Hope Leaves On Annual Trek

By JAY SHARBUITT AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - Bob Hope's first overseas trip to entertain American servicemen in wartime almost was his last. It started in early 1962, and the destination was Anchorage, Alaska.

The Hope troupe was in a twin-engine Lockheed Lodestar flown by Army pilots. A sudden storm knocked out the plane's radio gear and left the crew completely lost at 15,000 feet. Parachutes were being issued when a commercial airliner also bound for Anchorage passed through the Lodestar's propwash. Its pilots apparently sensed the Army plane was in trouble and radioed ahead.

Antiaircraft searchlights at the Anchorage airport were turned on. Hope's flight crew spotted the lights during a momentary break in the storm. They landed the plane safely, and the Hope show went on.

The troupe then consisted of actress Frances Langford, comedian Jerry Colonna and guitarist Tony Romano. All now are out of show business.

But Hope, at 69, still is going strong. On Friday, he'll be off on his 28th overseas tour to entertain American servicemen - including a day with those still in Vietnam. It'll be his 20th consecutive Christmas tour, and Doug Webster.

Boatload Of Haitians Land In Florida

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (AP) - Sixty-five men, women and children "packed like sardines" in a sailboat landed here Tuesday after a 20-day trip from Haiti, the Broward County Sheriff's Department said.

Deputies said the group left Haiti Nov. 23 in a 56-foot sailboat and had been without food and water for five days.

"They were in bad shape," a deputy said. "Three of the elderly women were really ill. A lot of them were seasick."

The passengers included a 12-year-old girl five months pregnant, deputies said.

Rev-Share Workshop Set; Other Actions by Board

BY SOL R. COHEN
(Herald Reporter)

A workshop to set up a program for utilizing federal revenue-sharing funds has been scheduled for Jan. 8 by the Manchester Board of Directors. It will be at 7:30 p.m. in the Municipal Building Hearing Room.

Mayor John Thompson had sought to schedule the meeting for this month, so that a public hearing on a proposed program could be held in January. However, because of holiday time conflicts, many of the directors were unable to attend a December workshop. The program developed on Jan. 8 will be scheduled for a February public hearing.

The directors last night established a separate account for revenue-sharing funds and placed into it the $137,431 received Monday afternoon.

Another $27,411 is expected next month for the 1972 calendar year. In addition, checks for $109,000 each are expected in the first two quarters of 1973.

As programs and decisions are made concerning the use of the funds, they will be allocated to expenditure accounts. By establishing the separate revenue-sharing fund, better control will result.

The majority Democrats on the board already are on record for allocating some of the funds for roads and sidewalks.

7 Voice Opposition To Krawski Zone Bid

BARBARA VARRICK
Correspondent
Tel. 644-8274

A large crowd came out last night despite the freezing rain that ice-licked the town's streets to hear requests for zone changes, at a public hearing by the Planning and Zoning Commission.

Three of the four requests dealt with rezoning land for homes. The fourth, and most controversial, was the Commercial (GC) zone change request for eight acres on Buckland Rd. by William and Patricia Krawski of 130 Buckland Rd.

Currently built on the site is a large home which could be converted into a hotel for use by five or six families. The home has been constructed with used tobacco wood and those who favored the development of a "Sturbridge Village" type extravaganza said the area would enhance the town as it would be attractive, a good buffer would be provided to separate the village from the nearby residential homes, and would esthetically be good for the town.

Krawski said it was his intention to build seven buildings on the eight acres, each to have living quarters and craftsmen shops so persons can live in the area in which they work.

Professionally, Krawski recycles used barn wood which has been sold to restaurants, stores and persons who are interested in the effects the aged-wood patterns in decorating.

Seven persons spoke in opposition, claiming the traffic on the only north-south corridor, presently "unbearable," would be "impossible," with tourists wishing to visit the village.

Tolland School Incinerator May Be Removed

BETTE QUATRALE
Correspondent
Tel. 875-2845

The Board of Education will act on a proposal to remove the high school incinerator, providing needed storage space at the school, during tonight's meeting scheduled for 8 o'clock at the Hicks Memorial School.

Dr. Kenneth MacKenzie, superintendent of schools, is recommending the board remove and sell the incinerator, since under state environmental laws it cannot be used. The space could then be used for "much needed storage."

The board will also face a request from high school students for the creation of a rifle team, which Dr. MacKenzie recommends postponing until next year's budget.

The superintendent recommends the board determine what rifle range would be used; the estimated number of participants; and the cost of the program including rifles and ammunition as well as transportation, before making a decision.

Dr. MacKenzie also urges the board to turn down mileage reimbursement requests by staff members unless a travel reimbursement policy is created to cover any person who is eligible.

Admitting the request for reimbursement is understandable, Dr. MacKenzie adds, "Our limited funds cannot be so dissipated in so many directions that we find ourselves in such straits that we cannot buy music for the music department, text for the Social Studies Department or supplies for anyone."

The Meadowbrook School Christmas Concert will be held Friday night at 7:30 in the school's all purpose room.

The choir, under the direction of Mrs. Cheryl Kleiner, assisted by Mrs. Kathleen Horvath and Mrs. Dorothy Shackway, will feature old and new songs of the holiday season. No admission will be charged.

Theater board sponsored baton classes will be held at Meadowbrook School.

Court Rules Out Use Of 'Scratch Sheets' By Racing Bookies

WASHINGTON (AP)—On an 8 to 9 vote, the Supreme Court Tuesday approved prosecution of gamblers under federal law if they use "scratch sheets" from another state in their operations.

The ruling, delivered by Justice Thurgood Marshall, rejected the contention of the operators of five horse parlors in Hammond, Ind., and six other convicted gamblers that the 1961 Travel Act did not apply to their activities.

The Hammond bookies and the other based their appeal on a related 1961 federal law that outlawed interstate shipment of certain gambling "paraphernalia," but exempted newspapers and "similar" publications.

The law makes it a federal crime to use interstate

Retirees Collect Twice

WASHINGTON (AP) — A U.S. Civil Service Commission study shows 5.7 per cent of the Defense Department's work force is made up of retired military personnel who collect pensions as well as regular pay—something retired civilians are not allowed to do.

The proportion of retired military men and women in other federal government departments is considerably lower, however, bringing the average throughout the executive branch to 3.9 per cent, the study shows.

The report, prepared for a House civil service subcommittee headed by Rep. David Henderson, D-N.C., did not include statistics from certain secret and semi-secret federal agencies such as the Central Intelligence Agency and the FBI.

John H. Martiny, the subcommittee's chief lawyer, said the report was prepared for the panel in response to complaints that the former military men unfairly use their Defense Department connections to get jobs, then are allowed to receive their pensions while getting full pay on their new government job.

"There's no question that there's a double standard," Martiny said. "Some members of the committee object to this 'double dipping' since retired civilians are not allowed to do it."

The subcommittee asked the Civil Service Commission to prepare the report "to find out for sure just how many people were in these categories," Martiny said.

In the approximately two million federal jobs considered in the study, the report says, 77,656 were held by military retirees. And 81 per cent of those are working as civilians in the Defense Department—equivalent to 5.7 per cent of the department's work force.

Federal law prohibits non-military retirees from getting full pay on a new government job while also receiving the government pension from their first job. Instead, the amount of their pension must be subtracted from their salary in the new job, Martiny explained.

Retired military personnel are not similarly penalized, although retired officers in the regular Army—as opposed to enlisted men and all reservists—are partially penalized if they retire and take a new government job.

"Some committee members just feel no one should be getting two checks from the government," Martiny said. Legislation aimed at eliminating the double standard has been introduced in every Congress in recent years, Martiny said, but has not progressed out of committee.

Warning Signals

WASHINGTON — Today's headlines are warning signals to the squabbling Democratic Party that it could lose its natural constituency to the Republicans under the shrewd guidance of President Richard M. Nixon.

States and communities lay plans to use revenue-sharing monies to reduce property taxes. The administration announces that states whose welfare management systems are judged to be inadequate will lose more than $400-million a year in Federal funds.

Writing in Commonweal, former Sen. Gene McCarthy put his finger on the inadequacy of George McGovern's reform. Said McCarthy: "The Democrats, if they are to justify their claims to being the party of progress, of innovation and of challenge, will have to come up with more than age, sex, race, or other physical characteristics."

The McGovernites called it participatory politics, but it was only window dressing. This is not to say that Democratic voters want a return to machine domination of their party. But the election showed

A few people have voiced mild objections to our policy that all letters to the editor for the Open Forum column contain the author's name and address.

The demise of Life magazine could almost be called a sign of the times. The reason is simple: Revenue from advertising and circulation wasn't sufficient to meet mounting production, payroll and maintenance costs.

Rest assured we haven't forgotten the Manchester Hospital column which we dropped awhile back at the request of the hospital.

We can understand delays in the U.S. Mail and particularly for newspapers, due to the large volume handled. However, there is no excuse for the Nov. 22 edition of the Willamette chronicling the arrival at The Herald Dec. 4.

Survey Shows Airline Overcharges

NEW YORK (AP) — Columbia Broadcasting System News said Tuesday it conducted its own survey of alleged airplane ticket overcharges recently and was billed too much on 11 of 16 tickets purchased from five major airlines.

The carriers were identified as American Airlines, Trans World Airlines Inc., United Air Lines, Continental Airlines and Eastern Airlines.

CBS did not have a total figure on how much money was spent on overcharges, but correspondent David Henderson, who purchased the tickets, said

It averaged about $15 to $20 for every $100 spent. The Civil Aeronautics Board projects that airline passengers will be overcharged $20 million this year, CBS said.

The CAB has announced its intention to cancel domestic youth and family discount fares as discriminatory and to study other discounts that produce an abundance of different fares.

Henderson, in a filmed report aired on the "CBS Morning News with John Hart," said CBS asked American and TWA for tickets for a flight from New York to Chicago with a continuation a few days later to

Miami and a return flight to New York. "We told them that we would be flying the Miami routes on Tuesday and Thursday, and that we wanted to fly Eastern Airlines."

"That would qualify us for a low-cost excursion fare on Eastern: $121 from Chicago to Miami to New York. The total tickets should have cost $182. However, both American and TWA overcharged us — $5 a ticket."

On a flight from New York to Chicago, CBS was overcharged $5 by United and $15 by TWA, Henderson said. He said American charged the correct amount.

None of the airlines nor their representative in Washington — the Air Transport Association — would respond to the overcharges alleged by CBS, Henderson said.

Canada Buys Grain Cars

Ottawa — Contracts for construction of 2,000 covered grain hopper cars have been signed by the Canadian Wheat Board. The cars will each have a 4,500-cubic-foot capacity and carry 100 tons of wheat—about 3,000 bushels—compared with the 60 tons of standard cars in service today.

Revenue Sharing Begins

Officials of about 38,000 state and local governments got their hands on the first federal revenue-sharing checks mailed by the Treasury.

Some 6,000 are disappointed, including Manchester, because they received less than expected. Another 1,630 which failed to supply the Treasury with the name of the local official in charge will get nothing until they do.

Striving to head off inquiries and complaints, the Treasury pleaded with recipients to be patient and wait until next year for full information and adjustments.

A complicated formula, involving population, personal income, and local tax effort, was used to determine distribution of $30 billion over a five-year period and already questions about its fairness have been raised.

Treasury officials explained that the first checks totalling about $2.7 billion represent estimates and it may be early next year before all the data and calculations are complete.

Telephone calls to the Treasury Department concerning revenue sharing have been running about 100 a day and are expected to jump, despite the plea for patience, when all officials get the checks or fail to get them.

Any change in allotment will be difficult since it would affect all the rest, like sharing one big bowl of soup among a large family.

With the money, local governments can do just about whatever they wish with it as few strings are attached. Property tax reduction holds a high priority in most localities. Larger cities are regarded as among those most desperately needy but some localities have improved their fiscal situation markedly in the last couple of years and their needs are not so acute.

The lucky ones should be no less circumspect than the neediest. Sharing of everybody's federal tax money—or the federal deficit—obviously is no panacea for high property taxes, overburdened courts or police departments, or the decay of inner cities.

Revenue sharing has been welcomed as a means of alleviating distress. The watchdog in its use will be cautious. Most officials will be wary of initiating new projects lest the program not be extended. Care must be taken to use the funds to the best advantage and to avoid even the appearance of squandering the windfall.

Congress, jealous of its right to say how tax money shall be spent, will be watching. The public and the media will be watching. Any misuse would hurt prospects for continuance of revenue sharing.

Connecticut's so-called Sunday Blue Law is in the headlines again. The state has launched a crackdown on alleged violators of the law which has been described as archaic, provincial, harmful to the small businessman, etc.

We have heard few, if any defenses of the law, yet it continues on the books and is enforced periodically.

Inside Report

Rowland Evans and Robert Novak

The Faceless Political Cabinet

WASHINGTON — The sacking of Peter G. Peterson as Secretary of Commerce in the wake of his triumphant international economic negotiations is the key to the otherwise baffling makeup of President Nixon's second-term Cabinet.

Peterson flunked two tests of Cabinet-making which have guided Mr. Nixon and his inner circle at Camp David: first, the Cabinet member must fit the political grand design for a new Republican majority; second, he cannot be a genuine personage, possibly unwilling to subordinate himself to White House aides.

Besides eliminating Peterson, those tests insured a second-term Cabinet that is faceless and symbolically political. That was the intent of the five Cabinet-makers at Camp David: the President, aides H. R. (Bob) Haldeman, John Ehrlichman and Charles Colson and that immensely influential Houston lawyer, John B. Connally.

Nowhere is their intent clearer than in the Commerce Department. Stripping the Secretary of foreign duties fits the scheme of concentrating still more power in the White House. The new Secretary, South Carolina textiles executive Frederick Dent, meets both tests: first, a political novice, he is unlikely to challenge the White House; second, he helps cement the Southern wing of the new Republican coalition.

Indeed, the Cabinet-makers considered only Southern business executives to replace Peterson. Conversely, Peterson was deemed unfit for multiple reasons: his high visibility, his liberal friends on the Georgetown dinner circuit, his favorable press notices. The last straw was the Dec. 4 edition of Time declaring: "After less than a year in the job, he is wielding more clout than any Commerce Secretary since Herbert Hoover."

But Peterson's biggest disability may have been his failure to fit Mr. Nixon's political grand design. In White House discussions, aides grumbled about Peterson's past business association (at Bell & Howell) and continuing friendship with Sen. Charles H. Percy of Illinois. Since the White House targets Percy as Public Enemy No. 1, who must be kept from the 1976 presidential nomination, a Percy ally in the Cabinet is intolerable.

As we reported a week ago, Peterson was asked to become ambassador to NATO with greatly expanded duties in international economic negotiations. Nixon's private national security adviser, Henry F. Kissinger, intended this as a major position for Peterson. But the European

Vernon Denied Appeal Of Water Rate Hike

The Town of Vernon has been denied its second appeal of a June 1970 decision by the PUC (Public Utilities Commission) which raised the rates of the Rockville Water and Aqueduct Co. by 126 per cent.

The denial was by the State Supreme Court, which said in an unsigned opinion Monday that a Sept. 15, 1971 opinion by Superior Court Judge William P. Barber, which also denied the appeal, "meticulously and correctly details the valid reasons which required the court to dismiss the plaintiff's appeal."

The appeals to the Superior Court and to the Supreme Court were predicated upon the basic assertion that the PUC acted illegally "arbitrarily and in abuse of its discretion in granting the rate hikes."

The water company had asked for rate hikes which would have generated $600,000 in additional annual income. The PUC allowed rate hikes for generating only $510,000 in additional revenue.

Judge Barber, in dismissing the appeal in Superior Court, said the company had spent $2,300,000 for a water treatment and filter plant that went into operation in May 1971.

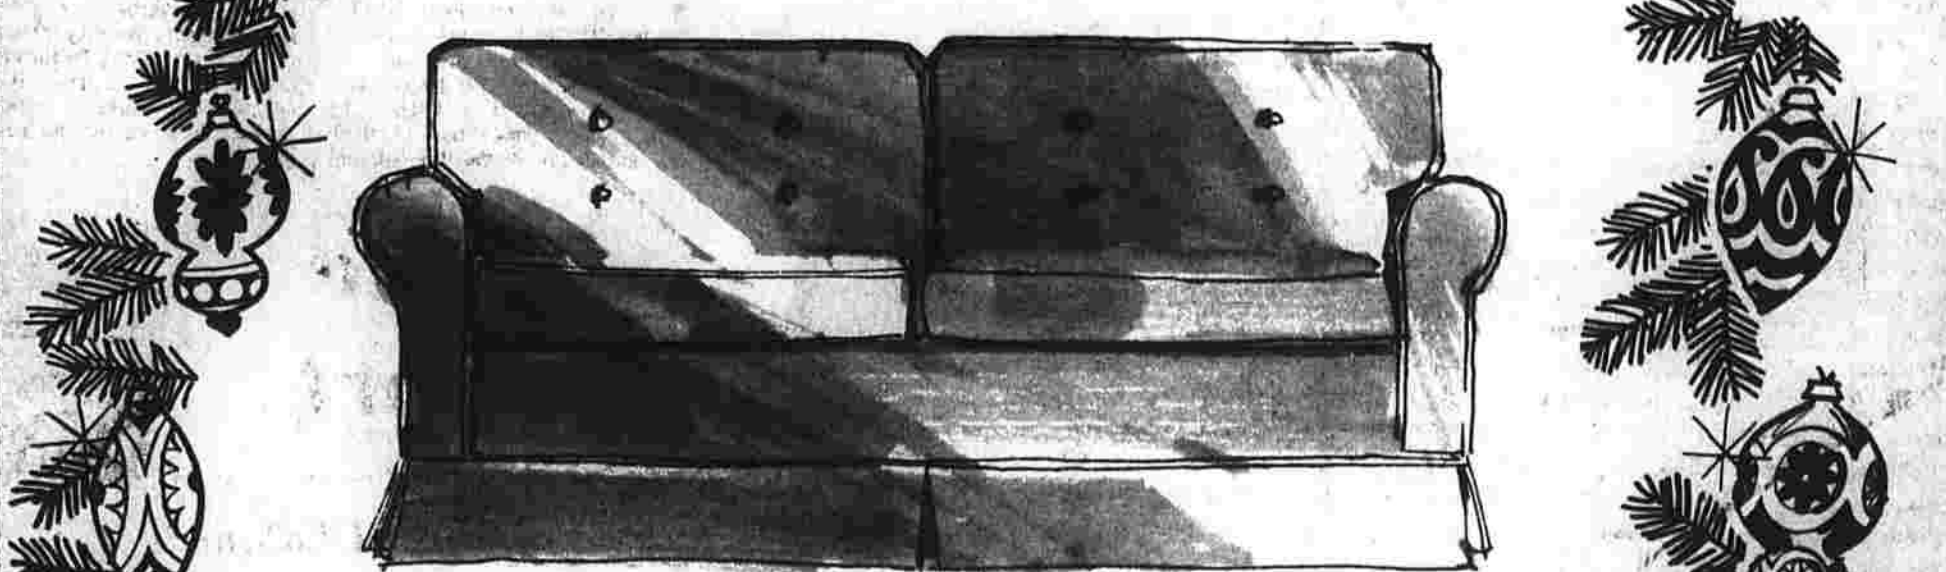

The Supreme Court, in denying the further appeal, said Judge Barber's opinion, "Our examination of the record and consideration of the briefs and arguments of counsel lead to the conclusion there was no error."

