up the heat, is pumped back to the surface where it becomes steam as it emerges. The steam generates the electricity.

However exotic these proposals for producing electricity, they have strong backers among some private and federal research and administration scientists say they must be explored on the chance one or another could help relieve energy shortages in some part of the nation.

While White House scientists concede the proposals already would not be practical before the next century, they say it is always possible research breakthroughs could be achieved before the year 2000.

The scientists list these two other sources of unconventional energy for possible earlier and relatively wide application: —Expanded use in the foothills of rooftop waterheaters fed by solar power and, in those same sunny states, further use of solar stills for making fresh water from salty, brackish water.

—Generating electricity from two forms of geothermal energy other than the so-called hot rock-type that is deeply locked within the earth.

These more accessible, though geographically less widespread, resources of geothermal energy include steam-yielding geyser and subterranean hot-water systems whose waters can be made to flash to steam if brought to the surface.

The geysers of Northern California are the major known domestic source of geothermal energy. Power plants of the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. began generating electricity at the field in 1960. The combined output is still modest, much less than a single 1000 megawatt conventional power plant produces.

But scientists say there's a potential for further extensive tapping of this resource.

The more widespread hot water systems are believed to exist nationwide, most abundantly in the 11 western states and Alaska and within special subsurface formations along the Gulf of Mexico from the Rio Grande to eastern Mississippi.

While these systems have been tapped for home heating in a few locations, such as towns in Idaho and Oregon, none so far has been tapped as a source of electricity.

The government's National Science Foundation is actively supporting research in the field. NSF scientists also are assessing the sea-going windmill concept, the proposal of Dr. William E. Heronemus, a professor of civil engineering at the University of Massachusetts in Amherst.

Heronemus envisions placing "barrels of wind stations across the prevailing westerlies in the Gulf of Maine-Georgia Bank area of the continental shelf."

Kahn's All-Meat Bologna. Faster-eaten 'cause it's slower made. Kahn's bologna is made the old-fashioned, unhurried way. Kahn's starts out with the best quality lean cuts of meats, and cooks them slowly to bring out the full rich flavor of the meat itself. (Some bolognas get cooked in a hurry, then a lot of spices to cover up the missing meat flavor.) With Kahn's the flavor comes from the meat, not from a lot of spices. That's why Kahn's all-meat bologna is milder, more delicious, more digestible. In convenient 8 and 12-ounce packages.

Hard Hats Honor Judge

BOSTON (AP)—The construction workers came bearing a gift for Judge M. Edward Viola, who is recovering from a broken hip. They gave him a hard hat. Printed neatly above the visor were the letters "E. VIOLA."

later, there were three or four. And it just kept growing. They're regulars now—true court buffs. "You could see their reactions from the bench. Say a wealthy woman was appearing because she had no insurance coverage on her automobile and I'd be lecturing her about the offense. You could see the grin on their faces. They like to see important people taken down a peg once in a while."

Court To Hear Case Involving Social Security

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court Tuesday agreed to decide whether children must be adopted under the supervision of a child placement agency in order to qualify for Social Security insurance benefits.

The question accepted by the court hits at the heart of a regulation designed to keep people already on Social Security from adopting children in order to increase their benefits. The suit was brought by Marion F. Morris, a resident of Raleigh County, W. Va., who has been receiving Social Security disability benefits since 1957.

Morris contended that the regulation violates the Fifth Amendment's due process clause by giving benefits to some children but denying it to others. Morris adopted his granddaughter, Linda, in 1966. The adoption was ordered by a court and supervised by a town policeman.

However, the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare ruled that Linda did not qualify for benefits because she was not adopted under the supervision of a child placement agency. Raleigh County has no such agency. A U.S. District Court ruled the Social Security regulations were not valid in Raleigh County but the U.S. Circuit Court in Richmond reversed the ruling.

Last Money Bill Sent To House

WASHINGTON (AP)—The last scheduled appropriation bill of the year was sent to the House floor today, boosting to $17.7 billion the total money requests considered during the current session.

