Asked whether the withdrawal of North Vietnamese troops from South Vietnam and a cease-fire are the main points of discussion now, Lam said: "Our position has been made very clear. We have never accepted the presence of North Vietnamese troops on South Vietnamese soil. And our position has remained unchanged with the withdrawal of allied forces, the North Vietnamese troops should be withdrawn from South Vietnam."

CONTRACT DEPENDS ON MISSING KING
By ALFRED SHEINWOLD
South knew he could guess which opponent held the king of diamonds. Fortunately, the bidding solved his problem for him.

What do you say?
Dealer, at your right, opens with one diamond. You hold: Spades, A-K-Q-7; Hearts, 6-2; Diamonds, K-10-9-5-2; Clubs, Q-5.

West In Spot
After ruffing the third spade, South led a low diamond from his hand! If West took the king of diamonds, South would draw trumps, cash the ace of diamonds and discard both losing clubs on dummy's queen and jack of diamonds.

At the outset end of the pipe was rigged an instrument to register the ohms of resistance between two electrodes immersed in the water. At the instant that a large box of steel was dumped into the water at the intake end, the stop-watch was started to time the lower end. The distance was accurately known. When the ohm-meter hand jumped to indicate the arrival of the salt, the watch was stopped. That completed all the required factors.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 1972 national personal income rose by $7.4 billion, an 8.6 percent increase, reflecting the expanding economy, the Commerce Department said today.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 1972 national personal income topped the Nixon administration's estimate by $10 billion. Last January, the administration estimated that personal income would reach $294 billion.

On top of that, the department revised the November increase upward to $11.9 billion, including a $3-billion rise in railroad retirement and veterans' benefits. Most of this is a nonrecurring spread-up payment to veterans.

The December figures showed that wages and salary payrolls climbed $5.6 billion, about the same as the November increase. In the service industries $1.3 billion. Manufacturing payrolls climbed $2.5 billion with increases in employment, average weekly hours and earnings all contributing to the gain.

The Old Codger's Codgitations
All O.C. ever knew about the Union Cotton mills at the north end was told by his antecedents. He doesn't remember ever seeing the ruins of the mills if there were any left.

Just a little way down stream from N. Main St. was the N.Y. N.H. & H. railroad bridge. It was always known as "The Tin Bridge." And then was the pond backed up by the dam for the Peter Adams paper mill. Those buildings have been used in later years by several other lines of manufacturing.

Does anyone now living have that information?
O.C. does remember where the Union Pond water power was again put to work in the electric power generation station on the north side of N. Main St. next to where the river goes under the street.

When the big front doors of the house were open, the water was dumped into the water at the intake end, the stop-watch was started to time the lower end. The distance was accurately known. When the ohm-meter hand jumped to indicate the arrival of the salt, the watch was stopped. That completed all the required factors.

Argument Against 'Supreme Court'

One of the basic rights of Americans, while not specifically defined in the Constitution and never exercised by the vast majority of citizens, but valued nevertheless, is the right to "take it all the way up to the Supreme Court."

A proposal to establish a new court — a "National Court of Appeals" — just below the Supreme Court but above all others would seriously curtail this right and impair the integrity of the Supreme Court as well, critics of the plan say.

The proposal was made in December by a study group of noted lawyers and law professors, appointed by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger to make recommendations for easing the growing burden of cases being appealed to the Supreme Court each year. The number has increased from about 1,400 cases to more than 4,500 annually in the past 20 years.

The National Court of Appeals would be made up of seven members drawn from the 11 federal Circuit Courts, who would serve staggered three-year terms. It would screen all cases sent up for review by the Supreme Court, forwarding only those it considered most important. The other cases it would either decide itself, deny a review or send back to a lower court for further adjudication.

But to insure that the authority of the Supreme Court would not be undermined, the high court would still have the ultimate power of review. It could reach down and pluck up any case it wanted to hear, whether passed on by the new court or not.

And here is where the critics seem to have their most telling argument. To exercise its supreme judicial function, the Supreme Court would have to know what was going on in the National Court of Appeals and to familiarize itself with all the cases that came before that court.

Yet that is precisely what it is doing now, as it selects some 150 cases to hear and deliver opinions upon each session out of the thousands that are appealed to it from lower courts. If it no longer did so, if it relinquished or delegated even part of its constitutionally established duties to another court, it would no longer be the "supreme" court.

Nixon's Radical Trade Plan

WASHINGTON—With the typical secrecy that marks all his grand surprises, President Nixon is moving toward a radical shift in trade legislation which would permit a temporary raising of tariffs on foreign imports threatening American industries.

