

Brokers Now Insuring Customer Assets

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Realizing it must do more to regain public confidence, the investment community is seeking to insure customer assets against loss in brokerage house failures for far more than the existing $50,000 of protection.

Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith and Dean Witter & Co. now provide $250,000 insurance on customers' securities left in their care, in addition to that provided by the Securities Investor Protection Corp.

The total of $500,000 is more protection against failure than is offered by other financial services, specifically banking and insurance, a Merrill Lynch spokesman noted.

The insurance plans are intended as an inducement to customers to leave securities with their broker instead of keeping them in safe deposit boxes, a procedure that sometimes delays transactions and results in losses.

James Needham, New York Stock Exchange chairman, indicated at a news conference in Houston last week that he was seeking to persuade commercial insurers to offer other brokers somewhat similar policies.

The only insurer in the market so far is Aetna Life & Casualty, and it is significant that its first customers, Merrill Lynch and Witter, are in positions to boast of financial strength.

Questions exist among insurers and brokers as to how extensively Aetna is willing or able to cover weaker members of the brokerage community.

An Aetna spokesman said simply that "we hope to sell more," but he made clear that each firm would be considered individually and would be subject to intensive scrutiny of its financial condition.

Unless the securities industry is able to obtain blanket policies covering many firms, the existing instability conceivably might be worsened by the inability of weaker firms to obtain separate policies.

Least eligible, for example, are those that probably need the insurance most. That could further erode customer confidence and result in defections to highly insured, financially strong firms.

Existing protection against losses in liquidations is limited to a maximum of $50,000 for each customer, except that in claims for cash, as distinct from securities, no more than $20,000 may be paid with SIPC funds.

In a liquidation, the customer's securities are returned to him, if available, by SIPC, the nonprofit government-industry protection corporation. Next, the firm's assets are distributed.

If these funds prove insufficient, the protection corporation uses its funds up to the $20,000-$50,000 limitation. Thereafter, any reimbursement would be from the company's commercial policy, if there were one.

The two that exist cover only securities — not cash — left in the broker's care. A Merrill Lynch spokesman said that with high interest rate available, few customers are likely to leave large amounts of cash with brokers.

In an Oct. 11 announcement of its insurance plan, the industry's first, Merrill Lynch noted that "many investors have been overly fearful of entering the marketplace" because of concern over financial conditions.

Broker liquidations have been numerous in the past five years. The protection corporation had 87 liquidations on its books at the end of last year, including one Big Board firm, West Securities.

The NYSE has 50 members on a so-called early warning list because of weak capital-to-debt ratio, but Needham told newsmen in Houston that none could be listed as critical. Nine were in that condition last June.

Fewer Voters Registered For Election

HARTFORD (AP) — Around 65,000 fewer persons in Connecticut will be eligible to vote Tuesday than last year, according to the latest registration figures from the Secretary of the State Gloria Schaffer.

The final 1973 figures show 433,892 Republicans, 568,685 Democrats, 378,260 independents and 600 persons who are registered with other parties for a total of 1,981,037.

The reductions are the result of people whose names are removed from the rolls because they move from the state or from one town to another and fail to re-register.

Officials Predict 60 Per Cent Voter Turnout

SOL R. COHEN
Herald Reporter

With about 27,270 Manchester residents eligible to vote today and with election officials predicting that 60 per cent, or about 16,360, will have turned out by 8 p.m., when the polls close, a total of 4,372 had voted by 11 a.m., five hours after the polls opened.

Blessed with clear, brisk election weather, both parties are making every effort to get out the vote and to surpass the 60 per cent prediction. Both are offering rides to the polls—the Democrats by calling 646-6527, the Republicans by calling 645-2773.

In 1971, the last time municipal elections were held, a total of 4,932 had voted by 11 a.m. With 24,342 eligible to vote that year, about 65 per cent had cast ballots when the polls closed at 8 p.m.

During the 1969 municipal elections 4,200 had voted by 11 a.m. and about 60 per cent of the 22,686 eligible voters cast ballots by 8 p.m.

In the November 1972 Presidential election, a record high 28,255 were eligible to vote and about 87 per cent cast ballots during the 14 hours the polls were open. At 11 a.m. that day, 9,728 had voted—at a rate of about 1,868 an hour. Today's rate at 11 a.m. is about 874 an hour.

