Coventry

Democrats Rebut Attack By GOP

In a statement released last night, the Democratic candidates said they were "appalled and dismayed at the latest tactics used by the Republican party in this campaign." Democratic candidates know that the residents of Coventry deserve more than a mud-slinging, fact-twisting campaign. In this time of national crisis created by the national Republican leaders, we on the township level should do everything possible to keep politics clean and decent. The Democratic statement was in rebuttal to yesterday's statement of Leo Benjamin and Frank Bisson, Republican campaign coordinators. The Democratic candidates stated that they have "run their campaign based on a four-page platform which outlines the problems facing Coventry and proposes solutions based on facts." They stated "this platform was mailed to every resident in Coventry three weeks ago so that the voters would know the Democratic candidates' position on all of the issues from the very beginning of this campaign." The candidates went on to say "We have met people at meetings and in door-to-door canvassing and we have discussed issues. We have not and

Weiss Names Two Members To Committees

Town Manager Robert Weiss has appointed John M. McLuski of 23A N. Main St. to the Jury Committee and Edward F. Pagan of 43 Gerard St. to the Parking Authority. Both are Democrats. McLuski succeeds the late Joseph Moriarty, also a Democrat, and will fill the term to Dec. 31, 1974. Pagan succeeds Aclé Johnson, a Republican and chairman of the authority until last July, when his five-year term expired. Pagan's term is to July 1978.

Foes Say DevCo Limits Candidates

MONICA SHEA Correspondent The Committee for the preservation of Coventry claims freedom of speech is being denied candidates in the coming election plus to the press and to the voters. The committee issued the following statement through Virginia Diehl, interim chairman of the committee. "It is unbelievable that an issue with the potential of changing the character, lifestyle and very nature of an entire community can be openly or freely discussed by candidates for the Town Council. This new council will not only appoint members of the Planning and Zoning Commission, but may also sit in a legislative capacity to adopt a Planned Unit Development under Section 8-13 (c) of the Connecticut General Statutes according to the public political position ruling handed down by the town authority."

Services for Handicapped Considered

ALICE EVANS Herald Reporter The first step to form a Committee of the Handicapped was taken last week when nearly 40 handicapped persons from the Manchester area gathered at Manchester Community College to discuss their needs and to name a steering committee. Mrs. Dorothy Kenny, who first brought the needs of the handicapped to the attention of the Human Relations Commission, was elected chairman of the steering committee. Other members are Joyce Baker, Pete Sweet, Clint Adams, Joe Blette, Barry VanCamp, Tom Shay and Frank Vacaro. The handicapped also had a look at what they could do for themselves and what could be done for their needs. Edward Freneta, program director for the United Cerebral Palsy Association of Greater Hartford, told of the services it provides for the handicapped of your environment," she said. Mrs. Small promised that the State Occupational Therapy Organization and the Connecticut Coalition of Allied Health Services would stand by and be willing to help. "It is a good time now for people to get into action," Dr. Alice Turek, Manchester's health director, said. She approved a center for the handicapped on a regional basis and suggested that perhaps the workshop or the emotionally handicapped programs could be expanded to include physically handicapped people. Mayor John Thompson spoke of his involvement with handicapped people and the lack of information available for them. He urged the handicapped to organize and then let the government know about their needs. The Human Relations Commission is concerned with any people problem, and the handicapped are people with problems. Francis Keeffe, chairman of the commission, told group. He said it is time "to stop dreaming and get down to the gritty in order to get things accomplished. From birth through high school and for those over 65 there are many services available, in between there is a gray area." One individual person can get some attention, as a group, you can have a clout," he said. Keeffe also said that the Human Relations Commission can act as a catalyst to get things started. "We need names and an idea of the number of people we are involved with, 10, 15, or 400?," he said.

Full Hearing Slated On 'Missing' Nixon Tapes

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Watergate prosecutor said in court today many questions remain unanswered about White House claims two tape recordings do not exist, but a presidential lawyer said that apparent discrepancies could be easily explained. The prosecutor, Richard Ben Veniste, said he intended to call the tape recordings into question at a hearing on Nov. 15. He said the tapes were recorded on a Dictaphone machine for President Nixon's use on the day he was in the White House. Veniste said the tapes were not on the Dictaphone machine because they were not used. He said the tapes were on a different machine, but he did not say which one.

U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica indicated a full hearing was on tap and denied a request by White House lawyer J. Fred Buehner to delay proceedings until Monday. Sirica said he would hear the case on Nov. 15. He said the tapes were recorded on a Dictaphone machine for President Nixon's use on the day he was in the White House. Veniste said the tapes were not on the Dictaphone machine because they were not used. He said the tapes were on a different machine, but he did not say which one.

Ben Veniste said that two days of testimony by White House witnesses raised many questions which still have to be answered. Fuel Shortage Emergency Plan In The Works

WASHINGTON (AP) — Faced with a worsening of the fuel shortage, a key senator and the White House energy adviser have agreed to act "without delay" on an emergency plan. Senate Interior Committee Chairman Henry M. Jackson said he and White House adviser John A. Love agreed on quick action because "the crisis is much greater than all us anticipated a week ago." The two met after a reassessment of the effect of the ban by nine Arab nations on oil shipments to the United States. Recent figures more than doubled previous estimates of the loss in oil imports, Jackson said.

All of the airlines said they were cutting back on "lowland" flights, which are not heavily traveled. In Canada, the United States' top source of foreign oil, said it is raising its federal export tax on crude oil by almost 400 per cent. The tax will increase from 40 cents a barrel to $1.90 a barrel effective Dec. 1. The current price of Canadian crude is $4.20 a barrel at the Alberta wellhead and Canadian Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said that if the export tax were reduced it would amount to keeping the export price constant. The United States is currently importing just over a million barrels a day of crude oil from Canada.

The Defense Department was given special priority to buy U.S. domestic petroleum products. The Department has been purchasing from abroad, the government said, adding that Defense cannot rely on foreign supplies in present circumstances. Commerce Secretary Frederick B. Dent urged U.S. industry to take immediate conservation measures. "Failure to conserve now will aggravate the extent of business shutdowns in months ahead," he said in a telegram sent to leading corporations.

Love said the administration is "giving serious consideration" to regulating business hours. Love and Jackson both said the administration has been "ready to invoke rationing as necessary," though neither would predict whether it would be necessary. Commerce Secretary Frederick B. Dent urged U.S. industry to take immediate conservation measures. "Failure to conserve now will aggravate the extent of business shutdowns in months ahead," he said in a telegram sent to leading corporations.