The tariff raising scheme, now being studied by White House trade adviser Pete Flanagan, is designed as a short-term safeguard—up to perhaps five years—for domestic industries facing economic disaster from low-cost foreign imports.

A radical new form of adjustment assistance, a government subsidy program invented by the Kennedy administration to help imperiled industries and their workers adjust to foreign competition threatening their survival.

With AFL-CIO president George Meany and other moguls of big labor now engaged in a major battle to get Congress to pass the highly-protective Burke-Hartke trade bill, President Nixon is searching for some way to blunt the impact of cheap foreign imports—and the nation's liberal trade policies of the past four decades.

The Kennedy-era adjustment assistance is ridiculed as dies worthless by Meany. The Nixon plan now under study by the White House and Secretary of the Treasury George Shultz, Mr. Nixon's new international trade czar, goes much farther.

The plan would work as follows: The President could raise the tariff on imported goods to a point that would enable the higher-cost domestic product to compete and leave it at that high level for one year. In the second, third, fourth and fifth years, the tariff would be gradually reduced back down to its original level.

That would give the threatened industry five years to experiment with diversification, new technology and other cost-saving devices in an effort to make its operations economically competitive, or phase out.

The second prong of Mr. Nixon's new trade program is congressional authority for reciprocal reduction of existing tariffs over a long-range period.

With the Congress sniffing an undeniably protectionist mood throughout the nation, the tariff-raising scheme has the built-in attraction of giving Meany and the labor unions real, not just potential, protection.

Meaningful Work
Dear Sirs: The Jan. 12th Herald editorial page carried a column by Andrew Tully, entitled "Incorrigible Good-Off Age." In it Mr. Tully discussed the apparent dullness and meaninglessness of many jobs today. I would like to bring this essay and its implications to the attention of the reader.

After commenting on the fact that "people don't have to work, and they know it," that people freely change jobs to find something more meaningful (is this bad?) Mr. Tully begins the main thrust of his essay.

It works something like this: 1) Many jobs are "implicitly boring"; 2) being creative is even worse. Why just look how unhappy DaVinci, Shakespeare, and Freud were. "Ezra Pound went crazy." Mr. Tully deserves a Pulitzer for this terse summary of the life of a great artist.

"Inauguration of Conscience"
Dear Sirs: We can no longer allow the increasing suffocation of our will as a people. We can no longer continue to grasp at the straws of political promises, and so, put off, day after day, year after year, the act of resistance to a war that is destroying not only Vietnam but this country as well.

Worthwhile Cause
To the editor: I am fortunate, my husband is home and not thousands of miles away in a POW camp. Stop and think of all the women who are waiting for their husbands or sons to come home. Many of these men are just as missing in action, their families are left not knowing whether they are alive or dead. I wear a POW bracelet. The date on it is July 5, 1967. There are many men who were captured before this date. It's such a long time, almost six years. Why does it have to be this way?

At the end of the project a report will be submitted to the teachers and board members. They will include a selected bibliography of materials which contribute to the positive and realistic view of minority groups. Mrs. Glasser added, a child forms his attitudes and beliefs about ethnic, racial and religious minority groups from a very early age, typically at a level less than conscious. She said he forms these attitudes and beliefs from his total life experience—his family, peers, community, teachers, media and books.

Basic to the development of negative attitudes and beliefs, the two major components of prejudice, says Mrs. Glasser, are the formation of stereotypes, visual and verbal, about the minority group. This process is crucial to the perpetuation of prejudice, according to Mrs. Glasser. Three major studies, in 1949, 1960 and 1970, revealed that although some progress has been made by the publishers of school materials, even the best available materials are still not adequate to meet the challenge of the eradication of prejudice, Mrs. Glasser said.

Court Cases

Glenn Peterson, 19, of 333 Lake St., Vernon, under arrest in connection with an attempted holdup Monday, was released from custody Thursday on a reduced bond. Peterson, charged with attempted first-degree robbery and possession of controlled drugs, was released on a $2,500 surety bond posted in Circuit Court 12 at Manchester. The bond was furnished by a professional bondsman. Peterson was released from Manchester Memorial Hospital Wednesday, and was being held at the Connecticut Correctional Center, Hartford, on a $5,000 surety bond. In court Thursday, Judge Nicholas Armentano ordered that Peterson be examined to determine whether he is drug dependent. The alleged holdup attempt Monday occurred at the Plaza Pharmacy, 709 E. Middle Tpk., Manchester. The pharmacy owner, Robert Sandals, told police a man wielding a gun demanded various narcotics. The would-be robber, however, was apparently scared from the store upon the entry of another customer. Manchester Police apprehended Peterson at the nearby Shady Glen Dairy Store, 840 E. Middle Tpk. Police said Peterson was identified by Sandals as the gunman. Monday night, police were unable to arouse Peterson, who was being held at the police station lockup, until Thursday. William Olson Jr., 32, of 79 Vernon Center Heights, was admitted to the hospital, apparently suffering from a drug overdose, according to police. Next court date is Feb. 22.

