EVEN EXPERTS
FUMBLE IN PLAY
By ALFRED SHEINWOLD
It's hard to believe, I know, but the sad fact remains that even ranking experts can go wrong when they play the right play for just one suit. Pardon me for sneaking, but some very good friends of mine are living proof of that smug statement.

West dealer
North-South vulnerable
Opening lead — Jack of Spades
When today's hand came along in a regional tournament at Asbury Park, N.J., four prominent Life Masters perpetrated the bidding shown in the diagram. And West, who could have murdered the contract by leading the king of hearts like any normal human being, decided that this was a good time to lead dummy's suit instead of his own.

The first trick was one of the worst in the history of the Declan Stale. Declan played the queen of spades from dummy, and East covered with the king.
Naturally, South took the ace of spades and returned the suit to bring in five spade tricks. Defense was hopeless from here on.

Mysterious Play
Nobody will ever know why East put up the king of spades at the first trick. If he played his low spade he could hold declarer to just two spade tricks. South would get two tricks each in hearts. There is no way to score game at notrump.

But South is still trying to explain why he played the queen of spades from the dummy. He should just let the opening lead ride to the ace of spades and return a low spade to finesse with dummy's nine. That would guarantee five spade tricks.

Loyzim To Head Planning Group

HOLLY GANTNER
Correspondent
Tel. 742-8795

Democrat Stephen Loyzim was the unanimous choice of the five-member Planning and Zoning Commission last night to serve as chairman of that agency. Loyzim replaces Republican Arnold Carlson.

Carlson had resigned earlier this month from the PZC, the resignation to become effective upon appointment of a replacement. The Town Council last week appointed Joseph Shanahan to fill Carlson's seat on the commission.

Upon his appointment as chairman, Loyzim immediately resigned as PZC secretary and Republican Shanahan was chosen unanimously to fill that post.

As the new chairman, Loyzim said, "In this crucial period in the history of Coventry, I ask you all to have faith and confidence in the character and integrity of the Planning and Zoning Commission. With your support and understanding, we will do our utmost to resolve these issues in the best interest of the town."

Also on last night's agenda was a public hearing concerning a zone change requested by the Nathan Hale Gas Company on South St. Acting on behalf of the owners, Sanford Jones and Frank Spencer, Atty. Richard Cromie requested a change from residential commercial. The change would involve about five acres of land and would be used to provide space for additional building.

The owners, however, presently have no plans for the immediate future. Nathan Hale Gas sells propane gas, and there is a small package store on the 60 by 80 foot site, which is a non-conforming use. Cromie answered criticism about possible "spot zoning" in connection with the requested change by noting that there are already four businesses nearby.

Several South St. residents spoke against the proposed change, feeling that the residential character of the area would be changed. Paul Diehl and Ronald Doughty, speaking in favor of the proposal, cited the owners' business conduct and general improvement of the premises.

The PZC has 60 days from the hearing date to make a decision on the matter.

Council Delays Vote on Transit District

BARBARA RICHMOND
(Herald Reporter)

In a surprise move last night the Vernon Town Council decided to delay action on a motion for the district to withdraw from the Greater Hartford Transit District.

The decision to recess the meeting until Wednesday night following a public hearing on sewer assessments came after a lengthy discussion which was preceded by a motion made by Councilman Richard MacDonald recommending that the town withdraw from the district immediately and agree to pay its share of expenses running due.

In making the motion MacDonald said, "I fail to see the wisdom for taxpayers of this town to pay this gas tax to a failing bus line when there is a distinct possibility that the town can be served by another line."

Mayor Frank McCoy, who has recommended withdrawal, means to make arrangements with the Post Road Stage Bus Co. of Windsor to increase its service in the area. The company has been serving Vernon passengers who work in Hartford since the Connecticut Co. went on strike in 1971, the earliest date the tax on gasoline could be charged.

Reason for this, he said, is that this tax was used to replace the assessment paid by the district to bill member towns. The district also has a proposal which would take one cent from the gas tax and use it to subsidize the district's operation on Thursday. Senator Thomas Carruthers told the council.

