Congress Concerned Over Proposed Arms Sale To Arabs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The impending sale of perhaps two dozen F4 Phantom jets to Saudi Arabia appears to be causing concern in Congress as well as in Israel. Joseph Sisco, the State Department's chief Middle East expert, will appear before a House Foreign Affairs subcommittee Wednesday to explain what the chairman considers "a distinct change in our policy."

U.S. officials insist that up to now all that is settled is that the United States has agreed in principle to sell a limited number of jets to Saudi Arabia and that a similar sale to Kuwait "is under active consideration." However, other sources say the deal is well enough fixed so that Saudi Arabia can expect to begin taking delivery of at least a squadron of the planes late this year. Simcha Dinitz, the Israeli ambassador to Washington, carried his concern to Sisco on May 24 and May 29, and then to presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger last Saturday. Other Israeli sources said they are not panicked by the arms deal and can understand U.S. desires to secure the Persian Gulf and to try to balance Soviet arms shipments to Arab opponents of Saudi Arabia, Kuwait and Iran.

Senate Demos Pushing For New Controls

WASHINGTON (AP) — Declaring President Nixon's economic controls a failure, Senate Democrats are pushing legislation to freeze wages and prices for 90 days. In a unanimous vote Monday, the Senate Democratic caucus voted to take immediate steps to bring the proposal to a floor vote by attaching it to any appropriate bill.

The resolution endorsed by the caucus calls for a mandatory freeze of prices, profits, wages and salaries, rents, and consumer interest rates. The caucus declared Nixon's Phase 3 economic controls "an unmitigated failure," and said "prices are now rising at the fastest rate in 22 years."

Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Min., sponsor of the resolution, added, "Everybody businessmen as well as economists and others, agree that Phase 3 has been a disaster."

Majority Leader Mike Mansfield told newsmen following the closed session that 33 or 34 of the 57 Senate Democrats attended and none dissented.

The resolution commits Senate Democrats to attach a mandatory-freeze provision "to the first appropriate bill coming before the Senate."

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., a resolution cosponsor, said the best vehicle might be a bill raising the ceiling on the national debt because it would be difficult for Nixon to veto.

The caucus action portends a new clash with the administration which is sticking by the relaxed controls of Phase 3. Advocates of a freeze may have picked up support since March and April when the Senate on two occasions defeated measures imposing a six-month freeze.

Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott said Monday that an across-the-board freeze is too drastic but "some form of selective controls may be needed."

Meanwhile, the administration tightened some price regulations for hospitals and nursing homes but promised an easing of controls over the construction industry.

Subdivision Plan Draws Opposition

DAVID KNAPP (Herald Reporter)

Opposition was raised by area residents to a proposed subdivision of 41 lots on an extension of Kent Dr. to Vernon St. at the Planning and Zoning Commission (PZC) meeting Monday night.

The subdivision, requested by Gilbert Sass, asks for approval of Residence AA cluster development of the area.

Approximately 30 area residents attended the meeting and six spoke. The complaints mainly centered around the question of drainage in the area, saying that there was already a drainage problem and that the subdivision would only add to the situation.

Atty. John Shea, representing the applicant, said that the subdivision would actually subtract from the flow of water in the area because the development would be done in such a way as to divert the flow of water into other existing storm drains in the area.

This claim did not seem to satisfy those opposed to the plan as they clustered about the maps and charts even after the public hearing segment of the meeting was over, and disrupted PZC business for several minutes. A seven-lot subdivision in the same area, which was also cited by residents as a source of drainage problems, was withdrawn from the agenda by the applicant, Circle Associates.

The PZC took no action on the Sass application. In other business the PZC unanimously approved a request by Foxgrove, Ltd., formerly Manchester West, to do extended earthwork, in that development, located off Kenney St. PZC members said the request was approved because it had been properly bonded and the plans seemed to be in order.

PZC members also unanimously voted to approve a subdivision request by Louis Botti of three Rural Residence lots located on the south side of Bush Hill Rd.

July 2 hearings were set for a zone change from Residence A to Business Zone on Highland St. for the proposed addition to Highland Park Market and for a zone change from Rural Residence to the newly created M Zone, concerning an area off Lydall St. The M Zone request was applied for by First Hartford Realty.

