Two Voted No To Weiss Trip

When the Manchester Board of Directors Tuesday night gave Town Manager Robert Weiss permission to be away from his desk for a little over five weeks, the voice-vote action wasn't unanimous.

Democrats John Tani and Jon Norris voted against permitting the absence. Both insisted five weeks is an excessive time for the chief executive of a town to be away from his job.

Weiss plans to attend a month-long seminar in Aspen, Colo., sponsored by the National Training and Development Service, a non-profit organization, headquartered in Washington, D.C. It was created in 1972 by the major public interest groups serving state and local governments.

Weiss told the directors that three weeks of his absence will be charged to his vacation time. He said he expects to leave July 30 and return Sept. 4. Assistant Town Manager John Hawkins would serve as acting manager.

Watergate Panel Told News Stories Failed To Cause Concern

WASHINGTON (AP) — Even a flood of news stories about Watergate failed to arouse President Nixon's suspicions that the White House was involved in the scandal, presidential aide Richard A. Moore testified.

The white-haired, quiet-spoken Moore said Friday that he, too, discounted news accounts of the scandal until around March 1, when his own suspicions began to grow.

Still, he waited nearly a month before urging White House counsel John W. Dean III to tell the President about the cover-up and attempts to extort hush money from presidential aides, Moore said.

"I did not feel that I had anything but hearsay and gossip and rumors, but I sure was beginning to worry," Moore told the Senate Watergate committee.

Moore testified testimony filled the entire day and was recalled for a third day when the hearings resume Monday. His appearance was coincident with the White House to give another version of events Dean testified about.

Moore is scheduled to be followed by Herbert W. Kalmbach, one of Nixon's personal attorneys, Kalmbach allegedly paid $10,000 to purchase silence from the Watergate defendants.

In other Watergate developments Friday, Moore reportedly said he firmly believes the President did not find out about the coverup until the end of the year.

Private School Aid

Federal or state aid to private schools, religious or otherwise, was struck down recently in a one-sided decision by the Supreme Court of the United States.

The court's decision was a two-edged one in that it precludes tax aid to religious schools and at the same time prevents aid to private schools established to prevent desegregation. It goes further, in that it also ruled illegal aid to schools for non-educational expenditures such as maintenance, testing, recordkeeping, etc.

The cases arose in New York State, Pennsylvania and Mississippi. In the Mississippi case the furnishing of textbooks to private academies with tax originated funds was the point in question.

In writing the majority opinion, Justice Lewis Powell quoted the First Amendment to the Constitution that "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof." It was a strict constructionist interpretation.

While the establishment of private schools to circumvent desegregation rulings are a case by themselves, the aid to religious schools is a knotty question which seemingly cannot be answered within the framework of the Constitution as it now exists.

Both public and religious schools in Connecticut have been suffering greatly in providing adequate financing for many years. And the plight of the religious schools has been aggravated by the lack of religious personnel available as teachers. Hence, at greater expense, lay personnel have been hired as teachers and administrators, compounding the monetary squeeze of the institutions.

The plight of the religious schools is intertwined with that of public education. There are many states, including our own, where a shutdown of church schools would be a fiscal disaster. Thousands of children, now attending these institutions would flow to the public schools and increase their financial burden to the breaking point.

Thus, it has seemed reasonable to allow tax credits to the parents of children attending these schools, since they were paying a double education bill, once in their taxes and again in the private school tuition.

This problem is not beset with the intense feeling which it might have had in 1928 or even later years. America has made great strides towards an unbogged view in this particular.

Justice Powell was meticulous in commenting that the state must remain neutral and refrain from action which might have the effect of advancing religion.

It is difficult for us to find fault with his reasoning as to be constitutionally sound. Yet, the great problem remains. Can the state assume the education of all children, including the millions attending religious or private schools?

The question is no longer one of anti-religious attitudes on the part of any denomination, it is rather how the whole burden of education be permanently assumed.

Today in History

Today is Saturday, July 14, the 195th day of 1973. There are 170 days left in the year.
Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1789, the French Revolution began as the Bastille in Paris was stormed and captured.
On this date—
In 1788, Congress passed a Sedition Act, making it a federal crime to publish false, scandalous and malicious reports about the government.

