

For Selling Alleged Obscene Materials

James Magee, manager of the Manchester Book Shop at 739 Main St., follows Manchester Police Det. Ernest McNally out of the shop. Magee was arrested today for promoting obscenity.

Porno Crackdown Launched By Police

HARTFORD (AP) A coordinated crackdown on dealers in sexy books and magazines was announced today by Gov. Thomas J. Meskill, who called it a fight against "pollution of the mind."

Local Book Store Center Of Debate Since Its Opening

James V. Magee Jr., 30, of Bridgeport, manager of the Manchester Book Shop at 739 Main St., today was served a warrant charging him with two counts of promoting obscenity, in connection with a series of State Police raids in the state at noon-time.

The store was closed up when the arrest was made, but Manchester Police say Magee was the only employee in the store at the time and had to close it. The court order did not include closing the store, and no materials were confiscated, police said.

Magee was released this afternoon upon a written promise to appear in Circuit Court 12 at Manchester on Nov. 13.

The warrant was signed by Judge John Daly, chief judge for the Circuit Court system.

It was served by Det. Lt. John Krijak of the Manchester Police Department. He was accompanied by Manchester Det. Ernest McNally; Bradford Ward, deputy chief prosecutor for the Circuit Court system; and State Trooper Anthony Rosi of the Connecticut State Police Detective Division.

The Manchester Book Store, an "Adult Book Store," opened in October 1971 on Main St., next door to the State Theater, and almost immediately became a controversial issue.

An organization calling itself Citizens Against Pornography was formed, with the Rev. J. Grant Swank as its chairman. Its members began picketing the store, held meetings of protest and petitioned the Manchester Board of Directors to take some action for closing it.

The Rev. Swank, an ordained minister in the Nazarene church, was executive vice president of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce.

The Board of Directors instructed Town Counsel David Barry to draft a bill designed to tighten the state's obscenity laws.

Barry drafted H.B. 5036, "An act concerning the definition of Obscenity." The bill, sponsored by Manchester's legislators, would have deleted that clause in the state's 1971 penal code which required that obscene material must be "utterly without redeeming social value." That requirement had stalled Grant and his Citizens Against Obscen-

The governor said he had received an avalanche of protests against peddlers of pornography—10,000 cards and letters, "the greatest single sustained mail since I've been in office."

In addition to the arrest and prosecution of suspected smut sellers, Meskill said any lottery agent who is convicted of violating the state's anti-pornography laws will have his license revoked by the gaming commission.

"We are fighting to end pollution of the water and the air," the governor said. "We have to fight this pollution of the mind."

Meskill said it is difficult to believe that pornography is not harmful, especially to young people.

Existing state laws, he said, should be adequate for the job of punishing pornography dealers. If they are inadequate, they should be strengthened by the legislature next year, Meskill said.

A special state commission which studied the traffic in pornography in 1970 and 1971 was unable to agree on its effects or on what measures should be taken against it, if any. The commission members issued three differing reports in May of last year.

State police and local police in Bridgeport, New Haven, New Britain, Danbury, Manchester, New London, Groton and Norwich took part in the investigation that led to today's arrests.

The probe included purchases of alleged pornography by undercover agents of the eastern and southwestern regional crime squads.

The arrest warrants were obtained by Chief Circuit Court Prosecutor Cornelius J. Shea from Chief Circuit Judge John J. Daly.

Bus Firm Seeks Court-Ordered State Subsidy

HARTFORD (AP) — The Connecticut Co. asked a Superior Court judge Tuesday to force State Transportation Commissioner A. Earl Wood to act on the threatened bus crisis. The company's lawyers obtained a show cause order from Judge George A. Saden summoning Wood to answer a motion for a writ of mandamus on Thursday. A writ of mandamus is an order directing a public official to perform his statutory obligations.

The hearing is scheduled for the same day Saden will hear an attempt by Hartford officials to prevent the bus firm from ending operations.

The motion for a writ of mandamus orders Wood to act immediately to perform the duties "imposed upon him" by state statutes to prevent the suspension of bus service.

The company, saying it incurs weekly deficits of $10,000, announced last week that it would suspend service at midnight last Saturday. However, the suspension was postponed when Hartford officials obtained a temporary injunction pending Thursday's hearing. The city maintained the service suspension had not been properly publicized.

The company contends in its motion that it must suspend its bus service because of "severe and continuing operating losses" unless it receives public assistance.

The public welfare demands that bus service be continued in the communities served by The Connecticut Co., the company says in its motion.

The company says in the writ it cannot negotiate a new labor agreement with its drivers and mechanics because of the losses.

Three Survive Plunge From Fifth Floor

HARTFORD (AP) — Two women and a 2-year-old boy in an auto plunged five stories from a parking garage and survived without serious injuries.

Police said the car jumped a curb, smashed through a concrete retaining wall in the high-rise parking garage of the Hartford Hospital and plummeted five stories onto two unoccupied cars.

They identified the driver of the car as Christina Niland, 30, of North Easton, Mass. and the other two occupants as Orzula Charamida, 59, and her grandson, Paul Valdasi, both of Wethersfield.

Man Brushes Away Sign Vandalism

By ANNA FRISINA (Herald Correspondent)

Elections come often — national and state elections, local elections, and on occasion, referenda. Each brings its own bustle of activity and each leaves behind its bitter incidents.

Andover last week experienced one of the bad scenes that sometimes accompany an election. Someone had taken paint and defaced a huge sign advertising President Nixon. Someone also stole Democratic political signs from in front of Democratic headquarters in town.

The Democratic Town Committee issued a statement condemning these actions by persons regardless of which political party was affected. The chairman of the Republican Town Committee also chastised such actions. But in Andover there's a happy aftermath. A man from Lebanon named John Sweet, party affiliation unknown, drives every day from his home through Route 6 in Andover on the way to work. The defaced Nixon sign bothered him as it has bothered a lot of other people.

One day last weekend, Mr. Sweet was caught by the town's First Selectman Robert Post, who lives nearby, painting the sign. It seems Mr. Sweet was bothered enough to go out and buy some paint. On his way home from work that night, he stopped his car, set up his ladder, and repainted the Nixon sign. Now where are the Democratic signs?

Peace Force Forming

WASHINGTON (AP) — While the United States maintains it won't be rushed into a peace in Indochina, arrangements are being made for an international force to supervise a cease-fire agreement.

Diplomatic sources said Tuesday that Canada, Indonesia, Hungary and Poland have agreed to provide 250 officers each toward the force, which the United States would like to see in place at the time a cease-fire becomes effective.

North Vietnam and the Viet Cong had demanded that the United States sign a nine-point peace agreement in Paris on Tuesday, but U.S. spokesmen said additional details had to be worked out and the day passed without a signing.

U.S. spokesmen also declined to encourage speculation in diplomatic circles that an agreement might be signed by Saturday or Sunday. Neither have they indicated when secret negotiations on the remaining details might be held.

"I am hopeful an agreement will be reached, but I'm not getting into any timetable," Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird told newsmen Tuesday.

White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler was equally noncommittal, saying that the objective remains "to achieve the right kind of agreement—one that will last" and one that "does not leave the seed for future conflict."

Spokesmen here did not seem worried that their refusal to sign the agreement Tuesday would precipitate a crisis in negotiations.

Laird indicated the U.S. side is not worried over efforts by the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong to seize as much additional territory as possible in the South before a cease-fire takes effect. He said the maneuvers probably would not provide "significant changes." He also said the spreading out of the Communist forces makes them "very vulnerable" to South Vietnamese forces.

The nine-point agreement, which was worked out in secret talks in Paris, provides for an in-place cease-fire, and withdrawal of all war prisoners in Indochina within 60 days.

It also provides for establishment of a council with representatives of both the South Vietnamese government and the Viet Cong to supervise elections.

President Nguyen Van Thieu insisted in a National Day speech in Saigon today that any peace agreement also must provide for withdrawal of North Vietnamese forces and that there must be clarification that the council will not be interpreted by either side as a coalition government.

Nixon administration officials, however, have indicated they doubt that Thieu might block the agreement.

The New York Times reported, meanwhile, that the U.S. is seeking assurances from Hanoi that it will withdraw some 35,000 troops stationed in the northern provinces of South Vietnam. The paper quoted informed sources that the United States had been led to believe that Hanoi would comply with the demand and withdraw some of its forces 20 or so miles across the demilitarized zone.

North Vietnam has an estimated 145,000 troops engaged in the contest for South Vietnam, but the major concern centers on the well-equipped and strategically placed troops near northern population centers, the paper said.

The Times said Hanoi has refused to put any withdrawal clause in a formal cease-fire agreement because of the fact that it has never acknowledged its troops are in the South.

The Los Angeles Times reported on Tuesday that the United States is seeking "tangible action" by Hanoi toward pulling back its troops in South Vietnam before signing the peace agreement.

State Department spokesman Charles Bray said Tuesday that reports from foreign diplomats that Canada, Indonesia, Hungary and Poland would be named to an international control commission to supervise the peace were "in the speculative category."

A spokesman for the Canadian foreign ministry said Canada has not been invited to participate, but that officials have discussed it and understand that Canada could be invited.

The commission would line up two communist nations and two noncommunist nations, replacing the old three-nation commission created to supervise the 1954 Geneva agreements on Indochina.

Presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger said last week that having the commission in the field at the time of the cease-fire would help guard against additional bloodshed.

McGovern Charges Amnesty Issue Is GOP Diversion

By R. GREGORY NOKES

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew has urged "deprivation of freedom" for draft-dodgers and deserters, but Sen. George McGovern says the Republicans are raising the issue of amnesty to make people forget about more important issues.

"His strategy is clear," McGovern said Tuesday of President Nixon's campaign. "If he can work up enough anger and fear over amnesty, perhaps the American people will forget about jobs and prices and taxes."

The latest Harris Survey Tuesday showed President Nixon had increased his lead over McGovern for the first time since early September, leading 60 per cent to 32 per cent among those polled.

McGovern, the Democratic presidential candidate, and Agnew both talked of amnesty during Tuesday campaigning.

Agnew, speaking at a sewer dedication ceremony in Warren, Mich., said: "I'm not at all concerned at attempting to unite the typical draft-dodger with the rest of the country."

"I'd rather see the rest of the country literally hundreds of thousands of people who did serve—united in a conviction that they did the right thing and that their country appreciates what they did," he said.

McGovern said at East Brunswick, N.J., that while he understands "the agony of a parent who has lost a son they love in this war... we cannot bring a single mother's son back from a Vietnamese grave by keeping another mother's son in Canadian exile."

McGovern has said he would not punish draft evaders once the war is ended and American troops and prisoners are home.

Sargent Shriver, the Democratic candidate for vice president, referred to the war Tuesday, saying he welcomed the prospect of a peace agreement, but added: "The price which we will have to pay for that piece of paper—which we don't have as yet—I think is exorbitant."

Campaigning in San Francisco, Shriver said: "If that's peace with honor, I'd like to know what surrender is." He also said, "I don't see any difference between what President Nixon announced and what he denounced four years ago. I don't see the difference between what he's got and what he used to call surrender."

"What I'm trying to say," Shriver added, "is that what we've gotten is not worth one American fellow dead or one dollar spent, much less four years of war and 20,000 lives and $60 billion."

President Nixon did not campaign Tuesday and has no appearances scheduled today. His staff announced he will go to Chicago, Oklahoma and Rhode Island Friday before returning to Washington. He's to leave for California on Saturday.

The President is scheduled to make a radio speech on urban problems today and a nationwide television-radio speech is scheduled Thursday night. The President and his wife will vote Tuesday at San Clemente, Calif., before returning to Washington to learn the election results, an aide said.

McGovern, who appeared in New Jersey and New York with Sen. Edward Kennedy Tuesday, will address a rally in New York's garment district today. He will fly later to Hibbing, Minn. and Chicago.

Shriver was in Portland, Ore., and planned to campaign today at Seattle; Missoula, Mont., and Champagne-Urbana, Ill.

Agnew, who dined with singer-actor Frank Sinatra Tuesday night, is scheduled to receive Israel's Medalion of Valor at a ceremony in Los Angeles tonight.

In other developments:

Several thousand antiwar demonstrators smashed windows, burned a car and clashed with police outside a Republican fund-raising dinner in Boston attended by Mrs. Nixon. A policeman was injured and there were at least seven arrests, but Mrs. Nixon, entered the building by a rear door.

Tuesday was the 29th wedding anniversary for Sen. and Mrs. McGovern. Mrs. McGovern spent most of the day campaigning with her husband.

A House Banking Committee report said that Kenneth Dahlberg, who donated $25,000 to the Republican campaign, was awarded a federal bank charter at Minnetonka, Minn., a month faster than usual. It said he named Nixon campaign finance chief Maurice H. Stans and Nixon campaign director Clark MacGregor as personal references on the charter application.

Shriver was in Portland, Ore., and planned to campaign today at

Reluctant City Fathers Pay For Babysitting

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (AP) — Is a baby sitter a legitimate city expense?

Yes, sometimes, the City Commission has ruled. The commission has ordered city administrators to pay the $25 baby-sitting bill that Commissioner Thea Barton ran up while attending a three-day conference in Lansing, the state capital.

The administrators had balked at paying for the baby sitter, who watched Mrs. Barton's three children until her husband returned home from work.

However, they remained firm on another point: Mrs. Barton would have to pay the baby sitter during regular commission meetings.

Almanac Forecasts Good Voting Weather

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS - Bad weather won't be an excuse not to vote Nov. 7, according to the Old Farmer's 1972 Almanac which predicts a clear, warm day for New England on Election Day.

February will be the coldest month, the Almanac says, averaging 30 degrees, one above normal. January will average 32 degrees, three above normal. Beyond the winter, the Almanac predicts a rainy summer topped off with a hurricane which will hit New England around Sept. 9, 1973.

Although the Old Farmer's Almanac sees a warmer than usual winter in most areas, it also predicts for the six New England states, the Almanac says: "This winter will not be harsh in coastal areas but in inland and mountain areas the total snowfall will be unusually high 600 to 725 inches in the Adirondacks."

In its detailed predictions for Nov. 1 to April 1, the almanac sees rain or snow or cold weather for almost all weeks except the Election Day period and for the handful of days from Dec. 7 to Dec. 11.

November is predicted to be wettest month with seven inches of precipitation, three inches more than normal.

CCLU Opposes Six-Man Jury Amendment

HARTFORD (AP) - The Connecticut Civil Liberties Union has said it opposes a proposed state constitutional amendment that would permit six-member juries in criminal cases.

Donald Holtman, chairman of the CCLU state board of directors, said the proposal would be "incalculably destructive" of the jury system, which is the "cornerstone of due process."

He said CCLU urges voters to reject the amendment and let "legislators know that what is needed is a restoration of the common law jury, not its further dismantling."

Rising Property Values Make Nixon A Millionaire

LOS ANGELES (AP) - President Nixon has become a millionaire since taking office, the Los Angeles Times has reported. The newspaper said in a dispatch from Washington Sunday that Nixon's personal worth climbed to $1,000,000 because of an increase in the market value of the Western White House in San Clemente. In a financial statement issued Sept. 16, Nixon placed his net worth at $765,118. The lower figure was arrived at because property was listed at cost value, a standard accounting procedure, the newspaper said. John D. Ehrlichman, Nixon's

Tax Study Tabs Costs

NEW HAVEN (AP) - A committee supporting President Nixon for re-election claims welfare reform proposals of Democratic candidate George McGovern would cost Connecticut families $2,619 more in federal taxes. The Committee for the Re-Election of the President said in a study received here Monday that the cost of McGovern's welfare program would be $12 billion. Subtracting the $2 billion saving the senator wants in defense cuts and tax reform, the result is $10 billion more to be paid in federal taxes, the committee said. The study didn't take other elements of McGovern's fiscal proposal into account. The amount to be paid by the average Connecticut family was calculated on the basis of the ratios in effect for the 1969 returns. The committee didn't list increases for taxpayers filing single returns. The report was disputed by Sheldon M. Israel, press secretary for the McGovern campaign in Connecticut. He said economists like Paul W. McCracken, who advised Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., during his presidential campaign in 1964, predicted that the McGovern fiscal program would raise taxes an average of 8 per cent while Nixon's would cause an 11 per cent increase.

Our Poor Congressmen

Is your Congressman worth $50,000 a year? Representative Morris Udall, Arizona Democrat and enthusiastic liberal with federal funds, predicts it is the amount that will be allowed next year under the automatic pay increase plan for Congress and top officials of the executive and judicial branches.

Udall offered the plan that gave Congressmen a 41 per cent boost from $30,000 to $42,500 in 1969. He also is author of a law under which federal employees have received four salary increases in four years and are due to get another next year.

Under Udall's automatic plan, a commission of nine private citizens is appointed every four years to review salaries. If the President has no objections, he passes the commission's recommendations to Congress, which can let the boost go through without having to vote on them.

This will save them the costs of outraged letters from constituents that came in the wake of 1969's big boost. Clever, what?

Focus On Connecticut

For a brief period Tuesday night, the nation will focus on Connecticut because it has a tradition of reporting its election returns early.

Tradition has it too that it is a strong Democratic state which will add to the interest of the election analysts who will be seeking trends in the Democratic and unaffiliated votes. Republican votes will be watched also but with the President the front-runner, little if any defections are expected.

One of the first things the analysts will be looking for will be whether or not there is any significant tally in the vote cast for Democratic congressional candidates and those cast for the McGovern-Shriver national ticket. This will provide a clue to ticket-splitting among Democrats and should there be a substantial number doing so in this state, projections will be made as to the impact on the national ticket in other Democratic and industrialized states.

While the nation may be watching for the results of the Connecticut vote; you, and you alone, have the decision to make in the privacy of the voting booth.

Vote for the candidates and party, or parties, of your choice Tuesday. While you have the right to stay at home such an action is an abdication of civic responsibility and contrary to the principles of a democracy.

WASHINGTON — It was President Nixon's judgment, privately expressed before the Democratic Presidential nomination, that if he had a 10-point margin over his Democratic opponent by early September, Hanoi would be compelled to bargain in earnest for a compromise Vietnam settlement.