It would provide $3.56 billion in new appropriations for the current fiscal year for miscellaneous activities not financed in 16 previous bills. The total is $8.9 million less than President Nixon requested.

Major allotments recommended by the Appropriations Committee include: $85.4 million for manpower training programs of the Labor Department; $993.4 million for the Social and Rehabilitation Service of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare; and $408 million for the Office of Child Development in the same agency.

—$760.2 million for the Office of Economic Opportunity; $295.5 million to expedite recovery from damage caused by tropical storm Agnes and floods in South Dakota; $114.8 million for drug abuse treatment, prevention and law enforcement activities; $26.3 million to acquire four large aircraft for scientific programs in Antarctica; $12 million to repay a government guaranteed loan to the Erie-Lackawanna Railway which was defaulted last June. The Appropriations panel estimated that by the time Congress is finished with money bills, the total will be about $5 billion under White House requests. Since not all money provided in any year is for expenditure during that year, the net reduction in actual outlays was estimated at $1.5 billion. However, the committee pointed out, other congressional action on non-appropriation measures, coupled with the money bills, will probably result in increased spending of about $6 billion.

Business Mirror Self-Employed Reluctant To Use Pension Plans

By JOHN CUNIFF AP Business Analyst NEW YORK (AP)—Only one in eight of this country's self-employed have undertaken pension plans under the Keogh Act, which permits them to set aside in a tax shelter as much as 10 per cent of income up to a maximum of $2,500 a year.

The situation is causing concern in the life insurance industry, the major provider of retirement plans for the self-employed, which finds itself unable to stimulate enthusiasm for the Keogh provisions. Underlying their concern is the fear that a gap in any kind of private insurance coverage—life, health, casualty or retirement—tends to be filled by, or to be left.

James Atwood, chairman of the industry's Task Force on Pension Legislation, estimates that only 20 per cent of self-employed professionals and probably 5 to 8 per cent of non-professionals have coverage. "One problem with self-employed plans," Atwood said in an interview, "is that young men won't contribute because they are too concerned with rent and cash demands, and older workers cannot afford the expense."

The challenge of marketing is to offer retirement plans at a low cost to the purchaser. They must be mass merchandised, much as group health plans, even though the buyers are individuals rather than members of one company. The alternative to mass merchandising is to sell on a one-to-one basis, as life insurance policies are sold. That means one salesman to one customer, with necessarily higher costs. The marketing thrust therefore has been through professional groups, such as the American Bar Association and the American Dental Association. But the response hasn't been good. Said Atwood, who is a senior vice president and director of Equitable Life Assurance, which handles $6 billion in pension funds, "If you took a poll of professionals, asking what they know about retirement plans, the absence of knowledge would be appalling."

The challenge is one of educating. "We've been experimenting. We have booths at conventions. We've tried closed circuit TV. We have mailings. We run ads in the professional journals. We even have sponsorship of professional organizations."

It is even more of a challenge to interest the nonprofessionals. Atwood said his company tried promoting retirement plans through a barbers association, but that there was little response. In his estimation, the failure to promote interest in Keogh plans involves more than merchandising inadequacies on the part of insurers, mutual funds, bank trusts and the like that also offer Keogh programs for investing pension funds. Atwood supports an administration bill now in Congress that would liberalize Keogh provisions. One of the primary aims, he said, is to permit a maximum of $7,500 a year to be set aside rather than the $2,500 now permitted.

FCC To Study Allegations Against SNET SAIGON (AP)—U.S. troop strength in Vietnam dropped by 700 men to 55,200 last week, the U.S. Command has announced. The figures do not include some 100,000 American servicemen participating in the Indochina war from bases in Guam and Thailand and ships off the Vietnamese coast. The U.S. Command announced approximately 39,000 Navy personnel are assigned to 7th Fleet ships in the area. In addition to the American forces, there are some 38,000 South Korean troops in South Vietnam. Their number decreased by 1,200 last week.

British Eye Negative Income Tax

LONDON (AP) - The British government called today for the adoption of a negative income tax plan that would increase state benefits to millions of old-age pensioners and other low-income families.

