Nixon Papers Wanted By Senate Panel

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Watergate committee members are suggesting President Nixon will not be subpoenaed to testify, but there was disagreement today over what to do about presidential papers pertaining to Watergate.

One senator called the papers public records that "belong to the American public." Another said he was not concerned about getting the documents, that the committee could do its job without them.

Nixon has told committee Chairman Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., that he will not appear before the panel "under any circumstances" or give it access to the papers.

On a television news-interview program Sunday, committee members Sens. Edward J. Gurney, R-Fla., and Herman E. Talmadge, D-Ga., said Nixon should make the papers available to the committee.

"I've always thought that public records belong to the American public," Talmadge said. He said the Senate should consider subpoenaing the papers if Nixon doesn't turn them over voluntarily.

Talmadge said that, while he didn't think it would be possible for Nixon to be subpoenaed, "I think a committee of Congress has a right to look at public records."

Gurney, who was interviewed with Talmadge on the ABC network's "Issues and Answers" program, said he felt Nixon should turn over to the committee all documents with either a direct or indirect bearing "on this Watergate affair and who is involved and at happened."

Connecticut, Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr., R-Conn., another committee member, was quoted in a newspaper interview as saying that Nixon's refusal to appear or turn over the documents didn't bother him.

"We're going to be able to do our job with or without him," Weicker said.

Through Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler, Nixon has said that he will discuss Watergate "in an appropriate forum" after the Senate committee concludes its hearings on the June 17, 1972, break-in at Democratic national headquarters.

Last week the committee, which resumes its work Tuesday with testimony from former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, formally asked for permission to examine and photocopy all White House Watergate files.

In a letter to Ervin Saturday, Nixon said: "No president could function if the private papers of his office, prepared by his personal staff, were open to public scrutiny."

The papers the committee wants include documents allegedly in the White House file of former presidential aides, including John W. Dean III, fired by Nixon as presidential counsel.

Ervin has replied: "I think that it is very unfortunate that the President of the United States is unwilling to make a full disclosure to the American people of all that he knows."

However, Ervin also has said he opposes the issuance of a subpoena to produce the records.

Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee, the ranking Republican on the committee, said he hoped some means other than a subpoena "can be worked out" to get Nixon's version of Watergate.

Another committee member, Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii, said Nixon's appearance before the committee "may not be vital to the committee's work," but, "I think it is vital to his (Nixon's) future. Silence does not necessarily indicate guilt. Unfortunately many people do interpret silence in that manner."

In other Watergate developments: —A Gallup Poll released Sunday reported that 71 per cent of those questioned believe the President had some involvement in the bugging or covering up. The survey also said 18 per cent feel Nixon should be removed from office.

—Senate Majority Whip Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., said Nixon's decision not to release the Watergate papers detracted from his credibility. "The only thing he can do now is ... stop isolating himself from the public," he told the CBS-TV program "Face the Nation."

—The New York Times, citing "informed sources," reported in today's edition that Republican efforts to sabotage Democratic candidates in the 1972 presidential campaign were a two-part effort approved by top Nixon aides and financed with more than $100,000 in unreported campaign contributions.

—Jack Anderson said in his column for today that the White House maintained a secret list of Republican senators who displeased President Nixon.

Watergate TV

NEW YORK (AP) — The three television networks will provide live coverage of this week's Senate Watergate committee hearings on a rotating basis.

ABC will cover the resumed hearings at 10 a.m. EDT Tuesday, when former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell is scheduled to begin testifying.

Live coverage will shift to NBC on Wednesday and to CBS on Thursday.

Pact Signed

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers today signed the first direct consular agreement between the United States and Czechoslovakia's Communist government.

Rogers called the agreement, which was seven months in preparation, "an essential building block in the new relationship we are constructing between Czechoslovakia and the United States."

Until now, diplomatic relations between Prague and Washington have been governed by the Vienna Convention, which laid down broad basic rules for dealings between states.

Dollar Unstable

LONDON (AP) — The dollar recovered some ground on European money markets today after the continent's central bankers hinted their governments might protect the American currency but fell again when no intervention developed.

"The situation remains extremely unstable," said one key foreign exchange banker.

"Everyone had expected an intervention," said a Zurich banker. "That's why the dollar shot up in the morning. It did not come, so it came down again."

Although the European central bankers said they had agreed on a plan to support the beleaguered dollar, France's finance minister said it was up to the United States to act first.

Nixon In K.C.

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon files to Kansas City today for the swearing-in of Clarence M. Kelley as director of the FBI.

Nixon planned to speak briefly at the afternoon ceremonies at the Federal Office Building in Kelley's hometown.

It was the President's first public appearance since June 15, when he went to Pekin, Ill., for the dedication of a memorial congressional research center honoring the late Sen. Everett M. Dirksen.

Beating The Heat

With temperatures rising to new highs, it isn't everyone who can lay claim to have a real "cool" job. Robert Pitruzzello does have one however at the L. T. Wood ice plant in Manchester. For many others, not tied down to jobs, there are swimming pools; but, unless you have air conditioning or some other cool job; about all you can do is talk about the heat — and sweat it out. French Atomic Tests Anticipated

PARIS (AP) — France today warned commercial planes to stay far away from the Mururoa Atoll starting Wednesday, indicating that the first blast in its hotly disputed South Pacific atomic tests probably will come late this week.

An advisory issued to civil airlines in London and Paris told pilots that a zone 200 miles around Mururoa as well as 500 miles to the east was forbidden to air navigation. In the past, such warnings were put out 48 hours before any explosion. This meant the first test could be expected anytime after Thursday midnight.

The tiny atoll test site lies 900 miles southeast of Tahiti. The huge area of the forbidden zone caused speculation that a strong charge — perhaps as much as a megaton — will be exploded.

The warning to aircraft came just 24 hours after a similar notice to surface shipping. The Otogo, a New Zealand frigate sent to protest the tests, was reported under surveillance by a French plane and a minesweeper just outside the forbidden zone.

The Weather

Fair and less humid tonight with the low 65-70 after a possible evening thunderstorm. Fair and less humid Tuesday, the high in the mid to upper 80s with some temperatures around 90.

Precipitation probability is 30 per cent tonight and 10 per cent Tuesday.

Wednesday's outlook partly cloudy and warm.

Weiss Tells Why He Allowed Grads Use of Nike Site

Town Manager Robert Weiss has sent the following letter to each member of the Manchester Board of Directors, explaining why he granted permission to the graduating class of Manchester High School to use the Nike Site for its party June 21.

"As you know, there has been considerable static over the use of the Nike Site on graduation night. I hope this memo will answer questions and put this activity into proper perspective.

"For a few years the senior class has held an informal get-together at Case Mountain following graduation. The owners of Case Mountain declined to permit the use of their property this year. For several weeks prior to the graduation, responsible members of the class tried to obtain a suitable location without success.

"About two days before graduation, I received three phone calls. One was from one of the owners of Case Mountain expressing his concern that he anticipated unauthorized use of the mountain on graduation night. He made a strong demand that he expected police protection for his property.

"The second call was from a leader of the senior class expressing his serious concern about what might happen following graduation. He feared, based on talk at the school, that there would be substantial gatherings at Case Mountain and also general touring in cars throughout town and elsewhere in the area following graduation. He formerly requested opening of the Teen Center and Nike Site as a gathering place for the class where students could exchange autographs and visit.

A pledge was given that every attempt would be made to maintain order and exclude alcoholic beverages.

