New Housing Aid Concept

More years ago than we'd like to recall there was a book written called, "Mr. Bindings Builds a Dream House." It was, as we recall, an hilarious account of cost overruns before overruns became a national political issue in Pentagon and other federal bureaucratic schemes.

The reason we recall the book is that the difference between what a person feels he can afford to pay or go in debt for a home and what a home actually costs too often represents a wide gap as the author of the book so humorously treated in his account of the builder's estimate and the final tally.

Since that book was written the whole concept of housing has undergone a revolution in many ways.

The federal government, through the GI Bill, FHA, HUD, and perhaps a dozen or so other alphabet agencies, is directly or indirectly involved in almost every new structure that is built today.

Despite several noble attempts, mass production of housing has not solved the problem, especially for the low-income citizen who is generally the one who needs a dwelling of some type that is reasonably comfortable and habitable.

In the past all these federal assistance programs have, for the most part, been to builders, lenders or landlords.

This is why we are intrigued with the approach being made by the Nixon Administration to develop a program which would aid low-income families to select housing rather than build it for them.

Granted there are many details to be worked out and there will have to be certain reasonable limits as to how far Uncle Sam should go in helping a person buy a home.

But the concept is intriguing to us because we believe that it may prove beneficial in restoring competition to the housing market.

The net effect in too many instances of the present federal subsidy programs has put new housing and the purchase of existing housing out of the free market.

Instead of having developers and builders competing to find ways to produce homes people can afford to buy we have, instead, made financing easier, down payments practically nil, and extended mortgage terms that almost exceed the life of the house, or the buyer, or both.

The administration plan, as we understand it, will give the would-be low income buyer a monetary voice in the housing market place in that, if he qualifies for assistance, he can be a potential buyer who must be sold rather than a statistic that must be "adequately housed" regardless of cost to the taxpayers.

Our thought, and this where the Nixon proposal has its most appeal to us, is that if the low-income family needing housing has some economic clout of its own through direct federal assistance; developers, builders, craftsmen and suppliers of basic home fixtures will be motivated to produce housing the buyer wants rather than what some bureaucrats from the town level on up to the federal level think the would-be homeowner needs.

In effect making each person eligible for housing assistance a potential buyer; the industry will have to become competitive by being more imaginative and aggressive to tap this new market which now is a "captive" customer rather than a free agent.

A man's home is his castle. We don't propose the federal government give anyone a castle but we feel it will not cost the taxpayer anymore to help him find a home on his own that fits his needs and gives him some voice in the choice.

As a matter of fact, it might restore the pride and respect that once was an integral part of home ownership. This factor is lacking in too many of the "standardized" types of homes today which despite their price and easy long-term financing are not a "man's castle" but often a bedroom and cooking area covered hopefully with a roof that doesn't leak.

We have tried many innovations to solve our housing needs. We would hope the Congress will see fit to try this new approach.

Safer, But Not Safer

The National Safety Council reports that the U.S. traffic death rate reached the lowest point in the nation's history during May, June and July.

NSC figures projected to the end of 1973 show a rate of 4.4 traffic deaths for every 100 million vehicle miles traveled. By comparison, the 1947 rate was 8.82 and the 1938 rate was 12.02 deaths per 100 million miles.

Yet here's the paradox: Because of the increase in the number of motor vehicles on the highways and the number of miles they are driven, even as the death rate goes down the absolute number of deaths continues to go up.

Traffic fatalities for the first six months of 1973 totaled 26,500 — the highest number ever recorded for the first half of any year in the history of the United States, says the council.
There's some bright news, however. During July, the last month for which figures are available, traffic deaths were 4 per cent below the July, 1972, figure.

Wallace vs. The New South

POINT CLEAR, Ala. — Irreconcilable differences in outlook between Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama and "New South" governors who now dominate the region were pointed up when Gov. Jimmy Carter of Georgia, Wallace's occasional ally, arrived at the Southern governors' conference with a proposed south-wide presidential primary.

