It was back to individual cars or car pools today for most of the estimated 100,000 daily users of the Connecticut Company bus system in three major state cities including the Greater Hartford area. The drivers and mechanics went out on strike at midnight Friday and full impact of the strike was felt today. At issue is a tax subsidy for the firm which claims it is losing money. (AP photo)

Bus Impasse Continues

HARTFORD (AP) — Many commuters in three major Connecticut metropolitan areas found alternate means of transportation today because of a Connecticut Co. bus strike. There was no indication of an early settlement.

The three cities affected—Hartford, New Haven and Stamford—put into effect emergency plans to cope with a flood of additional cars and to provide some form of transportation for the elderly and school children.

Hartford police reported traffic heavy, but flowing. Stamford officials said there was little immediate impact.

In New Haven, one patrolman said traffic in the downtown area was "no worse than usual. In fact, with no buses along the curb traffic is moving better."

The Hartford City Council Sunday reiterated its plea for state money to subsidize ConnCo and two Republican legislative leaders indicated they would back Gov. Thomas J. Meskill's opposition to full bus subsidies.

The strike by the Amalgamated Transit Union began Saturday morning, but it wasn't until today that the company's normal 100,000 daily passengers found themselves without transportation. The strike came after the union had worked since Sept. 30 without a contract.

ConnCo, claiming weekly losses of $10,000, has refused to sign a contract unless it is guaranteed subsidies from the state or localities.

"I have exhausted every legal remedy to have those buses running tomorrow," Hartford Corporation Counsel Alexander Goldfarb told a meeting of the Hartford council Sunday.

Goldfarb said that even if the Greater Hartford Transit District agreed to accept Meskill's offer to pay 25 per cent of the deficit the strike would probably continue. The union has struck on a statewide basis, he said, and has fought any effort to split the bargaining unit.

"Only the state has the power and the funds to get service resumed," said William White, vice chairman of the nine-town Hartford district.

House Speaker-elect Francis Collins of Danbury and the majority leader of the 1973 Senate, Lewis Rome of Hartford gave emphatic "No's" Sunday when asked by newsmen if the 1973 General Assembly would consider the bus crisis.

Both men repeated a position often taken by Gov. Meskill—that legislation is already on the books permitting localities to form transit districts to regulate and pay for bus service.

"I don't think that the vast majority of legislators want to get the state in the operation of buses," said Rome.

Two Killed In Auto Accident

PLAINFIELD (AP) — Two Plainfield teenagers were killed and another injured early today when their small foreign car went out of control, hit a utility pole and turned over several times before coming to rest on its roof, police said.

Authorities identified the victims as the driver, Peter M. Chioria, 17, and John Holt Jr., 18.

Ronald Horton, 18, also of Plainfield, was injured and reported in fair condition at a hospital.

Ten Killed In Holiday Accidents

By The Associated Press

Traffic accidents accounted for 10 deaths in Connecticut during the four-day Thanksgiving weekend. Three teenagers died in a crash in the early hours of the holiday period and a Marlborough man died when his car plunged into the Connecticut River, police said.

The only day of the weekend in which no traffic deaths were recorded in the state was Friday.

Daniel L. Martino, 27, of Terryville, died at Hartford Hospital Sunday from injuries received in a two-car accident Saturday in Plymouth, according to authorities.

Waterbury was killed early Saturday when he jumped or fell from a car that was speeding away from a constable, police said. Another 14-year-old Waterbury boy, who was turned over to juvenile authorities, was driving the stolen car, police said.

Pete P. Gingras, 57, of North Windsor was killed Thursday night in a single-car mishap in Lebanon, police said.

Killed in a head-on collision Wednesday night in South Windsor were Diane Marques, 15, Richard N. Maslovicchio, 19, and Lynda J. Prunier, 17, all of South Windsor.

Leo Giroux, 49, of Newington died Wednesday night in a single-car accident in Berlin, police said.

In addition, Paul Danis, 68, of CosCob was killed in a three-car accident Thursday in Hillburn, N. Y., police said.

The Associated Press counted weekend accidental traffic deaths in Connecticut from 6 p.m. Wednesday until midnight Sunday.

Pakistan Releases Prisoners

LYALLPUR, Pakistan (AP) — President Zulfikar Ali Bhutto freed the 617 Indian prisoners of war in Pakistan today in an attempt to rally foreign pressure for the release of the 91,000 Pakistanis held by India.

"You are free from this moment," the Pakistani president told the Indians during a visit to their camp at Lyallpur, 175 miles south of Rawalpindi. He said it is now up to India to reciprocate by releasing the Pakistanis it holds but, "if not, then we can wait. We are brave people."

There was no immediate reaction from the Indian government. India has said it would return the troops and civilians captured during the war last December only with the consent of Bangladesh, and Bangladesh says Pakistan first must recognize formally its independence.

A Foreign Office spokesman said the Indian government would be notified officially today of Bhutto's action. He said it was hoped the freed men could go home in a few days.

Bhutto, sitting on the ground in a courtyard of the prison camp, told the Indians:

"You can go home happily and tell your people we want good relations with India. Do not think you have defeated Pakistan; Pakistan defeated itself. If there is another war, which I hope will not be, you will see how we fight."

Local Effects Of Bus Strike Reported Minor

By DOUG BEVINS (Herald Reporter)

Regular riders of Connecticut Co. buses in the Hartford area managed to get where they were going today, despite the bus strike, with no major problems reported.

Car pooling and emergency parking lots in Hartford relieved the transportation crisis, although traffic was heavy and many commuters probably late for work.

The strike by ConnCo's bus drivers started Saturday morning, but it wasn't until today that the full impact of the strike was felt.

An estimated 75,000 daily riders in three areas — Hartford, New Haven, and Stamford — are affected by the halt in bus service.

In the Manchester area, traffic was heavy today on interstate highways, but no tie-ups or major accidents were reported by State Police.

There were no accidents or traffic tie-ups in Manchester, according to local police, and Hartford Police reported no problems either.

The City of Hartford made available about 3,000 additional off-street parking spaces today, and offered shuttle buses from those lots to the State Capitol and downtown areas. Only 175 cars were parked in those spaces this morning, according to Hartford Police.

However, most downtown parking lots were full early this morning, police said.

The two emergency parking lots are at Colt Park (entrance on Wawarm Ave.) and Laurel St. north of Park St. The Colt Park lot can hold about 2,400 cars, and the Laurel St. lot has a 600-car capacity.