The third call was from the chairman of the Youth Commission reiterating the question and supporting the opening of the Nike Site.

"After considering all of the facts, including the fact that much of the work in developing the Teen Center had been done by members of this particular class, I granted permission to open the area. No formal program was provided, such as a concert, since this was not what the group wanted.

Americans Kept In Custody Over Weekend

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — President Idi Amin today ordered the release of 112 Americans detained for two days in the eastern African nation of Uganda, the U.S. Embassy reported.

Amin, an unpredictable strongman at odds with Washington, had the young American volunteers taken into custody Saturday after their plane made a refueling stop in Uganda on the way to their Peace Corps posts in Africa.

Amin disclosed the release order in a message to the U.S. Embassy in the Ugandan capital of Kampala.

American spokesmen said it had not yet been decided when or by what route the volunteers would leave Uganda.

There was no immediate indication what convinced Amin, a burly former heavyweight boxer, to let the Americans go. He had said Sunday they would be held until he got assurances from the countries to which they were heading that they indeed were Peace Corps volunteers and not "mercenaries."

The young Americans — 49 women and 63 men — spent Saturday night under armed guard at the Entebbe Airport near Kampala.

They were transferred Sunday, still under armed guard, to a hotel on nearby Lake Victoria, where they spent the evening dining and dancing with the few guards looking on.

A U.S. Embassy official with the volunteers at Entebbe said there was "no great outpouring of joy" when he told the Americans of the release order.

Shortly before the word came through, one of the Americans said by telephone he would not mind staying on at the hotel a while longer.

"Another day or two would be fine with us," said Ken Beck, 25, of Walla Walla, Wash. "We're all really having a good time. The worst is over and everyone is happy and well."

Beck described chess games, tennis matches, guitar playing and rules against straying off the hotel grounds.

"We are all eager to get to Zaire where we're going to teach, but we're all having a good time," he said.

Zaire is the former Congo. In Washington, the State Department listed 111 as being held. There was no explanation for the discrepancy between the U.S. figure and the 112 listed by the Uganda government.

The Hartford Electric Light Co. (HELCO) Manchester office today requested its electric customers to avoid using unnecessary appliances or lighting until further notice.

In a statement issued at midday, the company said: "The Hartford Electric Light Co. is requesting that its electric customers not use any unnecessary electric appliances or lighting until further notice today.

"This request is being made by electric companies throughout New England, because mechanical problems have halted several generating plants in the region, and the extreme heat has considerably increased the demand for electricity.

"Your assistance by curtailing your use of electricity should allow us to continue to provide uninterrupted service to our customers. We will continue to keep you informed," the statement said.

Exports Add $2 Billion To Nation's Food Bill

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A huge export drain on U.S. farm products, mainly wheat, corn and soybeans, is adding an extra $2 billion to consumer food bills this year, says the Agriculture Department.

Even with the freeze announced by President Nixon last month, retail food prices are expected to climb at least 12 per cent this year. Department analysts says at least 1.5 to 2 per cent of that increase can be linked directly to farm exports.

In all, food spending may rise to $135 billion this year from about $125 billion in 1972. Higher prices are the main reason for the $10-billion boost, there are more mouths to feed. And they are eating billion of the expected increase in spending can be traced to higher prices caused by the biggest flood of farm exports on record.

For the year that ended June 30, the shipments totaled more than $12 billion or 50 per cent more than in 1971-72. Higher prices accounted for part of the gain, but the amount of farm products ordered by foreign countries has soared, too.

The effect has been to deplete reserves of grain and oilseed, prompting the Nixon administration to restrict further exports of soybeans, oil and similar products until new crops are harvested next fall.

The exports also have contributed to higher feed costs, forcing slowdown and even cutbacks in the nation's output of meat, poultry and dairy products. A further complication has been the price freeze, which growers and processors blame for a reduction in profits needed to spur production expansion.

Don Paarlberg, director of economics for USDA, says he does not think the United States is embarking on an era of permanent export rationing, despite the current curbs on soybeans and other high-protein feed.

"I hope not, and I labor to see that it does not occur," Paarlberg said in an interview. "When we need exports as much as we do in order to improve our trade balance and to show that the dollar is a worthwhile currency, to restrict our exports is a very serious matter," Paarlberg said.

The big trigger was the sale last year of 440 million bushels of U.S. wheat, one-fourth the 1972 crop, to the Soviet Union. Russia also took upwards of 275

Teacher Takes Leave To Serve As CEA President

DANBURY (AP) — Arthur Colley of Danbury will take a leave of absence until next July from his teaching post at Danbury High School to serve as the president of the Connecticut Education Association.

JACK LEMMON is usually known for playing comic roles but he has had his share of dramatic parts. Some examples, from left, a TV production of "The Day After Tomorrow" (Lemmon played John Wilkes Booth), an episode of "The Untouchables" (Lemmon played a doctor), "Days of Wine and Roses" (for which he won an Academy Award best actor nomination) and his current "Save the Tiger."

WHAT DOES NOT HAPPEN MAY BE VERY IMPORTANT. If you have a good memory, you can recall what has happened and draw useful conclusions. It is somewhat more difficult to recall what has not happened, but this type of memory is worth more than emeralds and rubies. I can recall a bridge hand that proves the point.

March of Dimes Honors Bronnelli

Attorney William Bronnelli of Manchester was honored at the Hartford County March of Dimes Annual Awards Dinner held recently at the Hartford Hilton. Bronnelli served as chairman for the very successful March of Dimes Walk-A-Thon sponsored in Manchester last November. He is shown here receiving a briefcase from Harry Burke, campaign director for the Hartford County Chapter. Bronnelli is also a newly elected member of the Hartford County Chapter March of Dimes volunteer executive committee for the coming year.

Film Theaters Double As Community Centers

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's movie theaters are branching out into serving as centers for community activities during their off-hours, reports Roy L. White, president of the National Association of Theater Owners.

"As citizens and business men, we are interested in whatever they can do to help foster better local conditions, and their unique facilities offer them this opportunity," says the head of the organization that represents most of the country's movie houses and drive-in theaters.

In Los Angeles the Pacific Theaters circuit regularly works with the city's churches at Easter. Last year, for example, it threw open the doors of its Pastimes Theater for all of Holy Week for a series of free showings of Cecil B. DeMille's film classic "King of Kings." More than 20,000 people attended.

In Detroit, in common with many municipalities, has a formidable drug problem. The Suburban Detroit Theaters chain there has provided free tickets to performances to teenagers and young adults who faithfully participate in health center rehabilitation programs.

The same circuit, in line with a pattern commonly followed by movie houses elsewhere, frequently invites occupants of orphanages and homes for juvenile delinquents to be its guests. It also encourages schools and hospitals to use its auditoriums for graduation exercises and other events.

In the Miami area many movie operators grant free admission to the blind. The Westmet Theaters circuit there offers film showings gratis to convalescing youngsters from local hospitals and residents of homes for the aged.

In many towns, White notes, the local theater hosts fund-raising projects. A special performance of "Living Free" at Atlanta produced more than $2,000 for that city's zoo.

When in a Junior Chamber of Commerce in St. Cloud, Minn., needed to assist its finances so it could sustain its program, a theater there came to the rescue by letting the group borrow its popcorn-making machine to raise money.

Even the military has been a beneficiary of theater good works. Free tickets were presented to personnel of an Airlift Wing based at Fort Meade, Calif. This incident, according to the unit's commanding officer, helped insure the success of a program fostering maximum use of auto seats.