The Rockville Water and Aqueduct Co. services about 3,850 customers in the Rockville area.

Ex-Grid Star Now Calling NAM Signals

NEW YORK (AP) — You may remember the new president of the National Association of Manufacturers as the smooth quarterback who handed off the ball to Blanchard and Davis.

E. DOUGLAS KENNA

the touchdown twins of the great Army teams of the mid-1960s.

E. Douglas Kenna, much honored himself as a football and basketball player and coach, now is calling signals for an organization that generally doesn't hear the applause of the multitude or the praise of the critics.

The NAM is made up of 12,275 members, all top officers of their organizations, all men and women of very positive opinions that they seldom fail to articulate. "They wouldn't be there if they didn't," said Kenna.

One job facing Kenna is to attract more members to NAM. Like other associations in recent years, it has shrunk in size. In 1968, its rolls numbered 167,287, but recession and business consolidations have taken a toll.

Although he accepted the job on very little notice, Kenna expects he will be able to work easily with the association's 172-man board, even though that board often is not in total agreement.

The common goal that unites them despite differences on matters such as import controls is, said Kenna, that "they are all for a good and healthy business environment."

Does such an environment sometimes conflict with other national goals, he was asked? "Yes," Kenna replied after reflecting, "there will be areas of conflict. There must be tradeoffs."

Youthful Capitalist Has Booming Discount Business

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — If you want to buy anything from a rib roast to radial tires, in this university city — student capitalist Charles Kemmer can get it for you at 5 to 50 per cent off.

Kemmer, 25, a University of Florida political-science major, sells "Kash Kards" for $7 a year. Card holders are entitled to discounts at 85 participating Gainesville merchants.

"I'm a capitalist, no two ways about it," he said, "but I enjoy making money in ways that will help people."

Kash Kard discounts range from half off on tires to 25 per cent off on diamonds to 5 per cent off on meat.

Law School Enrollments Decline

CHICAGO (AP) — Total freshman enrollment in the nation's law schools declined this year by almost three per cent, the American Bar Association says.

Millard H. Hund, a consultant on legal education to the ABA and law professor at the University of Texas, said the decrease resulted from admission cutbacks forced by large freshman classes the past two years. The ABA released the figures Monday.

Despite the freshman enrollment decline, total enrollment in ABA-approved law schools jumped from 94,469 last year to 101,694.

In addition, the total number of women law students rose by more than 27 per cent this year, from 8,914 last fall to 12,172 for the 1971-72 school year.

He spoke clearly, very calmly, very certainly, with a slight Mississippi accent, drawing slowly on a fine, slim cigar. He is 48, still athletic looking and inclined to dress less conservatively than some NAM members.

"We need a policy in which you wind up with a compromise," he said. "We must take the rational course. That is the policy we seek."

That philosophy was restated many times by Kenna as he prepared to "take over" from W.P. Gullander, who held the job of permanent president for 10 years, at the recent annual meeting, a strictly business affair held here in December while other groups retreat to warmer southern spas.

It is a philosophy that has proved highly productive for Kenna, whose career is studded with achievements. At West Point, he was president of the class of 1945, regimental commander and a top selection on many "all" football and basketball teams.

It is not unusual as it might appear for a West Pointer to follow a business career after fulfilling his military obligations. At least one study shows that service-academy personnel, on a per graduate basis, occupy more top corporate jobs than the product of any top business school.

Kenna held top management positions with Avco Corp. for 10 years, being responsible for manufacturing activities in aerospace, electronics, farm equipment and appliance operations. He was appliance production manager at Westinghouse.

More recently, he was president of Fuqua Industries — a diversified, Atlanta-based company whose sales rose from $4 million to $350 million a year during his tenure.

He left to become president and managing partner of Robert B. Anderson & Co., where he helped organize and finance major business projects around the world. The company is active in export-import, venture capital, shipping and oil-gas exploration.

A native of Jackson, Kenna now lives in Manhattan and Palm Beach, Fla., with his wife, the former Jean Cruise, and their four children. He is a trustee of Northeastern University, Boston, and a director of Investors Diversified Services, Minneapolis, and a member of the American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics.

Law Supported By Archbishop

HARTFORD (AP) - Citing Greed has become the new religion for many people who put first in their lives not spiritual or cultural values, but rather money and all that money can get, Archbishop Whelan said.

He noted that Connecticut law "preserves one day a week as a day of rest, peace and religion. It is quite necessary that a state for the physical, cultural and religious well-being of its citizens require that one day be kept free from business as usual... The question of Sabbath rest, then, is important for quality of living. It is important for each individual and for all of society," he said.

Citing one recent arrest in which he says a store owner claimed that he kept his establishment open Sunday because "he felt he would be doing the public a service," the archbishop called the state's "closing law" "eminently reasonable and balanced. Yet even it will be challenged, in each instance the reason for breaking the law will be given as service to the public."

This puts a burden on law enforcement officials, said the archbishop. "If they do not enforce it (the Blue Law), then the cancerous cycle begins. Because one merchant is making money on Sunday, his competition feels that it must do the same."

Minority Group Enrollments Up

HARTFORD (AP) - Despite a decline in black students in several Connecticut cities between 1971 and 1972, increases in Spanish-surnamed students in the state's seven largest cities pushed minority-group enrollments up in all seven cases, according to the state Department of Education.

Rises in the number of students with Spanish surnames more than offset declines among black pupils in Bridgeport, Hartford and Waterbury.

In New Haven, Norwalk and Stamford the number of both minority-group pupils increased.

And in New Britain, the black enrollment remained unchanged while that of Hispanic students rose.

In Hartford, which has the largest number of minority-group students, the total enrollment increase in that category was from 19,819 to 19,939 or 60 to 71 per cent.

Bridgeport's minority enrollment rose from 13,353 to 13,545, or 69 to 71 per cent; New Britain 2,445 to 2,544 (17 to 19 per cent); New Haven 14,187 to 14,285 (66 to 68 per cent); Norwalk 3,740 to 3,960 (22 to 23 per cent); Stamford 5,368 to 5,597 (26 to 27 per cent); and Waterbury 5,126 to 5,164 (remaining about 29 per cent).

Enrollments of black pupils declined in Bridgeport from 8,394 to 8,329; Hartford 13,976 to 13,885 and Waterbury 3,977 to 3,622. It rose in New Haven from 12,164 to 12,338; Norwalk 2,958 to 3,022; Stamford 4,233 to 4,508.

The New Britain total remained at 1,207.

Enrollments of pupils with Spanish surnames rose in Bridgeport from 4,822 to 5,101; Hartford 5,778 to 6,023; New Britain 1,261 to 1,294; New Haven 1,947 to 2,007; Norwalk 687 to 770; Stamford 958 to 979 and Waterbury 1,460 to 1,516.

The number of American Indian pupils in Bridgeport went from 34 to 30; Hartford 46 to 40; New Haven 95 to 78; Norwalk 102 to 49; Stamford 26 to 168 and Waterbury 13 to 18. It remained at 30 in New Britain.

The number of American Indian pupils was reported this fall in Bridgeport as 17; Hartford 21; New Britain 15; New Haven 11; Norwalk 10; Stamford 5, and Waterbury 18.

DO something

This is the third year the Manchester Jaycees have run the "DO SOMETHING" program.

Inspired by President Nixon's Volunteer Action Program, it is a campaign to encourage local residents to help each other.

This can be done by interested persons donating their time and efforts to any one of several local organizations.

The Jaycees want to sign up those individuals who will be able to donate their time on a scheduled weekly or monthly basis. Some of the volunteer needs to be fulfilled are:

MANCHESTER PUBLIC HEALTH NURSING ASSOCIATION has a need for several volunteers a few hours a week to help with typing and care and maintenance of equipment.

Individuals are needed by FISH to accept phone calls in their own home and to route requests to transportation volunteers. There is also a need for baby sitters, snow shovelers and volunteers to run errands.

In general, volunteer qualifications can range from devoting free time to typing skills. All demand a desire to help.

If you would like to help or find out more about the volunteer needs, please complete the form below and mail to "DO SOMETHING," c/o HOSPITAL, needs ward clerks to serve as "Gal Friday" to the

"Services Unlimited" A Boon For Young And Old

A new service offered through the Special Education Department of the Manchester schools utilizes the abilities of the young to fulfill the needs of the elderly, in a way that completely bridges the so-called "generation gap."

The brainchild of Norman Fendell, special education supervisor, the new program is called "Services Unlimited."

Youthful special education students trained in the basic principles of housecleaning by Mrs. Shirley Wirtz of the department, offer their services to the elderly. Workers are available from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. and receive $1.25 per hour from their customers.

They perform such tasks as dusting, vacuuming, making beds, cleaning bathrooms, tiles or windows, kitchens, stoves and refrigerators. They are also available for shovelling snow, raking leaves, babysitting, errands, and most all domestic work.

"Many of these youngsters need the assurance that they can do some line of work to be somewhat self-sustaining," Fendell said.

"Students are allowed to keep the money they earn, and take great pride in opening their own bank accounts, paying for a few of their own clothes, and in some cases, helping out at home," he added.

"On the other hand, many of the elderly for whom they work, are unable to perform necessary tasks around their home and yard," Fendell commented.

"Through this program, one hand helps the other, and the bonds of friendship that are established between young and old, are very rewarding."

"For most of these students, participation in this program affords them the only paying job they have ever held, and they are proud of their work, as well as in the fact that they are earning money," he said.

At present, "Services Unlimited" is only available for senior citizens of Mayfair Gardens and Westhill Gardens.

"We have had very satisfied customers," Mrs. Wirtz said, "and many repeat calls."

"Just now, we only have one team of girls, Sue and Sybella, and they work well together. In fact, response has been so well, we are booked up several weeks ahead at most times. I accompany the students and oversee their work, but for the most part, they just take over, complete the work the customer requests, and if our schedule allows, are ready to move onto the next house," she said.

"Once in a while, we'll get a call from a customer who spotted an undusted spot or an overlooked ashtray after the girls had departed, but I explain that they are not 'professionals' and that the program is really a work-study program, and assure them that they will improve as time goes by," she said.

Seventeen-year-old Sue, half of the "Services Unlimited" team, thinks the program is "great."

"I have been able to save some money, buy a few clothes, and also a few Christmas presents. The people we have worked for are very nice, and although we are in their homes to work, they make us feel like friends and visitors," she said.

Fendell, who seems to have a knack for conceiving programs to benefit the special education students, as well as the town's elderly, is hopeful that the program will branch out, and possibly be available to others.

"We are working with more students, some boys also, who we feel would work into such a work-study program well, and would assist them in becoming self-sufficient."

Fendell is no newcomer to the problems of youth and the elderly.

In 1965 he founded the Manchester Sheltered Workshop, a rehabilitation facility for the adult retarded, and serves as its director. In 1966 he was appointed consultant for the Manchester Foster Grandparent Plan by the Office of Economic Opportunity. He holds membership in the Council for Exceptional Children, American Association on Mental Deficiency, and the Connecticut Rehabilitation Association.

Under his guidance, a unique program called the "Dining Club" was inaugurated, whereby approximately 100 elderly people of Manchester enjoy a dinner at noon on Wednesdays in the Senior Citizens Center.

Whether Fendell has any new ideas on the old 'drawing board' is anybody's guess but the community can be assured, that if there are any other ways to assist the special educational students, as well as the elderly of Manchester, adapt to their life styles, he will find the way.

Lee Darling of 14C McQuire Lane, greets Mrs. Shirley Wirtz and the young students.

The girls skim through their work leaving the house bright and shiny.

Back Home

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Shannon of 17 Oval Lane have returned home after visiting with their son and daughter-in-law, P.O. 1 C. and Mrs. Coprad Shannon and their family in San Diego, Calif. The Shannons were there for the return of the U.S. aircraft carrier, Kitty Hawk, Nov. 28, which was returning after 9 months in the Gulf of Tonkin.

Petty Officer Shannon had been serving on the Kitty Hawk, but had flown home before the ship's arrival. The Shannons termed it a "wonderful experience" to see the ship pull into the harbor with 5,000 seamen standing on deck straining their eyes to locate a loved one on shore.

Fetty Officer Shannon retired in July after serving 20 years with the Navy. The trip was a gift from the Shannon's children, relatives and friends, in observance of their 40th wedding anniversary which they celebrated last April 21.

Rubber bands slipped over the spools of thread will keep the thread from unwinding. When necessary, make your own window and mirror spray. Mix one part water, one part white vinegar and one part household ammonia. Put in spray-type bottle. Spray on, then wipe off with crumpled newspapers.

Remember that the berries of the mistletoe plant are poisonous. Keep them well out of the reach of children. To keep marble tabletop lustrous, use a buffer attachment on an electric drill.

To make a cherry topping for a cheesecake, mix together one-third cup of sugar and two tablespoons cornstarch in a saucepan. Drain one can of cherries (20 ounces), gradually stir cherry liquid into sugar mixture. Place over heat and cook, stirring until mixture is thick and clear. Remove from heat. Stir in cherries. Use red sour-pitted cherries.

To make cranberry orange sauce, wash and pick over one pound whole cranberries. Place in saucepan with two cups sugar, 1/2 cup fresh orange juice and one-eighth teaspoon of salt. Cook only until skins pop, about 6 to 8 minutes. Make 3 1/2 cups.

To make walnut creams, whip one egg white with one teaspoon water until foamy. Beat in about three cups sifted powdered sugar until mixture is firm. Mix in one teaspoon vanilla. Roll mixture into balls about one-half inch in diameter; press firmly between walnut halves. Makes about 50 pieces.

Hardened paste silver polish can be restored to its former consistency by adding a few drops of water at a time and stirring.

To shrink a cloth that you plan to use for a new garment, give it a trip through the enamel and dryer, press and then out.

When a new dress or skirt needs to be shortened and rehemmed, save the strip that you cut from the bottom to make a colorful binding for something old that has frayed edges. Shrink the new material before attaching it to the old.

When you need a patch that must absolutely match a garment, cut it from underneath a pocket. The hole left under the pocket can then be patched with any cloth as it will not show.

An old lampshade that has yellowed with age can be rejuvenated by painting it with enamel of a light shade that contrasts with the room.

Use red sour-pitted cherries.

To make cranberry orange sauce, wash and pick over one pound whole cranberries. Place in saucepan with two cups sugar, 1/2 cup fresh orange juice and one-eighth teaspoon of salt. Cook only until skins pop, about 6 to 8 minutes. Make 3 1/2 cups.

To make walnut creams, whip one egg white with one teaspoon water until foamy. Beat in about three cups sifted powdered sugar until mixture is firm. Mix in one teaspoon vanilla. Roll mixture into balls about one-half inch in diameter; press firmly between walnut halves. Makes about 50 pieces.

Hardened paste silver polish can be restored to its former consistency by adding a few drops of water at a time and stirring.

To shrink a cloth that you plan to use for a new garment, give it a trip through the enamel and dryer, press and then out.

When a new dress or skirt needs to be shortened and rehemmed, save the strip that you cut from the bottom to make a colorful binding for something old that has frayed edges. Shrink the new material before attaching it to the old.

When you need a patch that must absolutely match a garment, cut it from underneath a pocket. The hole left under the pocket can then be patched with any cloth as it will not show.

An old lampshade that has yellowed with age can be rejuvenated by painting it with enamel of a light shade that contrasts with the room.

Commercial Zone Opposed

The Planning and Zoning Commission Monday night heard a proposal by Albert Lindsay for a zoning change on 19 acres located at the southeastern intersection of Rt. 44 and Rt. 31.

Before a large group of residents, Atty. Eugene Kelly, representing Lindsay, requested the rural residential property be changed to a commercial C-3 zone.

Earth-Bound Geologists Waiting

By C.G. McDaniel AP Science Writer SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Scientists tuned into reports from the "geological paradise" of Apollo 17 say lunar rocks found by the two moon walkers could be among the youngest ever found.

Discovery of the young rocks would mean that only a few score million years ago, a land cent time by geologic standards — the moon valley of Taurus-Littrow was covered by lava which bubbled and boiled up from deep within the moon.

To this point in man's lunar exploration, no evidence has been found that volcanoes occurred on the moon later than about 100 million years ago.

Science has searched for rocks from this era to complete the latest chapter of lunar evolution. Also missing is the first chapter.

Dr. Farouk El-Baz, a geologist with Bell Laboratories in Washington, D.C., and consultant to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, said reports Monday night from Eugene A. Cernan and geologist Harrison H. Schmitt that many of the rocks were highly vesicular indicated they were of volcanic origin.

Vesicles are gas bubbles formed in rocks when they cool. Pumice or cinders found around volcanoes on earth are examples of such rock.

