Abortion Controls Requested

NEW HAVEN (AP) — Connecticut should be prepared with adequate controls over abortions when the curative legal cloud over the issue lifts, the Connecticut State Medical Society says.

The society said Friday it had recommended a series of safeguards to the General Assembly including the requirement that all abortions be performed by licensed physicians and that consultation precede any abortion coming after the 20th week of pregnancy.

Friends may call at the funeral home Sunday from 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p.m. The family suggests that any memorial contributions may be made to the American Cancer Society.

Albert Johnson
SOUTH WINDSOR — Albert Johnson, 84, of 30 Henry St., died Friday at a Manchester convalescent home. He was the husband of Mrs. Elizabeth Carlson Johnson.

Mr. Johnson was born July 14, 1888 in Brookfield. Before his retirement, he was employed as a foreman for a South Windsor tobacco firm. He was a member of the Good Shepherd Lodge of Odd Fellows in New Milford.

Funeral services will be Monday at 11 a.m. at Holmes Funeral Home, 409 Main St., Manchester. Burial will be in West Cemetery, Manchester. There are no calling hours.

Selectmen Ask Smaller Budget

ANNE EMT
Correspondent
Tel. 828-5971
The Board of Selectmen has submitted budget requests to the Board of Finance totaling approximately $14,282,200.

The decrease is reflected in the annual outlay account where this year $49,750 was appropriated to cover major projects such as a bulldozer, a snowplow and back hoe, and a truck.

Requests for 1973-74 amount to $14,282,200 if the selectmen recommend the town take from the $2,500 the town has received from revenue sharing funds.

Other than salaries and office expenses for the selectmen, their requests include probate court, elections, town hall, advertising, town office building, secretary, cemeteries, highways, snow removal, street lights, town aid roads, employe benefits, town garage, charities, disposal area and capital outlay.

Of all of these, the only account showing a substantial increase is the employe benefit account over which the town has no control. Budget requests

With the two hearings held this week on all budget requests, the Finance Board will meet and recommend cuts if necessary. Then all requests will again be brought before the Board of Selectmen at the formal budget hearing.

'The Music... and Comes Out Here'

Kim West and Richard Marshall, 7th grade students at Bennet Junior High School, listen to Michael Thompson as he explains the sound-making apparatus of his French horn. The question and instruction period followed one of two concerts presented yesterday morning at Bennet by a brass quintet from the Hartford Symphony Orchestra. Their appearance, as part of the Hartford Symphony Education Program, was made possible by a grant from the Manchester Fine Arts Council. Members of the quintet are: Ronald Kutik, leader, trombone; Robert Meyers, narrator; Thompson, French horn; Ronald Apperson, tuba; and Roger Murtha, trumpet. (Herald photo by Ofara)

Impasse Continues

WOUNDED KNEE, S.D. (AP) — In the wake of another outbreak of gunfire, attorney general Robert F. Kennedy said today that the status of Connecticut's anti-abortion law remains uncertain as a result of recent U.S. Supreme Court action.

The high court, after ruling that the federal law is unconstitutional, directed a lower federal court to reconsider Connecticut's law in light of its ruling. The lower court had ruled the Connecticut law unconstitutional.

Vernon Police

Two East Hartford men, charged with third-degree larceny (four counts), fourth-degree larceny and third-degree burglary (two counts) have been returned to local authorities, Vernon police said today.

Reel Turcotte, 23, formerly of Woodland Circle, East Hartford and Joseph Petrello, 19, formerly of 11 Sherman Ave., East Hartford were arrested Friday. Charges against the men are in connection with alleged breaks at the Italian Social Club, Snipic St., Rockville and Manchester Plymouth, Rt. 53, Vernon. Police say that tools and money were taken in the Sept. 29 and Nov. 12 breaks.

Turcotte was picked up in Los Angeles, Calif. where he had been held for Connecticut authorities. Petrello was extradited from Chandler, Ariz. Both men waived extradition. They are being held in lieu of $20,000 surety bonds and are to be presented in Circuit Court 12 at Manchester Monday.

Michael F. Williams, 21, of 23 Village St., Rockville was charged Friday night with intoxication, breach of peace and resisting arrest in connection with a disturbance on Village St. His brother James A. Williams, no age given, of the same address was charged with interfering with a police officer in connection with the same incident, police said.

Michael was released on a $50 non-surety bond and James on a $50 non-surety bond. Court date is April 3.

Police Report

Ronald A. West, 16, of East Hartford was charged with fourth-degree larceny (shoplifting) at K Mart Department Store on Spencer St. Friday night. Court date is April 2.

Michael J. LaCroix, 16, of East Hartford, was charged Friday on a Circuit Court 12 arrest warrant with third-degree larceny in connection with the recent theft of a tape player from K Mart Department Store, Spencer St. Court date is March 26.

Monetary Crisis Eased By Float

BRUSSELS (AP) — Six of the Common Market nations agreed early today to a joint, partial float against the dollar, maintaining a schedule of exchange rates among each other but ending obligatory purchases of the dollar to support it.

The other three member nations — Britain, Ireland and Italy — are already floating their currencies against all others. They said they would join the joint float as soon as economic conditions permitted.

Four other nations with strong currency — Switzerland, Sweden, Norway and Austria — reportedly were considering joining the float even though they are not members of the Common Market.

The decision by West Germany, France, Belgium, the Netherlands, Luxembourg and Denmark was casting the latest monetary crisis that closed.

Hanoi To Free 108 More POWs

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnam today delivered a list of 108 American prisoners it will release in Hanoi on Wednesday; meanwhile, the United States again suspended the withdrawal of American troops to insure the Communists release all 286 Americans they still hold.

The Viet Cong promised a list on Tuesday of approximately 30 prisoners of war captured in South Vietnam who will be released in Hanoi on Thursday.

Those to be released on Thursday are expected to include Maj. Floyd Thompson, the POW who has been held longest, and Philip Manshard, the highest-ranking civilian POW.

Those turnovers will consist of the three phases of POW release, leaving one group of about 156 to be freed by March 28, two months after the Jan. 28 start of the ceasefire.

A U.S. spokesman said troop withdrawals were suspended to "make damn sure we get all of the prisoners." He said he foresaw no problem and noted that both North Vietnam and the Viet Cong have said they will comply with the agreement. But "we want to make absolutely certain," he added.

The spokesman said U.S. troop strength in Vietnam now totals 6,935 men, compared with 23,516 on Jan. 28. Foreign allied troops, primarily South Koreans, have dropped from 35,500 to 5,607.

"We've withdrawn our troops at a steady flow and we haven't been getting a steady flow of prisoners," the spokesman added.

Costle, in an election-eve letter today to Weiss, states the DEP has studied the Manchester report, "Land Use and Solid Waste — Water Resources," and has concluded:

"We recognize your need to acquire additional land for future solid waste disposal operations. Your plan to acquire this land at this time shows good foresight and good planning, and is supported by the Department of Environmental Protection."

Regarding formal approval for flood encroachment and discharge permits for the sanitary landfill area, Costle stated these matters "should be resolvable," following public hearings formal approval for the permits now being prepared by the town.

Noting that Manchester's landfill area may be utilized by the DEP in a statewide solid waste proposal presented by General Electric, Costle recommends the town defer installation of a leachate collection system. Leachate is the liquid generated from the decomposition of garbage and refuse. It has been the one part of town's plan for the area most vulnerable to criticism.

Costle recommends also that the town continue and even expand its existing resource recovery programs (paper and glass).

He states that, should Manchester participate in the statewide solid waste management plan, landfill area would be used for the clean, inert residue resulting from a policy and a program of maximum resource recovery with minimum environmental degradation at the lowest possible cost.

The VFW Post is selling permits for one dollar, to center checks for the contest in connection with Manchester's sequentennial celebration June 23 to 30. Bearded men without permits will be fined a dollar during the celebration week. Permits are available at the VFW Post, 608 E. Center St. (Herald photo by Ofara)

Downey And Brother In Manila

John Downey, followed by his brother, William, leave the airplane which brought him from Hong Kong to Clark Air Force Base in the Philippines early today. Downey En Route To Connecticut

CLARK AIR BASE, Philippines (AP) — John T. Downey, the last American prisoner of the Korean War, was flown from China today and flew home to see his seriously ill mother in Connecticut.