Bottles Bound For Recycling

This bottle collection is the result of a school film on ecology and the efforts of two families. When Charles Hartley, front right, and Raymond Hampton, rear right, saw a film at Illing Junior High School on environmental improvement, they felt motivated to do something about it. With suggestions from Richard Clark, executive vice president of the Greater Manchester Chamber of Commerce, and the services of a town highway truck, 15 boxes of sorted bottles and broken glass collected from the neighborhood and roadside litter were taken to the recycling station at the town sanitary landfill. The School Referendum Question

School Improvement Tax Impact Assessed

DOUG BEVINS (Herald Reporter) LAST IN A SERIES Manchester school administrators say there will be "no significant increase" in the town's tax rate if voters approve a Tuesday referendum question authorizing $5.6 million for renovations and additions at Bennett and Illing. Their claim is backed up by town bonding, indebtedness projections made by Town Controller Thomas Moore, whose estimates show that retirement of high school bonds over the next two years would almost offset obligations for bonds that might be issued to pay for the

Buckland Proposal To Be Discussed

DOUG BEVINS (Herald Reporter) Zone changes to allow a proposed commercial and industrial-residential center in Buckland are the subject of a public hearing scheduled for Monday night by the Manchester Planning and Zoning Commission (PZC). The hearing is scheduled to start at 7:30 p.m. at Manchester High School's Training Auditorium. The PZC will solicit public comments on four zone changes requested by MAP Associates, which is planning a development on land in both Manchester and South Windsor. MAP Associates is seeking four zone changes in areas of the 263-acre part of the subject land in Manchester. The land is now zoned Rural Residence, and the applicant is seeking changes on certain portions of the property to CUD (Commercial, Business, and Industrial Development), Industrial, Business 1, and Business 3 Zones. The development is being planned by Arthur M. Fischer, Inc. of New York City, which is conducting detailed studies of certain aspects of the plan.

School Buses Face 'Some Limitations' On Gasoline

There have been "some limitations" placed on Manchester's school bus contractor in attempts to obtain gasoline at the lowest possible price, James P. Kennedy said today, but no school buses have run out of gasoline. Kennedy said the school bus contractor is the Manchester School Bus Service — is buying gasoline from a dealer as he has in the past, but the Board of Education is working on a long-term solution to gasoline supply problems in which the school board will buy the gasoline and then sell it to the contractor. School administrators have received indications they'll be able to obtain an adequate supply of gasoline in this manner, which will insure the school board of a tax exemption of the gasoline purchases. Kennedy said the 14-cent-per-gallon tax rebate is not provided for under the present gasoline purchase arrangement. Reporting on the hearing fuel situation, Kennedy said distributors have assured school administrators that there will be an adequate supply of No. 4 and No. 6 fuel oil this year, "barring unforeseen events such as an extremely cold winter."

Jobless Rate Drops To 4.5 Per Cent

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate took a sharp and surprising downward turn last month, falling to 4.5 per cent of the work force, the lowest jobless rate since March 1970, the government said today. The unemployment rate matched the predictions of the Nixon administration, which had forecast earlier this year the jobless rate would drop to 4.5 per cent by the end of the year. The unemployment rate had remained stuck at 4.8 per cent since June. The Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics said the big decline was posted because employment was extremely strong in October, rising by 370,000 to a total of 67 million on a seasonally adjusted basis. Moore's projections don't take into account probable increases in the town grand list, and nor do they make provision for state-mandated revaluation, due about 1976. To put the projected annual

Our Six Choices

Manchester voters will be voting for six persons to the town Board of Directors Tuesday but actually the top nine vote getters will be elected.

It's a tribute to both parties that all positions on the ballot are filled with capable men and women who are willing to serve their community.

It's our observation that all six incumbent directors have done a commendable job. We sincerely feel they have had the best interests of the community and the taxpayers at heart in the operation of town government. We are more interested in the job they are doing for the town, than we are in party labels.

That's why we are urging a split ticket vote for the Board of Directors. We realize this is a new horizon for the Herald which in the past has been dominated Republican. But since the present board has turned in a highly commendable performance, we see no reason to change and directors with experience will help us solve some of the problems ahead of us.

For the town Board of Directors, The Herald endorses the following:

Mayor John W. Thompson, who has devoted countless hours to serving this community;

Vivian F. Ferguson, a hard-working director who spends a great amount of time researching a problem or situation before she teaches a decision;

Phyllis V. Jackson, a newcomer to the town board who has shown she can capably handle the job;

Anthony F. Pietrantonio, a fellow willing to probe a problem all the way and in the final analysis votes as he sees it;

Pascal A. Prignano and John J. Tani, who have demonstrated by their actions that they serve the great majority of Manchester residents.

Those are our six choices in Tuesday's balloting.

That's why we are urging a split ticket vote for the Board of Directors. We realize this is a new horizon for the Herald which in the past has been dominated Republican. But since the present board has turned in a highly commendable performance, we see no reason to change and directors

Back The Schools

One of the greatest assets of American public education is that everyone is an expert on it.

Public education is perhaps the one area of democracy in which each of us comes closest to that ideal of participatory democracy for either we are the products, in part or in whole, of public education or have children, grandchildren, nieces and nephews in a public school somewhere.

And public education in Manchester, as elsewhere in the nation, hits close to home every year at tax time because it bites into the pocketbook of every taxpayer.

As taxpayers we can't do much about those taxes levied without a vote but often the law requires voter approval, the public education request comes up to the plate with two strikes against it.

It will cost a few more tax dollars but it is an investment long overdue. The tax increase will be offset to a large degree because of the retirement of existing high school bonds.

Yes, it is easy to put a price tag on education as we have before us the annual budgets, cost of building programs, number of students, population projections, etc.

It is hard to vote a tax increase, even a small one, but when we stop and consider that our children are our most important asset; can we really say we cannot afford to give them the same break other students now have? We think not. Vote yes on the school bond referendum.

It will cost a few more tax dollars but it is an investment long overdue. The tax increase will be offset to a large degree because of the retirement of existing high school bonds.

Charter Changes Needed

Tuesday, Manchester voters are being asked to give their views on 12 referendum questions concerning changes in the town's charter.

These changes are the recommendations of a special charter review commission which conducted extensive public hearings on the town charter and proposed changes.

In the main, the changes are minor, several merely making the town charter conform to existing and prevailing state statutes.

The referendum doesn't include a change from the present form of director-town manager form of government to strong mayor form of government which was advocated by some in the community.

We believe the present form of government is the best for Manchester and we also believe the complaint against the town manager form of government is based upon personality rather than the system itself. The effort to change to a strong mayor form, we think, was evading the issue and the proponents of a strong mayor system were against the present town manager rather than really against the concept of a town-manager form of government. In other words there was a personality clash, which if it should continue, is within the power of the directors under the present system to resolve.