The PZC also heard requests for zone changes on a two-lot parcel, located at McKee and W. Center Sts., from Residence Associates.

Mrs. Harmony reportedly typed the secret "Gemstone" logs of wiretaps on Democratic party officials. Robert Reiser, a GOP aide who worked under Job Stuart Magruder, once the No. 2 man in the Nixon campaign organization, also was scheduled to testify.

Watergate Panel Resumes Hearing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate's Watergate committee resumed its televised investigation today after spurning the request of special prosecutor Archibald Cox for a three-month postponement.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., the chairman, said the committee decided in executive session that "duty requires it to decline" the Cox request for a delay.

He cited the Senate resolution ordering the investigation, and said the panel does not share the fear expressed by Cox that the courts might permit the guilty to go free because of the public inquiry.

Furthermore, Ervin said, the committee believes there is a greater likelihood that other people indicted in the Watergate case can receive fair trials in "an atmosphere of judicial calm" after the Senate investigators have completed their task.

And so, after an executive session that lasted more than an hour, the Watergate panel began questioning its 12th witness, Mrs. Sally Harmony, secretary to Watergate conspirator G. Gordon Liddy when he was counsel at the Committee for the Re-election of the President.

Mrs. Harmony reportedly typed the secret "Gemstone" logs of wiretaps on Democratic party officials.

Robert Reiser, a GOP aide who worked under Job Stuart Magruder, once the No. 2 man in the Nixon campaign organization, also was scheduled to testify.

The committee, which has faced pressure to speed the appearances of major figures in the affair, canceled the scheduled appearance of H. A. Post, owner of the Washington printing firm that prepared "Gemstone" stationery.

Reiser has been named by convicted Watergate conspirator James W. McCord Jr. as one who might be able to support his story that the Watergate bugging operation had the prior approval of Magruder, former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and former White House Counsel John W. Dean III.

As hearings in the Senate Caucus Room continue under official protest, there were these other developments:

The White House said it will not furnish investigators with logs of any conversations between President Nixon and his ousted counsel, Dean, about the Watergate scandal.

The comment was in response to published reports that Dean met with the President 30 to 40 times on various aspects of the Watergate cover-up.

The Washington Post has reported that when Dean is called as a witness he will allege Nixon was deeply involved in the cover-up and knew of executive clemency made to buy the silence of the seven men tried and convicted in the case.

The New York Times quoted sources close to Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox as saying the government will investigate whether Asst. Atty. Gen. Henry E. Peterson, who supervised the Watergate inquiry for a time, was involved in the cover-up. The Times said Peterson denied any involvement.

Columnist Jack Anderson said Mitchell told the Senate investigators last month that he approved those payments in an attempt to avoid embarrassing the Nixon campaign. Mitchell's action was said to have come after he had formally resigned as campaign director.

Lufkin Resigns

HARTFORD (AP) — State Environmental Protection Commission member Daniel W. Lufkin resigned his $22,266 post today.

A spokesman for Lufkin's office said the commissioner submitted his resignation to Gov. Thomas J. Meskill and Meskill, attending the National Governor's Conference at Lake Tahoe, Ne. confirmed Lufkin's decision.

The reasons for Lufkin's resignation were not revealed immediately. Lufkin called a mid-afternoon news conference in Hartford.

Lufkin, 41, is a former stock broker and multimillionaire. A Republican, he was named to head the Environmental Protection Department as its first commissioner in September 1971, shortly before the agency was established. His present term expires in March 1975.

Townwide Paper Collection Plan Proposed

BETTY RYDER (Herald Reporter)

The Town Conservation Commission wants a regular, separate, curbside collection of newspapers and is going to ask the Town Board of Directors to renegotiate the town's trash collection contract.

In a strongly worded resolution Monday night, it wants those negotiations to be made in the presence of Conservation Commission members, and wants pickup of newspapers to be on the regularly scheduled trash pickup days.

John FitzGerald, commission member, and Mrs. Terry Parla, commission chairman, made a motion that some of the funds earmarked for the bicycle trails be allocated for posting safe bicycling routes in town which would alert motorists that the particular area is a bicycle route.