In 1853, Commodore Matthew C. Perry went ashore at Tokyo to present a letter from President James Fillmore to the emperor of Japan.
Ten years ago, in 1963, an international expedition, which included the United States and Japan, took the Chinese port of Tientsin.
In 1960, a Democratic National Convention in Los Angeles nominated Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson for vice president.
In 1965, U.S. Ambassador

Adlai E. Stevenson died on a London street of a heart attack.
In 1960, eight student nurses were found slain in an apartment on Chicago's South Side.
Ten years ago, U.S. and British representatives arrived in Moscow for talks with Soviet leaders on a treaty to ban nuclear testing.
Five years ago: There was rioting and clashes with police during Bastille Day observances in Paris.

The Fall Guy

The most ridiculous assertion made in connection with the Watergate affair is that no longer can the Nixon administration — or any other administration — talk about law and order.
This statement is nonsensical because despite the fact that the Watergate scandal has become a result of a breaking and entering the present administration has made tremendous progress in fighting professional crime in America. And, with the cooperation of Congress, further advances can be expected.
We all remember what the situation was in the 60s. Permissiveness. Violence. A real threat that crime was becoming uncontrollable. And, worst of all, the steps necessary to control crime were not being taken.
The Nixon administration came to office in 1969 with a conviction that law and order had to be restored. One of the first actions taken by the administration was the mounting of an all-out attack against crime in the United States. The administration beefed up the manpower in federal enforcement and prosecution agencies. Under prodding by the administration, Congress enacted legislation stepping up the fight against organized crime, drug trafficking and crime in the District of Columbia. With the administration recommending higher figures, the Congress sharply increased financial aid to state and local criminal justice systems. In the past three fiscal years from 1970 through 1972.

Aggressive leadership has produced positive results: Federal aid to state and local law enforcement agencies has increased dramatically. Justice Department funding has been augmented to provide more marshals, more judges, more narcotics agents and more anti-drug forces. We are taking 600 new special FBI agents to the streets. We have not only reversed a steady rise in the crime rate, we have brought about a nationwide decrease in the rate of serious crimes.
The Nixon goal of improving the American correctional system has been advanced, in large part, through the initiatives of the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA). Congress has moved to extend the life of LEAA and to increase the authorization for that agency to about $1-billion a year. LEAA is being made more accountable. The administration of assistance programs is being made more centralized. The formulas for matching federal funds are being simplified.

Our anticrime program is on the right track. We are taking the right measures. The only way to attack crime in America is by the way against crime — without pity.
This is why I strongly support the President's latest effort to step up the war against crime — a comprehensive revision of existing federal criminal laws and the centralization of drug law enforcement efforts through creation of a new Federal Drug Enforcement Administration (FDEA).
No single law enforcement problem has occupied more time, effort and money in the past four years than that of drug abuse and drug addiction.
When the present administration assumed office in 1969, only $85-million was budgeted by the federal government for law enforcement prevention and rehabilitation in the field of drug abuse. That figure has been increased to $785-million for fiscal 1974, nearly 10 times as much. The record shows that narcotics production has been disrupted, more traffickers and distributors have been put out of business, and addicts and abusers have been treated and started on the road to rehabilitation.

Let Death Come

(OceanSide, Calif., Slide-Tribune)
Great advances in medical techniques, skills and equipment have been made in this country. Heart and liver transplants, cornea and eye transplants, heartbeats pacemakers—all of these would be unthinkable a half century ago. Yet, as great as these are technically, they have created a paramount ethical question which remains unanswered.
Why should the medical profession transgress the bounds of humanity by maintaining life or function in a person irreparably damaged and without hope of ultimate recovery of a normal life?
Recently there were news accounts of a child born with many physical defects that life was sustained only by medical leggerdism. A plea was being made for the family which had debts of more than $2,000. It was a case where the child normally and naturally would have died if it had not been sustained by almost miraculous procedures. Tragically, it was also diagnosed that the child was hydrocephalic; hence normal growth and development could never have occurred.
Another instance has been told lately, and shown on television, of a 14-month-old boy who lives in a plastic bubble in a hospital. The youngster suffers from a unique condition in that