If all Southern states conducted presidential primaries the same day, Carter argued, candidates could save time and money. But other governors saw it as a ploy for Wallace to corner Southern delegates. Not surprisingly, Wallace immediately endorsed Carter's proposal; from other governors, the silence was deafening. The New South governors elected in 1970 and later elections view both Carter's plan and Wallace himself as anachronistic throwbacks to Southern sectionalism. Nevertheless, they well understood that Wallace's grass roots support could sweep any Southern primary.

Indeed, the celebrated Fourth of July joust at Decatur, Ala., between Wallace and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy produced no joy among New South governors. The fear Wallace dominated Southern primaries but losing out on a place on the ticket and Kennedy being nominated for President but losing the election South (and probably the election). The consequence: neither Wallace nor Kennedy will run, which would breathe life into their long dream that one of their own — Gov. Dale Bumpers of Arkansas is now their long-shot choice — will be the 1976 nominee.

The Source of Life
"I tell you the truth, whoever hears my words, and believes in him who sent me, has eternal life. He will not be judged, but has already passed from death to life. I tell you the truth: the time is coming — the time has already come — when the dead will hear the voice of the Son of God, and those who hear it will live. Even as the Father is himself the source of life, in the same way he has made his Son to be the source of life."

No Wonder Women's Lib Wants To Take Over

WASHINGTON — Any band of females marching on Pennsylvania State University to hang an associate professor of psychology in effigy will find me tagging along to hold a coat or two.

This professor, Dr. Hoben Thomas, tested hundreds of young people, from preschoolers through college age, to see if they could understand the "face" that the surface of a liquid remains horizontal regardless of the angle of its container.

According to Thomas, only half the female subjects, even at the college level, understood the "principle." He also claimed it was unusual to find a college male who didn't. For God's sake! With scientists like Thomas running around loose, it's no wonder women's lib wants to take over and hitch all males to the front end of a plow except at check-grabbing time. I don't care how much Thomas talks about the "principle" involved in the test, he is flying into the teeth of common sense.

Principle, principle. Everybody knows that if you tilt a glass with water in it the water tilts, too. I tried it first thing after reading of Thomas' test and sure enough the water in my glass tilted so much it ruddy near slopped over onto my brand new pair of Sears britches. It, as Thomas claims, a liquid remains horizontal no matter how much a container is tilted, how come it doesn't look horizontal or act horizontal?

In fact, I don't even understand Thomas' test, and suspect that those smart-alec males who took it reported that the waterline remained level only because such a conclusion was duplicated in other Southern professors want them to reach.

Try to follow this, fellow male chauvinist pigs: The women were first shown a bottle half-filled with red water alongside an identically shaped container with a disc which was tilted to the same angle. I have a nice warm feeling that those girls might even agree with me that nothing ever falls up.

Voice Blows A Breath Of Freedom Into USSR As Jamming Ceases

By Lee Roderick (Special To The Herald)
WASHINGTON — As Soviet tanks rolled into Czechoslovakia on August 21, 1968, the USSR sought to justify their tracks by jamming Western radio broadcasts, including those by the Voice of America.

Now, five years after that infamous invasion, Russian leaders have suddenly and inexplicably stopped interfering with the broadcasts of the Voice as well as several other official Western radio networks. Jamming stopped Sept. 10. Jamming has been a familiar tool of repression in the USSR dating back to 1948. It ceased in 1953 and resumed almost without delay concurrent with the invasion of Czechoslovakia. Western analysts, who have never been certain why Soviet jamming ceased in 1953, are even more baffled today.

"We simply are not sure," said a Voice official in an interview. "It could be the Russian desire for détente or for liberalized trade. Or maybe they just figure we'll shut up if they stop jamming us."

Ironically, the cessation of VOA jamming comes at a time when worldwide criticism of the repression of leading Soviet writers and scientists has reached a new crescendo. The Voice, for example, in August broadcast nine major news reports and commentaries on dissenters in the USSR. By the middle of September, VOA had already doubled that figure.

A sampling of recent broadcast transcripts shows a number of why VOA and other American government leaders are ecstatic over the breath of freedom that will flow if jamming is relaxed in the USSR, assuming the relaxation of jamming continues.

