Cease-Fire Preparations Indicated Embassy Reports Peace Progress

SAIGON (AP) — Henry A. Kissinger left Saigon for Washington today after the most intensive peace talks of the Indochina war, and the U.S. Embassy said progress had been made toward a settlement. But it indicated that the U.S. and South Vietnamese government still differ on some points.

"We have made progress," said an embassy statement. "Talks will continue between us and the government of Vietnam. It is not in the interest of negotiations to be more specific at this time."

Meanwhile, the South Vietnamese government was reported preparing for the eventuality of a cease-fire.

President Nixon's chief foreign policy adviser flew home to report to Nixon after six meetings with President Nguyen Van Thieu. Asked at the airport if his visit had been productive, Kissinger replied, "It always is when I'm here."

A Saigon newspaper controlled by the presidential palace said the general impression was that the negotiations between Thieu and Kissinger had been conducted in a "very heated atmosphere in the face of the unyielding determination to stand pat on its position."

The paper, Tin Song, added that the South Vietnamese "rejected all temporary peace formulas because any prefabricated peace solution is bound to fail to bring about a lasting peace for the Indochinese peoples."

The spokesman for the North Vietnamese delegation to the Paris peace talks told newsmen today that "the Vietnam problem is still not settled; the war happens to be prolonged and intensified."

He added that the North Vietnamese "position is correct, logical and reasonable," and asked: "Does the Nixon administration really want serious

'Evacuation' Air Alerts Canceled

WASHINGTON (AP) — Alerts of air transport units at various Air Force bases around the country have been cancelled and the Pentagon is trying to dampen speculation the alerts were connected with a possible evacuation of U.S. prisoners from North Vietnam.

"The Department of Defense knows of no imminent release of prisoners of war and we have taken no unusual action in this connection," said a Pentagon spokesman Sunday.

Alerts were reported Saturday by sources at McGuire AFB in New Jersey, Travis AFB in California, Dover AFB in Delaware, McChord AFB near Tacoma, Wash., and Charleston AFB in South Carolina.

negotiations or does it still engage in maneuvers aimed at deceiving public opinion?"

Three hours after Kissinger left, the U.S. Army Chief of Staff, Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, left for Washington. He had spent six days in Saigon assessing the military situation and the Vietnamization program, and he sat in on some of Kissinger's meetings with Thieu.

Although Newsweek and Time magazines reported that the United States and North Vietnam have agreed to a settlement that would include a cease-fire, there was no confirmation from either U.S. or South Vietnamese officials in Saigon.

South Vietnamese sources said, however, that Thieu had issued orders that junior military officers — lieutenants and captains — should prepare to take over the functions of civilian village chiefs in the event of a cease-fire.

This was intended to insure that the Saigon government had a firm hold on the population and the government machinery should a settlement come, the sources said.

For the past two months, government workers have been painting South Vietnamese flags on the doors, walls and gates of homes and other buildings all over the country. The flags, which first began appearing more than a year ago, have often been described as a show allegiance in the event of a cease-fire.

Informants said that during the past two weeks, government troops have captured at least two caches of Viet Cong flags during operations near Saigon and on the northern coast.

The Thieu government has been preparing contingency plans for a cease-fire for several months, aimed at strengthening and maintaining security and control over the local population.

Uprising Put Down

MANILA (AP) — Philippine troops put down a weekend uprising on the southern island of Mindanao and President Ferdinand E. Marcos vowed the government will deal severely with the rebels. He called them "Maoist Moslems."

Insurgency is punishable by death, either by firing squad or in the electric chair, under martial law declared by Marcos five weeks ago to stave off what he called a Communist threat to overthrow his government.

The Department of Public Information, announcing Marcos' declaration, said about 400 armed and well-organized rebels seized Marawi, about 500 miles south of Manila and killed at least nine enlisted men in 36 hours of fighting Saturday and Sunday.

Guerrillas Seize Arms

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — A platoon of guerrillas stormed a British military armory in Lurgan at dawn today and seized more than 100 sub-machine guns and automatic rifles.

The 14-man raiding squad piled 83 automatic rifles and 21 sub-machine guns with 1,300 rounds of ammunition into an army truck and escaped without firing a shot.

But the army reported after a massive security dragnet it had recovered 61 rifles, eight sub-machine guns and most of the ammunition hidden on the golf course at Portadown, a predominantly Protestant industrial town 30 miles south of Belfast. A patrol found the army truck abandoned.

Six Missing In Wake Of Hurricane Bebe

SUVA, Fiji (AP) — Six people were reported missing today after Hurricane Bebe swept Funafuti Atoll in the British Gilbert and Ellice Islands.

The crew of a New Zealand Air Force plane who surveyed the area, said Funafuti was "a scene of desolation." The interisland ship Moanararo, which was anchored in Funafuti Lagoon, reported that a tidal wave swept over low-lying islets. Six people were missing and 90 per cent of the buildings were destroyed.

Funafuti is the administrative center for the Gilbert and Ellice Islands. Damage to other islands was reported slight.

Manchester Monuments To Past Wars

Today is Veterans Day when the nation pauses to pay respect to the men and women who have served, and are serving, the nation in uniform. This montage by The Herald's Bucevicius depicts monuments in Manchester to veterans of

State's Construction Laborers Go On Strike

HARTFORD (AP) — Pickets marched at the entrances to Connecticut construction sites this morning, but the extent of the strike was not immediately known.

Albert Guarino, president of Connecticut Laborers District Council and business manager of Local Union 390 in Waterbury, said "about 12,000 construction workers throughout the state" were striking.

"At this point," he said, "it's too early to predict how long the strike will last."

Shortly after the walk-out began at 7 a.m., Frank White, executive vice president of the Connecticut Association of General Contractors (AGC), said, "We're trying desperately to find out how widespread this thing is."

White said Guarino's estimate of 12,000 workers on strike "could very well be right."

One city not affected was Bridgeport where laborers have a separate contract.

The strike was called Friday by Arthur E. Coia, a vice president of the Laborers International Union, after talks with contractors broke down in Washington.

Guarino said the strike will not affect independent contractors, those who don't belong to AGC or an association of road builders, who have reached an agreement with the union. One union official estimated Sunday night that about 200 contractors will escape the strike because they have signed agreements. Even though today is Veterans Day, workers were scheduled at most construction sites in the state, according to White.

White said the contractors had received no notification from the union of a strike.

"We have been told several times in the past few months there would be a strike on the following Monday, but none has materialized," White said Sunday night. "What will happen Monday is anybody's guess."

The union and the contractors are stalemated over the issue of a dues checkoff system.

"It has been our consistent position that we would not agree to an hourly checkoff," said White, adding that the sole result of the checkoff would be to strengthen the union.

Under the dues checkoff, contractors would deduct 10 cents an hour from the pay of all working union members. The money would go into a fund that would pay the regular monthly union dues for unemployed members. It would be in addition to regular dues checkoff.

The checkoff was recommended by the Laborers' Craft Board, which reviews the construction industry contracts to keep them in line with federal wage guidelines. The contractors maintain the craft board has no jurisdiction over dues checkoff.

White said that in the event of a strike, the contractors would go to court filing several actions against the union.

"We have a contract in effect that contains a no-strike clause," he said.

A three-year contract union between is due to expire next March, and it does not provide for the checkoff.

In addition to recommending the dues checkoff the craft board reduced the laborers' wage increase for the last year of the contract from $1.80 an hour to 75 cents an hour, retroactive to April 1 of this year.

Presidential Campaign Now In Final Two Weeks

By R.GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer

With the election just two weeks and a day away, President Nixon today started the biggest week so far of his re-election drive. He will campaign in New York, Kentucky and Ohio.

Meanwhile, Sen. George McGovern said it would be ironic if a pre-election settlement of the Vietnam war hurt his chances of beating Nixon, although he would "rejoice along with all other Americans" over an end to the war.

The editor of the Republican party newsletter "Monday" acknowledged that he helped other Democrats try to defeat

Sen. Edmund M. Muskie, D-Maine, during the presidential primary in New Hampshire. It was a "justifiable campaign tactic," added John D. Lofton, Jr.

Both Vice President Spiro T. Agnew and his Democratic opponent, Sargent Shriver, were campaigning today. Agnew planned to be in Missouri, Idaho and Utah, while Shriver had stops in Ohio and Illinois.

President Nixon headed for the New York City suburbs. His schedule included a motorcade through Westchester County, a reception at the Tarrytown home of Gov. Nelson Rockefeller and rallies at Uniondale and Islip on Long Island.

Hijackers Extend Deadline

ANKARA (AP) — The Turkish government again rejected the demands of four young Turks holding 66 other Turks hostage aboard a hijacked airliner in Sofia, Bulgaria, today, and the hijackers extended their deadline.

The hijackers said they would blow up the Turkish airline's Boeing 707 with all aboard unless the Turkish government freed 13 imprisoned leftists, including one sentenced to death. They first set a deadline of noon — 6 a.m. EDT — but then extended it to 7:30 p.m.