Vernon's two district representatives, Richard Dempsey and James Ledbetter, were in agreement that it "would be a shame for the town to have to withdraw based on such informal fabrication of facts where the district stands now."

With that Republican Councilman Donald Eden said he did not feel the council should make a decision " tonight" and moved to table action.

Rham

Teacher Group Backs Hartshorn

The Rham Federation of Teachers, in a letter to the Regional District 8 Board of Education, has asked the board to formulate a policy on evaluation of tenure and non-tenure teachers, saying its request is the result of "recent examples of unjust evaluation of teachers."

Although not saying that there is a connection between the two, the Federation, in another letter, informed the board it is backing Bernard Hartshorn "100 per cent in his endeavors to retain his position as choral director at Rham High School."

Hartshorn, a music teacher at Rham, has been informed by the board that his contract will not be renewed next year. He has requested a hearing with the board.

The Federation is not the only group supporting Hartshorn in his effort for reinstatement. Representatives from the student body and citizens of Rham, including Mrs. Nancy Crane, a professional music teacher, referred to as being very impressive, was another fact mentioned by almost all those expressing their concern.

Information which many wished to hear was not available. This was why the "mystery" behind the board's decision and what were the reasons for it?

Persons who were always discussed in executive session and information not given to the people in order to protect the teacher.

If residents or students wished clarification of the reasons for the board's decision, Mrs. Richards recommended they get this information from Hartshorn.

Pay Raises, Lost Federal Funds, Concern Solons

LONDON (AP)—The U.S. dollar strengthened today in early trading on European money markets. Gold held steady.

MARK FEINBERG, director of the Connecticut Redevelopment Commission, told the Appropriations Committee that "some of our northern neighbors" in New England plan highway maintenance and construction projects during the summer tourist season to make their own restaurants and motels easier to get to than out-of-state establishments.

Elsewhere on Capitol Hill, the chief of the State Development Commission told legislators that some of Connecticut's "northern neighbors" seek road projects to discourage their citizens from vacationing in Connecticut.

Senate Minority Leader Charles T. Alfano offered a zero-hour bill to block the recently approved pay raises for state commissioners, their deputies and elected officials. The raises go into effect March 1. Since the deadline for the filing of bills by individual legislators has passed, Alfano will need "emergency certification" from the majority Republicans for the bill to be introduced or acted upon.

Although they are Republicans, I think they will give it serious consideration," Alfano said. Community Affairs Commissioner Ruben Figueroa told the legislature's Appropriations Committee that cities and towns should use their millions of dollars in revenue-sharing funds to make up for federal cutbacks instead of relying mainly on the state. Connecticut municipalities have already received $94 million in revenue-sharing cash, he said.

Henry Fisher of New Haven, speaking for the Connecticut Urban Renewal Association, agreed that "the state cannot replace the federal government's role. But he said the state should provide temporary aid to sustain certain programs until more revenue-sharing money comes in.

Unfinished Business

Thursday, the Greater Hartford Transit District directors are slated to meet and act on some unfinished business. First, they are faced with the possibility some member towns may withdraw from the district. Second, should the first come or not, they must decide whether or not the district (with fewer towns as members) should go ahead with the proposal to get the ConnCo. bus service operating again and eventually take over the line's operations and assets.

We can appreciate the economic impact the lack of bus service has on Hartford. We can understand the reluctance of some of the towns in the district to being taxed through the gasoline tax for an operation which essentially is dominated by and services Hartford. This is not to say that bus service to Hartford and other major population areas of the state is not essential.

However, it does point out the flaw of the immediate past approach to the mass transit needs of the state as a whole, as districts within the state, and as towns within a district.

Neighboring Vernon, for example, sees more of a need for intra-Vernon transit than buses winging to and from Hartford. This need is evidenced in Manchester also and in many other Nutmeg towns.

The senior citizen wishing to visit across town or go downtown shopping is a potential bus rider. Students not eligible for school-financed transit are also potential customers. Commuters within a community should not be overlooked either.

