Sheinwold on Bridge

FIRST PLAY IS DECISIVE BY ALFRED SHEINWOLD. If you have studied anthropology carefully you know that one of the great differences between Western man and the higher ape is that only man cherishes at the bridge table. (Man behind the Iron Curtain must be excluded from our little study because the Soviet authorities have officially pronounced bridge "socially harmful.")

North dealer North-South vulnerable NORTH ♠ Q J 9 ♥ 9 6 ♦ Q ♣ A K J 5 2 WEST 10 6 5 2 ♠ K 8 7 ♥ Q 10 2 ♦ A 8 7 ♣ Q 10 8 7 SOUTH ♠ A 7 3 ♥ K 10 9 3 ♦ 6 3 ♣ 5 4 3

North dealer North-South vulnerable Opening lead—Two of Spades West opened the deuce of spades, dummy put up the queen, and East covered with the king. South cheered as he took this trick with the ace of spades, but the opponents laughed last.

South led the king of diamonds at the second trick, but West took the ace of diamonds immediately. South could never get back to his hand for any diamond tricks, and the defenders had no trouble in getting five tricks away from the dummy.

Down one, in spite of the three spade tricks.

Keep Ace The correct play is to refuse the first trick. South needs his ace of spades to make sure of getting four diamond tricks.

If East is allowed to win the first spade, he will probably return another spade. Dummy wins the second spade and leads the queen of diamonds. South overtakes with the king of diamonds and is in position to continue the suit until West takes the ace.

After the ace of diamonds has been knocked out, South can get back to his hand with the ace of spades to lead the rest of the diamonds. He thus makes four diamonds, two spades, one heart and two clubs—a safe and sane nine tricks.

Daily Question Dealer, at your right, opens with one diamond. You hold: Spades, Q-J-9; Hearts, A-K-9-6; Diamonds, Q; Clubs, A-K-J-5-2.

Answer: Double. This asks partner to bid his longest suit. A take-out double shows a good hand with support for the unbid suits.

Senior Citizen Vocalist

Mrs. Mary E. Rhodes of 9C Maguire Lane is one of a 40-member senior citizen chorus which will perform in a Senior Citizens benefit show for the Cancer Fund to be presented April 27 at East Catholic High School auditorium.

Mrs. Rhodes, 61 years young, has sung for many years in choral groups and church choirs in her native England and in New Bedford, Mass. She and her husband, Thomas, have lived in Manchester for about 15 years.

The variety show, under the direction of Hector LaGace, will be accompanied by the Senior Citizens own band. Tickets at one dollar per person are available from any member of the show and also at the Senior Citizens Center, 63 Linden St.

By JAY SHARBUTT NEW YORK (AP) - CBS calls it a "mini-cam." NBC calls it a PCP 90. By any name, it's a revolutionary new TV camera that'll quicken the already brisk pace of television news coverage.

It already is in use on scheduled for use in the news departments of the 10 CBS and NBC-owned TV stations in the U.S. And others are watching very carefully to see how it works out.

The camera, like news film cameras, is carried by one man. Like film cameras, it can be plugged into external power sources or run for two hours on a battery pack worn by the cameraman.

But that's where the similarity ends. The new camera can send live transmissions on a small microwave antenna carried on the cameraman's backpack, although these transmissions must be relayed by larger antennas to the television studios. The camera also can record events on videotape, reducing by as much as one-half the time now needed to develop and edit the film currently used by TV news teams on most stories.

The camera was developed at CBS' studios in 1968. CBS then licensed the manufacturing rights to the Philips Broadcasting Equipment Corp.

It first was used in CBS' coverage of the 1968 political convention and on a regular basis in October last year by WCAU-TV, a CBS-owned station in Philadelphia, Pa.

"Everybody knew it was the way to go," says Thomas Miller, president of the CBS division running the network's five TV stations. "The question was, when do you regularly use it?"

"We were just testing it in Philadelphia, but it worked so well we moved the starting date up. We're using it nine months quicker than we anticipated."

NBC began regularly using the camera last December at its company-owned station in Washington, D.C., both NBC and CBS started full-time use of the camera at their stations here on Feb. 23.

Although both networks were aware of the camera's existence in 1968, they delayed putting it into full-time use, partly because they wanted to test it further and partly because they were waiting to see what Japanese and German manufacturers produced. "We've always wanted to use it, but we finally had to bite the bullet... and not wait for these further developments," Miller said.

"THE WAY I HEARD IT"

by John Gruber

I got into a discussion of opera in English the other day and I think it makes a good subject for this column. After all we shall have two opera productions in English pretty soon: Offenbach's "Orpheus in the Underworld," and "Marriage of Figaro" by Mozart. The first will be done by Hart College; the second by Connecticut Opera.

There is much to be said in favor of opera in English in this country, but the disadvantages of such productions more than outweigh the advantages in my opinion. I learned enough French, German, and Italian to enjoy most operas in the original and when I hear them in translation I am always more or less upset.

It isn't only English translations that upset me. "Pagliaccio" in German is utterly ridiculous, while "Zauberflote" in Italian is equally banal. But the Germans and the Italians insist on most productions in the home language rather than the original. (Incidentally, "Pagliaccio" comes out "Bajazzo" in German, just to name a few.)

With the American "star" system predominant, it is virtually impossible to get a performance in English, since the stars don't know their lines in that language. Once in a while they do, but the pronunciation is so bad it is hilarious.