Other scientists agreed with El-Baz, although all cautioned that only a portion of the moon mission has been completed, other experiments are being conducted and firm deductions must wait until the moon rock samples can be examined.

Historical Society, said residents have had two zone changes forced upon them already, referring to the England shopping center and Gas Town. He said anymore strong developing in this area would be detrimental to the town.

Richard Barry, Manchester real estate appraiser and land consultant, said after his study of the area, a change to C-3 is the most appropriate use for the land since the size and location are ideally suited to the needs of Coventry.

Atty. David Rappe, representing William Glenney of Silver Street, said a "carrie blanche" approval of a zone change would permit any use of the land.

In answer to Rappe, Lindsay said he had been approached by Glenney's representatives to purchase a portion of this land for the construction of a lumber yard.

Herman Marshall, president of the Historical Society, said residents have had two zone changes forced upon them already, referring to the England shopping center and Gas Town.

He said anymore strong developing in this area would be detrimental to the town. Mrs. Rose Fowler, S. River Rd., shared his view, saying people she has spoken to want Coventry to remain rural. She suggested that an impact study be made to determine alternatives for the use of the land and "great care should be shown for any zoning change."

Residents expressed concern that an increase in traffic congestion would result if the change is approved. In rebuttal, Kelly said the Department of Transportation and the PZC are responsible for the location of entrances and exits from state highways into a commercial development.

Newsman Tense Covering Truman Illness

By F. RICHARD CICcone Associated Press Writer KANSAS CITY (AP) — They get tense and then get restless, and some of the clean-shaven men have let their beards grow.

Truman's condition has been changed from critical to serious, and the urgency of the newsmen's reports has diminished. But they continue their round-the-clock vigil, waiting for the three daily hospital briefings that provide the only glimpse they can give to readers and listeners of the former president's fight for life.

Between 50 and 100 reporters, photographers and broadcast technicians have assembled at Research Hospital and Medical Center since Wednesday, when 85-year-old Harry S. Truman slipped into critical condition from complications of age.

For most, the chief tool remains the telephone. In moments, the reporters from the news services, newspapers and broadcast networks can feed the latest bulletins to their offices, and, almost instantly, the information is passed throughout the nation.

Their biggest problem now is finding news. They are limited to the terse medical reports given by John Dreyer, the hospital public relations director. They pepper him with questions, but Dreyer, who is

Moynihan Tapped By Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — It was just short of two years ago that Daniel Patrick Moynihan said a farewell to the Nixon administration.

For two years Moynihan was the No. 1 Democrat in the White House as President Nixon's urban-affairs adviser—ostensibly an anonymous counselor who broke into print fairly frequently.

The man Nixon has now tapped to be U.S. ambassador to India, succeeding former New York Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, was accused of selling out by many fellow Democrats who remembered him as a member of the John F. Kennedy administration.

Moynihan had no excuses. "If you can't work for the President of the United States you might as well shut up," he said. "If you have some knowledge in an area and the President comes to you and asks you to help, what do you do? You help."

Perhaps his proudest achievement for Nixon was his drafting and promotion of welfare reform—the still-unrealized legislative goal which he and the President have termed the most important domestic proposal in decades.

It would put a floor of $1,800 a year under the income of an urban family of four. His departure from the GOP administration in December 1970 was not unexpected—he had a two-year leave from Harvard—but it was not without incident.

A few weeks earlier there was widespread speculation that he had been chosen to replace Charles W. Yost as U.S. ambassador to the United Nations. When the stories appeared in print Yost was surprised, and Moynihan rejected the offer in deference to Yost's feelings.

Affluent Americans Now Own Personal Bankers

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — As Americans become more affluent they are confronted with a greater number of decisions about what to do with their money: spend it, save it, invest it, lend it. Where, when, why, how?
Insurers, brokers, bankers and others would love to supply the answers, because to the man with the answers goes the business. Few insurance agents, however, are expert in banking; few bankers are authorities on stocks.
The ordinary American with a little extra money and a lot of questions has, therefore, to search about for answers and then, somewhat furtively, hope he can integrate them into a meaningful, logical financial program.
But some headway is being made. A few brokerage houses now are looking toward the day when their personnel will be taken off commissions and greatly upgraded in skills so that they will be able to serve as financial advisers.
Insurance companies too foresee the day when the agent might fulfill that role. And some lawyers seek to be such broadly skilled professionals, although people of such abilities usually can find wealthier clients.
Perhaps the response with the greatest potential emanates from the commercial banks and some of which offer themselves as "full service" banks and some of which offer 40 or more different services.
Some of these now are going in for the personal banking concept. As one, the United Bank of Denver, a pioneer, states: "You have a personal physician, a personal attorney, maybe a personal stockbroker. Now you can have a personal banker."
At United — and at Harris Bank & Trust, Chicago, and at North Carolina's largest, the Wachovia Bank, among others — a customer may be assigned his own banker, and it is this person to whom he goes with business of any kind.
The personal banker has undergone a training program

Foreign Editorial Comment Covers Various Topics

LONDON (AP) — Israel's policies toward its Arab neighbors are "generally condemned" as revealed by voting in the United Nations following its Middle East debate, the Sunday Times of London said last week.
Other foreign editorial comment last week dealt with the Straits Times said, "Individual governments can rely only on their own efforts to project life and property."
"U.N. conventions could not have saved Imelda Marcos. Security measures and, in the long term, social progress and stability are more effective safeguards."
The Sunday Times, reviewing the U.N. General Assembly's vote condemning Israel's policy in the occupied lands, said: "The Israeli spokesman has described the U.N. resolution as a curious word to use about an expression of world opinion which only seven governments, including Israel herself, opposed."
"The truth is that Israel's policy of creating facts accomplishes in the occupied territories stands generally condemned."
The London Daily Telegraph, writing during the meeting of North Atlantic Treaty Organization defense ministers, asserted: "If at the bogus European Security Conference and the talks on balanced force reductions, the NATO powers allow themselves to be divided... then NATO's credibility will really end. An East-West collective security system will clear the way for Communist suzerainty over Western Europe. But it is still not too late. President Nixon is still at the White House; and if the European NATO members convince him and Congress that they are prepared to make a bigger concerted effort, the line can still be held."
The flight of Apollo 17 marks an end of "one era of technology," a period of firm faith in "big science," Japan's biggest newspaper, Asahi Shimbun, said.
"Big science had fatal defects," the editorial said. "Concentration of money and manpower in one particular field has impeded harmonious development of technology in general. It was, therefore, only natural that, with the progress of the Apollo program, demands increased in the United States for solution of environmental problems and poverty."
The Singapore Straits Times said the knife attack on Mrs.

Educators Admire Andover's Resource Room

ANNA FRISINA
Correspondent
Tel. 742-9347
The Andover Elementary School Resource Room, barely into its second year, is already being pointed to as an unusually fine example of its kind by area educators.
Mrs. Jean Nielsen, Andover's Resource Room teacher, last week made a presentation to the Board of Education of the room's purposes, her role in teaching children with learning disabilities, and the school's plans for the future of the Resource Room.
Before classes began last year, in the fall of 1971, Donald Libby, the newly hired principal for the school, together with the school board, the superintendent, and other educators, made the decision to disband the old "special" class, which dealt mainly with the marginal retarded or with children who had severe learning disabilities. Children with minor learning problems were not placed in the class. When the decision was made to disband the class, there were only three children left in it, with one about to be transferred to another school.
Need Recognized
There were no plans at that time for another special class, not for a resource room. Children with special learning problems were given extra attention with the school's reading teacher, newly hired, the speech therapist, and the nurse and social workers where necessary.
The need for still other instruction for certain children was apparent. But the school board had just that year been able to hire a reading teacher, after wanting one for many years, and was not about to go before the town asking for still another special teacher in the budget.
There were not just the one or two children with severe learning or emotional disabilities. There were a few children with actual physical handicaps, such as deafness, who needed special attention. And there were more than a few who just needed some individualized instruction because they couldn't learn through the same methods that most other children did.
Resource Room Established
A combination of circumstances led to the establishment of the Resource Room in Andover, some months after school started last year. The handicaps) make the decision as to whether the child needs additional instruction. If he does, a program for that child is set-up.

For a child with a motor impairment, this might be a program concentrating on physical exercises; for a child with reading problems, it might mean simply trying a different reading series of books, or a combination of resource room help, speech clinician, and other work. For every child, there is a different program.
The children come to the Resource Room at pre-established times on a daily basis where they stay anywhere from 20 minutes to an hour. There are no more than four children in the room at one time, and sometimes there is just one.
The Learning Process
Mrs. Nielsen structures the time of each student and after providing instruction in a particular task, may turn the student over to an aide for repetition of the task.
What does she do? Mrs. Nielsen said that first of all, she explained what she and the student are going to do, why they want to accomplish it, the purpose it serves, and what the desired outcome will be. "I demand responses," she said, because so often these children will simply say "I can't," and you can't allow them to keep saying that forever.
The lessons are short, the room is quiet, there are few distractions. The work first assigned is simple, well within the child's level. Sometimes a regular classroom teacher asks Mrs. Nielsen, "why did you give him such a baby test?" He knows that work a long time ago. No wonder he got them all right."
Mrs. Nielsen explains that sometimes this is the only paper the child has ever done that was all right; usually, he's the one—the only one—who gets all the answers wrong. It's important to build the child's confidence so that he thinks he can accomplish the work.
Resource Room Accepted
Children attending the resource room for short periods during the day for some reason are not singled out as being any different from the others, as children in the special class often were.
Perhaps it's because there are so many children who go to the resource room. Perhaps it's because of them are obviously intelligent, and perhaps it's partly because their class work begins to improve noticeably and the children are happier.
Mrs. Nielsen and Libby would like to see the Resource Room really serve as a center, not just for the special instruction given to some children, but a resource center where teachers can find assistance for some situations in the regular classroom, where materials are available to both student and teacher, where new ideas can be tried that a busy teacher with a class full of average children has no time to try.

High Praise
Andover's Resource Room even last year saw student teachers coming to do their student training in learning disabilities. High praise for a program barely into its second year.
Is the praise warranted? So soon? Ask the children who have made use of the resource room in the past year. Those who have jumped two grade levels of reading in one year. Ask the mentioned 30 times in the Bible.
not get all the answers wrong, those who suddenly became transformed into students doing school work, where formerly they were simply visitors present in the classroom.

Executives Charged For Deaths

PARIS (AP) — Charges of involuntary homicide have been filed against three executives of a company that made and distributed a talcum powder blamed for the death of 41 French babies, it was announced Tuesday.
An examining magistrate ordered all of the powder seized after starting a judicial inquiry last August. The Ministry of Health said the talcum contained excessive amounts of benzopyrene and caused encephalitis.
The charges were filed against the president of the company that marketed the talcum, the president of the company that manufactured it and another executive of the manufacturing company.

New York City Files Suit For Federal Funds

NEW YORK (AP) - New York City filed suit Tuesday in U.S. District Court in Washington to have the Nixon administration restore $6 billion voted for Congress for sewer and waste treatment plants.

The suit, filed on behalf of all local governments in New York State, requests the court to compel the federal government to comply with the Water Pollution Control Act's amendments of 1972.

Last October Congress, overriding President Nixon's veto, passed the amendments calling for allocation of $11 billion among the states for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1973, and 1974, according to a specified formula.

As a result, the city alleged in its suit, local governments in New York State were allotted $52.9 million instead of $1.216 billion.

William Ruckelshaus, federal environmental administrator who was named as defendant in the city's suit, on Nov. 28 announced that, at the direction of the President, he was allocating only $5 billion to the states—not the $11 billion as called for by Congress.

City Corporation Counsel Norman Redlich said that Nixon's action, unless reversed by the courts, would result in New York State losing $663.5 million in water pollution funds.

"Our research has turned up no occasion in American history where the President has directed domestic action to explicitly in contravention of an act of Congress."

Redlich predicted that the suit eventually would wind up in the U.S. Supreme Court.

Lindsay said that only last July the federal government sued New York City and several New Jersey communities for not moving fast enough to clean up the waters of New York Harbor.

The Presidential cut, Lindsay said, would lose the city $265 million.

Lindsay said that five new city sewage treatment plants have been held up awaiting the availability of federal money.

The plants are to be built in Red Hook, Owlis Head, Conoy Island and Newtown Creek in Brooklyn, and Oakwood Beach, Staten Island.

Water Resources Commissioner Martin Lang said that if the court failed to reverse the President's action, the highest priority would be given to the city and the state as well as agreement over who would be responsible for other decisions that might have a long-range impact on jobs and salaries.

"And tax rebatement practices by the city and the state as well as agreement over who would be responsible for other decisions that might have a long-range impact on jobs and salaries."

Lang said that the state negotiations with a transit district should also include the owner of the company.

"It is only normal to expect that he will want a fair price (in the event of a takeover)," he said.

Mayors Told Deficits Should Be Expected By Transit Districts

NEW HAVEN (AP) - The Connecticut Conference of Mayors has told that any plan for operating a metropolitan bus transit district should anticipate a cash deficit.

"Any plan or program for operating a metropolitan bus transit system today, or in the near future, should anticipate a cash deficit," said Daniel D. Donovan, a partner in the accounting firm of Peat, Marwick Mitchell.

"Given the traditional dependence on the automobile for local travel and existing restrictive legislation on auto use, we believe it unlikely that a sudden reversal would occur in a downward trend of bus usage," he said.

He referred to conclusions drawn in a Peat, Marwick, Mitchell report prepared at the conference's request and presented to the conference in September. The report was revealed Tuesday.

Donovan also said a suitable approach to the question of state subsidies for a transit district would be first to "develop a formula on which the subsidy is to be based."

That formula, he said, should include the following data:

- Agreement as to the basis of depreciation of all fixed assets except for buses if leased from the state;
- Management fees, return on investment if applicable, and an accounting of pension costs;
- Responsibilities of management decisions, including contract negotiations, service changes, maintenance programs and expenses for advertising, promotion and salaries;
- And tax rebatement practices by the city and the state as well as agreement over who would be responsible for other decisions that might have a long-range impact on jobs and salaries.

Donovan said that the state negotiations with a transit district should also include the owner of the company.

"It is only normal to expect that he will want a fair price (in the event of a takeover)," he said.

Coventry Sewer

The council said last night it will meet with attorneys as soon as possible to discuss future action. Town council Chairman Albert Bradley said he regretted the defeat, adding that "each one of us is going to cost the town money."

He explained that if the same plan goes to referendum again, there is no guarantee that costs will remain the same, since 90 per cent funding from state and Federal sources may not be available.

Bradley reiterated the council's stand, maintained since the beginning of the public education campaign on yesterday's referendum, that sewers are the only permanent solution to the town's pollution problems. Rehabilitation of the sewer area will be studied, as it now being studied, since the council feels that this approach, in conjunction with sewers, is a realistic one.

Presumptive Death Ruled By Jury

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) - A presumptive death verdict for missing U.S. Rep. Nick Begich and two others has been returned by a jury, but the judge has declined to sign a death certificate immediately.

After about 30 minutes of deliberations Tuesday, the six-member jury said it may "be fairly presumed" that Begich, Russell L. Brown and pilot Don E. Jones have "suffered death" since the disappearance of a light plane Oct. 18.

Also aboard the Cessna 310 was House Democratic Leader Hale Boggs, but he was not included in the hearing "at the request of the family," officials said.

Judge Dorothy Tyler, while approving the verdict, said she did not believe there was "clear and convincing proof" that the three men are dead. She indicated she might sign presumptive death certificates in the next several weeks.

The judge told a newsmen after the hearing there still is a chance the men may be alive, although a search was suspended officially Nov. 24.

Under state law, the jury verdict takes effect after six months unless the judge signs a presumptive death certificate sooner.

Retired Man's Real Live Tree Stolen

BOSTON (AP) - Twelve years ago Joseph Mucci planted a seedling in his back yard and nurtured it until it was a 7½-foot blue spruce - his own personal Christmas tree.

Tuesday morning, while reading his newspaper, "I glanced out the dining room window and I knew something was wrong," the 73-year-old retired construction worker said.

"I called to my wife to come look, and then it hit me that my tree was gone ... the best tree I ever had."

The vandals left Mucci with only a five-inch stump.

"No kids took my tree," Mucci said. "Whoever took it made a professional cut. They knew what they were doing."

KINDNESS
BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) - A man operating a "guess-your-weight-or-you-win-a-prize" booth at the Alabama state fair recently tackled a group of 16 customers, guessed wrong on all of them and gave out prizes. He guessed wrong deliberately. The 16 kids were cerebral palsy victims who were special guests of the fair.

"That was a fine thing you did," an officer who was escorting the group told the weight guesser.

"It was nothing," said the man. "But it means I've got to be right with the next 16 customers."

Kissinger To Report To Nixon

PARIS (AP) - Henry A. Kissinger and Le Duc Tho met for six hours today at what could be the end of their current session of secret peace talks.

The U.S. Embassy advised only airport that Kissinger would leave for Washington tonight, airport officials said. His personal plane has been standing by since it arrived from an American base in West Germany on Tuesday night. He will report to President Nixon.

There was no immediate indication whether Kissinger and Tho have reached agreement, or whether they planned to meet again in the near future.

Before the President's national security adviser and North Vietnam's Politburo member met in a suburban villa, a subcommittee of experts held a 90-minute session to discuss details of a settlement.

Eighteen fires, with a total value of about $1,835, were taken in a weekend break into the Manchester Ambulance Service building at 139 E. Center St., police reported.

Investigation is continuing.

Denisons) proposed it and they won't budge," he said.

Weiss said he will resume the talks, with the objective of accepting an option "with no strings attached."

Director Anthony Pietrantoni said he concurred with Prignano's thinking. "It's a desirable parcel of land for us, but it seems to me we've got to go through the same process, under the same provisions, so be it. If we removed the requirement for a prior zone change we would go to the voters with a referendum in no time. Then, if it is approved, we could go to the Planning Commission for a zone change - for sanitary, land-fill use."

Prior to the vote, Mayor John Thompson summed up the consensus feeling. "Except for the proposed change in zoning, the agreement is acceptable to us."