One day after the jamming stopped, for example, the Voice's multi-lingual broadcasts into the Soviet Union quoted the letter sent from Philip Handler, President of the

Hebron Townspeople Vote To Buy Backhoe

ANNE EMT

Tel. 228-3971
Town meeting action Monday night approved an appropriation of $9,000 to buy a loader-backhoe and amended resolutions changing the membership of the Recreation Commission.

The Board of Finance had recommended the backhoe purchase based on the selection's request for a trade-in of the old machine, which needs approximately $2,000 in repairs, towards the purchase of the new machine.

Although the new machine costs $2,000 total cost to the town is only $9,000 after deducting the trade-in allowance and the municipal discount.

The vote of the meeting amended resolutions adopted at a special town meeting Sept. 24, 1968 and the annual town meeting of Oct. 7, 1968 providing for membership on the Recreation Commission.

The amendment eliminates a Board of Finance representative and adds one additional member-at-large.

The commission will now consist of ten members with one member from the Board of Selectmen, one member from the Board of Education and eight members-at-large.

The eight members-at-large will be appointed by the selectmen for terms of one, two, three, four, five, six, seven, and eight years, and any vacancy occurring will be filled by the selectmen for the balance of the unexpired term.

Heralding Homes Northern Exposure Was Vital

Sculptures, the creations of Charles B. Goodstein, dance and cavort on the lawn of his home on Buff Cap Rd., Tolland.

The first thing Mr. and Mrs. Charles Goodstein did when they started to build their home in Tolland was to get out their compass and determine north, for this would be the window side of their art studio.

Since then, it could be a question of whether the house was built for the Goodsteins or their art. There are many paintings in the house, and sculptures in wood and stone are found throughout the house and in the yard on the bank of a large pond.

The home is in a wooded site, with entrance up a rustic stairway. You cross a small white pebbled patio with green potted plants before entering the large studio.

Besides a work bench for sculpturing, and wall-to-wall paintings, a casual atmosphere pervades the studio with comfortable chairs, and a fireplace with authentic wormed wood markings on the mantle.

In wall corners, you notice small whimsical free form sculptures of wood or clay which are part of Mr. Goodstein's identity in his home. The corner figures are found in nearly every area of the house.

The most interesting room in the home is the living-dining room. Or, it might better be referred to as the living room where they also dine. An informal dining table is at one side of the room near the kitchen, but the rest of the room is planned with informal living and entertaining in mind.

Prominent in the room from the point of size, form, and originality, is a large lamp. Mr. Goodstein made it from "throw away materials." The shade is made of a double layer of metal strips which shade a bulb set in a painted coffee can. The lamp column is a piece of aluminum pipe, with base and collar of scrap wood painted black holding black dowels.

A fireplace, which backs the one in the studio, is unusual with its frame which is a refinished one from another home. Its beauty is in the initial carvings. The mantle, like the one in the studio, is edged in authentic wormed wood.

A bright green carpet defines a more formal area highlighted by a coral velvet covered Victorian loveseat with a Goodstein painting above it. The humor of the artist is evident in an almost lifesize sculpture of a prima donna poised in the arch of the grand piano. A free form figure with hollows for eyes and an oval aperture for a mouth, she acquires a set of dentures when the Goodstein's son, a dentist comes to visit them.

Stones and pieces of coral gathered from Long Boat Key off Sarasota, Fla., have been cemented together with transparent resin in a form of sculpture which sets on the piano.

Exotic plants and huge potted violets adorn a picture window which looks out on the yard and the large pond.

An antique rosewood square grand piano dominates the room used as an office. But the piano works have been removed and the interior is now fitted with desk compartments.

The painting which has won many awards for Mr. Goodstein hangs above the bed in the master bedroom. An illustration of Sheephead Bay harbor, the artist has painted his conception of it using elusive angles and lines, suggesting rather than defining. Other favorite paintings by other artists adorn the other walls.

The house contains a separate apartment used for the Goodstein's family when they visit. While looking for wall material, Mr. Goodstein spotted a base flooring substance with a bamboo look that he selected for its unusual texture, and also as a good background for paintings. The wall material, layered wood shavings, resembles miniature shake shingles.