They also demanded certain changes in Turkey and removal of "antidemocratic" articles from the Turkish constitution.

BTA, the Bulgarian news agency, said the hijackers wanted political asylum in Bulgaria for themselves and the 13 prisoners whose freedom they demanded.

The Turkish cabinet, after a 12-hour meeting Sunday, rejected their demand for release of the prisoners. But the cabinet was reported to have no objection to Bulgaria giving the hijackers asylum.

The hijackers also demanded repeal of a ban on strikes, improvement in the lives of the peasants and better conditions in the universities.

"In the end, we believe humane feelings will prevail and the air pirates will turn loose passengers and crew," a government spokesman said.

The hijacking occurred early Sunday on a flight from Istanbul to Ankara. The pilot and a passenger were slightly wounded by gunfire during the flight.

The four-engine jet landed safely at Sofia during a snowstorm.

Veterans Day Marked With Formal Rites

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Observances slated to mark Veterans Day across the nation today included parades, memorial services and traditional ceremonies at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington National Cemetery outside Washington.

Hosting the national commemorative rites, with the focus on placing of the Presidential wreath at the tomb, was the Medal of Honor Society, composed of 290 holders of the country's highest military decoration for valor.

Veterans Day, previously observed Nov. 11, was originally created as Armistice Day to celebrate the end of the First World War, then renamed after World War II to honor all American soldiers. The date was shifted this year as a result of Congressional action rearranging holidays to provide more three-day weekends.

Many private businesses remained open as usual, while federal offices along with many banks, municipal and state offices and some schools were closed.

In a rare campaign trip, President Nixon toured Westchester, Suffolk and Nassau counties in the New York metropolitan area. The Democratic presidential contender, Sen. George McGovern, made a campaign visit to Philadelphia.

Also in Philadelphia, some of the nation's first war veterans — more than 1,000 Revolutionary War dead — were honored in ceremonies at the city's Washington Square.

The American Legion sponsored its traditional parade down Fifth Avenue in New York City, but an anti-war group, the American Servicemen's Union, said it would demonstrate against what it termed the Legion's "pro-war" memorial service at the Eternal Light in Madison Square Park.

Some St. Louis area veterans said they opposed changing the date for Veterans Day from Nov. 11 and thus were ignoring today's official holiday.

"There's no significance to it," said Joseph L. Gaal, 11th District American Legion commander. "It means nothing to us." Gaal said his legionnaire group instead has scheduled a memorial service and dinner for Nov. 11.

Quarterly Profits Increase

NEW YORK (AP) — Boosted by strong economic growth, the third quarter profits of 74 U.S. corporations were ahead an average of 20 per cent over levels last year, New York's First National City Bank reports.

The bank said Sunday that a survey of the corporations showed total profits of $4.5 billion and indicated that the percentage showing gains over the second quarter was among the highest in 10 years.

Profit levels last year were cut by the early stages of the price freeze, the bank said.

"In general, earnings are benefiting from the improvement in profit margins which accompanies most economic expansions," the bank said. "So far, price controls and profit margin ceilings have affected individual firms but appear to have had only limited impact on the earnings of industry generally."

Hope Fades For Crash Survivors

ATHENS (AP) — There was little hope of finding any more survivors of the Olympic Airways plane which crashed into the sea Saturday night near Athens with 53 persons aboard, officials said today.

Seventeen persons, including at least two foreigners, swam the 500 yards to safety after the plane crashed during a rain storm as it prepared to land on a flight from the island of Corfu.

Two Americans, Caroline Cagle and Helen Grounwell, were listed among the passengers. Greek police said they were among the survivors.

Opening lead—Four of Spades Today's players know enough to double. West had already shown his spade support and could afford to double to show defensive strength.

West opened the four of spades, and East won with the king. East cashed the king of clubs and then led a trump. West took the ace of trumps and cashed the two clubs. This gave East the chance to discard his diamonds. West threw up lead by this time. South was down four tricks. The penalty, less honors, came to an even 1,000 points—far more than the value of any game East might have made.

Early Jump Sifter South could have had the best of it if he had jumped to 3NT with hearts at his first turn. West could hardly double without ever showing his spade support. So he would raise to four spades. South would be out of trouble.

If North happened to hold long hearts and short clubs, he would bid five hearts. Hence South would have his chance for a good sacrifice without taking much risk.

The "sacrifice" of 1,000 points was a total loss because East would have made four spades. South would lead the king of hearts, and North would ruff out dummy's ace of hearts. North would then take two diamonds, and East would eventually have to give up another heart trick.

As dealer, you hold: Spades, 10-9-7-4; Hearts, 4-4-4-2; Diamonds, 9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2; Clubs, A-K-Q-J. What do you say?

Answer: Pass. In the old days you would open with 2NT quick tricks, but that hand is not so robust enough for an opening bid.

"THE WAY I HEARD IT" by John Gruber

Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops Orchestra will be at the Bushnell on the evening of Oct. 21, which is a week from tomorrow night. Featured on the program is the Tchaikovsky Piano Concerto No. 1, which everybody knows. It will be played by Earl Wild, who does a fine job of it.

Of course Van Cliburn is famous for his performance of the work, but I prefer Mr. Wild's performance. He can do the first and last movements as well as Mr. Cliburn and he plays the middle movement better. In point of actual fact I am not too fond of the work anyway, having heard it too many times.

It's appropriate that this piece be played by a Boston orchestra since it was actually given its first performance in that city in 1875, even though it was composed by a man who was born in Russia and did not live in Boston until he was 17.

However he has conducted the Pops concerts longer than anybody else, starting in 1930, so it is little wonder that few people know anyone else at the helm of these concerts. I can only recall two of his predecessors. One was Agathe Jaschik, who conducted the Pops concerts from 1918 through 1928.

He was very popular and really established the Pops concerts as we know them today. My recollection is that his programs were a little higher class than Fiedler's; there were no show tunes, and novelties were likely to be something like "In a Clock Store" by John Orth, a Boston composer of no very great attainments.

Jaschik was followed by Alfredo Casella, a really good composer and a first rate conductor, as well as a mighty conductor. However, his Italianate taste in music failed to please the Boston populace and audience fell off. He lasted through 1929.

That summer Fiedler established the Boston Symphony in Boston, outdoor affairs on the banks of the Charles River. There were so phenomenally successful that the students didn't like his petty ironies for a darn. Maybe some of them are now on the Board of Directors for the BSO, who know?

In any event, he's an institution in his own right and if you want to be well entertained be at the Bushnell a week from tomorrow night.

Fiedler was born in Boston in 1894 and studied violin under his father, Emanuel Fiedler, a violinist in the Boston Symphony. There were some other Fiedlers also connected with the orchestra, Benny Fiedler, who was a cut-up and Max Fiedler, who conducted the orchestra from 1909-1912.

When Arthur got through high school in Boston, he went to Germany to study under Willy Hess and returned to the U.S. in 1914 when he joined the BSO as a violinist. I don't know where he studied piano, but he was a thoroughly competent pianist as well, and doubled on the celeste for the orchestra when that instrument was needed.

He was a competent conductor, too, but over the years he has become rather routine. After all, he plays much the same stuff year after year. But the public still loves him. Nevertheless, he definitely is not as inspired or as careful as he once was. Recently I happened to hear his rather late release of Dvorak's "Carnival" Overture, and I compared it with an early one by him on a 78. The old one is definitely better, although even it shows some "playing to the gallery" that was not his style in 1930 when he first took over.

Mr. Fiedler is what I would call a commercial success rather than an artistic one. Still you have to give him credit. He took over the reins in the Depression when in point of actual fact he had no career spending, and he made a success with a large orchestra, keeping about 80 men employed after the regular BSO season.

ASSISTANT COUNSEL Marshall G. Taylor of Mohagan Trail, Bolton, has joined the legal staff of Connecticut Mutual-Life as an assistant counsel. He is Bolton's town counsel.

Prignano will join CBT about Nov. 1. He comes to CBT from First Hartford Corporation, where he has been attorney and assistant secretary of the company and its subsidiaries.

Prignano is a graduate of St. John's University, Brooklyn, N.Y., and its law school. He serves as deputy mayor for the town of Manchester and is a member of the town's board of directors. He is also a member of the Hartford County Bar Association.

INCOME RISES CBT Corporation, the holding company whose major subsidiary is The Connecticut Bank and Trust Co., reports that its total operating income for the first nine months of 1972 amounted to $64,437,732, compared to $59,684,224 for the same period in 1971.

INCOME BEFORE securities gains and losses for the nine-month period ended Sept. 30, 1972, was $7,089,864 or $1.85 per share, compared with $7,864,384 or $4.19 per share in 1971, for a decline of $1.15 per share. The decline was attributed to a substantial increase in expenses during 1972, including occupancy costs in the company's new Operations Center and added staff.