I am reminded of an Italian tenor entrusted with singing the English words, "I cannot sing the Queen, to chaste delights." In actual performance this emerged, "I comb my Queen, to chaste delights." You can get American singers to sing in English but the public will then boycott the production since they want only "the best." Very frequently Americans are at the best, as they demonstrate daily in Europe, but then they only know the roles in European languages.

This gives you some idea of the problems of production in English. The problem of translation is even worse, and has never been satisfactorily solved. When the libretto goes to the composer, he reads it aloud or he may have it read by a professional singer or actress, to get the natural inflection of the words as well as their emphasis.

The he sets his melodic line as he hears it. This is assuming the work is not dodecaphonic, either that or he has no objections to translating dodecaphonic operas; they'll make no sense in any language.

A translator is not only going to have to come up with a translation that expresses the meaning of the original words, he must come up with one in the rhythm of the original and with only one thought or arrangement that emphatic words will land on emphatic notes. This means the translator has to be a musician as well as a poet.

Occasionally this combination occurs but so rarely I can only think of one instance. This was Arrigo Boito who provided Verdi with the libretto to "Otello" and "Falstaff." A poet, a composer in his own right (with at least one opera still performed) and an authority on Shakespeare in the original tongue as well as in Italian, Boito was unique.

These two translations, or rather adaptations, are unique in my experience. Here are two operas in English that would work.

But the American public is generally as much at sea with Shakespearean English as it is with Italian or German. They want their Shakespeare in the form of "Kiss Me Kate" and "The Boys From Syracuse."

There exists still another problem with translations. A

Devaluation Just Openers

The 10 per cent devaluation of the dollar has not ended the latest monetary crisis and given the United States a breathing spell. It does not treat the basic problem, any more than did the 8.75 per cent devaluation in December, 1971.

The basic problem is that this country is sending more dollars overseas in purchases of foreign goods than it is receiving back in the form of purchases of American goods by foreigners, or by foreign investment in U.S. business.

From a small but ominous cloud on the horizon in 1971, the import-export imbalance mushroomed into a deficit of $6.4 billion last year. By comparison, Japan recorded a $9-billion surplus, $4 billion of it accounted for by exports to the United States alone.

The devaluation of the dollar will go far toward wiping out the projected trade imbalance for 1973 by making U.S. products both more attractive abroad and more competitive with foreign imports in this country.

To the extent that it discourages American tourists from traveling and spending abroad, because their dollars no longer go far as in terms of foreign currencies, and to the extent that it encourages foreigners to come here for the opposite reason, this will also help.

Over the longer range, moves charted by the administration to encourage other countries to relax discriminatory barriers against American exports will place us on a more equal competitive footing with them and help insure that we do not have another crisis in another year.

One of these moves is the use of selective tariffs against those trading partners employing the same tactics against us. But this must not be permitted to get out of hand. It could ultimately be disastrous if the growing protectionist sentiment in Congress were to be translated into the kind of economic isolationism which contributed so much to the worldwide depression of the 1930s.

The name of the game is still competition.

Even if the dollar could assume a more realistic relationship with other currencies, and even if all trade barriers are eventually removed, the American worker will still be up against stiff competition—the industrious Japanese, the efficient Germans, all the other countries that are overtaking the technological lead enjoyed by the United States since World War II.

But speaking of technology, there is another cloud on the horizon. This is the rising tide of U.S. imports of Middle East oil.

One forecast is that we may be importing something like $30 billion worth of foreign petroleum by 1980, a figure that makes 1972's trade deficit of $6.4 billion look like peanuts.

The oil-exporting countries are already accumulating vast reserves of dollars, and given the continuing political instability of that part of the world, these reserves could become a powerful lever for mischief.

Not foreign cameras or foreign cars but our unslaking thirst for oil may well constitute the real crisis facing this nation in the years ahead.

Capital Fare

Andrew Tully
Lunacy

WASHINGTON—On matters of national controversy, the professional observer unfortunately cannot avoid exposure to innuendo and even innuendo. Thus I find myself with the distasteful duty of considering the platform of something called the National Committee for Amnesty Now.

It is no good dismissing the NCAN's arguments as unworthy of an eighth-grade debating class. These jokers expect to be taken seriously, and unshakably the country is full of politicians who would take seriously a proposal to add Caligula's policies of sexual bestiality to the Bill of Rights.

NCAN demands broad amnesty—extended alike to draft dodgers, deserters, exiles living abroad, men convicted by courts-martial, those in prison, those awaiting trial and civilians convicted of acts of protest and opposition to the Vietnam War. NCAN is thorough, and that's all I can say about that plank in polite English. (I assume it is unnecessary to add that the plank is quite preposterous; one does not belabor the obvious.)

But NCAN's arguments against forcing draft dodgers and deserters to do alternative national service have just enough sly sophistry to require substantial comment.

The organization declares that imposition of alternative service would imply "two fallacious assumptions: first, that recipients of amnesty shirked some legitimate duty to contribute to the war effort, and second, that the avoiding this duty they enjoyed some unfair personal advantage."

much guts it takes to cop out on military service, but I do know that underground life or exile obviously was preferred by the deserter. I refuse to suppose they chose a Greenwich Village basement or a hostel in Sweden to accommodate a fetish for self-flagellation.

Barbour is opposed to alternative service on grounds he says "should be obvious to anyone who has judged the war immoral. How can a citizen have a legitimate duty to support an immoral war?" You're talking mush, Barbour. There is not a syllable in the Constitution suggesting that a citizen may choose the wars he wants to fight. Anyway, to flog another dead horse, any youth who objects to killing people as a government job can opt for noncombat duty in either military or public service.