The program, called an "income tax credit scheme," would also simplify state welfare benefits, reduce bureaucratic red tape and eliminate embarrassing means tests. The government said in a paper for public discussion. It is called a green paper.

A similar plan was included in President Nixon's family assistance program.

The British government said the plan would need a great deal of preparatory work and probably would take five years to establish.

But the paper said Prime Minister Edward Heath's Conservative government hopes to introduce the legislation before the next election, which must come by 1975.

The plan would provide for the most comprehensive shakeup of Britain's tax and welfare state programs since the end of World War II.

It comes partly from the recognition that despite generous benefits since 1945, the welfare state has failed to lift the poor up out of poverty.

One problem has been the poverty trap. A man earning 17 pounds, about $41 a week, pays no income tax and gets various welfare benefits, including housing subsidies, family allowances and free school meals for his children.

If he makes 20 pounds, about $48 a week, he must pay income tax and loses some of his welfare benefits. He ends up poorer by getting a raise.

The negative income tax system would do away with all that.

Under the new plan welfare benefits would be paid automatically as part of the income tax system.

A poverty line is drawn, say $2,500 a year. Anyone making more than that pays tax. Anyone making less than that receives the difference in state help up to the whole $2,500. This is the negative income tax.

Another feature is the incentive to increase earnings. Anyone below the poverty line would be better off with increased pay. He would be allowed to keep both the benefit he received earlier and a portion of the added earnings up to a cut off level well beyond the poverty line.

Another advantage is that the system is automatic. There are no means tests and the amount of benefit due is worked out once, with the tax form. The civil service bureaucracy running the welfare program would be substantially reduced.

The government estimated that "many hard-pressed people, including three or four million pensioners, would have their income significantly improved."

Lusitania Archives Published

NEW YORK (AP) - The author of a new account of the 1915 sinking of the British liner Lusitania says that the ship was carrying armaments and was stripped of her naval escort when torpedoed by a German submarine.

Colin Simpson, author of the forthcoming book "Lusitania," also says in excerpts published in Life magazine Sunday that a false manifesto was filed to conceal its cargo of three-inch shells and rifle ammunition.

The great, four-stack liner sailed from New York on May 1, 1915 with 1,959 persons aboard bound for Liverpool. On May 7 she was torpedoed and 1,198 persons died, including 124 Americans.

Simpson says the Germans had made it clear they would attack vessels the allies were using as part of the war effort. But the emotional and political response to the sinking in America became an important factor in the subsequent U.S. entry into the war against Germany.

The British writer says evidence in various archives shows that a British cipher was supposed to meet the Lusitania off the coast of Ireland but was withdrawn by order of the admiralty.

Simpson implies that Robert Lansing, Secretary of State William Jennings Bryan's deputy and successor, and the British were working together to get the United States to enter the war on the Allies' side.

He says President Woodrow Wilson was aware that the ship was carrying war material but sealed a copy of the vessel's manifest in Treasury archives.

The actual sinking, Simpson contends, resulted from a mistaken explosion of the munitions cargo and not from the torpedo.

Oakland's Baseball Girls Welcomed to Tiger Stadium. Mike Epstein Helps Debbi Sizer and Mary Barry onto Field.

Tigers Not Ready To Roll over Dead

DETROIT (AP) — Although they still were only one game from elimination, the Detroit Tigers weren't ready to back away from the challenge provided by the Oakland Athletics heading into today's fourth American League playoff game.

Trailing two games to none in the best-of-five series, the Tigers got a two-run single from surprise starter Ike Brown and a playoff-record setting 14-strikeout performance from Joe Coleman in beating the A's 3-0 Tuesday.

Since the playoff system was adopted in 1969 when the leagues were divided into two divisions, no team has come from a 2-0 deficit and won three games and the pennant.

"We don't have the edge, but if we win tomorrow we'll have the edge going into the final game," Detroit Manager Billy Martin said.