Manchester voters are electing a nine-member Board of Directors (to serve two-year terms), six members to the Board of Education (to serve three-year terms, with three for the period 1973-76 and three for the period 1974-77), a town clerk (to a four-year term), a town treasurer (to a two-year term), a three-member Board of Selectmen (to two-year terms), and seven constables (to two-year terms).

Because Manchester boards are subject to minority representation, the voters may cast ballots for only six directors, four school board members, two selectmen, and four constables.

The Democrats have been in control of Manchester's government since November 1971, when they swept the election by pluralities ranging from 35 to about 2,000.

Of added interest in today's election is a proposed $5.6 appropriation for improvements to filling and Bessie Juniper High.

This year marks the third consecutive year the voters have considered a referendum question for secondary schools. In 1971 a proposal for a new junior high school, known as the Koenig School, lost by about 2,000 votes. In 1972 a proposal for a $8.8 million appropriation for filling and Bessie Juniper improvements lost by about 470 votes.

Also being voted upon today are 12 questions pertaining to proposed charter changes. A highlight of the election campaign has been the lack of interest in questions by candidates and voters alike.

About 200 election workers and 35 voting machines are being utilized in today's election. The chief moderator is John Fletcher Jr., whose office is in the Manchester Municipal Building.

School was out today. By state law, the sale of alcoholic beverages is prohibited during voting hours.

Both parties have "Win-Lose-or-Draw" parties planned for tonight—the Democrats at their Broad St. Headquarters, the Republicans at their E. Middle Tpk. Headquarters.

Of considerable interest is the "identity of today's high vote-getter. Traditionally, the Republican party on the Board of Directors elects the high vote-getter mayor and chairman of the board, the second-high vote-getter mayor, and the third-high vote-getter secretary.

A total of 522 absentee ballots were requested of the town clerk and sent out by him. To be counted and entered into the totals at 8 p.m., are the 436 which were returned.

Snowstorm Hits Areas Of Vermont

MONTEPELIER, Vt. (AP)—Traffic in central Vermont was snarled by a snowstorm which hit roads and caught highway crews by surprise today.

State police said a section of the southbound lane of Interstate-89 between the Montpelier and Berlin exits was closed during the morning because of slippery conditions. The section includes a long curving grade and police said a number of cars were stuck along the road.

About 50 cars were reported stuck along the so-called County Road between Montpelier and Maple Corners. Two school buses carried off slick roads in the Montpelier area, but no injuries were reported.

Montpelier police said the main problem seemed to be ice on the roads, which they termed "treacherous."

Watching Elections

NEW YORK (AP)—Politicians are closely watching scattered off-year elections today for a clue to the impact of Watergate. They may not learn much.

Today's elections, headlined by gubernatorial races in New Jersey and Virginia and a mayoral contest in New York City, represent the first national sampling of voter sentiment since the eruption of White House scandals and is being viewed as a possible preview of 1974.

Acquitted

FREHOLD, N.J. (AP)—Lester Zygmanski has been acquitted by a jury of seven men and five women of first degree murder charges for the slaying of his paralyzed brother. The jury deliberated 2 1/2 hours on Tuesday before acquitting Zygmanski, 23, on grounds of temporary insanity.

Watergate Panel Seeks Meeting With President

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Watergate committee today sought contact with White House lawyers to determine whether there is any possibility for panel members to meet with President Nixon to obtain his account of the Watergate scandal.

Committee Chairman Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., said after an executive session that the committee would be willing to meet with the President in the White House and question him—if testifying without Nixon testifying under oath.

"We'd be happy to have him come down here and testify under oath," Ervin said, "but this relates to a meeting with him in the White House."

The action followed a discussion behind closed doors of a letter to the committee by one of its members, Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr., R-Conn. Weicker proposed that committee members seek a private White House meeting with Nixon and publish a record of the meeting afterward.

Majority Oppose Zone Changes

Buckland Plan Aired At Hearing

DOUG BEVINS
Herald Reporter

The majority of the 250 persons attending a Monday night public hearing held by the Manchester Planning and Zoning Commission (PZC) opposed zone changes at Buckland, which is located in both Manchester and South Windsor.

Fischer, noting that requested zone changes affect 283 acres of land in Manchester, said his firm is planning a 18- to 15-year program to eventually include a one million-square foot regional shopping mall, a hotel-conference center, office buildings, a campus-style research park, and a residential condominium community.