A striking example of theater assistance to the community has been evidenced in Lincoln, Neb., headquarters for the Cooper Foundation, which derives most of its income from a sizeable group of theater properties. From 1956 through 1970 the Foundation, which is still functioning, donated more than $2 million to a wide spectrum of educational, charitable, search and other organizations, mainly located in Nebraska and Colorado.

Bolton Meeting Planned To Push I-84

Donna Holland, Correspondent
The selectmen have received a letter from Barbara Boster, assistant director of the Eastern Connecticut Development Council, who had previously met with First Selectman Richard Morra, Joseph Licitra, and town council Marshall Taylor to learn more about Bolton.

Following a suggestion by Taylor, she said she will arrange a meeting of the Economic Development Commission from towns along the proposed route of I-84, hopefully early in the fall.

She is also planning to ask the council to pass a resolution in support of completing the highway. Mrs. Boster said she needs documentation from towns like Bolton that I-84 is wanted and needed.

The selectmen have forwarded a copy of the letter to Taylor, chairman of the Economic Development Committee, to see if the committee would like to take any action.

No Money For Bolton
Recently the citizens of Connecticut were informed by Gov. Meskill that the State of Connecticut had made available over $4.5 million to create summer employment positions for unemployed adults and youngsters of the state.

First Selectman Richard Morra contacted the State EEA Director John Finck, to find out about summer employment positions. He learned that rural towns had been left out of the allotment completely.

Morra then wrote to Meskill saying the reasons stated by Finck concerning not allowing any small towns their per capita allotment did not explain anything except to imply there was no poor people anywhere but in the cities.

Morra ended by saying, "You must remember that there are some poor white people in the country also."

In a letter received this week Meskill says that recipients of the $4.5 million are cities and towns that have participated in the program in the past.

He said Bolton is a member of the consortium established through the Capital Region Council of Governments for the purpose of centralizing the EEA program in the Capital Region.

Meskill ended the letter by saying, "Although it does not say your immediate needs may I recommend that you be

Impact Study Needed

The Penn Central issue is coming to a head.
The issue is being debated before a federal court by government officials, the railroad, and other interested parties. The Congress has been conducting lengthy hearings on what should be done to keep the nation's major railroad from being liquidated.
Ironically, one of the most pertinent arguments for keeping the railroad intact was made recently by Connecticut Gov. Thomas J. Meskill who pointed out the environmental impact of abandoning or severely restricting rail freight service in the Nutmeg State. Extension of this impact to other states served by Penn Central makes it a major concern to all of us.
It would appear that in these days when almost every major project, public and private, is requiring an environmental impact study; there should be an environmental study made before any liquidation or partial liquidation of Penn Central is allowed to go ahead.

As strongly as we are opposed to the use of federal funds to bail out Penn Central stockholders and management; we are open to limited use of federal funds to protect the environment from degradation which might arise from wholesale curtailment of freight and passenger service. This might mean, as much as we dislike it, a subsidy to Penn Central until an environmentally suitable method (or alternative) for liquidation is found.
The cost of such a limited subsidy might well be peanuts compared to the cost to the environment, to shippers, and to commuters; should Penn Central be allowed to disintegrate before all economic and ecological alternatives can be evaluated.

Seeds Of A Police State

It was a minor incident and no far-reaching conclusions should be drawn from the unfortunate experience of a demonstrator during a presidential visit Pekin, Ill., recently.
First, police and Secret Service agents made the man take his "Impeach Nixon" sign off its pole, then ordered him a remove it from its plywood backing.
When he gave them an argument, they arrested him and, according to a wire service report, hustled him around a corner where an officer clamped metal keys over his mouth, jerking his head back and forcing him to his knees. Then he was handcuffed.

news photographer had taken a picture — shot him?
Yes, the demonstrator in Pekin may have been a kook just as drug pushers may be "the very vermin of humanity," as Myles J. Ambrose, a federal drug abuse official, said recently in defense of lawmen who have mistakenly broken into homes of innocent citizens and terrorized them on more than one occasion.
But we could do worse than recall a statement attributed to an anti-Nazi martyr whose name at one time was well-known in America:
"In Germany they first came for the Communists, and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a Communist. Then they came for the Jews and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a Jew. Then they came for the trade unionists, and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a trade unionist. Then they came for the Catholics, and I didn't speak up because I was a Protestant. They came for me — and by that time no one was left to speak up."

If it was a case of "police brutality," or just the use of somewhat more physical force than might have been necessary, it is not the first time it has happened in this country, or anywhere else, and won't be the last. And after all, presidents have been known to be assassinated during public appearances.
Even if we grant this, however, and even if we dismiss the demonstrator as some sort of kook or a troublemaker, there was also the unpleasant sight of a policeman with a rifle shouting from the top of a nearby building: "No picture!"
What would he have done if some of the demonstrators had taken a picture — shot him?

Yes, the demonstrator in Pekin may have been a kook just as drug pushers may be "the very vermin of humanity," as Myles J. Ambrose, a federal drug abuse official, said recently in defense of lawmen who have mistakenly broken into homes of innocent citizens and terrorized them on more than one occasion.

Today in History

By The Associated Press
Today is Monday, July 9, the 190th day of 1973. There are 175 days left in the year.
Today's highlight in history:
On this date in 1816, Independence was declared its independence from Spain.
On this date:
In 1810, Napoleon Bonaparte annexed Holland to France.
In 1819, the inventor of the sewing machine, Elias Howe, was born in Spencer, Mass.
In 1860, President Zachary Taylor died at the White House after serving only one year and four months.
In 1940, during World War II, the Duke of Windsor was appointed governor of the Bahamas.

In 1947, the engagement of Princess Elizabeth of Britain to Philip Mountbatten was announced.
One year ago: Democrats were gathering in Miami Beach for a national convention.
Today's birthdays: King Hassan II of Morocco is 64. The head of the U.S. delegation to NATO, Donald Rumsfeld, is 41.
Thought for today: "You cannot teach a man anything; you can only help him to find it within himself."—Galileo, Italian astronomer and physicist, 1564-1642.

Senators Fight For "Right To Life"

By Lee Roderick
(Special to The Herald)
WASHINGTON — "As we stand here on this day, quite literally thousands of unborn children will be sacrificed before the sun sets in the name of the new ethic...the issue at stake is not only what we do to unborn children, but what we do to ourselves by permitting them to be killed."
Senator James Buckley (Conservative-Republican-New York) has been writing, has opened a Congressional challenge to the Supreme Court's recent rulings on abortion which he said mean, in effect, that a pregnant woman has a legal right to destroy the life of her unborn child at any time prior to birth. The decisions came early this year in Roe against Wade and Doe against Bolton.
In an attempt to counteract the rulings, Buckley has introduced in the Senate a constitutional amendment guaranteeing to "all human beings, including their unborn offspring at every stage of their biological development" equal protection under the constitution. His amendment, however, says the provision would not apply "in an emergency when a reasonable medical certainty exists that continuation of the pregnancy will cause the death of the mother."
The New Yorker was joined by a half dozen other senators as co-sponsors of the amendment, whose chance of enactment hinges on the gathering of considerable public support. Sponsors represent the full range of the political spectrum in the Senate and include Westerners Mark Hatfield (R-Ore.) and Wallace F. Bennett (R-Utah).
Buckley said the high court's "contravene the explicit will of every state legislature in the country" and "removed every vestige of legal protection hitherto enjoyed by the child in the mother's womb."
If the court's reasoning behind the decision is logically extended, he said, it "could apply with equal force to the genetically deficient infant, retarded child, or the insane or senile adult."
Buckley continued: "...to be created human is no longer a guarantee that one will be possessed of inalienable rights in the sight of the law. The court has extended to government, it would seem, the power to decide the terms and conditions under which membership in good standing in the human race is determined."
An editorial from California Medicine, the official journal of the California Medical Association, was cited by Buckley in support of his contention that the high court decision is a step toward other critical questions regarding life or death.
"In defiance of the long-held Western ethic of intrinsic and equal value for every human life regardless of its stage, condition, or status, abortion is becoming accepted by society as moral, right, and even necessary," stated the California publication in September, 1970.
In discussing the expanding role of physicians in deciding who will live, the editorial added, "one may anticipate further developments of this role as the problem of birth control and birth selection are extended inevitably to death selection and death control whether by the individual or by society."