Inside Report

Rowland Evans and Robert Novak
Nixon and the Committee
WASHINGTON — President Nixon abandoned his studied aloofness from the Watergate scandal last week and personally shaped his hard-line refusal to appear before the Senate Watergate committee, sharpening conflict between him and many Republican politicians distraught over the President's deteriorating situation.
Lately there have been several instances where people have written directives to their heirs or estates saying they wished to "die with dignity," instead of being kept alive long after any hope of ultimate recovery.
The question is one beset with human emotions of loyalty, filial responsibility, and other hereditary obligations. The object of devotion usually having no choice in the decisions made.
The act of letting death take its course is a deliberate killing, is taken to end life. In the normal steps are taken for comfort and the relief of pain, but that normal process and inevitable death occur without long years of hopeless existence.
The medical profession must soon come to a stated ethical determination on this problem.
The original refusal was drafted in Washington by the committee's chief writer, Richard M. Nixon, imparting his special tone to the letter. "This is vital," Nixon, "one high presidential assistant told us.
That overjoyed middle-level White House staffers, including former lieutenants of Haldeman and Colson, who in informal "attack group" meetings had policed the "soft line" at the White House. They had been dismayed by successive presidential "retreats" — waiving executive privilege, confessions in his May 22 statement, giving the committee White House logs on Mr. Nixon's meetings with deposed White House counsel John W. Dean III.
These hard-liners were particularly enraged by Dean's being permitted to rummage in his old files and feared those files next would be supplied to the Ervin committee as requested. The blanket presidential refusal is taken by "attack group" staffers as a welcome sign of Mr. Nixon's deciding to fight it out.
But the President's letter dismayed Republican politicians who agree with Sen. Baker, a veteran Nixon loyalist. Just the opposite.

The Bible Speaks
Eugene Brewer
"As we have therefore opportunity, let us do good unto all men." (Gal. 6:10). It is our Christian duty and privilege to help the needy.
Yet, there are limitations, such as: "If any will not work, neither let him eat" (2 Th. 3:10). Once the average citizen preferred to work for pay no greater than a dollar for not working. But we have spawned a vast army with no sense of shame in preferring handouts to working.
Yesterday a lady with three children came asking for help. Apparently reasonably intelligent, she claimed clerical work experience, yet she is on welfare. She requested gasoline, which was provided. Not satisfied, she asked about food, which had been mentioned as available for the needy. When this was declined, she admitted to having enough food, but that if more were available, she would take it. She asked for a job, but she was told she was on welfare. She said, "They are valthy," she said.

Life of Jesus

Jesus Makes a Leper Clean
A leper came to Jesus, knelt down, and begged him for help. "If you want to," he said, "you can make me clean."
Jesus was filled with pity, and reached out and touched him. "I do want to," he answered. "Be clean!"
At once the leprosy left the man and he was clean.
Then Jesus spoke harshly with him and sent him away at once. "Listen," he said, "don't tell this to anyone. But go straight to the priest and let him examine you; then offer the sacrifice that Moses ordered, to prove to everyone that you are now clean."
But the man went away and began to spread the news everywhere. Indeed, he talked so much that Jesus could not go into a town publicly. Instead, he stayed out in lonely places, and people came to him from everywhere.

Jesus Heals a Paralyzed Man
A few days later Jesus came back to Capernaum, and the news spread that he was at home. So many people came together that there wasn't any room left, not even out in front of the door. Jesus was preaching the message to them, when a paralyzed man, carried by