Shuttle buses, which are free, run from 7 to 9 a.m. and from 4 to 6 p.m.

Hartford Police have warned motorists that the usual on-street parking restrictions will be enforced.

In the Manchester area, three ConnCo routes — as well as the Burr Corners commuter buses, have ground to a halt.

Those three routes are the "B" Route (Hartford-Manchester via Silver Lane), the "Y" Route (Hartford-Manchester via Burnside Ave.), and the "Z" Route (Hartford-Rockville).

The total daily ridership on those three routes was recently estimated at about 4,500.

The Burr Corners-to-downtown Hartford commuter buses, which run Monday through Friday from 7 to 9 a.m. and return from 4 to 6 p.m., were averaging about 385 passengers per day last week. Those express buses, which started running in July, are subsidized by the state transportation department.

The consequences of the bus strike are apparently not too severe — bus transportation only accounts for a minor share of all Hartford area travel. According to a Capitol Region Council of Governments study, buses account for 3 per cent of all trips in the Hartford area.

Holiday Toll Set At 638 For The Nation

By The Associated Press

The nation's death toll for the four-day Thanksgiving holiday was 638.

Rain, snow, fog and high winds in various parts of the country made driving hazardous Sunday. Up to 3 inches of snow across the Great Lakes region snarled traffic, and gale force winds blew from Massachusetts to Maine.

The Associated Press traffic log was conducted from 7 p.m. EST Wednesday until 3 a.m. EST today.

The 1972 count was slightly higher than the 1971 toll of 607 deaths but less than the 764 in 1968.

The National Safety Council, which does not keep a weekend tally, had estimated that from 580 to 680 persons would die in traffic accidents over the holidays.

Thieu Showdown Speculated

CAMP DAVID, Md. (AP) — President Nixon scheduled his third meeting in as many days with Henry A. Kissinger today, possibly as a prelude to a showdown with the South Vietnamese on terms of a proposed Vietnam ceasefire.

Nixon, who flew to his Maryland mountain retreat here Sunday night after spending the weekend in New York City, arranged to confer during the afternoon with Kissinger, his chief negotiator to the secret Vietnam peace talks in Paris.

The meetings came amid speculation by administration sources that an interruption in the Paris peace talks may mean the United States has decided to tell South Vietnam that no more concessions can be won from North Vietnam in a ceasefire agreement.

The talks, which adjourned Saturday, are scheduled to resume Dec. 4.

Meanwhile, North Vietnam's official newspaper said hopes for peace have begun to dim following what it called an about-face by the United States and "insolent demands" by President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam.

In a broadcast monitored in Tokyo today, the Vietnam News Agency quoted an editorial in the newspaper Nhan Dan as saying:

"The about-face of the American side, which refuses to sign the already-agreed-upon accord on the date fixed, and the insolent demands of the puppet, Nguyen Van Thieu, echoed frenziedly by officials in Washington and the American press, little by little dissipate, even before the ink is dry, 'the silhouette of peace' which many American journalists have sketched."

In Saigon, U. S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker met with Thieu for 10 minutes today, but there was no announcement of what was discussed. One source said Bunker may have delivered a private message from Nixon to Thieu.

Thieu's senior foreign policy adviser, Nguyen Phu Duc, was expected to arrive in Washington from Paris today or Tuesday. The White House said over the weekend that Nixon had agreed to a request from Thieu to receive Duc for discussions of the ceasefire negotiations in Paris.

Administration officials had said as late as Friday that Nixon would not meet Duc, and the apparent change of mind was regarded by other sources as significant.

Rev-Sharing Returns Urban Problem Solving To City Hall

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A liberal Democratic mayor from the South and a moderate Republican from the Midwest today told a national conference of urban officials that the passage of federal revenue sharing has put the initiative for solving urban problems back in city hall.

The annual meeting of the National League of Cities, representing 15,000 cities and towns, opened with keynote speeches by league President Sam Massell, mayor of Atlanta, and Mayor Richard G. Lugar of Indianapolis.

Massell said that federal revenue sharing, the first federal aid to cities without strict controls on its use, marked the "beginning of a new era for municipal government in the United States."

"Revenue sharing," Massell said, "gives real meaning to the rhetoric of decentralization, and it also shifts responsibility for decision-making from the federal government to local officials.... It behooves us in government to constantly strive for improvements in our operations. We must not be satisfied with the old ways of doing things."

"Jurisdictions are finding a need to exchange powers; financial resources must be shared," Massell said. "Elected officials must work in partnership at, and across, all levels, and then we shall fully cope with every crisis."

If the emphasis on government reorganization rather than increased federal spending was somewhat surprising from Massell, it was expected from Lugar, who has consolidated city-county government in Indianapolis, a concept the Nixon administration has strongly advocated as a necessity for solving urban problems.

Citing federal revenue sharing and the President's proposals for reorganizing Cabinet departments that deal with urban affairs and consolidating urban aid programs, Lugar said, "President Nixon has proposed important breakthroughs in the understanding of urban problems and their solutions and has indicated a specific framework for their progress."

"Current boundary lines of most cities are unrealistic geographically, politically and economically," Lugar said.

In a third keynote speech, Councilman Tom Bradley of Los Angeles took a view which is more familiar at mayors' conferences.

"Revenue sharing is a good beginning, a concept integral to any sound urban policy," Bradley said.

Poll Shows Strong Support For Nixon

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — According to the latest Gallup Poll, about twice as many Americans approve of President Nixon's handling of the situation in Vietnam as disapprove.

The figures for the 1,205 persons interviewed in 300 localities across the nation were 59 per cent for and 33 per cent against. The rest were undecided.

Gallup said Sunday that this approval was found in all sections of the nation and among most groups of the population. He did not break this down.

The pollster commented that these figures were virtually the same as Nixon's margin of victory over Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D.

The Gallup Poll also said that only 7 per cent of Americans think victory is possible in Vietnam, 12 per cent think the United States will be defeated, 69 per cent think there will be a compromise, while 12 per cent had no opinion.

A majority of Americans, the poll said, do not think there will be a strong enough government in South Vietnam to withstand a Communist takeover after American troops withdraw.

The figures were 47 per cent to 31 per cent who thought the South Vietnamese could manage with 22 per cent expressing no opinion.

Despite the peace talks between Henry Kissinger and North Vietnam's Le Duc Tho, most Americans, the poll said, do not think there will be peace by the new year.