Police Report
MANCHESTER
A car driven by George P. Whiting, 18, of 12 Lydell St., slid off E. Center St. early today and struck a utility pole, a tree, and a fence post.

Whiting suffered minor injuries in the 2:15 a.m. accident, police said. His car was towed. He was warned for operating at a speed too fast for conditions.

Manchester Police reported several other auto accidents which occurred Tuesday. Most of the accidents were attributed to slippery pavement. Minor, if any, injuries were reported.

Elton E. Sperry Jr., 31, of East Hartford, was charged Tuesday night with third-degree assault and threatening, in connection with a recent domestic disturbance, police said. He was released on his written promise to appear in court Jan. 9 at Manchester.

Janice Yesonis of 425 E. Middle Tpke. was treated at Manchester Memorial Hospital for injuries she suffered in an auto accident Saturday on Tolland Tpke. east of Burnham St.

The accident was reported in Monday's Herald.

Happy Ad Apology
A Bolton woman has found a new use for the Manchester Herald's "Happy Ads." She inserted one today to apologize to several dozen friends.

The apology, actually, is for something her daughter did — or didn't do — or meant to do and didn't.

What her daughter did — or didn't — or thought she did — was to wet the stamps too much. The stamps fell off, and the dozen or so friends who got Christmas cards had to pay postage due.

Hence the apology.

F.S. It's costing her $3 to run the ad two days. The stamps that fell off cost 4 cents. She says it's a little enough price to pay to keep a dozen friends.

Henry Elected Head of MEG
The 75-member Manchester Municipal Employees Group (MEG), at its annual meeting two weeks ago, elected Peter R. Henry of the engineering department president for the next two years. He succeeds Alfred Hayber of the building department.

Other officers elected are: Michael W. Nimirowski of the assessors' office, vice president; Claire M. Hughes of the data processing center, secretary; Sarah H. Kowall of the tax collector's office, treasurer; and Thomas F. Walsh of the water department, director.

Mansion Partially Destroyed
FAIRFIELD (AP) - One-third of a vacant 35-room mansion, marketed for $275,000, was gutted by fire Tuesday morning.

The estate, in the exclusive Greenfield Hill area of large colonial homes on large lots, was owned by Edward Danforth of Wilmington, Del. and had been vacant for 2 1/2 years.

The previous owner was Roy Larson, a Fairfield philanthropist and former Time Inc. chairman.

Education is still the order of the day in the square bounded by Main, School, Vine, and Wells Sts., just as it was before Oct. 23, 1913, when the old Ninth District School in the upper photo was destroyed by fire, with no injuries or loss of life. Both views are east on School St., with the present Franklin Building, right; the Barnard Building, background; and the East Side Rec on the perimeter of Educational Sq. On the authority of James McVeigh of 81 Oxford St., the hitching post in the photo stood in front of the feed store owned by the late Alexander Rogers, father of the late Willard B. ("Bun") Rogers.

Early Police Retirement Topic

When Town Manager Robert Weiss was negotiating a 1972-73 contract with the Manchester Police Union, an impasse to an agreement was the union's request for retirement at age 55. It now is at age 58 and was 65 prior to a 1970 amendment to the town's pension ordinance.

Weiss solved the problem by agreeing to a contract clause which provides for retiring and pursuing the retirement request during the present fiscal year. The contract subsequently was approved by the union, by Weiss and by the Board of Directors.

In order to honor the contract clause, Weiss has scheduled a meeting of officials of the Police Union with the Board of Directors and the Town Pension Board. It is scheduled for Jan. 9 at 7:15 p.m. in the Municipal Building Hearing Room. The directors' regular meeting will follow at 8.

In the interval since the Police Union made its proposal for retirement at age 55, Town Union Local 991 and the Municipal Employees Group have requested retirement at age 55 for their members. They now may retire with full pension benefits at age 65.

The Pension Board has been accumulating cost studies of the proposals, to help guide it toward a recommendation.

Exchange Invited To State

HARTFORD (AP)—State Treasurer Robert I. Berdon invited the New York Stock Exchange's Board of directors to meet in Connecticut. Berdon applauded the board's decision to hold its regular meetings at various sites throughout the country, saying that the "floating meetings... can only improve the public's confidence in Wall Street." A meeting in Connecticut would give the big Board's directors the opportunity to hear the state treasury's arguments against mandatory minimum fees paid to stock brokers, Berdon said. Berdon is trying to get the Securities and Exchange Commission to allow Connecticut to have a seat on the PBW (Philadelphia-Baltimore-Washington) Stock Exchange so the state can avoid paying fees on transactions it makes on behalf of its pension funds.

Rockefeller Returns To Arkansas

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—Former Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller said in a memorandum to his employees Tuesday that he returned Saturday from New York and brought back "better news about my health, I am happy to say, than about the weather." "The doctors seemed more than pleased about my progress," Rockefeller said. "The former governor said his weight was low, 'but that seems to be routine for what I have been through over the past months.'" Rockefeller underwent exploratory surgery in New York earlier this year for cancer and, since returning to Arkansas, has undergone regular therapy with drugs. His treatment likely will continue for six months, then be reviewed and possibly changed, he said.

Rockefeller, brother of New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, has numerous business interests in the state and owns a 27,000-acre cattle and farming operation. The wife of President James Polk not only refused to attend the theater or horse racing but allowed no dancing, card playing or Sunday visitors in the White House.

Stamford Needs Bus Money

STAMFORD (AP)—Mayor Julius Wilemsky said Tuesday that he did not know how the city would pay for a bus he has been operating during the Amalgamated Transit Union (ATU) strike against the Connecticut Co. The bus is leased for $100 per day from the Valley Transportation Co. and has had only a small number of riders. Wilemsky said the city has no money appropriated to foot the bill for the service. The city does not have a transit district. Meanwhile, a Stamford representative of the ATU was quoted Tuesday as saying ConnCo owner E. Clayton Gengras had asked to meet Thursday with Stamford ATU members. There was no word as to what the meeting might concern.

A Man's Best Friend....

It has long been proclaimed that man's best friend is his dog. For Al Palmer of 701 Main St., however, it is a tail-wagging youngster who answers to the name of "Jimmy." The two struck up a friendship when the squirrel, who has expressed no serious objections to being occasionally leashed, was about three months old. As any feeder of birds knows, he is quite capable of adapting his acrobatic talents, above, to any challenge. When asked for a positive reaction to his domesticated life, Jimmy replied, "Nuts!" (Herald photos by Pinto)

Nixon Neglecting Women In Top Appointments

WASHINGTON (AP) — Women's groups are unhappy that President Nixon has not named any women to Cabinet or sub-Cabinet positions in his second administration. Letters and telegrams from 18 groups have been sent to the White House urging Nixon to give top priority to appointing women as assistant and deputy secretaries in the executive departments. But White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler indicated the administration felt this would be "tokenism." He said, "We absolutely will not, however, appoint people for the purpose of tokenism... no one benefits from that."

The only woman appointed so far in Nixon's second term is Jewel Lafontant, a black lawyer. She is expected to become deputy to the U.S. solicitor general next June. The National Women's Political Caucus, for one, has called attention to a pledge in the 1972 Republican party platform to "work toward" appointment of women to highest level positions in the federal government including the Cabinet and the Supreme Court. But Ziegler said there was no promise of such appointments. "I do not believe any platform would commit a president to such a step," he said. He contended the Nixon administration has appointed women to positions "of far greater responsibility than has been the case in past administrations."

Humphrey Proposes Home Ownership For Welfare Recipients

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey says persons on welfare should be allowed to purchase homes because it "seems much wiser than pouring welfare money into rent." Humphrey briefly outlined his proposal, which he said he would introduce in the next session of Congress, while appearing at a symposium on Equal Opportunity in the United States. The symposium is sponsored jointly by the Lyndon B. Johnson Library and the University of Texas. "We could eliminate the unscrupulous rent gouging in the welfare-rent program, which is totally inadequate," the Minnesota Democrat said. "It wouldn't cost any more — not a dime. Instead of pouring money into public and rental housing, people could become property owners, which would provide them equity and pride in home ownership."

Rep. Margaret Heckler, R-Mass., said in a statement she was "extremely disappointed" that Nixon has not appointed women to the Cabinet or other high office. "That he has not so far done so, I believe deprives the country of an enormous resource it can ill afford to do without," she said. The leaders of a national women's advisory committee that worked for the Nixon reelection sent him a telegram Tuesday urging "early announcement of qualified women being appointed to key leadership positions."

Jean Osgood Rainey and Bernice Hemphill, co-chairmen of the National Advisory Committee for the Re-election of the President, a committee of about 170 women, told Nixon: "We have talked with women throughout the United States, who are eagerly awaiting demonstration of your continuing commitment to provide equal opportunities, new levels of responsibility and more recognition for women in government. We are proud of what you have done for women and are in full support of your April 1972 statement that 'full and equal participation of women is crucial to the strength of our country...'"

"It is on this basis that we urge early announcement of qualified women being appointed to key leadership positions."

As a substitute for girls in the dormitories, it called for closer liaison with neighboring girls' schools in classroom and leisure activities.

The 25th Wedding Anniversary of Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip is being heralded throughout the British Empire with pomp, pagantry and philately.

Bermuda's special two-denomination stamp set commemorating the silver anniversary features a vignette based on a photograph of the royal couple by Desmond Grov-

Since Royal Silver Wedding stamps are being issued by Great Britain, her colonies and dependencies, many stamp albums are being published to accommodate the new stamps from more than thirty countries. Each of the stamp sets will feature portraits of the royal couple with special motifs of the various colonies involved.

During 1973 the U.S. Postal Service will issue 8 stamps commemorating the bicentennial of the American Revolution. These stamps are in the Bicentennial Series which began in 1971. The issuance of additional stamps is planned through 1976.

A block of four 8-cent stamps depicting the Boston Tea Party will be issued on July 4th, 1973, in Boston.

The other four stamps comprise a set called the "Rising of the Spirit of Independence" and will be issued separately throughout the year. The theme of the set is "Communications in Colonial Times." Featured on separate stamps will be a pamphleteer, a drummer, a post rider and the placing of a written broadside, says the U.S. Postal Service.

Dates and details will be announced as soon as they become available.

Postmaster: General E.T. Klassen told Herb Barbaree: "The Santa Claus stamp that we issue today is dedicated to the Barbarees of the world. For children are the spirit of Christmas. And they know the simple truth that grows-up seem to have forgotten: they know there is a Santa Claus."

FROM THE MAIL BAG...
To Michael D. Curry of Berkeley, Calif., the inventer you describe is interesting and I suggest you show it to one or more dealers in your area for a first hand appraisal... to Joyce Chester of Bronx, N.Y., the Ni-caraguan stamps as well as most other foreign items can be more easily purchased at your local dealer's rather than directly from the foreign post office since many countries do not have a service to handle individual requests.

Suit Seeks End To Retirement Sex Discrimination

HARTFORD (AP) - The Connecticut Civil Liberties Union filed suit in U.S. District Court here Tuesday on behalf of six male state employees who contend the state's retirement policy discriminates against them.

At issue is a section of the Stat Retirement Act that allows for retirement of a state employee with 25 years of service "on or after the member's 55th birthday, if a man, or 50th birthday, if a woman."

CGLU Executive Director William Oida, said the law provides similar benefits for female employees who have less than 25 years of service. CGLU cooperating attorney Paul Orth of Hartford filed the suit asking that a three-judge federal panel be established to hear the case. He contends the state law violates provisions of the federal Civil Rights Act of 1964 and the equal protection clause of the 14th amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

DEVELOPMENT

FEATURED
A 151-unit condominium development designed by Lawrence Associates, architects and planners of Manchester, is pictured on the cover and is the subject of a feature story in the November issue of "Home & Home." McGraw-Hill's marketing and management publication of housing and light construction. The cover picture is titled "Using Land," and shows a cliff house overlooking Long Island Sound.

The magazine devotes seven pages to pictures, plans, and descriptions of the project. It states, "If you buy at the right price and develop it intelligently, even the most difficult piece of land can turn out to be a winner."

Arnold Lawrence, A.I.A., senior member of the architectural firm, said, "During our 25 years of existence we have had many interesting and unusual assignments, but none as challenging as Harbour Village. The site is one of superb natural beauty combining extremes in terrain, severely undulating topography with heavy wooded areas and large glacial rock outcroppings, changing to a relatively flat plateau along Long Island Sound."

"Our site planning and building location was accomplished in the reverse of the usual procedure of plotting building locations on the existing terrain. Our designers and engineers, along with the enlightened developers who wanted to achieve something of magnitude, spent many long hours on the site, locating and relocating buildings during periods of both heavy foliage and bareness, so that buildings would be placed in the most picturesque setting without destroying the natural amenities, and capturing a dramatic view of the marine panorama."

A 12.5 per cent increase in unemployment compensation claims was reported for last week in Manchester by the State Labor Department. The total was 1,509 for the week ending Dec. 2, compared to 1,198 for the previous week. Statewide claims decreased slightly last week - from 41,708 for the week ending Nov. 25 to 41,403 for the week ending Dec. 2. Statewide claims a year ago totaled 89,868.

MODEL HUSBAND
PAULO ALTO, Calif. (AP) - Hank Traugott invited his wife, Lony, to pay a visit with him to a fashionable apparel shop here on her 50th birthday. About 30 gowns, all in Lony's size 12, were paraded before her or professional models with prices ranging from an evening gown at $285 to a lounging outfit priced at $70. Traugott told his wife she could buy any one or all of those she had seen. She picked out six of the gowns she had admired. Hank wrote out the check and then took his flabbergasted wife home.

Orth also wants an injunction against the state to bar any further payment of retirement benefits in a manner that discriminates on the basis of sex until the case is decided. Three of the plaintiffs argue that they are under 55 but have worked more than 25 years and want to retire now. They contend the law prohibits this without sacrificing benefits. A fourth plaintiff wants to retire at age 51 with 15 years of state service and asks that he be qualified for the same benefits that a woman with similar age and service would receive. A fifth plaintiff who has retired argues that he is receiving less benefits than a woman with the same service record would get, and the sixth man claims he is receiving $275 a year less than a woman would qualify for if she had retired as he did with the same record of service.

The suit was filed last Monday.

Ronald Lang of 130 Kennedy Rd. announces that Vanguard Medical Products Division in Torrville, of which he is the president, has been sold by General Medical Corporation of Washington (AP) - The Federal Trade Commission is proposing to break up the Xerox Corp.'s domination of the 11.7 per cent of the revenue from plain-paper copying machines, and 89 per cent of the revenue from the lease and sale of machines in 1971.

The firm's after-tax return on stockholders' equity averaged 21.2 per cent for the years 1967-71, the complaint says. The FTC's proposed remedies included: - Forcing the firm to divest itself of stock in Rank Xerox Ltd., a British corporation which distributes office copier machines worldwide except in the United States and Canada. Xerox was accused of keeping the British firm out of the U.S. market.

Requiring Xerox to license others to use "all existing patents pertinent to office copiers," including rights resulting from pending patent applications and patents obtained for some 20 years in the future.

The board chairman and chief executive officer of Xerox, C. Peter McCullough, called the proposed complaint "ill-founded and without merit."

Xerox will defend the action vigorously and will establish fully the correctness of its practices," McCullough said in a statement issued in Stamford, Conn. "We are not being accused of any impropriety in securing any of our patents," he declared.

Richmond, Va., to Beckett Dickinson and Co., Rutherford, N.J., for an undisclosed purchase price subject to the execution of a definitive agreement and approval of both boards.

Vanguard manufactures electronic and computer equipment for the medical industry. Beckett, Dickinson and Co. is an international health care manufacturing company with 1972 sales of $200 million with 60 plants and laboratories located in 16 states and 12 countries. Its stock is traded on the New York Stock Exchange.

Lang stated that there would be no changes in personnel as a result of this acquisition and that operations will continue in Torrville.

Follow Bouncing Bodies And You'll Find Greene

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Follow the bouncing bodies and you'll find Joe Greene, the kind of defensive tackle who makes guards think about going into the insurance business.

"I love to be where the action is," says the free-spirited 270-pounder who plies his trade for the Pittsburgh Steelers of the National Football League.

Greene ruled the field from sideline to sideline Sunday in Pittsburgh's brutally fought 9-3 victory over Houston and earned recognition as the Associated Press Defensive Player of the Week in the NFL.

By game's end he had blocked a field goal try, forced and recovered a key fumble, sacked the quarterback five times and made six crushing solo tackles.

Greene's play was doubly important because the Steeler offense was blunted by a fired-up Oiler defense and a rash of injuries in the front line.

Greene was awarded the game ball after the Houston win, and linebacker Andy Russell made the presentation speech on the plane ride home.

"After much consideration, we decided to award the game ball to a guy who is so outstanding that much of the time his play is taken for granted," Russell said. "We are giving the game ball to Joe Greene."

It's true that Greene hasn't been in the spotlight as much as he was in 1969 when he won Rookie of the Year honors. Pittsburgh was 1-13 that year, however, and Greene readily played to be just another pretty face on potentially a championship team.

He admits, however, that there occasionally are times when he gets a bit carried away individually. "Like I said, I like to be where the action is," he noted. "And sometimes I don't do my job because I'm trying to do somebody else's. That kind of thing can cause the whole defense to let down."

Greene figures there will be no letdown this Sunday against San Diego. If the Steelers win it gives them their first division in their 40-year history and the home field advantage in the playoffs.

BASKETBALL

Y Midgets In action last night at the Community Y, the Ells squeaked past Groman's Sport Shop, 24-23. The second lift found Boland off trouncing the Y, 31-19.

Glenn Cobb paced the Ells' attack with 12 points. High point man for the game was Groman's Dennis Wain, 13 while Pete Gorman added six in a losing cause.

Behind the point scoring of Brian Charlebois (13) and Brian Shea (10), Boland was no match for the Y. Robert Filver contributed eight points for the losers, while teammate Steve Wierzbicki canned five.

West Side Midgets In the first game of a pair, Army & Navy bombed WINF, 48-20. Craig Kearney was the game's high-point collector with 18 and Jeff Holt adding 14 markers.