Mrs. Parla referred to a recent letter received from Gov. Thomas Meskill commenting on the open space program and asking the commission for suggestions as to possible future needs in this community.

Among the suggestions the commission plans to submit are Hilliard Pond, Hockanum Linear Park, the acquisition of Manchester Water Co. land, Case Mountain, walkways and bicycle paths and the preservation of farmlands. It was further decided that the letter would indicate that other needs would be under study by the commission and would be submitted in the fall.

Mrs. Parla, commenting on the Case Mt. project, said the commission is still waiting for Town Manager Robert Weiss to present the results of the two appraisals made on the land.

She said, "HUD Housing and Urban Development is waiting to hear from the town before it can proceed."

Juan Sanchez, director of the Natural Science Center on Oak Grove St., where the commission meeting was held, spoke to members about the Center, its activities in conservation now, and its future plans.

Sanchez said, "Our main effort is to try to get teachers to bring classes out-of-doors, not just in science class. He showed examples of how the federal money would be spent."

Fuel Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate was expected to vote today on a bill requiring the Nixon administration to draw up a nationwide gas and oil distribution plan.

A resolution attached to the bill Monday urges the states to lower their maximum speed limits to 55 miles per hour or by 10 m.p.h., whichever is greater, to conserve fuel.

President Nixon, who was given power by Congress six weeks ago to come up with an allocation plan, decided on a voluntary approach.

Dollar Sinking

LONDON (AP) — Confidence in the U.S. dollar continued to sink in Europe today as the American currency hit new lows and the price of gold new highs for the fifth straight day.

Dealers again blamed the dollar's trouble largely on the Watergate scandal, as they have done each business day since the U.S. currency began its latest plunge last Wednesday.

But for the first time, leading bankers and treasury officials dropped hints that the present system of floating exchange rates may not be enough to avoid another international monetary crisis.

Postcard Registration Bill Dangerous

Pending in Congress is a bill which would allow federal postcard registration of voters.
We think it's a bad bill and deserves defeat.
The bill would far too easily open up registration to fraud. The nation is undergoing a crisis within its top leadership involving law violations in elections. There have been others, notably the 1960 election in which there were serious allegations — never fully pursued — that fraud cost Richard Nixon the states of Illinois and Texas, and hence, the election.
We need less of this type of thing, not more. The motives behind those asking for this bill are good; they want to broaden the base of democracy.
It sounds good in theory but we think in fact it could lend itself to manipulation of votes at a time when we need to restore faith in government and politics.

Sen. Hiram Fong, R-Hawaii, raised several legitimate points during Congressional debate when he opposed the measure.
"It is a bad bill," said Sen. Fong. "It is a bill which will open the opportunity for a lot of fraud. Anyone who wants to register need not seek a registrar and in many states the laws are so lenient the man can register whenever he wishes to register. In many cases, if a person wishes to register and is unable to get to the registrar, he need only call the registrar and they will send someone to him."

The Hawaii senator, who was joined in opposition by Sen. Sam Ervin, D-North Carolina, among others, also pointed out that the bill duplicates the efforts of the states in imposing a federal system of registration and would cost $100 million each time the cards are sent out.
Further, said Fong, a 1968 survey made of people who did not register to vote, showed more than half didn't because they weren't interested in politics.
"In addition, this bill will encourage a great deal of fraud. Let us see how this system would work... The postman would leave three or four postcards at every one of 88 million addresses in the United States. To be sure he catches everyone, he has to leave three or four cards at each address. Anyone who wishes to do so could fill a card out, saying he was the eligible voter. He could sign any name to the card.
"The registrant sends the card back to the registrar who registers the name on his voter register and sends back a receipt to the man who sent the postcard. This receipt is prima facie evidence that the holder of the receipt is an eligible and lawful voter.
"So when he presents the postcard on election day at the voting booth, there is no question that he is a qualified voter and can vote."
We think Sen. Fong makes sense. The bill is expensive, unnecessary and could well be an open door to a new type of election fraud.