While 35 per cent said they believed an end to the fighting would be reached, 55 per cent said they did not think so and 10 per cent had no opinion.

Mystery Submersible May Be Gone

OSLO (AP) — The Defense Command says the mystery object trapped in the Sognefjord for the last two weeks — presumably a foreign submarine — is believed to have left Norwegian territorial waters and the search for it will be reduced gradually.

A communique said visual and technical observations gathered, since the search began indicated a foreign submarine was in the fjord but its nationality was not established.

The command said the "great hunt" for the object was extremely difficult because the inlet is 100 miles long and 3,900 feet at its deepest point.

"THE WAY I HEARD IT"

by John Gruber

With the decorations up on Main Street, and the illumination officially turned on at Constitution Plaza, the Christmas shopping season is now in full swing. At this season of the year quite a few people are in hi-fi equipment as a present for the whole family, but unfortunately few really know what they are purchasing.

This is an expensive investment that will last for years if you take care of it, and it may likewise be around to annoy you for years if you make an unwise purchase. Accordingly, I'm going to devote this column to some hints on buying hi-fi.

The secret of the whole thing is tonal balance, and in general you can be pretty safe in this matter if you buy a console put together by a reputable manufacturer. After all, these companies have engineers who know how to achieve this sort of thing, and you probably don't know a thing about it, but will have to depend on what the salesman says.

Let me clue you in. The salesman doesn't know very much. They'll try to show you with a superficial knowledge gained from literature put out by the manufacturer with one idea in mind: to sell the merchandise. The men who write this stuff are Madison Avenue boys who don't know anything either.

So you proceed on the old Roman rule of "caveat emptor," which means, "Let the buyer beware." Remember, however, that back at the factory there was a trained engineer with real than 2 per cent intermodulation distortion at its rated output. If you can't stand the amount of sound emanating from your contemplated equipment when the volume control is about 2/3 advanced, it is too large for your purchase, regardless of what the salesman says. When the volume control is less than half way open, frequency response is affected unfavorably.

Try and get the equipment demonstrated in your home before you buy. It will sound differently in a room with carpeting and heavily upholstered furniture than it will in a room of modern decor with lots of glass. Remember, you're the one to be pleased. And you're going to listen to it at home. Many time "components" work out best, particularly in the matter of obtrusiveness. Here you may buy a tuner, an amplifier, a record changer, and a couple of enclosed speakers as separate items, and distribute them around the room in bookcases and other places so the whole thing seems to take less space. But here you really have to know what you are buying.

Buy the very best changer you can afford. It is a complicated mechanism, and one that is stamped out will give trouble in a year or two, whereas the foreign ones, made with great precision, last for twenty years, given occasional cleaning and lubrication. There is even one made by a Swiss watch maker that is a dilly, but it is expensive.

Again that 20 watts R. M. S. figure comes up. But bear in mind that if this is the output of the amplifier, you shouldn't couple it to speakers that demand 40 watts. Speakers are highly inefficient, no matter who makes them, and there is one other place to look for inefficiency: Big speakers hitched to small amplifiers will make things sound bad.

Usually each speaker enclosure will comprise three speakers for the most even frequency response. There will be a big one for low notes, a medium sized one for middle range, and a small one for the highs. This logically follows the relative size of instruments. Just think how big a bass fiddle is, compared to a violin, and the violin is huge compared to a piccolo.

These speakers cost more than two, of course, and when you double this cost for two stereo systems the difference can be considerable. Incidentally, don't get involved in four-channel stereo. The added advantages do not make up for the added costs. Cassettes, incidentally, do not have the long quality of real-tape tapes. The frequency response is less and the amplitude response is very much less. If you only listen to three-piece combos, this may not make much difference, but the difference with symphonic stuff is tremendous.

There's some hints. Sully forth and meet the salesman on more equal terms. And remember, you can enjoy good equipment for many years to come. Bad stuff will be annoying for the start and thrown out in short order.

Homemaker Service Gets Grant; Plans Expansion

A five town expansion program has just been announced by the Manchester Homemaker Service, Inc. Mrs. John Tierney, president of the board of directors of the Manchester Homemaker Service, Inc. has reported that the agency has recently received a grant from the Public Health Nursing Division of the Connecticut Department of Health designed to assist the Homemaker Service to expand its activities into the five towns of Bolton, Ellington, Vernon, Tolland and Somers.

The state grant, which has been awarded on a five-year decreasing basis, makes feasible staff and equipment increases for the local Manchester service which will enable it to provide homemaker service to families in the five towns which, up to now, have been without this type of home and health service. The funds also will be used for direct patient service in cases where adjustments are necessary.

The Manchester Homemaker Service, Inc. is a non-profit community service, supported in the Manchester and South Windsor area by United Fund monies. The purpose of the agency is to preserve family life during periods of illness and emergency.

To do this a staff of carefully selected mature women is maintained by the agency and assigned to any family in the community faced with a crisis of home management. Fees are set on a sliding scale. The homemakers have all received a training program provided by State Health Department and under the supervision of the agency at all times. They are also equipped by virtue of their training to provide personal care to patients at home. Much of their work is performed under the supervision of Public Health Nursing Associations with whom the Manchester Homemaker Service, Inc. has contracts to supply such services.

Forward-Looking Education Proposal

Presidents of New England's six land-grant public universities have set a five-point program of goals for collaboration.

As announced by the group, the presidents hope to have the recommendations in detail by early next year.

In essence, the goals outlined are: Coordinated graduate school developments; single-site regional professional schools; strengthening and streamlining of extension and continuing educational programs; further development of common inter-national programs; and finally, establishing a concept of an open "university easily available to all who desire" which "has excited the professional educator and citizen alike."

With the University of Connecticut nearby, Manchester area residents will be watching with interest the detailed recommendations which will follow defining of the major goals.

The plan can become an important thing to all of us who have children to educate, as well as those who may have past this stage in life.

The coordination can, if properly applied, mean stronger schools and stronger staffs as less expense to the taxpayer by elimination of duplicated efforts alone.

The Property Tax

When it comes to the burning issue of taxes, it happens you can lead the public to reform but you can't make them vote for it.

Among the more interesting results of Nov. 7 were the defeats dealt out by voters in four states — California, Colorado, Oregon and Michigan — to proposed constitutional amendments that would have curtailed property taxes.