Downey was captured in 1952 when his plane went down on a flight from Seoul to Tokyo while on a mission for the Central Intelligence Agency. His fate remained a mystery until 1964 when he was identified by another man on the flight, Richard Fecteau, who had been convicted of espionage.

Fecteau was sentenced to 30 years in prison; Downey, to 30. But, after Nixon announced he was going to visit Peking, the Chinese freed Fecteau a year earlier in December 1971 and Downey was freed in January 1973.

Downey was a CIA agent who was made by President Nixon at a news conference last Jan. 31, and this was believed a factor in the Chinese decision to release him.

Scotland Yard Investigating Bermuda Murders

HAMILTON, Bermuda (AP) — More Scotland Yard detectives were due in Bermuda today to join the investigation of the murder of the island's British governor and his aide-de-camp. Police said they were questioning a number of persons but had made no arrests.

Gov. Sir Richard Sharples, 57, and Capt. Hugh Sayers, 25, were shot shortly before midnight Saturday. Their bodies were found outside the front door of Government House, the governor's residence.

Police said they did not know how many gunmen were involved in the slayings, which occurred after a small dinner party while the men were walking Sharples' pet great Dane, Horsa. The dog also was killed.

There were no security measures in effect at the time of the slayings, which occurred after a small dinner party while the men were walking Sharples' pet great Dane, Horsa. The dog also was killed.

The two brothers took off in a small plane at 1:42 a.m. EST for Elmendorf Air Base in Alaska. From there, they were to fly to either Hartford, Conn., or Westover Air Base in Massachusetts.

William Downey said a doctor had examined his brother on the flight from Hong Kong and he was "fine."

Downey, who has spent nearly 21 of his 42 years in Chinese prison, looked pale but smiled continuously when he arrived at Clark Air Base from Hong Kong. He told newsmen he was "fine."

At Clark he found his brother William, a New York attorney, who arrived several hours earlier. "I just want to say how grateful I am for being released," Downey told newsmen. "And I appreciate the Chinese government letting me go at this time, and President Nixon for his efforts on my behalf, and Dr. Kissinger. I'm very pleased to be out; and at the same time, I'm very grateful to my family and friends who have supported me."

Downey said he had not been involved in the slayings, which occurred after a small dinner party while the men were walking Sharples' pet great Dane, Horsa. The dog also was killed.

"THE WAY I HEARD IT"

by John Gruber

Somebody asked me the other day whom I considered the most significant composer of the 20th century. My answer was immediate: Arnold Schoenberg. I might have been a little more deliberate had it not been for the fact that I had played a couple of recordings just the evening before which made me so certain of my answer.

I know there are people who will disagree with me, and I know there are people who will say, "Oh well, Gruber studied with Schoenberg; what other answer did you expect?" It isn't as easy as all that. I don't happen to like his music very much, and furthermore I didn't like the man himself. Still I consider him a genius.

The two recordings I mentioned were Schoenberg's "Pierrot Lunaire" or "Moonstruck Little Pierre," and Stockhausen's "Momente." They were written over 50 years apart; in 1912 and in 1963 to be precise, yet they are intimately related so that few but professional musicians could tell the differences between them.

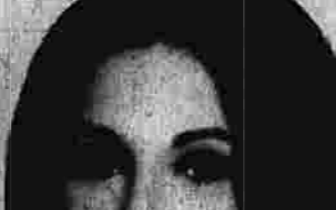

Any person who influences anything with his "imprimatur" for 50 years and more is significant, not in what field he works. Schoenberg died in 1935; Stockhausen in 1924. Again, that's a lapse of fifty years. Stockhausen isn't the only composer Schoenberg influenced. There is Penderecki from Poland, for example, Luigi Nono from Italy, and about a hundred thousand academic teachers of composition who fancy themselves as composers and are hacks who pattern themselves in the Schoenberg image, including a number right here in Connecticut.

It seems that Schoenberg will continue to influence composers for some time to come. But very few of his followers have anything to say. Certainly I did not, but it is a question whether I was ever a follower. To be frank, I studied with him because the association was of some value when I was composing. Schoenberg was talked about, and to a lesser extent, so were his pupils.

There are a great many people to tell you that Stravinsky was greater than Schoenberg. Stravinsky rattled at Schoenberg's compositions and his method of composition, but just as soon as Schoenberg died, Stravinsky adopted the Schoenberg method of composition. Need I say more? I always thought this was dirty pool. He wouldn't give Schoenberg the satisfaction of being a follower until after his death. Me, I never was a follower of either of them with any great fidelity. I think Stravinsky wrote four or five significant works, and I think Schoenberg wrote about the same number. I never met Stravinsky, but as mentioned I did study with Schoenberg.

Schoenberg had a rather tough life, but so does every composer today. I've known several other composers of at least some merit, and grew up with one who had about four

CONNECTICUT NATURAL GAS 125 YEARS OF SERVICE—1848-1973

Laurel Lake, yes or no? This is the question which the voters of Manchester will answer Tuesday when they vote on the proposed referendum to purchase the 110-acre drained lake property and to finance improvements needed to operate an expanded sanitary landfill to take care of the town's solid waste disposal problems.

Last week, The Herald ran a series of articles giving the history and background of the town's proposal for the site and the reasons the Town Board of Directors has recommended the plan. These were researched and written by Sol. R. Cohen, The Herald's town hall reporter, and presented as a factual background for the voters to use in deciding how to vote on the referendum Tuesday.

The Herald believes on the basis of the evidence presented certain major considerations must be re-emphasized. First, although the estimated cost of the proposal may seem high in the terms of land and improvements planned, it is apparent further delay will not decrease the cost. On the contrary, it is almost inevitable that each year's delay will substantially add to the cost of land acquisition for any type of solid waste disposal facility and to the cost of equipment needed to operate such a facility efficiently.

Second, while there may be more attractive and desirable alternatives such as the General Electric-State of Connecticut recycling plant, it should be kept in mind this system is still a paper plan and has not been field tested. However, should the plan prove to be workable and desirable, the Laurel Lake facility can be phased out anytime and the town will not have lost any money if current trends in land value appreciation continue. Third, and most important, Manchester is growing and with growth there is an increase in solid waste materials which must be disposed of in an approved and sanitary manner. The Laurel Lake proposal stipulates that the land will not be purchased, nor the facility put into operation, unless state health authorities approve. It is important that provision be made now for solid waste disposal. Laurel Lake represents a practical, realistic and sound approach to the problem for the immediate future and the long range should alternative proposed methods fail to live up to expectations.

Waste accumulates. We cannot ignore it. We must dispose of it as it is formed. The Herald urges the citizens of Manchester to vote Tuesday for the referendum so that the town can go ahead and meet this problem before it becomes greater.

A clean town, clean air and clean water come at a price. The price now, we believe, will be much less than if we continue to delay in the hope that something better might come along. When that time comes, we hope Manchester will consider it. But until then, we must be realistic and support the town's proposal, which is based on the best available information and has proven to be an effective means of solid waste disposal from the standpoint of preventing pollution within reasonable economic limitations. Support a cleaner Manchester by voting for the referendum Tuesday.

Today in History

Today is Monday, March 12, the 71st day of 1973. There are 294 days left in the year. Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1958, Germany invaded Austria. The next day, Hitler announced that Austrian union with greater Germany would take place. On this date — In 1664, New Jersey became a British colony as King Charles II made a land grant to his brother, James, duke of York. In 1947, President Harry S. Truman proposed U.S. aid to Greece and Turkey. It was established of what became known as the "Truman doctrine." In 1939, Pope Pius XII was elevated to the papacy. In 1940, Finland surrendered to the Soviet union in World War II. In 1971, the government of Turkey resigned after military leaders threatened a takeover.

'Peace Dividend' What Special Interest?