I very much fear the amnesty-for-everybody crowd is growing hysterical, perhaps because of the pressure from the Hate-Nixon wing and the whimperings of little boys who have found Canada something less than Utopian. Barbour even demands that amnesty should be automatic, without any case-by-case examination. God save the Republic. I'll welcome back the lost little boys if they agree to serve a couple of years sweeping our littered streets, but spare my household the vicious creeps who have been convicted in Sweden, Canada and other foreign countries of murder, rape, robbery and dope pushing.

We're already overfed with that brand of freedom-loving Americans.

I don't know how many of these young Democrats to plan ahead and take part in the upcoming "Young Democrats" organizational meeting set for March 7 at 8 p.m. at the Municipal Building.

The Democratic Party has lately been in a precarious condition and it is time to pull together as one unified team, to once again gain the confidence and support of the American people. Only in this way will the needed legislation, passed throughout government, again be for the benefit of the "average" American.

This is the challenge that lies ahead for all Democrats, young and old, and there is no better place to begin than on the local level. It has been stated that Manchester stands as a predominantly Democratic town and it may become one task for the Young Dems to help retain that hold through the local elections this November.

Our party cannot grow and prosper with apathy so join the Young Democrats and give the greatest amount of time you can. While you actively support your party, let's win together.

The Mysterious Mr. Connally

Rowland Evans and Robert Novak

WASHINGTON—The international oil cartel, seeking to perpetuate its monopoly in Saudi Arabia, fears that John B. Connally may translate his intimacy with President Nixon into concessions for Occidental Petroleum Co.
Although Occidental denies an official connection with Connally, big oil operatives and government officials here are convinced he was seeking concessions for Occidental last December when he met King Faisal in Saudi Arabia. Indeed, it seems hardly coincidental that Connally and Dr. Armand Hammer, Occidental's chairman, were in Saudi Arabia together. The oil cartel fears Faisal might confuse John Connally, emissary for President Nixon, with John Connally, agent for Dr. Hammer.

This typifies Connally's ambivalent status while circling the globe since Mr. Nixon's reelection. Although associates hint that he is deeply interested in private business, there is no doubt he is deeply interested in private business.

The private business in Saudi Arabia concerns the impending rise in crude oil production there. The cartel—specifically Aramco (including Texaco, Exxon, Standard Oil (Calif.) and Mobil)—wants to keep its monopoly. Occidental, with present production mostly in Libya, wants to break in.

Connally "was not there on Occidental business," an Occidental spokesman told us, "some legitimate duty." In this context, legitimate means legal, and there are laws legally enacted by Congress subjecting males to the military draft and providing penalties for both draft evasion and desertion.

The offenders did not merely defy Lyndon Johnson or Richard Nixon; they defied laws of the land which are just as legal and binding as the Bill of Rights. Under law, they were charged with performing a duty if called upon by a freely elected President and Congress. It is true that during the Vietnam War selective service was unfair in that it exempted college students and thus discriminated against the poor, mostly black and brown. But inequity in a law does not permit violation thereof, or most of us would refuse to pay income taxes.

NCAN's rejection of the fact that the draft dodger and deserter enjoyed unfair personal advantage is flimflammy. Of course they did, as anyone who has ever eaten military food can attest. They also avoided getting killed in some Vietnamese rice paddy, which to me constitutes a rather big personal advantage.

NCAN's legislative representative, George P. Barbour Jr., asked the Washington Star-News "how can it be said that one who has had the courage to face imprisonment, shirked some legitimate duty to contribute to the war effort, and second, that the avoiding emphatically he was on Occidental business, not on any special mission.

Connally's Houston law firm represents both Fernian Corp., an Occidental subsidiary, and El Paso Natural Gas Co., Occidental's partner in seeking Soviet oil concessions. Connally remains close to ex-LBJ aide Marvin Watson, Occidental's executive vice president for corporate affairs.

Democrat Riegle
House minority leader Gerald Ford tried three times last week—without apparent success—to dissuade his fellow Michigan Republican, Republican vice president Richard Nixon, from becoming a Democrat.

That reflects surprising dismay high in the Republican establishment over Riegle's conversion. Some low-level Republicans in the House and back in Michigan say good riddance to a troublesome maverick.

But Michigan party officials regard Riegle as the best Republican bet for the Senate in 1976. Although the White House was delighted by last year's defection of New York's Rep. Ogden Reid, presidential aides regretfully regard Riegle as a tough, yet political, corner. Ford, personally fond of Riegle, abhors a shrunken ideological spectrum forcing liberals out of the party.

Consequently, Ford met twice with Riegle here, 45 minutes in the morning and another 45 minutes in the afternoon, followed by a telephone conversation. Ford argued that he would detest the tightening House Democratic discipline, that ideologically he is still a Republican.

But Riegle feels more at home ideologically as a Democrat, his 1972 liberal rating of 94 per cent by the Americans for Democratic Action ranking higher than any Michigan Democrat. His criticism of Mr. Nixon now transcends the war, extending to all policy areas.

A footnote: Ford correctly organized into a court of impeachment to decide on charges against President Andrew Johnson.
In 1877, the 19th U.S. president, Rutherford B. Hayes was inaugurated.
In 1963, Soviet Premier Joseph Stalin died in Moscow after 29 years of power.

Ten years ago: Striking coal miners in France defied a government order to return to work.
Five years ago: Richard M. Nixon, campaigning in the New Hampshire primary, pledged that a Republican administration would end the war in Vietnam.