In fact, Mr. Nixon was running 34 points ahead of Sen. George McGovern in the Gallup poll as of Aug. 30. It was, then, no surprise either to him or his negotiator, Henry Kissinger, when Le Duc Tho, Hanoi's negotiator, offered on Oct. 8 in Paris the outline of a peace pact that collapsed North Vietnam's granite demands for virtual American surrender.

Indeed, the terms of the bargain hammered out by Kissinger and Tho still in power as president, the agreement simply states that an "administrative structure" in English by Le Duc Tho (himself) should be set up to include elements of the Thieu government and South Vietnamese communists and neutralists to organize elections. No date is set, but the agreement provides that elections can't be held until all three factions are in agreement.

Why, then, did Thieu raise such a huge public ruckus during Kissinger's latest visit to Saigon last week, screaming like a stuck pig that he would never accept a coalition government?

Thieu's game was largely psychological. As we reported last week, he has been terrified that withdrawal of American military force would be taken as a signal of his imminent demise. By shrieking against terms not actually included in the agreement, he would claim credit for having removed those terms, demonstrating his influence in Washington and elevating his prestige in Saigon.

Hanoi spoiled Thieu's game with its premature announcement, but at this writing the agreement is still in effect. Accordingly, Mr. Nixon's political judgment seems vindicated that Hanoi, under pressure from Peking, Moscow and the brutally effective American bombing and blockade, would agree to a genuine compromise now, rather than dealing with a rejected and untested President Nixon. That is not to rule out, however, a new period of tension in the weeks ahead.

Such a renewed conflict with the United States is undeniably possible. But the agreement offers certain safeguards. For example, Hanoi has agreed to limit the U.S. removal of its vast air arsenal from fields in Thailand. That air power remains a threat against North Vietnam. Moreover, it is assured that at least part of Hanoi's force now in the south will be redeployed to Saigon. Hanoi's claim of "victory" in the U.S. agreement with the U.S. is that Mr. Nixon and Hanoi now have given Thieu a brighter future than seemed possible. And an exit has been found out of the hideous war that should have been taken as a signal

Congratulations to Economy Electric Supply Co. We were among the many who attended an open house at the Main Street firm and the renovation is certainly an asset to Downtown Manchester. When you get a minute, friends and neighbors, stop in and take a look.

A reminder to please don't send us any letters for our Open Forum column of a political nature. We won't publish such letters after tomorrow and three times we have called attention to the fact that the letter deadline was yesterday.

The reason is simple. We don't wish to be a party to any last-minute agitation on any political candidate or issue. The campaign has been long one and the electorate has had ample time to write letters to the editor.

Most newspapers get an avalanche of mail on the eve of election and it generally hits the desks of editors and reporters, of course, if they don't pertain to Tuesday's election. And after the voting, you can once again have your say on any topic.

For what it's worth: A California man is suing a Beverly Hills beauty salon for $100,000. The fellow claims he was given a permanent tan at his hair dressing salon last April which made all his hair fall out, permanently damaged his scalp, and caused him "great physical pain, embarrassment and humiliation." The salon is suing him for $100,000.

In addition, the big oil companies pay about 3 per cent of their income in taxes. Yet, instead of plugging the tax loopholes which allow these big corporations to get away without paying their fair share in taxes, the Nixon Administration gave big business an investment tax credit and some other tax breaks worth billions of dollars.

Trade sources estimate that shoplifters steal three billion dollars worth of merchandise a year from American retailers. Since this loss is passed on to the consumer in the form of higher prices, the public is actually subsidizing this kind of crime.

The retail industry says the average inventory loss is 15 per cent which includes breakage and employee pilferage as well as shoplifting.

A firm reports it apprehended 29,956 shoplifters in 1971. One resident in Andover writes that she is disturbed over the school boy pranks of painting and ruining campaign signs. She referred to the painting of STOP over the Nixon Now sign on Route 8 in Andover.

She makes a good point though when she comments: "Although it is the right of every person to express an opinion, whatever the topic might be, it shouldn't infringe on the rights of others trying to do so. No one opinion is better than others but such an expression can only further separate an ever broadening gap in generations and life itself."

The American Legion nationally is spearheading a movement to restore Veterans Day to Nov. 11 and Memorial Day to May 30. Currently, six states, Oklahoma, Mississippi, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana and West Virginia, observe Veterans Day Nov. 11.

The November edition of the Legion magazine says: "Certainly if we are going to ignore V Day and VJ Day and the Korean cease-fire and the hoped for Vietnam war end, one is entitled to ask what is wrong with Nov. 11 as the single day upon which to lump together their symbolic meaning. A war did end on that day, but no war was ever in ended on the fourth Monday in October."

It seems the Legion will get a lot of support in the drive to restore the two dates, more so probably for the Veterans Day holiday.

In advance of Tuesday's election, perhaps this poem entitled The First Vote and from the Legion magazine will give our young people something to think about. "The time has come to do my thing. I am old enough to vote. I'm 18 now, and I'm mature. This really is a joke. 'I must really look stunning for my big day, in that small feeble light. But before I get started, I must do one more thing. Like ask my Dad who's running.'"

Meanwhile, the polls we have seen forecast that our young people voting for the first time will pretty much follow the same pattern of Mom and Dad.

A Budget Look
The presidential election less than a week away, this is a good time to look at the complex national budget. It is interesting to note that the Nixon administration has tried to do a billion dollar deep into debt while at the same time vetoing legislation that would protect people from losing their life savings in the event of natural disaster, legislation that would expand veterans health care benefits, and legislation that would aid in the rehabilitation of those suffering physical disabilities.

One who has asked the question, why can't our government be responsive to the needs of people without piling up such a debt?

Part of the answer lies in our federal tax system. Though the tax burden is not too heavy, yet, in addition to high taxes, many large corporations and wealthy people are not carrying their share of the burden. Last year, for example, earned a profit of $1,500,000,000 without paying any income taxes.

Some 115 persons with an income of over $200,000 paid no income taxes and J.P. Getty paid less than $100,000 in taxes on an income of $100,000,000.

On the other side of the coin though we have been told that the programs for men are the "in" thing and very much the "coming" thing.

The Manchester Chamber of Commerce has updated its slide presentation of Manchester. The previous presentation was a good one, but the new slide show is better. The presentation is a project of the Chamber's Public Relations Committee headed by Arthur H. Dauer. It is available for showing to interested clubs and organizations by contacting the chamber.

Kissinger Has Owl-like Sense Of Humor

By LEWIS GULICK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Blue-gray eyes peered owlishly through horn-rimmed glasses at reporters jammed into the White House press room. The deep voice tinged with a guttural German accent was explaining the Vietnam settlement plan.

"There is a very long and complex section on international supervision," Dr. Henry A. Kissinger said, "which will no doubt occupy graduate students for years to come."

For a fleeting moment the spell high drama, the suspense cast with word that at least "we believe peace is at hand," broke as reporters laughed.

At 49, Henry Kissinger, a curly-haired refugee from Nazi persecution of the 1930s clearly relishes a role he probably never dreamed of as a soccer-playing youngster in his native Fuentebarría, He is President Nixon's prime adviser on foreign affairs. Brought to New York City in 1953 by his Jewish parents when they fled Hitler's Germany, Kissinger studied at the City College of New York to become an accountant. But the U.S. Army called him in World War II and he became Pvt. Kissinger. He headed for Harvard in 1946 and won degrees through Ph. D. He was a brilliant student and stayed at Harvard to teach as a specialist in foreign affairs.

One book by Prof. Kissinger in particular—Nuclear Weapons and Foreign Policy, published in 1957—helped establish him internationally as an authority on application of modern military power in today's world. He argued against John Foster Dulles' "massive retaliation" doctrine and in favor of "flexible response," a concept later adopted by Washington strategists.

The ambitious Kissinger got into politics, too, as a foreign policy adviser to Nelson A. Rockefeller when the New York governor bid for the Republican presidential nomination. President-elect Nixon hired the aide of his erstwhile rival in 1968.

Since then the energetic Kissinger has been intimately identified with virtually every major Nixon foreign-policy venture—the Peking spectacular, precedent-breaking deals with the Soviets, the "détente" against India in last December's South Asian war, and of course as super-ency in the secret sessions with North Vietnam.

Perching at his elevation can be precarious, as Kissinger will admit. The 5-foot 9, 175-pound Kissinger accepts the challenge with gusto.

"People think responsibility is hard to bear," he says. "It's not; I think that sometimes it is the absence of responsibility that is harder to bear."

But Kissinger also makes use of a quick wit, as when he briefed newsmen on the grain deal with the Soviets, and gave an incorrect date for the Communist secretary's visit to Moscow.

Vatican Sets New Annulment Rates

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican has made marriage annulments in its tribunal cheaper with new rates to go into effect Wednesday. The move drew immediate accusations that the Roman Catholic Church was competing with divorce courts.

The Vatican confirmed the new judicial fees after a Rome newspaper printed the text of the circular letter by which Italy's nine Cardinal Bishops, the president of the Sacred Rota informed bishops around the world of the decision.

"In the Vatican," Rome's Il Messaggero said, "they seem engaged in a competition campaign. Now they tell people who want to break up their marriage: with us, it is cheaper."

The new fees range from $255 to $310 for attorneys. Trial expenses range from $45 to $55 for one trial. Each marriage case, however, requires at least two trials for a ruling to become final.