Tolland Town Aides Deny Refund Illegal

Robert Smith, chairman of the Tolland Middle School Building Committee, said last night that the town council had advised the committee that it had a right to waive the building fee if it wanted to, and Elaine Smith, town treasurer, said she has not done anything illegal in her actions.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith were responding to a statement released yesterday by Stewart Joslin which charged that the parties involved in returning the $8,100 building permit fee to contractor, Nasin Construction, had acted illegally.

Joslin stated that a limited investigation he has conducted revealed that:

"Frank Merrill, building inspector, insisted on the collection of a fee for the issuance of a building permit for the Middle School addition; the contractor balked, claiming it was not customary for municipalities to charge contractors for a permit for municipal buildings; legal counsel, Robert D. King, ruled that the building inspector was within his rights in charging the fee and further that the contract between the town and contractor specified that all fees would be paid by the contractor."

"As a result of a meeting held with the contractor, the first selectman, chairman of the building committee, the town treasurer, and town counsel, the contractor did subsequently pay the fee of $8,100 to the building inspector; the building inspector turned the check over to the town treasurer, Elaine Smith, for deposit to the General Fund. The Board of Selectmen met at a special meeting attended by Erwin Stoetzer and Charles Luce and approved the refund of the fee to the contractor; as a result of the above, the town treasurer returned the check to the contractor rather than deposit it in the town fund."

Vernon Mayor Says Berger Runs Rec Very Well

While three Democrats running for election in Vernon next month threw darts at the town's recreation program, Mayor Frank McCoy said he believed that the passion for elective office is so great as to drive a candidate to launch a caustic and personal assault on Recreation Director Donald Berger.