The applicant is seeking four zone changes on the Manchester portion of the land, which is now zoned Rural Residence. The requested zone changes are for about 138 acres of CID (Comprehensive Urban Development) Zone, 33 acres of Industrial Zone, 31 acres of Business 3 Zone, and seven acres of Business 1 Zone.

Fischer, describing the development plan with the assistance of several experts and a slide presentation of maps and photographs, said the requested change to CID Zone.

Developer Arthur M. Fischer of New York City, lead partner in the MAP Associates investment group, anchored the applicant's two-hour opening presentation and described his proposed 561-acre development at Buckland, which is located in both Manchester and South Windsor.

Fischer, representing the applicant, introduced a series of study documents, prepared for the developer, detailing analysis of development potential, economic impact, drainage and utilities feasibility, and traffic studies.

The thrust of the zone change applications is apparently contained in the study documents, PZC Chairman Clarence Wolke said after the hearing, noting that the Monday night presentation by the developer didn't include verbal testimony supporting the zone change applications.

PZC members, in response to complaints Monday night that detailed information about the application was not available in advance, said the study documents have been on file in the town clerk's office for several weeks.

(Several persons speaking at the hearing were identified in this column.)

The main opposition was led by Atty. Vincent Diana of Manchester, who represents a 48-family homeowners group in the Buckland area. Diana said the group opposes the Industrial and Business Zone changes but approves the requested change to CID Zone.

The zone changes are being sought by MAP Associates, which is planning a 561-acre development at Buckland, in both Manchester and South Windsor. In the 283-acre portion of the land which lies in Manchester, MAP Associates recommended denial of residential development at the Regional Land Use Plan.

Tollison said zone changes to business should be denied because the change "would permit the development of substantially more commercial retail floor space than is required and would create inconvertible traffic congestion."

The CRCOG's advisory report, delivered to Manchester Town Planner J. Eric Potter just before a PZC hearing Monday night on the proposed zone changes, is mandated by state statutes which specify that requested zone changes within 500 feet of a town line be reviewed by a regional planning agency.

Business Zone Changes Opposed By CRCOG

DOUG BEVINS

The planning division of the Capitol Region Council of Governments (CRCOG) has recommended approval of Comprehensive Urban Development and Industrial Zone changes at Buckland but has recommended denial of changes to business zones in the area.

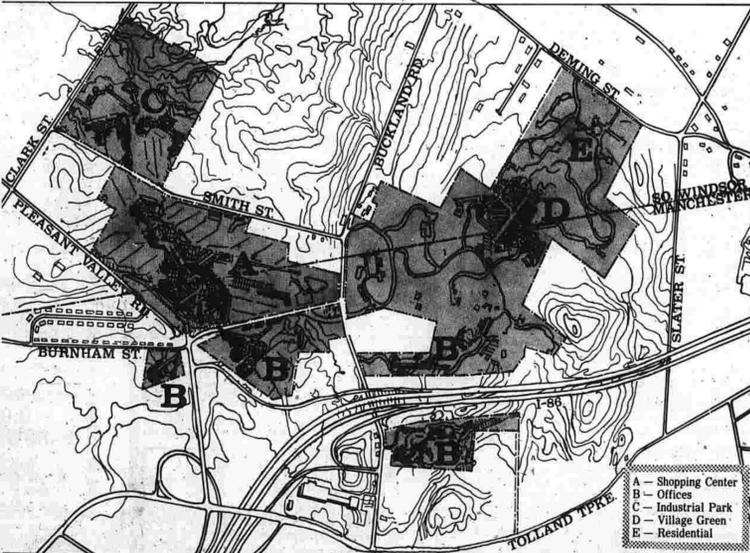

Chief Regional Planner Leonard Tollison, in a report to the Manchester Planning and Zoning Commission (PZC), said zone changes to allow business use in part of a proposed commercial-industrial residential development at Buckland "is clearly contrary to the standards recommended in the Regional Land Use Plan."

Tollison said zone changes to business should be denied because the change "would permit the development of substantially more commercial retail floor space than is required and would create inconvertible traffic congestion."

Outgoing Chairman Commended by Council

The Town Council held farewell to its outgoing Chairman Albert Bradley Monday night. Today's elections will bring in a new council and chairmanship. Bradley is not seeking another term.