Under the new system, Vatican authorities will strictly control the fees that those seeking an annulment have to pay to attorneys. The attorneys will be paid through the court and within the minimum and maximum fee limits set in the letter.

"This, the letter said, is aimed at eliminating the abuses which in this field have been alleged or have actually taken place," giving start to "rumors which really damage the Church." Priests and lay lawyers included in a Vatican list of authorized attorneys of the Sacred Rota tribunal are known to charge up to $17,000 or more for each marriage case.

The circular letter came after two papal decisions had made annulments easier recently. In a motu proprio — a decree by his own hand — Pope Paul VI revamped procedures to speed up court activities last year. Later he widened the number of cases in which the Church would declare a marriage void to cover effects of narcotic and alcoholic addiction, schizophrenia and other mental conditions.

Democrats Favored To Keep Control Of House

WASHINGTON (AP) — Widely expected redistricting and the outcome of the presidential election pose equally major concerns over next week's voting to fill 65 House seats.

Veteran strategists for the two major political parties are fairly close to agreement that the Republicans will not upset enough Democrats to win control of the House.

To take charge, the GOP, which now has 177 members, would have to unseat Democrats in 39 districts and retain two Republican seats now vacant. Democrats hold 225 seats and have one vacancy.

Four years ago, when President Nixon was elected, Republicans had a net gain of five seats, taking their total to 192. The largest recent gain for the GOP was in the 1968 election, from a low of 140 to 187.

Not since 1953 have Republicans controlled the House.

Strategists of the two parties predict the outcome this way:

Republicans look for a net gain of about 25 seats; Democrats are reconnoitered to a net loss of from 12 to 15.

There is substantial agreement on which contests may produce upsets.

Democrats go into the elections with 38 candidates having no opponents and nine others facing no major-party opponents. Republicans start with seven members unopposed and one opposed by a minor-party candidate.

Close to 1,000 persons are seeking the 325 contested seats. Some of the imponderables include:

- The size of the vote and the winner of the presidency. There is agreement that polls showing Nixon with a substantial edge over Sen. George McGovern are accurate. But the experts say polls conducted by House candidates and private organizations reflect a closer division between the two parties. Only a handful of unexpected size by Nixon would be likely to sweep the Republicans into control, the forecasters claim.
- Redistricting has reshaped the boundaries of districts in about 40 states. New voters have been added in some cases, and old ones shifted in others.
- There are 11 entirely new districts: five in California, three in Florida and one each in Arizona, Colorado and Texas.

Incumbents will not be on the ballot in 57 districts on Nov. 7. In three districts, pairs of incumbents are opponents.

—The voting habits of young people in a national election have not been tested fully; the constitutional amendment lowering the voting age to 18 was not in effect in 1968.

—The emotional reaction to pending settlement of the war in Indochina cannot be measured.

In the closing weeks of the campaign, Democrats have been without the services of one of their most able campaigners. Majority Leader Hale Boggs of Louisiana was lost on a plane trip colleague. His speaking engagements for other Democrats were booked right up to Nov. 7.

Redistricting is the basis for victory predictions by both political parties in many areas.

In Iowa, which lost one seat because of reapportionment, incumbents Neal Smith, Democrat, and John Kyl, Republican, are running in the same district. Republicans claim Kyl has the edge.

A similar situation exists in Texas, where incumbents Graham Purcell, Democrat, and Robert Price, Republican, are running in the 13th District.

In Wisconsin, incumbents David Ober, Democrat, and Alvin O'Konki, Republican, are paired against each other because of redistricting.

Community Colleges To Resist State Budget Restrictions

BRIDGEPORT, Conn. (AP) — About 50 faculty representatives of the state's 13 regional community colleges have banded together to combat what they called the state administration's mounting fiscal demands.

Claiming that Gov. Thomas J. Meskill's proposed 3.3 per cent increase for the 1973-74 fiscal year would jeopardize education at the community college level, the representatives formed the Connecticut Higher Education Coordinating Committee, according to group spokesman Eric B. dePendleton.

"If a budget requested by Meskill were implemented, 53 fulltime faculty members would be dismissed, 15 others would be reduced to part-time status and the teaching load for the remaining full-time instructors would be increased from 24 hours per week to 30 hours weekly," said dePendleton who is an associate professor of history at Norwalk Community College.

Henry E. Pagan of Stratford, chairman of the Board of Trustees of Regional Community Colleges, said the board had prepared a budget in excess of $22 million for 1973-74, an increase of slightly more than 10 per cent over the current school year.

"That budget would permit a normal increase in the number of students and was accepted by the state Commission for Higher Education," Pagan said.

The board chairman said in addition, Meskill has asked the trustees to prepare another budget with no more than a 3.3 per cent increase over the current year.

"Reluctantly, the board complied," he said, "mainly to show (the administration) the negative effect of such a budget on the community college system."

According to Pagan, the second budget points out that in addition to increasing the faculty teaching load, yearly salary increments would be cut and no additional students could be accepted in the community colleges next September.

"This cutback, if it comes about, is not something which has been done by the board of trustees," he said.

Judge Defers Action On IBM Case Motion

NEW YORK (AP) — A federal judge has reserved decision on a motion by International Business Machines Corp. for a trial to determine the scope of the computer market and IBM's share in it.

An IBM lawyer asked Chief Judge David M. Edelman of U.S. District Court Monday to separate that issue from the Justice Department's antitrust suit against IBM and call it to trial as soon as possible.

Thomas D. Barr, the lawyer, said resolution of this issue would speed up the suit and create a procedure that would be a model for other courts to follow in similar antitrust cases.

The Justice Department filed a complaint against IBM in 1969 and announced earlier this month it sought to divide IBM into several competing units because the giant firm was allegedly monopolizing the market.

Barr said the Justice Department was considering the firm as the total industry although he asserted, scores of competing electronic data processing companies have entered the market in recent years.

AKRON, Ohio (AP) - A den member wanted to find a good spot for her 15 Cub Scouts to watch a soap box derby parade. So she handed her charges into a vacant parking space, passed a rope around them, then dropped a dime into the parking meter.

An Irish policeman ordered them all back on the sidewalk, to which she firmly responded, "Parking is allowed on this side of the street and the law doesn't say what kind of parking I've got my dime and we're going to stay."

Students Get Hare In Cooks

PRETTY PRAIRIE, Kan. (AP) - Students at Pretty Prairie High School almost got an unscheduled rabbit dinner recently.

Cooks reporting for duty Monday morning, discovered that someone had broken into the school over the weekend and left three live rabbits imprisoned in the kitchen.

The rabbits apparently were not harmed, but when the cooks later heated up the ovens, the smell of burning rabbit hair flooded out.

"We've got a couple of disgruntled cooks," said Principal Douglas Mitchell. "I think if we catch the person who pulled the trick, we'll just turn them over to the cops."

The Rham Band also held elections and chose Paula Bergenholtz as president; Colleen Shannon, vice president; Ann Megson, secretary; and Karen Bergeron, treasurer.

Heralding Politics

By Sol R. Cohen

The Connecticut Chapter of NOW (National Organization of Women) is circulating lists of Connecticut legislators labeled "Your Oppressors in the State Legislature."

Addressed to "Feminists," the list names those state senators and representatives who "voted against women and against women's Civil Liberties issues, especially those who voted for a stricter abortion law and against the Women's Equal Rights Amendment."

The circular says, "It's your turn to vote in November."

The Connecticut Chapter of the American Committee for U.S. Justice, whose chairman is Dr. Daniel P. Purcell of Manchester, is endorsing First District U.S. Rep. William Cotter for reelection.

The committee is backing all legislators who, in word and deed, are helping the Irish cause.

And, the Connecticut Committee to Re-elect the President has announced the formation of Eastonian-Americans, Ukrainian-Americans, Armenian-Americans, Lithuanian-Americans and Italian-Americans to Re-elect the President.

Valno Parron of Manchester has been named state chairman of the Eastonian-American group.

Atty. Marshall Motz, who lives in Bloomfield and has his office in East Hartford, is the Democratic candidate for state senator from the 8th District.

Atty. Motz is the son of Joseph Motz, owner of Motz's Supermarket. He is a former member of the Manchester law firm of Lester, Rottner, Karp and Piepler and resided in Vernon at the time.

The Manchester Republican Town Committee will conduct a "Pep Rally" Thursday night.

Coffee Shop Opens At Library Friday

By Sol R. Cohen

A "Coffee House" designed to encourage rap sessions for young adults will start operations at the Rockville Public Library Friday from 7 to 9 p.m.

For students in Grades 7 through 12, the Coffee House will feature resource people on specific themes of interest to this age group. Friday's program will consist of two folk singers, Ruth Bowman and Kim DeCarli, both of Rockville. Attendance will be limited to 60. Free tickets are available at the library.

Coffee, doughnuts and cider will be served during the evening. It is hoped that the Coffee House can be held more often as its popularity increases. The young adults will have a voice in organizing the theme of future meetings.

Wall Disney movie for the children in Grades 3-8. "The Shaggy Dog" will be shown at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. Free tickets are available at the junior library.

An election day special will be held Tuesday for children in kindergarten through Grade 4. The film, "The Red Bullion," will be shown at 1 p.m. and 3 p.m. Free tickets will be available at the junior library starting Nov. 1.