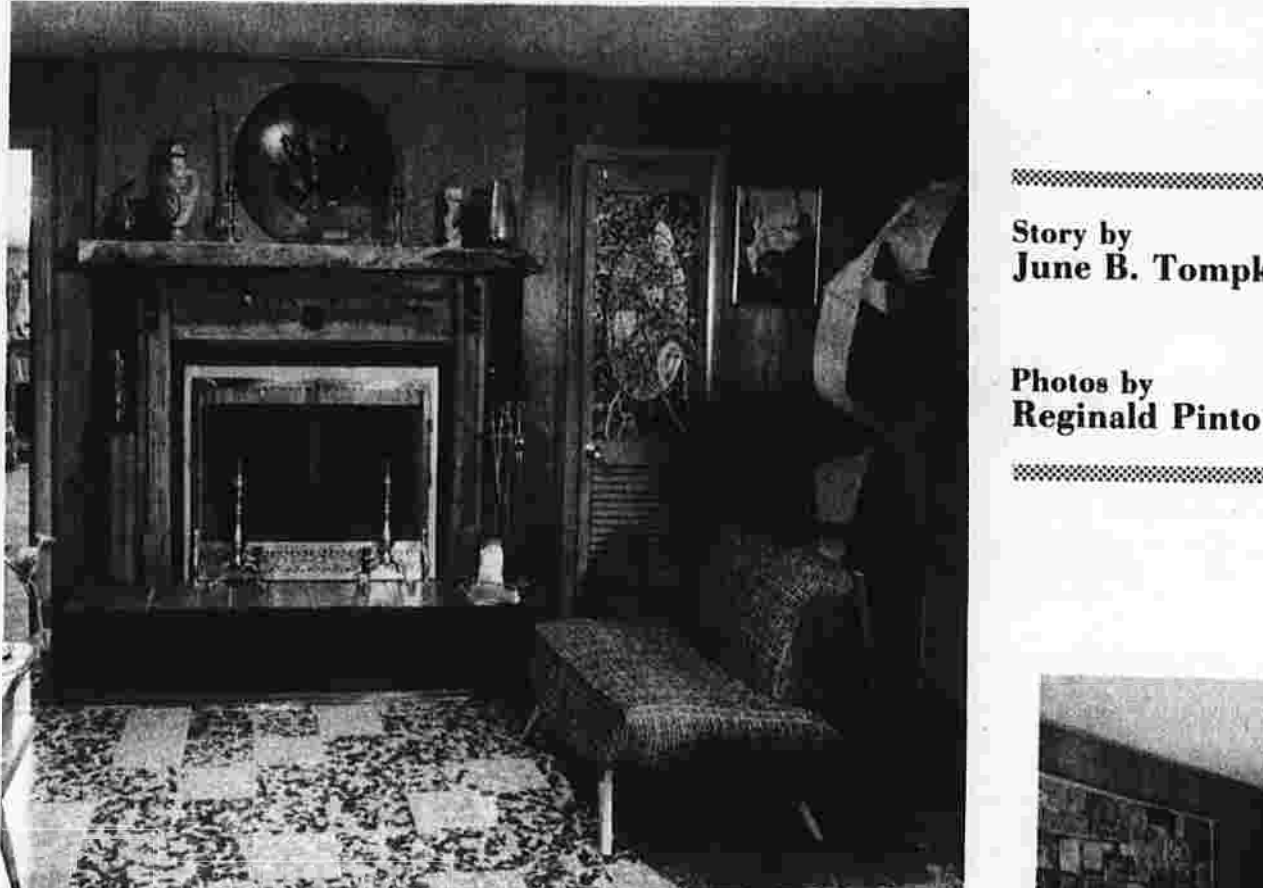

The Democrats, James Roche, candidate for mayor, and Thomas Benoit and Stanley Gill, candidates for Town Council, in a joint statement, charged that the recreation program has been "victimized by mismanagement and dis-order for too long and the mayor has done nothing to correct this situation."

The Democrats further charged that "fields are not properly cared for, games are scheduled in a disorganized way and equipment becomes unusable from lack of care."

Mayor McCoy, who will be seeking re-election, expressed astonishment at these charges. He said, "It's difficult to believe that the passion for elective office is so great as to drive a candidate to launch a caustic and personal assault of this nature upon the name of a person who has served this community for over twenty years."

McCoy commending Berger upon the pointed attack launched by Democratic candidates, said, "Mr. Berger has been serving this town for more than twice as long as his chief attacker has even been a resident of the town."

He cited Berger's work with the children and with the senior citizens. He said, "Townspersons from one end of the age spectrum to the other know about and respect Don Berger." The Democrats proposed a program calling for the hiring of a full-time recreational director "who is not only qualified for the job, but a man who is capable of administering in an organized, orderly way." It also calls for transferring the care and upkeep of all athletic fields, to the Public Works Department; a written document clearly defining recreational rates and regulations; sign-ups for use of fields and courts carefully recorded to prevent tampering; complete cooperation with all community groups; summer recreation jobs open to all, on an equitable well-advertised basis; and information phones and sanitary facilities always open.

Bolton Voters Reject Maxwell Purchase

About 60 residents turned out for Bolton's Annual Town Meeting Monday, approving three items on the agenda, rejecting one and tabling one.

Voters rejected the purchase of the Maxwell property for $45,000 on the basis that too little land is available, one half acre, that to convert a structure built for use as a house into an office would lose a lot of space, that such an older home would require maintenance and renovation, and that it wasn't clear if fire codes concerning door space were met and that the price is high.

Voters by 32-23 tabled the request to act upon an ordinance concerning consumption and possession of alcoholic liquor on public property until a more in-depth study was made.

As moderator Catherine Peterson was besieged by questions of interpretation of the ordinance, John Mahon said it was unfair to request the moderator to interpret, and the town counsel should be paid to attend town meetings to answer such questions.

Rolling Hills Trail, Brookside Lane and Rosewood Lane were accepted as town roads with an amendment on the recommendation of the Planning Commission to retain 10 per cent of the bond for a one-year period. Residents authorized the selectmen to accept a quitclaim deed from Antonio and Maria Giulliani for property to establish the street line along Tinker Pond Rd., Birch Mountain Rd. and Villa Louisa Rd. where the roads abut the Anthony Heights subdivision.