White House Religion Seen in Watergate

BY GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — As the Watergate scandal unfolds, moral theologians cite a kind of "White House religion" — a personalized piety detached from its social demands — as a factor in the affair.
It's a common American style of religion, focused on the individual's status but without corollary application to the corporate system or political sphere.
"Keep religion out of politics," goes its motto. Some churches, except investigations of socially active religious bodies have tended toward trying to impose such a rule.
It "seeks salvation of souls but allows the damnation of society," says the Rev. Gabriel Fackre, of Andover Newton Theological School in Massachusetts, adding that it has been fostered as a "White House religion."
Rabbi Balfour Brickner, a Reform Jewish scholar, says it stems from evangelistic revivalism, which separates religion from "affairs of the market place, the courthouse, the political arena or the business office."
"Watergate has shown the fallacy of this attitude," he adds. "It may also restore social action to the churches and synagogues of America."
He says "big daddies" who promise "law and order" and then make a mockery of it are "no more the answer to American problems than are the religious saviors who beguile their constituents to believing there can be salvation ... dissociated from the pursuit of justice."
A Baptist pastor, the Rev. Peter McLeon, of Waco, Tex., referring to the frequent White House religious services at which President Nixon serves as a sort of master of ceremonies, put it this way: "What I want to know is this. What were all those preachers doing in the White House on Sunday morning? What were they preaching?"
The Rev. Dr. Phillip Potter, general secretary of the World Council of Churches, says that "in Watergate, we have created, good-looking people," devoted to private religion, but who seem to be defective in moral sensitivity."
Of those admittedly involved in the Watergate coverage, Job Stuart Magruder, deputy campaign director for Nixon, claimed in testimony to Senate investigators he was matching content of a former ethics teacher.
The teacher, the Rev. William Sloan Coffin of Yale University, says that in his legal resistance to the Vietnam war, Magruder said, and so he reasoned he should break laws to conceal Watergate.
However, the Rev. Mr. Coffin quickly replied that his resistance to the war, like Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.'s defiance of segregation laws, was purposely open, intended publicly to challenge conditions viewed as wrong, and not a hidden conspiracy to violate wrongdoing.
In one case, as in Jesus' conversion of certain laws, the object is openly to bring greater justice, the Rev. Mr. Coffin said, and not to pervert it as in the Watergate case.

Faith
Lord, give me faith, enlightening faith,
That I may see the things unseen
With vision clear and crystalline.
Lord, give me faith, far-seeing faith,
That I may tell my soul its opportunity,
That in the sky the stars are bright.
Lord, give me faith, assuring faith,
That when I pass deep glades of fear
I'll realize that Thou art near.
Lord, give me faith, outreach faith,
That I, when tried, may flee to Thee
And find Thy strength my victory.

Life of Jesus
Jesus Makes a Leper Clean
A leper came to Jesus, knelt down, and begged him for help. "If you want to," he said, "you can make me clean."
Jesus was filled with pity, and reached out and touched him. "I do want to," he answered. "Be clean!"
At once the leprosy left the man and he was clean.
Then Jesus spoke harshly with him and sent him away at once. "Listen," he said, "don't tell this to anyone. But go straight to the priest and let him examine you; then offer the sacrifice that Moses ordered, to prove to everyone that you are now clean."
But the man went away and began to spread the news everywhere. Indeed, he talked so much that Jesus could not go into a town publicly. Instead, he stayed out in lonely places, and people came to him from everywhere.

Jesus Heals a Paralyzed Man
A few days later Jesus came back to Capernaum, and the news spread that he was at home. So many people came together that there wasn't any room left, not even out in front of the door. Jesus was preaching the message to them, when a paralyzed man, carried by

The Bible Speaks

"As we have therefore opportunity, let us do good unto all men." (Gal. 6:10). It is our Christian duty and privilege to help the needy.
Yet, there are limitations, such as: "If any will not work, neither let him eat" (2 Th. 3:10). Once the average citizen preferred to work for pay no greater than a dollar for not working. But we have spawned a vast army with no sense of shame in preferring handouts to working.
Yesterday a lady with three children came asking for help. Apparently reasonably intelligent, she claimed clerical work experience, yet she is on welfare. She requested gasoline, which was provided. Not satisfied, she asked about food, which had been mentioned as available for the needy. When this was declined, she admitted to having enough food, but that if more were available, she would take it. She asked for a job, but she was told she was on welfare. She said, "They are valthy," she said.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Sen. Lowell Weicker has told presidential consultant Richard A. Mitchell that testimony by John Mitchell contradicts Moore's denial that he played a role in the conviction to raise money for the convicted Watergate burglars.

Clair Mitchell's testimony earlier this week before the Senate committee investigating the scandal, Weicker said the former attorney general said Moore had approached him on Feb. 15 about funds for the defense.

But Moore said Weicker was mistaken and that Mitchell actually had asked Moore to raise money for the defense.

Mitchell added that the money request was made in a "casual response to the question. Mitchell said Moore was not the prime basis of the discussion."