A major fund-raising party will be held Friday for Estelle Flanagan, Democratic candidate in the 11th Senatorial District. It will be from 8 p.m. to 1 a.m. at the Irish-American Club, Commerce St., Glastonbury. Tickets to the reception-dance are $5 each.

Tickets may be obtained from Deputy Mayor Pascal Prignano and Patricia Moynihan in Manchester; Mary O'Hara and Robert Myette in South Windsor; Phyllis Keefe in Hebron; Beatrice Kowalski in Andover; Rose Fowler in Coventry; and Lillian Harwin and Alan Hoffman in Bolton.

Roger Hillman, Democratic candidate in the Second Congressional District, has called for creation of a "Cable TV City" in the district.

Mr. Flanagan has announced that one of the first pieces of legislation she will introduce, if elected, will be one for exempting children's clothes up to the age of 15 from the sales tax. The exemption now is to age 10.

She insists the state would benefit, because it would cut down on the number of people who travel to Massachusetts to buy children's clothes.

Other guests will include State Senatorial candidate Michael Riley, and Cynthia Wilson and his Six, candidates for State Representative in Vernon's other two districts.

Vernon Grange, organized in 1886, will celebrate its 86th anniversary Friday at the Grange Hall, Rt. 20. The special program will start at 8 p.m. under the direction of Mrs. Charlotte Purinton, lecturer.

The junior grange will meet Saturday at 2 p.m. at Grange Hall. A workshop will be conducted for all members.

Book Review

By Sol R. Cohen

one does not agree with his assessment of the level of conducting during his tenure. A book is fun to read in which the author is frank about his opinions of others, as Sir Rudolf certainly is, although a couple of times we found Sir Rudolf just nasty. He says, "There was a brief fight a while back about Donatelli's guests, which was a project Montserrat Cahille very much wanted to undertake for us; but we finally accepted the fact that Beverly Sills of the City Opera, having been born in Brooklyn, was entitled to priority in the portrayal of British royalty."

Since the queens were English and Donatelli Italian, one wonders why Sir Rudolf didn't mention that Miss Cahille was born in Barcelona along with his sneer at Miss no other artist has had such an odd description of his work. But the illustrations, when studied carefully, tell their own story, and it is a very interesting one.

Miles A. Smith Associated Press

5000 NIGHTS AT THE OPERA. By Sir Rudolf Bing. Doubleday, 300 Pages. $10.

"Sir Rudolf Bing, knighted by the Queen of England in 1971, was general manager of the Metropolitan Opera from the fall of 1950 to the spring of 1972. Now he has brought out his memoirs, about that time, and of course, about his life before."

"Sir Rudolf could be charming when he wanted to be but more often, it seems from the book, he chose to be autocratic, haughty, acerbic and witty with a sting in it. He tells his version, or his side, of some of the (among opera buffs) anecdotes. He tells some we hadn't heard, for instance when Secret Service men asked him to leave the girls in 'La Boheme,' because President Eisenhower was going to attend that opera. Sir Rudolf's reply: 'The girls die of consumption. It isn't contagious at a distance.'"

He explains some things this generation had wondered about, such as why Lucie Arnaz was cast in "Peter Grimes." Obviously, the more interested one is in the workings and personalities of the Metropolitan Opera, the more interested one is in a memoir by its recent general manager."

The central theme seems to be the way in which Mr. Maple gets the upper hand in the game of infidelity.

The longest piece, called "I Am Dying, Egypt, Dying," is supposed to be an allegory about America's foreign policy.

Uplike is not very good on either foreign policy or allegory, so you can skip that one.

There are also some fairly good items in the old stream-of-consciousness style, in which a character's thoughts delineate his feelings.

Book Review

By Sol R. Cohen

one does not agree with his assessment of the level of conducting during his tenure. A book is fun to read in which the author is frank about his opinions of others, as Sir Rudolf certainly is, although a couple of times we found Sir Rudolf just nasty. He says, "There was a brief fight a while back about Donatelli's guests, which was a project Montserrat Cahille very much wanted to undertake for us; but we finally accepted the fact that Beverly Sills of the City Opera, having been born in Brooklyn, was entitled to priority in the portrayal of British royalty."

Since the queens were English and Donatelli Italian, one wonders why Sir Rudolf didn't mention that Miss Cahille was born in Barcelona along with his sneer at Miss

no other artist has had such an odd description of his work. But the illustrations, when studied carefully, tell their own story, and it is a very interesting one.

5000 NIGHTS AT THE OPERA. By Sir Rudolf Bing. Doubleday, 300 Pages. $10.

"Sir Rudolf Bing, knighted by the Queen of England in 1971, was general manager of the Metropolitan Opera from the fall of 1950 to the spring of 1972. Now he has brought out his memoirs, about that time, and of course, about his life before."

"Sir Rudolf could be charming when he wanted to be but more often, it seems from the book, he chose to be autocratic, haughty, acerbic and witty with a sting in it. He tells his version, or his side, of some of the (among opera buffs) anecdotes. He tells some we hadn't heard, for instance when Secret Service men asked him to leave the girls in 'La Boheme,' because President Eisenhower was going to attend that opera. Sir Rudolf's reply: 'The girls die of consumption. It isn't contagious at a distance.'"

He explains some things this generation had wondered about, such as why Lucie Arnaz was cast in "Peter Grimes." Obviously, the more interested one is in the workings and personalities of the Metropolitan Opera, the more interested one is in a memoir by its recent general manager."

Vernon Fund Drive Lagging For Red Cross

The local American Red Cross fund drive is in trouble, according to Harvey Desruisseaux, chairman of the drive for the Nathan Hale Branch.
Desruisseaux expressed concern with the "disappointing funds already received." He commented, "I wonder if people have any idea of what the Red Cross does for them personally, continually."
According to Mrs. Elizabeth Spurling, director of the local branch, besides the regular daily delivery of the blood requested by hospitals there is an army of emergency volunteer drivers throughout the state who respond to unexpected needs for blood.
Mrs. Spurling added that in Vernon alone there are 29 volunteers who are apt to be on the road any time of day or night to pick up blood in Hartford and deliver it to Rockville General Hospital or Johnson Memorial Hospital in Stafford Springs. She said that during October these volunteers made 19 such WESTPORT (AP) — The mayors and selectmen of six towns and cities along the old Post Road have asked Gov. Thomas J. Meskill for $400,000 from the Highway Fund to spruce up the highway.

Westport First Selectman John Kemish said the road has "been allowed to deteriorate" while the state "has concentrated on limited-access roadways."
The money would be used for plantings and landscaping, improving the center strip, replacing trees and general beautification from Stafford to Stamford, Kemish said.

Carruthers Asks Reform In Welfare

A pledge to support welfare reform at every level of government, has been made by Thomas G. Carruthers, Republican candidate for the office of Senator from the 38th District.
Carruthers termed Connecticut's welfare program "outdated and the state as having the image of being a 'welfare haven.'" He added that presently the federal government reimburses the states with approximately half of the amount paid to welfare recipients. He explained that because there is a wide disparity between amounts given in various states, it has been to the advantage of some people to move to Connecticut, which provides higher welfare payments.
"If national eligibility requirements are nationalized, minimums and maximums were adopted it would reduce the need for Connecticut to support the needy of other states," Carruthers maintained. "We have a moral obligation to get assistance to those who truly deserve it, however, we must do all possible to decrease the incentive for people to come to Connecticut for the sole purpose of collecting welfare benefits and lessen the image of Connecticut being a 'welfare haven,'" he added.

Carruthers further urged increased assistance to the aged, disabled and blind, in both dollars and facilities. "If President Nixon's welfare reform program had been passed by the just now adjourned 92nd Congress, we would have come a long way toward reform in a program much in need of reform and the resulting savings in tax dollars would be more than enough to pay for it," he explained.

Democrat-controlled Congress, we would have come a long way toward reform in a program much in need of reform and the resulting savings in tax dollars would be more than enough to pay for it," he explained.

Columbia Don't Overspend, Selectmen Told

The Board of Selectmen has been advised by the town auditor William Lambert, that the selectmen should stay within appropriations voted at town meetings.

Selectmen overspent eight accounts in the budget for the fiscal year ending August 31. This is not the first year accounts have been overspent, since past town reports show this has happened on many occasions.

Lambert also suggested that selectmen designate depositories for town monies pursuant to state statutes. The town should take advantage of the exemptions on federal and state gasoline taxes including those for school buses, he said.

The Board of Education has already taken action on gasoline taxes for the buses.

Recommendations also included that the town keep a record of town-owned real property and major personal property. This has not been set up, but because of major repairs in equipment during the year, all town departments should make certain the records are updated to reflect the current statistics, the auditor said.

No money was spent from trust funds for care of certain cemetery lots during the fiscal year. "To comply with the requirements of these laws, we recommend that such work be done by Lambert said."

The building official should pay all monies received by him to the treasurer each month, accompanied by a detailed listing of the fees. This was not done during the last fiscal year, Lambert said.

Financial records are maintained in "a most competent manner on properly prescribed forms," and Lambert praised the work and records of the officials and employees who are charged with fiscal responsibility.

Cash receipts were promptly and properly deposited and could be traced to definite deposits or groups of deposits, Lambert said.

All bank accounts appear to have been reconciled monthly and no loose or improper methods in handling cash were observed.