Dear editor: Since 1968 there has been much talk about a "peace dividend," money being spent on the military to be used for such things as major tax cuts and massive programs to rehabilitate the cities and other social problems. Instead the "peace dividend" is being used for higher military costs, new military research, more and more horrendous weapons. The Pentagon is to get $85 billion to develop arms, etc. Fun money will cover three new limousines for majority and minority leaders, to replace the ones bought for them last year, $66,340; $5,000 for a portrait of the speaker of the House; $9.11 million "official entertainment" expenses of the President and $1.37 million to keep up the gardening at his three palaces; $72.5 million to insure the overseas investments of U.S. corporations in countries which might take over their own resources and throw out ITT, GM, Kennecott, etc. Meanwhile, no new projects will be approved for urban renewal, Model Cities, open space, neighborhood facilities, water and sewer systems, rehabilitation loans. Training grants for medical scientists are to be phased out, along with medical research. Research for better ground transportation systems, long run improvements in air safety, oceanography and agricultural research are all cut back. Community action programs, veterans benefits, clean air program, solid waste program, milk for school, rural housing, rural extension, rural environmental assistance program, etc., all eliminated or cut back. Imposition of higher charges for Medicare; ending the Emergency Employment Assistance program under which 280,000 people in high unemployment areas received jobs ending federal housing subsidy programs and the phasing out of 515 mental health centers, etc. I wish that only the people who voted for Mr. Nixon would have to live under his reign. Thank you. Karen Laszki 4 Battista Rd. Manchester

Redevelopment has also worked in Manchester. The North End has a much improved look, both economic and social. The North End was first, is it not logical that the South End should be next? The reason that the Town of Manchester should be a participant in the cost of the consultant survey is that Manchester has plans itself for use of some of the downtown land (plus what it now occupies). Further, the planning may be the means of protecting the tax base which has for so long and still is providing income to our town. However, in speaking of taxes, let us remind our neighbors at the Parkade that downtown has been subsidizing them for years since an acre of land downtown is currently at a new low of $26,000, while that same acre at any shopping center in Manchester is $28,000. What special interest in the Parkade supports the use of the basis of priority needs. Sincerely, George H. Marlow 883 Main St. Manchester

P.S. Just a few years ago the Parkade Association asked the Manchester Board of Directors for Town Police protection on private property with no sharing of the cost. Downtown supports the use of the basis of priority needs. Sincerely, George H. Marlow 883 Main St. Manchester

WASHINGTON — Testimony by a Central Intelligence Agency analyst that U.S. military officials in Vietnam lied to the public about the strength of Communist forces during the late 1960s rang a bell at this desk because I have some knowledge if not expertise in the subject. That is to say, I suggested pretty much the same thing in a rather exhaustively researched book, "The Super Spies," in 1969 — and suffered (savored?) the wrath of the establishment for my pains. Samuel A. Adams, a defense witness in the Pentagon Papers trial of Daniel Ellsberg and Anthony J. Russo, testified that in 1968 when Communist forces were increasing in Vietnam, official U.S. estimates released to the public were going down. This, said Adams, was done by "removing components" from the enemy's order of battle "to display the enemy as weaker than he actually was." Adams implied that Gen. Earle E. Wheeler, then chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and Gen. William C. Westmoreland, then commander in Vietnam, were involved in the falsifications, which he described as "a result of political pressures."

"I don't know about that. But, as my book relates, in late 1967 and early 1968 almost every scrap of field intelligence was predicting a major Red offensive in late January of '68. This intelligence, of course, was verified by the Communists' terrifying Tet offensive of January-March. Intelligence even correctly named the date the offensive would be launched — January 30. A captured enemy document stated that a "general offensive early in 1968" would "emphasize attacks on enemy key units, cities and towns and lines of communication." Throughout December 1967, and the first weeks of January 1968, Communist documents were captured in baites. They verified reports of native spies that Viet Cong agents and even soldiers in North Vietnamese uniforms were circulating and resupply his forces. He was preoccupied with the 40,000 enemy troops reportedly massed around the Marine stronghold and Khesanh, and said everything pointed to a major battle there, with diversionary attacks in other areas. Well, the reader knows what happened — we almost lost the Washington radiating optimism for the edification of Congress and the stateside press. Neither of them mentioned the Communist buildup or January 30. What they told Congress and Washington newsmen was that the United States was winning the war, that it was steadily wearing down the enemy. They noted the decrease in the rate of infiltration of troops from Hanoi from a peak of 14,000 men in June 1966, to 5,000-4,000 a month. They said soldiers were deserting in increasing numbers from the Viet Cong, that supplies to the VC by sea had been seriously interrupted. Indeed, Westmoreland predicted that the enemy most would use the coming truce during the Tet holidays to build

Today's Thought Hast thou not known? Hast thou not heard, that the everlasting God, the Lord the Creator of the ends of the earth, fainteth not, neither is weary? there is no searching of His understanding. He giveth power to the faint, and to them that have no might He increaseth strength. Even the youths shall faint and be weary, and the young men shall utterly fall. But they that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles, they shall run and not be weary, and they shall walk, and not faint. — Isaiah the Prophet (Isaiah 40:29-31) What power we can draw upon if we will only learn to wait upon the Lord! New State Anti-Noise Regulations No Problem If You Don't Tinker

By DON FITZHUGH Associated Press Writer HARTFORD (AP) — You shouldn't have any trouble with Connecticut's new noise regulations for your car or truck as long as you don't do any tinkering, but beware of the snowmobile with an advertised roar, says a state official. In any case, there won't be much enforcement until summer, and the chances are you'll get only a warning the first time around. The regulations, drawn up by the Motor Vehicles Department (MVD), were supposed to go into effect Jan. 1, but "there was a lot of delay in procedures" and they didn't actually become effective until Mar. 5, said Robert Cromwell, MVD's standards engineer and resident expert on noise. "The normal auto owner won't have a problem," Cromwell said in an interview. "Snowmobiles are different. A lot of them have been sold on the basis that they make noise.

The 'roar' has been a factor in the advertising. "So snowmobile owners will probably have the most problems, and may have to make actual modifications to the engine using noise absorbing materials, and different mufflers will have to be incorporated if some existing and older snowmobiles," he said. Some snowmobiles are "very quiet," he said. "We know it can be done. It's not beyond the state of the art at all." Cromwell wouldn't say which snowmobile manufacturers produce noisy vehicles, but said compliance with the regulations will be up to the owner of the vehicle, not the manufacturer. The new regulations make it illegal for trucks to produce more than 90 decibels of sound at expressway speeds. Motorcycles are limited to 88 decibels, autos to 82 decibels and snowmobiles to 83 decibels. Cromwell said the department plans in the near future to hold a testing program, so owners can find out if their vehicles exceed the noise limit. He said the date of the informational testing will be announced later by the governor's office. Noise levels are measured in decibels and two persons talking in a room produce between 65 and 70 decibels, Cromwell said. At 30 feet, the distance noise from moving vehicles is measured, a jackhammer produces 90-95 decibels. A jet airplane overhead could be measured up to 125 decibels, he said. "This is definitely in the range of injury to the ear," Cromwell said. Like automobiles, new trucks generally meet the new regulations, Cromwell said. They exceed the limitations when the owners deliberately make them louder, either to produce a "hot rod" effect, or to have gas. "Truckers have advised us they won't have any trouble meeting the regulations," Cromwell said. "Our biggest concern is for the private truck owner or a person using a truck for hire. "Some truck users take off the mufflers, or put on special mufflers to reduce the back pressure on the engine," he said. "They can get one to two miles per gallon more by reducing the pressure." Cromwell said the emphasis is on gradual implementation of the regulations. "They way we plan to start is to give the driver a warning ticket," Cromwell said. "He then will be asked to come within 10 days to an approved test site and have the vehicle checked. "If he has taken care of the problem, there's no problem," Cromwell said. "But the commissioner (of MVD) does have the right to suspend the owner's registration." No fines are planned at present, he said, adding that it's up to the state police if they actually want to give a summons. Cromwell said the MVD, except for vehicle inspection, won't be involved in enforcing the regulations. That will be the problem of state and local police. About 80 policemen, including several troopers, attended a recent seminar at the University of Hartford to learn to use a miniature, mobile noise meters, Cromwell said. He said the MVD plans to order 40 more meters "with hopes of loaning them to local jurisdictions." The MVD currently has only three mobile meters, as well as a large

He'd Rather Take A Bus

More than three months have passed since the ConnCo. buses stopped rolling.

For most of its patrons alternate means of transportation have been found. Some are stop-gap measures that exist from day-to-day in the hope some settlement will be reached and service will be started again soon. Others have formed car pools and still others may never rely on bus transportation again.

Manchester is providing a service for its senior citizens to enable them to get to shopping areas, doctors, etc. Other communities have some form of services from other bus line companies.

So many, the bus crisis doesn't seem to be much of a problem any more outside of the core cities. But to many students attending Manchester Community College, this lack of service has inconvenienced them, forced them to change schedules and in at least one case, rack up a lot of miles on foot.