This potential is not to say that mass transit needs are essentially a local problem. On the contrary, it clearly indicates that perhaps more than ever before, statewide coordination is necessary for it appears bus usage, like air travel, has levels of service which must be integrated into an overall system.

Our air service has the major airlines serving major metropolitan areas. Then there is the second level of regional carriers connecting flights and hopefully schedules which in turn are served by third level transit means which can be air or land forms.

Mass transit in Connecticut for the long pull, we believe, requires a state-level approach for only the state can effectively coordinate intra-town and inter-town services and only the state can coordinate interstate services.

With our state astride the Boston-New York City corridor we still believe ultimate transit needs of our people, whether it is getting from one side of town to the other, from Vernon or Manchester to Hartford or from Hartford to Boston or Providence or Shea Stadium, lies in having a broader base than a transit district of one or more towns.

The proposals before the Greater Hartford Transit district may get the buses rolling again in some form. The recently enacted gasoline tax may be a vehicle for initiating or upgrading services within a town or city. The federal government may come to the rescue with some form of mass transit aid if ailing railroads and the current red-ink operations of Amtrak don't dry up the well.

But whatever happens in the weeks ahead, the basic need for a statewide and state coordinated mass transit policy remains essential. Otherwise the current bus crisis will re-run in the future when the same costs, which outstripped profits, eventually catching up with and exceeding tax subsidy revenues of a district.

Clearly, Gov. Thomas J. Meskill and his administration should and must look beyond the bus stop in front of the Capitol which seems to have been his only concern to date.

Money's Always A Crisis

The international monetary crisis was finally solved in the spring of 1974 with the creation of the Republic of Zug. In a supreme act of self-sacrifice, Zug agreed to be the only nation in the world that bought more abroad than it sold.

A desperate need for one such country had been growing for years. For what caused the crisis was that all countries struggled to sell more abroad than they bought.

In fact that's why Mr. Nixon devalued the dollar in December of 1971—an act he described at the time as "the most significant monetary agreement in the history of the world."

Unfortunately, the U.S. trade deficit soared. So he was forced to devalue the dollar again in February of 1973—in what was obviously the second most significant monetary agreement in the history of the world.

The danger, however, was that the other nations, in order to compete, would also devalue their currencies. And in no time, money wouldn't be worth anything. That's when Alfred J. Gnome stepped in.

Gnome, a member of a famed Swiss banking family (the Gnomes of Zurich), proposed creating Zug. Not only would Zug buy more than it sold, but Gnome promised that it would also highly overvalue its currently-known as the "shock."

The financial world hailed Gnome's magnanimous offer. Private foundations, the World Bank and a coalition of hurried money buyers rushed to his aid. And so Zug was founded.

Gnome was as good as his word. His first act as President and Treasurer was to peg Zug's currency at the ridiculous figure of 7.2 shocks to an ounce of gold—of which Zug didn't have any.

Naturally, no money buyer would touch a shock with a ten-foot pole. And the currencies of all the countries skyrocketed in relation to the shock—thus enriching bankers and statesmen and presidents and premiers.

Burdens with an overvalued shock, Zug could not, of course, sell any of its goods abroad. All it could do was buy. And in a year, it ran up the unbelievably unfavorable trade balance of 16.2 trillion shocks, which is a pretty penny.

WASHINGTON—It is more than a month since the controversy was raised when the United States Olympic Committee decided not to play the National Anthem before our recent Olympic invitation meet at New York's Madison Square Garden—then hurriedly reversed the ruling when there was a storm of protest.

All right, one told oneself at the time, that's that. No comment seemed required. But one was wrong. The flap continues.

It now develops from a little research that many college basketball teams hold team meetings during the playing of the anthem to avoid incidents involving black players who don't want to stand during the ceremony. Some colleges no longer have the anthem played before home games.

"Sure we worry about the reaction of dissidents—whites as well as blacks," a college president admitted after he was guaranteed anonymity. "We don't want to encourage incidents that could cause general disorder. You can call it craven, but I just don't think we should force a showdown on this issue."

