

POW Release Finally Under Way

Waiting Over For Families Of Two POWs

By The Associated Press

The hours of waiting for two Connecticut families ended at mid morning as two American POWs emerged from the rear of a U.S. Air Force jet at Clark Air Force Base in the Philippines.

The two POWs, among 27 released by the Viet Cong early today after an agonizing delay, were Marine Capt. George Walsh Jr., 26, and Army Capt. George Wanat Jr., 27. Walsh's family lives in Winsted and Wanat's in Waterford.

Both families gathered around their television sets to watch live coverage of POWs' arrival in the Philippines.

Walsh had been taken prisoner by the Viet Cong Sept. 26, 1972. Wanat had been a prisoner in South Vietnam since last April.

"Thank God he's alright. He's got two arms, two legs and he's walking," George Wanat Sr. said as his son stepped off the plane.

"It is the best television show we ever saw," he added.

Wanat said it did not appear his son had changed very much during his period of imprisonment. "He looks good, thank God," Wanat said.

Five of the eight Wanat children were gathered at the home and tears streamed down their faces as the young Army officer emerged from the plane. His sister, Kathy, is 13 years old today.

Mrs. James Walsh said her family had been sitting up all night watching the television coverage of the POW releases. She said the Marine Corps notified the family early this morning that their bachelor son had been released and was enroute to the Philippines.

"It has been a rather long time of waiting, looking and hoping," she said.

The Walsh family was told they would be taken to the military hospital where Walsh will be brought when he is returned to the United States. They said it is believed Walsh will be brought to St. Albans Naval Hospital on Long Island.

They have shunned publicity about their son, saying they prefer to allow him to return home quietly and to make his own future plans.

Walsh senior said the Marine Corps had told him that his son's health was "normal."

He said Capt. Walsh hadn't decided on a career when he enlisted in the Marine Corps after receiving a Bachelor of Arts degree from Boston College in 1968.

"When he joined the Marine Corps he was indecisive whether to make it a career or return to private life," Walsh said. "He was just a young man that wanted to defend his country."

Capt. Walsh has a brother and two sisters. The entire family wears POW bracelets with his name on them.

Both families reacted with joy to the news Saturday that their sons would be among the first POWs released.

Wanat's mother said that when her son is strong enough he will be taken to Valley Forge Hospital in Pennsylvania and that the Army has already made arrangements for the family to stay nearby.

"We're going to bring the whole family," she said, adding that George is the oldest of eight children.

"They're all anxious to see their brother," she said.

The announcement took the family by surprise, she said.

"We were very happily surprised, because he wasn't missing as long as most of the boys, and we thought perhaps he would be one of the last out," she said. "To hear he's coming out sooner is just a thrill."

Wanat's wife, Gretchen, said at her Foxboro, Mass., home that she was "sort of prepared" for the delay.

"All along there have been delays of one sort or another," she said. "These things never seem to go right."

"But it does get me down a little just the same," she said. "I'm certainly not bitter about it. My hopes are still high."

POW Sums It All Up

Air Force Capt. Galand D. Kramer, 31, Tulsa, Okla., sums up the feelings of the American prisoners of war who were released by North Vietnam and arrived at Clark Air Force Base near Manila, Philippine Islands, early today. The POW releases, which were delayed almost two weeks, are now expected to continue with weekly releases until the more than 600 known prisoners have been freed. (AP photo)

Negotiations

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (AP) — President Juan M. Bordaberry and his rebel generals continued negotiations today as Uruguay's government crisis went into its sixth day.

The army and air force commanders, who sparked the power struggle to save an anticorruption campaign they have been waging, were reported considering new concessions from the president.

After earlier agreeing to dismiss Gen. Antonio Francese as defense minister, Bordaberry was reported to have agreed to a broader reorganization of his cabinet with new men in other key ministries.

Recognition Possible

WASHINGTON (AP) — The new U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, John Scali, says it is premature to discuss diplomatic recognition of North Vietnam by the United States, but he indicated it is a definite possibility for the future.

The United States, he said, has "every intention of developing normal and friendly relations with North Vietnam" after there is peace throughout Indochina.

Set Back

VADUZ, Liechtenstein (AP) — Tiny Liechtenstein remains today the only non-Arab country whose women cannot vote or be elected to political office. And the cause of Women's Lib is apparently losing ground among the men.

The country's men for the second time in two years rejected Sunday a proposal which would have given women equal political rights.

Seek Purple People

MOLINE, Ill. (AP) — Persons turning in false alarms here may find they have been caught "purplehanded."

The Moline Fire Department has put a luminous purple-blue dye on the metal handles of fire alarm boxes. Fire Chief Albert Claerhout says the dye remains on skin or clothing for several days.

Columnist Dies

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — David Lawrence, editor and founder of U.S. News and World Report and a widely syndicated columnist with a conservative viewpoint, is dead at 84.

Lawrence suffered an apparent heart attack at his winter home here and was dead on arrival Sunday at Sarasota Memorial Hospital, a spokesman said.

A spokesman said funeral arrangements were incomplete.

Local Stations Up Gas Prices

By DOUG BEVINS
(Herald Reporter)

Gasoline prices at most "major brand" service stations in Manchester increased over the weekend, with some stations hiking the prices by as much as six cents a gallon.

A Herald survey of several local stations, taken this morning, showed that most "major brands" were selling for 40 cents per gallon (regular) and 44 cents per gallon (premium).

A few stations which are outlets for major oil companies held the line at last week's prices, however. And the "unbranded" discount stations were still selling gasoline at prices much lower than the "major brands."

Most station operators contacted today said motorists were complaining loudly, as usual, about the price increases. In many stations, cars would pull in, the drivers would see the higher prices, and then they would pull out without getting gas.

Some motorists, however, were sympathetic with the station owners. Peter Listro, owner of Pete's Citgo at 555 W. Middle Tpk., said "people are finally realizing that it's not our fault."

Another station owner, summing up comments of many others, said people are always complaining about prices, "and there's not much we can do about it. It's not up to us," he said, noting that most stations' prices are set by the gasoline wholesalers.

Most station operators said today that they didn't know the reason for the weekend increases, but several suspected the hikes were prompted by a proposal to increase the gasoline tax to subsidize financially ailing bus companies.

The price jump among "major brand" outlets in Manchester was not consistent, nor was the effective date the same for the retailers.

Some of the reports: Mobil stations — Boman's Parkway Mobil at 395 Tolland Tpk. raised prices Thursday by four cents; Gerich's Service Station at 1082 Tolland Tpk. hiked prices by two cents on Saturday; and Don Willis Garage at 18 Main St. hasn't yet changed its prices.

Texaco — Charlie's Service Station at 624 E. Middle Tpk. hasn't changed prices yet, although their distributor changed the wholesale costs; Reuben Plen's Texaco at 381 Main St. raised prices by four cents Thursday afternoon.