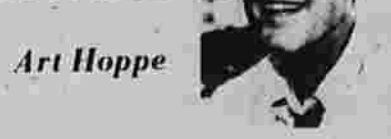

Could Be Costly

Ford didn't have a better idea this time — Argentine revolutionaries did. Rather than kidnap company officials and hold them for ransom, which can be a messy business — one attempt to kidnap a Ford executive failed — the Trotskyite People's Revolutionary Party hit upon the idea of extorting $1 million from the company just with the threat of kidnaping, bombing and other harassing activities.
The money, which Ford felt it had no choice but to come across with, will go to buy ambulances for hospitals and food and school supplies for slum children.
Revolutionary groups in other countries will no doubt be quick to recognize a good thing when they see it. It certainly beats going through such tedious legal processes as winning elections, establishing governments and passing laws to appropriate the assets of foreign, particularly American, businesses which, in the eyes of the revolutionaries, are the cause of all their social problems anyway.
It could become a regular thing. If Ford can afford $1 million this time, why not $2 million next time? And think of all the other companies ripe for plucking to greater or lesser degree.
Actually, the idea is not so new. In criminal circles it's called the protection racket.
The Argentine revolutionaries have simply elevated gangsterism to a new and unprecedented height.

The Innocent Bystander

Superior Sex Inevitably Wins

The fat hit the fire for Women's Lib the day Bobby Riggs, 55, ironed attractive, 30-year-old Margaret Court in their highly-publicized tennis match.
Across the land, male chauvinist hearts swelled in male chauvinist breasts. And within 24 hours, Lou Nova, the aging former heavyweight contender, challenged any female in the country to a fist fight.
Where would it all end? Where it all ended was with that swinging bachelor, Fred Frisbee. Frisbee, 48, immediately issued a public challenge to any young lady anywhere.
For more than 30 years, Frisbee had been challenging young ladies at tea dances, ice-skating rinks and cocktail lounges — his usual challenge being "Your place or mine?"
"Modesty aside," Frisbee told reporters, "I've got an enviable record. I'm a consistent high scorer, I've never been knocked off my feet, and my lifetime batting average would make your head swim."
Frisbee proposed a nationally televised match in Madison Square Garden — winner take all. "But I'm not putting up any of my own money," he said, "in deference to my amateur standing."
Asked what opponent he preferred, Frisbee quickly suggested Raquel Welch. "But in order to demonstrate male supremacy once and for all," he said, "I'm willing to take on Gloria Steinem."
What about Bella Abzug? "I'm afraid she lacks," Frisbee said hastily, "crowd appeal."
Ms. Steinem's response, if any, wasn't printed in family newspapers. But the controversy raged. It was fanned primarily by Frisbee, who went around the country giving interviews and appearing on talk shows to set forth his sexist views.
"These Women's Libbers," he would say contemptuously, "claim women are the equal of us men. But everybody knows that men are taller, heavier, more aggressive and, above all, stronger than women. We are, in fact, physically superior in every way."
While feminists ground their teeth, middle-aged male egos blossomed. Husbands grew irritable, ending any marital dispute with, "You wanna arm wrestle?"
Something obviously had to be done. At last a group of feminists accepted Frisbee's challenge, agreeing to put up an anonymous 18-year-old opponent.
"Just the right age," said Frisbee, rubbing his hands, "I know more tricks than she'll ever learn."
At last the big day dawned. The Las Vegas line was 10-1 on the experienced champ over the unknown contender. Frisbee danced confidently into the ring, humming "September Song." Into the other corner came a young woman named Mbonga, a 44-pound, 18-year-old female gorilla.
It was all over in one hug. From his hospital bed, where he was recovering from four broken ribs and a slipped disc, Frisbee murmured, "I guess strength isn't everything."
This became known as The Frisbee Theorem. Gradually, men realized that physical strength was the least admirable of human qualities and that it was essential to have reverence for life — all predominantly female virtues — that set humans apart from beasts.
So gradually men renounced such age-old manly pursuits as butchering each other, butchering other men, and settling intellectual arguments with a right to the whiskers. In fact, they gradually became more like the superior sex.
And the human race lived happily ever after.

Today's Thought

"All things come to thee O Lord." — I Chronicles 29:14
God created us with the ability to understand and use His world for our good. Using this creative ability we've converted the natural resources into tools providing one of the highest standards of living in the world. The poorest in our community would be wealthy in another part of the world.
We must remember that we did not create our life, we did not create our ability and we did not create the time which we use. These are all God given entrusted to our care to be used as good stewards of creation. This good life is wasted if we selfishly grasp, begrudge others and fail to share as we have received.