Well, Mr. President, I will call it craven. I would call it a few more things if this were not a family newspaper. For better or for worse, playing the national anthem at a sports event has become a tradition in America. Nor did we initiate the practice. Long before "The Star Spangled Banner" became a fixture at baseball and football games and other athletic exhibitions, European nations had beaten us to the practice of playing more-less musical tribute to their national heritage.

So far as I've been able to learn, crowds in Europe generally are well behaved during the playing of a national anthem, although at an international event they may have to stand through as many as 25 anthems. Indeed, at boxing matches in Switzerland, they play the anthem of each fighter's country, the Swiss anthem and even that of the referee's homeland. No fuss.

Canada takes a more ambivalent view where the United States is concerned. In Montreal, "The Star Spangled Banner" used to be played before professional hockey games involving American teams. That no longer is the case. A spokesman for Montreal Canadiens, explained that there is "a lot of sentiment against the Vietnamese War in our country, and we have a lot of Americans who came here to escape the draft. We don't want any incidents."

That does sound like a gratuitous insult to a whole nation. Canada's official relations with all the people of the United States, not with a tiny minority of draft dodgers in Canadian exile. Grown-ups would not pander to a gaggle of cowards, but Canada apparently is a special case. Certain of its citizens even bow the playing of "God Save the Queen."

But that's Canada. Let it stew in its own insecurity. What is sickening is the surrender of Americans at home to childish, paranoid black athletes who will do anything to get attention. Granted, the blacks have suffered deprivation in years past (although I'm getting tired of THAT song and dance), must the majority abandon all traditions, big and small, simply to placate the minority?

I think not. Whether the national anthem should be played before or during sports events is not the issue in my book. The question instead is whether it may be played, without precipitating a brawl by professional malcontents, and since the Republic has not yet descended into anarchy there can be only one answer. Besides, imperfect as we all are, the admission of that fact and our determination to be better is "What so proudly we hail'd" is all about.

Mrs. Butterfield Starts Campaign

JUDITH DONOHUE
Correspondent
Tel. 669-8409

Mrs. Virginia Butterfield, Democratic candidate for first selectman of Bolton, has issued the first statement of her campaign, saying that "manipulation, misinformation and secrecy in government on all levels is and will be my first concern."

"This era of maneuvered central government is the worst and unity is essential," she said. "Locally the major issues will be thoroughly studied and the public kept well-informed. An informed public can decide its own destiny."

Mrs. Butterfield noted that since a town charter will be drafted during the coming year, it will be a year of important decisions and policymaking, where the choice of candidates is more important than at any time in the town's history.

Following recommendations made by school physician Dr. Robert Besser, the Andover Board of Education has revised school health policies for students and employees.

With respect to physical and dental examinations, a written statement, to be submitted to the school prior to entering kindergarten.

Under health appraisal activities, a policy was added whereby classes shall be established by the public health nurse to encourage proper eating habits for those children who deviate from the normal growth pattern. Parental permission will be obtained for each child participating in the program.

Peace Effort To Continue

WASHINGTON (AP) Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir says she believes the search for peace in the Middle East will go on, despite the shooting down of a Libyan airliner by Israeli planes last week.

Mrs. Meir said upon her arrival in Washington Monday that she understood the world reaction over the tragedy in which 108 persons, most of them Libyans, were killed.

"It would be indeed a colossal crime if it happened otherwise," she said, "but even in a state of shock and true sorrow we have to go on searching for peace."

Mrs. Meir planned to confer with members of Congress today and Wednesday, and will meet with President Nixon Thursday regarding peace moves in the Middle East.

Sewer Pump Under Test

Sewer Commission Chairman James Throve said this week testing is being done at the Clark St. pumping station in preparation for the tying-in of all complete sewer lines west of Rt. 5. He said he believes service will begin by March 31.

The commission will also pay $1,400 for aerial photography to look into alternative methods, and the committee is considering the possibility of having equal assessments for all homes in a development in which corner lots will be charged the same amount as other neighboring lots, providing they are single plots.