Other changes would increase the salaries of the board of directors and the mayor which in the light of the duties they are called upon to perform are still low. The new pay scale, if approved, would give the mayor, $1,500 a year; the board secretary $1,300, and each director $1,000.

The proposal to raise from $1,000 to $2,500 the ceiling on town purchases without competitive bidding is not unrealistic in the light of inflation and the fact that all purchases are subject to public hearings.

Question 7 deals with providing town directors emergency budgeting power without the need for referendum but after a public hearing and limits such budgets to 1 per cent of that year's tax levy.

We favor this provision because it would be a useful tool to meet fiscal emergencies such as the Olcott St. Bridge destruction which is now being replaced only because of the availability of federal revenue sharing funds.

Other questions deal with establishing more direct lines of administration by creating a director of public works to coordinate water, sewer and street department activities, and define in more detail building inspector and zoning enforcement duties. Another changes the name of the welfare department to a broader Department of Social Services and another brings the park department under the director of public works.

Basically, the questions concerning the charter are non-controversial and merely update and clarify certain areas of administration along with the responsibility to meet current and immediate future needs.

The Herald, after due consideration, believes it is in the interest of efficient, economical and responsible town administration that questions two through 13 be approved Tuesday.

Negro For Treasurer

Manchester voters have an excellent choice for town treasurer.

Both Roger Negro, incumbent treasurer, and Sam Maltempo are dedicated public servants. Maltempo, with his many years of service as a policeman, truly has had experience in dealing with the public on many, many occasions.

However, Negro has done such an excellent job as treasurer that he heartily deserves re-election.

It's unfortunate that Maltempo isn't running for some other position. He'd be a credit to town government.

We endorse Negro for treasurer on the basis of his accounting background and the fine service he has rendered the Town of Manchester.

Board of Education

As in the balloting for the Board of Directors, The Herald is urging split ticket voting for positions on the Board of Education.

We think the board needs continuity in carrying out the building program which we hope the voters will approve.

Therefore, our selections for the Board of Education include Allan D. Thomas, Paul B. Greenberg and Albert C. Harris who are now serving on the board.

In addition, our endorsement for the other position is Elinor M. Hashim.

Once again, our salute to both parties for filling all Board of Education positions on the ballot. Those on the ballot have excellent qualifications and are a distinct credit to Manchester.

Our choices are Hashim, Greenberg, Harris and Thomas.

Therefore, our selections for the Board of Education include Allan D. Thomas, Paul B. Greenberg and

Our Town Clerk

Needless to say, the endorsement by both political parties of Edward J. Tomkiel as town clerk is shared by The Herald.

Every once in awhile, a public servant comes down the pike who isn't a clock watcher and who is always available to assist the taxpayers long after normal business hours. Such a man is Ed Tomkiel.

On rare occasion, you will also find a public servant who participates in many civic activities in a community for the good of the community. Such a man is Ed Tomkiel and we are certain you all remember Tomkiel's mammoth task in serving as co-chairman of Manchester's Sequenquennial.

We are fortunate to have Tomkiel as town clerk.

This concludes The Herald's balloting for Tuesday's balloting. We shall make no choices in the positions for Selectmen, or should it be Selectwomen, and constable.

Needless to say, the endorsement by both political parties of Edward J. Tomkiel as town clerk is shared by The Herald.

Max Lerner Comments

NEW YORK, N.Y. — The United States and Russia, caught up in a sharp crisis over a peacekeeping force in the Middle East, seem at the moment to have surmounted it. But, given the abrupt Soviet threat of sending troops unilaterally, the grave danger is not past. Secretary Kissinger's handling of the emergency showed a mature combination of strength and restraint, suggesting that he is the right man in the right place at the right time.

Many of us have much graver doubts about President Nixon. The Middle East is the policy area in which those doubts have been minimal. The President's behavior on the Watergate issues and on the firing of former prosecutor Cox is the area in which the doubts are gravest, even to the point of a serious consideration of impeachment.

The United States is an imperial democracy, with far-flung states of power abroad and the imperatives of the equal rule of law at home. Richard Nixon has relished the role of imperial President, but he has carried over the quality of the imperious into his dealings at home and seems never to have learned the meaning of the rule of law as the first citizen of the republic.

The result has been a schizoid Presidency, presided over by a deeply split man, who is at his best in power struggles of foreign policy but gets into messy tangles and turmoils at home that have reduced his credibility to a new low.

President Nixon has shown himself richly power-oriented, badly equally-oriented. None of the studies of his life, including the psychobiographies, has gone far to explain why. Most of us have a desire to prove ourselves to friend and foe alike, and to ourselves. It usually comes from inferiorities felt and hurts suffered early in life. The abrasions he experienced in the struggle to become a man of his life. Certainly one of his deepest drives has been to prove to supporters and detractors alike how he can seize history and build that proof into history.

There is in him the constant temptation to go too far. "The Road of Excess leads to the Palace of Wisdom," wrote William Blake in his "Proverbs of Hell." It has been used variously in the cults of drugs and of sexuality, but most unfortunately follow them, the governmental practice of power-drunk leaders, and each time has proved a hellish proverb.

The Elizabethan concept of the overreacher was of a man beset by a tragic hubris. Nixon has periodically overreached and, unfortunately for him, his overreaching has seemed at times to pay off, as with the bonds of his hands, which didn't interfere with his reception in Moscow. The resulting heady sense of triumph doubtless spilled over into other efforts at overreaching. One can see how Mr. Nixon — instead of regarding it as overreaching — would think of it as a daring way of turning history to his purposes.

This reached some kind of climax in his firing of special prosecutor Cox. The intent was to take events by storm, the method preyed devoured. Its strict and equal rule of law.

Today's Thought

In Times Like These "Share Others' Troubles." Dear brothers, if a Christian is overcome by some sin, you who are godly should gently and humbly help him back onto the right path, remembering that next time it might be one of you who is in the wrong.

Share each other's troubles and problems, and so obey our Lord's command.

If anyone thinks he is too great to stoop to this, he is fooling himself. He is really a nobody.

Let everyone be sure that he is doing his very best, for then he will have the personal satisfaction of work well done, and won't need to compare himself with someone else.

Each of us must bear some faults and burdens of his own. For none of us is perfect.

And let us not get tired of doing what is right, for after a while we will reap a harvest of blessing if we don't get discouraged and give up.