'Don't Get Caught'

WASHINGTON — President John Kennedy was bidding goodbye to a White House staffer about to depart on a trumped-up "official" mission to Paris, where he had a comely girl friend.
"Oh, yes, one more thing," said Kennedy cheerfully.
"Don't get caught."
I reminisce in reference to the moralistic yammering by critics who unfavorably compare President Nixon's reluctant investigation of Watergate with British Prime Minister Heath's prompt action in accepting the resignation of two lords of the realm for consorting with call girls. The two situations are not to be compared.
Had Watergate entailed illicit sexual coupling, Nixon would have acted just as promptly as his British ally, simply because it is always politically safe to take a stand against boy-girl naughtiness in government. In America as in England, the public tends to take a dim view — publicly at least — of servants of the state who are revealed to have been romantically wayward. In England, the scandalous revelations of a Cabinet member charged with overseeing the British rabbit's foot. I'd demand that politicians be "allowed to keep their private and their public lives to some extent apart."
Unfortunately, that is impossible in today's nervous international atmosphere. It may be true as many have observed, that politicians are most innocently employed when dallying with a bit of female fluff, but an uneasy public will always fear that in the capture of the moment they may whisper classified information instead of sweet nothings into those nearby ears.
Still, the British are lucky, thank their rabbit's foot. I'd demand that politicians be "allowed to keep their private and their public lives to some extent apart."
Again there was the question of the lord's indiscretion. As they

Tax in Your Tank?

WASHINGTON — Confidential talks between the Nixon administration and powerful congressional Democrats now point toward possible agreement soon on a five-to-ten-cent-a-gallon federal tax on gasoline designed both to brake inflation and reduce demand for scarce gasoline.
Whether this still tenuous agreement includes President Nixon is unclear. What is not unclear is that the growing pressure for raising between $2 billion and $10 billion a year in higher taxes — despite Mr. Nixon's explicit pledge not to raise taxes — now has powerful adherents in the White House (presidential consultant John Connally), the Congress (Rep. Wilbur Mills of Arkansas, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee) and the Treasury Department.
No one at Treasury is saying anything publicly, partly because Secretary of the Treasury William E. Simon presumably opposes any tax like. But the growing number of backers of his anti-inflation tax increase is now believed to embrace important Treasury officials, including Deputy Secretary William E. Simon who is taking a more aggressive anti-inflation line than Shultz.
Also pushing a far more activist anti-inflation policy is Connally, who spent more than two hours with Shultz and Simon on the question of inflation, a possible tax hike and related economic matters two weeks ago.
The tax under consideration is a flat five to ten cents on each gallon of gas. In addition to spending inflationary consumer spending, such a tax would also reduce demand for gas. With the energy squeeze now threatening a major crisis, gasoline is already driving up at some gas stations across the country and "voluntary" rationing appears probable in the heavy driving season just ahead.
Moreover, any reduction in gasoline consumption might have a favorable impact on the balance of payments, reducing the import of both crude oil and refined products.
But the primary target of top-level officials now eyeing the gas tax is not balance of payments but the desperate requirement for President Nixon to make a psychological breakthrough on the inflation front. A tax calculated to raise around $8 billion, more than enough to balance the federal budget for the year starting July 1, would be dramatic evidence abroad — and for inflation-minded American consumers — that one of the worst waves of inflation ever to wash over the American economy was at last being stemmed.
In addition to the gasoline tax, Connally and Mills, supported by the influential Dr. Arthur Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve System, are also pushing both Shultz and the White House hard for tighter anti-inflation controls.

Dollar Weakness Abroad Has Little Domestic Affect

NEW YORK (AP) — Consumers who insist on French champagne, Iranian caviar and Irish linen would be well advised to watch the headlines about the weakening dollar. If, on the other hand, you think domestic champagne is pretty good, you don't have to worry about any immediate impact on you. It also helps if you are not planning on traveling abroad or buying a wedding ring or a foreign sports car.

Economists say the beating of the dollar is taking abroad will produce negligible immediate effect for most consumers.