Vernon Council Backs Negotiation For Lake Camp Purchase

BARBARA RICHMOND
(Herald Reporter)

By a unanimous vote of the Vernon Town Council, last night, Mayor Frank McCoy was given the go ahead to discuss with the trustees of Newington Children's Hospital the possibility of buying Camp Newoca on Bolton Lake in Vernon.

The camp has been used by the hospital as a summer camp for disabled children. The town indicated interest in the purchase when it was learned that DevCo was interested in buying the site in connection with a new community it is developing in Coventry.

DevCo has already purchased a 10.2-acre site known as Bonnie Braemar Camps, also located on Bolton Lake Shores.

The vote to allow the mayor to confer with the hospital trustees came after a lengthy discussion during which the mayor urged the council to take affirmative action to acquire the 22-acre site.

The Recreation Commission and the Conservation Commission both feel the town should purchase the land. Mayor McCoy said land for conservation is no easily attainable these days.

He said he has had the buildings checked, the area has been checked for water and the septic tank system has been checked. The fire marshal indicated the area would be suitable for most uses the town might put it to but probably would not be suitable for use as a permanent camp.

The trustees have asked $175,000 for the site which contains 20 buildings. These include a nature and recreation lodge, pump house, cabins for girls and boys, a director's cabin, craft shop, tool shed, office, shower house, men's dorm, boat house, infirmary, a main building with kitchen, dining hall and staff room and others.

The access road is in good condition and walking paths have been hard topped, the mayor said.

The hospital trustees have indicated they do not wish to be paid in one lump sum. Town Attorney Abbott Schwebel said the town could, if it wished, pay it in one payment using revenue-sharing funds.

Councilman Morgan Campbell questioned the purchase of the land, noting

WITH OUR HEAT, 9 OUT OF 10 HOMEOWNERS HAVE NEVER NEEDED BURNER SERVICE.

In a recent survey of Connecticut Natural Gas residential heating customers, 90% reported no burner service since they've had gas heat.

It's really no surprise. Because a gas burner has fewer moving parts. So there's less that can go wrong. And gas is a more efficiently burning fuel. So there's less that needs cleaning.

Why put up with your old heat and all those service bills? Take a new look at gas. Call your gas heating contractor or CNG and ask about our $3.95 a month rental plan.

According to our children, a bicycle without at least three speeds is incapable of propelling them down the corner of our street. Three speeds, you understand is the minimum requirement. They would prefer five or 10-speeds, and their eyes really shine when they speak of those lightweight foreign models that boast 15-speeds.

Dr. Foote Resigns State Health Post

HARTFORD (AP) - Connecticut Health Commissioner Franklin M. Foote Monday became the latest department head to resign from state government.

Gov. Thomas J. Meskill said Monday night he had accepted the 65-year-old physician's resignation, effective Nov. 1. He named Dr. Douglas Seward Lloyd, a former Suffield resident, to succeed him.

Lloyd, 33, a graduate of Duke University and the Duke Medical School in North Carolina is currently chief resident in family practice at Duke.

"Connecticut has been fortunate indeed to have the dedicated services of Dr. Foote," Meskill said in announcing the resignation.

He said Foote previously indicated his wish to retire, but agreed to stay on until a successor was chosen.

Foote was appointed in May 1969 by former Gov. Abraham A. Ribicoff.

One of his last official actions will be to preside over Wednesday's meeting of the state Public Health Council, which will consider regulations governing abortions.

Lloyd's starting salary will be $11,500.

The new commissioner is a Republican.

Opposes Raise
WASHINGTON (AP) - U.S. Rep. William R. Catter, D-Conn., has asked the Cost of Living Council to reject a proposed first class stamp rate increase from eight to 10 cents.

Berte Attacks Cummings On Rev-Share Statement
Republican Town Chairman A. Paul Berte said today he "was appalled" at a statement Friday by his Democratic counterpart, Ted Cummings, concerning the effects of federal revenue-sharing funds on Manchester's current tax mill.

"His statement," said Berte, "clearly indicated a lack of knowledge and understanding of the town budget."

Cummings said Friday, "The two-mill reduction in Manchester's taxes was a cautious, careful, prudent, business-like approach to local problems, and not because of federal revenue-sharing."