He was to send southpaw ace Mickey Lolich against Oakland's Jim "Catfish" Hunter in today's game. Lolich was the loser in the 11-inning, 3-2 opening playoff game.

"No manager has an excuse for losing when he has a Mickey Lolich and Woodie Fryman in that order at home," said Martin, who will send Fryman to the mound on Thursday should that little extra.

Brown reached back for that little extra in the fourth inning, cracking a low, inside fast ball by Ken Holtzman through the box for a bases-loaded, two-run single. Detroit had loaded the bases on a walk to Al Kaline, a double by Bill Freehan, and a walk to Willie Horton.

"No, it wasn't a bold move," Martin said of the insertion of Brown into the starting lineup at first base. "He is used to playing in and out."

"It was beautiful," Brown said of his career because it might have turned things around for us.

"I think it's pretty tough to be in the play like that because I didn't get to play much the last three weeks of the season," Brown said. "I think I only pinch hit three times."

Coleman was another Tiger who reached back for a little extra, establishing his rhythm with a good fast ball, then coming in with his favorite pitch—the fork ball.

The previous playoff strikeout record was 12, set by Baltimore's Jim Palmer in 1970 against Minnesota.

"It wasn't one of my best games, I think, but I got out of trouble when I had to," the 25-year-old right-hander said.

"I quite often pitch better with you on base. You just beat down. You're a little lax when you don't have them on."

The A's stranded 10 runners, with Coleman in serious trouble several times. In the first inning, he gave up a double to Matty Alou and walked Dal Maxvill before striking out the side.

"We're still in good shape," Oakland Manager Dick Williams said. "We're still ahead, two games to one."

Reliable Steve Blass Key Man for Pirates

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates turned confidently toward reliable Steve Blass, while the Cincinnati Reds had to go with young and comparably inexperienced Don Gullett today in their showdown game for the 1972 National League pennant.

"I've got to like my chances with Blass," said Bill Virdon, manager of the Eastern Division champion Pirates.

Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson spoke more cautiously about the 22-year-old Gullett, who spent most of the season wracked with hepatitis and didn't make the starting rotation until mid-August.

"I look for Gullett to pitch like he did from the second inning in the first game of the series," said Anderson. Gullett lost 5-1 to Blass in the first game, giving up three runs in the first inning and two more in the fifth during his six-inning stint. Anderson figures that Gullett had playoff jitters and will be more in control today.

Cincinnati forced the best-of-five series into the fifth and deciding game by trouncing the Pirates 7-1 Tuesday behind the two-hit pitching of young Ross Grimsley. The Reds stole three bases, hit and ran, and took advantage of three Pittsburgh errors.

Virdon had a right to be smug about his apparent pitching advantage for the final game. Blass won two games for Pittsburgh in last year's World Series victory over Baltimore, the Eastern Division pennant-clincher this season, and the first game of this playoff series.

The 30-year-old right-hander was 19-8 this season, while Gullett posted a 9-10 record as the Reds easily won the National League West title. Gullett missed at least six weeks of the season and spent another month or so working himself back into shape.

Ironically, Pirates' catcher Manny Sanguillen and left fielder Rennie Stennett, heroes of the Pirates' 3-2 third game victory were the goals of Tuesday's defeat. The Reds ran wild on the bases on Sanguillen, while Stennett lost two fly balls in the sun.

Pittsburgh's problems started in the first inning when Sanguillen threw into centerfield as Johnny Bench stole second. Bobby Tolson scored on the error. In the fourth, Gene Alley dropped a pop fly along the foul line in short left field allowing Bench to score. Alley then compounded the mistake by throwing wild in trying to get Bench at the plate, allowing the batter, Cesar Geronimo, to reach third from home on a single.

Cincinnati's lead was 5-0 in the sixth on a double by Denis Menke, an infield out, an intentional walk, another stolen base, Grimsley's run-scoring single and an RBI punt by Rose.

Two more Reds' runs scored in the seventh on Joe Morgan's single, a triple by Tolson that Stennett lost in the sun, and a single by Menke that also had Stennett sliding his eyes from the sun.