Both Moore and Mitchell agreed before the Senate committee that Mitchell talked of fund raising was brief and that Mitchell intended to become involved in it.

Weicker also pressed Moore about his involvement in the White House. Weicker said Moore's political espionage and sabotage that Donald Segretti allegedly carried out against Democrats.

Segretti currently is under indictment in Florida in an alleged paragon of a scandal involving candidates in last year's Democratic primary.

Weicker said Moore was involved in helping White House press spokesman Ronald Ziegler report to reporters that White House appointments secretary Herbert Kalmbach, then Nixon's personal lawyer, was involved in payments to Segretti.

Weicker said the White House continued to deny involvement with Segretti late last March. That was true, said Moore, adding that he had opposed remaining silent until then.

"I'm sorry I didn't insist on bringing that out," he said. Weicker said President Nixon could have learned many things from the scandal from Moore. Moore is to return to the witness stand when the committee reconvenes Monday morning.

Auto Plunges Into Reservoir

Last night, an automobile operated by Percy R. Columbia Jr. of Finley Hill Rd., Marlborough, crashed through a fence and ended up in about five feet of water in the Globe Hollow Reservoir.

Columbia, 19-year-old, was charged with operating a motor vehicle under the influence of intoxicating liquor or drugs. He was released on a $100 non-surety bond. His court date is July 30.

Thunderstorms Hit Midwest

By The Associated Press
Thunderstorms rolled across portions of the midcontinent and the East Coast today after dumping scattered heavy rains from the Great Basin to the Northeast.

Storms late Friday swept into the southern Plateau, across the central Plains to the lower Great Lakes and into New England.

Rain driven by heavy winds caused some flooding in the Eastern Plateau and central Plains Region.

A state road was reported closed by high water east of Phoenix, Ariz., and streets were flooded in Salt Lake City, Utah, hit by nearly an inch of rain in less than an hour.

More than 6 inches of rain fell at the Harlan County dam in south-central Nebraska Friday, and 2 1/2 inches at Coldwater, Kan. Meridian, Miss. was hit by 3 1/2 inches.

In the Chicago area, storms knocked out electrical power in more than 2,000 homes.

Locally heavy rains also struck the eastern Gulf states. Temperatures before dawn ranged from 44 at Laramie, Wyo., to 92 at Needles, Calif.

Want $1 Million? Play Super Bertha

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Would a gambler pump $10 into a one-armed bandit with a chance to win a $1 million jackpot? At odds of roughly 25 billion to one?

Nevada slot machine king Si Redd thinks so and is betting $150,000 on it.

Redd, president of the BALLY Distributing Co. here, is readying the world's largest slot machine with the biggest payoff ever.

Dubbed "Super Bertha," it will pay $1 million to the lucky $10 bettor who cranks up the right combination of symbols on its eight 20-character reels.

And if you don't feel like playing 10 Eisenhower dollars at once, the machine will pay lesser amounts of $100,000 or even $500,000 for the right combinations on smaller bets.

The payoffs will dwindle to a few dollars, depending on how much is bet and the symbols that show up on the reels.

Standing six feet tall and 10 feet long, the slot machine uses a five horsepower electric motor to power the 20-inch-wide, chain-driven reels.

Redd says he will have invested nearly $150,000 in designing and engineering the machine before it is put into play later this year. Several casinos are interested in housing "Super Bertha," and Redd expects to get his investment back in a year and a half.

Redd went to work on "Super Bertha" after watching the success of his 70 "Big Bertha" slot machines, six-foot-tall multi-reels that require a dollar or more a pull.

Under the law of probability, the one particular winning combination will come up on "Super Bertha" once in 25 billion plays, Redd says.

"But who's to know? On our first $5,000 machine, somebody hit it the first night."

Lon Chaney, Portrayer Of Monster Roles, Dies

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — Lon Chaney Jr., the fifth major film star to die within two weeks, had hoped that his death would pass relatively unnoticed.

"His last wish was that his death receive no publicity," a friend said Friday.

Chaney's wife of 38 years, former model Patsy Beck, declined to specify the cause of death or even disclose funeral plans.

Chaney, 67, was preceded in death over the past two weeks by four other motion picture stars, Joe E. Brown, Betty Grable, Veronica Lake and Robert Ryan.