Berte today repeated his statement made last week: "The cut in Manchester's mill rate was due to the federal revenue-sharing program."

"The fact is," he insisted, "without the use of revenue-sharing funds in the town budget, the water and sewerage department would undoubtedly have been a two-mill increase. The fact also is that the Board of Directors included over three-quarters of a million dollars of federal revenue-sharing funds in this year's town budget. And, in fact, Manchester's Democratic mayor, in his budget message, acknowledged the part revenue-sharing funds played in enabling the Board of Directors to reduce taxes."

Berte concluded, "At a time when the public looks to its political leaders for forthrightness and candor, it is depressing to see statements which muddy the waters. We all recognize that confidence in politicians and political leaders must begin at the local level."

Gas Cloud Threatens Albertans
NEW NORWAY, Alta. (AP) - Crews tried today to cap a gas well that blew out of control Tuesday, sending up a cloud of poisonous gas that drove hundreds from their homes in central Alberta.

The affected area is prime cattle country and it was feared the gas would take a heavy toll of livestock.

The Sun Oil Co. well at the north end of Red Deer Lake, 50 miles southeast of Edmonton, blew out a mixture of crude oil, water and sour gas containing poisonous hydrogen sulphide.

The water stirred attempts to burn off the toxic fumes by igniting the gas flow.

A spokesman for the oil company said a repair crew was doing routine maintenance on the well when it began to blow and "got away from them."

The gas formed a cloud up to a mile wide and 800 feet high that moved northwest along Battle River. The wind whirled eight hours after the blowout, and the cloud moved south.

The villages of New Norway, Faircloth, Bitters Lake and Gwynne were evacuated, along with farm homes in the anticipated path of the gas.

A Mounted Police spokesman said Camrose, a city of 5,000 about 20 miles northeast of the well site, "could become vulnerable for evacuation." Seven persons were hospitalized there with chest pains and sore throats, the first symptoms of exposure to hydrogen sulphide.

Shultz Reports No Progress On Jewish Issue

MOSCOW (AP) - U.S. Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz reported no solid progress today in coming to terms with the Soviet Union on the problem of emigrating Soviet Jews.

Speaking at a news conference after three days of meetings with Soviet officials, Shultz said he had explained to the Soviets that Congress is reluctant to pass the tariff reductions Moscow wants until Jews are allowed to emigrate freely from the Soviet Union.

When asked if Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev and Premier Alexei N. Kosygin had given him any indication they would agree to congressional demands, Shultz sidestepped the question.

"You can observe that there has been a much larger granting of permission to emigrate last year than the year before that, and so on," he said.

"So the flow is there. That is the objective. That is what concerns Sen. Jackson and his supporters. There is some evidence there for them to look at."

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., is the sponsor of an amendment that would link the granting of most favored nation status to the Soviets to free emigration from Russia.

Most favored nation status would give the Soviets the same tariff breaks as the most favored U.S. trading partners.

Part of Shultz's mission to Moscow was to counter Soviet irritation at congressional refusal to provide most favored nation treatment without conditions. The official press here calls it the "keystone" of future Soviet-American economic cooperation.

Shultz said he repeated to the Soviets President Nixon's commitment to do everything possible to obtain authority to cut tariffs on Soviet goods.

An end to discriminatory tariffs is a key part of the Soviet-American trade agreement signed in Washington a year ago.

Asked about the Jewish question, which the Soviets maintain is their internal affair, Shultz said "it came up" in his discussions.

"This is not by way of any effort on my part to tell the Soviets how to run their internal affairs," he added.

The biggest news Shultz had was that the volume of bilateral trade had reached $900 million in the first seven months of the year, a sum larger than the total turnover in 1971 and 1972 combined.

Shultz said that U.S.-Soviet trade in 1973 could reach $1 1/2 billion.

Shultz Reports No Progress On Jewish Issue

MOSCOW (AP) - U.S. Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz reported no solid progress today in coming to terms with the Soviet Union on the problem of emigrating Soviet Jews.