Second Chance Today Awaited On Bruin

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — U.S. District Judge A. Leon Higginbotham is expected to decide before Thursday night whether ex-Boston Bruin star John McKenzie will be able to coach and play for the Philadelphia Blazers of the new World Hockey Association.

The Blazers open their season Thursday in Boston against the New England Blazers. Judge Higginbotham indicated in court Monday that he would have the issue settled by then. A spokesman for his office said a decision would be handed down Wednesday afternoon at the earliest.

McKenzie's suit is against the Philadelphia Flyers of the National Hockey League, who brought the suit to force McKenzie out of the Bruins in late summer. The suit is at the center of a wide-ranging legal feud between the WHA and the NHL.

The Blazers and McKenzie are asking the court to rule that the NHL's so-called "reserve clause" violates federal antitrust laws. Judge Higginbotham said he would not refrain from using antitrust law to break the contract, despite the recent U.S. Supreme Court decision in the Curt Flood case that exempted professional baseball from antitrust laws.

"Gentlemen, you can be sure that I'm going to rule the hockey is not immune from antitrust regulations," Judge Higginbotham said.

The NHL has filed a counter-suit to the WHA, charging the rival league with "conspiring to induce NHL players to break their contracts with senior league teams. The suit asks that NHL players who are signing to the WHA be restrained from playing this season.

The case of former Chicago Black Hawk star Bobby Hull was also brought before Higginbotham, but the federal judge refused to block the Black Hawk's lawsuit, saying he was trying to void Hull's jump to the Winnipeg Jets of the WHA. Hull has been restrained temporarily from joining the Jets. The outcome of the Hull case, however, could be affected by Judge Higginbotham's decision here, according to legal sources with the Black Hawks.

Greetings Joe for A Job Well Done. Tiger Catcher Bill Freehan Congratulates Joe Coleman.

'Biggest Victory of His Life' Joe Coleman Virtually Was Born to Play Ball

DETROIT (AP) — Joe Coleman virtually was born to play baseball.

The lanky Detroit right-hander is the son of former major league pitcher Joe Coleman, who worked for the Athletics, Tigers and Orioles between 1942 and 1955.

Young Joe was a first-round draft pick by the old Washington Senators in 1965 and won his first two major league starts less than four months after finishing a sparkling high school career at Nat King High in Washington.

But when Coleman beat the Oakland A's Tuesday, keeping the Tigers alive in the American League championship series, he called it the biggest victory of his life.

"It wasn't one of my best games," he said in the Tiger dressing room, "but I got out of trouble when I had to. And it was certainly the most important game I've ever won."

The Tigers entered Tuesday's game trailing 2-0 in the best-of-five series. Faced with that critical situation, the Tigers clearly needed a hero. Coleman was the man.

Although seemingly in trouble several times in the early innings, Coleman got tough and finished with 14 strikeouts,

The New York Jets had 42,525 no-shows for seven games last fall by fans who had tickets in their possession. ## Hayes Features NBA Play

Big Experiment Works for Bullets

NEW YORK (AP) — It can hardly be called conclusive yet, but so far the Big Experiment is working just fine for the Baltimore Bullets.

Elvin Hayes, acquired by Baltimore in the off-season, poured in 18 points, grabbed 23 rebounds and blocked six shots, leading the Bullets to a 109-90 victory over the Cleveland Cavaliers at the National Basketball Association's arena in the city.

There'll be no changes, and Eddie Johnson will be in the lineup again," Boston Coach Tom Johnson said. "I only hope we play better than we did against Los Angeles."

The Bruins opened defense of the Stanley Cup championship by bowing to the Kings 4-2. Los Angeles had won only two of 14 previous games in Boston.

Although Johnson criticized the performance as "too little from too many," most of the Bruins shook off the loss, determined to bounce back against Detroit.

"There's a long way to go," defenseman John Smith said. "We have 77 games left and a lot can happen."

The Bruins left star defenseman Bobby Orr at home as they flew to Detroit.