That's why whenever we can we should always be kind to everyone, and especially to our Christian brothers. (Galatians 6:1-5)

Washington — Those of us who were around in the crazy years immediately preceding World War II can be forgiven if we are seized by a sense of déjà vu in contemplating the unrealistic posture of our Western European allies during the Middle East crisis.

Except for Portugal, those allies issued "neutrality" declarations and refused to use their facilities or airspace for resupply of arms to Israel. West Germany went a step further and demanded that the U.S. stop sending American military equipment based on its soil to the Israeli forces.

As in the Munich years, when free Europe was afraid to call Adolf Hitler's bluff, our allies were bound not to get involved in any action which might adversely affect their economic well-being in the Middle East crisis, of course, they were determined not to offend Arab governments whose countries supply Europe with 80 per cent of Europe's oil. This was understandable for a shortage viewpoint, but not if Europe were willing to take a realistic look at the future.

Never mind whether one is pro-Israel or pro-Arab. It is never going to be good only for giving the emotions a boost. The fact of our European allies refused to help is that the Arabs — who, parenthetically, have their own case — cannot possibly push Israel into the sea without massive support from the Soviet Union. If that should happen, Moscow would control the Arab world's oil policies, with or without Arab consent (the Russians are not much for sentiment), and Moscow would be in an excellent position to blackmail Europe into a quid pro quo hardly designed to further European interests.

Put another way, a united Western Europe presumably could force the Arabs by threats of economic sanctions to keep the oil flowing. But the allies would try to bully the Soviet Union only at the risk of precipitating World War III. Indeed, even if U.S. support of Israel is a rocky mainstay, a changed situation is a way of life on Capitol Hill.

The fact of our European allies refused to help is that the Arabs — who, parenthetically, have their own case — cannot possibly push Israel into the sea without massive support from the Soviet Union. If that should happen, Moscow would control the Arab world's oil policies, with or without Arab consent (the Russians are not much for sentiment), and Moscow would be in an excellent position to blackmail Europe into a quid pro quo hardly designed to further European interests.

Put another way, a united Western Europe presumably could force the Arabs by threats of economic sanctions to keep the oil flowing. But the allies would try to bully the Soviet Union only at the risk of precipitating World War III. Indeed, even if U.S. support of Israel is a rocky mainstay, a changed situation is a way of life on Capitol Hill.

Washington — Those of us who were around in the crazy years immediately preceding World War II can be forgiven if we are seized by a sense of déjà vu in contemplating the unrealistic posture of our Western European allies during the Middle East crisis.

Except for Portugal, those allies issued "neutrality" declarations and refused to use their facilities or airspace for resupply of arms to Israel. West Germany went a step further and demanded that the U.S. stop sending American military equipment based on its soil to the Israeli forces.

As in the Munich years, when free Europe was afraid to call Adolf Hitler's bluff, our allies were bound not to get involved in any action which might adversely affect their economic well-being in the Middle East crisis, of course, they were determined not to offend Arab governments whose countries supply Europe with 80 per cent of Europe's oil. This was understandable for a shortage viewpoint, but not if Europe were willing to take a realistic look at the future.

Never mind whether one is pro-Israel or pro-Arab. It is never going to be good only for giving the emotions a boost. The Old Codger's Codgitations

The veterans who come home from modern wars don't want to talk much about it. They prefer to try to forget it, and with good reason.

Many of the Civil War Veterans were more willing to relate to the young people of their experiences. One old cavalry man told about an enemy shell exploding beside him, killing his horse and tearing his own side open and breaking several ribs. He showed us a terrible scar that zig-zagged from his arm pit to his hip, but he didn't appear to be crippled by it. There must have been some good surgeons in those days.

Another had been an infantry man. They were still using muzzle-loading muskets with percussion locks. After persistent pleadings to let it be known he had over killed an enemy, he said he didn't want to know any better than he did. The he told his story on condition to shoot high in the excitement of battle they were trained to shoot at the line of feet or lowest part visible. They had not had much target practice. That was reserved for the sharpshooters. His company was engaged in battle in the bottom of a valley. Their orders were to cease fire when their ammunition was down to enough for two rounds. When relieved by a fresh company, they were to retreat to the top of a hill and sit down until resupplied with ammunition.

While sitting there, they saw a puff of smoke at the base of a tree and a pit sitting next to him rolled over with a bullet through his body.

Thinking he was in line to be next, our narrator decided to disobey orders, loaded his piece, set sights for his estimate of the range, got into the steadiest position he could, drew a bead on the base of that tree and waited. Soon something appeared and he pulled the trigger. There was no more shooting from the tree.

Next day while on a detail being dead, he went to the tree and found a rebel sharpshooter with an extra hole in his head. These are terrible things to relate to they illustrate what our forebearers experienced and endured for us and should not be entirely forgotten.

A field artilleryman entered the service at age eleven. When his battery was approaching his first engagement it was traveling a deep rutted road through a swamp where there had recently been fighting.

He was riding on a gun carriage when he glanced down into the rut and met the wide-eyed gaze of a dead Reb just before the wheel passed over it. The boy became so sick he could hardly hang on to his seat. But he soon became inured to such things and the youthful urge for adventure began to take over.

One day the battery was lobbing shells over a hill and their own troops into the enemy on the farther side of a valley. A wounded infantryman came back over the top of the hill. He begged for the use of the rifle so he could go over and shoot a Reb. As he was being inured to such things and the youthful urge for adventure began to take over.

Instruction for Voting

Voters have three options when voting:

They may vote a straight party ticket, by pulling the party lever of their choice and doing nothing else.

They may vote without using the party lever at all by simply turning DOWN the pointers over the candidates for each office for whom they wish to vote.

They may vote a split ticket, by first pulling the party lever of their choice, then turning UP the pointers over the candidates for whom they do not wish to vote, then turning DOWN the pointers over the candidates for whom they wish to substitute.

Election officials are reminding voters that candidates of opposite parties are not matched against each other and that the position of their names is coincidental and only because candidates are listed alphabetically.

In addition to voting for candidates for municipal office, the voters will consider 13 referendum questions - No. 1 office, in the basement of the Municipal Building, Fletcher is a Republican, as are the moderators in all 10 voting districts. The two parties alternate on naming the moderators. The Democrats had their turn March 13, at a townwide referendum.

Voters may cast ballots for only six of the nine town directors to be elected, for a town clerk, a town treasurer, only two of the three selectmen to be elected, only four of the seven constables, and only four of the seven school board members. The reason is that the state's Home Rule Act provides for minority representation on municipal boards and agencies.