Democrat Bradley was commended by Vice Chair Lady Rose Fowler on behalf of the other council members, thanking him for two years of leadership, hard work and effort.

The council also said goodbye and expressed appreciation to members Wesley Lewis and David Roach, who are leaving office by choosing not to run again.

The group welcomed new Town Manager Allen Sandberg and officially commended Town Clerk Elizabeth Rychling for her "outstanding job" as acting chief administrative officer.

In other action Monday night, the council presented a plaque to Freshman Terry Pelletier for his winning efforts in a summer National Junior weightlifting competition.

Tax Surplus: What To Do With It?

By GARY LUHR
 Associated Press Writer

HARTFORD (AP) - Gov. Thomas J. Meskill has confirmed that Connecticut will see further tax reductions in 1974, something his Democratic adversaries have been predicting for nearly a year.

The question now is whether the reductions being considered are in the best interests of most state residents.

The governor has invited residents to write him expressing their views on how the state can best utilize the $70 million surplus amassed last year and the one already being building for the current fiscal year.

In a weekend news release, timed to coincide with today's local elections, Meskill indicated he favored tax reductions over increased spending.

House Majority Leader Gerald F. Stevens, R-Milford, said later that recent discussions with legislative leaders have focused on the sales and capital gains taxes.

A half-cent reduction in the sales tax, a 1 per cent lowering of the reduction means that the 1973-74 budget, which would ease up most of the $70 million surplus, one state financial observer estimated.

Dropping the sales tax from 6.5 to 6 per cent would still leave Connecticut with one of the highest sales taxes in the country. The savings would average about $12 per person.

The observer estimated that fewer than 100,000 people would be affected by any change in the capital gains tax.

Democratic State Auditor Leo V. Donohue has estimated that the same $70 million could be distributed to towns at the rate of $23 per person to lower property tax rates by amounts

Nixon Actions Attacked

WASHINGTON (AP) - Another conservative Republican senator has attacked President Nixon's handling of the Watergate affair while two others said most of their anti-Nixon mail is inspired by the President's enemies.

Sen. Peter H. Dominick, R-Colo., advised Republicans to declare political independence of the Nixon White House and said the party must cooperate in beginning impeachment proceedings to establish the President's innocence or guilt.

Dominick and Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott called on Nixon to make a complete disclosure of all tapes and documents relating to the Watergate investigations.

Last week, Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., said public confidence in Nixon is so low that his only hope of escape is to appear voluntarily before the Senate Watergate committee and testify under oath.

However, speaking Monday in Logan, Utah, Goldwater said that Nixon should not resign. "Nothing that has gone on so far makes me think that he should," Goldwater said.

Goldwater said also that he opposes impeachment. "If, however, they can prove that he was dishonest, he should be impeached."

The committee is set to vote on a proposal by Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr., R-Conn., who suggested the panel tell the President it is willing to meet him privately at the White House, question him without placing him under oath, and make the transcript of the session public.

Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., has suggested Nixon resign but Scott rejected that idea.

The mail of most members of Congress has been running heavily against the President. Two senators said they believe it is politically inspired.

Sens. William L. Scott, R-Va., and Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., said they believe most of their anti-Nixon mail is coming from supporters of Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., or is inspired by such groups as the AFL-CIO, Common Cause and the American Civil Liberties Union. All three groups have called for Nixon's resignation or impeachment.

The Virginia Republican said a spot check with the writers of the 1973 General Assembly before the report was completed.

CPACA Executive Director H.R. Eterrett said this was done in order to apply for federal crime-fighting funds for the task force.

The report called for the task force to define specific roles for state and local agencies in fighting organized crime.

Gambling and loansharking are the major organized crime activities in Connecticut, the report said. Less prominent activities include labor racketeering, infiltration of legitimate business, cigarette smuggling, narcotics, bank robberies, stolen car rings, pornography and corruption of public officials.

Sterratt said Connecticut doesn't know the full extent of organized crime activities within its boundaries. He said the committee estimated $100 million was lost illegally in the state on horsepurses each year, between $35 and $52 million was spent on numbers rackets and as much as $20 million in tax revenue was lost through cigarette smuggling.

Sterratt said federal, state and local efforts to reduce narcotics traffic are under way.

He said a massive public education campaign would be part of the new attack on crime.