Stimac Rewrites Soccer Record Book

Nets Two Goals, 39 For Career

Rain prevented Blaz Stimac from attempting to break Roland Glatz' all-time career scoring record of 37 at Manchester High Saturday. Yesterday, under ideal sunny conditions in Bristol, Stimac, with 8-00 showing in the second stanza, booted in a goal to rewrite the record books with 38 career scores as Manchester blanked Bristol Eastern, 3-0.

The Tribe, presently undefeated in CCIL competition, sports a 7-0 record and will play Windham High at Memorial Field tomorrow at 10:30 and E.O. Smith Saturday at home, beginning at 10:30.

Stimac, the squad leader, also netted his second goal of the afternoon with 19:30 remaining in the second period on a break-away shot. His two-goal effort raised his season collection to 13, six of the record, also held by Glatz. Seven games remain on the Indians' schedule.

Phil Steneman turned in an outstanding game and seems recovered from an early injury. He tallied in the third quarter to account for the third Tribe goal.

Steneman also passed beautifully to Stimac to set-up the latter's first marker.

Manchester Coach Dick Danielson noted, "This is perhaps the best display of team passing I have ever seen from a group of youngsters. The forward line left very much to be desired when it came to finishing.

Blaz Stimac (striped shirt right) registers 38th Career Goal. As Teammate Phil Steneman and Bristol defense look on.

Geyer, Tribe Skeins End at Conard High

Bad luck struck Manchester High's fine cross country team yesterday afternoon in West Hartford as Conard High pinned a 19-38 defeat on them. Conard now sports an impressive 6-1 record while the Tribe has a season mark of 5-2 in CCIL competition.

Conard's Art Sullivan became the first runner this season to defeat the Indians' Jeff Geyer in a CCIL meet. Sullivan covered the 2.5 mile layout in 12:52 while Geyer, second across the line, was timed in 13:11.

Manchester has two remaining cross country meets this season. Tuesday the Tribe visits Maloney High in Meriden and finishes up on Friday, Oct. 24 at home against Penney High.

Results: Sullivan (C) 12:52; Geyer (M); Armini (C); Turley (C); Gills (C); Streeter (C); Lemieux (M); Goldsher (C); Moffat (M); Cratty (M).

At Peace Talks In Paris Reds Stick Publicly To Prior Positions

PARIS (AP) — North Vietnam and the Viet Cong stuck publicly today to their long-standing positions on the Vietnam war after the latest round of secret talks between presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger and Hanoi negotiators.

While not referring specifically to the secret meetings, North Vietnam told the 18th session of the weekly peace talks that the position of the Nixon administration "only prolongs the deadlock of the Paris conference, prolongs the war."

The Viet Cong firmly reiterated its demands for a total U.S. pullout and the ouster of President Nguyen Van Thieu.

U.S. Ambassador William J. Porter devoted his speech to the issue of North Vietnamese forces in South Vietnam.

Porter said North Vietnam and the Viet Cong have been avoiding this problem.

Porter referred to the Sept. 11 declaration of Viet Cong peace proposals. Under this plan, he asked what the specific date for complete withdrawal of North Vietnamese forces, what activities were envisaged for them before withdrawal, what assurances were provided against

Task Force Readies Revenue Checks

WASHINGTON (AP) — While Congress puts the finishing touches on a revenue-sharing bill, a Nixon administration task force hopes to get the program off to a speedy start by mailing $9,000 checks totaling $2.6 billion by the end of the month.

The task force, made up of 15 officials borrowed from several agencies, has been on the job since early summer, trying to smooth out details of the $90 billion, five-year plan to aid states, cities and counties.

Asked why the government is pushing to get the checks to local governments about a week before the Nov. 7 presidential election, Deputy Treasury Secretary Charles E. Walker said, "They need the money. Haven't you heard?"

Walker noted that the administration proposed its revenue-sharing legislation three years ago. If the bill passes this week as expected, he said, "Why keep it (the money) here? A compromise version approved by House and Senate conferees is awaiting a final vote by both chambers."