Hebron Campground Rules Subject of Hearing

Campground regulations will be the subject of tomorrow evening's hearing scheduled by the Planning and Zoning Commission for 8 at the Town Office Building.

The commission has received requests from two residents for campgrounds, and since no regulations presently exist, they have drawn up a list of regulations pertaining to the operation of a public recreational campground in a residential zone.

After the hearing, the commission will hold its regular meeting. On the agenda for this meeting will be discussion on a letter received from the town of Colchester concerning zone changes within 500 feet of the town line and an inquiry to the state concerning assistance from the Department of Community Affairs on town planning.

The PZC will also consider preliminary plans for the following subdivisions: Fox subdivision on Baskethop Rd., Midstate Construction sub-division on Baskethop Rd., Sylvester subdivision on the Ellenberg property, Gledhill subdivision on West St. and the C&S subdivision on North St.

Coventry Council Continues Study of Sewers

The Town Council will hold another in its series of work sessions on matters relating to the December 12 sewer referendum, tonight at the town hall at 7:30.

As part of its self-education campaign on sewer-related issues, the council will meet with the Executive Development Commission and representatives of other towns in the area that have sewer systems.

In November and December, the council will be holding a number of public meetings in preparation for the sewer referendum, in order to educate the public as to just what it will be voting for on Dec. 12.

The town is under a state-issued pollution abatement order, and the sewer referendum will give voters and opportunity to approve or disapprove a bonding program for a sewer system that would serve parts of the lake and village area.

Heralding Politics

By Sol R. Cohen

State Comptroller Nathan Agostinelli of Manchester was one of the invited guests today at a reception given by President and Mrs. Richard Nixon. The reception was at the home of New York Gov. and Mrs. Nelson Rockefeller, in Pleasant Hills, near Dartmouth, N.Y.

Agostinelli is Connecticut chairman of the Committee to Re-elect the President. The reception was limited to top GOP campaign personnel.

Richard Rittenband, GOP candidate for First District congressman, has received a personal "Dear Dick" letter from President Nixon, endorsing him for election.

"America needs your dedicated leadership in the next Congress," wrote the president. "I look forward to working with you in making the next four years among the best in American history."

House Minority Leader Gerald Ford has assured Rittenband that, if elected, he will do everything he can to secure for him a seat on the House Armed Services Committee.

Rittenband, incidentally, writes all his own speeches and reviews all news releases by his office.

U.S. Sen. Abraham Ribicoff will speak at Manchester Community College tomorrow on behalf of Democratic presidential hopeful George McGovern. His address, at 2:30 p.m. in the Bidwell St. campus auditorium, is under the auspices of the Manchester Community College Cultural Program Committee.

The Connecticut Committee to Re-elect the President will sponsor a top-echelon Republican soon, to speak at MCC on behalf of President Nixon.

The Manchester Committee to Elect George McGovern has chosen Dr. Walter Scharf and Irene LaMay as its co-chairmen. Dr. Scharf was a state delegate to the Democratic National Convention and is a member of the Manchester Board of Education. Mrs. LaMay is chairman of the Manchester Democratic registration drive. Both are members of the Democratic Town Committee.

Named chairman of Manchester Youth for McGovern was Robert Tariff, president of Manchester Youth Dems and assistant Democratic registrar of voters. Named publicity chairman for the McGovern Committee was Russell Tall, also an assistant Democratic registrar.

Manchester Democrats are holding their annual fund-raising event Saturday, at the Elks Home on Bissell St. It will be a Dinner Buffet and Dance, with dinner at 8:30 and dancing from 9 on.

Janice L. Bonham, a 1969 graduate of Manchester High School, is the Montana state press officer for the McGovern-Shriver campaign. She has taken a leave of absence from the University of Missouri, where she is a senior.

Miss Bonham is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold E. Bonham of St. James Missouri, formerly of 85 Annot Rd., Manchester.

Chester Bowles, former

Democratic opponent, incumbent State Sen. Harry Burke, has not been a representative of the people and that "the voters in his present district do not know what he is representing or how he is voted." He pledged, "The people will be aware of these things if I am elected."

The Democratic Club of Manchester was addressed by four Democratic candidates for the state legislature and one for judge of probate last week.

Cle Decker, running for state representative in the 14th District, assailed Gov. Thomas Meskell's record number of vetoes and said only a Democratic state legislature could overcome the frustration of those vetoes.

William Bronelli, candidate in the 12th Assembly District, called for reform of the state tax structure. He said he would vote against any graduated state income tax if elected, on the basis that "the time is not right and the people of the district are against it."

Mrs. Flanagan proposed that one third of the profits from the state lottery be set aside for positive programs for rehabilitating drug addicts and alcoholics.

Mrs. Yacovone pledged she will always be available to listen to her constituents "during and after the campaign." She said she is well-acquainted with Manchester retail establishments, because she does her shopping here.

William FitzGerald, candidate for judge of probate, proposed that the judge of probate be appointed, rather than elected as now. He proposed also that court services and salaries should be paid out of general taxes and not on a fee basis since, under the present system, estates are not taxed fairly.

Coordinators of the event are Carol Kuehl, Manchester; Joan DiGiacomo, South Windsor; Mike Brown, Glastonbury; and Don McGee, East Hartford. State officials and GOP dignitaries from the four towns are expected to attend. In addition to refreshments, there will be music and entertainment.

Estelle Flanagan, Democratic candidate for state senator in the 4th District, told senior citizens in South Windsor and East Windsor last week. "It is people like you, whose experience and wisdom are among the greatest assets in any community, who must be involved in all aspects of planning and decision-making within your communities. People of all ages, and not politicians, make the difference. People, not politics, will determine the quality of life in our state and nation."

Arthur Shattuck, Republican candidate in the 3rd Senatorial District, said in Manchester last week, "I have been told that Manchester has been badly divided by reapportionment. I think you should look at it another way — this year Manchester can have two Republican state senators."

Introducing the 1973 Beetle:

Re-introducing the 1972 price:

With the price of our new Beetle still under $2,000,* the Volkswagen Beetle is a bigger buy than ever before.

More worry-free, for instance, than you get with any other small car. Twice more. 24 months or 24,000 miles.

More attention to specific details than ever (and that's quite a lot). More than 1,000 inspectors meticulously scrutinizing more than 5,000 parts. Some two or three times. For us, it's not enough to get it right, we want it perfect.

Volkswagen also has the most advanced automotive service system in the world. A brand new computer is, or soon will be, waiting in our service area. We simply plug it into your VW, and it checks, via sensors and probes, vital service parts and spells out the results in plain English. That's service.

Maybe all of this explains why VW owners have gotten more resale dollars after three or four years than the owners of any other comparable car.

Obviously, it's not only the price of the '73 Beetle that reminds you of the good old days. It's also the quality.

Few things in life work as well as a Volkswagen.

*1973 Volkswagen Sedan. Suggested retail price, P.D.T. (local taxes and other dealer charges, if any, additional). All on owner maintains and services his vehicle in accordance with the Volkswagen maintenance schedule any factory port found to be defective on material or workmanship within 24 months or 24,000 miles, whichever comes first (except normal wear and tear and service items will be repaired or replaced by any U.S. or Canadian Volkswagen Dealer. And this will be done free of charge. See your dealer for details.) Source: 1969 manufacturers' suggested retail prices and 1972 average used car retail prices as quoted in NADA Official Used Car Guide, Eastern Ed., June, 1972.

Latin America Drug Link

By ROBERT D. OHMAN Associated Press Writer

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — By private planes, commercial jets, cargo ships and hijackers' ruckus a stream of heroin and cocaine is flowing through Latin America into the United States.

By one estimate $5-40 per cent of all the heroin entering the United States comes this way. And Latin America produces 90 per cent of the world's supply of cocaine.

Greater Buenos Aires, a sprawling area with eight million inhabitants, is the major transshipment area for heroin heading north, according to Danilo Adario, regional director for South America of the U.S. Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs.

The heroin brought in from Europe is not for the local market, because use of hard drugs is not common in Argentina.

Two recent heroin seizures, successfully the largest ever in South America, pinpointed Buenos Aires as a key point in the smuggling network.

Argentine federal police, working with information from Interpol and U.S. agents, confiscated kilograms of heroin from a Buenos Aires apartment in late August.

On Oct. 4, police searching the holds of a U.S. cargo ship found 60 kilos of heroin hidden in sheepskins loaded in Buenos Aires. A kilo is 2.2 pounds.

The two lots, out and recut once they reached the United States, could have been worth $106 million, Adario said.

According to estimates used by U.S. officials, the 106 kilos seized would be enough to supply 2,100,000 heroin addicts for a day.

Pursuit of the drugs and dealers ranged from Orly Field in Paris to an Argentine hunting lodge and the U.S. freighter.

Jailed here were 41 men and women including two Frenchmen smugglers headed for the United States.