Director Expense Raise Defended

John Fitzgerald, who was chairman of Manchester's 1972-73 Charter Revision Commission, has taken exception to a statement made Monday by Paul Willhide, a Republican candidate for the Board of Directors. Willhide opposed a proposal for increasing the pay of town directors and inferred it was a Democratic proposal.

Fitzgerald today denied the allegation it was a Democratic proposal.

"As chairman of the Charter Revision Commission," he said, "I would like to point out that the proposal was studied and recommended by a sub-committee which was bipartisan, and that the vote in the commission for an increase for members of the Board of Directors also was bipartisan."

"In fact," said Fitzgerald, "throughout its tenure, the Charter Revision Commission functioned in a bipartisan fashion. Its final report was bipartisan, and over the dissent therefrom was bipartisan dissent. I think it therefore most unfortunate at this time that any of the proposals of the commission be attributed to either the Republicans or the Democrats."

In explaining the rationale for the pay raise proposal, Fitzgerald said, "The minutes of the commission clearly reveal that it was not the intention of any member to compensate the members of the Board of Directors for their service to the town."

"In view of the literally hundreds of hours the directors unselfishly devote to town business, certainly the payment of the sum of $1,000 a year would not be considered compensation for services. The payment was intended to defray the expenses which are necessarily attendant to service on the Board of Directors."

"On the theory that public office ought not be closed to persons who do not possess independent wealth, the compensation figures were selected so that those who served would not be at a personal loss. By making it possible for anyone in the Town of Manchester to be a candidate for the Board of Directors, it was felt that, in the long run, the government of the town would be improved."

Local Agencies Create Shelter Care Program

Several social service agencies in Manchester have created a temporary Shelter Care Program called

"Network" to meet the housing needs of children-out of their own homes for various reasons. "Network" consists of several families in Manchester agreeing to permit the placement of a child in their home for no more than two weeks while the crisis causing the child to be out of his or her home is resolved. Some 17 families are now participating. More host homes are needed.

A public meeting will be held Wednesday from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Senior Citizens Center, 63 Linden St. To explain the program, hear comments from families who have had children placed with them, and to answer questions for those wishing to join the effort.

For further information contact or visit the Youth Service Center, 14 Park St.

TWO OF A KIND ANNVILLE, Pa. (AP) — Within an hour of each other, his sisters, Mrs. Garland Heffner and Mrs. Aaron Miller Jr., gave birth by Caesarian section to a girl and a boy respectively.

St. Isaac Jogues Church, East Hartford, was the scene Oct. 20 of the marriage of Miss Elaine Ann Kelly of East Hartford and Alan H. Haberern, also of East Hartford.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Kelly of East Hartford. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Haberern of East Hartford.

The Rev. John F. Freudenberger of St. Isaac Jogues Church celebrated the nuptial Mass and performed the double-ring ceremony. The church was decorated with fall floral arrangements.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a polyester satin gown designed with stand-up collar, long sleeves with button cuffs, A-line skirt with scalloped lace down the center set with covered buttons down the middle. Her elbow-length veil was attached to a Camelot headpiece. She carried white carnations and baby apricot carnations.

Mrs. Linda Morey of Springfield, Mass. was her sister's maid of honor. She wore a light green crepe gown designed with Empire waist, scoop neckline with a darker green velvet around the collar, short sleeves with dark green velvet cuffs. She wore a crown of flowers in her hair and carried yellow, white and blue flowers.

Paul Haberern of East Hartford was his brother's best man. Ushers were Carlton Dill of East Hartford; Kevin Haberern of East Hartford, the bridegroom's brother; and Martin Soovajan of East Hartford.

A reception was held at the Garden Grove in Manchester, after which the couple left on a trip to Cape Cod. They will reside in Manchester.

Mrs. Haberern is employed as a secretary at Pratt & Whitney Division of United Aircraft Corporation in East Hartford. Mr. Haberern is employed as a teacher at Horace Porter Elementary School in Columbia.

Elect Attorney General Suggests Agostinelli

SOL R. COHEN (Herald Reporter)

Commenting on "the tumultuous activity in Washington surrounding the selection of a new attorney general," State Comptroller Nathan Agostinelli is suggesting the office be made an elective one rather than appointive.

He acknowledged that the change might require a Constitutional Amendment, but said, "The change would give the voters the option of making this important selection, as they do now for the Connecticut state attorney general, for example, and would make the U.S. attorney general answerable to the people, and not just to either the President or the Congress."

The tumult in Washington, he said, "should prompt proponents of a short ballot for Connecticut to reconsider their position and see to it that the state offices of comptroller, treasurer, secretary of the state, and attorney general remain elective."

The proponents are recommending that the four offices be made appointive, by the governor.

Gov. Thomas Meskill is one of those backing the short ballot in Connecticut. Although the governor, comptroller, and treasurer are Republicans, the secretary of the state and the attorney general are Democrats.

The Republicans party is scheduled for a caucus at headquarters on Rt. 85 in Amston and there will be music and dancing.

The Democrats will be a rally and "Keg of Beer" evening, will start at 9 at headquarters on Rt. 85 in Amston and there will be music and dancing.

Hebron Town Plan Reported Completed

ANNE EMT
Correspondent
Tel. 253-3971
Wilbur Dennis, chairman of the Planning and Zoning Commission announced today that the new town plan has been completed and is now being reviewed by town council. Public hearings will commence in late November.
Prior to these hearings, the Planning and Zoning Commission will prepare in final form regulations to be reviewed by a town meeting and incorporated in the new zoning regulations.
Dennis also stated, "Although I am a candidate for re-election to the Planning and Zoning Commission, this is not a political statement as such. I am releasing this information," he added, because of the concern expressed by many citizens about the progress of the new town plan. There have been many people who have spent many hours in helping to prepare this plan and to them, as citizens of Hebron owe their thanks.