Engagements

The engagement of Miss Heather Alice Schaefer of Rockville to Albert F. Delaney Jr., also of Rockville, has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl R. Schaefer of 12 Center St., Rockville.

The bride-elect is a 1969 graduate of Rockville High School and will graduate in May with a BA degree from St. Michael's College in Winoski, Vt.

Tears Are Nothing To Cry About

My ancestors were of staunch New England stock. They farmed the rocky hills of New Hampshire, tightened their belts against the sparse cold winters and lived by the philosophy of the stiff-upper-lip.

I really admire them very much, and try hard to live up to the strong example they've set me. But sometimes, despite my good intentions, I cry at weddings and sad movies and Eagle Scout ceremonies. I also get a little teary when Kate Smith sings, "God Bless America" and when I get a little misty around the eyes and a few quiet sniffles. I do NOT make a public spectacle of myself, yet my children find me a source of great embarrassment.

We all went to see "Love Story" together. After the performance when the lights went on, the kids took one look at me and vanished.

I tried to explain to the kids that I was just having a "good cry." And I reminded them that Victorian ladies used to weep all over the place. They claimed that tears were good for nerves and that they prevented the "vapors" (what ever that is).

But no one paid any attention to my explanation.

The other night my husband and I watched a rerun of an old Jack Lemmon-Shirley Maize movie. It was great, a good old fashioned boy meets girl story complete with a happy ending. It was a BEAUTIFUL ending, the kind that makes me get a little misty around the eyes.

"For Pete's sake," said my husband when he noticed, "What's wrong with you? I'll never understand women. Look! Jack Lemmon LOVES Shirley Maize. They're going to get married and live happily ever after. What more do you want?"

I took a deep breath and sniffled. "I want a kleenex," I said.

There will also be a Manchester Y weekend campout June 1-3, at Woodstock, Conn., at reasonable rates.

Both the Indian Guide and Princess programs welcome new members to participate in activities geared to give fathers and their children opportunities to share experiences and spend some time together.

Heralding Politics

By Sol R. Cohen

Manchester State Rep. Donald Genova, an assistant House majority leader, is a member of the joint legislative committee, now involved with a conflict of interest charge against State Finance Commissioner Adolf G. Carlson.

The eight-member ethics committee consists of four Republicans and four Democrats — two of each party from the House and two from the Senate.

An official request for the investigation came from State Rep. Andrew Beck, D., of Mansfield. Her action was based on a disclosure last week that Carlson's insurance agent had been designated as a commission on performance bonds purchased by two Connecticut contractors awarded state contracts.

Secretary of the State Gloria Schaffer has been named to the elections committee of the National Association of Secretaries of State.

Barbara Dunn, state consumer protection commissioner, has declined comment on a report she is being considered for a federal post in Washington, D.C., and may resign her state job.

"I don't know what the future holds," she said.

Several months ago, Mrs. Dunn was called to Washington for an interview in the federal office of consumer protection.

She says she doesn't know who put her name, nor for what job. She says she's heard nothing since and doesn't know what she may decide if the word ever comes.

Former Norfolk Mayor Frank Zollo is the first state Democrat to say publicly he will become a candidate for the nomination or governor.

At Saturday's Jefferson-Jackson Day fund-raising dinner at the Hartford Hilton Hotel, he and the current Norfolk mayor, former U.S. Rep. Donald Irwin, sprang the word of Zollo's availability.

"Zollo is in there," Irwin said. "He will make an announcement in the next few days."

Those mentioned prominently for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, although none have announced formally they are interested, are: Robert Killian, state attorney general; Ella Grasso, Sixth District congresswoman; Homer Babidge, former president of the University of Connecticut and Joseph Duffey, defeated Democratic candidate for U.S. senator in 1970.

As of today, Manchester Democrats enjoy a 1.749 lead in registrations over the Republicans — 87 more than their lead last Nov. 7, Election Day.

Manchester voter lists total 28,765, for a record high. Of the 28,765 eligible voters, 11,544 Democrats, 8,668 Republicans, and 8,206 are unaffiliated.