Citgo — Moriarty's Citgo Service at 270 Hartford Rd. and Pete's Citgo Service at 555 W. Middle Tpk. both raised their prices this morning, but Moriarty's went up by four cents and Pete's rose by six cents.

Exxon — Anderson Bros. at 110 Center St. hasn't hiked prices; Manchester Esso at 24 Windsor St. went up by six cents Friday.

American — Don's American at 128 Tolland Tpk. raised prices by five cents Friday, and then dropped them by three cents today; Gorman Bros. at 770 Main St. upped prices by three cents Friday.

Unbranded — Coronet A-1 at 568 Center St. went up only one cent Saturday morning; Mullin's Gasland at 176 Tolland Tpk. raised prices by two cents Sunday morning; and Regal Gas Co. at 947 Center St. hasn't changed yet.

First Groups Exuberant And Appear In Good Health

By PETER ARNETT

Associated Press Writer
CLARK AIR BASE, Philippines (AP) — A total of 143 prisoners of war came back today under the Stars and Stripes, the flag some had not seen for eight years.

Most of the men flown to this base after release from Communist captivity in North and South Vietnam were reported in good physical condition as they checked into a U.S. hospital.

"We are honored at the opportunity to serve our country under difficult circumstances," said the first prisoner to step out of the first returning hospital plane, Navy Capt. Jeremiah A. Denton Jr. of Virginia Beach, Va. "God bless America."

More than 60 doctors on duty at the base hospital began examining the freed prisoners. The first to arrive were 116 from North Vietnamese prisons, ferried on the 2 1/2-hour flight from Hanoi by three U.S. Air Force Starliner hospital planes.

"No emergency medical treatment was required and did not seem necessary," a spokesman said later. "On the most part the men were ebullient."

A second contingent of 26 men headed here from South Vietnam. They were released north of Saigon following a day-long dispute that delayed their departure. A 27th prisoner released with them remained behind at a Saigon hospital. Spokesmen at Clark said large numbers of the returned prisoners requested a regular American dinner instead of the bland diets doctors had planned to nurse their digestive systems. And most got it.

The prisoners in South Vietnam — 19 servicemen and eight civilians — were turned over at Loc Ninh 75 miles north of Saigon and flown to Saigon in U.S. helicopters for transfer to hospital planes and the two-hour and 15-minute flight to Clark Air Base.

The releases at Hanoi and Loc Ninh left 341 American prisoners in North Vietnamese hands, 72 in South Vietnam and seven in Laos, according to Hanoi's count supplied to the United States. The remainder are to be released at two-week intervals in groups about the same size as today's.

The first group of released prisoners stepped out into freedom with sharp salutes, cautious smiles and their heads held high — their emotions thinly concealed behind the formality of the moment.

In gray jackets and dark gray trousers provided by their North Vietnamese captors, the men released from the "Hanoi Hilton" made their first contact with home as emotionally charged crowds chanted, "Welcome home. We love you."

The applause and cheers from the excited crowd of several thousand military personnel, dependents and newsmen were steady as the POWs, some of them limping, walked off the hospital planes at this base, their first stop on their 12,000-mile trip home.

Monetary Meeting Rumored

BONN, Germany (AP) — Most foreign exchange markets were closed around the world today in an effort to cool off the dollar crisis. There was widespread speculation that there would soon be an international meeting, similar to the 1971 Smithsonian conference in Washington, to work out a new schedule of exchange rates for the non-Communist world's major currencies.

Sources in Basel, Switzerland, where the heads of the major central banks held their monthly meeting Sunday, said the Japanese were pressing for such a conference this week in Paris.

Tokyo was reported under increasing pressure from the United States to revalue the yen upward. But the Japanese government was waiting for West Germany and the rest of the Common Market nations to act, and the Germans continued to insist they would not increase the value of the mark unilaterally.

Although West Germany's official foreign currency exchange was closed, trading continued on Frankfurt's open money market. Dealers said they expected the dollar to settle at 3 marks, a 5 per cent devaluation from the floor level of 3.15 marks which the West German government is pledged to maintain under the Smithsonian Agreement.

Funds would be cut off again for foreign economic and military assistance and military credit sales if any future appropriations for domestic programs are impounded for more than 60 days.

Fulbright's proposal was made as an amendment to a bill to authorize extension of the foreign aid program from Feb. 28 to June 30, the end of the fiscal year.

Fulbright introduced the bill by administration request, but only, he said, as a vehicle for Foreign Relations Committee members to take "such action as they see fit."

A committee amendment last year requiring that agreements for overseas military bases be submitted for Senate ratification resulted in a House-Senate deadlock that scuttled the foreign aid bill.

The foreign aid program has operated since last July under continuing resolutions which expire Feb. 28.

Congressional leaders are readying another continuing resolution extension.

Secret Strategy Session Seeks Savings

Manchester's special colonial brigade, charged by the Main Street Guild to promote huge savings for consumers during the annual Washington's Birthday promotion, which is Thursday, Friday and Saturday, needed a secret place to plan strategy. State Rep. Donald S. Genovesi, R-Manchester, came to the rescue by letting them use the Assembly Chambers. From left are, Genovesi, Leo Juran of Fairway; General George (Creighton) Shoor of Shoor Jewelers; Madeline Matheny of Mari-Mads; Paul Misseri of Paul's Paints; (standing) Leo Apter of Regal Men's Shop and Melody Weir of Health Food Farm; (seated) Joan Nassiff of Nassiff Camera; and Ken Hankinson of Harrison's. The promotion theme will be Birthington's Washday, in keeping with the confusion which usually emanates from legislative halls. (Herald photo by Bucevicius)

Westover Ready For Area's POWs

CHICOPEE, Mass. (AP) — Westover Air Force Base "is preparing for the worst and hoping for the best" as one of 31 military hospital sites marked as treatment centers for returning American prisoners of war.

"Our problem is just so many sheer unknowns," explained Maj. David Hentz, assistant administrator for registrar functions at the 32-year-old base. "We don't know how many prisoners we're getting or when."

The base has materials to bring returnees up to date with American affairs. And people from surrounding communities have offered everything from barbershop quartet serenades to ice cream and doughnuts.

The base has news synopses on hand for men who may not know that Neil Armstrong walked on the moon, that Lucy Johnson Nugent became a Roman Catholic, that the Pentagon papers were published or that Jack Ruby died of cancer.

The news synopses were prepared by Peter Harkes of the National Broadcasting Co. and Gordon Hart of Oklahoma State University.

Westover has spent $7,600 partitioning a total of 10 bedrooms on the hospital's second and third floors into one-bed rooms for returnees. Two rooms on the third floor are debriefing centers.

Kitchen-living facilities are available free in the non-commissioned officers quarters. Similar quarters with bedroom, living room and refrigerator only are available free in the billeting quarters for the wives, children and parents of the POWs.