Dr. Milton Friedman, University of Chicago economist, says Americans tend to confuse the beating of the dollar with the rise in the price of gold.

Americans will pay more for gold jewelry and gold trifles abroad, up to 20 per cent more in Germany and 12 to 15 per cent in France. However, American travelers seem to be taking this in stride. American Express, for example, says its reservations for trips to Europe are slightly over last year.

But the number of foreigners coming to America for a vacation is up dramatically. James W. Thompson, manager of public relations for American Express, says the company has booked 3 1/2 times the number of tourists to the United States this year as last.

"The dollar devaluation has a hell of a lot to do with it," said Thompson, since foreign tourists can get more for their money in the United States than ever before.

On Thursday, the second day of the holiday, there will be a Memorial Service (Yizkor) at 10 a.m. at which a Torah scroll containing the Five Books of Moses will be presented to the congregation by Mrs. Leah Spector and children and dedicated to the memory of her husband and their father, Norman Spector.

Both the Confirmation Service this evening and the Torah Dedication on Thursday are in keeping with the spirit of Shavuot which commemorates the giving of the Ten Commandments to the children of Israel at Mt. Sinai 3500 years ago. Next to the Exodus from Egypt, Sinai constitutes the most important event in the Jewish story.

Shavuot follows 50 days after Passover and is therefore also known by its Greek designation Pentecost. In ancient Palestine it was an occasion for the people to make a pilgrimage to Jerusalem with gifts of the first fruits of the spring harvest.

The agricultural aspect of the holiday had great significance in the days of the Temple in Jerusalem, but after the destruction of the Temple the spiritual aspect of the holiday assumed the dominant role and thus it is observed by world Jewry today.

Hebron School Budget Still at $746,000

ANNE EMT Correspondent Tel. 223-9771

Following last week's rejection at a town meeting of the Board of Education's proposed 1973-1974 budget of $746,000, the Board of Finance, in executive session Sunday evening, voted to cut only $425 and submit, for the third time, a budget of $746,000.

The Board of Education's original requests amounted to $771,324, which reflected a $107,700 increase over the present operating budget of $663,624.

The Board of Finance reduced these requests by $42,000. Of this reduction $17,100 was for transportation for double sessions at Rham High School. $20,000 was for teacher's salaries and $5,000 was for an additional well at Gilead Hill School.

At the first budget meeting, voters rejected the $729,324 budget on the basis that the school board should not be handicapped with operating at a possible deficit when it has no control over the regional board and continuing through tough sessions at the high school.

Subsequently, the finance board reinstated the $746,000 budget on the basis that the school board should not be handicapped with operating at a possible deficit when it has no control over the regional board and continuing through tough sessions at the high school.

Next Vote The finance board is asking the Board of Selectmen to call a town meeting for June 11 for a third vote on the budget.

According to its chairman, Richard Grant, if the $746,000 budget is adopted, a mill rate of 74 mills, 2 mills higher than the present, appears to be tentative.

Grant explained that by re-examining revenues, one-half a mill can still be reduced; however, "it will be very, very tight as to not gain or lose" next year.

The board is basing the additional one-half mill cut on delinquent taxes.

Mrs. Finney Named Pro Tem President

HARTFORD (AP)—The new president pro tempore of the Connecticut Senate says she has "some trepidation" about assuming the post.

But Sen. Florence D. Finney, R-Greenwich, told her colleagues after the election Monday that "I expect everybody in this group will help me."

Mrs. Finney, 70, was selected by the state's 23 Republican senators to fill the post vacated by Sen. Peter L. Cashman, R-Lyme. Cashman will replace T. Clark Hull as Connecticut's lieutenant governor.

The new president pro tem, who was elected without opposition, will preside over the chamber when the lieutenant governor is away. And one senator remarked after her election by acclamation: "Nobody will ever disagree with her."

Mrs. Finney's prestige in the 36-member Senate is built on her seniority in age and service. She has served continuously in the Senate since 1954 and was a representative for six years prior to that.

She is one of the body's three female members and holds a record for not having missed a session day throughout her term of office.