Firemen's Ball: 'Best Yet'

JUDITH DONOHUE
Correspondent
Tel. 646-8460
More than 300 persons jammed Flano's ballroom Saturday for the annual Firemen's Ball, described by many as "the best yet." The affair, sponsored by the Bolton Volunteer Fire Department, is always the highlight of Bolton's social season, a night where eight meals left and young men and women of pure fun and good food.
As in past years, the politicians were out in force, and while town chairmen exchanged good-natured banter on the merits of their respective candidates and platforms, many of the candidates for the spring election could be found on the dance floor.
Regardless of any ideological differences they might have, Republican First Selectman Richard Morris and his Democratic opponent Virginia Butterfield appeared to be very much in step as they whirled around the floor to the strains of "Beer Barrel Polka."
Sam Kimball's orchestra entertained into the wee hours offering a fare varying from old standards like "I Don't Know Why I Love You Like I Do" to current favorites like "Jeremiah Was A Bullfrog." The female band members also entertained as vocalists and were very enthusiastically received by the audience. And contrary to many bands these days, the group took only two short breaks and played well beyond their scheduled finish time.

Even in these days of increased leisure and recreation, when country club dances and large suburban parties, abound, the small-town Firemen's Ball lives on and, hopefully, will become an institution, at least in this small town.
School Menu
Tuesday: American lasagna, battered green beans, jello with topping.
Wednesday: Chicken pie over biscuits, tossed salad, choice of pudding.

Town Seeks Zone Change

The only item on tonight's public hearing agenda of the Manchester, Planning and Zoning Commission (PZC) is a request by the Town of Manchester for a zone change on two parcels off Tolland Tpk.

The town, which owns the land, is seeking a zone change from Residence AA to Business 2 Zone for a 1.35-acre parcel, and a change from Rural Residence to Industrial Zone for a 3.5-acre parcel.

The smaller lot has 264 feet of frontage on Tolland Tpk. and is 135 feet east of the Howard Johnson Restaurant. The larger lot is at the rear of the smaller piece of land.

The land is leased by the town to Allied Building Systems Inc. for the open storage of concrete building sections. The town has been required to seek variances from the Zoning Board of Appeals annually to allow the use.

Town Manager Robert Weiss said the town is now asking for a zone change to avoid the need for annual variances. Land on either side of the town property is already zoned for business, Weiss said.

One of the items on tonight's PZC business meeting agenda is a zone change request by First Hartford Realty Corp., from Rural Residence to Residence A Zone, on a 24.7-acre parcel with frontage on Lydall St. and Greenwood Dr.

The request was the subject of a Public Hearing Feb. 5, and the PZC had tabled action on the zone change.

Tonight's public hearing is scheduled to start at 7:30 in the Municipal Building Hearing Room.

Vernon Rotary Picks Two Citizens of the Year

Rockville Rotary Club shattered its 16-year tradition Saturday night by naming two 'Citizens of the Year' instead of its usual one.

Clad at the club's annual awards banquet were Mrs. Helen Abuzo for community service, and Lenzy R. Wallace of Ellington for initiating a successful music facility building project at Ellington High School.

Kenneth E. Waldron, Rotary vice president and 1971 'Citizen of the Year,' presented the awards. He said, "We cannot overlook two people who have made a tremendous contribution to our community." Mrs. Abuzo, he said, has worked from 8 a.m. to 11 a.m. as a public service, sometimes chairing three community meetings in one day.

As head of the Hocknum Valley Community Council, she has been active in planning its child day care center and community services center as well as organizing its Mental Health Committee. She also has successfully sought funds and community support for these projects, according to Waldron.

Lenzy Wallace, a former conductor of the Vernon Middle School Band, is director of music for the Ellington school system.

When Ellington lost a proposed new high school in a 1971 referendum, Waldron said, Wallace initiated and organized "do it yourself" community effort to raise a new music facility.

As the result of his efforts, the Ellington Music Boosters Committee was formed and a successful fund drive was started.

Town officials and the State Department of Education were contacted to aid in the building of an $84,000 facility. The state would pay half the cost, and the John T. McKnight Endowment Fund agreed to contribute $20,000. The remaining $24,000 was to be the work of Wallace and the Boosters Committee.

Last June, a town meeting passed plans for the building, and ground breaking took place in August. The dedication of the new nearly completed addition is planned for April 1.

In accepting the plaques and citations, Mrs. Abuzo and Wallace, both said that they couldn't have done what they did without the help of many people.

Rotary presented each of the recipients with a check for $50 to use for their organizations.

The banquet room of the Country Squire Restaurant in Ellington was filled to capacity with Rotarians, their wives and guests. Johnny Duke, a professional fighter and organizer and director of the Believe Square Boys Club in Hartford, spoke of his efforts in founding the club, which now has more than 500 members, and his boxing programs.

Students in the art project have constructed a maze from discarded cardboard boxes. The walls of the maze are covered with various objects of different sizes, shapes, textures and compositions; such as, hair curlers, egg cartons, foam rubber, etc. Students are blindfolded and then proceed through the maze using the sense of touch alone.

Students who have encountered the maze describe it as a "game-bogging" experience. The Wadsworth Athenaeum in Hartford had a similar tactile gallery on a much larger scale.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Parents who smoke can cause acute lower-respiratory conditions in their children, according to the Environmental Protection Agency.

That is one conclusion in scientific studies released Friday which link air pollution with increases in respiratory and heart ailments.

Exhaled cigarette smoke endangers even the health of non-smokers, the studies found. They also found cigarette smoking to be even more damaging than pollution.

The EPA investigators suggested new air-pollution limits may be necessary.

Other conclusions contained in the studies included: — Chronic bronchitis, "a

Look at your HOME as MONEY...