The across-the-board rejection is a surprise in that if there is one tax which both payers and leviers have found increasingly unsatisfactory in recent years, it is this one.

Since the founding of the republic, the property tax has been the mainstay of local government, particularly education. Nationally, the public schools receive 52 percent of their revenue from this single source.

Which explains the major problem. As costs of local government and particularly of schools, have skyrocketed, so have property tax rates.

As times and the economy have changed, the property tax has taken on regressive characteristics. Its original basis was ability to pay, since in earlier eras real wealth was largely in the form of tangible property. Today only about a third of the citizenry's holdings is in this form.

The result is that the tax now falls more heavily on the moderate to low-income citizen, particularly the elderly, whose homes represent their major or total worth, than it does on the more affluent with fluid assets.

Additionally, in far too many communities the assessments on which the tax is based are unequal, frequently amateurishly determined in the first place and long overdue for updating. But a comprehensive reassessment is a tedious, expensive and controversial chore which few communities are eager to undertake.

True, the concept of regional professional schools in the land-grant system, may be an inconvenience to some in that a student may have to attend a campus further from home to get the courses he desires but by concentration of available funds into a single school instead of several, the taxpayers and the student will have good sound reasons to expect a higher quality of education and perhaps at a lesser cost.

The selection of sites, we presume and hope, will be based on existing academic strengths of the various universities thus taking full advantage of the many fine courses now offered.

Equally important is the goal sought in the areas of extension and continuing educational programs. Most of us are well aware we live in changing times and such a program, if tailored to meet our ever-changing educational needs, could do much to help graduates and non-graduates keep abreast of the knowledge explosion which touches each of us, professional or nonprofessional.

We think the presidents are to be commended for their forward looking proposal and will watch with interest the steps they take to implement what appears to be a program of broadening the educational opportunity without jeopardizing quality.

Open Forum

Consider the records of the 20th Police Precinct on the Upper West Side. They show that 16 per cent of all robberies in the district are committed in one hotel with 186 single welfare recipients as tenants.

Two women were murdered in another welfare hotel several weeks ago and a few days later police found a body dangling upside down in an air shaft.

There is the Kimberly Hotel. It is so heavily populated with dope pushers that it attracts addicts from as far away as New Jersey. Some of the customers are mugged and robbed by their friendly salesmen, but are hardly in a position to complain to police.

Possibly the community could view the situation with a certain equanimity if criminals were the only victims.

Unfortunately, as the New York Times reports, these vicious slabs have made whole neighborhoods virtually uninhabitable by law-abiding citizens. "These hotels just destroy the neighborhood," said Murray Siegel, executive vice president of the West Side Chamber of Commerce. "They prevent local businessmen from operating and keep residents from enjoying their community."

One businessman who operates a shop with his wife describes the Kimberly as a "desecrated area of pimps, prostitutes and pushers. The corner at night is covered with hangers-on and decent people cross the street." As many as 30 or 40 drunk or hopelessly "poor people" gather to booze, shoot the breeze and harass stragglers.

A shopkeeper in another area said he closes at 7 p.m. because customers tell him they're afraid to venture outside after that hour. Welfare cases congregate outside the hotels and demand handouts. People fork over a contribution because, as one put it, "I'd rather be alive than dead."

Admittedly, the New York situation is not amenable to simplistic solutions. Curiously, however, it has not occurred to the welfare authorities even to make a stab at sanitizing these districts. To wit, no one has suggested that welfare recipients who are able-bodied be forced to earn their relief through by taking jobs for the city. If a mendicant is healthy enough to push drugs or mug passersby he is able-bodied enough to sweep a street or pick up litter with a pointed stick. The creeps probably would be worth their hire, but their labors would keep them out of mischief for a few hours every day.

I'm a dreamer, of course. Officialdom points out that the city is "obliged" to house, clothe and feed every individual who claims he needs relief. And every time some bouncer like me suggests what President Nixon calls "workfare," he is denounced as a cruel and uncompassionate scoundrel determined to kill off the poor by forcing them to turn working stiff.

Just so. But I know some honestly employed folks who live in apartments and houses renting for a lot less than the $10 to $150 per month it costs New York City to house its professional loafers. Regarding welfare for relief-minded, I suspect the average ditch digger might advise them: "Try it, you'll hate it."

The Big Hangup Boom

The proliferation of dirty radio shows in the early 1970s led inevitably to a new form of entertainment long secretly yearned for by a large segment of the American public — dirty television.

The early dirty radio shows, which were aired in most major cities by 1972, were crude in comparison. The format usually consisted of a four-hour daytime slot during which callers came on line to reveal their most intimate sexual problems.

"Hi, there, I'm Doreen from Shady Dell Acres and I'm really going up the wall, Bill. You see I really love my husband, but it's George who really turns me on. I mean sexually, you know what I mean? And I really..."

So Doreen goes on for about 15 minutes telling her all. And Bill, who's the talk host, uses a lot of six, eight and ten letter words to prove the show isn't dirty — just sexually liberated.

And finally Doreen reveals that George is her first cousin's Afghan bond slave in a revolt from Elysian Fields Water Beds...

The success of this plunger program wasn't surprising. They simply proved that there were thousands of women who are delighted to tell every individual who claims he needs relief. And millions of men who are delighted to discover that their sexual hangups were relatively minor.

This combination of oral and aural sex spelled success. And the television networks were not slow to latch on to the bonanza.

New fall programs in 1973 included "I've Got a Fetish," "What My Neurosis?" "Let's Make a Deal, Honey," "Frustrated and (or) Consequences," "The Making Game" and "Bet Your Wife," which was swamped by a similar program from husbands across the land.

Not only will there be 13 new Senators but their average age will be 45, or 22 years younger than the average for the Senators they will replace.

Joseph R. Biden Jr. (D Del.) will be just barely old enough to meet the Senate's minimum age requirement, 30.

Interestingly, the proportion of new, youthful voters in the Senate will not be far from the proportion of new, youthful voters in the country at large. And Democrats predominate, 49 to 5, among the newcomers, just as they do, nominally at least, among young voters.

None of this would seem to be very encouraging to the President. But for a glimmer of hope, he might think back to the youth vote analyses that were being made before the election. If the new Senators prove to be no more predictable than all those youngsters who were supposed to elect George McGovern, the President may still have a chance to win a few close ones in the Senate.