Motivation Parley Topic

Achievement motivation techniques that succeed and fail in the classroom will be the subject of an educators' conference to be held tomorrow at Manchester Community College. It will start at 2 p.m. in Room 9 on the main campus.

Educators interested in the subject are invited. Further information may be obtained from Sebastian Mudry, psychology instructor at MCC.

The conference speaker will be Ronald S. McMullen, lecturer in education at Wesleyan University and associate director and project psychologist in its Upward Bound Program. He is concerned with training secondary school teachers and student teachers in the design of effective educational curricula.

Atty. Michael J. Handler of 12 Collee Dr., Manchester, has assumed the duties of public defender in the East Hartford session of Circuit Court 12.

Handler was appointed to the new full-time position by Judge Nicholas F. Armentano, resident judge in the circuit. He was sworn in Jan. 26.

Handler's appointment relieves Public Defender Terrance Sullivan of the East Hartford session. Sullivan, whose office is at the Manchester court, now serves in the Manchester, Rockville, and Stafford sessions of the circuit.

Handler was admitted to the Connecticut Bar Association last September after passing July bar examinations. He received his juris doctorate last June from Suffolk University Law School in Boston, Mass.

At law school, Handler was a moot court adviser and a certified voluntary defender and group coordinator of the Suffolk Voluntary Defenders Program. He also worked as a project supervisor for the Massachusetts Division of General's office, and as a project supervisor for the Connecticut Planning Committee on Criminal Administration.

Handler is a 1964 graduate of Manchester High School and received his BA in economics from the University of Connecticut in 1969. He is single.

Teachers Seek Host Families

Manchester area families are needed to entertain English-speaking European teachers in their homes for one or two weeks this summer, according to an announcement by the American Host Program.

J. Stuart Perkins, board chairman of the program, who is president of Volkswagen of America, says American Host is one of the few non-governmental programs designed to show the American way-of-life to foreign teachers by pairing them with American families.

Being a "host family" is open to anyone who has the desire to increase understanding and friendship between Americans and Europeans. All American Host requires, Perkins said, is two weeks, a private room for a guest and free time for one or two holidays to introduce the

Billie Jean Wins Pro Net Event

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Billie Jean King captured the $5,000 singles championship of the Indianapolis Women's Professional Tennis Tournament Monday night with a 6-7, 6-2, 6-4 victory over Rosemary Casals.

Several questionable calls clouded the match and neither woman would comment afterward. They are close personal friends and old rivals.

Mrs. King, seeded No. 4, three, noted Sunday, after a disputed call gave her a semifinal victory over Margaret Court, this was the very reason a professional or licensed umpiring system needs to be developed. Several line men were calling the lines loudly and were calling them late.

Mrs. Court defeated Lesley Hunt, 6-3, 6-2, for third place Monday. Mrs. Court played with a swollen finger suffered in the semifinals.

Baseball Players Flood Back to Training Camps

NEW YORK (AP) — So the war, it seems, is finally over. No, not that one. The great conflict of national interest, mainly the one meeting the national pastime, ground to a halt Monday—although it won't be official until at least Wednesday.

That's when Marvin Miller, outspoken executive director of the Major League Baseball Players Association, meets with player representatives of the 24 teams to brief them on the agreement achieved with the club owners.

Miller and the owners' representative, John Gaherin, wouldn't disclose any details of the agreement—although plenty of them leaked out anyway. And it still isn't official. Both the owners and players must ratify it. That, however, appears to be merely a formality.

For even as the announcement of the settlement was being made, players were already flooding into spring training camps to begin getting in shape for the season that will open—on time this year—barely a month away.

The agreement is not only preventing another divisive and costly strike, it is hardly ruffling the spring training schedules. As of now, only four teams—the Boston Red Sox, Detroit Tigers, New York Mets and Minnesota Twins—have called off any pre-season games at all.

Awesome Bruins Worst at Line

LOS ANGELES (AP) — UCLA's basketball grinder, having pulverized 68 foes in a row, again heads The Associated Press college poll but the awesome Bruins are giving Coach John Wooden a more free gray hairs anyway.