If you own your own home, you probably have a lot more money than you realize . . . money you can start using right now.

FOR EXAMPLE: If you bought your home 10 years ago for $25,000.00 and made a $5,000.00 down payment, you have probably since paid off about $4,300.00 of the principal. Rising property values estimated at as much as 5% a year, will have added about $12,500.00 to its value also. Any home improvements you may have made have also increased your value.

YOU CAN BORROW AGAINST THIS CASH EQUITY!

At S.B.M. there are 3 WAYS to Use Your HOME to GET the CASH You Need:

- RE-FINANCE Your MORTGAGE . . . If you have a S.B.M. mortgage, you may be able to keep the same low rate. You may be able to avail yourself of the "open-end" provision which we write into your mortgage. If you do not have your mortgage with S.B.M., you will still pay only a low 7 1/2% annual percentage rate . . . not 18% or even 12% as on many loans. In either case, you may be able to reduce your monthly payments and spread them over a longer period of time — perhaps as long as 30 years.
- EQUITY LOANS . . . You may borrow up to $5,000.00 on a shorter term basis — for as long as 5 years — against the cash equity in your home. This money will be immediately available to you for any worthwhile purpose . . . to buy a new car . . . pay college expenses . . . take a well-earned vacation . . . or make any dream come true!
- HOME IMPROVEMENT LOANS . . . We can now make Home Improvement Loans up to $10,000.00 for up to 10 years. You can now side your home, install a swimming pool, add a room, build a garage or do anything to make your home more liveable.

Convenient Oven Meals For Busy Days At Home

STORERS-Pop a meal in the oven and liberate yourself from the kitchen for about an hour. Once in the oven, the meal cooks all by itself. An oven meal, perfect for a busy day, is usually made up of several dishes baked at the same temperature for about the same length of time—a main dish, one or more vegetables and perhaps a dessert. Because an oven meal includes several soft baked foods, try to serve fresh fruit or vegetables in some form, suggests Janina Czajkowski, Extension nutritionist at the University of Connecticut. A crisp salad, a plate of raw vegetable relishes or a fresh fruit dessert would add crunchiness as well as vitamins and minerals to your meal, she explains. These could be prepared in advance and refrigerated until mealtime. When planning an oven meal, decide first on your main dish and then choose vegetables and dessert that will cook at the same temperature for about the same length of time. Use your own favorite recipes for preparing main dishes and vegetables, or try this quick and easy-to-prepare cheeseburger loaf served with baked carrots with onions. For dessert, your favorite baked fruit dessert or rice pudding could be cooked in the same oven with the cheeseburger loaf and vegetables.

Guidelines Set For School Trips

HOLLY GANTNER Correspondent
Tel. 742-8795

The Board of Education has adopted a set of guidelines concerning field trips, teachers on such trips "are a recognized part of school curricula and as such are to be encouraged within budget limitations."

Under the new guidelines, field trips under the auspices of the Coventry school system must be curriculum or school activity oriented. Excluding student-paid trips, teachers must submit proposed plans for their yearly field trips as part of their budget requests for the following year. During the school year, substitutions can be made in trip schedules as long as they fall within budgeted amounts.

The number of field trips approved will be based on budgetary considerations. Distribution of trips among grade levels will be determined by the number of teacher requests made for given grade levels, and curriculum and student needs. Existing field trips should be given first consideration.

All school related trips must have the prior approval of the building principal, and details of the trip, including scheduling, permissions, transportation, expense and other matters, must be planned in conjunction with the building principal.

Itineraries must then be submitted by the teachers to the principals for approval. Once approved, the case of each trip, similar itineraries must be given to the parents of the students involved. In order to participate in any field trip, students must have permission slips signed by their parents. The teacher or teachers will charge of a field trip may at any time up to the moment of departure have the authority to remove any student from participation in the trip. This removal would be based on lack of cooperation by the student. Sufficient chaperones should accompany all trips to accommodate emergency situations. Whenever feasible, long distance trips will be scheduled to depart as early in the day as possible to keep such trips within a one-day duration.

Overnight, vacation period, and weekend field trips cannot be the responsibility of the school system. Every effort, however, should be made to insure that students from all socio-economic levels have the opportunity to participate in such trips.

All overnight trips involving male and female students will include male and female chaperones.

In situations where total class populations are not participating in planned trips, student selection should be based on value to the individual, academic effort, attitude and cooperation, citizenship and self-discipline, not necessarily listed in order of importance.

The professional judgment of staff members, based on these criteria, will be the final factor in determining student selection for field trips.

Firms Urged To Combat Alcoholism

DARIEN (AP) - Some Connecticut businessmen were urged recently to set up written policies concerning alcoholism in their companies because "it's economically justified."

Ross A. Von Wiegand, director of Labor Management Services for the National Council on Alcoholism, told a luncheon group here that American business losses between $6 billion and $8 billion annually because of workers suffering from alcoholism. Each of the more than 4.5 million alcoholics in the U.S. work force costs companies at least $2,500 per year in increased absenteeism and reduced on-the-job productivity, he said.

He said much of the alcoholism existing in companies can go unmonitored for long periods because most businessmen recognize only the latter stages of the disease.

Companies should form a committee "to talk out procedures and develop policies on alcoholism" for their firms, Von Wiegand said.

"I'm not telling you to do this for social or humanitarian reasons," he added. "I'm telling you to do this because it's economically justified."