"THE WAY I HEARD IT"

by John Cruber

"Your son is the greatest composer I know, either personally or by name." So wrote Joseph Haydn to Leopold Mozart, father of Johann Christian Bach, who was the favorite of Chopin, of Verdi, of Rossini called Mozart, "The only composer." Mozart was the favorite of Chopin, of Verdi, of Tschakovsky, Schenker, and scores of other composers including both Debussy and Wagner. He's my favorite, too; not that I belong in such exalted company.

The public, however, always underestimates him. For one thing, it's almost impossible to hear Mozart well played any longer. George Szell was the last conductor I know of who consistently played Mozart well. Of course, he's dead now. So is Bruno Walter, another great exponent of Mozart, and Toscanini.

So are Kreisler and Gieseking who played Mozart to perfection on violin and piano. Philip Hale who was darn hard to please called Gieseking's Mozart, "Lonely and incomparable."

Mozart is constantly played, but seldom or never well. However, you'll have a chance to hear what should be a fine all-Mozart concert at the Bushnell Feb. 19 when the Mozarteum Orchestra will play there with Rita Streich as soloist. The Mozarteum is a school in Salzburg dedicated to the very best of all things Mozart.

Salzburg is where Mozart was born and where he lived for most of his life. It was the domain of a Prince-Archbishop who maintained his own orchestra in which both Mozarts, father and son, played. That orchestra was dissolved in the 19th century but the others remained a Cathedral Music Society with choir and orchestra to carry on the tradition interrupted.

This Society eventually established the Mozarteum as a school, which it still is as a matter of fact, but the Mozarteum Orchestra although once a student group, is now a fully professional group of 45 musicians which always plays a large part in the Salzburg Festivals in the summer.

Personally, I haven't attended a Salzburg Festival since 1958 and I understand it has become quite commercial, but I'm sure the standards of performance are still extremely high. In any event, I intend to go, for I'm certain it

EARLY CONCESSION AVOIDS DANGER

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

I've been working feverishly for months on a new invention: a bell that will ring automatically whenever a bridge hand calls for special play. You can play the hand in your sleep. Unluckily, all my bells keep breaking down. They keep ringing, but nobody hears them.

If East leads hearts, dummy's king will win a trick. If East leads anything else, you can discard two hearts on dummy's long clubs. Either way, you will lose only one heart trick.

Down one.

If of course your regular readers wouldn't dream of making that mistake at the first trick. The right play is to let East hold the first trick with the king of diamonds. This guarantees the contract.

Shut Out
East can return a diamond to the ace, and you draw trumps. You then take the club finesse, losing to the king. At this stage, however, West is shut out, thanks to your care at the first trick. West cannot get in to lead through dummy's king of hearts.

Miss Streich will sing four Mozart coloratura arias, and Mozart could write them. He was an Austrian, of course, but the language of the palace was Italian so he was naturally bilingual, and he spent enough time to become trilingual.

It is the combination of three nationalities that make Mozart unique. He has Teutonic thoroughness, Italian melody, and French charm. It is a combination nobody has ever beaten and properly executed it sounds so easy there seems to be nothing to it. Yet it is absolute perfection in music.

The arias to be heard will be: "L'amore sara costante," from Il Re Pastore; "Deh vieni non tardar," from Marriage of Figaro; "Chi sa, Chi sa, qual sia," from Il Barbero di buon cor; and "Zeffiretti lusinghieri" from Idomeno.

That one from the Good-hearted Churl (Il Barbero di buon cor) is a new one on me; I know nothing about it, but the others are all dandies, and I praise her restraint in not including the aria for the Queen of the Night in Magic Flute; we hear that one frequently enough.

Possibly she didn't want to mix languages, and that one is in German. I've heard it in Italian and it sounds ridiculous. Incidentally, Miss Streich is a very pretty soprano with a personality that comes across the footlights. I'm sure you will enjoy her. Incidentally, she was born in Siberia, but moved to Germany at a very early age. I presume she is married but I really don't know. Certainly she is attractive enough to have had many prospective suitors.

Directs Civic Chorale

Ralph Maccarone of 32 Hawthorne St., has been reappointed director of the Manchester Civic Chorale for the 1973 season.

Maccarone is a music teacher at Hill Junior High School. He is choir director at St. James Church, and is tenor soloist at the Cathedral of St. Joseph in Hartford. He was also music director for the Little Theatre of Manchester's production of "Carousel," and will direct the musical portion of their fall production of "Fiddler on the Roof."

A combined concert with the Manchester Civic Orchestra is scheduled for Sunday, May 20, at 7:30 p.m. at Manchester High School. The major work to be presented is Rossini's "Stabat Mater" for two sopranos, alto, tenor and bass solo and full chorus and orchestra. Dr. Jack Heller of the University of Connecticut will conduct.

Anyone in the Manchester area interested in singing in the Chorale is invited to attend the first rehearsal Feb. 26 at 7:30 p.m. in the gym of the Manchester High School. New members should have a reasonable amount of sight singing ability and past experience in either choral or instrumental ensemble work, according to Maccarone.

Persons unable to attend the first rehearsal are asked to contact Maccarone or John McClain, choral representative, at Clinton St.

Lincoln, Then And Now

Lincoln's birthday still has meaning to many but not as much as it once did. Perhaps the increasing complexities of our times and time itself make it harder, if you will pardon the term, to "relate" to a man who lived and died tragically more than 100 years ago.

The traditional reverence and awe that was once inducted in us about this man who "freed the slaves," has been tarnished by generations of lip-service to his ideals; the resulting massive movement in the courts and unfortunately in the streets; to achieve racial equality. And the job has not been completed for the struggle continues in a myriad of forms.

Abraham Lincoln, were he alive today, might find the America of the 1970s not too much different from the America of the 1860s. We are ending involvement in a civil war now as we were then. Granted, Lincoln's Civil War was infinitely more "related" to the American people than South Vietnam, but there can be no denying the divisiveness of the two conflicts.

Today, as then, we are trying to heal the wounds of a war. The tragic assassination of Lincoln before he could pursue his goals of true emancipation has often been termed

Not As Simple As ABC

Someone has come up with a solution for the current bus impasse that might be called as simple as ABC.

A is for automobiles which burn gasoline which can and is taxed to maintain our highways and streets. B is for buses which also use the streets and offer transportation for those who don't have cars or prefer buses to cars for commuting to and from work. And C is for cash which almost everyone agrees is the key word to getting the buses rolling since the private firm says it is losing money on present operations.

Before us is a proposal to increase the gas tax to subsidize the bus company to run the buses. Quite naturally this is attractive to the state which wants to limit its involvement in a subsidy. It is attractive to the transit districts because it limits also their involvement and avoids the quite real possibility that subsidies beyond state aid might have to be borne by the property taxpayer. And quite naturally the bus users and the businessmen who find the present absence of bus service affecting them adversely like it.

The only group up tight about this simple ABC solution is the individual car owner who does not use buses and feels, quite naturally, that he should not be subsidizing the bus rider or the bus company and this objection is not an invalid one.

We are inclined to agree with the private auto user.