The first checks will cover the period from January through June of this year since the bill makes revenue-sharing retroactive to last Jan. 1. The second checks are expected to be mailed next Jan. 1.

Although there have been several examples of errors and obsolete information fed into government computers, the task force says it now has fairly ac-

Property Acquired For Parking

Sale of the property at 21-23 Bisset St. to the Manchester Publishing Co., publishers of The Herald, was announced today.

The property, a two-family dwelling, was purchased from the estate of Emily K. Krause. The price wasn't disclosed.

Burl L. Lyons, Herald publisher, said the dwelling will be cleared from the property and put into additional parking for both customers and Herald employees.

Lyons said that Hunter Construction, prime contractor for The Herald's new addition, will begin clearing work for the additional parking area the end of this month.

"The purchase of the property indicates our continuing faith in the future of Manchester," commented Lyons.

Meanwhile, the Herald's new addition is nearing completion.

"We are now in the finishing stage, yet the delay in the arrival of some office equipment may delay our move into the new facility until early November," said Lyons.

Chilean Unrest Spreads

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — A nationwide trucking strike for higher rates generated widespread unrest in Chile today and threatened to touch off a rash of sympathy walkouts.

A U.S. Navy task force canceled a visit to Valparaiso, Chile's second largest city, for fear its presence would spark anti-American incidents in the charged atmosphere.

The leftist government declared a state of emergency in the southern provinces of Curico and Talca and arrested 160 truck owners and drivers, including the head of the National Federation of Truck Drivers.

One driver was reported killed in gunfire between drivers 60 miles south of Santiago.

Legislation would be required to establish a permanent revenue-sharing office. Walker said the head of such an office also would be a spokesman for the program, which is important because of a pending proposal to convert present grant-in-aid programs into revenue-sharing.

On Wednesday, the House passed and sent to the Senate a $4-million appropriation for administrative expenses of the revenue-sharing program.

Part of a catchall money bill, the provision drew some criticism on the ground that agencies have spent money for a program not yet finally approved by Congress.

Two Share Nobel Prize

STOCKHOLM (AP) — The 1972 Nobel Prize for physiology or medicine was awarded jointly today to Gerald Maurice Edelman of the Rockefeller University in New York and Rodney Porter of the University of Oxford, England, for their discoveries concerning the chemical structure of antibodies.

The prize this year is worth $88,100.

Antibodies is the collective name of a group of blood proteins that play an important part in the defense against infections and in the development of several different diseases.

Largely unknown until 1959, their nature was explained by the work of Edelman and Porter who, according to the Royal Caroline Institute, "laid a firm foundation for truly rational research" in immunology.

Manchester CRC Told People, Not Structure, Key To Good Government

By SOL R. COHEN
(Herald Reporter)

To Charles F. Sharpe, who is recognized nationally as an expert in the field of public administration, "it is the quality, capability and efficiency of the men elected to the town council which determine how good or bad a municipality's government is, and not the type of government it has. The only function of government is to serve, and a municipality must determine how best to give it. The structure of the government is not the determining factor. The type of man elected or appointed to make it work is."

Sharpe, 24 years a city manager and now a visiting professor in public administration at the University of Hartford, spoke to the Manchester Charter Commission (CRC) last night. His subject was "Comparisons between the Council Manager and Strong-Mayor Form of Government."

The CRC is devoting four consecutive weekly meetings to the subject. A change to the strong-mayor form of government has been recommended by the executive board of the Manchester Property Owners' Association.

Sharpe was city manager in St. Petersburg, Fla. for 4 years, in Hartford for 15 years, and in Kansas City, Mo. for 5 years. For a time, he was executive secretary of the U.S. Conference of Mayors.

"The council-manager form of government," explained Sharpe, "provides greater stability and continuity, with the manager being responsible to the town council as a whole which appoints him."

"The strong-mayor form of government provides for greater participation by the people and makes the mayor responsible to them as a political person."