According to enrollment figures, approximately 700 students resident in the Hartford and East Hartford areas. Now many of these used and still use cars to go to and from the campus. But there are many who enrolled last summer on the basis of commuting by bus and did not until the strike. Then came the scramble to get to class on time in order to maintain grades.

One young man who is really determined has tried about all the options available. He can't afford a car so he has an elaborate system in a sense of getting from Hartford to MCC each class day.

Most of the time it works, but because it involves walking, a fairly dependable lift for part of the distance, and hitchhiking it is not foolproof and means a lot of extra time spent just getting to and from school.

Trevor A. Williamson, a 1972 Hartford High School graduate, is taking the career business administration program at MCC. Before the strike he spent $1 a day riding the buses from his home at 289 Main St. in Hartford to the stop near the MCC Bidwell St. campus. No problem as the bus and a schedule and he could count on it each school day.

After the strike, on the basis of it being a short relative hitchhike to school and picked him up at the end of the day but as the strike continued he became too disruptive. He tried hitchhiking, a lot of walking and finally withdrew the last semester because his "system" wasn't reliable enough and he could not keep up on his school work.

While he says the first semester was not a total loss, he is out some money and a lot of time.

But he found a person who will take him most of the time

MCC Using A Lot Of Shoelather

Trevor A. Williamson, a Manchester Community College student from Hartford, has worn out one pair of shoes and is on his second set of half-soles on his present pair of boots, because the bus strike has forced him to do a lot of walking to get to where he can hitch a ride to and from classes. (Herald photo by Larson) and enrolled again the second semester. Today he must walk more than a mile to meet his ride.

Getting home, he is usually successful in hitching a ride from a fellow student at the campus. The problem now is when his ride in can't make it or a ride from the campus doesn't materialize. Then, Trevor takes to the highway and exercises his thumb. He is usually successful except at the times when he needs it most - bad weather.

While hitchhiking is against the law, it is his major alternative since it is a good 10 miles from his home to MCC. But hitchhiking, especially when you have a class you must attend or a test you must take at a certain time, is not too reassuring. One day last week, he had to walk almost four miles before he was given a lift. The walk took him over an hour. Because of this uncertainty of hitching a ride, Trevor starts for school early when he knows he doesn't have his ride. He tries to leave school early also since he does not like hitching rides after dark. He has worn out one pair of shoes and the current hitching boots have been resoled twice. Going to MCC for Trevor Williamson is difficult because of the absence of buses, but it is also a tribute to his determination to finish his two-year course and go out in the business world to earn money to repay loans and eventually return to school for a more advanced degree. If his willingness to slog through snow and rain to get to school is any indication, Trevor will not only graduate from MCC but

SUPPORTS

The Laurel Lake Purchase Why...

The town has a problem of solid waste disposal which will increase with time. The land fill method has proven the least expensive.

The town is in a stronger position to own and control the land if other methods used in the future and other areas want to share its use.

We know of no feasible alternative to this problem at the present time nor does anyone else.

All present plans under discussion are experimental and far in the future.

THERE ARE SOME QUESTIONS NOT FULLY ANSWERED . . .

What will be the total cost? How will the leachate be handled after collection? Could this mean another treatment plant? Will the area be used if the G.E. plan is accepted? WE ASKED THESE QUESTIONS AMONG OTHERS OURSELVES, BUT STILL DECIDED IT WAS IN THE BEST INTERESTS OF MANCHESTER TO PURCHASE NOW.

SO BE SURE TO VOTE!!!

Task Force Set To Locate MIAs

HONOLULU (AP) — A task force established to look for Americans missing in action in Southeast Asia will begin search efforts as soon as negotiations with the countries involved have been completed, military authorities say. Asked when the search efforts could begin, a spokesman said, "We have no idea when this will be." There are about 1,300 U.S. servicemen listed as missing in action.

The task force will be stationed at Nakhon Phanom, Thailand, the announcement said. Army Brig. Gen. Robert C. Kingston will direct the Thailand-based operation under supervision of Adm. Noel Gayler, commander in chief of the Pacific Fleet. The announcement said the force, called Joint Casualty

Resolutions Center, will locate and investigate crash sites or gravesites throughout Southeast Asia, as arranged through the four-party Joint Military Commission. Locations of these sites have not been pinpointed, and efforts in the remote areas would include air and ground searches. There was no indication as to how many men would be involved in the search effort.

The Vietnam peace agreement signed in Paris last January provides that the countries involved will "help each other to get information about those military personnel missing in action... and take any such other measures... to get information about those still considered missing in action."

Notes From The Notch

Clemewell Young
In less than a month it will officially be spring, but the uncertainties are fewer and with us. All winter we have been seduced by false springs, which we knew could not last.

Our characters become upset without the miseries of a New England winter. I suspect the recent extended snow flurry and the mid-February weekend of cold made us inwardly content.

Estimating the wind-chill factor at arctic extremes as we gazed through the front on a window to what we knew was an uninhabitable world, we could, at last, wish fervently for spring without the feeling that

Maybe spring will come this year with no more fanfare than the cooling of a mountain dew in the dark before dawn and the surprise of a litter of pussy willows. As perhaps it always does.

With rainy spring weather ahead, the traditional trench coat returns. In new bold plaids, the trench coat gives more fashionable than before. Another note on the rain scene is the rain-coated pantsuit. Wide-legged pants with jacket down to the hip are laminated with rubber to make it waterproof.

Price of Fish To Keep Rising

By DANIEL Q. HANEY
GLOUCESTER, MASS. (AP) — The price of fish, already rising nearly as fast as meat, may go up as much as seven per cent in the next few weeks because of dollar devaluation, federal economists say.

This will mean an increase of about 18 per cent in a little more than a year.

About two-thirds of all fish eaten in the United States is imported, economists say, and this fish will take about a 10 per cent jump in price. Included in this category are most of the fin fish, now among the cheapest.

"I would expect imported fish to go up as much as 10 per cent," said John Rittgers, an economist at the National Marine Fisheries Service in Gloucester.

"Over-all the price of fish will be influenced upwards," Rittgers said. "It could go up as much as seven per cent."

The impact of the monetary changes-making U.S. dollars probably be felt as soon as importers begin negotiating new contracts with foreign suppliers, Rittgers said.

The impact will be most noticeable among frozen and fillet products," Rittgers said, because almost all fish imports are frozen in blocks and fillets.

The United States imports about 86 per cent of its cod, flounder, turbot, haddock, sea perch, and salmon. This fish is generally only sold fresh when it is caught by American fishermen, and this often costs twice as much as frozen imports.

Fish has been promoted by administration officials recently as a low-cost alternative to meat.

"Fish is still quite a bit less expensive than beef," said Rittgers. "A good grade of hamburger costs $1.10-$1.20 a pound. You can buy a pretty good quality haddock fillet for nearly that price. Fish is still a good buy."

During 1972, fish increased in price 11 per cent, while meat rose 14 per cent.

According to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, the price of a pound of frozen haddock increased from $1.02 to $1.15 last year, while frozen perch went from 73 cents to 86 cents.

The prices have increased for everyone. A year ago, wholesalers paid 44 cents a pound for frozen blocks of flounder. Now they pay 60 cents.

And the wholesalers pass the increases along to the retailers. One Boston wholesaler who charged 65 cents a year ago for flounder is now charging 90 cents.

A national supermarket chain that charged $1.09 for the pound of flounder a year ago now charges $1.25.

Before the devaluation, fish prices were squeezed up by increased supply, rising demand and increasing costs.

Several varieties are rare because they've been over fished, according to Henry McAvoy, a federal marketing specialist with the Fisheries Service. These include flounder, scallops and haddock.

Meanwhile, McAvoy said, "per capita consumption of fish is higher now than ever before—11.6 pounds per person per year."

And fishermen have been hit with steadily rising costs of labor, vessel construction, insurance, packaging and marketing, McAvoy said.

But the rising prices may just mean fish to the level where it should always have been—the same as meat, McAvoy said.

"Fish is finally becoming as high as beef," McAvoy said. "It's as hard or harder to get and harvest than cattle. Fish is finally becoming a prestige food that it always should have been. It probably always should have been priced on a par with meat."

The luxury fish—crab, shrimp and lobster—have also risen sharply. Lobsters sell at $2.50 a pound on the Boston docks, and in New Orleans, the price of shrimp has risen from $1.25 a year ago to $1.65 now.