Coventry Several Charter Changes On Ballot Tuesday

MONICA SHEA
Correspondent
Tel. 742-9495
During the municipal election Tuesday there will be six questions on the ballot that residents are asked to vote on. All of these questions refer to the revision of the charter.
The first question proposes changing the charter to allow the Board of Education, to be lowered from four to two years. This would include the Zoning Board of Appeals, Board of Tax Review, Planning and Zoning Commission, Board of Welfare and other boards and commissions not specified by law.
The second question deals with the term of office for the Board of Education. The revision of the Charter on this question would mean that the term of office would be for two years instead of the present four. This would eliminate the staggered terms we now have and there is the possibility that every two years there could be a complete new Board of Education.
Question four concerns limitations on the amount of expenditures by the Town Council. With this revision the council could not appropriate more than 1% per cent of the total town tax levy over the fiscal year without going back to the townspeople at a town meeting.
The fifth question would change the requirements that make it necessary for the council to go to a town meeting for approval of the majority of the people at that meeting if it wishes to appropriate 1/2 of 1 per cent of the tax levy for any one purpose. A yes vote on this question would allow the council to appropriate one per cent of the tax levy for any one purpose without town meeting approval.
Question six would change a number of things in the charter. It would change the title of chief administrator; officer to town manager; change the number of constables from 7 to 1; change the date that town boards and departments must submit their budgets to the council from March 20 to March 12; change the date of the annual town meeting from the third Monday to the second Friday in May and add the

The Candidates Are Saying—

James Roche

(Roche is Democratic candidate for Mayor of Vernon.)
As a citizen of Vernon, and as a Democratic candidate for mayor, I am dismayed by Mayor Frank McCoy's personal attack on Councilman Thomas Benoit.
Mr. Benoit, spokesman for the Democratic party, demanded that the question of misappropriated recreation funds be referred to the Town Council. This followed a report to the mayor, by the Recreation Commission, that funds were, in fact, misappropriated.
Mayor McCoy accused Councilman Benoit of using a series of assumptions and innuendoes, yet, Mayor McCoy knows that every single charge Mr. Benoit made was admitted by the director of the recreation department. The mayor is obviously trying to hide a serious issue behind false accusations against Mr. Benoit, a responsible public official.
Even more important is the admission by Mayor McCoy that "as far as I can recall, I have no knowledge of the account." Here too, the mayor tried to hide from the truth by an ambiguous answer. Obviously, he knows if he ever heard of this account.
Furthermore, Director of Administration Richard Berden, also said he was never informed of this account. I ask Mayor McCoy how this situation of misappropriated funds could continue for so long, under his administration, without his knowledge.
It seems clear that the people of Vernon deserve much more from the mayor with regard to fiscal control and financial responsibility.
COINCIDENCE
SPARTANBURG, S.C. (AP) — Mrs. Brenda Edwards and Mrs. Doris Robinson work in the same office and they both have young sons who have the same middle names.
Recently Mrs. Edwards' son, Joseph Scott, 7, broke his left arm. Four days later, Mrs. Robinson's son, Jeffrey Scott, 4, broke his left arm.
Both were treated at the same clinic.

Ford Hearing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President-designate Gerald R. Ford says the House should go ahead with its investigation to determine whether President Nixon should be impeached. However, Ford told the Senate Rules Committee he doubts there are grounds for impeachment. The confirmation hearings on Ford resume Monday with more testimony from Ford.

The Candidates Are Saying...

Glen Roberts

(Roberts is a Democratic candidate for the Vernon Town Council.)
A concern for the elderly and their real needs is one reason I decided to get involved in politics and run for the Town Council. I engaged in lengthy meetings with Jim Roche and other members of the Democratic party and came away firmly convinced of their real concern for and recognition of the problems of the elderly as well as many other matters requiring attention and leadership.
The major need of the elderly is for transportation. Most of these people cannot drive and they are unable to satisfy their basic needs, such as shopping, doctor visits and church. The Republicans have provided a bus for one short shopping trip per week which is grossly unfair and inadequate.
Food services are a crying need. Anyone walking through a housing project for the elderly and chatting with those who meekly verify this. The town is just now arranging for state funding for hot meals, which have been needed for years — not just before election.
Recently, during this campaign, word was sent out that meetings would be held regarding Food Stamps. Various of the elderly have told me that the same thing happened two years ago and that they have not yet been able to get Food Stamps, and that the recent meetings did not help at all.
Meanwhile, hundreds of the elderly among us are able and eager to be useful. Their years of experience are invaluable and their need to be important again in society, instead of sitting and waiting to die, is a need to be reckoned with. If these needs outlined above, which can be met only by the town, are provided, a foundation will be held upon which all other matters can be taken care of by volunteer action.

Being fully convinced of the integrity and purpose of my Democratic associates, and of their ability to perform, I ask the people of Vernon to place their trust in me on election day. I have been impressed by the intelligent grasp of these needs by James Roche and his running mates. Give us a chance to do what you want, and which you know has been neglected during the past four years.

Voting District Correction

The street-by-street listing of Manchester's voting districts, which appeared on Page 25 of Thursday's Herald, contained an error in the listing for E. Middle Tpk.
The listing should have read as follows:
Middle Tpk., East..... 2, 3, 7, 10
2 — Odd numbers from 73 to 375
3 — Even numbers from 73 to 375
7 — Odd numbers up to 73
10 — Even numbers up to 375

School

defeated by Manchester voters last year. In the 1972 referendum, the school project lost 470 votes of the more-than-18,000 votes cast.
The $8.8 million figure proposed in 1972 would have been split equally between Bennet and Illing.
Accompanying charts compare estimated costs of the 1972 and 1973 proposals. The estimates, made by the Town Building Committee, are broken down to show new construction, alteration and repair of existing facilities, safety related items, furniture and equipment, fees, and contingency funds.
The Building Committee also says the present estimates "have a limited validity of only several months," and "delay beyond that length of time will probably add about $15,000 per month to the cost of each school."

Firemen Need Credit Cards For Water

LEBANON (AP) — Town officials in this peaceful eastern Connecticut community have lashed "animus" at an attempt by a private water supplier to arrest volunteer firemen who used his hydrant to put out a house fire.

Firemen used the private hydrant of Casimer Bycoski, president of the Lebanon Water Co. Inc., to extinguish a blaze at a private home Monday.

High School World

An Editorial The Referendum

On Election Day, the voters of this town will be called upon to accept or reject a $5 million school proposal which will involve the reconstruction and renovation of the two junior high schools in Manchester: Bennett and Lilling.

Two years ago the town Board of Education tried to pass a proposal for a third junior high in the hopes of relieving the problems in our secondary schools. Last Election Day, the voters of this town chose to reject a renovations and construction budget similar to the one being brought up this year. Last year's proposal cost $5.8 million which is $1.3 million more than the proposal this year.

Many of the voters in Manchester do not realize the importance of this referendum. Bennett Junior High was built in 1915 (that is the completion date) and although it is still very sound architecturally, it does need many repairs and additions such as heating, plumbing, roofing, etc. In addition to these repairs, Bennett also needs several additions such as a new library, a gym, and more classrooms for art and the industrial arts. The art program at Bennett is not the only department in need of more space. The industrial arts program, which includes woodworking, metals, drafting, electronics and graphic arts, is also in great need of more space.