First, quite rightly, bus company employees have refused to subsidize bus operations through reduced wages.

Second, the transit districts, quite rightly, have balked at subsidies because it is a statewide problem and district resources for such payments are limited.

Third, the state, which could possibly be in the best position to provide and control a subsidy has balked because it is not, at this time, many historians as a major turning point to many but not as much as it once did. Perhaps the increasing complexities of our times and time itself make it harder, if you will pardon the term, to "relate" to a man who lived and died tragically more than 100 years ago.

Presidents and other leaders may influence people to make war or make peace. But no matter how inspiring they may be as individuals or how effective they may have been while alive, peace nor the solution to any problem, does not come out of the past of a dead man's ideals but only from a people willing to learn from the lessons of the past and pursue with vigor those concepts and ideals which our forefathers, including Lincoln, bequeathed to us.

The legacy of a war can be almost as bad as war itself and the legacy of the American Civil War of the 1860s still haunts us because the American people, tired of war and bloodshed, let a torch remain where it fell. It did not follow through on what the war was all about, equality and freedom.

What will be the legacy of Vietnam? Will we, in Lincoln's words, re-dedicate ourselves so "that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom — and that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from this earth?"

politically or administratively prepared to assume what has all the appearances of being a Pandora's box of transit woes.

Fourth, it would appear the bus users feel fares, and again quite rightly, are high enough.

And finally, the businessmen in the metro areas served by the systems, feel business is already saddled with enough taxes without the added onus of a transit subsidy which benefits others as well as business.

In effect the buck has been passed, and passed and passed, until the only source left is the private motorist who is now paying 10 cents a gallon gasoline tax, the highest in the nation.

He too can pass the buck since he, of all the principals involved, has the least stake in whether there is a viable mass transit system or not.

His only problem is who can he pass the buck too? He is at the end of the line. The administration and the legislature is being hounded by the bus unions, the companies, the transit districts, the mayors, and the bus riders for a solution — any solution so long as the buses get rolling again.

We think the private automobile users ought to protest this proposal vigorously. Not because the half-cent or one cent increase will hurt the pocketbook very much but because we don't think the bus company, the unions, the riders, the mayors, the legislature and the governor should be taken off the hook so easily.

As we have stated before the time is past for stop-gap patching of Connecticut's mass transit problems. Clearly we need a long range and statewide coordinated solution that will keep buses and commuter trains going and growing, not because they have access to the public till, but because they are serving state needs profitably.

As President Richard Nixon stated only a few days ago, we don't always solve the problem by merely throwing money at it.

Restore Bus Service

The Joint Connecticut State Legislative Committee of the American Association of Retired Persons and the National Retired Teachers Association, representing more than 104,000 members in Connecticut, deplors the lack of transportation for the people of Connecticut, especially for aged and those who are dependent upon public transportation for mobility.

The hopes of the people of Hartford and New Haven areas have been bolstered as they come to be thwarted by bickering among the parties concerned. It would seem that in this age when men can be placed on the Moon with very little difficulty, that knowledgeable persons within our state could sit down together and work out a solution to this annoying problem.

For those in authority who do not need public transportation there would seem to be plenty of time to sit back and wait for the other fellow to give in, but for those who are dependent upon this form of transportation, where can they go? We believe the time has come for those in positions of responsibility to give a little thought to their fellow man. No one is perfect and no plan will be perfect but if the Connecticut Company, the Labor Union, the Transit Authority and the State would seriously consider the hardships they are causing, they could come up with a plan that would not be too bad for anyone.

Why don't the parties concerned try walking to get where they are going in subfreezing weather. It was hard enough standing in the cold waiting for a bus but now it means walking for miles or staying at home. After 10 weeks of this deplorable situation, we appeal to Gov. Meskill, to Mr. C. Clayton Gengras, to Mr. Robert Zwerner of the Greater Hartford Transit District, to officials of Hartford and New Haven, to Mr. A. Earle Wood, commissioner of transportation and to the Labor Leader, Mr. John Thompson, to restore, without further delay, the bus service as a viable necessity in our very complex society.

Manchester People Did Care

Dear editor: It was very enlightening to read the comment of Alexander Plante that "Government no longer cares about people" as he retired from his state education post. His chief point was that more stringent budgetary procedures would cut into the quality of education. He was the man who is the "founder" of Project Concern and I must admit, thereby can claim to be an authority on spending. That project could certainly spend money while producing no substantial proof that better education was achieved by its practice.

I would like to direct my one rebuttal issue, however, to government not caring about people. The people spoke about Project Concern in a Manchester referendum, albeit an informative rather than a politically effective one. The people in a vote rejected Project Concern in that "advisory" referendum. True, through Mr. Plante's astute efforts, the Manchester Board of Education contracted with Hartford to participate in Project Concern anyway, and I give him due credit for his ability as a frontal assault expert, a good one and a brave one.

Nonetheless, he is hypocritical in stating that government doesn't care about people. It is rather that certain people who are uneducated and uncontrolled zealots don't care about people, and they can achieve their goals by clandestine and vigorous efforts. This is what the citizenry should watch.

When Lincoln was growing up in Illinois, most of it was still wilderness. His prayer in childhood was "Don't let any of us get lost in the wilderness." In his adult years, he said "no man ever got lost on a straight road." He had learned that a way is not good just because it is easy — it is good because it is right. If we seek the Lord's guidance in making our decisions, we too shall be able to keep the right course in time of doubt, difficulty and danger and walk secure in God's way. Lord, keep me on the path that leads me close to Thee in safety.

Why Wait?

Dear sir: Many distinguished journalists, doctors and educators have recently been writing that 1973 will be a joyous year for us, when a generation of young people to "do their thing" without regard for who they might offend.

We have had to peer through the hair to find out if it really is our child at the dinner table, we have had to wait until wash day to find out who wore the pants, we have sat at home rather than join our children at an X-rated movie, and we have been lambasted for our "old fashioned" ideas.

Let us believe that in two years time we will really have cause to celebrate with that young generation as they come to realize that orderly behaviour signifies maturity and self discipline, orderly appearance accompanies an orderly mind, and cleanliness has always been next to godliness.

Why wait until 1975? Let Manchester start one step ahead by insisting that our children attend school or school work and not for a fashion parade of ironed hair, dangerous and unmanageable styles, and the clothes on ones back in keeping with an academic atmosphere.

Gratitude

To the editor: On Feb. 1, at 6:30 p.m., my car got stuck in a snow bank on Spruce Street, near Oak St. I was very upset, but when I tried to get out I could not get the car free. A man came walking by and saw my plight. He stopped, directed me to avoid power dim-outs and gas to avoid power dim-outs and gasoline rationing (now back). I didn't get a chance to ask his name or to thank him for his kindness. Perhaps he may read this letter and know that I will always remember his kindness with deep gratitude.

Oil, Arabs and Moscow

WASHINGTON — Despite attempts to play down the politically explosive energy crisis, President Nixon has ordered a confidential, top-to-bottom National Security Council study of the long-range impact on U.S. foreign policy of oil-and-gas shortages here.