Bob Smith found the range for 12 points for WINF. Behind the scoring of Jim Fleuren (11) and John Stratton (8), Manchester State Bank defeated Nassitl Arms, 28-20.

The losers' Rick Thurston tossed in 12 points while Mark Cooke netted six markers.

Businessmen Manchester's Hon and Roberts Electric both gave their opponents some potent medicine last night at Hiling gym. Honda topped Nelo, 66-66, while Roberts buried Fred's Athletic Club, 66-62.

In the first of two games, Honda played five of its nine players in double figures. Bruce McClean took team honors with 15 points while Neil Pearson and Merrill Myers netted 14 markers each.

For the losers, Gary LaForce popped in 20 points. In the nightcap, a strong Roberts crew behind the shooting of Clay and Phil Hence was too much for Fred's to handle. The brothers hooped in 28 and 22 points in that order. Bruce Hence tossed in 10 markers.

Bob King had 20 points for Fred's.

Team Effort Vital Factor It was a team effort for the Robins Tuesday night at Chicopee. Larry Wright and Danny Schock had four points each in pushing Richmond to a 7-5 American Hockey League victory over the Virginia Red Wings.

Robbie Forek pulled the Wings to within one goal with only 12 seconds left in the game at Norfolk, but Wright hit on an unassisted goal 12 seconds later to cap the victory.

The Robins scored three goals in the last 20 seconds of the game as the Red Wings left the net open in an effort to tie the game.

Drolet, Wright and Schock each had two goals and two assists for Richmond.

ABA Owners Take Steps To Add Two New Cities

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The American Basketball Association owners, more confident than ever in their league's survival, have taken steps to expand into two new cities next season.

ABA Commissioner Robert Carlson said the owners voted Tuesday to accept applications for the additional franchises he said the trustees hope to expand the league into larger television market areas.

He named Los Angeles, Chicago, Philadelphia, Jersey Meadows and Honolulu as strong possibilities. Carlson also expressed confidence in the ABA's future. "I've been connected with this league since May, 1969. I've seen ownerships go up and down and up again."

"But never have I seen more stable ownerships than at the present time."

'I'm An All-Right Dude' Rodgers Tells Critics

The following was written before the Heisman Trophy balloting was announced last week.

By IRA BERKOW
NEA Sports Editor

"I don't think I'll vote for Johnny Rodgers (for the Heisman trophy) no matter how many yards he gains for Nebraska, no matter how many touchdowns he scores. Johnny Rodgers runs wild off the field, too. I have a several scrapes with the law, including a gas station holdup, for which he was sentenced to two years' probation after a plea of guilty." — Dick Young, sports columnist for the New York Daily News.

NEW YORK (NEA)—I called Johnny Rodgers in Lincoln, Neb., and read him the above. Following are the comments of Rodgers, a 5-9, 160-pound senior receiver and two-time All-American from the University of Nebraska.

"I see articles like that and I get letters from people saying things, like that. From people who don't know me. They talk about me having bad character and that the Heisman award should go to someone who is a credit to his school, to himself, and a model to youth. But the Heisman award is supposed to go to the best football player in the country, which I think I am.

"Guys write, 'Johnny Rodgers is the flattest back the best back I've ever seen, but I'm not going to vote for him for Heisman.' If it's a character award, they should specify that. And then go around and meet the leading candidates. Some of these guys who vote can't name me no more about me than what I've said in the past. They read or see me on TV. But how can you be an All-American and not be eligible for the Heisman award?"

"There are a lot of people on my side. One of my tightest friends is Greg Pruitt of Oklahoma, who is one of my stiffest competitors for best player in the country. He said, 'Johnny, quit worrying about it, they're just trying to mess you around.'"

"But I got to be fighting this bad character thing. What is a bad character? It's someone who constantly gets in trouble, who has detrimental things in mind. That's not me. I got into bad trouble one time in my life, made one bad mistake. The gas station holdup. I was 17. I'm 21 now. The couple other things were traffic violations. It's surprising that someone from my background hasn't got in more trouble. I had to bring myself up, get up off my more from the beginning. I think I've shown good character."

"I grew up in the ghetto in Omaha. I didn't see my real father until I was 17. My mother had me when she was 18. So she was a kid, too, when I was coming up. I have a younger sister and brother. We were poor. We moved like seven or eight times before I was 13. I remember we lived in this big house, like an apartment house, but we lived on the sixth or seventh floor walk-up. In the attic. We had two rooms. I had to sleep with my sister. My brother wasn't born yet. Then we moved to another apartment. One room, for four people.

"I was hanging around with all kinds of guys, playing ball with them. Some were better athletes than me. But a lot of them ended up in jail or reformatory or quit school. I could have got in trouble like 10 times, 11 times. Instead I got into one bad scrape. That's all. It was a mistake, and I'm sorry for it.

"But sports kept me from doing more bad stuff. And like after high school I wanted to go to college. My mother didn't understand. She wanted me to get a job. She said I wouldn't make it in college because I was too poor, too small and too black.

particular in regard to the new buildings going up in Indianapolis, San Diego and Denver," he said. The commissioner said applicants will be interviewed in February at the All-Star Game in Salt Lake City.

The issue of expansion remains connected to the proposed merger with the older National Basketball Association. A new merger committee was named, with Charles O. Finley, owner of the Memphis Tams, its chairman.

The ABA also approved a hardship draft to be held next spring, a move which would allow Leonard Blood of the San Diego Conquistadores stand opens the way for his team to negotiate with All-American center Bill Walton of UCLA.

Carlson refused to comment on whether the 6-foot-11-inch, 230-pound, second-year player would be eligible for the draft.

SNOW WHITE — Lucy Mathews 130, Doris Shaw 125, Fran Wyman 141.

NEW YORK (AP) — John Brockington and MacArthur Lane, the running bulls who ignited Green Bay to new post-Lombardi heights, shared today the honor of NFL offensive player of the week.

Brockington, a second-year pro from Ohio State, ran for 114 yards and topped 1,000 for the second straight season—the first man to accomplish that feat his first two years in the league—as the Packers slammed Minnesota 23-7.

The Pack, 9-4, locked up the National Conference Central Division title against the Vikings and are headed for a Christmas Eve playoff game against the Redskins in Washington.

Lane came to Green Bay in a trade with St. Louis. The Packers gave up onetime $800,000 bonus boy Donny Anderson and it's working out wonderfully.

The 225-pound veteran from Utah State crunched for 99 yards against Minnesota and broke a key 37-yarder that set up the first Packers score.

"Both these guys appreciate what the offensive line does for them," said Packer Coach Dan Devine. "I like that. Any coach likes that."

Devine said the 220-pound Brockington had "his best blocking games the past two weeks. And Lane, from what I've seen and heard, is one of the best blocking backs in the National Football League."

Green Bay hasn't been so excited over its Packers since the late Vince Lombardi quit as coach in 1967. The Pack had suffered through a 24-29-3 record including Devine's rookie season of 1971.

If Green Bay can upset Washington, the Packers would earn the best role for the National Conference championship game and the Devine boys would be one step from the Super Bowl that the Packers twice won in the Lombardi Era.

Other NFL offensive stars receiving serious consideration were Cincinnati wide receiver Chip Myers, St. Louis quarterback Jim Hart, Kansas City runner Wendell Hayes, Miami runner Mercury Morris, San Diego wide receiver Gary Garrison and New York Jets quarterback Joe Namath.

Anatomy of a High School Athlete

Last summer during the annual Fellowship of Christian Athletes' Convention 1,000 delegates were polled in an attempt to capture the current mood, role and values of today's young athletes.

The findings were most interesting. Numerous sports and virtually every section of America were represented. Although some of the questionnaires were sketchily returned, the responses suggested definite trends which can enable schoolboy athletes to better understand themselves, each other and their relationship to athletics in the future.

The following is a condensation of the survey.

1. Why do you compete?
(A) Enjoyment, (B) Prestige, (C) Obligation, (D) Scholarship, (E) Other.

Apparently these game is still fun for most. A whopping majority (954) underscored "enjoyment" and 239 indicated it was their sole reason for competing.

For 208 it was an "enjoyment-scholarship" motivation. Other combinations included: Enjoyment-other (101); Enjoyment-prestige (86); Enjoyment-scholarship-other (71); Enjoyment-obligation (52); Enjoyment-prestige-obligation (24); and enjoyment-obligation-scholarship (23).

Some of the "other" incentives included: Competition...Using my God-given talents-Exercise and health-Companionship-Pride. Another 177 wanted their mentor to be knowledgeable about his sport.

Fairness placed a strong third with 151 tallies and was easily the most stressed. Many athletes implied that their coach played favorites.

Ten per cent requested understanding, eight per cent urged mutual respect and seven per cent asked for respect.

What Should a Coach Expect?
A full 50 per cent registered 100 per cent effort as the prime item. Another 100 registered 90 per cent cooperation was a legitimate demand. Hard work earned 50 votes, obedience 40, being coachable 24 and leadership 20.

Is Winning Overemphasized or Deemphasized. What Emphasis Do You Place on Winning?
Mixed emotions prevailed with 40 feeling the answer would be overemphasized, 21 said deemphasized, 10 per cent didn't know or was uncertain, eight per cent said neither, another eight said winning is everything and four per cent felt it was about right.

Is the Importance of Sports in Your School (1) Declining, (2) Increasing, (3) Other?
The increasers won statistical honors with a decisive 63 per cent.

Would You Say the Status Accorded the Athlete in Your School is Closer to (a) Hero Worship, (b) Dumb Jack or (c) Other?
As attested by 357, the athlete is still the 'big man on the campus.' But gauging from the voluntary reservations of the 38 per cent, many could have honestly fit into the other category. A quarter of the 35 per cent were hung up on the word worship and explained that an athlete was admired but not worshipped.

What is Your Attitude Regarding Hair Length, Training Routines and General Discipline in Sports? (A) The team should decide, (B) The coach should decide, (C) The athlete should be free to do his thing as long as he produces, (D) Other reasons.

Here's the tally sheet: 33-B, 239-C, 132-A, 115-A-B, 45-D, 68-Uncertain, 39 Coach decides rules, athlete decides on hair length.

How Have Sports Been Beneficial in Your Life?
The top 10 advantages were listed like this: 1. Meeting new friends, 2. Keeping in shape, 3. Acquiring self-discipline, 4. Learning teamwork and loyalty, 5. Keeping out of trouble, 6. Enjoying oneself, 7. Achieving a goal, 8. Profiting from competition, 9. Becoming a better man/person, 10. Gaining respect for and from people.

Eagles and Indians Open Tonight

Four New Members To Start

By Dean Yost

Due to disciplinary action taken by East Catholic High Tuesday, the Eagles will enter tonight's season opener against Bishop Hendricken of Rhode Island, with a somewhat patched up lineup.

"In all fairness to the players who have taken over their spots this past week, I'll go with them instead of using some of the first line players," commented a quiet Stan Ogrdnik, varsity cage mentor.

East, the defending CIAC Class I champions, will have its hands full against the power Rhode Island school.

Hendricken, an all boys high school in Warwick, is presently 4-0 on the season. Bruce Rhodes, Fred Rush and Steve Lock are the key players in their fast moving offense.

Rhodes, a 6-1 senior guard, "does everything" Ogrdnik added. He enters the contest sporting a 24-point per game average. "Rush keeps the defense honest," the coach continued, "with his brilliant outside shooting." "Lock is their big man underneath. He's the leading rebounder and also possesses a good soft shot."

Martens at center with Ron Soucier and John Riccio in the forward slots. Brenden Brown will join All-State guard candidate Joe Whelton in the backcourt. "I will be using four forwards and a guard with 10 seconds left."

Among tonight's starters, Whelton is the only varsity veteran. In 24 games last season, not counting playoff action, he netted 135 points for a 5.6-point per game average. East was 13-6 at the end of the regular season and finished with an 18-6 mark.

"I don't think we'll change our game plan," the coach commented. "We have discussed both a slow-down type game or a fast moving offense, but I think I'll go with my original plan and move the ball."

Following tonight's action, East will play another out-of-state club in Springfield Tech at the Eagles' Nest Tuesday.

Rockville Hoopsters Triumph

Rockville High found the right combination last night by blasting Enfield High out of the Rams' Gym, 91-76, in independent action. It was the court bout for both clubs.

The Rams placed three players in double figures to help produce the rout. Pat Connelly was the high point man for the night, scoring 24 tallies. Close behind Connelly was Steve Krajewski who contributed 24 points. Joe Hoermann added 17 in the potent Ram scoring attack.

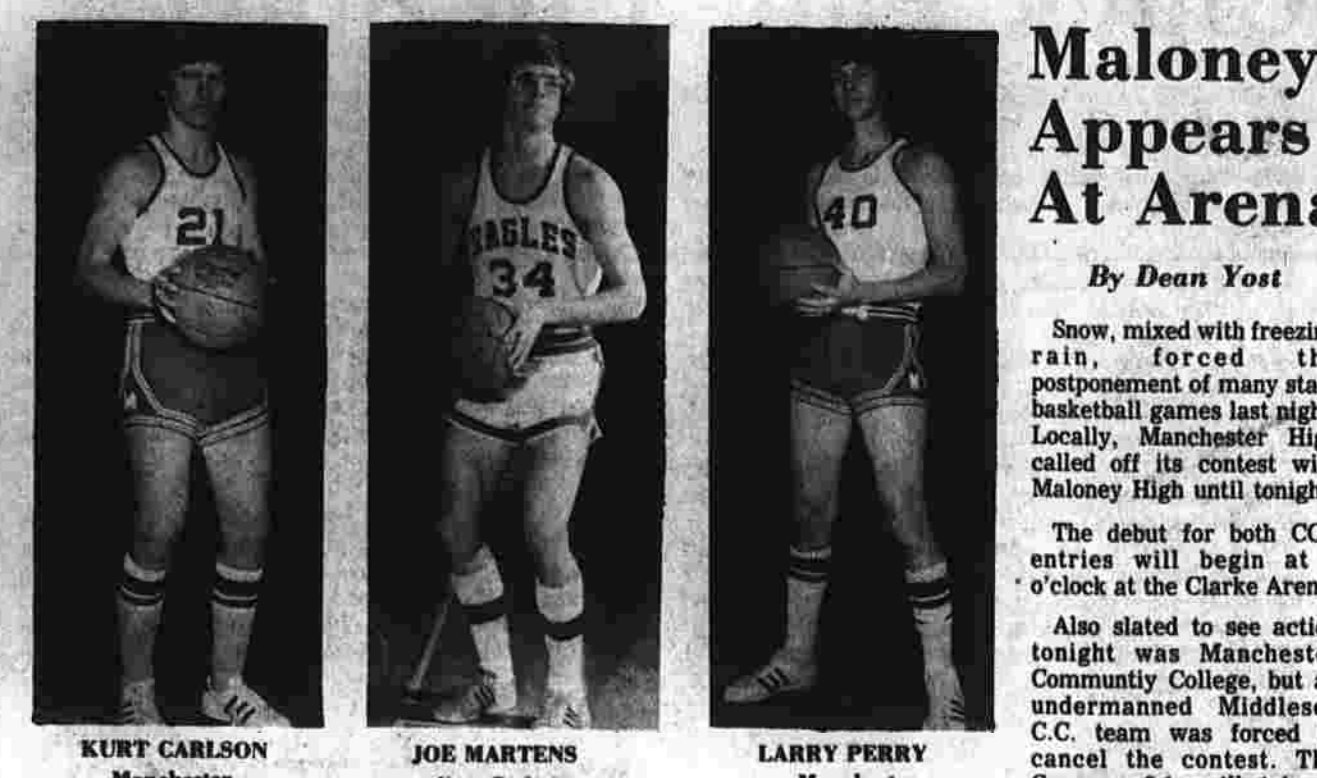

Paul DaSilva matched Connelly's output of 24 for Enfield. Skip White added 21 for the losers.

Rockville will open its Central Valley Conference action Friday night against Glastonbury High on the latter's home court.

ROCKVILLE (91) - Krajewski 11-24, Connelly 14-24, DaSilva 14-24, Hoermann 6-17, Chuck 0-11, Carter 1-4-2, Powers 1-2-4, Smith 2-4-2, Mancuso 0-2-3, Davila 1-4-3-6, Murphy 1-0-11, Riley 1-4-4, Baeette 0-2-2.

STORIS (AP) — Guard Jim Foster scored on a driving layup with 10 seconds left in a college basketball game Tuesday night as the University of Connecticut edged the University of Massachusetts 71-68.

After a closely contested first half in which the score was tied 32-32, Massachusetts took the lead early in the second half.

Connecticut fought back by taking advantage of turnovers, which resulted in a 36-32 score for Connecticut at 65.

Massachusetts regained the advantage on freethrows by Peter Trow and Rick Pettou until Foster's layup with 10 seconds left.

Connecticut's Earl Wilson was the game's high scorer with 22 points, hitting on 11 out of 15 field goal attempts. Foster added 19 points to the Huskies cause.

Peter Trow paced the Minutemen with 20 points, while senior center Charlie Peters added 13 points and 10 rebounds.

The loss ended Bridgport's mark at 2-4 on the season while the Ells are 0-4.

Refs Disallowed Basket, Clock Failed to Start

NEW YORK (AP)—Chet Walker missed a foul shot but grabbed the rebound and let fly with a 30-footer. The ball sailed through the basket to give the Chicago Bulls an apparent National Basketball Association victory over the Los Angeles Lakers at the overtime buzzer Tuesday night.

But referees Mark Mano and Paul Mihalk disallowed the shot and instead awarded a 106-106 triumph to the Lakers. The official ruling was that the "clock failed to start after Walker's foul shot hit the rim."

But the Chicago crowd was in no mood for technicalities. The hometown fans roared in anger while Bulls' General Manager Pat Williams had to explain the ruling over the loud speaker system.

Then, shortly after Williams made his explanation to the crowd, he announced that the club would protest the referees' decision.

"I'm confident of winning this protest," said Williams, "because we have the video tape. It will show that the referees did not signal for the clock to start and therefore the Bulls should have been awarded the victory."

"The timer told me he never got the signal and his word is good enough for me."