"We want to make the public aware that there is a direct correlation to a $2 bet and the heroin that is being sold at the high school," he said.

The report was delivered last week to Gov. Thomas J. Meskill. Sterratt said additional copies would be sent to all local police chiefs and members of the General Assembly's Judiciary Committee.

Auditors Suggest New Procedure For Rec Accounts

While noting that all checking account transactions involving non-profit citizen activities, softball leagues and other such activities coming under the Vernon Recreation Department, have been properly accounted for, an audit report requested by Mayor Frank McCo, recommends changes in procedures.

McCo asked for the audit when criticism was directed at Recreation Director Donald Berger concerning the deposit of checks for softball league activities.

In a report to the Recreation Commission, Berger explained that the establishment of the Senior Citizen Account made it possible to handle checks designated for the purchase of softballs and paying of game officials, by depositing them in that account and then drawing a check to the suppliers for the amount needed.

The auditing firm of Puleo, Gittin, Halpern & Campise, of Vernon, in stating that the funds had been properly accounted for, recommended, however, that the Senior Citizen Fund checking account and the town's Recreation Department Senior Citizen Fund savings account be closed.

They said that then the corresponding receipts and disbursements should be deposited and disbursed through accounts subject to the control and signatures of the town treasurer and the town administrator.

The auditors further recommended that a trust and agency account (Recreation Department Escrow Fund) be established to continue the activities involved, rather than reflecting the transactions in the general fund revenues and expenditures.

They said they suggested this since the activities involved are not affected by the budget limitations set by the Town Council.

The auditors further recommended that the Town Council authorize an imprest checking account (money advanced from government funds to enable a person to carry on work for the government) for Berger to use for on-site payment of obligations which are not ascertainable until the event.

The auditors said the town cannot be billed, and would not know the cost of a trip or event until it took place. "The vendor receipt to be secured by Berger would then become the documentation necessary for the reimbursement of the imprest account," the auditors explained.

Installation of a pegboard receipt system for the reimbursement of simultaneous control over sums received, checking account deposits and functions, was also recommended by the auditors.

BRIDGEPORT (AP) - A 22-year-old Bridgeport man was charged with first-degree manslaughter Monday in the beating death of 4-year-old Marcus Williams of Father Panik Village.

Kenneth A. Reese was held in lieu of $25,000 bond, police said.

Police said Reese, not the father of the child, argued with the boy's mother. Police said she told them she left the child with Reese at the apartment.

The mother's name was not released by police.

Officers said the youth was severely beaten on the head and body.

Energy Challenge

"Sorry, sir, but we're out of premium gas, the truck is late." Have you heard that, as many people have? It is something new at gasoline stations in the last few months.

To many of us it may be the first chill breeze of a cold winter this year with further shortages in years to come. Interior Secretary Rogers Morton has said that the people of the United States have not come to a realization of the imminent seriousness of our energy supplies.

There is no doubt that we have both an immediate and long term energy problem. The administration is preparing a fuel-emergency bill to offset shortened oil supply from Arab producers. The President is planning to introduce legislation allowing oil to be placed on the market from naval reserves—a step not to be taken lightly.

States which impose production limitations on gas and oil may be asked to relax their standards to meet the present crisis.

A 50-mile per hour speed limit is being considered. State clean air plans may be federally preempted in order to expand use of higher sulfur oil and coal.

The energy shortage is not something which may happen in the distant future. It is here. And it may be here for a long time.

We are in for a head on clash between the ecologists and environmentalists and the hard realities of our national energy consumption—the highest in the world.

We are going to have to choose between abandoning our free use of energy, or maintaining simon-pure ecological and environmental standards.

More atomic fuel plants must come to free us from the use of fossil fuels, in spite of the protests of those who fear, — falsely, we think — that it would be injurious to our national energy.

The Atomic Energy Commission estimates that all of the commercial wastes in the United States between now and the year 2000 could be stored in one, one-story building 200 x 200 feet. Certainly not a great waste problem.

Much has been made also of "thermal pollution," the condition where the temperature of water is raised several degrees by waste water discharge into the ocean or rivers from generating plants. It has been found that marine life can adjust to moderate changes, and indeed in some cases seems to thrive in the warmer water, if it is not excessive.

No one would want a return to the despoliation by coal mining which scarred the hills of Appalachia. Yet being going to need coal. And in many cases removing the overburden is the quick and economical way to make it available.