That study is one of the first decisions to emerge from a blue-ribbon presidential committee named a month ago and still so cloaked in secrecy that its existence has not been made known before now.

Headed by White House domestic policy chief John Ehrlichman, the committee has only two other members: Dr. Henry Kissinger, Mr. Nixon's chief foreign policy adviser, and George Shultz, Secretary of the Treasury and the administration's economic czar.

The Ehrlichman-Kissinger-Shultz study, a belated administration response to repeated appeals from Interior Department officials for a new national energy policy, deals with the country's thorniest problem: getting enough oil and gas to avoid power dim-outs and gasoline rationing (now back).

In a private letter to Mr. Nixon last summer, Jackson himself suggested an NSC "assessment of the national security, foreign policy and domestic energy policy implications of our growing dependence on imported crude oil and petroleum products from the Middle East and elsewhere."

Jackson, chairman of the Senate Interior Committee, is trying to push the Nixon administration into a billion-dollar crash program of technological development and designed to make the U.S. independent of foreign oil and gas suppliers.

An economical oil-from-coal extraction technology is feasible, Jackson says, and should be developed immediately. The U.S. could continue to buy Middle Eastern oil, but would then have a domestic alternative if the Arabs raised prices too high for political or other purposes.

Jackson's acute suspicions of Moscow as a dependable supplier of U.S. energy needs—plus the enormous costs of extracting, liquefying and transporting Siberian gas to the U.S.—eliminates the Soviet Union in his thinking as a future source.

As of today, Jackson's line is much harder than views held inside the White House. Thus, top presidential advisers have by no means discarded ideas of two-way trade with Moscow, based on imports of Siberian gas, despite the high costs. Likewise, some presidential advisers, including officials at both the State Department and the Pentagon, doubt the dangers of oil-rich Arab states price-gouging the U.S. Instead of an exorbitant crash program to develop coal liquefaction and gasification, they counsel a more deliberate pace.

These are a few of the basic questions the secret NSC study will have to resolve, and the answers will have powerful bearing on U.S. foreign policy both toward the Soviet Union and the Arab world. Such is the nature of the energy crisis which in a brief decade has converted the U.S. from an exporter to an increasingly needy importer of oil.

Bolton Adoption Program For Junior Women

JUDITH DONOHUE

Tel. 649-8409
Bolton residents are invited to a program on adoption to be sponsored by the Bolton Junior Women's Club Thursday at 8 p.m. at St. George's Episcopal Church.
Several couples who have adopted other, racially mixed and other so-called "hard-to-place" children will share their experiences.
All couples are members of the Connecticut Open Door Society, a voluntary organization established to encourage and promote adoption of children without regard to race, color, age, creed or handicap. It is not an agency and cannot place children, but its members are available to consider adoption by answering their questions and describing their own experiences.
One couple expected Thursday is Mr. and Mrs. Ken Harris of Middletown, who have adopted a child and have a 15-year-old foster child. Mrs. Harris is president of the Connecticut Open Door Society. Another couple, Jane and Fufus Blanshard of Storrs, adopted their first child eight years ago and recently adopted an eleven-year-old boy.
Mary Favale of Willimantic will also be a participant at Thursday's meeting. She is single and is the parent of a mildly retarded nine-year old boy. Miss Favale appeared on last week's WTIC-TV special dealing with Mansfield Training School.

About Town

Daughters of Liberty, No. 125, will meet Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in Orange Hall. Members are asked to bring a Valentine. Refreshments will be served.
The Manchester Jaycees will meet tonight at 8 at the British-Sandquist of Chapin and Mr. and Mrs. Ken Neubeck of Storrs. Mrs. Neubeck is the Open Door chairman for the Willimantic-Storrs area.
With the exception of Miss Favale, all of the couples have biological children in addition to their adopted children.
The program will be informal to permit extensive dialogue with the audience and to provide opportunity for questions. Mrs. Neubeck said.
Members hope to acquaint those attending the meeting with the many changes in the adoption picture which have come about during the last few years. One need not be married, childless, own a home, belong to a church or have money in the bank to adopt.
Thursday is the club's annual Neighborhood Night with members of clubs in neighboring towns as well as Bolton residents are welcome to attend. Refreshments will be served.

Hebron PZC Sets Hearing Tuesday

ANN EMT
Correspondent
Tel. 228-3971
A second public hearing on proposed changes in zoning regulations allowing the operation of public recreational campgrounds has been scheduled by the Planning and Zoning Commission for tomorrow evening at 8 in the Town Office Building.

The commission has incorporated in the second set of regulations many of the recommendations made by residents at the first public hearing held last October.

At that hearing the proposed regulations appeared to be supported by the majority of the residents who attended; however, the commission took no action pending the incorporation of the changes and suggestions.

The new set of regulations to be presented tomorrow evening have added the following: Individual campgrounds shall have at least one mile radial distance from all external boundaries; storage of recreational vehicles or trailers shall not be allowed; a waste water receptacle (dry well) shall be provided for each camp site; and a periodic inspection shall be made during the camping season.

Deletions
Deleted from the original proposed regulations are: Renting of tents or camping trailers for sleeping and cooking purposes is permitted; and no trailer or mobile home designed for full-time living may be permanently occupied while parked on the camp property.

Changes
The commission has also made the following changes: Where the original regulation stated that parking spaces should be provided for the maximum number of vehicles at a site, the new regulation states that parking spaces should be provided for not more than two motor vehicles at a site.

Also, the original regulation, stating that all spigots which dispense water shall empty into drains connected to a subsurface sanitary disposal system, now calls for approved dry wells into which spigots will empty.

And finally, the original regulation called for fly light depositories being provided not more than 100 feet from any individual camp site. The new regulation calls for a depository for each individual camp site.

Lincoln Dominates Springfield

H. F. WOLLENBERG IV
Associated Press Writer
SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Residents of Illinois' capital city are making the most of the 15 years Abraham Lincoln spent in the area — from the Lincoln Tomb to the Hoest Abe Hamburger.

Lincoln, born 104 years ago today, got his political start in New Salem, 20 miles north of Springfield. A town restored to look as it did in the 1830s and 1840s when Lincoln was representing the district in the Illinois General Assembly now stands there.

Nine other memorials have been maintained in Springfield proper, ranging from the church pew he and his family were said to have knelt in at the First Presbyterian Church to a wax museum which charges 75 cents admission.

But while the Lincoln law offices, home and memorial garden may attract hundreds of thousands of tourists from around the world to Springfield, several commercial enterprises bearing his name are reaping the profits.

There are 16 businesses, one golf course, a grammar school and the Lincoln and Community Junior College which use his name, and there are no legal restrictions on using the name of Abraham Lincoln.

The Lincoln Cab Co. proudly displays a caricature of the head of Lincoln on each of its cars. The Abraham Lincoln Insurance Co. uses a facsimile of the seated Lincoln on its letterheads. And the Lincoln Candy Co. once stamped each piece of candy it made with the imprint of the bearded president of the United States.