Look at the caliber of the writers: Judge John Wallcut, Dr. Hebert, Herbert Stevenson, Dr. John Rogers, and Mr. Leon Dobkin (a senior citizen of the most sterling character). My husband and I also wrote a letter, and I assure you that the candidate knew not a word of it until he saw it in The Herald.

Today is Monday, Nov. 27, the 32nd day of 1972. There are 34 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1942, during World War II, French may men at Toulon, France, scuttled 10 French cruisers, 28 destroyers and 14 submarines to prevent them from falling into the hands of the Nazis.

Democrats Select Assembly Leaders

HARTFORD (AP) — State House Democrats, as predicted, have elected current Majority Leader Carl R. Ajello of Ansonia to lead them into the General Assembly, but the rank and file balked at some of the assistants Ajello picked.

Present Asst. Majority Leader George W. Hannan Jr. of East Hartford and State Rep. Francis W. Ciampi of Waterbury were rejected in the recommended assistant leadership posts.

Elected in their place were State Rep. Audrey P. Beck of Mansfield and State Rep. Bernard L. Avocella of Naugatuck.

The rejection followed the unanimous election of Ajello as minority leader and present Deputy Speaker James J. Kennedy of Hartford as deputy minority leader.

Current House Speaker William J. Raftery of Danbury was elected to a newly created position of minority leader at large.

Ajello, following his election, proposed this slate of assistant leaders: Bruce Morris of New Haven, William A. O'Neill of Hartford, Hannan, Ciampi and Robert T. Vicino of Bristol.

The names of Avocella, Mrs. Beck, Dominic J. Badolati of New Britain and Samuel Lisak of Bridgeport were added to the slate after Ajello's list was defeated. Lisak requested that his name be removed, and the new list was made up in subsequent ballots.

The new Democratic leaders will assume their posts Jan. 3, when the new Republican controlled General Assembly convenes.

It will meet Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the Municipal Building Hearing Room to hear preliminary reports from seven subcommittees — studying about 35 proposed changes. Almost all of the recommendations came from three sources — the CDAP Task Force on General Government, the executive board of the Manchester Property Owners Association, and Town Council.

Last Wednesday, the CRC culminated four weeks of priority deliberations by voting on the preservation of the council-manager government. By its vote, it rejected a change to a mayor-council government.

At the same time, the CRC's executive board, the four weeks had been spent listening to experts comparing the two forms of government.

The CRC has to Feb. 6 to submit its recommendations to the Board of Directors. The board can accept or reject any or all of the recommendations. Whichever are accepted ultimately would be scheduled for a townwide referendum.

Among some of the recommendations being studied by the CRC's seven subcommittees are:

Consolidation of fiscal operations under a director of finance.

Establishment of a Department of Finance, with the director to be classified and appointed by the Board of Directors.

Mandatory town payment to the Pension Fund equal to the entire recommendation by the fund's actuary.

Provision for emergency borrowing up to $200,000 without a referendum.

Provision for a referendum to the Pension Fund equal to the entire recommendation by whether in a lump sum or over a period of years.

Allow referendum by petition of 500 electors, instead of present 5 per cent rule.

Extend filing time for petitions to 60 days, from the present 10-day limit.

Provision for recall of elected officials.

Determine whether town clerk should be appointed instead of elected.

Election of Planning and Zoning Commission and Zoning Board of Appeals, with members to be paid a reasonable sum.

Libraries are warm places to go even if you're not old enough to read. The bright splashes of color in this book seem to fascinate little Susan Scoville while her mother is busy at the Rockville Public Library. (Herald photo by Richmond)

What's A Library

BY BARBARA RICHMOND (Herald Reporter)
Some books are to be read, others to be swallowed and some to be chewed and digested... "The ladies who work their magic... if you ask them a question, they don't know the answer they just don't keep talking. They try to find out what it is. If there already talking they come and wait on you." Another said, "I like the library and the librarians because on rainy days they are a friendly sight."

Children in Grades 4-6 were invited to write essays on the topic, "What the Library Means to Me," and they came up with some very interesting and sage answers. The contest was sponsored by the Education Committee of the Vernon Junior Women's Club in conjunction with National Children's Book Week, last week.

Some of the children rarely used words in their answers: "I want to go to the library because I can find out anything I want to know." "The library means freedom, as free as the wind blows, and it means get away from it all... it means a friend when you are lonely, when you open your door and walk in you feel like you're in a magical world called 'wonderful books,' why don't you take a walk to the library it will do you good."

And then there are the children who go to the library to get away from it all. Some of their answers, with spelling uncorrected, were: "The library is the best place I've been. I think of it as a place to shut up. I think of it as a place to get books. I think of it as a place to get away from father. You are aloud to take six books out."

Emphasizing his feelings about the library, the Rockville Junior Library specifically, one child said, "The library is a real good, good, good, good, good friend." Another compared it to "taking a trip to a new land and meeting new people." Another child wrote, "I tried to browse in a book store and didn't get away with it, like the library, the library is a good place to study when it's too noisy in your house. You get work without noise and you think without noise. My sister thinks so too."

Hebron Evergreens Needed For Fund-Raiser

ANNE EMTY, Correspondent, Tel. 225-3971. An SOS has gone out from Mrs. Grace Farmer's sixth grade class for evergreens such as laurel, spruce, pine, hemlock and rhododendron for its wreath and holiday door piece fund-raising project to help finance its trip to the Cape Cod Environmental Education center in February.

On Dec. 8, from 9 a.m. to 12 noon, the children will be making wreaths and door pieces to sell. The wreaths they make will be sold that afternoon and Sunday at the home of Mrs. Erwin Wals on Church St. opposite Hope Valley Rd.

Assisting with the workshop will be Paul A. White, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Odde, Mrs. Norman Graham, Mrs. John Gordon, Mrs. William Ryan, Mrs. John Dilaciano and Mrs. Charles McKay.

Residents are also invited to come and make their own door pieces with the children. They will be charged only for the materials and greens used. Any residents wishing to donate evergreens for this worthwhile project are requested to leave them at the gymnasium at the school.

Andover Candle-Making Planned Saturday

ANNA FRISINA, Correspondent, Tel. 742-9347. A candle-making workshop has been planned for Saturday morning which will give those interested in making their own candles, just enough time before the holiday season to make a plentiful assortment for their own use and for gift giving.

The workshop will be conducted at the Rham High School between 9:30 and 11 a.m. under the direction of Miss Karen Jones of Andover and Miss Karen Hinchliffe of Hebron. Both of these young women have had considerable experience in the art of candle making and have displayed and sold their wares at fairs and crafts shows of various kinds.