He urged supervisors to speed up their choice of one of the brand new 1973 beauties shown above. It's your choice of one of these snappy, convenient compacts. ## Added Levies To Produce Surplus in Rham Budget

With the help of additional levies on the three district levies and without any major, unforeseen expenses cropping up, the Regional District 8 Board of Education anticipates a surplus of $7,148.64 in this year's operating budget.

The towns of Hebron, Andover and Marlborough have already been requested to come up with an additional $12,015 between them to cover added levies as a result of the teacher's agreement and contract signed last December.

Acceptance of the agreement at a district meeting held in December, prior to the signing, automatically authorized the board to place the additional levy on the towns.

In projecting the surplus, the superintendent of schools, David Cattanch, explained to the board at a recent meeting that even though deficits in the budget (approximately $25,000) exceed surpluses (approximately $20,000) the added levy has overcome the deficits.

Deficits
Dr. Cattanch pointed out the following deficits: $887.39, principal's salary; $4,307.37, vice-principals salary; $1,000, substitutes salaries; $2,556, guidance department salaries; nurse, $346; gas, $200; telephone, $1,000; contracted services, $4,189.80; other expenses, $1,569.23; and insurance, $6,359.23.

Surplus
Surplus items listed by Dr. Cattanch were: $1,000, in-service; $1,000, Board of Education; $1,000, Board of Education.

Learning Disabilities
The board has been approached by members of the organizational committee for a regional chapter of the Connecticut Association for Children with Perceptual Learning Disabilities to develop a learning disabilities program for senior high school students as well as to further develop the existing junior high school program.

In a letter to the board, read at last week's meeting, the committee urges the board to seek out, identify, diagnose and plan appropriate programs for these children.

Watershed Protection Tests Set

HARTFORD (AP) — Three state agencies are experimenting in reducing the amount of sodium chloride used in snow and ice removal operations on highways watered within 20 reservoir watershed areas.

Gov. Thomas A. Messill said today.

Messill said the test project calls for testing up to 50 per cent less sodium chloride for snow and ice removal on about 70 miles of selected highways during the remainder of the winter.

The project is being conducted jointly by the departments of health, transportation and environmental protection.

Recently, a Health Department official expressed concern about increased use of the sodium chloride content of several public water supplies.

Messill said the study would determine whether to use the new mixture as a standard maintenance procedure within watershed areas.

DEP Unveils

The GE report divides the state into 23 "waste sheds," each with a separation plant to receive and sort out natural resources from combustible waste brought in from regional towns.

In Manchester, as in most of the other 22 communities, the separate plant would be constructed on existing solid waste sites — in Manchester in the vicinity of the Olcott St. Disposal Area, in other towns at incinerator landfills.

Trash sorted out at the separation plants, the GE report states, would be shipped to one of them. The other four would be in Waterbury, Wallingford, Danbury and Berarsh.

The five "pyrolysis" plants would process the combustibles into fuel for electric company boilers. The "pyrolysis" process, already available, involves cooking garbage in the absence of oxygen.

The report, which projects a total statewide solid waste system by the year 2000, says that, "continuation of the present burn and bury (incineration and landfill) means continuation of air and water pollution." It states that the $200 million it estimates for the first phase of the system compares favorably with the $40 million it would cost for new incinerators and landfills during the same 12 years.

The DEP report sent to legislators estimates an annual disposal of 2,700,000 tons of combustibles in the state by 1979, to 3,160,000 tons by 1985, and 4,700,000 tons by 2000.

The GE proposal also proposes the separation of newspaper and corrugated cardboard by recycling. The estimate is for 240,000 tons of newspaper and 120,000 tons of corrugated cardboard by 1979, and 490,000 tons of newspaper and 240,000 tons of cardboard by 2000.

On the basis of predictable materials coming out of the separation plants, already has mailed "Expression of interest" applications to hundreds of firms, in an effort to interest manufacturing plants and secondary material handlers to bid for the right to buy the separated recyclable waste.

The Connecticut solid waste system, if it becomes a reality,

Laurel Lake

MANCHESTER, CONN., TUESDAY, MARCH 6, 1973 — VOL. XXII, No. 131

A Herald Background Report

SOL R. COHEN (Herald Reporter)

When Manchester voters go to the polls March 6, they will consider a proposal that dates back to November 1967 — town use of Laurel Lake for dumping garbage and refuse.

The March 13 referendum is on a proposed $1,391,000 appropriation — $449,500 for purchasing the 10-acre Laurel Lake, and $941,500 for renovating the sanitary landfill area.

At a Nov. 14, 1967 Board of Directors meeting, Town Manager Robert Weiss was sharply criticized for not keeping the board informed of plans to drain Laurel Lake, of an application for a zoning change in the area, and of town operations in dumping garbage and refuse there — against zoning regulations.

An informal meeting of the Planning and Zoning Commission on Jan. 9, 1968, rejected Robert C. Dennis, who with his brother, Dennis C. Dennis owns Laurel Lake, revealed the lake was being drained of its water, and under an agreement with the town, was to be filled with garbage and refuse.

He said that, because the lake was in Rural Residence Zone and because the town's zoning laws forbid dumping garbage and refuse there, he and his brother were applying for a change to Industrial Zone.

He said that, under the agreement with the town, Laurel Lake would be filled to the level of surrounding property. The town, he said, would get 7 to 10 years later on the ground of the sanitary landfill area.

What set the directors off in their criticism of Weiss was a remark by Dennis that the town already was dumping garbage and refuse on about 300 feet of Dennison property to a

New Haven Teachers Out on Strike

NEW HAVEN (AP) — The Board of Education obtained a temporary restraining order today against the city's public school teachers in the first day of a strike centering on contract disagreements.