The people involved live here in Buenos Aires, he said. "They are purchasers and shippers. They have facilities to order the stuff from Europe, rework it here and determine how to send it to the U.S. market."

A Frenchman, Francisco Chiappe, 52, who has lived here a number of years, was identified by authorities as leader of one of the smuggling gangs. When police arrested him at a hunting lodge he also contacted expensive paintings and jewels.

Chiappe was "the top guy" in the ring that brought in the 46 kilos, Adario said. "He knew the people at the other end."

A mechanic at the Paris airport had hidden the 46 kilos behind the panning of a jetliner. On the plane's arrival here an Argentine mechanic removed the dope and gave it to an employee of an airport food catering firm who smuggled it out of the airport.

It was being repacked, apparently to be placed on another jet heading for New York or Miami, when police raided the apartment in Belgrano where it was hidden. Thirty-two persons, subsequently were arrested.

The 60 kilos had been flown from Paris to Madrid to Buenos Aires as Spanish saffron. It was repacked here into five bags and sent to a port warehouse where the bags were placed in bundles for delivery.

Commission Favors Uniform Tax Assessment System

HARTFORD (AP) — The chairman of Gov. Thomas J. Meskell's Tax Reform Commission indicated Friday the panel will recommend a uniform property assessment system rather than massive state relief for local property tax payers.

"Assessment reform is our basic answer to the challenges and statements of inequity with respect to the property tax," said

Francis E. Baker Jr. in a speech before the Chamber of Commerce executives.

Baker said the commission is definitely not going to do what New Jersey Gov. William Cahill tried—and failed—to do: That is, to recommend a state income tax coupled with a sharp cut in local property taxes.

Cahill's sweeping tax reform program was aimed not only at boosting state revenues, but at revamping the system of financing local public schools—a system which had been declared unconstitutional by the courts. Connecticut's school-financing system, based largely on local property taxes, is also unfair, Baker said, but it does not need a state income tax to equalize it.

What's wrong with Connecticut's system is that "persons prove as rapidly, if they can improve at all," he said.

Baker said his commission is examining an alternative to full state funding of public education—a plan which would require the creation of a "statewide equalization fund" to which wealthier towns would pay in and from which poorer communities would draw out money. The commission is proceeding on the assumption that state spending will increase at a slower rate in the future than the 10 to 13 per cent annual increases of recent years, Baker said. In fact, the commission is counting on annual increases of less than 10 per cent, he said.

Connecticut taxpayers are not as heavily taxed by their state and municipal governments as residents of most states.

Veterans Day

Does Veterans Day really serve any useful purpose? Surely, the veteran needs no reminder of his service to this nation, particularly those who still pack the scars of wounds suffered in battle.

Surely, the families of veterans need no reminder of the separations brought about by distant outposts now being manned throughout the world by American servicemen.

Surely, the next of kin, need no reminder that a loved one served and gave that "last full measure of devotion."

Who then is Veterans Day for?

While traditionally, it is the veteran through his various organizations who observes the day, the real meaning of Veterans Day is its recalling to each of us, veteran or non-veteran, of this less than perfect world in which we live that still extracts from each generation some of the blood of its young.

It is a reminder too, that wars and threat of wars, still involve all of us matter how strong our personal morality rejects war. War in itself is an atrocity yet for a nation to allow itself to become defenseless would be an even greater atrocity.

And finally Veterans Day should remind us that while no tribute may be too high for those who have served, we should pause and reflect on those who are now serving and, regrettable but true, will be asked to serve in the future.

These men and women, many choosing the Armed Services under the all-volunteer concept, are deserving of our respect and admiration just as much as the draftee. The fact they are serving by choice makes the eventual abolishment of Selective Service possible. For this we should be grateful especially on Veterans Day.

Veterans Day does have a purpose than for each of us, each in our own way, to do whatever we can to raise man's humanity toward that time and day when the word "veteran" will no longer have a military connotation.

Open Forum Judge Wallert Endorses Ron Jacobs

To the editor:

Twenty-four years ago the voters of Manchester elected me as judge of probate. It is with mixed feelings that I will soon leave this office inasmuch as the probate court has been my life for nearly 45 years. Through your forum, I want to thank the people of Manchester for the privilege of serving as their probate judge. It has been a satisfying and fulfilling experience and an honor to have served as judge of probate for the District of Manchester.

Nov. 7 the voters of Manchester will select a man to succeed me as judge of probate. The functions of the probate judgeship call, sooner or later, for an intimate relationship with every family in Manchester. It calls for a combination of legal ability with a heart and human understanding, a willingness to be generous of time, interest and expense beyond the routine fee fixed by law.

Manchester, in my opinion, is fortunate indeed to have as a candidate for this office a man of excellent qualifications. He is Attorney Ronald Jacobs.

I have known Ron Jacobs since he entered the private practice of law in 1954. In his probate practice I have found him knowledgeable, sincere, responsive to the needs of others, with a temperate approach to the problems before the court. His integrity is absolutely unquestioned.

Ron Jacobs has publicly pledged that he will be available to the people of Manchester, whenever required, to carry out the duties of probate judge; that his prime concern will continue to be to assist the people using the court with understanding and compassion. Knowing Ron Jacobs, I believe he will fulfill this pledge. Need we ask more of any candidate?

I highly recommend Ron Jacobs to the voters of Manchester to succeed me as their judge of probate.

Sincerely yours,
John J. Wallert

Wants Cotter ITT Views

Once again Bill Cotter is running for Congress. Yet there are questions concerning his involvement with ITT that Cotter has never clarified.

Why was the Hartford Fire-ITT merger allowed when the testimony of prominent New York security analyst, Raymond Dirks, said the merger was unfair to Hartford Fire stockholders?

What was the "tremendous amount of pressure" Ralph Nader claims that Cotter underwent during the negotiations?

What were the reasons that caused Cotter to approve the merger after having previously denied it?

As a resident of the First Congressional District, I would like some straight answers.

Sincerely yours,
Robert S. Smith

Today in History

Today is Monday, Oct. 23, the 27th day of 1972. There are 69 days left in the year.

On this date in 1917, American troops saw their first action on the Western Front in World War I, in fighting near Lunenburg, France.

In 1841, the great Irish massacre took place after the discovery of a conspiracy against the English.

In 1915, 25,000 women marched in New York in a demand for the right to vote.

In 1944, the allies recognized a French provisional government headed by Charles de Gaulle.

Today's Thought

Glory Be To God
Scripture Reading: Psalm 24:10
I can still recall standing on the shore of Lake Superior as a child and looking for the first time across a body of water without being able to see the opposite shore. I felt the same sense of wonder I experienced when I first saw the vastness of the ocean, when for days on board ship I saw no land - only the rolling waters of the Atlantic Ocean. It must have been similar thrill in viewing God's handiwork which caused the psalmist to break forth in the song of praise we read in the first verses of today's text.

As I am writing, the Apollo 11 landing is still fresh in my mind. Seeing the moon at close range on television - and Mars also in the Mariner photos - again focused my attention on the greatness of God and the "heavens, the work of thy fingers, the moon and the stars which thou hast established" (Psalm 8:3).
"O Lord, our Lord, how majestic is thy name in all the earth!" Amen.

Inside Report

Rowland Evans and Robert Novak

Washington - The post-election role in the Democratic party that Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts is covertly playing even before the anti-climatic Nov. 7 election was exposed when Kennedy agents put out the word: Robert Strauss is not acceptable as Democratic national chairman.

As he barnstorms the country drawing huge, enthusiastic crowds, Kennedy feels it is not the man to run the party. His close personal relationship with John B. Connally, national chairman of Democrats for Nixon, is enough to disqualify Strauss, according to the word from Kennedy.

This represents an obvious effort by Kennedy to put his own imprimatur on Democratic leadership following President Nixon's prospective landslide win over Sen. George McGovern. Besides, the national chairmanship, Kennedy is quietly engaged with leadership in the Senate and perhaps even the House.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, who choked noticeably in endorsing McGovern, is backing Strauss for chairman. Behind Jackson are AFL-CIO officials who did not endorse McGovern at all, president George Meany and two top aides, lobbyist Andrew Biemiller and political operative Al Barkan. To Kennedy's inner circle, they represent a potential threat to party control.

Kennedy's hand is even less visible in the Senate's misty maneuverings. The long-suffering Montana as Senate majority leader is expected to end with his resignation - if not in 1973, then in 1975. Kennedy wants to avoid McGovern's defeat in which the Robert Byrd of West Virginia, To Kennedy, conservative Byrd leading the Senate is considerably more onerous than Strauss at national headquarters.

Kennedy's public posture is discreet: he does not wish to be seen seeking revenge against Byrd, who unseated him as majority whip last year. Behind the scenes, however, Kennedy agents confide he wants Byrd stopped and would energetically support anybody who had a chance to do it. Certainly, Kennedy would support Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, who led the successful fight against proposed money-cutting powers for Mr. Nixon. He would similarly back Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, another possibility.