Chaney, known for such diverse roles as the Wolf Man and the sensitive but mentally retarded Lennie in the 1939 production of John Steinbeck's "Of Mice and Men," died Thursday at his home.

Friends said his last weeks were spent in "agony" stemming from a series of recent illnesses. Chaney had not performed publicly for several years.

His father, Lon Chaney Sr., was a star of the silent film era known as the "man of a thousand faces." Before his death in 1930, the senior Chaney told his son, "Better be paid for being ugly than starve to death trying to be handsome."

"I've played 'em all," the younger Chaney once said. "Most of 'em were the second time around—Frankenstein, the mummy, Dracula. But the Wolf Man was mine, all alone. I played him six times."

Discusses Campaign Finances

Secretary of State Gloria Schaffer answers questions at a news conference Friday in Hartford in which she reported she had asked Gov. Thomas J. Meskill's 1970 campaign finance chairman to furnish any information he had on unreported campaign expense payments. (AP photo)

Campaign Fund Probe Asked by Mrs. Schaffer

HARTFORD (AP) — Connecticut's highest election official has informed the state's chief prosecutor that an unreported expense payment during Gov. Thomas J. Meskill's 1970 campaign might have violated the state Corrupt Practices Act.

In a letter to Chief State's Attorney Joseph T. Gormley Jr., Secretary of State Gloria Schaffer said Friday she was performing the duties of her office by calling his attention to the payment uncovered by news media.

Mrs. Schaffer has no authority to take legal action against persons who violate election laws. She is, however, required to notify appropriate prosecuting officials of alleged violations.

In a separate letter Mrs. Schaffer asked state Finance Commissioner Adolf Carlson for any information he might have regarding the reported payment from a secret Washington funding agency.

Carlson said he would cooperate with the secretary to whatever extent possible but wasn't sure if the information she wanted was available. He previously said the payment wasn't reported because it didn't go through any registered campaign committee.

The Corrupt Practices Act forbids anyone but a campaign treasurer from paying campaign expenses.

Mrs. Schaffer asked Carlson specifically for the names of — The committee that authorized the payment for which the payment was made.

— The person who authorized the payment.

— The person who has the cancelled check or checks used to make the payment.

Ed Graceman, former head of the ad agency that handled Meskill's campaign, said he remembered receiving two checks from Washington but couldn't recall their amount. Newspaper stories have placed the amount at around $63,000.

Meskill said Friday he would ask the 1974 General Assembly to tighten financial reporting laws so that a campaign treasurer would have to report any expense payments he knew about even if they weren't made by a designated official.

Meskill said, however, that such a law would be difficult to enforce.

The penalty for illegal payments is up to $1,000 and a year in jail.

The unreported payment came to light when a Washington newspaper reported Meskill received between $80,000 and $90,000 from a $1.5 million fund provided over by a former lawyer for President Nixon.

Aillon Murder Trial Recesses Until Tuesday

NEW HAVEN (AP) — The jury in the triple-murder trial of Guillermo Aillon has been shown photographs of cuts on Aillon's body four days after the slayings of his wife and her parents were discovered.

Testimony is scheduled to resume Tuesday morning in the trial in which Aillon is charged in the deaths of Barbara Montano Aillon and J. George and Bernice Montano. The three were found stabbed to death Aug. 14 in the Montano's North Haven home.

Before the weekend recess, the prosecution offered color slides showing cuts on the 35-year-old anti-poverty worker's right palm, injuries to his right forearm, a finger and wrist of his left hand, a cut on his back and bruises on both legs.

Aillon had said he cut his hand on a metal burr on the shift knob of his car, North Haven Det. Walter Cummings told the Superior Court jury. The knob was entered as evidence by the prosecution and defense attorney Howard Jacobs gave it to the jury for inspection.

A headlight pull-switch, which Cummings said had a red smear on it, also was introduced as evidence Thursday.

In earlier testimony, the prosecution had contended that at least one victim, Montano, had died following a violent struggle.

Cummings, the state's 12th witness, has spent three days on the stand and has identified more than 150 pieces of evidence.