"The luxury fish have risen as high as meat," said Edward Stavis, owner of Stavis Seafoods Inc. of Boston. "There prices are boosted up by Americans. They're prestige-type food."

Panama's Neighbors Eye Canal Issue

PANAMA (AP) — Panama's neighbors to the north and south will be watching with keen interest what happens at the United Nations Security Council meeting here this week.

Both Costa Rica to the north and Colombia to the south support Panama's insistence that it should have jurisdictional authority over the Panama Canal and the Canal Zone. That will be a topic when the Security Council meets Thursday for the first time in Latin America.

Colombia's position is unique. Panama broke away from the United States in 1903 after the Colombia government refused to ratify a treaty giving the United States the right to build a canal across the Isthmus of Panama. The revolution was encouraged by the United States. Days after Panama gained its independence, a canal treaty was signed with the infant government.

That 1903 treaty, which gave the United States jurisdiction and authority forever over the Canal Zone, is the treaty that Panama wants thrown out.

The treaty also gave Colombia navigation rights through the canal including free transit for Colombian government or navy vessels. Colombia wants to protect that right.

Costa Rica has no such vested interest in the canal but it supports Panama's position. Gonzalo Fatico of Costa Rica was the first foreign minister to confirm he would attend the Security Council meeting at Panama's invitation.

The United States has given much proof it has abandoned the imperialist policy it followed in 1903 and now should give up privileges its leaders were not granted through the free will of the Panamanian people," he said. "In these days of hemispheric unity these privileges have become a source of resentment which blocks the harmony and cooperation to which all people are entitled."

The issue is likely of much greater concern to the man on the street in Costa Rica and Colombia than to his counterpart in the United States. The issue is closer to home and has become a rallying point for all those who resent any of the political or economic policies the United States follows in Latin America.

In interviews with Associated Press reporters in Colombia and Costa Rica, various citizens showed a keen awareness of the problem. All sided with Panama.

"The Gringos should turn the canal over to Panama, its true owner, because the canal is located on Panamanian territory," said Hugo Velaz, 41.

Wetlands Bill Discussion Topic

Also present at the session will be Tom Muska, president of LAW ARE (Active Watchfulness Against Regional Encroachment), an East Windsor-based organization which has had two years of experience dealing with the political aspects of regional encroachment.

The public is invited to attend the meeting, which will be organized by COTC. According to a spokesman for the group, "It is hoped that COTC can assist all residents in becoming informed regarding issues relating to the proposed mass development of northwest Coventry."

Residents of Lakewood Terrace and local health officials appeared last week before a State Health Department administrative hearing to discuss pollution abatement orders issued against the homeowners by the Town of Coventry.

Presiding at the session was Dr. Franklin Poole, state health commissioner.

The hearing resulted from an appeal by Lakewood Terrace homeowners to a second set of town abatement orders issued to correct malfunctioning septic systems. During the hearing, residents there hope that the State Health Department will be able to draft "unbiased and reasonable solutions" to the problems.

He said he felt that DevCo would have an easier job in finding a water supply for the site, but would probably have to get access to an underground water source away from the actual development site.

In related action, the WRPA at its meeting voted to request the impact study of the effect of the new community on the Windham Region, and its development area, DevCo.

Young said that DevCo would probably have to find a source of sewer service within the Windham Region, and noted that the only sewer service in the 10-town region is the Willimantic and the Storrs UConn campus, with Willimantic's system currently undergoing expansion.

While both Manchester and Vernon, not within the Windham Region, are also sewered, Young said that Manchester's system is not designed to allow for an eastward expansion into the site of the proposed new community. Vernon facilities for sewerage treatment would not be feasible for Coventry use either, Young felt, because of the high land ridge separating the two towns.

Young said that sewer service for the new community would be a necessary part of any development, and that to secure such service, DevCo would need the cooperation of the town in securing rights-of-way.

He said that courses of action open to DevCo include expansion of a new plant proposed to serve parts of Coventry and Mansfield, a proposal which has already gone down to defeat in two referendums in Coventry. DevCo could also consider building a plant on the surface of a large area of ground, rather than discharging it into a river.

Other alternatives would require pipe lines as long as 11 miles, expensive pumping of sewer through terrain that could not take gravity-flow sewer lines, or construction of a new treatment plant, possibly in Andover, discharging sewage into the Hoop River, according to Young.

Yale Study Criticizes Ambulances

HARTFORD (AP) — For $2 a year, a person can get an emergency medical service it doesn't have now, the Yale University Medical Training Program told Gov. Thomas J. Meskill in a report Friday.

An 18-month study of Connecticut's ambulance and hospital emergency services concluded that there are many deficiencies, and that compared to police and fire protection, public investment in emergency ambulance service is nil. Yale's study found:

—In 1971, only 22 per cent of ambulances are more than five years old and many do not carry all essential first aid supplies.

—Ambulance companies are unlisted in any telephone book.

—Connecticut's ambulances make an average of one call per day. One fifth of the calls are for traffic accidents. One third are routine transport rather than emergencies.

—In most towns, there is no single number to call for emergency medical assistance. Relying through police or fire switchboards delays calls and introduces errors. In several communities, police must verify the need for an ambulance.

—Only 14 per cent of the state's population has access to the recommended "911" emergency telephone number.

—Thirty per cent of all calls to police and fire are for emergency medical assistance. In some communities, police must verify the need for an ambulance.

—Only 14 per cent of the state's population has access to the recommended "911" emergency telephone number.

Town Likely Site For DevCo Sewers

Robert C. Young, director of the Windham Regional Planning Agency, told a meeting of the WRPA last week that Coventry is the most likely location for a sewage treatment facility to serve the proposed planned new community being put forth by Greater Hartford Process Inc. and its development area, DevCo.

Young said that DevCo would probably have to find a source of sewer service within the Windham Region, and noted that the only sewer service in the 10-town region is the Willimantic and the Storrs UConn campus, with Willimantic's system currently undergoing expansion.

Treasury Voids State Bond Deal

HARTFORD (AP) — A multimillion dollar bond transaction involving the State of Connecticut has been canceled because the U.S. Treasury Department stepped in to block it, state Treasurer Robert I. Berdon said Friday.

The deal involved an "arbitrage" which the General Assembly authorized last week at Berdon's request.

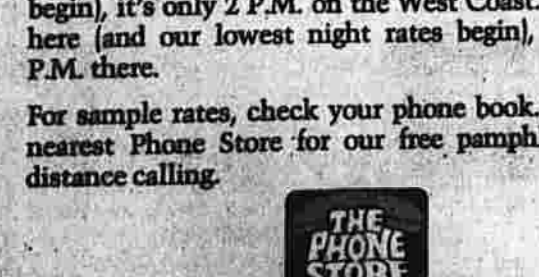

Under the terms of the arbitrage, which is the simultaneous sale of the same or equivalent securities in different markets, Berdon Thursday sold $108 million of triple-A state bonds at an annual net interest cost of 6.088 per cent.

Robert C. Young, director of the Windham Regional Planning Agency, told a meeting of the WRPA last week that Coventry is the most likely location for a sewage treatment facility to serve the proposed planned new community being put forth by Greater Hartford Process Inc. and its development area, DevCo.

Young said that DevCo would probably have to find a source of sewer service within the Windham Region, and noted that the only sewer service in the 10-town region is the Willimantic and the Storrs UConn campus, with Willimantic's system currently undergoing expansion.

While both Manchester and Vernon, not within the Windham Region, are also sewered, Young said that Manchester's system is not designed to allow for an eastward expansion into the site of the proposed new community. Vernon facilities for sewerage treatment would not be feasible for Coventry use either, Young felt, because of the high land ridge separating the two towns.

Young said that sewer service for the new community would be a necessary part of any development, and that to secure such service, DevCo would need the cooperation of the town in securing rights-of-way.

Wetlands Bill Discussion Topic

Also present at the session will be Tom Muska, president of LAW ARE (Active Watchfulness Against Regional Encroachment), an East Windsor-based organization which has had two years of experience dealing with the political aspects of regional encroachment.

The public is invited to attend the meeting, which will be organized by COTC. According to a spokesman for the group, "It is hoped that COTC can assist all residents in becoming informed regarding issues relating to the proposed mass development of northwest Coventry."