As a senator, Kennedy's role in picking new House leaders would be shielded completely. But his vote against the last end-the-war resolution. Despite ideological differences, Kennedy would be delighted with his friend, Rep. Wilbur D. Mills of Arkansas who did support the anti-war amendment, as the new speaker.

How successful Kennedy could be in these indirect interventions is questionable. Byrd, quietly and methodically, has been lining up votes even soliciting the Democratic Senate candidate in Delaware, a remote long shot. If he decided to fight Kennedy, Strauss would boast formidable allies after having collected and distributed $1 million to Democratic Congressional candidates this fall.

The point is that Kennedy is exerting leadership in the party for the first time since Chapquidick. That not only obstructs a rightward reaction to McGovern's defeat but spotlights the party's most likely dominant figure the next four years.

The Candidates ...in 3rd Senate District

State Sen. Harry S. Burke Democrat.

State Sen. Harry S. Burke of East Hartford is completing his third consecutive term in the State Senate, after five consecutive terms as a state representative. A widower since 1965, he resides at 734 Silver Lane. He has two sons and three grandchildren.

A native of Newburgh, N.Y., he has lived in East Hartford most of his life. He was a dispatcher for the New Haven Railroad until his retirement in 1959.

He was a member of the Democratic State Central Committee for five years and was chairman of the East Hartford Democratic Town Committee for five years. He was on the East Hartford Board of Fire Commissioners for 14 years and in a member of the Connecticut Transportation Authority.

He is a member of the Elks, American Legion and the Italian-American Club.

In the State Senate he is chairman of the rules committee and the public personnel and military affairs committee, and is a member of the transportation, liquor control, elections, and corrections, welfare and humane institutions committees.

Rec Offers Girls Sports Programs

The Manchester Recreation Department is offering a volleyball and basketball program for girls between the ages of 10 and 17. There will be two groups: 10-12 and 13-17.

These programs will begin Thursday, at 6 p.m. at the West Side Recreation Center, 110 Cedar St. If enough interest is shown, there will be instructional clinic and league play.

Girls who are interested may sign up at the first meeting or call Laura Dunfield between 2:30 and 4:30 at 643-6795.

53rd District Brainard Launches Campaign

Jess Brainard, Republican candidate for the 53rd Assembly district, has officially entered the campaign circle in what promises to be a talk to the people type campaign.

The GOP candidate has already started on the campaign trail visiting such unusual stops as the Toland and Willington dumps last weekend where he listened to resident's complaints and opinions on the issues of the day. "I will not represent any particular posture or point of view, or philosophy in the legislature," Brainard told those attending a Champagne Brunch Friday at the Old Willington Tavern in Coventry (now Republican headquarters). "I will take the issues as they come, think about them, and have the courage to vote on the basis of that thought."

Brainard feels the consideration of "divergent points of view and the resulting conclusion" are vital. "Once I have taken action I will be committed and will stand by it."

The long-time Coventry resident believes the new legislature will be composed of people from differing walks of life, not professional politicians, "who will look through a different set of lenses, not merely traditional political dogma."

He does not believe so much in making speeches as in listening to what others have to say, and has yet to formulate a particular campaign posture or set of opinions. Older people have been lost in the shuffle, he has decided, their problems talked about but little action taken. They should not be forced into selling their homes and to move from communities due to high taxes and high values.

"We must take a new look at how town aid road funds are allocated and improve the formula, towns should get a better return in exchange for their tax dollars paid to the state."

He agrees the tax structure should be overhauled but would first take a hard look at expenditures to weed out what is necessary and desirable and what has lapsed into political patronage.

Abortion should be a matter decided by a woman and her doctor, Brainard claims placing himself on record in favor of abortion reform legislation.

He views the 154 highway controversy from a practical point of view, specifically criticizing the failure to finish the connection between the Bolton to Manchester stretch with the link up interchange in East Hartford. Sections of the proposed 154 highway in Eastern Connecticut should be redesigned however, to reduce undesirable impact on homes and people involved.

"A good civil service program is needed," Brainard believes to assure expertise in government affairs, "he added before leaving to meet in the afternoon with state highway workers at the Willington state highway department garage."

He likened federal revenue-sharing to the "first robin of spring," and predicted it will increase in the future. Brainard added a warning against tying the federal program up with state legislative restraints as happened in the CDAF programs of a few years ago.

The community college concept is a "restoration of

Definition Of Newsmen A Problem

NEW HAVEN (AP) — Journalists don't have the same ground as lawyers or doctors for claiming the right to withhold information from the courts, says a Yale professor.

The "problem of who a newsmen is" sets the profession apart from priests, lawyers and psychiatrists with respect to such things as probes by grand juries, Dean Abraham Goldstein said Sunday.

Democracy in the post secondary school environment, breaking down the elite college structure, and a "refreshing innovation in educational thinking," according to the GOP candidate.

The problems of the three-town district are remarkably similar, Brainard maintains, likening Toland, Coventry and Willington to "triplets in a family, each with its own distinctions, rural communities emerging into suburban living."

WHERE THEY STAND
THE ISSUES OF THE 1972 CAMPAIGN

Health Care

REPUBLICANS
Support a program financed by employers, employees and the Federal Government to provide comprehensive health insurance... at a cost which all Americans can afford.

DEMOCRATS
Establish a system of universal national health insurance which covers all Americans, with benefits including preventive medicine, mental and emotional disorders, complete protection against catastrophic costs, and without the rule of free choice for both provider and consumer. The program should be federally financed and federally administered.

The positions shown were extracted from the official 1972 platforms of the Republican and Democratic Parties.

Opposition Draws Criticism

HARTFORD (AP) - Gov. Thomas J. Meskill's announced opposition to the idea of a "shield law" for newsmen drew rebuffs Friday from a Democratic state senator and from the head of the Revitalization Corps in Hartford.

A "shield law" for newsmen would protect them from contempt of court proceedings if they refuse to divulge confidential information to a grand jury.

This calendar is maintained by the Manchester Junior Women's Club and printed monthly as a service to the entire town. Any organization wishing to submit dates is encouraged to do so as soon as a particular event is being planned. In this way it is hoped that overscheduling of events on one particular date can be avoided. The result should be better attendance at each organization's activities. To submit a date to this clearinghouse, and thereby to the Monthly Calendar in this paper, call Mrs. Joseph Sabatelli, 81 Mountain Dr., South Windsor.

The deadline for submitting dates for the December Calendar is Nov. 20.

Mrs. Michael Anthony Botticello

Noreen Patricia Cullen and Michael Anthony Botticello, both of Manchester, exchanged wedding vows Friday evening at St. Bridget Church.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Cullen of 185 Green Rd. The bridegroom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Botticello of 595 Hilltown Rd.

The Rev. William Stack of St. Bridget Church performed the double-ring ceremony and was celebrant at the nuptial Mass.

Mrs. Raymond Murphy was organist and soloist. Fall floral arrangements were on the altar.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of yellow and gold with gold ribbons.

Miss Angela Cullen of Green Rd., sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Her yellow chiffon gown was trimmed with lace and gold.

She wore a matching yellow headpiece with veil and carried a bouquet of dark gold autumn flowers.

Dennis Botticello of Hilltown Rd. served as his brother's best man.

After a reception at Vito's Restaurant in Bolton, owned by the bridegroom's father, the couple left on a Canadian honeymoon.

They will return Nov. 1 to their home on Bidwell St.

Mrs. Botticello has been employed at the Travelers Insurance Co. in Hartford. Mr. Botticello is employed by the Sanitary Refuse Co. of Manchester.

Latin Used-Car Dealers Shaken By New Market

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP) — Used-car dealers in Latin America's largest city are being shaken by a bold challenge: the open-air car market.

Every weekend buyers and sellers do business outside the city's main market. The trading costs nothing.

Since January an average of 200 cars have shown up outside the stadium and 45 per cent have been sold. Individuals can buy, sell or trade cars or parts, while a television audience dials in its offer. Two announcers for Sao Paulo's Channel 11 start the show Sunday mornings at nine and carry it through till noon.

Each owner fills out a card giving facts about his car. The announcers read the information, including the desired price, to the TV public as offerings pass before the camera.

The cars on display vary from extravagantly painted beach buggies to worn and torn Volkswagens. On the whole they are in good working order.

U.S. insurers already have an installment plan of up to 14 months to pay for any car shown. A finance corporation offers an installment plan of up to 14 months to pay for any car shown. The results of the experiment have been so gratifying, organizers say, that plans are under way to install it in other Brazilian cities.

Door-to-Door Sales Rules Ordered

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new Federal Trade Commission rule gives persons who buy goods from door-to-door salesmen a three-day cooling-off period to decide whether they want to keep the merchandise.

If the customer decides to return the product, he can do so without penalty or fee, according to the new trade regulation announced Thursday.