Persons of all ages are invited to attend and participate in the candle-making session, which is open to the public. While wicking and candle dies may be purchased at the class for a nominal amount, those attending are asked to bring along their own supply of wax or paraffin, readily obtainable at any grocery store, department store or hobby shop.

The session will deal primarily with candle making for the novice, how to handle the wax, how to get a shiny candle, filling in the cool bubble, choosing the appropriate wick, etc. and there may also be some hints for the more experienced candle maker.

First Aid Course
The first class of the First Aid courses being sponsored by the Andover Volunteer Fire Department will begin tomorrow night at the firehouse, and not tonight as previously indicated.

The First Aid courses include a basic beginners course and also an advanced first aid course. They are open to the public without charge to anyone over the age of 16.

Those interested in registering for the course should be certain to arrive at the firehouse on Center St. 7:30 p.m. as classes will start promptly at that hour. Anyone wishing to register who cannot attend the first class should call Assistant Chief Joseph Comerford, Lieutenants John Young or William Breadth for further assistance.

Auxiliary Registration
The Women's Auxiliary of the Andover Volunteer Fire Department will meet tonight at 8 p.m. at the firehouse. The business meeting will deal tonight with revision of the auxiliary by-laws, and all members are urged to attend.

Spokesman for the auxiliary, Mrs. Diane Bonneau, said that all women in the town of Andover are invited and welcome to join the auxiliary as members. It is not necessary to have a husband or other relative as a member of the fire department to be able to join the auxiliary.

Mrs. Bonneau said the work of the auxiliary assists the fire department, and also the

Khayat Disgusted, Webster Sorry

NEW YORK (AP) - Philadelphia Coach Ed Khayat has just two words to express what happened to his Eagles: "I'm disgusted!"

New York Giants Coach Alex Webster had two words for Khayat: "I'm sorry."

What the Giants did to Philadelphia Sunday was nothing short of carnage. If any of the Eagles of 1963 had been around, they'd have known exactly how the Eagles of '72 felt.

field goal and John Reaves' 77-yard touchdown pass play to Harold Jackson. But Reaves, harassed all day, had two passes picked off while the Eagles fumbled the ball away three times, twice setting up New York scores.

Alex told me: "Try not to run it up," Randy said, "but no matter what happened, I kept scoring...I know how it felt getting the hell beat out of you, 'cause I grew up with an expansion team."

Then, anticipating a lot more time on the bench before getting another chance to show his stuff, Johnson added: "This has been a very frustrating year for me. I feel like quitting and getting a job."

'Skins' Take Giant Step To Post-Season Goal

NEW YORK (AP) - "Last week we made the playoffs and had to go to San Francisco," Washington Coach George Allen said. "Our next goal is to open at home."

The Redskins officially made it into the National Football League playoffs and took a giant step toward that goal of a post-season game Sunday as they defeated Philadelphia 21-16.

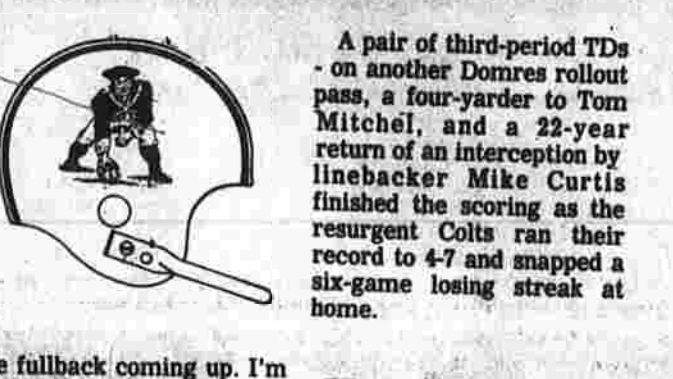

Browns for first in the American Conference's Central Division. Cleveland beat Buffalo 27-10, Oakland defeated Kansas City 26-3, New Orleans upset Los Angeles 19-16, Atlanta edged Denver 23-10, the Giants stamped Philadelphia 62-10.

The Raiders averaged a 27-14 loss to Kansas City three weeks ago, but locked up their fifth division title in six years as Daryle Lamontica threw touchdown passes of 14 yards to Fred Biletnikoff and 19 to Raymond Chester late in the first half, breaking open a close game.

Two Catches By Havrilak Both Good for Touchdowns

BALTIMORE (AP) - There was no fat on Sam Havrilak's record Sunday.

The Baltimore wide receiver, who entered the game against New England as one of the top pass catches in the American Football Conference, grabbed just two losses from quarterback Marty Domres, but both were for touchdowns as the Colts thrashed the Patriots 31-0.

the fullback coming up, I'm supposed to be a takeoff and clear the defensive back," Havrilak explained. "But they were in a weakside zone and stopped the fullback, so Marty came to me."

Parilli Denies Pats' Job Offer

PITTSBURGH (AP) - Babe Parilli, head coach of the Pittsburgh Steelers, says there is no truth to reports out there that he is being considered for the job of head coach of the New England Patriots next season.

"There's nothing to it," says Parilli, a 41-year-old native of nearby Rochester, Pa., and the quarterback for the Patriots.

'Biggest Payday' for Ashe

ROME (AP) - Arthur Ashe earned $25,000 by winning the third World Championship Tennis Tournament final Sunday in what he called "my biggest payday."

The 28-year-old star from Miami, Fla., came from behind in the fifth set to beat fellow American Bob Lutz 6-2, 3-6, 3-4, 7-6. It was a grueling, dramatic battle, but after it was over Ashe returned to his role as a militant leader of the Players' Association.

White, the only black player pro hockey, was traded to the Los Angeles Sharks by the New York Raiders last week after he said he was "pretty unhappy."

Yale Gains Finale, But Second in Ivy

NEW HAVEN (AP) - Yale has won its annual battle against Harvard, but the Elis had to settle for runnerup honors in the Ivy League race.

In the only weekend game involving a Connecticut team, the University of Connecticut extended its dismal season record to 4-5 with a 20-10 defeat at the hands of Holy Cross.

Lakers on Move Again, Post 13th Straight Win

NEW YORK (AP) - No team in professional team sports ever had won 33 in a row until the Los Angeles Lakers did it last season.

Now the champions of the National Basketball Association are on the road to breaking their own all-time record.