Cases noted (not prosecuted) Thursday included: Wayne R. Birdsey, 27, of no certain address, charged with operating a motor vehicle while his license was suspended. Paul Kruse, 47, of Hartford, unsafe lane change. Hotchkiss School To Become Coed. SALISBURY (AP) - The private Hotchkiss School for boys will accept girl students in September 1974 for the first time since the school was founded in 1891, Headmaster K. William Olson Jr. said Thursday. He said about 150 girls would be enrolled by the fall of 1976.

Cases disposed of at Thursday's court session included: Edwin R. Barton, 22, of Stafford Springs, fined $25 for operating a motor vehicle with defective exhaust system. He was convicted after trial. Thomas E. Cruise, 33, of 79 Vernon Center Heights, Vernon, fined $20 for passing in a "no passing" zone. Mark D. Joslin, 16, of 200 Northview Dr., South Windsor, and Stephen A. Semanski, 16, of 926 Ellington Rd., South Windsor, were arrested Thursday afternoon on charges of possession of stolen goods. South Windsor Police said Joslin was additionally charged with possession of marijuana. Police said the stolen goods charges stem from the December theft of stereo equipment from a South Windsor home. Also taken in that house break were bicycle parts, police said. Both youths were released on $1,000 non-surety bonds for court appearance at East Hartford Feb. 5. Sean Hutchinson, 29, of Broad Brook, was treated at Hartford Hospital Thursday for injuries he suffered after being hit by a car in South Windsor, police said today. Hutchinson walked into the path of a car on Sullivan Ave. at about 5:30 p.m., police said. The car's driver, Richard Baldwin, 27, of 94 Graham Rd., South Windsor, was not charged, police said.

Five First Period Scores Trigger Islanders' Upset

Indy Cars May Enter Formula Class

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — prospect to the U.S. Auto Club. The Commission Sportive International voted recently in Paris to allow European Formula 1 cars and American Grand Prix racers, a welcomed cars into Formula 1 races whenever the field could not be filled with primary machinery. The action resulted from a money squabble between the Grand Prix organizers and racing teams.

BOSTON (AP) — Take the defending Stanley Cup champion and send it against the weakest expansion team and you get a boring rout, right? Wrong. "That's the worst first period I've ever seen this to come back. With all that fine power, once they get rolling they're awfully hard to stop."

Blackburn and Billy Harris also tallied twice as the Islanders went on the biggest scoring binge of their brief history. "As for his season with the Islanders, Westfall said: 'We haven't had many things to be elated about, but this is a game I'll remember for a long time.'"

Esposito while Dennis Hull called for the Black Hawks. Philadelphia got goals from Dennis O'Brien, Ross Lonsberry, Bill Clement and Bob Kelly in the first 15 minutes and breezed past Minnesota. The first goal was a gift. Minnesota's Charlie Burns, killing a penalty, backhanded a shot into the net while O'Brien in the back and caromed past goalie Gump Worsley.

In the WHA, Wayne Connelly put the Minnesota Fighting Saints ahead of Ottawa with just 38 seconds gone but the Nationals stormed back on goals by Mike Amodeo, Steve King and Jack Gibson late in the first period. The first two came just nine seconds apart.

Talents Turn to Scouting

One of the finest basketball players to come out of East Catholic High, and there have been many in the past decade, is Doug Melody. The young man started for four years with the Eagles, the final three as a varsity letter-winner, and then moved on to the University of Connecticut campus where he played four more years, one fresh and three varsity terms.

Paul Smith, 19, of the Bruins' scoring with 25 while Bill Grimes, John Kiddish and Lyle Eastman scored with 20, 19 and 10 points respectively.

"I had quite a night," Melody related. "I had all kinds of trouble getting into the gym. I had to see three guys before anyone would let me into this school-coaching pass."

They Compete For Academies

Sen. Lowell P. Weicker has announced the nomination of 60 candidates who will compete for vacancies at the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy at Kings Point and the U.S. Air Force Academy at Colorado Springs.