The new regulation is designed to counter such door-to-door sales tactics as high-pressure sales pitches, misrepresentations of the nature and price of the product, false savings claims and the nuisance created by the unsolicited salesman in the home who refuses to leave until a sale is made. The FTC said.

The new rule applies only to door-to-door sales costing more than $25. The FTC said it said the rule is based on the theory that during the three days the customer considers the wisdom of the purchase.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB Not a Single Disease

Colitis Is General Word

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I have colitis and my doctor did not give me a diet. He said eat whatever I want and eliminate whatever causes trouble. I am 70 years old.

Dear Reader — I receive a lot of letters on colitis and the problem in answering them is that colitis is a general term. It literally means inflammation or irritation of the digestive tract from the colon. This can be associated with constipation which is the most common form. These individuals improve markedly by drinking adequate amounts of water or other liquids and forming a regular habit which doesn't mean that it is necessary every day. I usually recommend that patients do this by drinking at least two cups of liquid at breakfast and more if they tolerate it well and then going to the bathroom immediately after breakfast and sitting for a reasonable length of time or until they feel the urge. By continuing this practice daily, many individuals will develop a more regular habit.

For this type of colitis it is important to increase the amount of roughage in the diet which includes vegetables and fruits. While this is irritating to some people who have an overactive colon, low bulk foods such as sweets, candies, cakes and starches.

Other people who are told they have colitis have an overactive colon which causes recurring bouts of diarrhea and sometimes excessive gas formation. These individuals have a somewhat different problem and may need a bland diet often containing acid foods.

Then there are some people who have colitis or overactive colon on the basis of their intolerance to certain foods. This includes milk. Some people cannot digest the milk sugar and it causes them a considerable amount of difficulty including gas, distention and related problems. Coffee also is an irritant to the colon and even though drinking decaffeinated products helps there are a reasonable number of people who still get irritation of the digestive tract from the oils in the coffee that impart its flavor. Thus, simply switching from regular coffee to a decaffeinated product will help some people but there are still others who must give up all forms of coffee.

It is entirely true that some individuals will learn by experience that there are certain foods that they can't tolerate and all of these, of course, should be avoided.

This may mean taking vitamin pills to make sure that there is no vitamin deficiency. People who can't tolerate milk will need to consider obtaining calcium supplements.

In letters from readers I detect there is some confusion on the use of raw fruits. While they may be irritating to some people who have an overactive colon, which is one form of colitis, they are helpful for individuals who have the constipation colitis. Raw fruit and even some cooked fruit, for example prunes, often help in maintaining good bowel function.

Insurance Seeks Overseas Markets

NEW YORK (AP) — Seeking to spread the risk and thus reduce losses or add to profits, the American insurance industry is going abroad in quest of markets.

U.S. insurers already are licensed in 150 countries. They operate 360 overseas offices and employ about 10,000 foreign nationals selling mainly fire, marine, accident and automobile insurance. But this may be only the beginning.

One company, Sentry Insurance, based in Stevens Point, Wis., had no overseas business as recently as 1968. Now it estimates that 10 to 15 per cent of volume is from abroad and expects the figure to grow to 25 per cent in two or three years.

"It's been a long time in coming," said John Joans, chairman and chief executive, "but I think the industry is finally realizing there are some very fertile markets beyond our domestic borders."

The markets that Joans sees are not only in the likely areas, such as England, Western Europe, Australia and Japan. He sees the day not distant when American insurers will be active in China, India and the Soviet Union.

Ideological differences, he believes, won't prevent the spread. Instead, the need for insurance will assure its acceptance, he said. Inevitably, he feels, free enterprise will work its way in. "Creating capitalism," he termed it.

INA has been abroad for many years. Continental Insurance and Chubb & Son also have an overseas tradition. And to a lesser degree, so do Travelers and Aetna.

But, said Joans, "Much of the industry is not as alert to the possibilities as it should be."

The advantage to the American companies is not solely one of volume. Sentry and others believe that a company with foreign markets is a more efficient, more stable enterprise because it is better protected against cycles.

Cycles have nagged the insurance industry for so many years that they are considered an unavoidable malady. "The industry is always running up and down hills," Joans said.

He explained: "The business prices its product and later determines its costs. Sometimes it sets a price and then finds out it costs a lot more to provide the service."

When you have a good year, he said, you tend to over-react in competing by price. You lower your figures, then you have inflation. As a result, you must attempt to regain your losses by raising prices again.

The cycle is there, and it apparently can no more be erased.

Gas Utility Defends Charities

HARTFORD (AP) — Charitable contributions by the Connecticut Natural Gas Corp. (CNG) are "entirely reasonable business expenses" and should be charged to the company's customers, a CNG official told the Public Utilities Commission.

Victor H. Fraenkel, chief financial officer of CNG, said the company has up to this time provided a PUC ruling that charitable contributions "are to be borne by the stockholders."

But, he said, "due to changing conditions we strongly feel that the PUC should now recognize that contributions in the very reasonable amount involved ($82,875 last year) are really a part of the utility's operations and should be included in consumer costs."

He said the "changing conditions" included a recognition by the company in recent years of its obligation to participate actively in community endeavors.

"In addition, these fund programs are important to the welfare of all companies' employees," Fraenkel said. "If the businesses in the community did not contribute money and related services to the general public, such facilities would then have to be subsidized by the people utilizing the facilities, including the employees of such businesses."

"Therefore, these contributions may be viewed as employee benefits and be considered as an expense of operating the company."

The CNG position was challenged before the PUC by Ray Conin, an attorney for the city of Hartford. The gas company recently paid its 700,000 stockholders $1.5 million in dividends. Conin said, and can well afford to pay the cost of the charities.

"Doesn't management want to give anything to charity?" he asked.

Erie Rock Repells Shad

ERIE, Pa. (AP) — Most fish stories wind up with the fish getting off the hook, or even worse, on the platter. But the one told by Pennsylvania Electric Co. has the fish swimming to the strains of popular music.

The company says it plans to drop speakers into the East and West Slip Bay waters of Lake Erie and pipe-in contemporary music picked up from a local radio station.

Those who are supposed to love the music, claim Gizzard Shad should make themselves scarce once the sounds of pop recording artists begin permeating the city waters.

Vernon Candidate Urges Tax Reform

In his bid for post of senator from the 35th District, Vernon Republican Thomas Carruthers is pushing for tax reform and a broadening of the tax base, promising if elected he will not support any new taxes in the next session of the General Assembly.

Carruthers, who is chairman of Vernon's Republican Town Committee, is running against Democrat Michael Riley of Somers on Nov. 7.

Carruthers terms the property tax an antiquated and regressive form of taxation. "It is rather ridiculous when a man's tax payment is, in some cases, greater than what he paid to retire his mortgage," Carruthers said. He added that property taxes should be on residences only. All commercial, industrial and residential property assessed for over $50,000 should be taxed at uniform assessment and rate basis by the state and redistributed equally to the towns for educational cost on a population basis, Carruthers maintains. He explained that this method could cut property taxes by at least 50 per cent and in the Vernon area it could cut it as much as 75 to 80 per cent.

Expanding further on this proposal, Carruthers explained that there are some areas in the state which have a higher tax rate than others. "We know that an oil company can move its headquarters for somebody at an oil company's headquarters who calls up a retail dealer and tells him that he has the large tax payments to these towns, from the companies, do not all go to the school system in the town, but for the most part,

Oil Industry Tax Allegation Disputed

HARTFORD (AP) — State Atty. Gen. Robert K. Killian terms as "hogwash" a claim by an oil industry spokesman that high gasoline prices are partly due to the high state sales tax on gasoline.

"The price of a gallon of gasoline can go from 30 cents to 40 cents overnight," Killian says. "There is no change in the 14 cent tax he's talking about."

"We know that an oil company can move its headquarters for somebody at an oil company's headquarters who calls up a retail dealer and tells him that he has the large tax payments to these towns, from the companies, do not all go to the school system in the town, but for the most part,

Vernon Zoners Given Suggestions By LVW

A number of suggestions made to the town's Zoning Commission by the League of Women Voters of Vernon received a favorable reaction from commission members, according to league president, Mrs. Ann Lettner.

Prior to presenting several proposals to the commission, league members surveyed the commissions in the 20 towns in the Capitol Region Planning area as to their methods of handling zone change requests. In presenting the suggestions to the Vernon commission, the league explained that they were not to be taken as criticism. "They are simply situations that we have come to our attention and we strongly feel they deserve consideration," the commission members told the commission.

The first suggestion was that property owners of abutting property owners be notified by mail at any time the Zoning Commission has under consideration a proposal that might affect the property value or premises of the abutting owners. If the town surveyed, it sent out such notifications while 12 do not.

The league further suggested that legal notices give further means of identifying the location of the property in question, such as stating the distance to the nearest intersection.

That more maps of the area in question be supplied by the developer prior to the hearing so that commission members may have one for their use to inspect the property being considered for zone changes and that interested maps be made available at the office of the town planner for use by interested persons was another suggestion.