The temporary injunction was issued by Superior Court Judge Norman M. Dube.

The teachers' union said the strike was not immediately known. All of the city's schools remained open to the 2,400 pupils but teacher absenteeism varied from school to school.

Slightly more than half of the system's 1,340 teachers voted Monday to stay off the job until contract agreement is reached with the school board.

Former Manchester Man On POW Medical Team

JOHN A. JOHNSTON (Herald Reporter)

A former Manchester pediatrician for six years and now a trainee at the U.S. Naval Aerospace Medicine Institute in Pensacola, Fla. is part of the team receiving POW's at Clark Air Base in the Philippines and returning them to stateside bases.

In a letter, dated last Wednesday, Dr. and Mrs. Frank Horton of 63 Princeton St., Cedar Hill, Conn., wrote that his group had been forewarned early in February they might be needed to identify recently expect to be called.

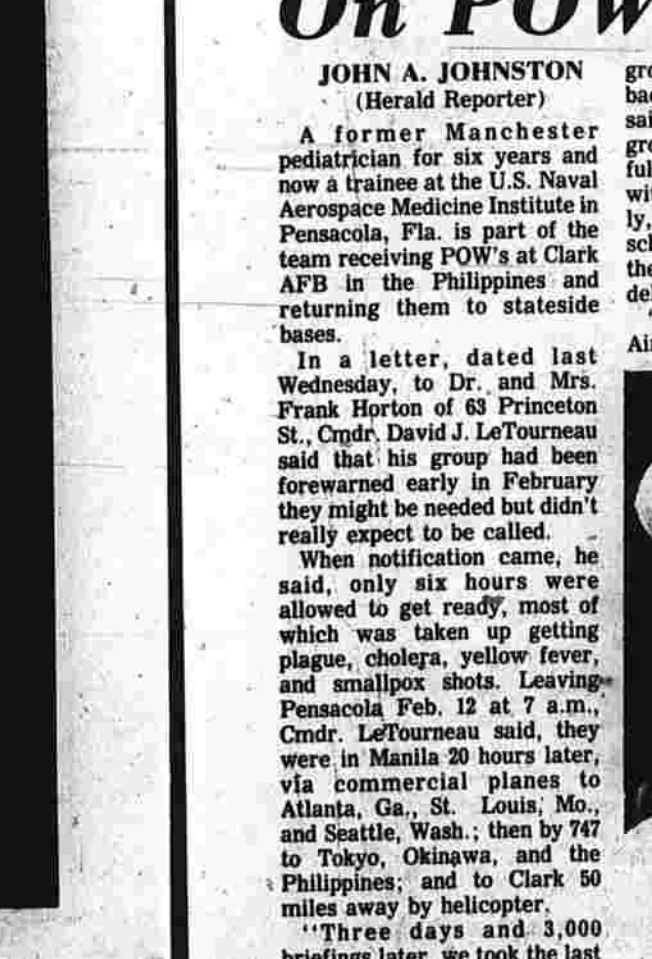

When notification came, he said, only six hours were allowed to get ready, most of which was taken up getting plaques, cholera, yellow fever, and smaller shots. Leaving Pensacola Feb. 12 at 7 a.m., Cmdr. LeTourneau said, they were in Manila 20 hours later, via commercial planes to Atlanta, Ga., St. Louis, Mo., and Seattle, Wash., then by 74 to Tokyo, Okinawa, and the Philippines; and to Clark 60 miles away by helicopter.

divided into teams of two, and each assigned a flight by rotation, first to the North (Hanoi), then to Saigon, then back to Conson a few days later, after which they would be checked more thoroughly by the hospital staff at Clark (with up-coordinating all the tests performed on them).

"This next pick involves eight airplanes: Three to go directly to Hanoi, one to orbit over Ha Nam in case one of the birds on the ground has maintenance difficulties, and another on the ground at Da Nang. (I'm scheduled for plane No. 3, this time, but should move up to the No. 1 spot on the third pick-up, should that ever occur as scheduled); the other three would be used to pick up the actual pick-up, and one spare.

"One of the next group to be picked up apparently has myocardial ischemia from what we can gather from some of the earlier returns; so we have a cardiologist, a neurologist, the regular team of two; they've been scrambling around getting equipment for monitoring and defibrillating

Func Cuts To Cities Face Senate Test

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., said today he will sponsor legislation to speed the return of the nation's cities from a retreat on domestic problems.

Humphrey told a joint meeting of the National League of Cities and the U.S. Conference of Mayors he will introduce his resolution in the Senate later today.

"It will say what the President's assumption that in a time of peace we actually need a bigger and higher military budget," Humphrey told the 1,400 municipal leaders that he wanted to prevent "an era of

Tax Changes Given Solons

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Association of Manufacturers today called for municipal officials to be important to business and, in some cases, liberalizing them.

"We do note that much of the hysteria that arose over the tax-reform issue last year appears to have disappeared," E.A. Vaughn said in testimony prepared for the House Ways and Means Committee.

County and Municipal Employees.

"The taxpayer revolt is for real and it cannot be put off by rhetoric," Wurf said in his prepared testimony.

Faughn recommended that the 7-per-cent credit for investment in productive facilities be retained, along with accelerated depreciation. The allowable write-offs should be increased over time, he added.

Wurf also called for restoring the oil- and other mineral-depletion allowances that were reduced in 1969, retaining the present treatment of income tax on foreign subsidiaries and easing the corporate surtax by raising the exemption to $1 million.