"My father came over from Lebanon where there was a lot of civil war strife going on," said Norma Jean Najim, owner of the Lincoln Candy Co. "He knew that Abraham Lincoln freed the slaves so he named his business after him."

The A. Lincoln Travel Agency owner had a more practical reason for its selection of a name.

"We wanted to be first in the telephone directory, so we didn't spell out Abraham," she said.

The travel agency, eager to extend the image of Lincoln the traveler, uses a caricature of Lincoln astride a horse as its symbol.

"The owners did not recall how their businesses were named. Springfield also has the Lincoln Auto Parts Co., the Land of Lincoln Bank, Land O' Lincoln Paint Inc., the Lincoln Book Co. and the Lincoln Land Real Estate Co.

In Springfield, you can get a haircut at the Abe Lincoln Barber Shop, play a round of golf at the Lincoln Greens Golf course and down a beer at the Lincoln Square Tavern.

If you wanted to become a permanent resident of the city, Lincolnland builders may be a company to deal with.

And if you were just visiting, you have a choice of staying at either the A. Lincoln Motel or the Lincoln Towers Motor Hotel.

An East Side Restaurant has featured since 1959 a double deck Hoest Abe hamburger. It costs 89 cents.

Owen Anderson, president of the Springfield Chamber of Commerce, said he is grateful the Lincoln home area has been designated as a national historical site.

"People resent it when businesses move in with the intention of exploiting an historical figure," he said. "I could not wonder how many of those types of shops we could have were it not for the national site designation."

Fuel Oil Prices Debated
WASHINGTON (AP) — Oil industry representatives say profits are needed to invest in new facilities, but consumers and spokesmen maintain oil profits have been adequate or even exorbitant.

The comments were made Friday during a public hearing on the price of fuel oils. The three-day hearing was held by the Council of Living Council.

Max Weiner, executive director of the Consumer Education and Protective Association International, said the oil industry was not truly competitive and was already overcharging the public.

"Do you really have to let this industry add still further to the already unpalatable burden it has imposed on us?" he asked.

WASHINGTON (AP) — "I believe that the export of U.S. lumber is the chief culprit in the unprecedented increases in lumber prices," says U.S. Rep. William Coster, D-Conn.

The Nixon administration's desire to export lumber has "added $1,200 in one year to the cost of building an average home," Coster said Saturday in a statement. He added that exporting of lumber has resulted in a "projected 10 per cent slump in housing starts in 1973."

South Windsor School Board Studies Overcrowding Problem

BARBARA VARRICK
Correspondent

Discussion of a solution to the high school overcrowding problem will take place tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. when the Board of Education meets in the Timothy Edwards School Library.

Since the defeat of the board's proposed long-range housing plan by voters in the November 1972 referendum (a new wing addition priced at $1.9 million), the board has been reviewing all previously proposed alternative plans for housing the still-growing high school student population while the grammar school enrollment numbers continue to decline. Board members have been meeting in private sessions. Even if the board's proposed $1.9 million addition had been approved, the board would still be faced this year with the current overcrowding problem as construction of the proposed wing would not have been possible until this spring and occupancy of the building would not have been probable until the 1974-75 fiscal school year.

For the current school year, provisions were made by board action when it approved purchasing three double-unit modular classroom buildings which were erected at the rear of the school. All of the six classrooms are now being used by the student population in the high school.

The present high school building was built to house 1,200 students. Relocation and rearranging has made it possible for the building layout and the modular classrooms to adequately accommodate 1,360 students in the high school this year. However, at least 120 more students of high school age are expected to enter the higher level of education and above the 1,360 persons and

Rham District Tandarico Puppets Appear in Hebron

The Andover Rural Music Committee has had the opportunity to obtain the Tandarico Puppet Theater of Rumania for four performances this week. The internationally acclaimed performers have recently appeared at Harvard University. This past weekend, according to the Connecticut Commission on the Arts, the group appeared in Sharon, Conn.

Through the efforts and participation of the Hebron PTO, the Andover PTA and the principals of the Hebron, Gilead and Andover Elementary Schools, the 15-member troupe has been booked for the four performances.

And in order to make the opportunity of seeing this exceptional group available to as wide an audience as possible ticket prices for Friday evening's performance were set only $1.

Frank Ballard, head of the dramatic department at the University of Connecticut, informed MacDonald that the Tandarico Puppet Theater of Rumania is the best in all of Europe.

Board meetings are open to the public.

When he was a boy he read a lot of books. Then one day he became a president of the United States. There was a play and in the middle of the play he got shot.

Abe died 109 years ago

A barrel of books, farm in Kentucky.

Abe Lincoln was born in a one-room cabin. The cabin was a barn in Kentucky.

Rockville Pupils Write Minibooks

By Barbara Richmond (Herald Reporter)

It wasn't a lesson in creative writing, according to Mrs. Frances Högberger, grade 4 teacher at the East School in Rockville, but nevertheless the children, as only children can, let a little creativity slip and some mini-books they wrote on two famous presidents.

To write the books, the children used resource material in their school room which, according to their teacher, gave them an opportunity to learn new skills as well as learning about George Washington and Abraham Lincoln. Perhaps because they wrote the books on the President before Lincoln's birthday they gave him much more attention than they did to Washington.

Here are some well-known facts about the two men but also some not-so-well-known ones. The books were complete with illustrations sketched by the young students and written in very good likenesses of the two men.

"Aberham Lincoln, A Good Man," was the title of one book and the mini-story goes: "Lincoln used to read near the fire place. Then always after that he will chop and whittle wood. Abraham was the greatest person since Crist. Lincoln was good to others. Lincoln was the sixteenth president. Lincoln died at a theater. He got shot in the ear drum."

And here are some little known facts written in a book titled, "Meet Abraham Lincoln." "He loved to read. Years went by fast and he was a man. A girl wrote him a letter and told him that he look good in a beard. Lincoln died watching a play and that's why we have the Lincoln Memorial." This was complete with a sketch of the memorial with the explanation, "This is what it looks like."

"Old Abe when he was a boy liked to read a lot," said one child who sketched Lincoln. "Abe Lincoln was believed to be born in a log cabin near Hodgenville."

Here is "All About Aberham Lincoln" as told by a little girl.

"Aberham Lincoln was a good man. He was a brave man and a true man. He was mild, kind and wise. Lincoln was a friend to those who are weak." This praise was followed by "From Lincoln's Words."