Residents of Lakewood Terrace and local health officials appeared last week before a State Health Department administrative hearing to discuss pollution abatement orders issued against the homeowners by the Town of Coventry.

Presiding at the session was Dr. Franklin Poole, state health commissioner.

The hearing resulted from an appeal by Lakewood Terrace homeowners to a second set of town abatement orders issued to correct malfunctioning septic systems. During the hearing, residents there hope that the State Health Department will be able to draft "unbiased and reasonable solutions" to the problems.

VA Defends Hospital Care

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Veterans Administration has defended conditions in its 158 hospitals and denied that many patients receive poor care.

The allegations were contained in a report to the House Appropriations Committee by its staff.

In a four-page statement, the VA said the report "seems deliberately designed to mislead the American people into believing the Veterans Administration is providing inferior care to its veteran-hospital patients."

VA Administrator Donald E. Johnson called the document an attack against an administration "which has provided greater fiscal and manpower resources" for VA medical care "than ever before in the history of the agency."

Johnson said Rep. Burt L. Talcott, R-Calif., succeeded in persuading an Appropriations subcommittee to keep the report out of the public record until the VA had time to submit a response. Some newswriters, however, obtained a copy of it late Wednesday.

Met Wife Also Makes News, Mays' Visit Proves Costly

NEW YORK (AP) — Not to be outdone by the marital headlines of New York Yankees pitchers Fritz Peterson and Mike Kekich and their respective spouses last week, one of the New York Met wives made a little news over the weekend.

Mrs. Mae Mays received an expensive visit from her husband, Willie Mays, who is looking for a center fielder anyway, put out baseball's version of an AP for the Met. Willie Mays.

The Yankees' official policy was hands off the Peterson-Kekich hi-jinks. Mays wasn't so lucky, and Manager Yogi Berra slapped him with a fine estimated from $500 to $1,000 after the 41-year-old superstar missed connections on a flight back from his Atheron, Calif., home to the Mets' St. Petersburg, Fla., training camp and failed to show up for a Saturday workout.

"I made a mistake," Mays admitted after Berra socked him with the first major fine of his long career on a Sunday meeting. "I was right when I was wrong, I'm wrong when I'm right. I should have told him."

At first, Mays said his wife wasn't feeling well. Later, he amended his story, saying, "Mostly my wife's loneliness, but she'll join me next week."

At any rate, Mays' absence Saturday had the Mets sending a search party to his apartment a few miles from St. Petersburg. Asked why he hadn't phoned when his original flight back from California was canceled, Mays shrugged:

"I should have. It sounds silly, but I didn't know the number. I could have found it out, I agree, but I thought I could be back before anybody knew I was gone."

The Mets also had their problems on the field Sunday, bowing to the St. Louis Cardinals 5-4 on an 11th-inning single by Luis Melendez after they wiped out a 4-0 deficit. Three of the Cards' runs came on a homer by rookie Ray Bussie. Elsewhere, the pitchers suddenly no longer were ahead of the hitters.

Mike Schmidt drove in six runs with a triple and grand slam home run, powering the Philadelphia Phillies to a 9-7 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates 'B' squad. Bill Robinson socked a two-run homer after Schmidt's grand slam in the sixth inning.

Milwaukee's George Scott had a RBI game-winning homer in the Brewers' 3-2 rout of the San Diego Padres. The Brewers also got home runs from Dick Porter and John Vukovich. Cliff Johnson's grand slam capped a tie-breaking fifth-inning uprising in the finale as the Houston Astros outslugged the Minnesota Twins 10-3. Doug Rader also connected for the Astros while the losers got consecutive homers in the seventh inning from Bobby Darwin and Danny Walton.

In other games it was Montreal 11, Texas Rangers 2; Baltimore 10, New York Yankees 0; Detroit 13, Cincinnati 8; Los Angeles 6, Atlanta 3; Boston 6, Pittsburgh 'A' squad 1; Kansas City 4, Chicago White Sox 3; San Francisco 9, Cleveland 5; Cleveland 'B' team 5, Oakland 4; California Angels 8, Chicago Cubs 7.

Fordham Flash Succumbs

WILMINGTON, DEL. (AP) — Frankie Frisch, a member of baseball's Hall of Fame for 15 years, died today at the Wilmington Medical Center at the age of 75, a hospital spokesman said.

The spokesman said Frisch, hospitalized since an auto accident in Maryland last month, was at the coronary care unit of the hospital at 6:14 a.m. and died about an hour later.

He was injured critically Feb. 8 when his car blew a tire and hit an embankment on Interstate 95 in Elkton, Md.

Frisch, known as the "Fordham Flash," had a 316 batting average during a 19-year major league career with the New York Giants and St. Louis Cardinals. He had been president of Charlestown, R.I. for the past 12 years.

"My optimism going into the NCAA playoffs is about the same as last year—I wouldn't trade my chances with anyone," says the highly successful coach.

It will take more than a roll of the dice to beat the nation's top-ranked team. The Bruins have won six straight national titles and appear just as strong this year as in the past.

"We were down a little but we are coming back and getting sharp at just the right time," says Wooden, whose team currently has a record 71-game winning streak over 2 1/2 seasons and has won 32 straight games in the NCAA Tournament.

With a first-round victory Saturday, Arizona State earned the dubious honor of meeting the mighty Bruins this Thursday in one of the West Regional semifinal games. The other matches Long Beach State against the University of San Francisco, champion in the West Coast Athletic Conference.

Like UCLA, winner of the Pacific Conference, San Francisco drew a first-round bye. But there was plenty of action over the weekend—nine games from coast-to-coast.

In the West Regional, Western Athletic Conference champion Arizona State trounced Oklahoma City 102-78 and Long Beach, champion of the Pacific Coast Athletic Association, beat Big Sky Association, beat Big Sky Association.

Although drawing a bye in the first round of the playoffs, UCLA still had some work to do over the weekend. The Bruins wrapped up their regular Pacific-8 Conference season with a 76-56 victory over Southern California.

The Big Ten Conference and Atlantic Coast Conference also finished their seasons. Indiana finished an NCAA berth, winning the Big Ten with a 77-72 victory over Purdue while Minnesota was upset by Northwestern 79-74. North Carolina State topped Maryland 78-74 in the ACC playoff finale. However, Maryland will represent the league in the NCAA.

What concerns me is the lack of effort," Cougar Coach Larry Brown said. "It's got to be my fault we are playing this way. We will be ready to play Friday against Virginia at Greensboro if that's any consolation," Brown said.

Brown was especially disturbed about his team's performance Sunday. "I don't think we played badly in our previous two losses, but today we didn't play well and Indiana did."

The Cougars held a three-game lead over Kentucky with seven games to play.

In other ABA action Sunday the New York Nets stopped Memphis 120-113, the Kentucky Colonels bombed the Denver Rockets 119-82 and the Utah Stars beat the San Diego Conquistadors 112-101.

Fred Lewis and Roger Brown led a third-quarter rally that enabled the Pacers to break open a tight game. Indiana outscored the Cougars 26-17 in the third quarter after the score was tied at halftime and maintained at least a ten point lead the rest of the way.

Lewis scored 24 points and Brown added 23 for Indiana. Steve Jones led the Cougars with 22 points, while Tom Owens chipped in 12.

Bill Melchioni hit two jump shots to spark a 9-3 fourth quarter surge enabling the New York Nets to defeat the Utah Stars in their first round game.

The Nets broke a 99-93 tie in the final stanza to break up a close game. The victory gave the Nets a fourth and final Eastern Division playoff berth.

Artis Gilmore and Rick Mount sparked a third period burst, enabling the Kentucky Colonels to maintain an 18-point lead at the end of the period enroute to a 37-point pasting of the Denver Rockets.

Cincy Powell came off the bench to score 16 points and led the Utah Stars over the San Diego Conquistadors.

The lost dropped San Diego into a fourth place tie with Dallas in the fight for the fourth berth in the playoffs.

Hondo-Celtics Crushed Knicks

BOSTON (AP) — Veteran John Havlicek turned in a 20-point performance to top all scorers and pace the Boston Celtics to a 122-107 victory over the New York Knicks. Wait until he really starts hitting.

"I haven't been shooting well for about a month," Havlicek said in the dressing room following the game Sunday. "I don't know what the game meant as much to them as it did to us," Heinsohn continued.

"They know their chances of beating us for first place are nearly slim."