They won their 13th straight Sunday night with a 112-107 verdict over the Phoenix Suns. Jerry West set the pace with 26 points.

Knicks, Celts Split Series

BOSTON (AP) - The Boston Celtics and the New York Knicks are destined to battle right down to the wire this season in the National Basketball Association's Atlantic Division.

The two longtime rivals came out all even after their first two meetings during the week-end.

The Celtics won in Boston Friday night, 114-97, then were edged 24 hours later in New York 97-94.

UCLA Off to Fast Start In Defense of Title

By The Associated Press

Florida State is ranked No. 1 in "Class B" of major college basketball as the Seminoles prepare to open their season Friday night against little Georgia Southern.

UCLA's Bruins' Oh, they are Class A. Everybody knows UCLA should be in a class by itself. So, there you are.

Wisconsin was buried under the Bruin thunder 94-53 Saturday night and the next scheduled victims for Coach John Wooden's six-in-a-row national championships are the Bradley Braves.

During that span, UCLA has a 105-0 record and the Bruins won their 46th straight in smearing the Badgers.

In action tonight, 10th-ranked Ohio State hosts Wisconsin. Milwaukee and No. 15 Houston is at home against Southern Mississippi. Jacksonville, 15 in the last quarter. Will Chamberlain added 20 and grabbed 25 rebounds.

Milwaukee overcame Atlanta 108-96 while in other NBA games Portland beat Cleveland 105-102 and Seattle trimmed Detroit 103-96.

In the only American Basketball Association game scheduled, San Diego walloped the New York Nets 131-106.

Veteran Connie Hawkins of Phoenix led the Suns' bench in the second quarter after he played only five minutes and failed to score.

Hawkins said merely "no comment" in answers to questions about his departure.

Phoenix Coach Jerry Colangelo explained later he had told Hawkins to go back to England.

Spencer Haywood scored a season high 39 points for Seattle as the SuperSonics ended a four-game losing streak in turning back the Pistons. Fred Foster was high for Detroit with 23.

Milwaukee went on a 17-0 burst in the third period in whipping the Hawks. Bob Dandridge, with 29 points, and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar with 26 led the Bucks. Pete Maravich led Atlanta with 23.

AUCKLAND, New Zealand - Australian Bill Dunk shot a final-round 68 to finish the New Zealand Open with a 72-hole 280 and a one-stroke victory over Maurice Bembridge of England.

LA ROMANA, Dominican Republic - Pepe Gancedo and Roman Tanyas teamed to carry Spain to a three-stroke win over Ricardo Orlandi and Felipe Taverner of Chile in the America's Cup Championship.

HILTON HEAD, S.C. - John Miller of San Francisco blasted a four-over-par 76 through bitter cold and gusty winds to hold the first round of the rain-delayed 115,000 Heritage Classic.

UCLA inched toward the longest winning streak in college history, one of the few marks the Wooden boys haven't tucked away over the years.

The University of San Francisco won 60 straight during the Bill Russell era in the mid-1950s.

In other Saturday action, No. 4 Minnesota thumped California-Irvine 83-71 and North Carolina massacred ambitious Bienville College 107-62. Georgia Tech beat Auburn 90-83.

Open House Grievances Aired Before Board

By JOHN A. JOHNSTON (Herald Reporter). Atty. Jonathan J. Kaplan of Rockville representing the Manchester Education Association, last night charged the Board of Education with the responsibility of removing from their teacher personnel files copies of letters of "reprimand" to some Bennett and Hilling Junior High School teachers, following their non-attendance at open houses this fall. Views of both sides were aired at a grievance hearing that took up most of the board meeting, held at Waddell School. Kaplan agreed to attend the board-MEA agreement clause that requires a grievance reply to be made within five days. The board will render its decision on or before the regular meeting of Dec. 11. Labeling the letters of Dr. Richard Lindgren and Allan Cone, Hilling and Bennett principals, respectively, "illegal, unauthorized, and a black mark," the MEA attorney based his arguments on a Hartford Superior Court ruling in a similar case, as well as several articles in the board-MEA agreement of June 20 of this year. The difficulty of the whole situation, Kaplan introduced his arguments, is that "We are dealing with a problem that really doesn't involve the Board of Education. The PTO (which sponsored both open houses) is not a member of the national PTA, and the board is not involved in the PTO." He also called attention to the fact that "The contract, in several areas, contains sanctions open to principals, but they choose to ignore the sanctions. We are starting on the basic premise that the letters of reprimand are illegal and unauthorized." There is no authority for mandatory attendance at PTO meetings, Kaplan said, and this is inherent in the Superior Court decision of 1970 on a suit brought by the Wethersfield Board of Education against the education association of that town. The court held, Kaplan noted, that "The teachers' failure to attend was not a refusal to render services within the meaning of the statute," which prohibits a professional school employee from engaging in "any strike or concerted refusal to render services." There is no doubt, Kaplan stated, that the Superior Court's decision is applicable to the situation in which Bennett and Hilling teachers found themselves. "If the principals' letters, expressing 'disappointment' at the teachers' absence from the open houses, truly had attendance as mandatory, Kaplan went on, this reflects an open house policy that is in violation of the agreement of Article II A4 of the agreement. The section states that "any proposed policy change must be communicated to the MEA in writing and provide an opportunity for negotiation." At one point, when the matter of negotiations was raised, Dr. James P. Kennedy, superintendent of schools, objected to the letter of Sept. 3, which named the MEA negotiator and expressed the hope "that negotiations would be concluded by Sept. 28." He commented that he considered setting a terminal date an example of not negotiating in good faith. Dr. Wiener said that the tone of "disappointment" in Dr. Lindgren's and Cone's letters, as far as he is concerned, hardly amounts to reprimands. "The letters themselves aren't," Kaplan replied, "but placing them in the teachers' files is. The consequences make it a reprimand." The principals wanted the letters removed from personnel files. At the outset of the grievance hearing, Kaplan requested Atty. Allan D. Thomas, board chairman, to relinquish the chair because Thomas has a child enrolled at Hilling. Thomas said that he was not aware that a conflict of interest was involved. However, he deferred to Kaplan's request and named Atty. John C. Yavis Jr. to serve in the judicial capacity.