Internal control appears to be adequate, the auditor said.

As of Aug. 31, the town could borrow for school and general purposes a total of $3,869, Lambert said. The figures are based on tax receipts for the fiscal year which ended Aug. 31, in accordance with provisions of the general statutes.

Burning permits will not be issued here by Richard Davis, fire warden or any of his deputies, until clarification of the new Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) ruling is obtained.

"This is a very sensitive subject and unless we have something definite from the state to clarify the subject, no permits will be issued for burning," said Davis.

DEP Commissioner Dan Lutfkin has told local officials that the decision to permit residents to burn leaves and random refuse is a matter of local discretion, except when an air pollution advisory, threatening atmospheric condition has been declared.

Davis, who has been in touch with the DEP office, is dissatisfied. He said the DEP has three different men on three different occasions and got three different answers.

"Things will be fine until something happens and if something goes wrong, we'll be held responsible," he said.

He added the uncertainty of the matter is not fair to the townspeople. He plans to talk with DEP officials again this week and then will call a meeting with town officials.

Honoree
Former School Superintendent Myron Collette was honored by the present Board of Education with a dinner social at Porter School last week.

Collette resigned Aug. 1 to take a post in Union. He was superintendent from 1961 to 1972.

Chairman of the board, Donald Tuttle, read a resolution expressing "their sincere appreciation for his service," and added that under Collette the school progressed to a high degree of accomplishment.

Tuttle presented Collette with a gift of a Swedish crystal cocktail set. Invited guests included former board members and principals, as well as office staff.

School Superintendent Arthur Bibby and former supervisor of instruction Mrs. Myrtle Morse.

Paying tribute to Collette were former principal George Petros, who is now a principal in Bolton, and administrator of a high school in New York. Former board members included Mrs. Phyllis Fox, Wallace Lohr, Miss Edith Haven, Guy Beck, Mrs. JoAnn

Pranks Keep Police And Firemen Busy

Halloween-related pranks and vandalism hit Manchester as usual last night, keeping police and firemen busy throughout the night.

Also attending were the present principal, Clarence Edmondson and Joseph Markoff, administrator.

Trumbull Gazette
The first issue of "The Jonathan Trumbull Gazette" was distributed at the quarterly meeting of the Jonathan Trumbull Service Unit, recently. The unit serves this town and Lebanon.

Local members include Mrs. Dolle Fischer, chairman; Mrs. Mary G. Guntz, organizer; Mrs. Judy Carini, consultant; Mrs. Belle Robinson, learning consultant; and Miss Jean Natsch, cookie chairman.

It was decided to continue the "win" Troop Tura-about Program, organized last year. Each troop in town will take a turn playing host and guest to its twin troop in Lebanon, thus bridging the two towns and enabling the girls to practice many of their Girl Scout promises.

Burke Explains Failure To Respond

HARTFORD (AP)—Charlie Burke, the George Wallace Party candidate for the 1st District Congressional seat, Tuesday said he didn't respond to a recent Common Cause questionnaire because "I found that it was questionable as to whether they were a pro-American or a pro-frog enterprise organization."

Burke was the only one of 43 Congressional candidates in Connecticut not to respond to the questionnaire, and after checking into the background of an organization that sends me a questionnaire, I found that it was questionable as to whether they were a pro American or a pro-frog enterprise organization," Burke said in a statement.

"I check into the background of an organization that sends me a questionnaire, and after checking into the background of Common Cause, I found that it was questionable as to whether they were a pro American or a pro-frog enterprise organization," Burke said in a statement.

"They have been financed by what I call 'insidious liberals' and members of the Council on Governmental Relations," Burke said. "They are trying to take America even faster than we are now proceeding down the road of socialism."

$7,000 in Goods Taken In Bissell St. Break

Thieves broke into the Manchester Tobacco Co. at 29 Bissell St. sometime Monday night and made off with more than $7,000 in goods—cigarettes, checks, cash, and candy.

An adjacent business establishment, the J. A. White Glass Co. in the same building, was also broken into Monday night. About $100 in cash was taken from their office.

Manchester Police detectives are investigating the two related breaks, but there are apparently no substantial leads yet.

Entry to both businesses was gained via a rear second-floor window, police said. The intruders cut a hole in the second-story floor, police said, and entered the Manchester Tobacco Co. storage area. Entry to the glass company was gained by smashing an attic door, police said.

The thieves apparently left by the same route, police said. Taken from the Manchester Tobacco Co. were: — 4,900 cartons of cigarettes (various brands) valued at $3,000; — $4,000 in checks made out to the Manchester Tobacco Co.; — $350 in cash; most of the cash within one-dollar bills.

At the J. A. White Glass Co., the thieves took about $100 in cash from an unlocked office safe. Nothing else was taken, police said, and the office was not ransacked.

The largest contractor, according to the Defense Department, were Lockheed Aircraft Corp., with awards of nearly $1.71 billion, and McDonnell Douglas, with $1.7 billion in contracts.

Canadian Leadership In Doubt

OTTAWA (AP)—Whether Pierre Elliott Trudeau or Robert Stanfield will be Canada's next prime minister remained in doubt today as political leaders and their advisers pondered the lightest general election battle in the nation's history.

Complete returns from Monday's vote gave Stanfield's Conservatives a one-seat edge—108 to 106—over Trudeau's Liberals in the new House of Commons. But the Conservatives were 25 seats short of a majority, and their advisers pondered the lightest general election battle in the nation's history.

Regional Expansion Minister Jean Marchand said the more affluent English-speaking provinces didn't like Trudeau's efforts to improve the lot of French-speaking Quebec and eastern Canada. The Liberals swept 56 of Quebec's 74 seats but failed to win a majority in any other province.

"Rich people don't like to pay for poor people," said State Secretary Gerard Pelletier, Environment Minister. Jack Davis said the Liberals ran a weak campaign that invited defeat. "We campaigned on a record, and you don't win that way," he said.

Chairman of the board, Donald Tuttle, read a resolution expressing "their sincere appreciation for his service," and added that under Collette the school progressed to a high degree of accomplishment.

Tuttle presented Collette with a gift of a Swedish crystal cocktail set. Invited guests included former board members and principals, as well as office staff.

School Superintendent Arthur Bibby and former supervisor of instruction Mrs. Myrtle Morse.

Paying tribute to Collette were former principal George Petros, who is now a principal in Bolton

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Mystery Mishap

At 7:13 p.m., in the main dining room of a large hotel, a mirror suddenly fell from the wall and landed on the head of an unnamed diner.

No one could figure out exactly why the mirror had fallen. Nevertheless the diner, painfully injured, filed a lawsuit for damages against the hotel.

He has no case," the management argued in court. "We cannot point to any specific thing we did wrong."

But the court upheld the man's claim.

"Mirrors do not ordinarily fall off walls," reasoned the court, "unless someone is negligent."

The court was invoking a famous legal doctrine known as res ipsa loquitur—"the thing speaks for itself." This doctrine is widely used when there is no direct, eye-witness evidence of an act of negligence. Weighing the odds, the law decides that an act of negligence—even though unseen—probably did occur.

Thus:

Using res ipsa loquitur, a court found negligence when a car parked on a steep slope, started to roll downhill. Chances were good, said the court, that the driver had neglected to set his brakes and cramp his front wheel against the curb.

Also using res ipsa loquitur, another court found negligence when a housewife encountered a piece of glass in a newly opened can of spinach. Chances were good, said the court, that someone in the canning factory had been careless.

But the mere fact that an accident has happened does not necessarily justify the use of the doctrine. Consider this situation:

A woman climbing down from a trolley lost her footing and fell to the pavement. Demanding damages later from the trolley company, she said the car had probably moved just as she was getting off.

But the court said there was an equal probability that she herself had simply failed to watch her step. With no odds in her favor, said the court, she could not use res ipsa loquitur to win her case.

Social Security

Q. My husband worked as a miner in the coal fields of West Virginia for over 20 years. He died seven years ago from black lung disease. Am I entitled to widow's benefits?

A. A widow of a coal miner may be eligible for benefits if her husband was disabled and died from black lung disease. It does not matter how long ago he died.

Q. I would like to file an application for black lung benefits but I have already filed for Social Security benefits. Can I file for both?

A. Yes, you should apply for black lung benefits even if you have filed for Social Security payments. You may be entitled to additional benefits.

Q. I filed for disability benefits last year but was turned down. Is there any point in filing for black lung benefits now?

A. Yes, black lung rules are different and you might qualify for black lung benefits even if you aren't eligible for Social Security disability payments.

Q. I'm retired and I get monthly Social Security checks for myself and my 17-year-old mentally retarded daughter. My sister told me her checks will continue even after she's 18. Is this true?

A. Yes, if your daughter qualifies for disabled child's benefits. You should call, write, or visit your East Hartford Social Security office at least three months before your daughter reaches 18 to see about continuing her checks on the basis of her disability.

Q. I am 70 years old and I collect Social Security retirement benefits. In June I had a heart attack. Can I also apply for Social Security disability benefits?

A. No. Disability benefits are not paid in addition to other monthly Social Security benefits.

Front and Center, Mr. Smith

The fellow who dreamed up the 1972 Manchester Midget Football League schedule rates a bow. The league will draw to close Friday night at Mr. Neko with the Patriots battling the Chargers for championship laurels. The Pats will go into the finale with a 4-1 win-loss record while the Chargers show four wins, no losses and one tie.