In the other NBA games Tuesday night, the Buffalo Braves stopped the Houston Rockets 96-94; the Kansas City-Omaha Kings nipped the Cleveland Cavaliers 100-96; the New York Knicks walloped the Atlanta Hawks 114-93; the Baltimore Bullets trimmed the Philadelphia 76ers 123-102 and the Milwaukee Bucks crushed the Portland Trail Blazers 113-94.

In the Chicago-Los Angeles match, Walker had sent the game into overtime with two free throws to tie the score at 96. In the closing seconds of the overtime period, the star forward was in a similar situation when he made his first foul to bring the Bulls within one point. Then came the controversial shot.

Elmore Smith scored 25 points and grabbed 22 rebounds to lead Buffalo's victory; Nate Archibald's 12-foot jumper with seven seconds left powered Kansas City-Omaha past Cleveland; Walt Frazier scored 20 points for New York; Mike Riordan had a career-high 31 points for Baltimore and Milwaukee buried Portland under a 38-9 blitz in the third period.

Seven-Game Road Trip

Celtics Hoping For .500 Mark

PHOENIX (AP)—The Boston Celtics have lost only one game away from the home court this season. You'd think that would mean they are confident as they begin a seven-game western swing tonight with the Suns.

"We did not do so well on the coast last season," veteran Don Nelson observed.

"We are aiming at playing better than .500 ball on the road," he continued, "although, of course, we would like to sweep."

Following the Phoenix encounter, the Celtics play Los Angeles, Portland, Seattle, San Francisco, Kansas City-Omaha and Milwaukee before returning to Boston Garden to host the New York Knicks Dec. 26.

Nelson says the road trip "will really tell how good we are and what we are made of."

The Celtics, 23-3 to the season and clinging to a first place lead over New York in the Atlantic Division of the National Basketball Association, fully expect the opposition to be "gunning for them."

"As strong as we are and the way we have been playing on the road," Nelson said, "I really think we should win five."

The Celtics are less than healthy as they begin the road trip. Dave Cowens has a slight ankle sprain, John Havlicek is nursing his left knee and Doc Chaney is still wearing a thick bandage because of a pulled hamstring muscle.

Unbeaten Records On Line

BUFFALO (AP)—Unbeaten strings go on the line — or ice — tonight when the Buffalo Sabres clash with the Boston Bruins in a National Hockey League game.

The Sabres, only four points behind Boston in the hot East Division race, are unbeaten in 15 games at home this season. They are meeting the Bruins for the third time this year, having tied Boston 2-2 in Buffalo and losing 5-4 in Boston.

Boston carries a 12-game unbeaten streak into the contest.

Guarding the nets for Boston will be John Adams, who so far has four wins and one tie. Dave Dryden will start in goal for Buffalo. He has backstopped the Sabres to four straight wins.

Following the Buffalo game, the Bruins return to Boston to host the New York Rangers.

"We really face two of the biggest games of the season back-to-back," said defenseman Don Awrey of the Bruins. "Buffalo is going good. We need a win there and then we can come right back and play the Rangers at home Thursday night."

The Sabres defeated New York and Montreal in two recent games.

"Don't sell Buffalo short," Boston center Fred Stanfield said. "This is a vastly improved team."

'Great Team Man' Stars for Knicks

NEW YORK (AP)—Walt Frazier scored 29 points and made a half dozen steals but wasn't the star of the game.

The star of the game was Dave DeBusschere, who scored 15 points less and was not as spectacular.

"He's a great team man," said Coach Red Holzman after his star forward contributed the "intangibles" to help the New York Knicks beat the Atlanta Hawks 114-93 in the National Basketball Association Tuesday night.

"Say anything great you want about DeBusschere," said Holzman. "Super player, strong man, the perfect team player — he's it."

Even Frazier had to agree: "No DeBusschere — no Knicks."

"He's the man that makes this team go," added Earl Monroe.

It was easy to see why the Knicks were tough with DeBusschere in high gear Tuesday night. Along with his 14 points, which put him over the career 12,000-point level, the brawny forward scored 19 rebounds and kept the Knicks clogged flowing. DeBusschere attacked the lanes, stuck his menacing hand in front of Atlanta's shooters and generally fogged their sights.

"DeBusschere is the franchise," said Holzman.

If DeBusschere is the franchise then Frazier has to be worth something, too. What about Walt, Red?

"Tremendous," said Holzman, still speaking in superlatives.

While DeBusschere was making life miserable for the Hawks, Frazier was scoring points. He scored 21 in the first half to help the Knicks pull into a 43-38 lead at intermission.

A 23-17 advantage in the second quarter blew the game wide open for New York. The Knicks led 81-65 at the third period and cruised home with their 24th victory in 30 games this year.

Purdue Marksman Garrett May Be Best of Big Men

NEW YORK (AP)—When John Garrett was growing up—very far up—in Peru, Indiana, his idol was Rick Mount, who at the time, was busy shattering Purdue University's basketball scoring record.

So it was no surprise when Garrett followed Mount to Purdue. And if the speedy Mount was the best little man ever to play for the Boilermakers, then Garrett, who's grown up to a hefty 6-foot-11, may be the best big one. Garrett averaged almost 27 points per game as a freshman last year and hit on an amazing 53 per cent of his field goal attempts. That's the kind of shooting that excites basketball people and Garrett kept the juices flowing Tuesday night with a virtual one-man show that moved the Boilermakers to a 66-65 victory over Miami of Ohio.

All the young men did was score 18 of Purdue's last 24 points including the winning basket with one second left to play. That gave him 29 points in 13 of 23 shots from the field and, in case you're wondering, that is 95 per cent accuracy.

Maryland's Tom McMillen was almost as hot at the start of the third-ranked Terrapins' 99-73 victory over Georgetown as Garrett was for Purdue.

McMillen scored nine of his 21 points in the first 10 minutes and finished with 29 for the night. He also grabbed 15 rebounds and Maryland dominated the out-manned Hoyas, who started three freshmen.

You can't knock frosh to Arizona. The Wildcats used five of them for most of the second half and hit on an amazing 53 per cent of their shots.

Steve Downing tapped a rebound of a missed free throw in for Indiana's winning basket as the 15th-ranked Hoosiers escaped with a 68-57 victory over gritty Notre Dame.

Indiana was down by as many as 13 points in the second half before launching a comeback. "I'm just happy to go home a winner after a game like this," said Bob Knight, Indiana's coach.

Knight's old Army team came out a winner too, but barely, squeaking by Northeastern 70-68.

QUESTION: Should I warm up before I begin strenuous exercise?

ANSWER: Your body will function more efficiently and will make greater gains more readily if it is first warmed up. This series of exercises is designed to stretch the muscles and loosen the joints, preparing your body for more strenuous exercise.

Many different exercises can be done but these should give you an indication of warm-up activity.

Jogging: Always start your routine by jogging lightly, keeping the shoulders, arms and back relaxed.

Head Roll: Loosen and stretch your neck muscles relax your shoulders, stand with feet apart and hands at the side and roll your head in a circle in first a clockwise fashion about five times each way.

Wilson To End Career

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The red and white jersey bearing No. 8 will be seen for the last time Sunday at Busch Memorial Stadium in St. Louis when the Cardinals host the Philadelphia Eagles in the last National Football League game of the season for both teams.

Cardinal safety Larry Wilson, who perfected the "safety blitz," announced during a press conference Tuesday that he would retire this year, and at the same time the Big Red announced they would retire the jersey he has worn in 13 seasons with the team.

"I know Larry Wilson right now is not able to do things that he did four or five years ago," said Wilson, who was the team's seventh-round draft choice from Utah in 1960. He holds 10 team records.

He has been used by the Cardinals as a player-coach this season.

Wilson, 34, was described at one time by former Detroit Lions quarterback Bobby Layne as a pound-for-pound, the greatest player in the NFL.

Teachers' Grievance Rejected by Board

Meeting in executive session after adjournment of its regular meeting Monday night, the Board of Education denied the grievance, aired by Atty. Jonathan J. Kaplan Nov. 27 on behalf of Benoit and Junior High School teachers who did not attend PTO-sponsored open houses at the schools last month.

Subsequently, Dr. Richard Lindgren and Allan Cone, filling Benoit's principal's position, respectively, wrote letters, in which they expressed "disappointment" at the teachers' action, and placed copies in their personnel files. In their grievance, the teachers said that they considered the letters to be "reprimands."

In denying the grievance, the board said that it agreed that "Attendance by the teachers at such functions as school open houses is not compulsory under the teachers' individual contract or under the board's collective bargaining agreement with the Manchester Education Association."

However, it added, it considers voluntary attendance an important form of community involvement and an opportunity to communicate effectively with parents toward a better understanding of students.

The board refuted grievance arguments "that the principals' letters represent a new board policy, that unfair reprisals have been taken against the individual teachers for actions of the teachers' association, and that the letters present an unauthorized action under the collective bargaining agreement."

It is not a new policy, the board stated, and "The inherent right of each principal to evaluate his teacher staff may not be questioned (see Article XXVII, Paragraph E, of the present teachers' contract), including, if he deems pertinent, placing a copy of his evaluation in the teacher's personnel file."

Also, the board's reply stated, "We feel sure that no letters would have been necessary, if individual teachers, acting for their individual reasons, had determined not to attend the programs in question."

The last statement was a down-up to an earlier denial of the grievance when the two principals announced the PTO function. "The bargaining association's teacher representative in each school saw fit to urge the other teachers in the school not to attend the open house. While the teachers may not have been required to participate in that activity, neither were they privileged to attempt to limit its usefulness. In these circumstances, we

And There Was Only One Santa Claus

BY BARBARA RICHMOND (Herald Reporter)
"July old St. Nicholas bend both your ears this way," was the way the tune went Sunday in Vernon. The occasion was the Christmas party of the Twin Mothers Club of Tolland County held at the Lake Street School.

It was twice as much fun for Santa Claus, but at times he appeared to be wishing he were twins so he could hear all of the double requests being made. He would have been in real trouble if all of the club's 31 sets of twins had made an appearance at the party.

The club has 30 sets of parents, representing most of the towns in Tolland County. One couple has two sets of twins. There are more sets of the same sex than sets with one of each and more sets of girls than boys.

Mrs. Jane Johnson who has twin boys, is a twin herself. She has a twin sister, Roger Hamilton of Storrs, the father of twin girls, has a twin brother and Mrs. Mary Reynolds of Manchester, the mother of twin boys, also has a twin sister.

At Sunday's party all of the children present received gifts from Santa and were served refreshments by their mothers. Mrs. Barbara Bruno of Vernon was chairman of the event.

Other sets of twins attending the party included Dorothy and William Belter, daughter and son of Mr. and Mrs. George Belter of Tolland; Roxanne and Stacy, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Forrest of Tolland; Donna and Debra, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Martin of Ellington; Peter and Paul, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Armentano of Vernon; Scott and Patsy, twins of Mr. and Mrs. Brooks Eiler of Tolland; Laurie and Linda, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Bruno of Vernon; Keith and Garry, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Schmeiske of Tolland.

Besides sharing their mutual interests, being mother's of twins, the club members also are involved in charitable work. For the past two years the club has sponsored a dance with the proceeds given to the Talcottville School.

Rev. Maurice Sullivan Returns to St. Luke's
The Rev. Maurice Sullivan, who served as pastor of the Church of St. Luke in Ellington from 1951 to 1956, has been appointed to again serve that church, by the Most Rev. Vincent J. Ems, bishop of the Norwich diocese.

Father Sullivan's appointment becomes effective today. He succeeds the Reverend Bernard L. McCurk who died on Nov. 18. He had served the Ellington church for three years.

It was during Father Sullivan's first four years at the church that he directed the building of the church. He is a native of Waterbury and attended Crosey High School in that city. He began his studies for the priesthood at St. Thomas Seminary in Bloomfield. He was appointed for his philosophical and theological studies to the seminary at St. Elean in France where he was ordained on July 9, 1959.

Here's How Trim a Tiny Tree for a Shut-in

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

In addition to the religious symbols of Christmas in the home, a colorfully decorated Christmas tree can be a glittering reminder of the season of peace and old family traditions. More important, perhaps, than the tree for the big family may be a little tree for a shut-in. It can provide a spot of warmth for many weeks.

A very small tree might be used on a bedside table, dining table, fireplace mantle or at a door entrance. If it is artificial, it should be dressed as you would a live tree. Everything used would be in miniature.

It may be difficult to find a tree small enough for the invalid. It should not overwhelm the bedside table. But if one searches the Christmas tree market, one might find a big tree that is skimpy below, but has a pretty top, and is inexpensive. If it can be topped, 12 to 18 inches is a good size. It might be put in a solid base—a disc of heavy wood with a hole big enough to hold the tree securely. Or plastic foam might be used, covering the material or putting it into a heavy container.

If the tree is skimpy, branches from other parts of the tree might be nailed to it to fill it in.

Trimming such a tree could be a great deal of fun for the giver and provide spiritual relief.

wards in tune with the season, especially when one realizes that the invalid will explain over every unusual thing found on the tree.

It would be a great labor of love for teen-agers who like to get involved with those who need help. An ill grandmother, aunt, neighbor or friend would be overjoyed at such thoughtfulness whether he or she is at home or in the hospital and whether or not there is a standing tree in the home.

Variety stores can provide tiny (one-inch) snowmen, Santas, angels, little animals, and it may take awhile to find some pieces small enough. But you may be surprised that your remnant box or costume jewelry box has a number of interesting articles that can be interspersed with whatever you find in stores.

Look for old glittering earrings or pins that are beyond repair with broken or missing clasps. A beautiful button or small glittering shoe buckle might be useful. A slim gold chain, sparkling beads or pearls draped across a little tree could give it a spectacular look. Narrow ribbon bows may be used. Bend a tiny star out of a pipe cleaner, cover it with ribbon, paste a few sequins or beads on it, and put it on top of the tree.

If you have nothing else to work with, you might do an entire tree of little red satin or velvet bows. Sew a pearl on the

She Adds Warmth to Buildings

By EVE SHARBUTT
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Pamela Waters creates what she calls welcome mats.

They're not made of rubber or straw to put outside the front door. She designs welcome mats for office buildings by creating an atmosphere of warmth and comfort in the lobby and outside plaza area.

An industrial designer, Miss Waters is involved in giving back something to the neighborhoods in which new office buildings are erected.

"Most builders rip down all the neighborhood functions and put up a sterile, cold file cabinet. I think you should give the building a sense of belonging, make it a place where people feel welcome, like a hearth," said the blonde 31-year-old.

Pamela is currently putting finishing touches on a brick paved, tree and flower decorated area surrounding a new, 32-floor office structure on Third Avenue. The building will even have a wood front porch fitted with seats.

The sidewalks are bricked in three colors. A curving red path gives people the option to walk straight line, and it is outlined in lighter colored bricks. Thus the path emphasizes entrances to the new building.

"I always hated not being able to find the door in some buildings," the designer said.

Another shade of brick is used to pave the remaining plaza area and to climb the tiny hills that surround and support different sizes and styles of seating. There are benches under colorful patterned vinyl canopies which will be lighted and heated. There are both stationary and revolving seats atop tiny hills and in flat areas.

To mark entrances to loading docks in the building, Pamela had tire tracks of brick laid in the driveways. In the tall walls bordering the next building, bricks of varying colors form graphic illustrations of a truck with a boy driving on one street, and on the next street, a horse-drawn flower cart. Each will get a vinyl canopy that sticks out from the wall and a box for displays that will change with the seasons — flowers for spring, fruit for summer and perhaps produce occasionally.

"I've already planned some parties to introduce this area to the neighborhood," Pamela reported.

"I've had lots of positive comment from passers-by. Women have seemed especially interested. I'd never seen women as an sidewalk superintendent before. Some people want to know how our trees live, so I stop and explain the system we use to feed them water and vitamins."

The William Kaufman Organization, owner and builder of the Third Avenue structure, agrees that builders have a commitment to people who live in a city for more than a century. It is not just a place to live and work.

One other building in which Pamela has worked also belongs to them. It is in Lower Manhattan, and features a roof-top mural of a giant cat chasing a bird near its nest, filled with three giant eggs.

"In the new building the inside workings — air conditioning and heating vents, electric wiring and even the elevator starting panel — will be done so that people can see how they work. The air conditioning ducts will be wrapped in soft material, like sculpture. The elevator walls will be padded and covered in soft vinyl, lighted from the bottom, so that the effect is soft," she said.

"At first some of the workmen may have thought I was strange. You always have to prove yourself. They are working to put everything in immaculate order now, for they know the work will show. We expose the ducts and the elevators by the use of panels of the elevator in beautiful symmetry, for he knows people will see it."

"When we finish, we'll put the names of some of these workmen on a plaque in the lobby, so people can find out who did the work," Pamela said.

A graduate of the Pratt Institute, Pamela worked in design offices with packaging graphics for several years. She always wanted something more.

"I like working with buildings. It feels right to me, and I think we are proving that these kinds of designs can work in the city," she added.

Actor Ossie Davis, Also Director, Prefers To Call Himself a Writer

By PHIL THOMAS
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Ossie Davis is best-known as an actor but he prefers to think of himself as a writer — even though his latest effort was directing a movie.

"I always wanted to write plays," the multi-talented Davis says with a laugh. "But when I was young a teacher suggested that if I really was serious about playwrighting I ought to get into the theater and get experience in all departments, including acting."

"That was the beginning of my downfall as a writer. Acting came easy to me. I got jobs easily, and I used this as an excuse not to write."

The tall, graying, 50-year-old Davis has, however, written a number of things, among them some plays that have been produced as well as "quite a few that haven't been produced."

He has also written a number of television scripts. His best-known produced play, perhaps, is "Purple Victrolas," which ran on Broadway some eight months with Davis playing the lead.

Davis, who has been seen in a number of films such as "The Cardinal" and "The Hill," recently completed a stint on the other side of the camera — directing the film "Black Girl." The movie, about a young girl who wants to become a dancer, was Davis' third film directing job.

"Black Girl," he says, "was an opportunity to deal realistically with a black family without sacrificing excellence or entertainment. Even a sermon to me has to be entertaining, if it's not I don't buy it. I don't care how noble it is.