And about George Washington. "We all no that Washington was the first president of the United States," said one boy. "It maybe took over 1,000 people to vote but Washington did not live in the state capitol. George lived Mt. Vernon. George was elected May 1777. They met in Philadelphia. Washington rode his horse to Virginia when he was a little boy he did, he did it the hard way. The people chose a new president his name was John Adams. Washington was 65 but he was a strong man. He looked after his farm. He went to parties and balls. Then one winter Washington catch a bad cold. Then next day he was very ill and to day latter on December 14, 1799 he died. Washington was buried at Mount Vernon. At last he could rest under his fig tree." Do you suppose there wasn't any cherry tree after all? Here's another version all about the war. "When Washington Was in the war he used a sword. It was a dangers weapon but never let it all ways carried one with him and his men did to. The war went on and on. It was a big war it went on for days and days. Men were shootin, stabbin, killing it was terrible."

It would be a disappointment if no one mentioned about Washington never letting a lie but of course, one child did remember. This is his story: "George Washington was a true man. He never told a lie. He was in a battle with his men. He fote and fote. He always carried a sword to protectet himself. He was a brave man. The war was on even in the winter there were bleeding men. Washington died of amonia. People loved George." Now how can you help but admit that you never have read such interesting and appealing biographies in any history book.

Defending Champions Eliminated In Town Duckpin Bowling Tourney

By Earl Yost

Two new champions will be crowned in the 1973 Town Duckpin Bowling Tourney at the Holiday Lanes.

Sent to the sidelines yesterday in quarterfinal competition were Tony Marinelli and Agnes Claughesy, winners a year ago. Marinelli got by his first round match Saturday against Ed Miller but was eliminated by Howie Hampton yesterday in the first of five set, 3-1.

Mrs. Claughesy was ousted by Nancy Belsky in the city's biggest upset. The latter, with a 20-pin handicap, triumphed in five games.

Successful in the Men's Division, which is being rolled on a scratch basis, and moving into the semifinals Sunday besides Hampton were Don Simmons, Larry Bates and Burt Claughesy. Bates is a three-time winner.

Don Simmons

Bob Byrnes

Bill McKinney

Ed Miller

Simmons downed veteran Ed Miller 3-2, and Bates topped Al Pirkey 3-2, winning the last two games. Each rolled 127 in their fourth game but Bates won in a rollover, then came back to turn back Diane Bernard, 3-2.

Consistent pinning, 3-1. Over in the Women's Division, Joan Colby trimmed Helene Joy, 3-1. Mary Arcand whipped Holly Urbanetti, 3-2, and Carol Noske needed five games to turn back Diane Bernard, 3-2.

Semifinal pairings Sunday at 2 arc: Belsky vs. Colby; Arcand vs. Noske. Sunday's Men's pairings are: Hampton vs. Simmons, Bates vs. Claughesy. Besides Marinelli's win over Miller Saturday, Hampton topped Bob Byrnes, 3-2; Abratis took three straight from Rocky Lupacchino; Simmons trimmed Art Johnson, 3-1; Pirkey blanked Mike Baleston, 3-0; Bujaucius defeated Bert Davis, 3-1; Claughesy trimmed Bill McKinney, 3-1. The weekend's top single was by Marinelli, 172, against Miller, which followed an opening 91.

Palmer's putting brings home $50,000

PALM DESERT, Calif. (AP) - Arnie's back. The long, long victory drought is broken. Arnold Palmer is a winner again, the lingering doubts are gone, his head is up and the famed grin firmly in place.

"Ah, yes," Palmer said Sunday when asked if this was a victory for the old folks, and the 43-year-old pro from Pennsylvania added: "I feel pretty damn young right now."

The weather was cold, wet and windy for the final round of the $100,000 Bob Hope Desert Classic at Bermuda Dunes Country club, and Arnie was soaking wet. Yet, he said: "I thought it was a hell of a day, really. The sun shone all day."

Palmer had not won a tournament in 18 months before his final round of 69 produced a two-stroke triumph over the man who replaced him as golf's king, Jack Nicklaus, and 25-year-old Johnny Miller. Nicklaus, who led or shared the lead all the way until the first hole of the last round of this 90-hole marathon, and Miller matched par on the rain-drenched course.

Palmer went ahead of Nicklaus by sinking an eight-foot birdie putt on the first green as Jack three-putted from 35 feet away. Later, however, came the suspenseful moments, and even Palmer, with all his experience ad-trimmed Art Johnson, 3-1; Pirkey blanked Mike Baleston, 3-0; Bujaucius defeated Bert Davis, 3-1; Claughesy trimmed Bill McKinney, 3-1. The weekend's top single was by Marinelli, 172, against Miller, which followed an opening 91.

Tip Helped

PALM DESERT, Calif. (AP) - Arnold Palmer was putting so poorly that he tried almost everything.

Finally, he got a tip that helped him break an 18-month victory famine in Sunday's Bob Hope Desert Classic. It came from a non-winning pro, a career struggler and a man who's putting so poorly himself that he's even turned around and is going after them left-handed.

"I played with Harry in Hawaii," Palmer said. "He said, 'Why don't you go back to using the stroke you used to have?'"

"So I did. I went back to wrist putting, just like I used to. I kept the wrist locked. Hell, I tried everything.

"I guess this worked. I made the putts I had to make."

And Harry? Well, he missed the putt he had to make, still didn't make a check, is still looking for his first tour victory—and is still putting left-handed.

Mountain Dew

MOUNTAIN DEW - Dottie Whitehead 176-466, Donna Stratman 179-504, Jane Thome 178-464, Pat Sullivan 179-480, Mary Botticello 186-514, Lee Bean 177-511, Terry Cardile 186-478, Betty Richardson 468

Geyer Standout In Track Win

The Manchester High School hallways were again the site of another indoor track meet on Feb. 10.

Jeff Geyer turned in an outstanding performance for Manchester by winning three events. He captured the two-mile, one-mile and 1,000-yard run. Jeff tied for first in the 300, won the 500-yard run and anchored both winning relay teams. Also showing great promise were Scott Moffat, Kevin Scholsky, Matt Wallace and Mike Lombardo.

Friday night, competing in the Hartford Army, Navy and Air Force Invitational Indoor Track championship at the Hartford Armory, Manchester's indoor track team won the 600-yard run and Manchester was 11th overall in the point standing.

Pro Skating

GOTEBORG, Sweden - Arvid Schenk of the Netherlands won the all-around title at the first pro championships with 19 first-place finishes in the 5,000-meter and 10,000-meter races in the first pro world championships.

Carnival Champ

HANOVER, N.H. (AP) - Vernon built into a collegiate ski power in two years under Coach Chip LaCasse, is champion of the Dartmouth Winter Carnival for the first time.

The Catamounts closed strongly, as expected, in the jump Saturday to win the $100,000 event with 391.6 points.

One Happy Fella - Arnold Palmer

18-Month Tourney Drought

Palmer's Putting Brings Home $50,000

Palmer had not won a tournament in 18 months before his final round of 69 produced a two-stroke triumph over the man who replaced him as golf's king, Jack Nicklaus, and 25-year-old Johnny Miller. Nicklaus, who led or shared the lead all the way until the first hole of the last round of this 90-hole marathon, and Miller matched par on the rain-drenched course.