Coal and uranium can be mined by the strip process and as mining advances the surface can be restored to its natural state, or even improved by the sowing of grasses and planting trees. New ponds can be created, which will be clean and devoid of any radio-activity.

Our ingenuity should enable us to develop more and more energy without unduly disturbing nature's balance and plan. But, we are going to have to be realistic about it.

Veto Correct

President Nixon was right in vetoing the "War Powers" bill both on constitutional grounds and those of practicality. We hope that the Congress will not override the Presidential veto on this bill.

Constitutionally the bill is unsound in its provision that in event of war the U.S. must terminate its military effort unless the Congress approves of the action within 60 days. This action would be automatic and without specific action by the Congress.

This relieves the individual members of both houses from personal responsibility in an action which might be of gravest consequence to the nation.

At the same time the bill provides that the Congress can stop a military action by joint resolutions of both houses and this cannot be overridden by a presidential veto. This is clearly unconstitutional since it removes from the executive branch its power to veto, which is one of the checks and balances of government.

From a practical point of view it destroys the capacity of the country to act quickly and decisively in time of crisis. A war effort by the country would be vaguely tentative if it could be stopped automatically in 60 days by congressional failure to act.

Further, in a war of the times, complete mobilization and industrial responses to the country's needs the strengths of dictatorship and weaknesses of democracies is the ability of the former to move quickly and decisively in time of war or national emergency. It is proper that the Congress move slowly and deliberately in its actions. But, the country cannot afford to have a President hamstringing by this statute.

The President is designated by the Constitution as commander-in-chief of the armed forces of the United States and also of the militia of the several states, when they are called upon to serve the country.

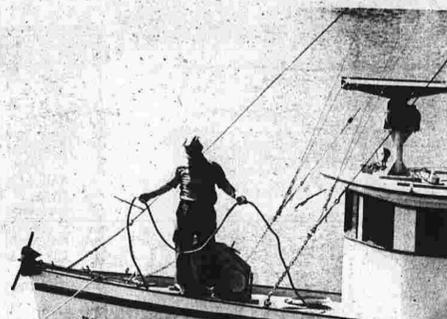

Herein he has the power to act quickly when the need may arise, without the possibility that his deeds may be negated within two months, automatically, by congressional inaction.

While the right to declare war is specifically delegated to the Congress, this formal action has often been delayed due to the slowness of the legislative process.

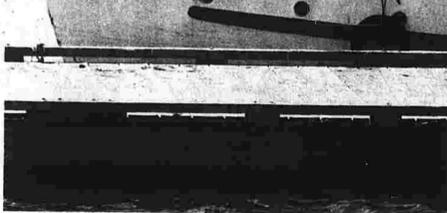

The bill sprang, of course, from the country's disillusionment, frustration and disgust with our long and fruitless entanglement in Southeast Asia.

But we cannot permanently weaken the country's ability to act because of our revision with that engagement. Congress's power to act is inherent in its control of the purse string. The Cambodian cutoff of bombardment was an example of how legislative restraints may be imposed.

We feel sure that wisdom will prevail and the President's veto sustained on this crucial bill.

Inside Report

The Shah's Hope

TEHERAN — Proof of U.S. "credibility" in presenting Israel to withdraw from its Arab territories in Egypt and Syria captured in 1967 would modify and possibly cancel anti-American production cutbacks by the oil-rich Arab states, the Shah of Iran suggested in an exclusive interview.

Iran itself, the second-largest Middle East oil producer, did not join the production cutback. As the leader of 32 million non-Arab Muslims with intimate ties to Washington and correct relations with Moscow, the Shah is by far the most important independent power on the edge of the explosive Middle East.

More to the point, Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi is determined to replace the British as guarantor of the most vital waterway in the world today, the Persian Gulf. Without Persian Gulf passage of uncountable oil tankers, the entire economies of Japan and Western Europe would struggle for lack of oil.

Consequently, the Shah, handsome at 54 with the sleek assurance of total authority and 32 years in power, is to be carefully listened to.

"The United States has always supported the principle of the inadmissibility of acquiring land by force," he told us in the gold-chased office of his Niavaran Palace high in the hills overlooking his capital. "Israel has no choice but to leave the Arab lands it captured in 1967."