Democratic Collision Course

WASHINGTON — Practical Democratic politicians, while salivating over Watergate, have a rising fear of their own: the 1974 national party conference will become a bloody arena of ideological assault from the party's left wing.
The national party conference to write a party charter is, in fact, a legacy of the McGovern-dominated national convention in Miami Beach. Almost unimagined, the convention required a midterm national conference.

On the short term, the conference may attempt to reconstitute the Democratic National Committee so as to result in the purge of moderate Democrats before his term ends in 1976. On the long term, the conference may attempt to lay the groundwork for a radically reformed Democratic party requiring ideological tests for membership, thus transforming the two-party system.
But apprehensions eased when Terry Sanford, former governor of North Carolina and now president of Duke University, was named chairman of the Charter Commission. Regulars felt that Sanford, not wild-eyed radicals, would keep the 1974 conference in order. No practical politician could see any good coming out of a midterm conference, but they felt at least that Sanford would limit any damage.

From the beginning, however, Sanford tangled with Strauss. While Strauss's quest for unity was charming most of the party from Ted Kennedy to George Wallace, his relations with Sanford chilled. Sanford was accused by Strauss of being a "hard-boiled McGovern operative who is the Communist's director of field operations, is passionately anti-Strauss." The commission's regional staffers do not disguise their disdain for the party's national chairman.
What makes this pertinent is the 1974 party conference's power to change the membership of the national committee — stack it, in effect, to oust Strauss. One plan would reduce Southern votes, moving the committee's power balance leftward.
The commission's activity transcends Bob Strauss, however. If Rick Stearns is the commission's operational godfather, his theoretical godfather is Prof. James MacGregor Burns. Active in the Charter Commission's work, Burns has long advocated sewing the Democratic party into an ideological straitjacket.
Therefore, moderates are concerned that the 1974 conference will attempt to "Europeanize" the party — tailor it to Washington European parties with membership cards, party dogma and strict discipline. Although nothing that ambitious will be ventured this soon, the party charter to be drafted next year could be a step down that grim path.
The problem facing mainstream Democrats flooded them in McGovern commission days: the only Democrats devoting time and energies to such lethal games are the activists on the left. Sanford's critics complain bitterly that the commission's next meeting has been scheduled at Colorado State University July 21-23. Some party regulars on the continent don't want to spend a midsummer weekend sleeping in a dormitory, eating in college cafeterias and considering disputatious points of arcane procedure.
The same holds true for the 1974 conference itself, which may be even more unrepresentative of the party than the 1972 convention if its delegates are picked through the caucus system.
Sanford told us he has no intention of trying to reconstitute the national committee, purge Strauss or "Europeanize" the party. But considering his staff and the probable delegates to the 1974 conference, it is at least questionable whether Terry Sanford can control the tiger of reform he now rides.

The Time They Are A-Changing

There's been a move afoot in Congress to extend Daylight Savings Time year around. And a good thing, too.
We all know getting up an hour earlier would be good for us. But nobody wants to. So by simply extending Daylight Savings Time year around, we could all sleep as late as usual and still get up an hour earlier. Which certainly makes sense.
We've also been fooling around with the idea of eliminating the February 28th day. But why we can't afford to lose Valentine's Day, a three-day weekend in celebration of The Father of Our Country's birth (where would our country be without a father?) and Leap Year's Day, on which we honor the Women's Liberation Movement.
The weather's equally bad in January. Abolishing January would be a giant stride toward curing the common cold. Furthermore, by eliminating New Year's Day we'd eliminate, in one fell swoop, 31.2 million hangers, which are a monumental headache for the fashion industry.
But we could extend the season into June, which should be made twice as long. Doubling June would delight parents by doubling June marriages and graduations. June's far too short.
There'll be a great deal of irresponsible pressure to do the limit those of us who are paid weekly can get through without going into lock party's Charter suit itself. But I feel strongly that the date on which you observe Thanksgiving should be a matter of individual choice as well as when all your relatives are out of town.

Labor Day has to go in order to stop the carnage on our Nation's highways over the Labor Day weekend. We might call it National Safety Day instead. And Easter's a wretched. No one knows when it is, including the Greeks, and it always rains. The first sunny day of Spring in April would be nice.
But let's not fool around with Christmas. Some things are sacred. Rather, let's abolish the two hectic weeks before Christmas and the dreary one afterward, which will save a lot of cleaning up.
So the true four-day week is only a start in adjusting our watches and calendars so that we'll be healthy, wealthy and happy forever. It's a wonder our Congressmen haven't thought of it before. After all, they've been working a three-day week for years.

Stockbrokers, Government Concerned About Confidence

By JOHN CUNNEIFF
AP Business Analyst

Editors — This is the final column of a series on the problems faced by small investors when their brokers go out of business.
Seeking the answer, they have found a multitude of explanations rather than just one, but a common theme seems to be that investors have lost confidence, not only in themselves but in the fairness and safety of the market.
Sindlinger & Co., a market research firm that tests sentiment on many subjects by almost continuous telephone calls throughout the country, maintains that since the first of the year 3.5 million accounts have been closed.
Whatever the loss, it is substantial and is worrying industry and government officials, and an increasing number of corporate executives whose companies depend on stock market financing.
There is justification for such feelings. During the 1968-1970 collapse of many brokerage firms, mainly and ironically because they couldn't handle all the business that came their way, many investors had their money tied up for months.
And now, because so many customers have either closed their accounts or permitted them to remain dormant, more firms are in danger of collapse, their income insufficient to cover their operating costs.
The Securities Industry Protection Corp. has 87 liquidations on its books, most of them resulting at least partly from "poor books and records." And the New York Stock Exchange has 68 firms under scrutiny, with nine of them considered for liquidation.

Compared with the confusion of 1968-1970, most of these liquidations will be handled smoothly. The endangered Big Board firms can be merged into more prosperous firms, some business sold off or their accounts transferred.
In other words, the investor today is generally considered by government and industry officials to be better protected than he was five or three years ago. But some brokers complain that the customer doesn't feel that way.
Here is a typical complaint heard in the financial district here, expressed by two men who asked to be identified only as "two Wall Street leaders," a timidity of those who work in regulated industries.
"The public would be a lot more reassured if he had more information about SIPC, but SIPC has rules and regulations that make that difficult. It's almost impossible for a firm to refer to SIPC in an advertisement.
"Everything that can be printed about this is in a 11-page brochure that SIPC itself distributes. We can't summarize; we have to use their language.
"About all a broker can do is hang their logotype in the window. He can't say his customers are covered for up to $50,000. And as a result, the public is poorly informed."
Ironically, the restrictions on advertising were imposed by SIPC in the interest of accurate information.