Palmer went ahead of Nicklaus by sinking an eight-foot birdie putt on the first green as Jack three-putted from 35 feet away. Later, however, came the suspenseful moments, and even Palmer, with all his experience ad-

Wings Hungry for Points

By The Associated Press They were very hungry for those two points." Buffalo Coach Joe Crozier said of Detroit Red Wings.

"They played like there was no tomorrow."

As tomorrow became today, the Red Wings found themselves back in a National Hockey League playoff berth and the Sabres found themselves out of it.

Marcel Dionne scored a pair of goals for Detroit Sunday night, but the pair that really counted were the ones by Henry Boucha and Al Karlander. They came, less than two minutes apart, early in the third period, igniting a four-goal session that whizzed the Wings to a 5-4 victory. It pushed them into fourth place in the East Division, a point ahead of Buffalo. In Sunday's other NHL games, Montreal tied the New York Rangers 2-2, Minnesota blanked Vancouver 6-3, Boston shut out Los Angeles 5-0, Chicago clobbered Philadelphia 7-2 and Atlanta beat California 3-1.

The first-place Canadiens retained their four-point lead over the Rangers in the East with third-period goals by Frank Mahovlich and Chuck Leffley. Bruce MacGregor and Vic Hadfield, who had scored the New York goals, suffered injuries later in the game and each will be lost to the Rangers for at least three weeks, MacGregor with a broken ankle and Hadfield with a fractured thumb.

Cagers Active in Final Full Week

Cougars Complete Schedule

By Dean Yost

The final full week of basketball begins tonight at East Catholic High where Manchester Community College will host South Central C.C. The Cougars, in action again Wednesday night, will complete their season Saturday against Hartford C.C. The Cougars begin the week with a 9-9 overall record and a 4-5 COCCAC mark in Manchester.

Cheney Tech (6-9) which lost its tournament attempt with a 60-47 loss to Wolcott Tech last week, also winds up its remaining three games against Ellis Tech on Thursday. Cheney is also scheduled to play St. Thomas Seminary Tuesday in Manchester.

East Catholic High, 12-4 overall, treks to East Hartford High Tuesday night in a non-conference outing then to the powerful Holy Cross High of Waterbury at the Eagles' Nest in another independent tilt Friday.

Keeping alive its tournament hopes last Friday night with a thrilling victory over Wethersfield High, Manchester High will be at the Clark Arena, Waterbury, tomorrow night. The Tribe will host Hall High while Platt High comes to town Friday. Manchester must win its remaining three games to qualify for post-season action.

Ellington High (51-1) will play NCCO power East Windsor on Saturday night. The Knights currently lead the NCCO with a perfect 11-0 mark.

South Windsor, 87 in the Central Valley Conference and 8-8 overall, must win two of its remaining four games. Two of the outings are against Simsbury (Tuesday) and Northwest Catholic Feb. 22. In between, the Cats face the Rams of Danbury and Southington.

Presently a three-way tie has developed in the CVC for second place with Rockyville, Plainville and Simsbury all holding onto the position. The Rams, 12-4 over-all and 11-4 in the conference, plays Newington High Tuesday night and will be home Friday against Windsor. Rockyville's last game of the regular season will be Tuesday at home against Windsor Locks.

Coventry High, one of three area schools in the Charter Oak Conference, has a good chance of qualifying for the CIAC tournament. The Pats, 8-8 overall, entertain two of their neighbors who are competing in the conference on

HERALD BOX LETTERS

For Your Information

THE HERALD will not disclose the identity of any advertiser using box letters. Readers answering blind box ads who desire to protect their identity can follow this procedure:

Enclose your reply to the box in an envelope - address to the Classified Manager, Manchester Evening Herald, together with a memo listing the companies you do NOT want to see your letter. Your letter will be destroyed if the advertiser is one you've mentioned. If not it will be handled in the usual manner.

PLEASE READ YOUR AD

Classified or "Want Ads" are taken over the phone as a convenience. The advertiser should read his ad the first day it appears and report errors as time for the next insertion. The Herald is responsible for only ONE correction of an advertisement and then only to the extent of a "make good" insertion. Errors which do not lessen the value of the advertisement will not be corrected by "make good" insertion.

Westover AFB Ready

 A collection of Vietnam-related jokes gathered from various Air Force periodicals, and copies of Time and Newsweek dating back to 1965.
 The speed of each prisoner's return to a normal diet and normal way of life will be handled on an individual basis, Cox said.
 "Great care will be taken with the diet. We assume the men have been fed a diet peculiar to Southeast Asia and the introduction of rich foods will be subject of some inquiry."
 After the men are released from Westover, Cox said, they can go on convalescent leave. Those deciding to stay in the Air Force will get career counseling. Those who decide to leave will be helped "as much as we can."
 Cox said that "at this time" any POWs who made antiwar statements are not under "any culpability."
 In career counseling sessions, Cox said, families have been told to act natural, "to understand what the men have gone through and to be patient and to allow the men to determine his own speed."
 Cox said the people on base have been caught up in the end-of-the-war furor.

About Town

Manchester Assembly Order of Rainbow for Girls, will have an initiation meeting tonight at 7:30 at the Masonic Temple. The initiation will be conferred by members of the Shadow Parts degree team. Following the meeting, refreshments will be served under the direction of Mrs. Wayne Secrist. There will be a rehearsal at 6 p.m. for new officers.
 "These overcharges are evident in about two-thirds of the sample cases we examined," he says. "Given that nearly 70,000 civil suits are now started annually, the total for this petty theft will be about $200,000."
 Schuchman's article, "Travel Costs for Service of Civil Process," will appear in the next issue of the review.

Prof Scores Process Serving Fees

WEST HARTFORD (AP) — Deputy sheriffs and constables have been overcharging Connecticut residents about $200,000 a year for serving legal papers, says a University of Connecticut professor.
 Professor Philip Schuchman of UConn's Law School says in an article for "Connecticut Law Review" that most of the overcharging comes in the form of travel costs.
 The correct legal charge should average about $2.15, but in reality averaged $4.95, he says.

Cheshire School Damaged By Vandals

CHESHIRE (AP) — Weekend vandals caused thousands of dollars of water damage to the unopened $3 million high school floor. Water up through three inches deep ran through the halls and into eight classrooms.
 Damage also extended to a lower level of classrooms. Vandals had been blamed for $250 in damages in January when student experiments and windows were found broken.

Motor Club Opposes Transit Tax

HAMDEN (AP) — The Connecticut Motor Club says a proposed half-penny a gallon gasoline tax on public transit is "unfair, unwaranted and ill-conceived."
 "Any subsidies required to be shared for transportation should be shared equally by all citizens," the club said Saturday.
 "Motorists in the state of Connecticut are already paying more than their fair share for mass transportation."
 The motorists are already subsidizing through existing taxes "the nation's largest mass transportation system, the interstate highway system," the club said.
 However, a poll of the state's American Automobile Association, has 150,000 members in New Haven, Fairfield and Litchfield counties.