"I feel what Mrs. Finney has to offer — her compassion, her humane outlook — will provide a needed balance as we begin to plan for the next session," Sen. Samuel B. Hellier, R-West Mystic, said.

"I'm sure she will keep all of us in line," said Sen. P. Edward Power, R-Torrington. He said the new president pro tem would bring dignity to the office.

"I admire the people in this Senate," Mrs. Finney said in remarks after her election by acclamation. "Each of you in his own way has something to offer. I would hope we could get all of this together to make a real contribution to the people of Connecticut."

The senators gave Mrs. Finney a standing ovation. Several male senators added friendly pats on the cheek.

Mrs. Finney will be sworn in June 12 during a special Senate session.

Vernon Action Tabled On Peddler Law

Action was tabled Monday night by the Town Council on a proposed amendment to an ordinance concerning peddlers, hawkers, solicitors, canvassers and salesmen, until further study is made of the original ordinance.

Mayor Frank McCoy has received some complaints about the rash of "stands" going up, especially along Rt. 53. Complainers have come in from some businessmen who said they resent these stands being set up along the street by persons who do not have to pay anything other than a small fee, while they (the businessmen) have to pay taxes for their buildings.

The present fee charged is $10, the proposed amendment to the ordinance would increase this fee. Town Attorney Abbott Schwelb expressed concern about a complete denial of this type of activity as being unconstitutional.

Some council members expressed concern for farmers who set up stands in the summer to sell their products. Mayor McCoy said the ordinance is not intended to stop that type of sales.

However, Atty. Schwelb said there can be no exceptions in the ordinance as far as exemptions are concerned. He said you can't selectively enforce an ordinance.

Councilman Robert Holey said he felt the foremost concern is a public safety involved in the rash of sales places along the highway. He said the safety issue will still be there even if the fee is increased.

Mayor McCoy also explained that there will be changes made in the zoning laws which may take care of the problem with "hawkers." He said he thinks there should be a tightening of enforcement of permits, credentials, receipts, as far as practicable.

"Whether or not a complete denial of this type of activity would be desirable or could be great for family unity." After that, he'll announce that charcoal broiled steak (all you can eat) will be served at 6 o'clock sharp.

"This is fine with me," said one daughter. "But I have to leave for dancing at 6:15." This is my riding night, "I'm getting fat. Three dinners is more temptation than any woman can handle."

"You heard your mother," said his husband who was listening behind his newspaper. "And that settles our how everyone here for dinner tonight at 6 o'clock sharp!"

Yale Graduates First Coed Class

NEW HAVEN (AP) — The first coeducational class to complete four years at Yale University was graduated Monday amid urgings that the Yale League university admit more women students to the school.

Sandra Mayerson of Dayton, Ohio, who was secretary of her residential college at Yale, said the biggest problem with being a "pioneer" at Yale was that there were too few women.

"It was hard to find a sympathetic shoulder to cry on," she said.

A total of 230 women and 1,029 men entered Yale as freshmen in 1969, when the university became coeducational.

Because of accelerated studies, leaves and dropouts, they faced slightly better as a group than the men, whose class number dipped to 940 during the four years.

Wyn Kelly of Greenwich, who had not attended a coed school before entering Yale, said one of her biggest gains was having the friendship of men.

"I would much rather have that than a weekend in Newport," she said, referring to the practice at all-male schools of bringing in dates from outside the campus.

Watertown (AP) — Five sixth graders at Henning Park School will never have to worry about bringing a name for themselves.

Their names are Alan Ladd, Wayne King and Dean Martin. They weren't all named in honor of the show business performers, Jennifer Jones says.

Jenny Jones says she has never seen or heard of any movies Jennifer made. And Alan Ladd says he saw a couple of old Westerns, but "I can't remember them."

Anyone interested in discussing the various positions should contact Elaine Bugbee, vice chairman, or Russell Stevenson.

Based on this, and previous inspection, the Planning and Zoning Commission last night agreed to request Town Counsel Robert King to draw up a permit renewal for the campground.

The co-owners of Del Aire appeared at the PZC meeting last night to request approval of an additional 43 lots, which would make a total of 90. Also, the sought approval of an additional toilet.

PZC members pointed out that only flush toilets are allowed according to regulations, and with 90 sites, two additional facilities would be required.