The three areas students on the list of twenty candidates to compete for the two vacancies at the Air Force Academy are: Jerry B. Alverston, 33 Fairview Dr., South Windsor; Richard K. Babcock, 110 2nd Mountain Rd., Ellington; and Gary Dean Watson, 53 Hillside Dr., Ellington.

Dr. Archibald Stuart, president of the Manchester Community Services Council, heard from various local agency representatives before the speaker.

The council passed on a recommendation presented by Miss Ethel Robb, chairman of the committee, that a letter be written to Town Manager Robert Weiss and Mayor John Thompson urging that an amount be included in an upcoming budget for the purpose of hiring and training a coordinator and providing recreational services.

Michael Hodge, representing Child and Family Services, said he is in favor of housing all the service agencies in one place for the sake of environmental protection and to avoid the expense of having them all over town.

Dr. Stuart suggested that the town might even wish to rent the school, or a part of it, for its services.

Nixon Sees New Era Of Peace

Nixon-Agnew Formally Begin Second Term

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard Nixon renewed his presidential oath today amid celebration and protest—and an intensive quest to begin the Vietnam peace that has eluded him.

His "four more years," fashioned in a nationwide outpouring of votes, began as the first; with hand on Bible open to Isaiah, reciting the pledge prescribed by the Constitution.

His vice president preceded Nixon in the swearing-in on the East front of the Capitol.

Only 12 men before Nixon had been invested with the second term of the oath that: "I do solemnly swear that I will faithfully execute the office of president of the United States, and will to the best of my ability, preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States."

Mrs. Nixon held the two family Bibles he used for the taking of the longer vice-presidential oath in 1953 and 1957, and four years ago when he became the nation's 37th president.

And the Bibles, too, were open to Isaiah 2:4 as they were before.

"And he shall judge among the nations and shall rebuke many people; and they shall beat their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning hooks; nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they fear any more."

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, a Nixon appointee, was to administer the oaths, first to Vice President Spiro T. Agnew and then the President.

Before them, as they stood on huge platforms erected before the East front of the Capitol, were the 18 highly placed and lucky enough to obtain tickets to bleachers. The false front, temporary seats and public-address system cost taxpayers $410,000.

The President and the first family, along with their official escort of Cabinet officers and officers-designate, planned to lead the parade—finally reviewing it from the presidential box in front of the White House.

And other thousands waited along Pennsylvania Avenue, the traditional Street of Presidents, to see the inaugural parade—a finely orchestrated affair including 35 floats, 55 bands, 14 equestrian units and 49 other units, including military. It was to last exactly one hour, 45 minutes.

State Inaugural Visitors Attend Reception, Dinner

By Vivian Ferguson

The streets of Washington were crowded yesterday afternoon with pedestrians. All government buildings had been closed to give employees an afternoon off.

It is customary that they have a half day on Inaugural Day, but since it falls on Saturday this year, the President gave them Friday afternoon instead. The closed buildings include the Smithsonian Institute, the National Gallery of Art, and other tourist attractions.

Hundreds of people took a stroll in the balmy sunshine until the weather changed and the rain fell.

The White House was on public view for only two hours yesterday morning. It was thought that the waiting line would be long. My-family took a chance and were able to get into the building quickly.

It rained during the afternoon and part of the evening as the Connecticut group listened to a reception in the offices of Sen. Lowell P. Weicker. He spent much of the time posing for pictures as many had brought cameras.

The Connecticut State dinner was held at the Ramada Inn in Rockville, Md. State Comptroller Nathaniel Agostinelli and his wife, Helena, were seated at the head table with Governor Meskell, his wife, and other dignitaries. Both men were contented with special inaugural market plates for their cars. Mrs. Meskell was given a sterling silver inaugural plate.

It is the first time a sterling silver official inaugural plate is offered as a memento carrying the new Robert Kennedy Presidential Library and Vice President Agnew. The reverse side of the 8-inch plate bears the Presidential seal.

The event was primarily social with only brief comments by the officials.

Meskill, Agostinelli, and Congressman Stuart McKinney thanked the 200 persons attending for the work they had done and the high Connecticut plurality which had resulted in re-electing the President.

At all evening events, most of the ladies are wearing long gowns. This is true all over Washington. During the day, pantsuits are as popular as dresses.

Self-Reliance Theme Of Inaugural Speech

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, without directly mentioning the continuing search for a Vietnam peace, today proclaimed that this is a time when "America's longest and most difficult war comes to an end."

Speaking from the Capitol steps minutes after taking the presidential oath for the second term, Nixon did not elaborate nor did he make any reference to secret Paris peace talks due to resume Tuesday.