Today's Thought

It is a good thing to give thanks unto the Lord. - Psalm 92:1. Paul admonishes, "In every thing give thanks." While washing dishes, sweeping the floor, no matter what the task, in everything give thanks. He did not say for everything. There are experiences for which we cannot be thankful, but thankfulness in everything is quite different. Surely the searching soul can find reasons for gratitude in every experience. Many who thank God for what they have learned in suffering use their own experience to help others and thus find new life and fresh inspiration for living. From Strength For Living by Hazel T. Wilson. Submitted by Ruth Foster, Center Congregational Church.

Regional Poll Shows Support For Subsidized Mass Transit

NEW YORK (AP) - Most residents of the metropolitan New York City area support government-created jobs for the unemployed, a special state-wide tax for public schools, subsidized mass transportation and more highways, according to a poll by the Gallup organization.

The survey, released Sunday, also indicated that the 14 million adults in the regional area extending from New Haven, Conn. to Trenton, N.J., favor differing methods to achieve school integration but reject busing by a 17-1 margin.

The poll was commissioned by the Regional Plan Association, a private, non-profit research firm that promotes the coordinated development of the northern New Jersey-New York-western Connecticut region.

The association received 130,000 ballots listing problems facing residents of the area as a result of its televised "Choices for '76" Town Meeting" series, and wanted Gallup to determine if they fairly represented the view of the region's total population. Responses to 10 of the 11 Gallup questions did support the "Choices" project conclusions, with the discrepancy occurring over the issue of supplemental income for the poor.

The Gallup respondents preferred increasing minimum wages by 5-1 margin, but that response was shared by only half the "Choices" participants. The other half supported government cash income supplements.

-Favored, 24-1, a statewide tax to support schools that would replace property taxes. -Favored, 3-2, construction of low income, publicly-subsidized housing.

-Evenly split over replacing present housing subsidies with housing allowances.

In polling what was described as an unspecified number of "demographically representative" residents of the area during March and May, the Gallup organization also found that residents:

-Favored, by a near-unanimous 13-1, having the federal and state governments providing or creating jobs for any unemployed person who wants to work.

New York City residents most strongly supported the statewide school tax and mass transit subsidy questions.

changed school district boundaries, 20 per cent backing in tegration of neighborhoods and only 6 per cent supporting busing. -Favored, 3-2, redevelopment of older cities as centers of housing and business activity.

Suburbanites in New York and New Jersey divided on the subsidies, while most Connecticut residents opposed them. One out of every eight Gallup respondents supported free mass transportation.

The family suggests that any memorial contributions may be made to a charity of the donor's choice.

This scene of Manchester's 1898 Memorial Day parade was photographed from Dimmock Hill, now the high point of Center Park. Across the street in the area between Pearl St. and Brainard Pl. the building at the left rear was the first garage in Manchester, according to information furnished by the late James McVeigh. It was run by George S. Smith, who built his second garage on Bisell St., where the Elks Club is now located. Oscar Laaki also conducted a meat market on the first garage site. The elderly man in the lower right of the photo is William Moffett of Maple St., an old dealer.

Con Ed Cuts Power

NEW YORK (AP) — Consolidated Edison will cut power to the New York Power Pool had ordered a five per cent voltage reduction throughout the area on Wednesday.

Con Ed said its own system had effected the reduction as of 10:50 a.m.

As the National Weather Service, in its 11 a.m. forecast, predicted a "mostly sunny, hot and humid" afternoon, with the high near 80 degrees, Con Ed said it was reducing voltage to conserve power.

The 11 a.m. forecast eliminated earlier references to a chance of thunderstorms this afternoon and evening.

The midday prediction was for fair weather tonight, with a high near 70, and a clear, warm day tomorrow, with the high near 80 but lower along the shore.

Mitchell, Once High In Power Now Personna Non Grata

WASHINGTON (AP) — Of the Nixon administration figures linked to the Watergate scandal, none was more powerful than John Newton Mitchell.

For four years, Mitchell was one of the capital's truly influential men, a close adviser and friend of his old law partner, Richard M. Nixon. Those ties gave him power far beyond his official position as attorney general.

On Tuesday Mitchell goes to the Senate Watergate committee to give his version of the Watergate affair.

His attorneys have refused to discuss what he plans to tell the committee except to say his testimony "will in no way implicate the President."

Other witnesses have implicated Mitchell.

For example, quoted White House counsel John W. Dean III and Jeb Stuart Magruder, former deputy director of the Nixon re-election committee, told the Watergate panel they attended meetings in Mitchell's Justice Department office in early 1972 at which G. Gordon Liddy outlined a bizarre political espionage plan.

But Magruder said that at a third meeting, March 30 in Key Biscayne, Fla., Mitchell approved an intelligence-gathering project, specifically approval for initial entry into the Democratic National Committee headquarters in Washington.

Dean and Magruder also implicated Mitchell in the cover-up.

Mitchell first came to Washington in January 1969. He had left the Justice Department and was in command of the 1970 Nixon campaign, when five men, including James W. McConville Jr., campaign committee security director, were arrested in the Watergate headquarters of the Democratic National Committee.

In response to inquiries, Mitchell said McConville was "not operating either in our behalf or with our consent."

But eleven months later, McConville told the Watergate committee why he had taken part in the burglary: "A very important reason to me was the fact that the attorney general himself, Mr. John Mitchell... had considered and approved the operation."

Government Medical Care Short Of Needs

WASHINGTON (NEA) — With health care demands and costs still soaring upward, spot-check appraisals suggest many elderly Americans, and often their families, think they get too little government aid and that it ends too soon.

What inquiry discloses is that the social security and Medicare programs are not meeting the needs of the elderly. Many elderly folk with chronic illnesses need "hospital level" care, but Medicare does not help at all under the federal-state program.

Present law provides that persons eligible under Medicare must at least be hospitalized for at least three consecutive days before qualifying for lesser care in what the government calls "extended-care facilities" or, more recently, "skilled-care facilities." The language covers what are generally thought of as nursing homes.

Those eligible for nursing home care must be admitted within 14 days of being discharged from a hospital, or no aid can be granted.

The basic eligibles, of course, are those persons 65 and over who are disabled under the Social Security or Railroad Retirement programs. Persons born before 1903 can get Medicare's hospital benefits even if they've never paid any Social Security taxes. They are in addition to arts and crafts courses already in progress.

Vernon Funds Provide Summer Jobs For Youth

Funds totaling $18,500 are allowing the Town of Vernon to hire 60 or 70 youths for the summer. Of the amount, $10,000 comes from the State Department of Community Affairs and the remainder was appropriated by the town.

The town received some 115 applications for the jobs. Those hired were to be notified by today. This includes boys and girls aged 16 through 21 who will work varying schedules from 20 to 32 hours a week. Total summer employment of youths will be 85 to 100 young people.

Some had already been hired to work at the town's playgrounds and swimming areas.

The young men will be working mostly in the public works and recreation areas and the young women in the offices of the town clerk, tax collector, recreation department, public works, police, welfare and housing departments.

a large group of the senior class along with town forces. The senior class plans to pay for the damaged windows.

"There was no problem at Case Mountain and no known damage to private property elsewhere in town. Also there were no known serious automobile accidents involving the seniors either in Manchester or out-of-town."