Wounded Knee Parleys Continue

WOUNDED KNEE, S.D. (AP) — Federal officials are hopeful that peace talks can be agreed upon today with Indians who are demanding a $2 million settlement for the deaths of 260 Indians.

Wurf recommended restructuring the payroll tax that finances Social Security by making it resemble more closely the income tax, with progressive rates, or alternatively providing exemption for dependents.

He advocated repeal of the investment credit and deferral of tax on income of foreign subsidiaries.

Personal tax deductions, he said, should be restored to the level of 1962, with a 20 percent increase in the amount of the deduction for interest on home mortgages.

Wurf also said the federal government should use its leverage to encourage states to reform their tax systems: "States benefiting from revenue sharing should be encouraged to pass graduated, progressive income taxes, standard progressive property taxes and a system of tax credits for food."

Aid To Hanoi Hinges On Cease-Fire

WASHINGTON (AP) — Before the United States provides aid to North Vietnam, Secretary of Defense Elliot L. Richardson says, there must be a real cease-fire in force in South Vietnam.

He said $2.9 billion earmarked in the defense budget for Southeast Asia could be tapped for reconstruction aid to Hanoi, but only in direct proportion to the reduction of hostilities.

"If there isn't a peace to be strengthened and to be preserved, we can't very well begin the work of reconstruction," Richardson said at a news conference Tuesday.

Richardson said the $2.9 billion "allows for some relatively low level of continuing hostilities and a resupply of South Vietnamese and Laotian forces that this would necessitate."

But as the fighting decreased, more money becomes available for reconstruction aid, he said. Congressional critics have said they fear aid to Hanoi might come from domestic program budgets, a possibility President Nixon has ruled out. There have also been fears that funds would come from other sources if Congress disapproved.

However, Mayor John Driggs of Phoenix said the group was told that any help would have to come within a self-imposed spending ceiling. Nixon already is holding back some $14 billion to stay within a self-imposed $52 billion ceiling for fiscal 1974.

And Los Angeles Councilman Thomas Bradley said he was given similar assurances in an earlier meeting with Kenneth Cole, director of Nixon's Domestic Council.

"We are not getting any information that at least some money is available," Bradley said, "and if we are able to convince them that there will be this kind of impact and the money is needed, they would try to find some money to help us out."

State Veterans Hospital Loses Its Accreditation

ROCKY HILL (AP) — Accreditation of the state Veterans Home and Hospital has lost its national accreditation from the Chicago-based Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals, Commandant Robert J. Beckwith said today.

"As of this date we're unaccredited," Beckwith said. He added that the loss of accreditation will remain in effect until the faults found by the commission are corrected.

No deadline has been set for the corrective measures, he said, "but I imagine it's to be as soon as possible. It hurts our pride more than anything."

"I just can't buy nurses," he said, noting that there is an immediate need for 15 registered nurses at the hospital.

"Our agency has the funds, but we're unable to do so," the commandant said.

He blamed the turnabout in the commission's action on tightened regulations issued last July. "They're going by the book," Beckwith said.

The bid is out for the sprinkler system and work is to begin on it next month, Beckwith said.

Killian Bus Plan Tagged 'Rehash'

HARTFORD (AP)—A bus subsidy proposal by Attorney Gen. Robert K. Killian was described Monday by Deputy Transportation Commissioner F. Colin Pease in a "rehash of ideas and proposals already put forth in the course of negotiations."

Killian had proposed earlier Monday in a Bridgeport address that money from the state's Public Service Tax Fund be used to finance "essential" bus service in the state. Local money would be used for additional service, Pease said.

The use of the Public Service Tax Fund for bus subsidies has long been advocated by some Democrats, though Killian added the distinction between the essential and additional service.

Pease said in a statement that Killian's proposal is "a rehash of ideas and proposals already put forth in the course of negotiations."

Killian also said that any state money for bus subsidies should be used to finance "essential" bus service in the state. Local money would be used for additional service, Pease said.

PARIS (AP) — France nearly had a second airliner collision Monday, the Swedish news agency reported today as a pair of Spanish airlines collided in flight over the Atlantic.

The two Spanish airlines collided about 260 miles southwest of Abbeville, near the coast below Nantes. The other, a Conair Coronado flown by the Spanair charter line, landed safely although a part of a wing was knocked off. It had 108 persons aboard.

Killian Bus Plan Tagged 'Rehash'

HARTFORD (AP)—A bus subsidy proposal by Attorney Gen. Robert K. Killian was described Monday by Deputy Transportation Commissioner F. Colin Pease in a "rehash of ideas and proposals already put forth in the course of negotiations."

Killian had proposed earlier Monday in a Bridgeport address that money from the state's Public Service Tax Fund be used to finance "essential" bus service in the state. Local money would be used for additional service, Pease said.

The use of the Public Service Tax Fund for bus subsidies has long been advocated by some Democrats, though Killian added the distinction between the essential and additional service.

Pease said in a statement that Killian's proposal is "a rehash of ideas and proposals already put forth in the course of negotiations."

Killian also said that any state money for bus subsidies should be used to finance "essential" bus service in the state. Local money would be used for additional service, Pease said.

PARIS (AP) — France nearly had a second airliner collision Monday, the Swedish news agency reported today as a pair of Spanish airlines collided in flight over the Atlantic.

The two Spanish airlines collided about 260 miles southwest of Abbeville, near the coast below Nantes. One of the planes, an Iberia Airliner DC9, broke up in the air and all 89 persons aboard were killed. The other, a Conair Coronado flown by the Spanair charter line, landed safely although a part of a wing was knocked off. It had 108 persons aboard.