Speaking at a news conference after three days of meetings with Soviet officials, Shultz said he had explained to the Soviets that Congress is reluctant to pass the tariff reductions Moscow wants until Jews are allowed to emigrate freely from the Soviet Union.

When asked if Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev and Premier Alexei N. Kosygin had given him any indication they would agree to congressional demands, Shultz sidestepped the question.

"You can observe that there has been a much larger granting of permission to emigrate last year than the year before that, and so on," he said.

"So the flow is there. That is the objective. That is what concerns Sen. Jackson and his supporters. There is some evidence there for them to look at."

Gas Cloud Threatens Albertans

NEW NORWAY, Alta. (AP) - Crews tried today to cap a gas well that blew out of control Tuesday, sending up a cloud of poisonous gas that drove hundreds from their homes in central Alberta.

The affected area is prime cattle country and it was feared the gas would take a heavy toll of livestock.

The Sun Oil Co. well at the north end of Red Deer Lake, 50 miles southeast of Edmonton, blew out a mixture of crude oil, water and sour gas containing poisonous hydrogen sulphide.

The water stirred attempts to burn off the toxic fumes by igniting the gas flow.

A spokesman for the oil company said a repair crew was doing routine maintenance on the well when it began to blow and "got away from them."

The gas formed a cloud up to a mile wide and 800 feet high that moved northwest along Battle River. The wind whirled eight hours after the blowout, and the cloud moved south.

The villages of New Norway, Faircloth, Bitters Lake and Gwynne were evacuated, along with farm homes in the anticipated path of the gas.

A Mounted Police spokesman said Camrose, a city of 5,000 about 20 miles northeast of the well site, "could become vulnerable for evacuation." Seven persons were hospitalized there with chest pains and sore throats, the first symptoms of exposure to hydrogen sulphide.

Inflation Lesson Given Directors

The sad truth about inflation was learned painfully Tuesday night by the Manchester Board of Directors, when it received a first-hand lesson in spiraling costs over the past five years.

During a public hearing on proposed drainage installations in the Henry-N. Elm-Tanner Sts. area, the board was told that the project, estimated to cost $45,000 to $50,000 in 1968, would cost an estimated $90,000 today.

The board learned also that the combined estimated cost in 1968 for 17 drainage problems proposed then would cost an estimated $1.5 million today.

Town Manager Robert Weiss revealed that only 5 of the 17 drainage projects proposed in 1968 have been completed or undertaken to date.

He recommended the $90,000 to $100,000 needed to correct the Henry-N. Elm-Tanner Sts. problem be taken from revenue-sharing funds and that planning for the project be started immediately. He recommended, further, that a subcommittee of the board be named, to work with the manager and the public works department in reviewing and updating the proposed projects on the 1968 list.

Weiss estimated the Henry-N. Elm-Tanner Sts. project could be under construction in

Sidewalk Sites Plague Board

Pietranonio wasn't commenting on Manchester's impending election. He was talking about sidewalks and where to place them - on the east or west or north or south side of the street.

It all started last spring, when the directors voted amendments to the town's safety measure, all amendments declare that when the board initiates a project and votes to install sidewalks as a safety measure, all assessments about abutting property owners are waived. In other instances, the abutting property owners are still required to pay their 50 per cent cost share.

Among sidewalk projects voted by the directors at 100 per cent cost to the town were those on Hartford Rd., Wehber St., Kenney St. and Hackmatack St.

After objections by Hartford Rd. residents to engineering plans which required removal of some trees, the plans were changed, the sidewalks were constructed to go around or skirt the trees, and the plan for some sidewalks on the south side of the street was dropped.

With both precincts reporting, the vote was 308 for prohibition, 294 against. But 18 absentee ballots remained to be counted and 83 voter challenge forms were filed.

The sale of alcoholic beverages was legalized in 1967. Four years later, the voters rejected a proposal for prohibition. The "dry" lost by 32 votes.

BETHEL, Alaska (AP) - To drink or not to drink? That was the question in this predominantly Eskimo town of 3,000 in southwest Alaska.

For the third time in six years, voters turned out Tuesday to decide whether alcohol will be banned.