True, he hit only nine of 30 attempts from the field, but he was hitting the ball through the hoop when it counted. He tossed in 11 points in the third quarter as the Celtics pulled away from a 50-50 halftime advantage and went on for the victory.

The 6-foot-6 Havlicek who is a 10-year veteran has been bothered by troublesome knees this season, and has even sat out some games.

"I really don't know if my knees," he said of his shooting. "I've just been having on-and-off days."

Havlicek continued, "My knees feel a little better. The left one has some fluid in it, and I think some rest will take care of it."

Backing up Havlicek's sparkling offense was the rugged defensive play of Dave Cowens. The Celtics' Dan Chaney. Cowens had 18 rebounds and 24 points. Chaney 15 rebounds and 19 points and Silas pulled down 14 rebounds and added seven points.

New York's attack was led by Walt Frazier, who had 22 points, and Jerry Lucas with 21. Both led New York in rebounding with seven apiece.

Dave DeBussche, bothered by a hip injury, played only nine minutes and was scoreless.

New York Coach Red Holzman saw the game as a clash between equals.

"We both have good teams," he said. "They're (Boston) an excellent team. They have more poise and experience than they had last year. They can overcome anything, and I like to think that we can."

It was the first time in the last four meetings this year that the Celtics came out on top. The Celtics are 3-4 against the Knicks for the year.

"Our guys know, and we know all along, that we can beat them," Boston Coach Tom Heinsohn said. "We're just interested in winning game-by-game."

With the victory, the Celtics increased their lead over the Knicks in the National Basketball Association.

HOWEVER, GUNNAR, I'VE GOT AN IDEA! WHAT'S THAT?
WE'RE FEELING GREAT!
BUNNY: (GROANS)

MICKY FINN

WILL SKIP BE COMING BACK TO SEE HIS FATHER?
I DON'T KNOW, MINNIE. HE JUST LISTENED TO WHAT I SAID... FOR CALLING AND FLUNG UP!
WAS THAT SHERIFF FINN?
YES! MY FATHER'S IN THE HOSPITAL! HE HAD A HEARTY ATTACK AND HE'S ASKING FOR ME!
SKIP—GO TO SEE HIM—PLEASE—OR YOU MIGHT REGRET IT ALL YOUR LIFE!

PRISCILLA'S POP

ONLY A FEW DAYS TILL MY BIRTHDAY, OLIVER!
AND THIS TIME I KNOW I'LL GET A PRESENT!
YOU WON'T MIND SHARING OUR WINE, WILL YOU?
So long as he doesn't mess with my savings account!

THE BORN LOSER

HAPPY ANNIVERSARY, MY DARLING!
NOW, I'M GOING TO CARRY YOU ACROSS THE THRESHOLD, JUST AS I DID 20 YEARS AGO!
I'M TRULY SORRY ABOUT YOUR HERNIA.

PLAIN JANE

GOOD NEWS! YOU'VE WON A HUGE BLOW-UP OF A BURT REYNOLDS CENTERFOLD!!
BAD NEWS! IT'S COMING IN A GIANT 182 FOUND COSMOPOLITAN MAGAZINE!!

MR. ABERNATHY

HOW ABOUT TAKING A PICTURE OF ME, ABERNATHY?
SURE, LADY MERCKA. HOW WOULD YOU LIKE IT?
A FULL FIGURE OF ME WOULD BE NICE.
...NOW ALL I HAVE TO DO IS OPEN THE LENS TO PULL AND WAIT FOR A BIG SMILE!

BUZZ SAWYER

CLOBBER THIS GUY! BIG MAMA!
OKAY, WELL TRY ANOTHER KIND OF RASSLIN'.
PLANT YOUR FEET, GRIP HANDS, THE ONE TO PUSH OR PULL THE OTHER OFF BALANCE, WINS.
BIG MAMA'S FOOT SLIPPED!
THE JURY... HERE, LET ME TEST THEM!
AM YOU WANT TRYIN' BIG MAMA?

ALLEY OOP

WELL, WELL! I WAS JUST BEGINNING TO BEHOLD ABOUT YOU WHEN YOU MADE ME BACK!
OH, YES—WE TOOK OUT THAT COYOTE UP TO THAT BIG STRONGER BEAST!
SAY, DID YOU TELL UP TO THAT BIG STRONGER BEAST THAT YOU TOLD US ABOUT?
YEAH, WE FOUND HIM RIGHT BEHIND A CREEPER!
IT WAS A COUPLE OF GUYS!
TWO MARTINIS! THEY'RE RIGHT BEHIND YOU!
GOOD NEVINNES!

SCT. STRIPES... FOREVER

ON!... OUCH! WE OUGHTA GIVE THIS PLACE BACK TO THE INDIANS!
PROMISES!... PROMISES!...

OUR OUT WAY BY NED COCHRAN

YOU WOULDN'T BELIEVE THE PROBLEMS I HAD GETTING ENOUGH WOODEN BRICKS FOR MY GUN. BUSH, POP! CITY TYPES WERE LAZY 'EN TO HOLD BLOWERS AND MACHINES IN THEIR LIVING ROOMS!
I HAD TO BUY A LOT OF HOUSES TO GET OUTFITTED!
SAD, FATHER, EVEN THE WITCHES WHO TOILED ON THE PYREXIA'S CARRIED ONLY ONE STONE AT A TIME!
WHAT'S THE MATTER WITH HIM?
HE'S NOT ONLY MAD AT A COP FOR HAVING HIS ANTI-AIRCRAFT TICKETS MAD AT HIMSELF, BUT HE'S MAD TOGETHER FOR FORGETTING TO RENEW HIS DRIVER'S LICENSE!

SHORT RIBS

TODAY, MY CUP RUNNETH OVER.
TOOK IN A LOT OF MONEY, EH?
NOT EXACTLY...!
WHAT THEN?
I'VE BECOME A PROFESSIONAL WINE TASTER.

THE FLINTSTONES

WAKE UP, FRED! I HEAR SOMETHING!
HUNH?
...IT'S PEBBLES!
HOW DID YOU CRAWL IN HERE?
I LIKE TO THINK I WALKED IN MY SLEEP.

MUTT AND JEFF

...I'VE GOT A FEELING THAT I'VE BEEN TRICKED!
...I'VE GOT A FEELING THAT I'VE BEEN TRICKED!

WINTHROP

THIS IS A GREAT COMPOSITION, CINDY.
MOST OF IT IS BY WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE...
I JUST STUCK IN A FEW "ANDS" AND "BUTS" TO GIVE IT THE PERSONAL TOUCH.
TOMORROW I'LL PROBABLY ADD A ROCK MUSIC SCORE TO IT.

CAPTAIN EASY

THE ROCKETING SAFE ONLY OPENS UP SO MUCH WHIPS OUT A GUN AND FREEZES YOU!
NEED CAR? Credit very bad! Bankrupt, repossession! Honest Douglas accepts loans down, smallest payment anywhere. Not small loan finance company plan. Douglas Motors, 45 Main.

STEVE CANYON

THE PROFESSOR DOESN'T WANT TO TO THE TUNNEL ENTRANCE WHERE HE'S STORED...
THE BIG MAN ON THE RIDGE MUST HAVE GUNNED HER DOWN!
WELL, BE HIS NEXT PRIZE "MARTINI"
YOU MAY LEVEL OFF, COL. CANYON! I'VE HAD ANOTHER USE FOR THE RIFLE—AND HE DIDN'T NEED A TELESCOPE SIGHT!

LITTLE SPORTS

...I'VE GOT A FEELING THAT I'VE BEEN TRICKED!

HERALD BOX LETTERS

For Your Information
THE HERALD will not disclose the identity of any advertiser using box letters. Readers answering blind box ads who desire to protect their identity can follow this procedure:
Enclose your reply to the box in an envelope—address to the Classified Manager, Manchester Evening Herald, together with a memo listing the companies you do NOT want to see your letter. Your letter will be destroyed if the advertiser is one you've mentioned. If not, it will be handled in the usual manner.

PLEASE READ YOUR AD

Classified or "Want Ads" are taken over the phone as a convenience. The advertiser should read his ad the FIRST DAY IT APPEARS and REPORT ERRORS in time for the next insertion. The Herald is responsible for only ONE insertion if omitted insertion for any advertisement and then only to the extent of a "make good" insertion. Errors which do not lessen the value of the advertisement will not be corrected by "make good" insertion.