Under cross-examination by

Jacobs, special public defender, Cummings said he hadn't been in the Montano house before the killings and couldn't say whether scrape marks on walls had been made during the struggle or before. Thursday Cummings testified that wall marks had been made by a serrated knife.

Mrs. Aillon had taken the couple's infant daughter Catherine to live with her parents about two weeks before the killings, police said.

Jacobs also cross-examined Cummings about six bottles of pills the detective said had been found under the mattress of Mrs. Montano's bed. Jacobs said some of the pills were tranquilizers.

Cummings said under questioning that he recognized the types of pills in one of the bottles, but not in others.

Jacobs didn't explain the significance of the pills.

Penn Central Subsidy Suggested

HARTFORD (AP) — Gov. Thomas J. Meskill suggested Friday that Congress subsidize the Penn Central Railroad to prevent its liquidation.

In a letter to President Nixon, the governor said loss of the train's passenger and freight service would mean "irreplaceable injury and damage" to the economy. He suggested the secretary of transportation ask Congress for the necessary cash to keep essential service going.

For the long haul, Meskill suggested an AMTRAK-like government subsidy for freight service. AMTRAK is the national rail passenger system.

Samuel Rannel, state transportation counsel, will represent Connecticut at a special meeting on the railroad's liquidation Monday in Washington.

The Penn Central has asked for a government subsidy by the end of the year.

Barbeque Set By Churches

The Connecticut Valley District of the United Methodist Church will have a chicken barbeque July 21 from 4 to 6 p.m. at the Willimantic Camp Ground on Rt. 32, Willimantic.

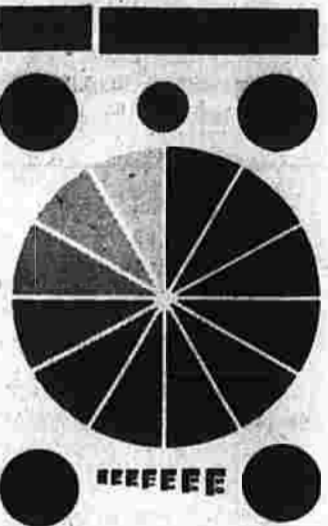

Tickets for the event may be obtained from the pastors of area United Methodist churches. David Howe of Vernon, district lay leader, is in charge of the barbeque.

Youths Reminded To Register For Draft

HARTFORD (AP) — The state director of Selective Service said Friday that young men must still register with the Selective Service at the time of their 18th birthday.

Even though the draft officially expired on July 1, failure to register is a violation of the law, said Frederick W. Palomba.

The annual lottery will be held, he said. Local boards will continue to classify young men as to their availability for possible military service in the event of a national emergency.

Hungry? Let's Go on a Supermarket Mini Tour!

Trucks line up at the warehouses to be loaded. The drivers have keys to "receiving rooms" located in every store. They usually deliver at night. Some local producers, such as soft drink companies and bakeries, make their deliveries to the store during shopping hours.

Supermarkets have buyers all over the country who buy in huge amounts. Trains and trucks (some of which are refrigerated) bring the goods to big warehouses. Today, most of the stores use computers when making out their own shopping lists.

Meats are kept in large, walk-in refrigerators. There are also large refrigerators for frozen foods.