Tax Cut Fate Before House

HARTFORD (AP) - Democratic House leaders were trying today to round up enough "lame-duck" legislators to send a bill calling for a sales-tax reduction to Gov. Thomas J. Meskill's desk. Supporters of the measure claim it would save Connecticut residents a total of more than $5 million during the holiday season alone. The Republican governor, however, has said that "in all probability" he would veto the measure. Meskill called for a tax reduction this year but he proposed taking one-half of a percentage point off both the sales tax and the capitol gains and dividends tax. The measure, which was passed Nov. 21 by a strictly party line vote in the Senate, would only reduce the 7 per cent sales tax to 6 per cent starting Dec. 1. The Democrats hold a wide numerical majority in the House, but the fate of the bill depends on whether enough of those finishing their legislative

Report Bus Strike Impact Slight ConnCo Official Presents Case

HARTFORD (AP) - The president of the Connecticut Co. said today that a state takeover of bus service in the state's largest cities would not cost as much as some people think. ConnCo President E. Clayton Gengras told Hartford Superior Court Judge George A. Sadek that "it's mythical that this is going to run into the millions of dollars." Gengras was in court in an attempt to force the state to grant subsidies to the company and to another bus company, the Connecticut Railway and Lighting Co. Gengras testified that it was unfair for riders and bus company employees to suffer "for the amount of money that's involved."

Sadek, however, questioned whether the state would find itself paying more and more in the event of a takeover because of the rising costs of running a bus service. ConnCo and CR&L provide Hartford service in and around Hartford, Stamford, New Haven, Waterbury, Bridgeport and New Britain. Both firms say they have been losing a dozen policemen added to the downtown area weren't necessary "since the volume of traffic appeared to be below normal." William Luettgens, vice president of G. Fox & Co. department store in Hartford said Christmas shopping Monday was good. Roger Driva, president of the Edward Malley Co., a New Haven department store, said traffic in the store "appears a little lighter" but he added, "I don't really know." Driva said a reduction in newspaper advertising resulting from the pressmen's strike at the New Haven Register and Journal-Courier might have "hurt more than a little."

City Officials Split On Gun Control Issue

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - The nation's two largest organizations of city officials - the National League of Cities and the U.S. Conference of Mayors - are divided on the issue of gun control legislation, putting their joint lobbying staff in a delicate position. The Public Safety Committee of the League created the "Gun Control Task Force" last week. The committee not only rejected the gun control resolution passed by the League last June, but also deleted the weak resolution passed by the League last year. That one had called for federal laws against interstate sale of firearms and mandatory minimum sentences of 10 years for sale of a firearm in any crime. It stands now, the League's policy statement does not mention gun control legislation. The U.S. Conference of Mayors, however, called in June for national legislation against gun manufacturers, importation, sale and private possession of handguns except for law enforcement personnel, military and sportsmen's clubs, a national handgun registration law, state registration for all handguns, and a ban on the sale of handguns to persons who carry guns. The difference stems from the fact that the League represents 15,000 cities, with small towns as well as large cities. The U.S. Conference of Mayors is open only to chief executives of cities with 50,000 or more people. The mayors and other city officials divide on this issue. "It's a very delicate position," said the League's press secretary. "It's unusual, but it's not the city position on this issue on Capitol Hill. It looks like the cities are divided."

Students' Assault Sought

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) - Police continued to search today for an unidentified assailant who pulled a gun during a scuffle and wounded a student, one seriously, at Pontiac Central High School. Witnesses said the shooting Monday was good. The president of the Stamford Area Commerce and Industry Association, John Mitovich, said it was "preposterous" to make a judgment. But he said "we have had some concern expressed by retailers if the strike is allowed to continue through the Christmas shopping season." Robert Simon of the Greater New Haven Chamber of Commerce said, "Downtown business was a little soft, probably because people were a little apprehensive about the traffic, but I expect them to realize that the sales force is good and traffic is flowing smoothly." In Stamford today, emergency bus service was established. Greater New Haven Chamber of Commerce officials are hoping to try to bring the League in line with the Resolutions Committee meeting late today and the final general session on Monday. Unless a change is made, the division will force Washington lobbyists for the League and the Conference to tread a narrow line. The staffs of the two organizations were merged in 1969, for economy and greater effectiveness. "I'm not sure yet how it would work for the lobbyists," said John Gunther, executive director of the Mayors' Conference. "This is one of the few different policies we have. We might assign two different people to handle the lobbyists." Allen E. Pritchard Jr., executive vice president of the National League of Cities, said, "It's unusual, but it's not the first time one group has had a policy and the other has had none on the same issue." "If we were diametrically opposed, if the League went to some sort of pro-gun ownership resolution, then we'd have a real problem. As it is, the League will just have to remain silent on this white hot Conference does lobbying." "Nevertheless," Pritchard added, "it definitely weakens the city position on this issue on Capitol Hill. It looks like the cities are divided."

Cabinet Changes Start

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Nixon was expected to announce today his choice for a new secretary of defense. Heiberger were chosen to head HEW. Richardson would be freed to accept the defense post for which he has been mentioned as a possible successor to Melvin H. Laird. Nixon, who wants to draw Cabinet members closer to the White House, disclosed Monday that Heiberger will be leaving the management-budget post and will get another top defense job. The new secretary of defense would be Nixon's first Cabinet change of his second term. Heiberger is appointed as new secretary of defense and to other Cabinet jobs in the next four years, Nixon told newsmen Monday. They will be in "closer contact with the White House and of course with the President himself." Nixon, who has devoted several days since his landslide re-election Nov. 7, to administration personnel changes, told newsmen that Heiberger would return to private life rather than take a government post in the second Nixon term. The President Monday also accepted with "special regret" the resignation of George Romney, secretary of Housing and Urban Development. He said Romney, New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller and former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally would not figure in new administration appointments. Laird and Romney had previously announced their intentions of leaving their Cabinet posts at the end of Nixon's first term. Heiberger was chosen to head HEW. But much of the President's 21-minute talk to the dozen newsmen at his Catskill Mountain retreat here Monday seemed aimed at discouraging speculation that he would rely less on his Cabinet in his second term than during his first four years. "While there will be cuts in personnel around the government," Nixon said Monday, "the biggest cuts will be made in the White House staff itself." He said Nixon has aimed to "find a way to make our government more responsive to people." He said the way to accomplish this "is not to concentrate more and more power in one office, but to have that power given to and delegated to, where it possibly can be, to responsible members of the administration team in the Cabinet, in the White House, or in other agencies of the government." Because announcing a Cabinet change, Nixon planned to meet Tuesday with Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas, chairman of the Republican National Committee, House Republican