To show an example of this, one should see the ceramics room and look at the wall on the left hand side. Also, the gym at Bennett is not big enough and is further plagued by the overhead track. The library is not good enough for a school such as Bennett. In terms of educational standards, the Bennett school is one-fourth the size recommended by the state. Lilling Junior High is not big enough in terms of facility. When Lilling was built in 1960, the intention was for it to hold the three junior high grades. Due to inadequate planning, Lilling did not have room for these grades in its first year. As a result, the ninth graders were sent to the high school and have been there ever since. This decision not only creates space problems at the high school, but it also creates space problems at the junior high. If this proposal passes, the ninth grade will be moved back to Lilling, leaving the high school with many classrooms which would be used for science labs, English classes and independent study areas, among other uses.

By now you can understand the necessity of this proposal. You are probably wondering what the students of Manchester High School are doing to support this measure. The MHS student Assembly has a student campaign which involves four basic ideas:

1. Photo-displays put up in various parts of town.
2. A newspaper ad done by the assembly.
3. A door-to-door campaign which includes distribution of flyers.
4. The 18 year-olds at MHS are registered to vote.

This campaign is being organized by the two Board of Education student representatives who have received a great deal of assistance from the town school administration as well from the administration at MHS.

The students of MHS and the Student Assembly urge you to vote YES on Question 1.

Cross Country Season Ends

The cross country team will live up to the "super soph" form by meeting against East Catholic at Wickham Park. Junior, ran surprisingly well. Tribe's record stood at 2-7 in the league and 1-8 overall.

Injuries hurt the Indians all year long and kept them from finishing the season with a respectable record. Junior Captain Scott Moffat has been plagued by a series of leg injuries, and has not been able to live up to the "super soph" form he displayed all last year. Matt Wallace, another Junior, ran surprisingly well. Tribe's record stood at 2-7 in the league and 1-8 overall.

Karate Show A Big Success

Last Saturday marked the third annual AFS karate exhibition at Bailey Auditorium. Before the show that was to be performed in the evening, there were eliminations for the black belts that were to fight for the final championship during the afternoon. Also during the afternoon other fighters fought for the first, second and third place trophies being awarded to fighters under the black belt.

The main event in the evening started with students of Daniel Pali's school of karate showing the basic foundations of the art of Kung-Fu. Later on during the show, members of other schools of karate displayed their different techniques of fighting. After knowing and understanding a little more about karate than when you came in, the main events started. First off the first and second place holders of the pee-wee class battled it out, then the black belts went at it to gain a place for the final bout for grand champion. Many leading artists displayed startling feats with weapons of the ancient orient.

Finally went mostly everyone was waiting for, William Louie, the man slated to represent the late and famous Bruce Lee, world's best Kung Fu artist, Martin and Junior Tom Adams who has shown to be the most improved member since last year.

The outlook for next year is promising, as the Tribe will only lose one runner, Julien Martin to graduation. Lemieux, Scholky, and a healthy Scott Moffat should constitute a nucleus for one of the finest teams in the OCIL next year. They will receive a lot of support from Wallace, Adams, Ja Martin and Paul Philbrick. Also returning for their last season will be Brian Rathun and Joe (Desi) Desimone. Next year juniors, Jeff Jones, Randy Murphy and Bill Murphy will help make the team deeper than this year and will help if any of the varsity run into trouble. — Joe S.

U.N. Day Observed By MHS Students

In observance of UN Day a special Model Assembly was held at the State Capitol, attended by students from various parts of the state. Craig Stealy, Marjorie Taggart and Gerry Bajacius from the Current Affairs Club represented Manchester High.

Upon arrival each school group was given a country to represent for the day. South Africa was assigned to the Manchester group.

Following the opening address given by Gov. Thomas Meskill and an invocation by Bishop John Wheaton, the assembly was split into three different committees, with a delegate from each country present. For the next two hours apartide, ocean resources, and nuclear test bans were discussed with resolutions made. Also at this time a security council meeting was held on the subject of the Middle East crisis.

After a lunch break the General Assembly met and gave its attention to two speakers: Chief Justice Charles House of the State Court and the Mayor of Hartford George Athanson. All committee reports were discussed and all resolutions voted upon. At approximately 4:30 the Assembly was adjourned.

The set up of the Assembly was as true to the United Nations as possible, but with one exception. Many students represented the United States in their voting instead of the policies the countries they were to represent would have followed. To the Manchester representatives the assembly proved educational and worth repeating in future years.

The Candidates Are Saying...

Donald Eden

(Eden is a Republican member of the Vernon Town Council.)

"Speaking on behalf of the 15 Republican candidates seeking election on Nov. 6, I urge the citizens of Vernon to judge the McCoy team on the character of the campaign we have conducted.

"More importantly we have been able to provide and expand these necessary and desired services, programs and facilities while maintaining a stable tax rate. Let the voters judge us on this record.

"Thirteen of the 15 Republican candidates are currently holding office and I ask each citizen to select in-dubitable candidates on the basis of real, not imagined, qualifications. Consider what each has accomplished, not what they claim to have done. Look closely at attendance and voting records.

"Consider education and experience. Determine if he, or she, will build up or constantly tear down. Lastly, judge motive and motivation.

"Finally, ask each and every voter to consider the personal commitment made by our Mayor, Frank J. McCoy, during the last four years... a commitment of time, talent, and of heart. I ask the re-election of Mayor McCoy and the entire McCoy team so that together, we may continue to make Vernon a better place in which to live."

"During the last few weeks we have honestly reviewed the promises the McCoy team made two years ago. We have shown in the press and in fact printed material our accomplishments in such important areas as added fire protection, elderly housing, expanded public works programs, added recreational programs and new playgrounds, and sanitary sewer programs.

"The students of MHS and the Student Assembly urge you to vote YES on Question 1."

The Candidates Are Saying—

Pascal A. Prignano

(Prignano is a Democratic candidate for the Manchester Board of Directors.)

As the election campaign for Board of Directors approaches I am confident that we will be able to elect a group of directors who will be able to address the issues raised by the opposition party. Fortunately, there are no major issues. The few statements released by the Democrats by approving the commencement of revaluation by town forces at a cost of $3,000 was wasteful, was premature of site requirements and would result in annual revaluation on a basis other than property value, is false and misleading. By the town preparing the ground work for revaluation with its appraisal. The first revaluated taxes will not be paid until 1988, exactly in line with state statute for 10-year revaluation, our last was in 1966. Finally there has been no approval of annual revaluation. It would be up to the board sitting at that time to make any such determination and any revaluation would be based on increases in property value applicable to the Board of Tax Review in the event of an over-assessment. Of course they can't say it, but in their hearts they know the Democrats have done it better and for less.

A potential site for one of their motels, that they never heard of the entrepreneur in question, resented the fact that the Republicans were using their name in this regard, and might take further steps.