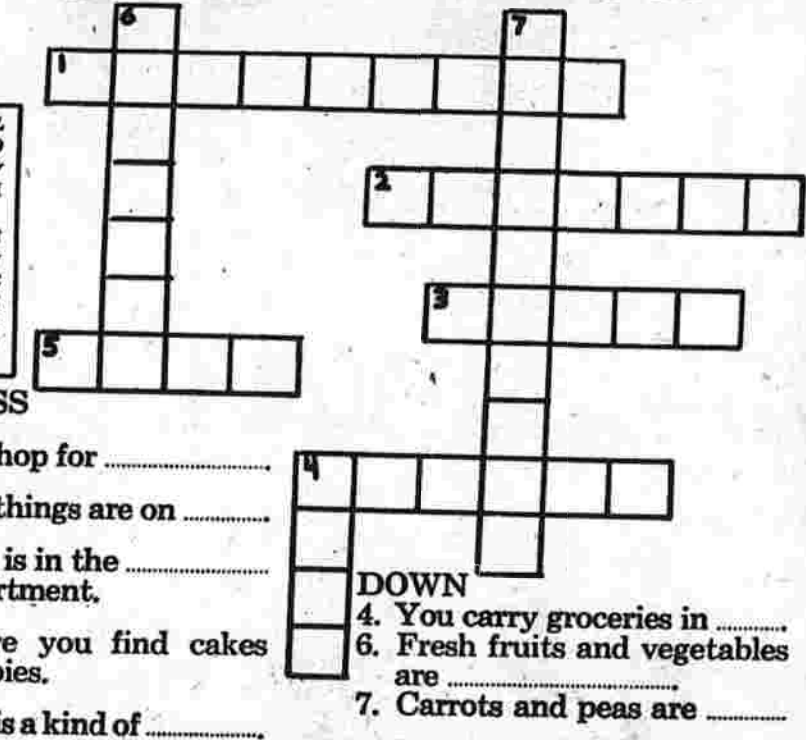

Supermarkets have big storage rooms where they can keep groceries before putting them on the shelves. This is one of the areas that most shoppers never get to see.

Each store has a produce room where fruits and vegetables (called produce) can be washed and prepared for sale. These rooms are kept very cold.

A Supermarket Map

There are many ways to arrange a supermarket. Below is one way. The part that is shaded is behind the scenes. You won't see this part when you go shopping. The shelves in the middle of the store are called "gondolas."

Mini Page Quiz-a-roo™

What's new in supermarkets?

A look into the future shows that supermarkets will become bigger and offer a wider variety of items so shoppers can buy just about everything they need by making one stop.

By 1975 many supermarkets will be using computers in the checkout lines. Each item will be stamped as to item, manufacturer, size and the price. Shoppers will put their purchases on the belt and the price will be totaled by a computer. This will allow the long lines to move much faster.

What decides the price of food?

The Weather: How was the crop? If good, the price will be lower; if bad, the price will be higher.

The Item: How much did the supermarket pay for it?

Handling: How much to prepare food for sale?

Transportation: How much to get it to market?

Labor: How much paid to employees?

Rent: How much to pay for a sales place?

Advertising: How much to let the people know about the groceries?

Do math and color.

Newsmakers: Who is he?

Four years ago, on July 20, 1969, he became the first man to set foot on the moon. He was a test pilot before becoming an astronaut. He was born in a small town in Ohio. He went on his first plane ride at the age of six. He got his pilot's license on his 16th birthday. His first words on stepping on the moon were: "That's one small step for a man, one giant leap for mankind." He became a professor of Aerospace Engineering at the University of Cincinnati on January 1, 1972. Who is he?

Animal of the Week: The Pig

You can draw a pig any way you want to, but here are some ideas!

The mother hog is called a sow. The father is called a boar. Hogs furnish about 30 per cent of the meat eaten in the United States. Hogs supply us with ham, sausage, pork chops and bacon. Other parts of their bodies are used to make other things such as fertilizer. From the hog's hair we get brushes; from the skin we get leather; from the fat we get lard.

Where do we get fresh fruits and vegetables?

Sometimes stores buy fresh produce from local farmers. At other times, their produce is shipped in from the parts of the country, where it is "in season." In season means that it is ripened by the sun and ready to eat. Seasons differ in different parts of the country. Listed here are states and the produce they grow and ship during the summer months. Find and color the states on the map.

CBS Plans 13 Hours Of History

A three-year, 13-episode series of prime-time specials dealing with major themes in American history will be presented by CBS starting early next year and continuing into the U.S. bicentennial celebration in 1976. The series, "The American Parade," will merge the full resources of CBS News and the CBS Television Network, it was announced last week. The series will present some of the nation's foremost creative talents in acting, writing, music, dance, and cinematography, the network said. "The American Parade" will premiere in February 1974, with three broadcasts to be aired the first season. Four programs will be broadcast in the 1974-1975 season, and six in the 1975-1976 season.

Henry G. Graff, professor of history at Columbia University, will be special consultant to the network, to insure historical accuracy for the series. Executive producer is Burton Benjamin, who was responsible for "The 20th Century," "The 21st Century," and "You Are There."

Pamela Shoop of NBC-TV's "Return to Peyton Place" is television's third Allison McKenzie.