"Directing," the deep-voiced Davis continues, "is not difficult, but it is different from acting. Directing is very fulfilling because it absorbs all of your creative energies. The feeling of being in control of all of the elements that make up a movie is very satisfying and it is a feeling that an actor does not get."

As for film and stage acting, Davis prefers the theater "because it offers actors two things that film does not. One is that on stage the actor is in charge of his performance unless you actually drag him off the stage. In film he is not. The other is that it takes a long time to get to know a character and do him justice. The theater gives you time to choose and to select, enabling you to grow in the part. This is very difficult to do in movies."

Davis says he currently is working on a "number of possibilities." One he says is a movie which would star his wife, actress Ruby Dee, and which he would direct.

Restoration Of Pieta Nearly Complete

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The restoration of Michelangelo's Pieta will be completed within the next 10 days, the Vatican radio said Monday.

The restoration work had been carried out so delicately and perfectly that the damage made by a vandal's hammer last May "would be completely invisible," the radio added.

The Pieta, which depicts the Madonna holding the dead Jesus in her arms, will not go on display immediately in the chapel of St. Peter's Basilica where it has been for centuries and where the repairs were carried out.

The radio said experts needed time to erect a bullet-proof heavy glass shield to protect the masterpiece from vandals. The statue was damaged by a Hungarian-born geologist, Lazzio Toth.

98% Of Forest Fires In East Man-Caused

Boston — Ninety-eight per cent or more of all the forest fires in the Eastern United States in 1971 were man-caused, the U.S. Forest Service reports. Many of these resulted from the burning of trash and other debris near wooded areas; this is the most prevalent cause of fires in the North-Central states also.

Author Proves Persistence Pays

By PHIL THOMAS
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Writer John Knowles, looking back without anger, notes wryly that his first novel "was rejected by every publisher of any importance in the United States — some 12, I believe."

Then, Knowles turned over "A Separate Peace" to a British house, it "was accepted immediately, got marvelous reviews, and eventually was published in this country."

Since coming out in 1960 the novel, which deals with "two boys at a prep school during World War II," has, says Knowles, gone through some 40 hard and paperback printings, sold around four million copies, won three awards, and recently "I've got to work first thing in the morning," he says. "My mind is at its best then. It hasn't been overtaken yet by the trivial of the day."

"I never get dressed up to read the newspaper. I just splash water on my face, drink a cup of coffee, and start writing in longhand. My first drafts always are in longhand. Then I do them over on the typewriter because no one can read my handwriting."

"I stop writing after two or three hours. It's wise to take time off. A beginning writer should work steadily because he has a lot to learn and a lot of bad writing to get out of his system. I don't do that. I just write — like me — you have to rest sometimes and recharge your batteries or your writing will be flat and repetitious."

Knowles, who has been writer-in-residence at Princeton and at the University of North Carolina, currently is at work on a novel and a collection of short stories.

The novel, titled "Spreading Fire," deals, he says, with "madness — the most contagious disease in the world. The collection will be called 'Passion for Places.' A strong influence in each of the six stories is the place where it takes place."

BOOK REVIEWS

BEST SF: 1971. Edited by Harry Harrison. Putnam. 253 Pages. $5.95.

One tends to regard anything labeled "best" with suspicion. After all, given the varieties of human personality, one man's best very well could be another man's worst.

As indicated by this collection of 19 items in the science-fiction vein — items, not stories, since the volume includes poems and satire as well as tales. Harrison, assisted by SF writer Brian W. Aldiss, has included some goodies and some baddies in this collection.

The lead-off tale, Robert Sheckley's "Doctor Zombie and His Furry Little Friends," deserves the designation "best." It's a very well-written ecological type story of an idealist who tries to breed a unique breed of short stories and a collection of travel essays, still gets up early.

Today's Thought

Let us remember that we find God not only in nature; not only when we retreat from the hum of daily life but that we sense the security of His guiding hand in life as a whole, with its care and responsibility, its sorrow and its guilt. He cares for us and stands forth as the One who is ultimately responsible for us. The Incarnation means God is with us. He is with us here and now.

Social Security

Q. I am a Canadian citizen attending college in Connecticut. I received permission from the Bureau of Immigration and Naturalization to work in the United States. Should my employer withhold Social Security taxes from my wages?

A. Contributions for Social Security are not withheld from wages of nonresident alien when they have been granted permission to work in the United States by the Bureau of Immigration and Naturalization.

Q. I've been getting Social Security payments since I was 9. Next year when I'm 18, I plan to enroll in a trade school. Is it true that my monthly payments will stop when I become 18? I don't go to college?

A. No. You don't have to go to college to get your monthly checks after you are 18. However, you do have to be single and enrolled in a full-time student at an educational institution. Most trade schools qualify as educational institutions.

Q. For the past two years I have been an exchange student from England. Recently I was granted the status of a lawful permanent resident. If I should go to work will my employment be covered by Social Security?

A. If you have been granted the status of a lawful permanent resident and have an Alien Registration Card, your work you do is covered on the same basis as services performed by other employees.

Q. I am a nonresident alien from India and contributions for Social Security are not withheld from my wages. However, my employer has been withholding income taxes. Is this correct?

A. Income taxes generally are withheld from earnings even when Social Security contributions are not. Since this is a tax matter, you should contact Internal Revenue for more information.

Q. I've been a foreign student for the past two years. I have an opportunity to work in the college library. Do I need special permission from Immigration and Naturalization to work on campus, and will this work be covered by Social Security?

A. In most instances, a foreign student does not need special permission from the Immigration Service to work on campus. Earnings from such work are not covered by Social Security.

1913, the 34th day of 1972. There are 18 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1577, English navigator Sir Francis Drake began his history-making voyage around the world from Plymouth, England.

On this date:

In 1781, a day of prayer and thanksgiving was held in the United States to mark the end of the Revolutionary War.

In 1868, Madrid fell to French forces under Napoleon Bonaparte.

In 1887, Russia occupied Port Arthur on the Yellow Sea.

In 1916, in World War I some 9,000 Austro-Hungarian troops were killed by an avalanche in the Alps.

In 1918, also in World War I, troops of the U.S. 3rd Army crossed the Rhine River at Coblenz, Germany.

In 1937, Japanese soldiers captured Nanking, China, and began looting the city.

Ten years ago: The largest U.S. farm organization, the American Farm Bureau Federation, declared that it would fight the Kennedy administration on nearly all its farm policies.

Five years ago: The military government in Greece crushed a counter coup, and King Constantine fled to Rome with his family.

One year ago: India sent two brigades into East Pakistan by helicopter to step up its drive to crush remaining Pakistani defenses and to capture the capital of Dacca.

California Faces Battle Over Darwin Vs. Genesis

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — evolution discussed in science textbooks, arguing it is the scientific explanation of life's origins generally accepted in the world.

Last month, the State Curriculum Commission tried to satisfy both factions by drawing up a compromise proposal that would leave out all mention of God and Genesis Darwin's theory of simple speciation.

The statement, "Life began in the seas," would be changed to "most scientists believe that life may have begun in the seas." And Darwin's theory that "the probability is very strong that life began in shallow water among the shores..." would be changed to read, "Life may have begun in the shallow water..."

In a covering letter to the board, Dr. Arthur Kornberg, Stanford University professor of biochemistry, wrote that the two theories cannot live together in the same book.

Both Parties Now Have New Chiefs

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — For opposite reasons, both Republicans and Democrats are changing command at their national party headquarters.

The Democrats have elected Sen. Robert J. Dole of Kansas, the outgoing Republican chairman, as their new leader. The changeover almost certainly will be completed by the time the party meets in Miami, Fla., in August.

In the case of the Republicans, the new management changeover is less clear. The party's top political operatives are leaving his staff, their functions presumably to be taken over by the Republican chairman-designate, George Bush, now U.S. ambassador to the United Nations.

In that situation, Nixon evidently wanted his own man on full-time duty at Republican headquarters.

Sen. Robert J. Dole of Kansas, the outgoing Republican chairman, was installed two years ago with Nixon's approval under an arrangement that made him party spokesman while dividing administrative and organizational responsibilities between the two chairmen. Now all three are leaving.

Bush is to be installed when the GOP national committee meets Jan. 19, and while there may be an undertone of grumbling among party regulars about the lack of a big Nixon campaign push for the rest of the Republican ticket, the changeover almost certainly will come without significant conflict.

Things are different for the party out of White House. The process amounts to a sign that the loser, in this case McGovern, is no longer in charge and that it is time to rebuild for campaigns to come.

Nixon varied the formula a bit by changing chairmen after each of his victorious White House campaigns. Four years ago he dropped Ray Bliss, who had worked to pick up the pieces after the Goldwater defeat, in favor of Rogers C.B. Morton, now secretary of the interior.

Dole, who succeeded Morton, said Nixon did not ask him to resign the chairmanship and added that he had never intended to stay very long into 1973. But there were indications he had not thought he would leave quite so soon. Dole had said earlier that the odds were against his departure as chairman before the inauguration.

Dole himself announced the coming switch Monday after conferring with Nixon at the White House. As Dole told it, he did much of the persuading to get Bush to take the job. But it would be surprising if Nixon's were not the decisive voice in the selection of Bush, a former Texas congressman, and then whatever persuasion was necessary.

The announcement appeared designed to make Dole's exit as graceful as possible, and to avoid any adverse echoes in his 1974 Senate re-election campaign, in which his opponent may be Democratic Gov. Robert Dole of Kansas.

Bush, Nixon's choice to take control of the GOP, quit as a Texas oil-company executive to serve two terms in the House.

Ancient Cities Underground Found in Turkey

By EMEL ANIL
KAYMAKLI, Turkey (AP) — The Turkish Tourism Ministry has uncovered and partially lighted and chiseled two large underground cities built here more than 1,000 years ago by Christians fleeing fierce Moslem invaders.

One lies under this drab village and another six miles away, under the village of Derinkuyu.

Both cities have eight underground layers and are estimated to have been able to house 10,000 persons each.

The cities had their own water supplies, elaborate ventilation systems, churches and food storage facilities to withstand long sieges by Arab and Persian marauders who swept through this area — called Cappadocia — in the 6th and 7th centuries.

This area, near the city of Nevsehir, is better known to tourists as the location of churches and monasteries carved above ground in cone-like formations of eroded volcanic tuff.

Habib Celin, director of the museum in Nevsehir, said absence of hills in this section of the Anatolian steppe made castles unfeasible. The level defense solution was excavation of subterranean cities.

He said other villages in the vicinity are believed to be sitting on similar underground hideouts.

Huts of present-day Turkish villagers stand on top of the underground cities. The peasants have opened private corridors to the tunnels and rooms which they use for storage or as animal shelters.

One of the larger rooms in the Kaymakli city has been converted into a discotheque. Gay peasant rugs and pillows cover the stone floors. Tourists sit at low wooden coffee tables. Green, yellow and red light bulbs shaded by straw lanterns illuminate the main room and small private cubicles which probably were burial vaults.

Both cities have chapels. Derinkuyu's is seven stories down and is shaped like a cross. Kaymakli's is four floors underground.

There is a kitchen at Kaymakli with a huge pit in the middle used for cooking. At one corner stands a big round stone with egg-size indentations on it, an instrument for grinding food. All around the kitchen are jar-shaped holes dug into the ground and lined with a glaze to store wine and other foods.

Different levels of the cities are connected by narrow corridors which can be closed off by huge wheel-shaped stones stored in alcoves of the corridors.

Ventilation shafts 150 meters tall rise like chimneys through all layers of the two cities with openings at every floor. At the bottom of the shafts was a well.

The cities were built and enlarged by generations over three or four centuries.

The lack of any wall painting or carved figures in the interior, except for a rough cross in Kaymakli's chapel, leads archaeologists to speculate that the residents may have been iconoclasts hiding from rival Byzantine Christian groups, who advocated use of icon worship.

There is believed to be a 94-kilometer long underground tunnel connecting the two cities. People have tried crawling from both directions but failed to prove the connection because the tunnel is caved in at some spots, local officials said.

There are about 5,000 honey bees in a pound.

Mayor Sending Rev-Sharing Check Back

MCONEILL, S.C. (AP) — Mayor Robert Harshaw says this farming community of 213 persons may send back its $46 revenue-sharing check because "We just don't want to govern federal official coming down here and telling us what to do."

He declined to say what kind of federal "strings" he opposed, but he handed a newsmen a letter which accompanied the federal check.

Let's All Play The Good Old Cliche Game

Playing the Cliche Game: It Sure Takes the Lead Off Your Mind

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Let's take a little time off from Christmas shopping to play a game, shall we?

How about the cliche game? It's a good game, because it prepares you for life.

For where would we be without cliches, except tongue-tied? They seem to be as necessary to the educated as the uneducated man. They enable us to make conversation without really thinking.

Here's how you play the game. One player asks a question that has to be answered by a recognizable cliche. The one who can come up with the most cliches is the winner, whether he regards it as an honor or not.

To get the ball rolling — nothing like starting with a good cliche — here are a few examples that ought to give you food for thought — oops, there's another one.

"What kind of a spectacle was it?" It was a sordid spectacle.

"How pure was her character?" It was as pure as the driven snow.

"It was, that is, before what happened?" Before she drifted.

"Well, what is your own character above?" It is above reproach.

"You say it was a cute sight to see. Tell me, just how cute was it?" I'd say it was as cute as a speckled pup on a red wagon.

"What is a little knowledge?" It is better than none. "No dummy, you goofed that one. What is a little knowledge?" A little knowledge is a dangerous thing.

"That's better — let's don't fall asleep on our feet."

"Is talk very expensive?" No, sir, talk is cheap.

"Where do you think would be a good place to put my money?" Put your money where your mouth is.

"What kind of theme did the minister's sermon have?" It had a lofty theme. "And what kind of sentiments did he express?" He expressed noble sentiments.

"What, above all, must we always be able to tell?" We must be able to tell the forest from the trees.

"What is handsome?" Handsome is an handsome does.

"When our hostess serves us an exceptionally good dinner, what is it we tell her she must have done?" We tell her she must have put the big pot in the pot.

"What is it we simply must get together for sometime?" We simply must get together for lunch sometime.

"Isn't there something we should be rallying 'round, boys?" Let's rally 'round the flag, boys.

"If something is rare, how often would you say it happens?" It happens once in a blue moon. "Well, couldn't it ever happen twice in a blue moon?" Nope. If it happened twice, it would have to be in another color moon. Things only happen once in a blue moon.

"That's the cliche game, kids. Play it — and take the lead off your mind."

Cat' Meow Helps Student Win Acquittal

Northeastern students, testified Ricketts was with them outside his apartment at the time. Polcari produced telephone-company records showing Ricketts made a collect call at approximately the hour of the assault to a former Northeastern University student charged with assaulting a policeman. Ricketts testified he called his friend to tell him he could hear Richards' cat meowing in his apartment and ask if he should have the superintendent let him in to feed it. Richards, as well as Richards' mother, testified it was Ricketts who called. The jury acquitted Ricketts.

BOSTON (AP) — A cat's meow helped win acquittal for a former Northeastern University student charged with assaulting a policeman. Counsel for defendant Louis W. Ricketts, 20, told a Suffolk Superior Court jury of 11 men and one woman the case was one of mistaken identity. Jerome Polcari said his client was nowhere near the scene of the assault July 30. Six defense witnesses, all either present or former Northeastern students, testified Ricketts was with them outside his apartment at the time. Recluse Kept Cash A Secret

WATERBURY (AP) — Pietro Moscufo, a 76-year-old Italian immigrant who lived alone, slept on a mattress filled with rags and cardboard and cooked his meals outside over a fire fueled with paper, had more than $15,000 in tobacco tins, old envelopes, bread wrappers and matchboxes in his apartment when he died Friday, his landlady said.

A spokesman at St. Mary's Hospital said Moscufo died of "heart failure and old-age complications." When a funeral director was contacted, he got in touch with Moscufo's landlady to try to find an insurance policy that might pay for the funeral.

Lincoln Carson, the landlady, said he bought the house seven years ago and inherited Moscufo as a tenant. He had told Carson he lived there for 50 years. Carson, the undertaker and another man went to Moscufo's apartment Monday and found over $15,000 in various denominations stuffed in several receptacles.

Carson said he hoped Moscufo would "get a decent burial" and added that whatever relatives Moscufo had should get the money.

Moscufo is survived by a sister and a brother in Italy and a cousin in Waterbury. In tobacco cans in Moscufo's apartment, said Carson, he found "wads" of ten-dollar bills. There was some $2,000 in several denominations in a cellophane bread bag and thousands more came out of pay envelopes from local factories and from the state Unemployment Compensation Department, Carson said. Many of the pay envelopes were more than 20 years old, he said.

WINTHROP, Wash. (AP) — There's only one element missing from the Old West style of this north-central Washington community — a saloon. The Washington State liquor board last week ordered 2-Fingered Jack's Saloon to call itself something else. Jack Hood, liquor board chairman, said regulations barring use of the term date back to a 1934 report by the state Advisory Liquor Control Commission, which said the state "will avoid the evils of the old saloon days."

Dog-Caused Collision

Motorists kill dogs at an alarming rate. But dogs can be deadly to motorists, too. One year's study of a single thoroughway revealed that more than 200 accidents had been caused by dogs dashing in front of cars.

What are the legal consequences of such an accident? If a dog causes injury to a motorist, may the owner of the dog be held liable in court?

Consider this case:

A motorist, suddenly confronted by a dog in the street, swerved to the right, struck the dog, lost control of his car, and crashed into a fire hydrant.

Injured, he claimed damages from the owner of the dog under the state's "strict liability" law. And the court held that, since the dog had indeed caused the accident, the owner would have to foot the bill—even with no proof of his negligence.

Strict liability laws, although not yet universal, are already on the books in many states. And even without such a law, a dog owner may be held liable if shown to be negligent.

In another case, a ferris had the habit of assaulting passing vehicles of all kinds. One day he rushed ferociously at a youthful motorcyclist, causing him to lose his balance and crash.