"By no stretch of the imagination do town authorities approve of vandalism or drinking on town property. However, it should be remembered that this activity involved the same group of young people about whom we are proud when we talk of their accomplishments — such as the 10th Camp — Kennedy, volunteers, Nike Site development work, Round Table singers, outstanding Seasonal program, etc., etc...."

"Lessons have been learned from this experience that will guide us in the future. Sometimes the easy way out of a problem is to be negative and do nothing. I do not feel this is the approach for Manchester and acted accordingly."

"I would hope that critics of the activity will be sufficiently interested in the future to offer constructive suggestions," Weiss concluded.

Exports Add

million bushels of corn and about 40 million bushels of soybeans.

Those sales were important to U.S. farm exports in 1972-73, but, even at a value of $1.2 billion, accounted for little more than one-fourth of the jump in value of commodities sold to foreign customers.

Japan and Europe, averaging huge demands, as in the United States, for more and better food, were big buyers. Through last April, in the first 10 months of the fiscal year, Japan bought $1.39 billion worth of products, up 88 per cent from a year earlier.

The Common Market countries bought $2.91 billion worth in the same period, up 42 per cent from a year earlier.

Put another way, wheat exports last season totaled about 1.2 billion bushels, just as the new crop started to come in on July 1. Compared with 1972 wheat production, exports took about 75 per cent.

A record wheat crop is expected this year, maybe 1.7 billion bushels or more. But the reserve on July 1 was down to about 425 million bushels, the smallest in six years.

Corn exports are expected to total more than 105 billion bushels, about 20 per cent of last year's crop of 535 billion bushels. Production this year may be near a record of 6 billion bushels, although some officials think it might be less because of late planting last spring.

Soybean exports, currently expected to be about 700 million bushels, including equivalent shipments of meal, nearly 60 per cent of last year's record crop of 1,282 billion bushels.

Meantime, here is what has happened to farm prices of the three big commodities:

George Wallace Jr. Seeks Career In Entertainment

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Sandy-colored hair hangs over his collar, and a mustache curves at his lips. But George C. Wallace Jr., 21, became interested in entertainment when he started playing the guitar in the sixth grade. He's been doing it ever since and temporarily has given up business courses at the University of Alabama so he can pursue a music career.

George Jr. feels he's on his way to success in entertainment. He recently signed a contract with MGM Records. His first recording under that label was released Friday. "There Will Never Be Anyone Else But You" and "Why Don't They Understand?"

George Jr. didn't write his latest songs but says he wants to write some in the future. "I've gotten into writing, and it's really opened me up," he said.

Will his name affect the record's success? "I want the record to be judged on quality and talent and not, one way or the other, by the name," he said.

George Jr. often entertained his father on the campaign trail. Some describe his music as "progressive country." "I'm very proud of his song. I like it."

French Honor State Author

RIDGEFIELD (AP) — "By birth I am Irish, by adoption I am American, by trend an internationalist, by the respect and emotion I hold for her, I also am French," author Cornelius Ryan said.

"I am overwhelmed by this great honor," Ryan said Sunday after receiving one of France's highest decorations, the Legion of Honor.

Jacques Kocinski, Morizet, French ambassador to the U.S. made the presentation to Ryan, the author of "The Longest Day," and other novels about World War II in Europe.

"Some time ago a literary poll was taken in France to see who were the best-read authors in our country," the ambassador said. "The five best were: Victor Hugo, Alexandre Dumas, Margret Mitchell, Cornelius Ryan and Emily Bronte."

The French embassy said Ryan was honored for "the role he played in furthering French-American unity" through his activities as a news correspondent during World War II and as author of "The Longest Day," which deals with the Allies' D-Day invasion of Normandy in 1944.

After the ceremony at his home, Ryan was choked with emotion and barely able to complete his acceptance speech.

He told Morizet: "I doubt there have been this great honor," Ryan said Sunday after receiving one of France's highest decorations, the Legion of Honor.

FACEING NEWSMEN IN THE WHITE HOUSE, Treasury Secretary George Shultz gestures to help get a point across in his role as economy overseer.

Inflationary Pressures Dominate News

By DEBORAH M. RANKIN AP Business Writer NEW YORK (AP) — The continuing pressure of inflation was reflected this past week in broad increases in interest rates and a report that June wholesale prices rose at their sharpest rate since the Korean War boom.

The one bright spot was a government report that the jobless rate has finally responded to the expanding economy and dropped below 5 percent last month for the first time in three years.

The increases in interest charges indicated that the cost of borrowing money has gone up, and paralleled boosts in the costs of other items such as food, clothing and industrial materials. The interest rate hikes applied to everything from corporate loans to savings accounts to mortgages.

The nation's commercial banks increased their prime lending rate twice during the week and lifted it to six percent, just under the historic high of 8 1/2 percent reached during the 1968-70 credit crunch. The highest in the minimum borrowing fee banks charge large corporations means big business will find it more expensive to obtain loans.

Consumers, who had been exempt from the upward sweep of interest rates under government guidelines instituted earlier this year, came in for two rate increases of their own this past week. One allowed them to receive higher rates on savings accounts but the other paved the way for them to pay more on home mortgages.

The Federal Reserve Board, which acts as the nation's money manager, said its member banks could increase the maximum interest rate on passbook savings accounts by one-half a percentage point. The boost from 4 1/2 to 5 percent on the accounts' most popular type of deposits was retroactive to July 1.

Drive Started To Save Newspaper Collection

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP) — A group of newspaper executives is conducting a $500,000 fund drive to help maintain the American Antiquarian Society's massive collection of old newspapers.

Income from the $500,000 fund will be used to hire staff to deal intelligently with readers who come to the library. The fund drive is being directed by Richard C. Steele, president and publisher of the Worcester Telegram and Gazette.

Other members of the fundraising committee are Leland J. Adams, assistant general manager of the Worcester Telegram and Gazette; Richard H. Blackledge Sr., publisher of the Kokomo, Ind., Tribune; D. Tennant Bryan, publisher of the Richmond, Va., Times-Dispatch and News Leader; Frederic B. Ferrar, senior vice president of Creamer, Woodward, O'Mara & Ormsbee, Inc.; and Harold F. Grumhaus, chairman and publisher of the Chicago Tribune.

Veronica Lake Rites Pending

NEW YORK (AP) — Funeral services for Veronica Lake, the movie star who rode to fame three decades ago on her long blond hair, will be held here at midweek. Details of the arrangements are incomplete.

The "peak-a-boo-look" screen star of the 1940's died Saturday of acute hepatitis in a Burlington, Vt. hospital. She was 51.

In the 10 years between 1941 and 1951 she made 26 films, including "This Gun for Hire," which introduced the late Alan Ladd to the screen. At her peak, she earned $4,500 a week.

Long hair became a national fad in 1941 when her blond locks accidentally fell over her right eye during a rehearsal for her first film success, "I Wanted Wings." The government asked her not to wear it that way during World War II because too many women were getting their hair caught in factory machinery.

After her last movie, filmed in Mexico in 1951, came years of obscurity, but a partial comeback on stage off-Broadway, in summer stock and in England.

During her obscure years, she was found working as a maid in a little-known New York hotel. But she insisted she wasn't down and out. "I was being $10 a month rent and that's a long way from being broke," she said.