Wooden's crew garnered 36 of 38 first place votes for a 70-point lead over second-place North Carolina State. The Bruins are being voted by an average of 23 points per game and are dominating the Pacific-8 Conference in virtually every statistic, except free throw shooting.

This is a lousy free throw shooting team," Wooden said Monday in a rare bit of slang comedy. "This is the worst free throw shooting team I've ever coached, both high school and college."

Wooden said he used two true guards, Tommy Curtis and Greg Lee, in the lineup at the same time last Saturday night against Oregon State while projecting a nine-point lead. "I felt they (Oregon State) were fouling us a lot and I wanted Greg in there because he's our best free throw shooter. And I wanted Tommy in there so we could bring the ball up against their press."

The Bruins are hitting only 62 per cent of their foul shots and are dead last in that category among Pac-8 teams. But at 23-0 for the season, UCLA is still the overwhelming No. 1 choice. North Carolina State received two votes for first place last Saturday night.

Not even I could vote for us. UCLA loses, they are the best," said Sloan. North Carolina State is ineligible for the playoffs this year. Minnesota climbed into third place in the latest poll, followed by Long Beach State, Marquette, Providence, North Carolina, Houston, Maryland, Memphis State, Southwestern Louisiana, Indiana, Missouri, Syracuse, New Mexico, Kansas State, New York, Jacksonville, South Carolina and Purdue.

The Top Twenty, with first-place votes in parentheses, season records and total points tabulated on basis of 20-18-15-12-11-10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1. 1. UCLA (36) 23-0 756. 2. Caro. St. (2) 23-0 688. 3. Cunningham Leads ABA in Thefts

NEW YORK (AP) — Not everybody, it seems, is merely impressed by scoring in pro basketball. Take Billy Cunningham of the Carolina Cougars, for example. Not that Cunningham doesn't put the ball in the hoop. He's done it through the opposition 135 times this season, taking over the lead in steals from the Virginia Squires' Roland Taylor, who has 176.

But scoring is still the name of the game—and the name of the league's two departments, both under the baskets. He's No. 1 in rebounding with 17.9 per game, and tops in blocked shots with 2.2 per game.

Ron Boone of Utah and Billy Keller of Indiana share the lead in steals, each with an average of .67 and Bill Melchioni of New York is the assist leader with 7.3 per game.

Gas Station Zoning

Milton Adams, 34 Cole St., president of the applicant corporation, said the sign was needed near the highway (I-86) because the theater could not be seen from there. ZBA members voted 41 to 12 to deny the application, citing lack of proof of a legal, not financial, hardship. Cagianoello was the dissenter. Unanimously granted front and rear yard variances to Merrill J. Whiston, president of Multi-Circuits, Inc., to allow erection of a 6,000-square foot industrial building at 40 Harrison St. Atty. When you switch on in 1983 will we be ready?

We're working on it today. It's part of our job to keep a watchful eye on growth patterns in the area we serve and to plan at least 10 years ahead to meet them with adequate supplies of electricity.

For example, we're building today to make sure there'll be enough electricity for schools under construction... new hospitals... for the more than 200 thousand additional dwelling units that may be built in the Northeast Utilities service area in the next ten years... for environmental clean-up programs... and for the new jobs our growing population requires.

In the next two years the companies of the Northeast Utilities system will add close to two million kilowatts of electric generating capacity to serve our customers. Our new Northfield Mountain pumped-storage hydroelectric station in Massachusetts and a new oil-fired unit at our Middletown, Connecticut, plant will be completed before the end of this year. A second nuclear unit at our Millstone Nuclear Power Station in Waterford, Connecticut, is scheduled for 1974. Planning for these generating facilities was started years ago in anticipation of requirements that are almost upon us. Today we're continuing to plan ahead, getting ready to serve the next decade's power needs.

While dependable energy supplies are indispensable to this area's well-being, they can't be taken for granted by any of us. It's our responsibility to make sure there'll be enough electricity. But we must all share the responsibility of using America's limited energy supplies wisely.