Statements by the Republicans regarding revaluation, indicating that the Democrats by approving the commencement of revaluation by town forces at a cost of $3,000 was wasteful, was premature of site requirements and would result in annual revaluation on a basis other than property value, is false and misleading. Of course they can't say it, but in their hearts they know the Democrats have done it better and for less.

They publicized the fact that we refused to put in sewers for a local entrepreneur to enable him to build a Holiday Inn and lost tax income to Manchester. In point of fact, after thoughtful consideration, the cost to the town was excessive and to abutting owners unnecessary and aggressive and would have been tantamount of our directory subsidizing a private venture with taxpayers' money. It's interesting pictures of a Holiday Inn in East Hartford, that a check with Holiday Inn's office revealed that this was not

Coventry Growth Concerns Council Candidate

Richard Breault, Democratic council candidate, advocates the adoption of a limited population growth policy for the state of Connecticut. Breault explained, "Development pressures and the resultant threat to our rural way of life and our land is largely due to the forces of an expanding population.

In Connecticut, this population growth is primarily due to immigration due to an expanding economy.

Breault pointed out, "Connecticut is the fourth most densely populated state in the United States and its population grew at nearly twice as the national average over the past decade. Future growth must not be considered inevitable and state government must address itself to the question of how much growth is desirable and at what level should be state's population be stabilized," he added.

Breault quoted from a recent article by Prof. James Bonner. "We have to decide on what population level is right for our country, and aim for it and keep it there. And when we do achieve a stable population, we will experience a freedom, freedom from the costly social expense of ever more schools, more shopping centers, more highways, more cities and all the elementary requirements of the individual American's daily life. Population stabilization is going to cause a lot of screening by land developers and by many businessmen who have the mistaken idea that only an exploding population can create property. That this notion is not correct is shown by example of Japan, which with near-zero population growth, has shown the most rapid rise in per-capita income of any people in the history of the world."

Breault said, "The attitude of state government, particularly its attitude towards tax incentive intended to attract business, is a critical force in influencing the growth of our state."

He suggests that, "The most rapid means of stabilizing population would be to increase corporate taxes."

Tolland Conservation Hike Sunday

VIVIAN KENNESON
Correspondent
Tel. 875-4704

The fourth in a series of short hikes sponsored by the Conservation Commission and Land Trust will take place Sunday at 1:30 p.m.

All residents are welcomed to meet at the corner of Sugar Hill Rd. and Kendall Mountain Rd., near the home of the Palmer. This intersection is approximately two and a half miles from the corner of Stafford Rd. and Sugar Hill Rd.

The walk will proceed along Kendall Mountain Rd. to Cook Rd., then down Cook Rd. to a tear-down. Local residents are encouraged to bring their own picnic. Rain date is Nov. 11 at the same time.

Boys League Officers
Bruce Stewart was elected president of the Tolland Boys League at its recent annual meeting.

Other officers are Nick Donaldson, vice president; Ron Gyer, treasurer; Betty Lee, secretary; Dan Dimmock, equipment manager; Tom Kelleher, umpire and chief; Pat Tracy, senior league commissioner; Nick Donaldson, international league commissioner; Greg Forbush, instructional league commissioner.

Four hundred boys between the ages of 6 and 17 are expected to participate in the self-supporting baseball program this year. President Bruce Stewart estimates the total budget for the program will be $7,000. Over half of the budget goes for equipment.

The boys' main goal for the 1973-74 season is the search and development of baseball fields, because of the loss of the present fields in the future.

PECULIAR PLAY PRODUCED

Nov. 9 and 10, the curtain goes up on the most peculiar play yet produced by Sock 'n Buskin. Entitled, "You Were Born on a Rotten Day," it uses unorthodox sets and directing. The play is intended mainly as a spoof of the education system and astrology.

In effect, the play will be spoofing a lot of other things, including the standard form of theater shows. The set consists of a painted, but bare framework by three boards, and a few platforms and hinged zodiac signs. The cast includes a chorus line of "Hayfield" girls, a spoof of the

Gardening

with FRANK ATWOOD

Some of the largest pumpkins produced in this area this fall were raised by the Clarence Edmondson family of Coventry. Several of them weighed close to, or perhaps even more than 100 pounds. It is too late to be sure now because from 12 to 15 of the largest pumpkins, displayed in the Edmondson yard, were stolen. Somebody or more likely at least two strong men, made off with them one night after the family had finished their dinner. "They surely were not kids," says Mr. Edmondson. The pumpkins were probably taken away in a truck. Installation of some bright lights in the yard, after the visit of the thieves, apparently prevented further raids, and now the pumpkin season has come to an end.

With Halloween, we're finished," Mr. Edmondson said. The large pumpkins are grown, and purchased, entirely for Halloween decoration and have no other use. It would be possible, perhaps, to use them for pumpkin pies, but cooks prefer the small "sugar" pumpkins, a different variety, and the Edmondsons did not plant sugar pumpkins this year. Those that were still left in the yard when the holiday passed will be chopped into pieces and fed to two Jersey cows owned by Mr. Edmondson's brother, Hubert, who lives next door.

New Variety The large pumpkins are of a variety called Howden's Special. Mr. Edmondson believes it is a development from a familiar old variety, Connecticut Field Pumpkin. The breeding work, he understands, was done in Massachusetts and the seed has been produced by the Harris Seed Company. This is the first year that Howden's Special has been available. In fact, said Mr. Edmondson, he lost some sales because all his pumpkins were so large. University of Connecticut students, looking for pumpkins to fit on the windows of a dormitory room, went away without buying. Next year there will be some small pumpkins available with the large ones.

Francisco, Philadelphia, Boston, Louisville, Ky. St. Petersburg, Fla. and Dayton, Ohio. On Oct. 3 or 11, reporters bought packages of ground beef from several of the major U.S. cities found that the meat bought at supermarkets, was "often contaminated with fecal bacteria."

coli bacteria was not made, the report said. "E. coli contamination may come from backed-up sewer lines seeping into water used for cleaning grinders or processing areas, from meat handlers who fail to wash their hands after using the toilet or from the intestines of slaughtered animals," the magazine said.

meat contamination reportedly found in several cities. NORWALK (AP) - A national consumer publication said today that a spot check of ground beef last month in several major U.S. cities found that the meat bought at supermarkets, was "often contaminated with fecal bacteria."

Meat Contamination Reportedly Found In Several Cities

What can be concluded... is that the consumer has no present assurance that the ground beef he is purchasing is free of disease-producing organisms," said Media and Consumer magazine, a monthly publication from Dayton, Ohio.