Big Money Bills Face Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is returning from an extra-long Independence Day recess to such unfinished work as Watergate, all of the big money bills for the new fiscal year, and long-range farm legislation.

The Senate returned today and the House is due back Tuesday from a recess that began June 30. The televised Senate Watergate hearings resume Tuesday with testimony scheduled from former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell.

The first big issue on the Senate floor this week concerns efforts to clear a legal obstacle to building the Alaska oil pipeline. A massive general farm bill is set for action on the House floor.

Other pending legislation ranges from campaign reform and minimum wages to presidential war powers. Congress also is expected to move toward final action on the regular appropriations bills to finance the government during the fiscal year that started July 1.

Although the lawmakers have not completed work on any of these big money bills, they adopted a resolution June 30 that the agencies to continue spending at last year's levels through Sept. 30. The pipeline dispute facing the Senate involves an argument over energy needs and the environment, with the plan's backers saying it would relieve the nation's shortages by tapping vast oil resources in Alaska. Midwestern senators plan to press for an amendment to block the project, pending study and negotiations for a trans-Canada pipeline to bring Alaska oil directly to their part of the country.

No Lights at Wrigley Field

Major league baseball faces a new dimension should the Chicago Cubs keep up their current pace and win the National League's Eastern Division race and then go on to whip the Western Division champs and move into the World Series. Games No. 3, 4 and 5, if necessary, in the annual fall classic are scheduled to be played at night. Wrigley Field, home of the Cubs, is the only park in the major leagues that does not have lights. NBC has already decided that these weeknight Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday games be played under the lights. This year's World Series starts in the park of the American League champion on Saturday, Oct. 15 with Game No. 2 on Sunday, Oct. 16 also in the AL ballpark. Monday, Oct. 17 will be a day of travel... Sid Sink, of Manchester, current national steeplechase champion, is a graduate assistant coach at Bowling Green University, Bowling Green, Ohio. Sink is currently staying in shape running with Dave Wottle, Bowling Green senior, who won the 800-meter crown at Munich in the last Olympics... Manager John Sullivan and Trainer Sam Maltempo are awaiting further orders from anyone - man, woman or child - out from the boxing gloves with Nate Agostinelli. The latter and Hartford Mayor George Albanese "battled" to a three-round draw last week. A rematch is likely. One wonders how Willie Pep popped up as referee for the benefit match even though his application to be a third man in the ring when regular boxing returns was denied. Barbara Dunn, who handed down the decision in Pep's case, was on the scene for the battle of the bulges, which raised money for the fight against leukemia.

Notes Off the Cuff

Dick Tingley, director of athletics at Rockville High, has been named recreation director for the town of Ellington... Nancy Narkon, 14, who starred with the Bennet Junior High golf team this year, topped the CWGA Junior Girls' Golf Tournament last weekend at the Litchfield Country Club with a score of 87. Second low net went to Pat McKee, also of Manchester, with a 77. The girls are being tutored by Pat Torza, reigning Women's Division champion and one of the best amateurs in New England competition... Already getting a heavy play are the tennis courts at Robertson Park. The courts have been busier than ever since the lighting unit was operative last week after a long delay... You haven't seen everything yet in umpiring until you see the bearded arbiter working the Candlelight League who smokes his pipe in between innings... Danny Kaye will be the guest celebrity on tonight's major league baseball telecast along with Curt Gowdy and Tony Kubek... Ernie DiGregorio, the newest Buffalo Brave in the NBA, says he has played or practiced basketball from six to seven hours a day for the last 10 or 12 years. "I might do 10 fingertip pushups, then some sprints. The, maybe I'd hook from different angles, practice spins, fakes, jump one way 10 times and another 10 times," the ex-Providence great said. "If you are going to be good, you have to work harder than any other person," he added... According to a Louis Harris poll, football, baseball and basketball were the three most popular sports in the United States in 1973 with boxing fourth, followed by golf, bowling, auto racing, hockey, track and field, skiing, horse racing and tennis.

Scoreboard Message Premature As Yanks Land on Eddie Bane

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — The Metropolitan Stadium scoreboard flashed this message to the 27,425 spectators and New York Yankee hitter Roy White in the third inning: "Twins pitching leaders— Bert Blyleven, 11-8; Eddie Bane, 1.00 ERA." The Minnesota Twins and Bane, their bonus rookie in his second major league start, found the message a bit premature. White slammed Bane's next pitch for a two-run homer to start the Yankees to a 7-0 victory behind Mel Stottlemyre's four-hitter. White, almost in defiance of the scoreboard, stood at home plate and watched his 10th home run carry 365 feet into the left field seats. "I was trying to rub it in or embarrass Bane," said White. "I just wanted to stand there and enjoy it. I've never hit well in this park. I hit only one other homer here since my first year in 1968." Bane, signed off the Arizona State campus for a reported $55,000, gave up only three hits and one run in seven impressive innings Wednesday night against Kansas City in his first start. But the East Division leading Yankees tagged him for eight hits in 3 1/3 innings, five in the third. Singles by Felipe Alou and Gene Michael, a strikeout and Matty Alou's run-scoring groundout preceded White's blast. "Bane was erratic," said White. "I was waiting for the curve and he gave it to me. We sat back and waited for his breaking pitches. I think he should have mixed in the fastball more." Matty slapped a two-run single and Thurmon Munson clobbered a bases-empty homer in a three-run sixth off reliever Dave Goltz, and Ron Blomberg capped the Yankee offense in the ninth off Ken Sanders with a run-scoring single. "Everything I threw was high and I didn't have much on the ball," said Bane, who will get another start later this week. "I wasn't awed by their hitters. I just didn't pitch well." Bane did not pitch for almost a month before starting last week against the Royals, and Manager Frank Lucchino thought that had an effect on the little left-hander who relies more on his change-up and breaking pitches than on his fastball. "Eddie was just up with his pitches... he was struggling," said Lucchino. "This is the first time he's pitched with only three days' rest and I think this must have had some effect on him." Bane agreed.

Aaron's Last Trip to New York This Year Will Be Remembered

NEW YORK (AP) — "The press used to forget about me. This year has been confusing. I'm not used to all this attention." For a guy not used to used to attracting attention, Hank Aaron certainly doing a good job of attracting superlatives. In his final regular season trip to New York this season, Aaron slammed his 665th and 696th career homers Sunday to help Atlanta defeat the New York Mets 4-2. Both homers came off Aaron's former teammate George Stone and Aaron waited for his pitch each time. The first homer came in the fourth. "It was a change-up curve ball, down," the 39-year-old Aaron said. The third time up in the sixth, Aaron hit a fastball for his 22nd homer of the season. "I made up my mind it was going to be a fastball," he said. Last anyone thought these homers were coming easily, Aaron laid the thought to rest. "I don't even get balls down the middle to hit in batting practice anymore," he said. Aaron's homers left him only 18 short of Babe Ruth's record 714 on the all-time home run list. Aaron said he was not particular about where the big 714th homer falls, but he said if he had a chance he'd like the big moment to happen in Atlanta—which witnessed Aaron homers No. 500 and No. 600. Aaron's homers and a basesempty clout by Dusty Baker in the second inning enabled knuckler Phil Niekro to post his ninth triumph in 13 decisions and the Braves' fourth in a row. Niekro scattered eight hits. The Mets, getting as much bad press as Aaron is getting good, dropped their third straight game and their seventh in eight games. Stone singled in Wayne Garrett for New York's first run in the fifth. They got their other run in the seventh on singles by Garrett and Ken Boswell and a double-play grounder.