The winner will wind up with the title. If it's a deadlock, the laurels will go to the Chargers. Action starts at 7 o'clock. About that fellow who drew up the schedule, it was Harry Smith, a member of the league's Board of Directors and former director of Camp Kennedy. John Walsh, who has turned in a superb job of reporting the Midget League activities this season, passes along word that Bill Hayes and George Maloney, the former Little All-American while at St. Michael's, will be directing the Pats and Chargers respectively.

While rain on two Friday nights outed the attendance and the expected revenue - the league officers are hoping for a record turnout Friday night for the all-important championship scrap.

Two Times and Out

That was some rhubarb in last Saturday's New Britain High-New Haven Hillhouse football game in New Britain on which Coach Dan Casey twice took his team off the field after protesting decisions handed down by the officials. Seven minutes remained with the score tied 7-7 when the New Haven mentor waved his team to the sidelines for a second time. Earlier, his players convinced Dan Casey that the squad should continue play. It goes into the record book as a 1-0 decision for New Britain...Tom Kelley has lined up an invitational cross country race at the 1.5 mile new course at Tilling High tomorrow afternoon starting at 3:30. Dave Lemieux, a fine young runner with Manchester High's cross country team, is the son of Ed Lemieux, who was a schoolboy great while at Hartford Public High two decades ago...Pat Mistretta reports he had 25 out for his Manchester Community College basketball team and has cut the squad down to a dozen including three standouts, Ed Ernle Moore out of Windham, ex-Marine Stan Alexander from Coventry and Lamont Freeman, a Hartford High product...Ed Perry, MCC hoop standout last season, is now attending the UConn Branch in Norwalk. Perry averaged 18.3 points per game last year...Ruth Vest, who attracted attention here several years ago when she ran - and finished - in the Five Mile Road Race, is serving as manager of the cross country team at Trinity College this fall where she is a freshman. Miss Vest runs between five and 10 miles daily and most likely will be up as an unofficial starter in the Turkey Day classic here later this month.

Southpass Ross Grimaley of the Cincinnati Reds is only 21. He had a 14-8 record this year, his first full season in the majors.

Catcher Gene Tenace of the Oakland Athletics got Yogi Berra's autograph when Tenace was an eight-year-old youngster in Lucasville, Ohio.

Indian Booters Bow, Tie for CCIL Title

By Dean Yost

Manchester High's hopes of winning sole possession of first place in the CCIL soccer standings went out the window yesterday afternoon in ideal soccer weather as visiting Wethersfield High latched a 1-0 defeat on the Tribe.

The loss gave the previously unbeaten but once tied Tribe a CCIL record of 11-1-1. Overall Manchester is 11-2-1. Conard High, the defending CCIL champs, defeated Hall yesterday to give them a share of the title along with Manchester. Wethersfield, a well disciplined club, finished the season with an 11-2-0 mark, losing to both Conard and Manchester.

With 2:31 showing on the scoreboard clock, Wethersfield's Mark Hutziger netted the game's only goal as he booted a long low drive into the lower left portion of the MIS net, past the outstretched arms of goalie Ray Sullivan.

Manchester, with a blistering offensive performance throughout, hit everything from the goal cross bars to the goal posts. A fantastic save by rival goalie Jim Rossetta added to the shutout, his sixth of the year.

"We couldn't beg, borrow, or steal a goal out there today," commented Manchester's coach, Dick Danielson. "It was a hard played game, under ideal soccer weather. We completely controlled the tempo of the game. If we played the first half like we did the last half," Danielson added, "We would have won this one."

It's tough to name outstanding players when an entire team contributed a great effort, but Chris Saunders and Mike Yankowski on defense and Phil Stoneman, Blair Sitona, Werner Casco, Scott Wiggin and Greg DeNies on offense all performed outstandingly for the Tribe.

Manchester can't sit back on its laurels now. Saturday, while the CIAC tournament pairings are being decided, the Tribe will battle the Alumni at Memorial Field in a 2 o'clock game.

Two Angry Grid Teams Set to Meet

NEW HAVEN (AP) - Two angry and determined football teams, Dartmouth and Yale, will struggle Saturday to stay in the Ivy League title race.

Dartmouth Coach John "Jake" Croushank hinted at the tension Tuesday during a telephone interview in which he parried nearly all specific questions about his team's condition.

Yale Coach Carmen Cozza, who also was questioned through the phone, said Saturday's game in Yale Bowl is a "must" for each team.

Undeclared and untied going into last weekend, both teams failed to win. Yale lost 24-13 to Cornell while Dartmouth and undefeated Harvard tied, 21-21. Dartmouth is second in New England, Yale is fourth.

Cozza said his scouts reported that because of costly mistakes by both Dartmouth and Harvard during the televised game, the tie score generally reflected the quality of play.

As for the Cornell-Yale game, "We gave them a Christmas present," he said.

Yale fumbled eight times and two early booties caused Cozza to replace starting quarterback Boby Purrinton with sophomore Tom Doyle, who also had trouble holding.

Cozza has not yet said who will start Saturday.

Top Cheney Effort Not Good Enough

Cheney Tech, playing its best all-around game to date, tied Cromwell High 3-3 yesterday afternoon in Manchester.

Tech's star performer, Al Ivaldi, booted in a goal in the first quarter. Cromwell tied up the contest late in the final period. Neither club could sustain any kind of scoring opportunity in the two five-minute overtimes.

Cheney's captain, Ron Stet, Bruce Landry, and Ivaldi, all turned in outstanding performances. Sharples and Jim Nightingale passed well and Tony Jose played a fine game.

Cheney's record is 2-10-2.

Trin JV Booters Outscore MCC

Trinity College JV's and Manchester Community College soccer teams pulled out all stops yesterday in Hartford in a high-scoring game that saw the hosts winning 6-4. Trinity now sports the season's Manchester play Greater Hartford C.C. Saturday on the latter's field.

Trinity scored first on a deflected ball off the goal post with five minutes gone by in the first half. The Cougars rallied to tie the score two minutes later on Gary Taylor's goal.

The Bantams came back on two quick goals to take a 3-1 lead. Bob Campbell scored on a penalty kick to close the spread to 4-2 at halftime.

The hosts talked quick to open the second half of play only to have MCC's Ron Gorman score to close the score to 4-3. Trinity then applied its offensive power to win going away 6-4. Gorman netted the final Cougar goal.

No Rest Saturday For UC Eleven

HARTFORD (AP) - The University of Connecticut, recuperating from a 49-16 thrashing by Massachusetts over the weekend, will apparently get no rest this Saturday against the very tough Rutgers 11 in New Brunswick, N.J.

UC Coach Bob Casella admitted at a press luncheon Tuesday that his team is "kind of down" after losing to UMass Saturday because they viewed it as "a championship game."

The Yankee Mustangs handed the Huskies their first loss in Yankee Conference play against three wins and appear almost certain to capture the league's title.

"Rutgers is a very physical football team," said Casella.

No Longer Average Back, Larry Brown Now No. 1

NEW YORK (AP) - "I've been an average back for so long, I'm tired of it," an exhausted Larry Brown said sarcastically. "I'm working to be on top. Everybody's got a big-back theory, but size has nothing to do with it. It's heart and determination. I learned that long ago. I learned to run when I was small... in the ghetto."

As a running back, Brown hardly has impressive physical statistics - 195 pounds packed on a 5-foot-11 frame. As he says, though, it's not the size that counts but what one does with it. And Brown does everything with what he's got.

Ten days ago he rushed for 95 yards and caught passes for 100 more, scoring a pair of touchdowns in Washington's crucial 24-20 victory over Dallas. That performance brought him the selection a week ago as The Associated Press Offensive Player of the Week in the National Football League.

Last Sunday against New York, Brown outdid himself. He rushed for 100 yards, overhauled career-high 191 yards, 38 of them on a touchdown gallop, and caught a pair of passes for 43 yards.

All-Time Stars Due For Honor

NEW YORK (AP) - Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, the 7-foot-3 star of the National Basketball Association's Milwaukee Bucks, today joined the group of sports stars who will receive the Dewar's Award of Merit at a luncheon here Thursday.

Jabbar is one of the personalities featured in the new book, "Sports Immortals," written by the sports staff of The Associated Press and published by Prentice-Hall.

Among other all-time greats to be honored at the luncheon are Willie Shoemaker, the world's all-time winemaker jockey; auto racing ace A.J. Foyt; Johnny Weismuller, former Olympic swimming champion; all-time National Hockey League scoring champion Gordie Howe of the Detroit Red Wings; former NBA star Bob Cousy of the Boston Celtics; former heavyweight boxing champion Jack Dempsey and baseball's Willie Mays. Mrs. Babe Ruth will represent her late husband.

Howard Cozell of the American Broadcasting Company will serve as master of ceremonies.

When Sandy Koufax was inducted into baseball's Hall of Fame he paid a glowing tribute to ex-Dodger pitching coach Joe Becker. "He pushed me and embarrassed me, but he made me a pitcher," said the ex-outlaw. Koufax got seven records.

The Pittsburgh Pirates and New York Mets lost four league games to the 1972 baseball players' strike.