A final suggestion made by the league was that a map of the area in question or a relevant portion of the plan of development be displayed prior to and during public hearing so that attending may better relate to the applicant's presentation.

League members said some of the smaller towns surveyed and which do not send out notices to abutting property owners, indicated they feel that notice is spread sufficiently by word of mouth and also that the occurrences of zone change requests are rather infrequent in these smaller towns.

In connection with the suggestion that the property owners be notified by mail, the league also suggested that the town increase the application fee to cover the cost of mailing and clerk time. It was noted that Vernon's application fee is $35 "and could easily be increased to cover mailing costs and still remain well within the range of other towns."

The survey showed that in general the fees in other towns in the region range from "no fee" to $65 while in some towns a graduated fee schedule raised some fees as high as $500 for commercial developments.

Relief Pitching, Hitting Factors in A's Triumph

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Oakland A's — World Champions — "It has a nice ring to it," said Dick Williams. "The trophy belongs right here," the Oakland manager added while squeezing the gold bauble symbol of a World Series winner.

The trophy belonged to the A's because of good relief pitching and clutch hitting — the combination that helped win four of the seven baseball games, including Sunday's 3-2 thriller.

Rollie Fingers came through with the pitching again and Gene Tenace delivered another clutch hit as the A's defeated the Reds in the final showdown.

"It's a beautiful thing," said Williams, pointing to the trophy in the champagne-drenched A's clubhouse.

Williams understandably was emotional about his new-found status in the baseball world. He had led the Boston Red Sox to a pennant in 1967, but lost the World Series to the St. Louis Cardinals. Two years later, he was fired.

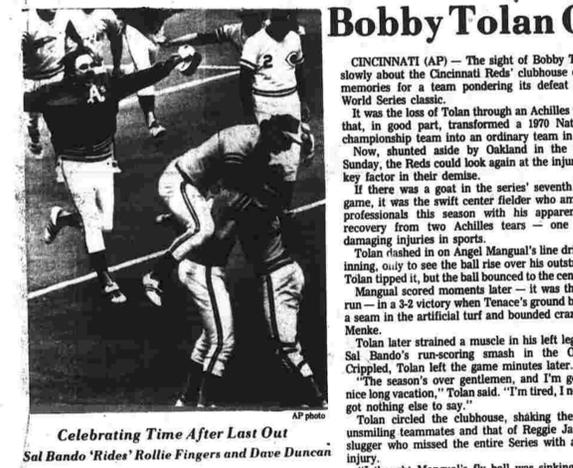

He was able to take this trophy home to Oakland even though the A's weren't given much of a chance to win it. From the start, they were worn with disunion and labeled a patsy for the powerful National League champion Reds.

Pitcher Vida Blue and first baseman Mike Epstein were the most notable of the players disgraced with their roles in the series. Blue verbally blasted his manager and owner Charles O. Finley because he wanted to be a starter, not a relief pitcher. Epstein had a shouting match with Williams after he was taken out of a game early for defensive purposes.

Williams, accused of overmanaging, moved his men around as if he were playing chess. And, for the most part, he made the right moves.

Some questioned Williams' logic in using Tenace in the lineup in place of Dave Duncan, a catcher who had hit 19 home runs during the season. But Tenace, who only hit five out of the park this year, made his manager look like a genius when he hit two home runs in the first game for all the runs as the A's took a 3-2 decision. Blue, after sounding off the day before, came in to save the game for starter Ken Holtzman.

In the second game at Cincinnati, Fingers gave Jim "Catfish" Hunter ninth-inning help and Joe Rudi hit a home run and made an outstanding catch against the left field wall to preserve a 2-1 Oakland triumph.

Celebrating Time After Last Out Sal Bando 'Rides' Rollie Fingers and Dave Duncan

Odom's Claim Not Disputed Great A's Pitching Stopped Red Hitters

CINCINNATI (AP) — John "Blue Moon" Odom made the claim and Oakland Athletics' captain Sal Bando provided the logic to back it up.

"We've got the best pitching staff in baseball," Odom crowed after Sunday's 3-2 victory over the Cincinnati Reds which ended the World Series.

"Rollie Fingers is the best relief pitcher in the world," he added.

Fingers ended the game which Odom had started. The Reds' power-hitting lineup known as "The Big Red Machine" was held to two runs or less for the fifth time in the seven-game series.

Bando, who gave the A's a 3-1 lead with his run-scoring double in the sixth inning, got in his final shot of the week-long war between the World Series teams as he sipped champagne in Oakland's clubhouse.

"In a short series, you can't say you're in a slump. Cincinnati's hitters had troubles. Are you going to tell me they were all in slumps?" he laughed.

"It was just a matter of some great pitching stopping some great hitters."

Oakland Manager Dick Williams settled for a little bit of hitting. Three of the A's victories were by 3-2 scores and the other was a 2-1 decision.

"I've been a loser three times in the series—twice as a player with the Brooklyn Dodgers and in 1967 as manager with Boston," Williams recalled after entering baseball's winning circle, worth at least $15,000 a man for the A's.

The A's manager left himself open for second guessing throughout the series with the Reds. But in most cases, his gambling paid off.

"I started with the Dodgers and I'm of the Branch Rickey school of baseball—you do anything if you think it will help you win," Williams said.

"I overmanaged," he was beautiful," he laughed.

His unorthodox moves in Sunday's game included removing starter Odom with the A's ahead 1-0 and ordering Reds slugger Johnny Bench walked in the eighth inning, putting the potential winning run on base.

"I just said to myself I'm not going to let Bench beat us with his bat," Williams explained.

Eagles Impressive In Blanking Fermi

By Marc Rick

A powerful-looking East Catholic team scored two touchdowns in the first quarter and coasted to an impressive 16-0 victory over Enrico Fermi of Enfield in an unusual 10 o'clock tilt at Mt. Nebo last Saturday morning. The Eagles combined a potent offense with a tenacious defense to stymie Fermi which in some circles was favored to win.

Bruins Lack Desire

NEW YORK (AP) - The Mighty Boston Bruins just haven't appeared so mightily lately but their coach thinks he's reared in on the problem. "Lack of desire—that's the only thing I can pinpoint right now," said Tom Johnson after Vancouver nipped his Bruins 5-4 Sunday night. "We're thinking of everything but hockey. I'm very, very disappointed."

Three Long TD's Too Much for Tribe

By Dean Yost

Three breakaway touchdowns, two by Bristol Eastern's Frank Sanders and a lone tally by Dan Jenkins, told the story in Saturday's 18-6 setback by Manchester High. Eastern sports a 3-2 mark and is tied for third spot in the CCIL with Manchester High, which also sports a 3-2 record. After posting victories in its first three games, Manchester had visions of going undefeated. Then when Conard High tacked a 14-7 defeat on them there was word of attempting to salvage a tie for the crown. Following Eastern's victory, dreams of Manchester winning the CCIL title have gone out the window.

Housatonic Nips MCC

Visiting Housatonic Community College squeaked out a 2-1 victory Saturday at Mt. Nebo over Manchester C. S. soccer squad.

The Cougars' Mark Harrington knotted the count at 1-1 as he scored on a cross from Mike Holliday at 9:55 of the opening stanza.

Sebourne missed a golden opportunity to score on a penalty kick when MCC's goalie Bob Szumyk made an outstanding save. Moments later, Sebourne booted home the winning goal on another penalty kick late in the final quarter.

Manchester registered 15 shots on Housatonic's goal while the enemy attempted only five.

Coach Bob Corley of Manchester noted, "We played a heck of a game. We would have been 10 feet tall if we had won."

This afternoon at Mt. Nebo the Cougars entertained Eastern Connecticut State College at 3.

Walker scored 22 points and Chicago led 20-14 at the end of the first quarter. The Bulls were hampered by five technical fouls that resulted in the ejection of guard Jerry Sloan.

Webster Smiling At Off-Season Deal

NEW YORK (AP) - Alex Webster, smiling coach of the New York Giants, looked favorably upon his off-season swap of veteran quarterbacks.

The Giants were celebrating a 27-21 Sunday victory over St. Louis, a come-from-behind job engineered by 15-year pro Norm Snead in the noisy surroundings of Yankee Stadium.

"I'm very happy we made the Fran Tarkenton-for-Snead trade," said the red-haired Webster. "I'm delighted with Norm Snead. He's got us moving."

Snead was obtained from Minnesota with the reigning Tarkenton going to the Vikings where his fortunes have not been outstanding in a 2-3 season.

The Giants, 4-2, have won four straight. New York rubbed out a 21-7 Cardinal bulge. Snead hit a 18-yard touchdown pass to Don Her-

Long Namath Pass Brings Jets' Win

NEW YORK (AP) - Coach John Namath smiled over to his 25-year-old quarterback in Baltimore's subdued locker room. "Nice game, Marty," he said, patting the youngster on the shoulder.