Sign Stealers Bother Herzog

NEW YORK (AP) — The Texas Rangers—law enforcement kind—usually get their man, and Manager Whitey Herzog, the baseball version, is no exception. Herzog also got a double defeat Sunday at the hands of the Milwaukee Brewers 6-4 and 7-3, but thinks he may have caught a couple of varmints in the act of stealing the Rangers' signs from a small chalet high in the center field bleachers. "The courteous thing," Stockton explained of the putt, "would have been to let Homero (Blancas) putt first. And he was playing second. "But it was my option. I can putt out any time I want to. And I want to stand around and look at that three-foot while somebody else lined up a putt. "I wanted to get it in the hole." He did. It preserved a one-stroke victory—the sixth of Stockton's career and first in two seasons—and was worth a $20,000 first prize. Stockton, who won the first Milwaukee Open in 1968 and took the PGA national title in 1970, won with a one-over-par 73 in the muggy heat of the final round and had a 276 total, 12 under par on the 7,010-yard Tuckaway Country Club course. "I've got to learn to pitch with three days' rest," he said. "In college, it was four or five days between games." Stottlemyre, meantime, didn't allow a man past second base in getting his second shutout of the season and beating the Twins for the 21st time of his career against only seven losses. The Twins had runners on base in five innings, but grounded into four double plays as Stottlemyre improved his record to 11-7. In the four-game series split by the teams, the Yankees clicked on 11 double plays. The closest the Twins came to scoring was in the fifth inning, when George Mitterwald's line drive talled off foul by a few feet with men on and the Yankees still leading 3-0. Stottlemyre promptly induced Mitterwald to ground into a doubleplay. A double by Aoe Lis in the eighth was the only hard hit ball to fall in for the Twins. The Twins open a three-game home series tonight against the Boston Red Sox. Joe Decker, 3-3, will pitch for the Twins against Bill Lee, 10-3. Canadian George Knudson, with a questionable for the game, Harmon Killebrew remains out of the lineup with cartilage damage in his left knee.

Nicklaus Favorite

Arnie Optimistic For British Open

TROON, Scotland, (AP) — Arnold Palmer, returning to the scene of a famous victory in the British Open golf championship, scanned Troon's sandy links with the look of a man who can win again. The 43-year-old veteran from Latrobe, Pa., said, "The course is drying very fast and getting almost like it was 11 years ago. The greens are excellent. I'm hitting the ball reasonably well." Palmer's optimism, couched as usual in cautious tones, cheered fans gathering for Wednesday's start of the 102nd British Open over the 7,094-yard, par-72 links beside the Firth of Clyde. Many remember how Palmer came to Troon in 1962 at the very peak of his golfing glory and tamed the course with a 72-hole total of 278 for a six-stroke victory. That score, 12 days after par, stands this day as a record for the British championship. Hundreds of Scottish golf addicts watch for the course to watch Palmer play his first practice round after flying in Sunday. British bookies rated Jack Nicklaus as 7-2 favorite to win the title, worth about $13,750 in cash but immeasurably more in prestige and spinoff endorsements. Nicklaus, a 33-year-old master golfer, has already captured the British crown twice. Defending champion Lee Trevino, scored favorite at 6-4, was aiming to become the first American to win the title three times in a row.

The regular Saturday night modified show saw the veteran Ed Flemke, get passed by Bouchard, only to come back and take the lead from the Fitchburg, Mass., pilot and win his fourth event. The old master from Southington, in the No. 2X, was chased by Bugs Stevens with Bouchard finishing a close third. Fred DeSarro was fourth. In the accident marred five-cylinder event, Ron Wilson won the shorter grid. RIVERSIDE PARK Jack Lecuyer claimed his second feature win at the Bay State oval. The Springfield, Mass., driver was pressed by Ken LaTour with Charlie Centurino finishing third.

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A three-foot putt — which he said was a little bit discourteous — nailed down Dave Stockton's victory Sunday in the Greater Milwaukee Open Golf Tournament. Big Win For RSox Triggered By Rally

CHICAGO (AP) — "That was a big one for us," said Boston Manager Eddie Kasko after his Red Sox erupted for nine runs in the 10th inning for an 11-2 victory over the Chicago White Sox, who had captured the first game of the doubleheader 6-1. "If we had lost that second game it would mean that we split in the series," said Kasko. "This way we won three of four and didn't negate our winning streak." By losing the first game the Red Sox saw their five-game winning streak snapped. But by coming back to win the nightcap, they fell to only two games behind the New York Yankees instead of three in the Eastern Division. It was the bottom of the Boston order which triggered the nine-run rally — Boston's biggest inning of the year and the biggest against the White Sox this season. Dewey Evans led off the 10th with a double and scored the tie-breaking run on a single by Buddy Hatter. Two more runs scored on a bases-loaded single by Rico Petrocelli before Bob Montgomery introduced a grand slam

Not Ordinary Rookie Ex-Prison Slugger Signs With Tigers

DETROIT (AP) — Ron Leflore is one of the newest signees in professional baseball, but the 21-year-old outfielder isn't your ordinary dew-eyed rookie. He graduated from one of the game's toughest sandlots — the Volunteer 500 at Bristol, Tenn., in a Chevrolet. It was only his second trip to victory lane since giving up cab driving and moving south of the Mason-Dixon line six years ago — though he made $75,000 last year and probably will clear that much or more in 1973. Leflore, 39, drives the hot-rod and makes more money. He zipped past road racing ace Mark Donohue Sunday to win the Carling Can-Am Challenge Cup event for unlimited power sports cars at Road Atlanta. He was paid $15,000. He won the Can-Am series last year and surprised his banker with close to $150,000. And then, there's Butch Hartman, a truck dealer from Zanesville, Ohio. INTERNATIONAL Stevenson's helped Anasidi's win the league championship by downing the Barbers, 7-2, Saturday at Verplanck. The winners took an early 5-0 lead and coasted to the upset victory. Hitting stars for Stevenson's were Eric Klavins, with a homer and a double, and Jeff Phelon, who had a circuit clout. The Barbers got singles from Brian and Mike Daigle, and Frank Prior. The second-place Barbers are now 8-4. Harper had doubled in two runs in the second inning but the White Sox managed to tie the game on a two-run homer and keyed a three-run rally with a run-scoring double. Bradford apparently has the center-field job sewed up until Ken Henderson's injury is completely healed. Henderson is now being used as the designated hitter. Since coming up July 1, Bradford has fashioned a nine game hitting streak and pulled the White Sox through a tough stretch of doubleheaders, in addition to a rash of injuries. From Sunday to Sunday — a span of eight days — the White Sox played 12 games, including four doubleheaders. They went through that stretch with a 5-7 record. Under the circumstances, things could have been a lot worse.

Ex-Taxi Cab Driver Does Well in Stock Car

NEW YORK (AP) — There is a remote chance — a very remote one — that race driver Benny Parsons may some day go back to Detroit to drive a taxi cab again. That's because Parsons may some day pick up the reins of a business he abandoned several years ago to go racing. As of now, Parsons is making a decent living driving a racing sedan on the South's stock car circuit. He picked up $8,400 hard-earned dollars Sunday in winning the Volunteer 500 at Bristol, Tenn., in a Chevrolet. It was only his second trip to victory lane since giving up cab driving and moving south of the Mason-Dixon line six years ago — though he made $75,000 last year and probably will clear that much or more in 1973.