Town Treasurer Seeks Improved Trusts Income

Town Treasurer Roger Negro is asking the Manchester Board of Directors to approve a proposal which, he explains, could mean as much as $13,000 more a year in income to the town.

Negro is seeking permission to sell all stocks and bonds now in the trusts and to set up a trust fund with the United Bank and Trust Co. — in order to seek greater returns on investments.

At present, explained Negro, the stocks and bonds are in a safe deposit box at the Connecticut Bank and Trust Co., receiving income that could be improved upon.

He said the Whiton Library Trust amounts to about $430,000 and the Levi Drake Trust about $100,000. The latter was depleted when the addition to Mary Cheney Library was built.

Negro said the Library Board voted no objection to his proposal, following a March 6 meeting with representatives of the United Bank and Trust. He will present his proposal to the Board of Directors on March 29.

Mary M. Hebert, ROCKVILLE — Mrs. Mary Mabel Hebert, 78, of 10 Thompson St., died Saturday at a nursing home. She was the widow of George Hebert.

Police Report

A 15-year-old Hartford boy was charged with this degree burglary and possession of controlled drugs Saturday night at Ruben Pines Texaco Station, Main St.

The youth, unidentified because of his age, was observed in the station, after it had closed, by a police officer on patrol, police said. The outside lights of the station were off, but the interior lights were on, according to the officer.

The youth came to the door of the station and when asked if he worked there he said that he didn't and was using the men's room, according to the police report.

It was then that the officer noticed blood on the hands and face of the accused. Checking the property police said that three windows were found to be broken.

The youth was taken to headquarters and searched. Police say that a small quantity of a plant-like substance which appeared to be marijuana was found in his possession.

He was taken to the Connecticut State Detention Home at Hartford to await a hearing in Juvenile Court.

New Britain Welcomes Downey Home

Former CIA agent John Downey shakes hands with a well-wisher as he enters New Britain General Hospital late Monday night. Downey, who was imprisoned by the Communist Chinese since 1952, was freed at the request of the U.S. Government to come home to see his mother, Mrs. Mary Downey, who lies critically ill in the hospital. Next to Downey is his brother, William. (AP photo)

Downey Given Motherly Advice

Downey, who accompanied his mother to the Philippines, described as a "little bleep" when she was told John was freed and came home. "He took mother's hand and kissed her and spoke to her," said William, a New York City lawyer who spoke in place of a fatigued brother at a later news conference.

"She seemed to come more alive awake when he talked to her," he said.

William, who has remarked upon previous visits to Peking about his brother's good physical condition, told reporters Downey was "as close to being unchanged as anyone could be after 20 years anywhere."

He indicated his great relief in being a free man, "William said, 'I wouldn't rate him at all as a bitter' because of his imprisonment."

John Downey and Richard Fecteau, Lynn, Mass., were captured in November 1952 after their plane was shot down over Manchuria. Fecteau was released in 1971, at about the same time Downey's life term was commuted to five more years.

William Downey said his brother told him he had been abused in prison. "Interrogated, 'yes-tortured,'" he said.

President Nixon admitted in January that Downey was in the Central Intelligence Agency when he was captured. Until then U.S. officials had maintained publicly that he was a civilian on a flight from South Korea to Japan.

Connecticut Gov. Thomas J. Meskill, a boyhood friend of Downey in his native New Britain, asked the White House to seek his release after Mrs. Downey was stricken.

Meskill was at the Windsor Locks airport along with several of Downey's college friends from Yale University.

Downey, wearing a plaid sport jacket and slacks, moved quickly to a waiting car, rode a short distance and then emerged for a word with newsmen on the tarmac.

"Thank you very much," he said on live television. "It's good to be back. I just want to thank everyone for being so kind."

A crowd of more than 300 persons had gathered in the darkness outside the hilltop hospital by the time Downey's car completed its 45-minute drive from the airport.

Chens went up as the car pulled up at the main entrance, and the crowd surged in for a close look.

Downey again said a word or two to newsmen, while his brother put his finger to his lips in apparent concern over the crowd's noise.

Inside, the returning prisoner greeted his family with several hospital personnel. He then moved quickly to an elevator, which took him to his mother's room in the fourth floor.

Downey himself was admitted to the hospital for a medical examination after visiting for several minutes with his mother.

Mid East War Could Cut Off Oil Supplies

BEIRUT (AP) — The ruler of oil-rich Kuwait said in an interview published today that he will shut off the flow of oil to the West if a new Arab-Israeli war breaks out.

"We are committed to do so," Sheikh Sabah al-Salem al-Sabah told the editor of the Beirut newspaper Al-Bayrak. "When our oil runs out, we shall use our oil as an effective weapon in the battle with Israel. This is our irrevocable position."

Vote On The Sanitary Landfill Referendum: Polls Open To 8 P.M.

The polls are open to 8 tonight in a townwide referendum on the question, "Should the Town of Manchester appropriate $1,391,000 for acquisition of Laurel Lake and improvements thereon?"

Voting, which started at noon, is at the following 10 voting districts:

District 1 — Buckland School, Tolland Tpke.
District 2 — Robertson School, N. School St.
District 3 — Northfield Green Community Center, Ambassador Dr.
District 4 — Martin School, Dartmouth Rd.
District 5 — Buckley School, Vernon St.
District 6 — Nathan Hale School, Spruce St.
District 7 — Wadwell School, Broad St.
District 8 — Verplanck School, Olcott St.
District 9 — Keeney St. School, Keeney St.
District 10 — Manchester High School Cafeteria, E. Middle Tpke.

A special voting machine in District 7, the Wadwell School, is for out-of-town residents whose property in Manchester has assessment of $1,000 or more.

The $1,391,000 proposal consists of $449,500 for purchasing the 110-acre Laurel Lake from Robert C. and Wells C. Dennison, and $941,500 for improving the town's sanitary landfill area.

William, who has remarked upon previous visits to Peking about his brother's good physical condition, told reporters Downey was "as close to being unchanged as anyone could be after 20 years anywhere."

He indicated his great relief in being a free man, "William said, 'I wouldn't rate him at all as a bitter' because of his imprisonment."

John Downey and Richard Fecteau, Lynn, Mass., were captured in November 1952 after their plane was shot down over Manchuria. Fecteau was released in 1971, at about the same time Downey's life term was commuted to five more years.

William Downey said his brother told him he had been abused in prison. "Interrogated, 'yes-tortured,'" he said.

President Nixon admitted in January that Downey was in the Central Intelligence Agency when he was captured. Until then U.S. officials had maintained publicly that he was a civilian on a flight from South Korea to Japan.

Connecticut Gov. Thomas J. Meskill, a boyhood friend of Downey in his native New Britain, asked the White House to seek his release after Mrs. Downey was stricken.

Meskill was at the Windsor Locks airport along with several of Downey's college friends from Yale University.

Downey, wearing a plaid sport jacket and slacks, moved quickly to a waiting car, rode a short distance and then emerged for a word with newsmen on the tarmac.

"Thank you very much," he said on live television. "It's good to be back. I just want to thank everyone for being so kind."

A crowd of more than 300 persons had gathered in the darkness outside the hilltop hospital by the time Downey's car completed its 45-minute drive from the airport.

Chens went up as the car pulled up at the main entrance, and the crowd surged in for a close look.

Downey again said a word or two to newsmen, while his brother put his finger to his lips in apparent concern over the crowd's noise.

Inside, the returning prisoner greeted his family with several hospital personnel. He then moved quickly to an elevator, which took him to his mother's room in the fourth floor.

Downey himself was admitted to the hospital for a medical examination after visiting for several minutes with his mother.

Mid East War Could Cut Off Oil Supplies

BEIRUT (AP) — The ruler of oil-rich Kuwait said in an interview published today that he will shut off the flow of oil to the West if a new Arab-Israeli war breaks out.

"We are committed to do so," Sheikh Sabah al-Salem al-Sabah told the editor of the Beirut newspaper Al-Bayrak. "When our oil runs out, we shall use our oil as an effective weapon in the battle with Israel. This is our irrevocable position."

Downey, who accompanied his mother to the Philippines, described as a "little bleep" when she was told John was freed and came home. "He took mother's hand and kissed her and spoke to her," said William, a New York City lawyer who spoke in place of a fatigued brother at a later news conference.

"She seemed to come more alive awake when he talked to her," he said.