'No Names' Finally Have Name of Their Own Miami Defensive Unit Cited for Latest Win

MIAMI (AP) - Somebody was bound to find out who those Miami Dolphins "no-names" defenders were.

The National Football League has been finding out all season. And, as a result, the "no-names" finally have a name of their own.

The Associated Press named the entire defensive unit of the unbeaten Dolphins as Defensive Player of the Week Tuesday for its 23-0 win over Washington at the Baltimore Colts last Sunday.

Many of them are "no-names" to the average football fan - such as end Vern Den Herder, a second-year tackle whose previous claim to fame was playing for Central College in Iowa.

Other players are end Bill Stanfill, tackles Manny Fernandez, Jim Dunaway and Bob Hein; linebackers Nick Buoniconti, Doug Swift, Mike Koles and Bob Matheson; cornerbacks Tim Foley, Curtis Johnson and Lloyd Humphord, and safeties Jake Scott and Dick Anderson.

"I'm glad the 'no-names' got recognized," said Coach Don Shula, who has installed in them the idea that the opponent must be shut out to insure at least a tie for the Dolphins. They limited the Colts to just 78 net yards passing and 114 rushing.

Defense is a team proposition," said defensive coordinator Bill Arnsperger, who has been coaching under Shula since 1964. "It's hard for one person to play defense."

"That's why the 'no-names' like their job, because it credits all instead of individuals. As a team, we're the stingiest in the league, surrendering only 87 points.

Their heroes change week to week. Against Baltimore, it was Johnson who blocked a punt to set up a touchdown. Arnsperger is the guiding light of the defense and he seemed ready to pass out cigars when informed of The AP honor Tuesday.

"We won't be able to live with you this week," slighted offensive backfield Coach Carl Taseff.

Den Herder caught Colts' quarterback Marty Domres twice for losses and Fernandez sacked him once. Fernandez also recovered a fumble late in the game on Miami's 28-yard line to wreck the Colts' strongest threat.

Collegian Harriers Dead Last

Facing its biggest cross country test of the season, Manchester Community College harriers finished last in a quadrangular meet at the University of Connecticut yesterday, but gained some valuable experience.

North Conn. JV's won the meet based on points with 24 while Avery Point (branch of UConn) was second with 40 markers. Northwest Community College was third with 76 points and Manchester finished with 88.

Avery Point's Mike Myshka covered the 4.75 mile college course in 28:42 with UConn's Paul McLoughlin a second behind with a clocking of 28:43.

Undeclared UMass Gains in N.E. Poll

Undeclared Massachusetts picked up ground on Dartmouth and Harvard to maintain its grip on first place in The Associated Press New England college football poll.

The Minutemen, who are 6-0 on the season, took all 18 first-place votes, drawing the four that they did not receive last week. The vote was taken after Massachusetts rolled an easy 49-10 weekend victory over Yankee Conference challenger Dartmouth, 4-0-1, in second place following its 0-2-1 tie with Harvard, while the Crimson is in third place with a 3-1-1 record.

Fourth place went to Yale, which lost its first game of the season Saturday to Cornell, 24-13, while idle Boston College, 3-4, stayed in fifth place.

The other top 10 teams were Holy Cross, Bridgeport, Vermont, Boston University and Middlebury, in that order. Connecticut was dropped from the top 10, while Boston University, 2-5, gained entrance with successive wins over Temple and Rhode Island.

Others receiving votes: 1. Massachusetts (6-0) 180

The Cooper Hill Treatment Plant

One of the referendum questions to be voted upon next Tuesday is a proposed $500,000 bond issue for renovations to Manchester's Cooper Hill Treatment Plant.

The proposal is backed by most of Manchester town officials, including Jay Giles, superintendent of the water and sewer department. He has invited the public to an inspection of the plant, Sunday from 1 to 3 p.m., and has prepared the following list of questions and answers, to acquaint the voters of the problems and needs there:

QUESTION—What is the function of the Cooper Hill Plant and where is it?

ANSWER—The plant filters about two million gallons of water each day from the Globe Hollow Reservoir and delivers it to the town water system. The plant is located off Cooper Hill St., about half way between Pine and Cedar Sts.

QUESTION—Why does the plant need renovation?

ANSWER—The plant is about 40 years old, was not designed to treat water for domestic consumption, and is not equipped to treat and filter the Globe Hollow supply effectively. The plant was constructed by Chesney Bros. in 1916 to treat water for industrial purposes and functioned in that way until 1955, when it was purchased by the Town of Manchester Water Department.

After the purchase, pumping equipment was installed and the water department began delivering water to the town system, in order to supplement its other water supply sources. Because of its age and original design, however, the plant has not been capable of producing a completely satisfactory water supply—free of objectionable tastes and odors.

QUESTION—The cost of the renovation is estimated at $500,

This is the filter plant located off Cooper Hill St.

000. What will be done for that amount of money?

ANSWER—The plant will be furnished with new mixed-media filters (sand and anthracite), new piping and valves, a new electrical system, new pumps, chemical storage facilities, water testing equipment, and updating controls.

QUESTION—Why does the renovation need to be done?

ANSWER—The plant will provide service in the town system? ANSWER—The quality of the Cooper Hill water supply will be greatly increased. The new filters will permit the use of carbon to remove objectionable tastes and odors and will filter half again as much water as the old filters do now, giving the plant a capacity of three million gallons of water per day.

The emergency generator will insure that the water system will not "go dry" during a serious blackout.

The control instrumentation at the plant and the four wells will permit the proper and economical operation of those sources of supply by eliminating over-pumping and under-pumping situations.

QUESTION—Will the renovation of the Cooper Hill plant eliminate the need for a water ban during the summer months?

ANSWER—No, but it will definitely help. The renovation will include the installation of larger pumps which will help to supply the increased demand for water during the summer. The Nike water storage tank, which was put into service last June, was definitely a factor in the elimination of a water ban this year, and the Cooper Hill renovation will increase its effectiveness in the future.

QUESTION—If the renovation project affect the water service in the town system? ANSWER—The quality of the Cooper Hill water supply will be greatly increased. The new filters will permit the use of carbon to remove objectionable tastes and odors and will filter half again as much water as the old filters do now, giving the plant a capacity of three million gallons of water per day.

The emergency generator will insure that the water system will not "go dry" during a serious blackout.

The control instrumentation at the plant and the four wells will permit the proper and economical operation of those sources of supply by eliminating over-pumping and under-pumping situations.

QUESTION—How much will this renovation cost me if I have my own well or if I'm a customer of the water company in the North End of town?

ANSWER—Nothing. The bond for the renovation will be paid for by water revenue received from town water customers in the South End of town.

QUESTION—How much will this renovation cost me if I'm a Town Water Department customer?

ANSWER—Nothing more than you are now paying for water. The water rates will not be increased. They were increased two years ago in order that improvements such as the Cooper Hill renovation could be financed.

Recycling Pipe Made Of Recycled Waste Materials

HUNTINGTON, N.Y. (AP) — Sewer pipe made of crushed, recycled glass has been installed in a section of the sewer system of this Long Island community. The pipe was produced at Brookhaven National Laboratory where scientists have developed a process to convert nonreturnable bottles into useful products by mixing the glass with a liquid plastic. Each 40-inch length of 8-inch diameter pipe contains the equivalent of 118 beer bottles. Effects of its use on the sewer will be studied over the next several years. Brookhaven officials said Monday the pipe is stronger and lighter than conventional clay or concrete pipe and is potentially competitive on an economic basis.

Peace Pact Signing Date Uncertain

WASHINGTON (AP) — One week after Henry A. Kissinger's word that "peace is at hand" for Vietnam, still-unresolved difficulties are casting an aura of uncertainty over just when a final agreement might be reached. Last Thursday the presidential adviser said peace is within reach in "weeks or less" and a final negotiating session with North Vietnam should take "no more than three or four days." Vice President Spiro T. Agnew maintained the administration's confident attitude Wednesday, while not giving a specific timetable, in talking with newsmen at San Diego, Calif. "I think there will be a signing, although there are differences, but they will be hammered out," Agnew said. "The negotiations are encouraging." However, North Vietnam's Oct. 31 deadline for signing has passed and Hanoi has yet to say publicly when envoy Le Duc Tho might meet with Kissinger again. And U.S. officials hint Kissinger may have to travel to Saigon once more as well as to Paris before everything is wrapped up. It thus is becoming increasingly unlikely that a peace will be signed before next Tuesday's U.S. elections. And after that, whatever peace differences are left for a signing will have passed. China's Premier Chou En-lai voiced hope Wednesday for a settlement in a few days, but said the news "is not so good." Among the six or seven concrete issues Kissinger said remain is the deployment of an international supervisory contingent at the same time a cease-fire takes place. Secretary of State William P. Rogers called in the ambassadors from Poland and Hungary Wednesday to see about participation by their countries in the proposed four-nation group. A State Department spokesman said the discussion was exploratory and a final response from Poland and Hungary would be received in Monday's Canadian election, however, a Canadian official said his country's participation is now an open question to be decided by the new government. A Jakarta spokesman said Indonesia has no objection to the assignment. Canada had been expected to accept too. In the wake of the Trudeau government's defeat in Monday's Canadian election, however, a Canadian official said his country's participation is now an open question to be decided by the new government.