He was quick to add, "There is no more responsiveness to the people under the strong-mayor government than under the council-manager government. Responsiveness must be judged by the degree of ability and expertise a public official has. Just to say he is responsive to the people because he is a political person and was elected by them is not enough."

Again and again Sharpe repeated the same theme, "Basically, the results of government depend on the quality of people running it. The essential power depends almost always on the strength of the town council. It determines policy. It determines how the government will function."

He explained, "It is not necessarily true that a man elected under a strong-mayor form of government is a strong man. Yet, a man named mayor under a council-manager form of government could well be a strong man. A leader. A qualified council usually works well with a qualified mayor. Such a qualified council and qualified leader usually pick a qualified manager — one who is careful not to get involved in politics."

Although Sharpe said he was only comparing the two forms of government and not backing one over the other, his remarks tended to favor the council-manager government.

Proxmire Reveals Threats To His Life During Lockheed Loan Debate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. William Proxmire says he was threatened with assassination during debate on the controversial Lockheed loan guarantee and charged the route of his morning jog to work to avoid "an easy sniper pickoff."

Proxmire, the Senate's most famous jogger, made the disclosure in a new book in which he criticized alleged military and domestic federal waste and called for an end to most secret hearings in Congress and the executive branch.

The Wisconsin Democrat had opposed the Nixon administration's ultimately successful bill to provide a $250 million loan guarantee to the Lockheed Aircraft Corp., the nation's largest defense contractor.

In his book, entitled "Uncle Sam, Last of the Bigtime Spenders," Proxmire said threats to his life ultimately proved groundless but were taken seriously at the time because of the heat aroused by congressional debates.

He gives this account:

"There were even threats on my life and that of my family. Durban, a brave and courageous Lockheed employee who had backed the company's wasteful practices."

"We got the FBI to protect Durban around the clock and I had the FBI and the Justice Service check out in detail the threats I received."

"One of them, a threat to come to Washington to kill me, was made by a Lockheed employe in Georgia before a group of his coworkers."

"When he was interviewed he claimed he said it in jest, but several of those who heard it reported to me and to the authorities precisely because they thought the man meant it. In the end no harm came to us."

In the book, Proxmire called for far ranging changes in methods of federal financing, taxation and military and domestic procurement.

He also urged an end to secrecy in the budget-writing process of the federal government.

He recommended that long before final decisions are made on the budget, public hearings be held on budget programs on an agency-by-agency, department-by-department basis before presidential approval.

Proxmire said almost every congressional hearing should be open to the public and press except when "matters of the most secret national security issues are involved."

Secret hearings give enormous advantage to the White House which can order controversial segments "sanitized" before public release, he said.

"The executive branch therefore gets vast publicity for its requests while critical congressional questioning goes entirely unreported," he said.

Three Union Officials Face Federal Charges

HARTFORD (AP) — Elwood L. "Sonny" Metz Jr., proclaiming his innocence of embezzling charges returned by a grand jury, says he will ask for a vote of acquittal from members of the construction workers' union here.

Metz, 44, said the allegations about his use of union funds stemmed from complaints by his former wife, Mrs. Ann Metz.

The two were divorced about two and one-half years ago.

The 11-count indictment charged Metz with nine counts of embezzling a total of $6,148.94 in union funds and two counts of making false entries in union records.

Metz, who leads the conservative construction workers bloc in the State Labor Council, AFL-CIO, is also chairman of the Connecticut-Labor for Nixon Committee.

The federal grand jury's separate indictments against Metz and two other union officials were the result of an investigation by a Federal Strike Force on Organized Crime.

Metz said he would hold a meeting in Hamden Friday night to organize a convention of U.S.-Canadian-European representatives who would try to draft an Atlantic-federal-union goal and set a timetable for achieving it.

Metz invited the press to attend the Friday meeting, at which he said he would explain his side of the charges to union members and ask them to vote whether they wanted him to continue as business manager.

He said the indictment was "very unjust." Neither Delaney nor Caruso could be reached for comment.

Caruso, 52, of Greenwich and Joseph J. Delaney, 36, of Norwich.