And it was a nice game. Marty Domres, forced by a "youth movement" to step into the role occupied for so long by the all-but-legendary Johnny Unitas, brought the Colts within one yard of victory Sunday.

But in the end, it was Joe Namath, Eddie Bell and the rest of the New York Jets who revealed their true colors. Namath, who had devastated the Colts with six touchdowns and 496 yards in aerials four weeks ago, destroyed them again this time he did it with just one pass.

And he did it only moments after Domres had passed the Colts into the lead.

It covered 83 yards and came with barely a minute to play. And when Bell plucked it out of the air and bared it to the end zone, the Jets added with a 24-20 victory and capped the regular Colts with their fifth loss in six games.

It also wrecked Sandusky's debut as head coach of the National Football League team.

He'd taken over just a week ago when Don McCafferty got the axe. And, amid criticism by Baltimore players over the firing of McCafferty, Sandusky said he was going with his youngsters.

Two of them, Domres and second-year tight end John Mosier, came off, so close to pulling it off for the Colts.

After the electrifying Namath-to-Bell bomb, the Colts, with 1:03 remaining, still had a chance. Using the short pass, Domres brought Baltimore out to its own 45-yard line. Now only seconds remained.

"I came back to the huddle," Domres recalled, "and said: 'The two backs stay in and block. The three receivers go as close to the end zone as you can.'"

As everyone did as he was told, Domres faded back and unloaded the ball as far as he could. And on the Jets' two-yard line, Mosier outflung cornerbacks Rich Sowell and Earle Thomas and made the catch. But two New York defenders wrestled him to the turf as time ran out and the crowd of 62,948, breathing a collective sigh of relief, exploded in a victory celebration.

Namath's touchdown pass to Bell was just as much a desperation shot. The Jets, starting from their own 32-yard line, were knocked back to the 17 by a holding penalty.

Then, as Namath faded back, Bell took off down the right sideline, surrounded by cornerbacks Charlie Stukes and Ray May and safety Jerry Logan.

Namath, standing on the 10-yard line, fired the ball toward the quarter of runners near the Baltimore 35. "He told me to run my tail off... and that's what I did," Bell said. "The ball was thrown out there and it was up for an interception." Sandusky said Logan was tipped in and overthrown. Stukes tipped it right into Bell's hands. But he gave Bell credit. He never stopped trying and never stopped running his pattern. He never quit.

Presidential Campaign...

He will return to Washington tonight but has other campaign trips planned to Kentucky on Thursday and Ohio on Saturday. The President said in a paid political radio broadcast Sunday that amnesty for draft dodgers and deserters would "make a mockery" of the sacrifice of those Americans who fought in Vietnam.

The few hundred who chose to desert America must pay a price for their choice," he said in the Veterans Day address. He also said, "There is no such thing as a free lunch."

Sen. McGovern, who takes his campaign for the presidency to Philadelphia and New York today, said he expects to win "by a narrow margin" on Nov. 7. He said he has two aides with him on appointments and other immediate problems he would face if elected.

Regarding current negotiations for a Vietnam peace settlement, McGovern said, "If Mr. Nixon can end this war on the night before the election, I'll rejoice along with all other Americans, no matter the political impact."

But he added it would be ironic if a peace settlement hurt him politically since he has advocated U.S. withdrawal from Vietnam all along.

Polster Louis Harris said McGovern's presidential bid has been hurt because voters consider him radical on income redistribution, unable to make hard decisions because of the Eagleton affair, and not truly an "anti-politics" figure.

Harris said his latest poll showed Nixon preferred by 59 per cent of those polled, to 34 per cent for McGovern, a gain from 25 per cent for McGovern.

He said there was an "underdog effect" working for McGovern, but that Nixon's lead was so large, McGovern needs a significant turnaround to overtake him.

New Zealand spends 4.6 per cent of its gross national product on education.

The Exchange Club will meet Tuesday evening at 6:30 at the Manchester Country Club. Tim Linkins, a biological representative from the Department of Environmental Protection, will be guest speaker. People interested in learning more about this new service club, are invited to attend the dinner meeting.

Richard J. Daley being flying on to Missouri and Texas. McGovern said today that Republican sabotage of the Democratic campaign by the presidency has included forgery, burglary, tampering with a grand jury, obstruction of justice, bank violations, failure to report campaign expenditures and fraudulent use of the mails.

When it was time for a new furnace, I came out best by converting to gas heat.

"We had just added a new room upstairs. My old heating system just couldn't do the job any more. I knew I needed a new furnace.

"I priced everything that I could. I came out best by converting the entire system from oil to gas.

"Since we've had the gas heat, the house isn't as dusty, the heat in each room is more even, and the heat comes up faster. Quieter, too."

STAMFORD (AP) — Jackie Robinson, who broke major league baseball's color barrier in 1947 and went on to California and a place in the Hall of Fame, died today, apparently of a heart attack.

The 53-year-old Robinson, who had suffered a mild heart attack in 1969, was stricken early this morning at his 14-room home in this New York City commuter community. Police, summoned by his wife, used oxygen in an attempt to revive him and then rushed him to Stamford Hospital. He was dead on arrival.

Robinson had been scheduled to appear in Washington today as one of several main speakers at a symposium on drug abuse. Sponsors of the event said Robinson had called Monday night to report that he was hemorrhaging from the eyes and that his doctors said he should not travel.

Robinson's baseball career was filled with controversy and it did not stop when he retired in 1957 to take an executive post with a restaurant chain. He later became caught up in political disputes with more militant speakers of the black community who assailed his Republican party affiliations.

But Robinson was first of all an athlete and that is how he wrote his way into history.

Amid scorn and criticism from some following the announcement that he would be the first black in the major leagues, Robinson did his talking on the playing field.

He joined the Brooklyn Dodgers in 1947 after spending a year with Montreal and leading the International League in hitting.

From there he got his first tryout with a major league club, the Boston Red Sox. Boston didn't invite him to join the club, but Brooklyn did and he moved to Montreal.

After watching Robinson in action during the 1946 spring training, Clay Hopper, a Mississippiian who would manage Robinson the first year, asked Rickey, "Rickey, do you think he is human?"

Robinson got a $3,500 bonus and a $600 monthly salary to play with Montreal.

In his 10 years with the Brooklyn Dodgers, Robinson earned a total salary of $42,000 and shared six World Series purses.

His made mark as a base-stealing second baseman with 138 stolen bases and 114 hits in 1957.

Robinson was the man. He endured verbal abuse and a loosely organized attempt to keep him out of the game.

Robinson was born in Cairo, Ga., in 1919 and moved to California with his family a year later.

He became the first man to win titles in baseball, basketball, football and track. He then went on to the University of California at Los Angeles, where he received national attention as a track and football star.

He spent three years in the Army, rising to the rank of lieutenant, and then began coaching baseball at Samuel Houston College, a Texas Negro school, while playing shortstop with the Kansas City Monarchs of the Negro American League.

From there he got his first tryout with a major league club, the Boston Red Sox. Boston didn't invite him to join the club, but Brooklyn did and he moved to Montreal.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Henry Kissinger reported to President Nixon and Secretary of State William Rogers today on his extensive talks with Nguyen Van Thieu, who at about the same time, was condemning the Communist's peace proposals.

The mid-morning session in Nixon's Oval office was the President's second with the presidential advisor since his return late Monday from five days of talks in Saigon.

Just as the meeting began, word came from Saigon that Thieu had denounced the Communist proposals as "dark schemes aimed at taking over South Vietnam."

Some officials expected Kissinger's report to dwell on a Saigon-constructed "roadmap progress," there was no sign Kissinger convinced Thieu to agree to some form of coalition government with the Viet Cong.

Tin Seng, a South Vietnamese newspaper, that generally opposes Thieu's stand, said the talks with Kissinger were held in a "very heated atmosphere in the face of unyielding Vietnamese determination to stand pat on this position."

That position as expressed earlier by the official South Vietnamese radio is to "never accept a two-, three- or four-segment government."

With speculation continuing unabated that Kissinger and North Vietnamese officials earlier had reached agreements in principle on a cease-fire of some type involving total U.S. withdrawal and return of prisoners, the Saigon refusal to accede to a coalition appears the major obstacle.

Officials in Washington described the situation as a three-way arm-twisting: Hanoi twisting Kissinger, Kissinger twisting Thieu, and Thieu twisting Kissinger to ensure the South Vietnamese president's power in a postwar settlement.

The officials said the United States still holds out hope for some settlement—or at least a statement of principles—before the Nov. 7 presidential election.

The timing of Nixon's re-election bid is assuming ever-larger proportions. North Vietnamese Premier Pham Van Dong was quoted by Canadian television newsman Michael MacClellan as suggesting Kissinger's inability to convince Thieu on the coalition issue is politically grounded.

"If it is all for some other purpose than peace, it is incredible," Dong was quoted.

A North Vietnamese official in Paris, Nguyen Thanh Le, told reporters Monday that "the name problem is still not settled."