The President, in fact, never once referred directly to Vietnam or Indochina. He did, however, refer to the "threshold of a new era of peace in the world."

In the section of his televised address aimed specifically at Americans, Nixon repeated John F. Kennedy's words: "I do not remember statement and exhorted his countrymen to ask not what Uncle Sam can do for them but rather "what can I do for myself."

The 60-year-old chief executive, who often has talked of eras of ancestral values, in effect made self-reliance the theme of his appeal to Americans here and throughout the world. He said:

"Let us encourage individuals at home and abroad to do more for themselves and decide more for themselves. Let us advocate more responsibility in more places. Let us measure what we will do for ourselves, what we will do for ourselves, what we will do for ourselves."

While pledging federal modesty in meeting domestic needs, he avoided all specifics on federal revenues to state and local governments.

He said: "Government must learn to take less from people so people can do more for themselves."

In what may prove to be the most memorable passage, Nixon said:

"In our own lives, let each of us ask—not just what will government do for me, but what can I do for myself?"

Standing on the same site a dozen years ago, Kennedy said to Nixon on consultations with leaders of five Asian allies.

In Paris, Foreign Minister Maurice Schumann conferred for 45 minutes today with U.S. Charge d'Affaires Jack Kubisch.

Haig Heads Home Via South Korea

SAIGON (AP) — Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr., President Nixon's special representative, left Saigon today after consultations with President Nguyen Van Thieu that could clear the way for a Vietnam peace settlement.

Their third meeting this week lasted only 20 minutes, and its shortness indicated no major disagreements between Washington and Saigon.

Tin Song, a newspaper with close ties to the Presidential Palace and one which has echoed Thieu's views in the past, declared in an editorial: "Progress has been noted in the negotiations to settle the Vietnam war, and the light of peace has shown at the end of the tunnel."

The U.S. Embassy said Haig was flying to Seoul for consultations with South Korean President Chung Hee Park.

Launch Satellite

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union today launched the 54th satellite in its top secret Cosmos series, Tass announced.

As usual, the official news agency gave no information on the satellite's mission.

Cosmos has been used as a cover name for a range of Soviet space missions — from collection of routine weather data to tests of fractional-orbit bombs.

Gunmen Refuse To Surrender

NEW YORK (AP) — Four men with an arsenal of gun power, refused today to give up 10 hostages from the sporting goods store they had apparently tried to rob 16 hours earlier, stopped in their escape by a confrontation with police that left one patrolman dead.

Hundreds of haggard policemen, directed by the police commissioner himself, were poised through the night outside the Brooklyn store in the darkness of a blackout they imposed for safety.

An armored personnel carrier maneuvered outside John and Al's sporting goods shop. Police and a Black Muslim with a bullhorn tried through shattered windows to coax the gunman to surrender.

The gunmen had released two of the presumed original 12 hostages they seized when a silent burglar alarm brought police to the store in the Williamsburg section of Brooklyn.

Twice a Muslim minister in turban and black robes pleaded in Arabic with the gunman to release the hostages. Three shots rang out when he asked them to fire three times if they wanted him to leave.

It was the second time the gang, believed by police to be Muslims, had fired shots since midnight. Four shots were fired at about 5:20 a.m., when the same minister left the store after spending about five minutes inside.

Besides the slain policeman, two others were wounded. One of the gunmen was believed seriously wounded during the initial shooting Friday night.

The main gunfight began about 6:15 p.m. and lasted less than an hour, although numerous shots were fired throughout the evening. A presumed personnel carrier retrieved six policemen and 15 others pinned down near the beleaguered store, John and Al's Sporting Goods shop.

At one point, police spoke to the gunman through a bullhorn, ordering them to surrender and threatening to evict them with the armored carrier. The ultimatum was ignored.

Police said one of the freed hostages, Michael Zayres, carried a message asking for medical supplies, food and a doctor. The other hostage, Judy Malveit, 20, was quoted as saying the gunman was "lying on the floor spitting up blood."

The slain policeman was identified as Stephen Gilroy, 29, of Queens, an eight-year veteran who was shot in the head as he stood behind a pillar between the street from the store.

Outbreaks of London flu have now been reported in 23 states, the CDC said.

SkyLab Postponed

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The launch of America's first space station, SkyLab, has been postponed from April 30 until "sometime in May" because of delays in checking out the complex new vehicle.

In making the announcement Friday, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said a firm launch date would not be set until late March after testing has been completed on the station, which is as big as a medium-size house.

A NASA spokesman said the test program here is about two weeks behind schedule. One source indicated the launch would be postponed at least two weeks and possibly longer.