Even with no strict liability law in effect, a court ruled that the dog's owner would have to pay damages. The court said he was guilty of negligence for failing to keep such a troublesome dog under restraint.

On the other hand, there is no liability if the dog—although involved in the accident—was not really its cause. Thus:

A motorist, after barely touching a dog, ran his car into the ditch. But when he sought damages from the dog's owner, the quality of his own driving came under scrutiny. Considering all the circumstances of the encounter, the jury concluded that a reasonably careful driver would have had no trouble staying on the road.

Result: case dismissed.

Longer Freeze Predicted

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House subcommittee chairman predicts that President Nixon's one-year pay raise delay for congressmen and other top federal officials will guarantee a still-longer freeze on those salaries.

Chairman Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., of the House compensation subcommittee, said Congress likely would have vetoed the scheduled raise early next year for itself and other officials without Nixon's action in light of the wage-price freeze and the mood of the country.

Udall said he believes Nixon's announcement that he will delay the raise to about March 1974 will ensure the veto because the pay hikes would come during congressional election campaigns.

"It will have the practical effect of freezing salaries of 2,000 top executives for the next four years," Udall said in an interview.

Chairman Quentin N. Burdick, D-N.D., of the Senate compensation subcommittee, was quoted by his office as approving the President's action because the senator also opposes a pay raise next year.

The raise for congressmen, federal judges and top administration officials was scheduled next year under a system by which a special commission recommends raises for them to the president every four years.

The president then decides how much the raises will be, subject to veto by either the House or Senate within 30 days of his notice.

Nixon appointed his three members to the 12-member pay commission Monday. He said he wants its pay raise recommendations by next June 30 and then will make his own recommendation about March 1974.

The first commission recommended $50,000 a year for congressmen in 1969 but then President Lyndon B. Johnson cut that to $42,500 and it took effect without congressmen having to vote for or against it.

Tarboosh Business Declining in Egypt

By AHMED LUTFY
CAIRO (AP) — Hadj Mohamed Ahmed is one of the few survivors of a once flourishing profession — tarboosh maker — in Cairo.

For many decades the national headpiece, tarboosh, was on every head, from king to student, as a sign of respectability. Remembering the glorious old days, Hadj Mohamed said that any government official was likely to be fired immediately if he once forgot to wear his tarboosh.

The third descendant of a family of tarboosh makers — once considered to be one of Cairo's most profitable trades — Hadj Mohamed started to learn the secrets of the profession 50 years ago from his father.

He had expected to end up with a fortune. However, the wheel of fashion rolled fast in the wrong direction, and the tarboosh went out of style.

"I used to sell not less than 40 tarbooshes daily," he said sadly. The tarboosh was costing about 40 piastres ($1) at that time. But in those days that went a long way.

"Now, alas, I may stay a week without a single customer," Hadj Mohamed says, "and when Allah be pleased, at last a customer comes, he goes on bargaining to get the cheapest price." Due to the rise in prices in the last 10 years, the tarboosh now costs from $2.30 to $4.50.

In the shade of his small shop, all that is left of two large shops in the past, aging Hadj Mohamed gives orders to the two workers who remain out of a half dozen. He now sells straw hats for children in an effort to make up for the loss in his tarboosh income.

In an attempt to find new customers, Hadj Mohamed recently went to Sheikh Mohamed Fahim, grand rector of the senior Islamic university of Al Azhar.

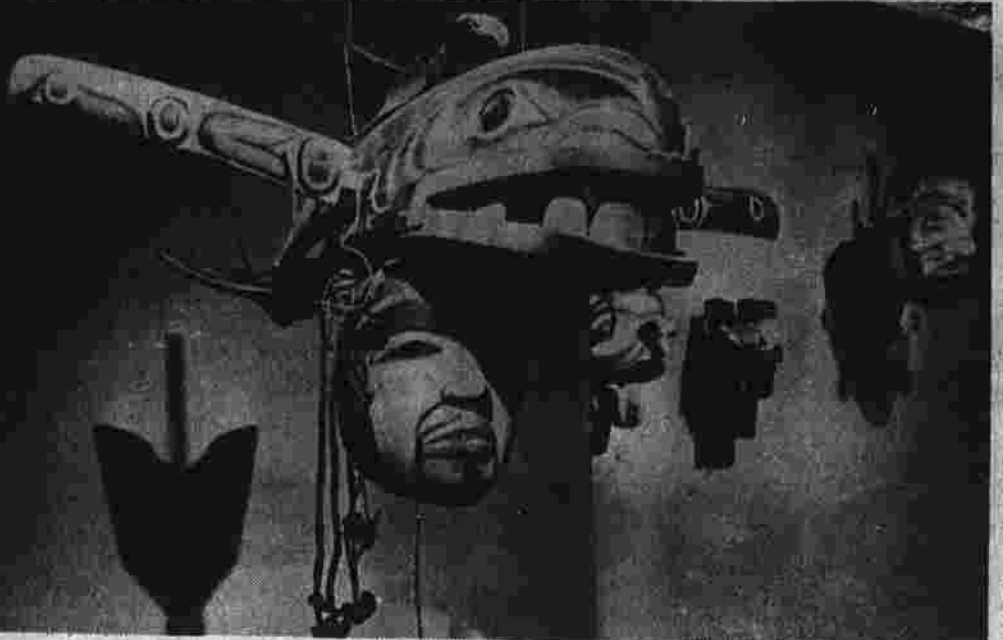

He urged the rector to make it compulsory for all teachers and students at the 1,000-year-old university to wear the combination fez (small size tarboosh) and turban, traditional headpieces of men of religion.

In response, the rector asked the older worker and his headpiece during their duty at Al Azhar. But the students vehemently rejected the idea of wearing the headpiece.

After the 1952 revolution in Egypt and the tipping of King Farouk, the tarboosh was immediately associated with the backwardness of the Turkish rule. It was the Turks who had introduced the tarboosh in Egypt in the 16th century.

"And so the revolution toppled the tarboosh too," said Hadj Mohamed, standing wistfully in front of his shop in Al Hussein quarter, one of the ancient Islamic quarters of Cairo.

"Now that they have taken off the beautiful red tarboosh," he asks, "have they also removed bad ideas from their heads?"

Indian Art Exhibited

By KAREN A. MILLS
Associated Press Writer
MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — The concept of art merely for decorative purposes historically has been unknown in American Indian culture, where everything decorative also had a useful function.

The functional concept of Indian art is borne out in an exhibition of Indian art, called "American Indian Art: Form and Tradition," presented by the Minneapolis Institute of Arts, Walker Art Center and the Indian Art Association.

The display includes 237 objects. It is the largest Indian art exhibition ever presented in the United States and is the first comprehensive presentation of Indian art in the Upper Midwest, said Walker curator Richard Koshalek.

"This is just a very small part of what survives," Koshalek said. "If we can get this kind of quality now, you can imagine what there once was."

All of the items are very well preserved, including the beautiful colors used in embroidery, weaving and painting.

The oldest item on display is a 1786 Iroquois pipe bag and the most recent item is a 1969 kachina doll made by the Hopi Indians.

The kachina figures originally were made to teach children the pantheon of more than 500 kachina spirits important to the ritual life of Southwest Pueblo tribes, Koshalek said.

"The concept of art for art's sake was unknown in the Indian culture and all of the items on display had a function," Koshalek said. "The art was done by family members — not artists — who were just producing a beautiful, functional thing."

Apollo 17 Bringing Home 'Young Peoples Rock'

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Eugene A. Cernan stepped off the lunar surface leaving in lunar suit perhaps the last footprint of the generation which first challenged space. Exploration by the Apollo ended as it began, "with peace and hope for all mankind."

"As I take these last steps from the surface back home for some time to come, I believe history will record that America's challenge of today has forged man's destiny of tomorrow," Cernan said moments before entering the Apollo 17 landing ship.

Then he added: "And as we leave the moon, Taurus-Littrow we leave as we came, and, God willing, we shall return, with peace and hope for all mankind."

There they rested after preparing to blast off the lunar surface in the late afternoon and rejoin the third man of Apollo 17, Ronald E. Evans. He has been orbiting the moon in the command ship America since Monday's lunar landing.

The climb of Cernan and Evans from the lunar surface ended a historic decade of exploration which began May 25, 1961, with a challenge to the nation by the late President John F. Kennedy.

Apollo's last surface exploration was the program's most ambitious and successful, and 12th men to the moon, spent more time on the surface than any other Apollo mission — a total of 23 hours, five minutes and 37 seconds, the longest single excursion in time, seven hours, 37 minutes. He also referred to God and said "if He's listening, I'd like to thank him too."

They collected 334 pounds of moon rock, the most amount ever returned to earth. Apollo 17 also collected 110,000 lunar soil samples, the most ever returned to earth. Apollo 17 also collected 110,000 lunar soil samples, the most ever returned to earth.

Federal Welfare Fund Cut Delayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration has agreed to delay for three months its threat to withhold nearly $700 million in federal funds to states failing to carry their welfare rolls of ineligible and overpaid recipients.

The decision gives states more maneuvering room in their efforts to negotiate a significant compromise.

It also means that $18 million in federal spending cuts will have to be applied to other programs if the government is to stay within the announced budget ceiling of $250 billion in fiscal 1973.

The delay of the federal penalties until April 1 was announced to state welfare administrators Wednesday by John G. Veneman, undersecretary of health, education and welfare.

He told them at the end of two days of secret meetings that HEW will not retreat on the crackdown, however, because he believes "the concept is appropriate."

"During the extension, Veneman said, HEW will meet with state officials to discuss proposed changes in federal regulations which they believe hamper their efforts to improve management of public assistance.

State administrators, some of them threatening lawsuits if the crackdown takes effect, have deterred a cleanup of relief rolls because the more ineligible recipients they are forced to pay, the heavier their burden would be penalized.

Some of the administrators, including California's Robert B. Carlson, have suggested that HEW use statistical period, accompanied by in-depth investigations of eligibility, been established as the yardstick for measuring performance and improvements later next year.

The effect of the three-month extension is to delay the first withholding of federal funds originally slated to begin Jan. 1.

Sights Of Nights Before Christmas

Many Manchester residents express the spirit of the Christmas season with outdoor lighting. Some are simple and others are quite complex creations involving hours of planning and labor to set up. Charter Review Group Culls List

The Manchester Charter Review Commission has been asked by one of its subcommittees to reject a proposal for the popular election of a mayor. Called the "Jackson Proposal," for commission member Phyllis Jackson, who recommended the charter change two weeks ago, it would provide for the election of a mayor and a member Board of Directors. At present, the board elects a mayor from among its ranks.

The subcommittee of Leonard Seader and Thomas Ferguson recommended last night the proposal be rejected. The CRC will discuss and vote on the recommendation next Wednesday.

The CRC, four weeks ago, voted 10 to 3 to recommend Manchester's council-manager government be continued. By Cong. Both rejected it.

United States had avoided official comment on Thieu's own proposal for a cease-fire, but American officials said privately the South Vietnamese plan was clearly unacceptable to North Vietnam and the Viet Cong. Both rejected it.

Isham told the Communists it was futile for them to continue clamoring for signature of the cease-fire agreement drafted by Kissinger and Thieu in October.

"In our country, the high pressure salesman who tries to obtain immediate signature of an incomplete contract only succeeds in arousing suspicion about the transaction," Isham declared.

South Vietnamese delegate Pham Dang Lam put before the conference the proposals made by Thieu in a speech last Tuesday. They call for a cease-fire, release of military prisoners, withdrawal of North Vietnamese forces from South Vietnam and Vietnamese-only negotiations on South Vietnam's political future.

Hanoi and the Viet Cong rejected the package within hours of Thieu's speech, and until today the U.S. government refrained from commenting on them. But Isham told the Communists they offered the opportunity for "a reasonable dialogue" and asked: "Are you prepared to examine these proposals objectively and to engage in a serious discussion of them?"

Thieu Proposals Given Support

PARIS (AP) — The United States threw its support today behind President Nguyen Van Thieu's Christmas peace package and accused North Vietnam of using "high-pressure" tactics in an attempt to impose an incomplete settlement. As the United States presented its view at the semipublic peace talks, the North Vietnamese announced that Le Duc Tho, who has been negotiating with Henry A. Kissinger, was returning shortly to Hanoi.

The North Vietnamese gave no exact date for the departure of the Politburo member. Tho's decision to leave indicated that in Hanoi's view there was nothing left to discuss with Kissinger for the time being.

Tho and Kissinger broke nine days of talks Wednesday without announcing any agreement and Kissinger flew back to Washington to report to President Nixon. Kissinger said he and Tho would keep in touch by message.

Henry Isham, representing the United States at the weekly session, threw U.S. support behind the Thieu package for the first time.

It was not immediately clear how this move would tie into the Kissinger-Thieu talks on a cease-fire agreement. The South Vietnamese delegate Pham Dang Lam put before the conference the proposals made by Thieu in a speech last Tuesday. They call for a cease-fire, release of military prisoners, withdrawal of North Vietnamese forces from South Vietnam and Vietnamese-only negotiations on South Vietnam's political future.

Kissinger 'Honored'

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Presidential aide Henry A. Kissinger has been named "Kraut Character of the Year" by the National Kraut Packers Association.

Calling Kissinger a "colorful character in many ways," the group said "his name is constantly being associated with world leaders as well as a long string of lovely ladies."

The kraut packers group, holding its annual convention here, said Wednesday it will send Kissinger a one-year supply of sauerkraut.

Truman Fighting For Life

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Harry S. Truman continued to slip overnight in his fight to stay alive and his doctors said today his condition is "very serious."

Hospital officials said the 89-year-old former president had a restless night and was unaware of anyone speaking to him. His kidney function, a major source of concern along with a weakened heart, was reported to be declining.

Dr. Wallace Graham said, "President Truman is very serious but vital signs remain fairly stable, therefore he is not critically ill."

At 10 a.m. EST, Truman's pulse was 96, his blood pressure 130-90 and his temperature 100. Truman was admitted nine days ago to Research Hospital and Medical Center after he displayed symptoms of lung congestion.

Graham, Truman's personal physician, had reported Wednesday that the former president was "weaker" and he is beginning to show signs of renal (kidney) impairment and early pulmonary "fluid collection."

Graham said today that fluid continues to collect in Truman's right lung.

Conservation Officers Named

Mrs. Theresa Parla of 55 Bruce Rd. was elected chairman of the Manchester Conservation Commission Wednesday night, and Mrs. Carolyn Becker of 38 Warranoke Rd. was elected secretary.

Both women are Democrats. The positions were not contested.

Mrs. Parla succeeds Dr. Frederick Spaulding of 18 Myrtle St., a Republican whose term on the commission has expired. Dr. Spaulding had served as chairman since 1969.

The commission has asked the Board of Directors to allow the Conservation Commission to administer the act, which is designed to protect wetlands from undesirable uses.

The Board of Directors has not yet acted on the request. They have asked the town's Planning and Zoning Commission to review the act and make suggestions.

The public is invited to a walk around the boundaries of Case Mountain Saturday morning, Dr. Frederick Spaulding, former chairman of the Manchester Conservation Commission, announced Wednesday.

The walk will be led by Igor Vecheslov of Hartford, a surveyor who recently completed a map of the Case Mountain area. The walk will start at the Municipal Building at 8:45 a.m.

Dr. Spaulding, informing Conservation Commission members Wednesday night, noted that the hike will be difficult. There is some rough terrain to go over, he said.

Proposed town acquisition of Case Mountain, also known as Lookout Mountain, is still up in the air. The town has received a savings account extension to March 31, 1973 on its option to purchase the 212-acre property. The town has been offered the property for just under $600,000.

The federal Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) has set aside $300,000 for the open-space purchase. The federal grant is subject to town and state contribution of $100,000 each.

The Manchester Board of Directors has indicated its intention to contribute a $100,000 contribution which would be used for a public hearing on this proposal has been delayed, pending state action.

The state's contribution requires approval of the State Bond Commission, and the Case Mountain item has not yet been placed on that commission's agenda. Dr. Spaulding, whose term on the local conservation unit has expired, told new members Wednesday night that efforts are being made to get the item on the bond commission's January agenda.

Fuss Saves Steam Whistle

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Residents of suburban West Carrollton made such a fuss over the Oxford Paper Co.'s loud steam whistle, the company finally had to do something about it.

People liked the 9-year-old whistle so much that when the company announced it was being replaced by an electric buzzer, it had a public relations problem on its hands.

"Since so many wanted it, we will keep the whistle," mill manager Glenn Field said.

But suburban residents said the steam blisters helped them wake up or remember to take medicine or call their children home.

The Conservation Commission working to save land, there are "at least 1,000 working to do the opposite — not intentionally, but business is business."

tried agriculture but there was not enough rain to grow more than meager crops.

So, in the space of some 50 years, the Ik became as they are now.

Turnbull, a tall, relaxed man who speaks quietly, says, "I can only guess at what the Ik used to be like. I talked to some old men and gathered together that they must have been loving, humorous, uncomplicated and with strong family ties. And now it's the reverse of all those."

He tells of being kind to an old woman and she suddenly cried. She was crying, she said, because all of a sudden we had reminded her that there had been a time when people had helped each other, when people had been kind and good."

Turnbull, a professor of anthropology at Hofstra University when he isn't doing field work in Africa or India, says, "The Ik are as they are because it's the only way they can be — a survival mechanism."

"When there's not enough food to go around it's good biology to keep the breeding group alive and let the old and the children die. The old, they reason, are going to die anyway while some of the children will always survive even when they have to make their own way for themselves."

"When the normal system is one of starvation, you can't afford to be generous. In all of my other experiences in Africa, the people were the essence of humanity. It was a great shock to find an African people the reverse of this."

But Turnbull, who spent two years studying the Ik and recently published his findings in "The Mountain People," soon changed his mind about the Ik.

The Ik, he explains, once were hunters who followed the game as it moved through Uganda, the Sudan and Kenya. But they were stopped from hunting and their nomadic cycle was destroyed when boundaries were drawn between the three countries and the area in which they had moved was made into a game reserve.

Lucked into a small corner of land with not enough game or fruit to feed them all, the Ik