The Shah declined to discuss the actual U.S. policy in the Middle East today: the times are too sensitive, he said. But the general feeling was expressed forcibly to us by other government officials. It is that Washington's Middle East policy is so manipulative that it cannot really be defined.

Starting with the Eisenhower administration's inappreciable withdrawal of the offer to sell arms to Egypt in 1955 and continuing to the present, knowledgeably Iranian call that policy self-destructive at incalculable cost to the U.S. ally, the Soviet Union, close to use its power. Only the U.S. could do that.

"But for what reason?" he asked rhetorically. "One cannot expect the United States to risk destruction of itself and the whole world because Israel wants to stay in Sinai."

The Shah also came down hard against U.S.-Soviet participation in any United Nations force eventually established to guarantee Israel's security behind the old, pre-1967 lines.

Given obvious and historic Iranian fear of a strong, unified Arab world, the Shah's call for U.S. muscle in dealing with Iran is significant. Iran has close but informal relations with Israel and most politicians here regard a healthy Israel as a vital counterweight to anti-Iranian hostility from such radical Arab states as Iraq.

This Israeli connection, never publicly discussed, is important to Iran. But that calls for a secure Israel on pre-1967 borders, not an Israel whose presence on the Suez Canal enables the Arabs to surround their intense rivalries; not an Israel, in short, that drives the Arabs close to the very only which someday might prove dangerous to the Shah of Iran and his country.

Who Needs It?

WASHINGTON — President Nixon's war with certain segments of the media and the whimpering with which it has been greeted in some journalistic quarters recalls a put-down I suffered years ago at the hands of a wise editor in Boston.

Ray Kierman had sent me to cover a fire on the South Side. When I phoned in my story of what I called the "holocaust," I included complaints about reporters being shoved around by cops. Kierman blue-pencilled my sniveling, and explained why when I returned to the city room still hot with indignation.

"I know this will sound incredible, young man," he told me. "But the reading public is not interested in your personal troubles. Just tell the story."

Since that day I have had small sympathy for reporters who inject themselves into their dispatches by citing of official attempts to thwart their zeal. Things are tough all over, and a reader should be no more interested in a reporter's tribulations than in those of his friendly neighborhood plumber. Except perhaps for certain publishers' sons, nobody came into this dodge with the guarantee of an easy life. There will always be people who make it hard for us noble historians but I do not expect a mother of 10 kids to rush to my side and press a witch-hazel poultice to my brow.

Thus, I am only mildly stirred by the disclosure of a 1969 White House memo by Jeb Magruder criticizing President Nixon's "shogun" attacks on the media and suggesting the use of such tactics as harassment by the Internal Revenue Service and the Justice Dept. Magruder, however, called the Watergate case. Of course it is not comforting to learn that anyone in the White House was considering using a government agency as a weapon against the media. As Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., said, there is "no way to do it" if the Magruder memo were acted on, but "it shows the type of thinking that was going on at the White House."

That "type of thinking" nevertheless, most of us in the trade can live with revelations of such vicious shenanigans. We may be cynical, but we cling to the belief there are men in the FCC and the Justice Department who would oppose any attempt to use their power for political purposes. There is always a leak when an administration tries to pull a fast one because we have not yet run out of officials who take their oath of office seriously.

There is a campaign on to get journalists "added protection" through legislation spelling out in more specific details our rights. Who needs it? We've got the Constitution, and if it's good enough for the rest of the country, it's good enough for the press. If we sometimes find it difficult and even perilous to safeguard that freedom, well, that's part of the ballgame. Selling shoes is not always easy, either.

Public Hearing Demanded On $40,000 Rham Request

ANNE EMT Correspondent Tel. 228-3971

The Hebron Board of Selectmen, in an unanimous vote, agreed to continue the Regional District 8 Board of Education indicating that the $40,000 being requested at a district meeting Nov. 13 for the first phase of a middle school building program should be brought to a public hearing.

The board also agreed that the question should be brought to a referendum vote in the three district towns, Hebron, Andover and Marlborough, and to support any action to submit the necessary petition for action.

The Regional Board has called the 13th meeting to request $40,000 for preliminary architect fees, plans and possible site acquisition.

However, Duane Totten, Hebron town counsel, has informed the selectmen that in his opinion the appropriation requires a public hearing, and if he were a regional board member he would be very hesitant to consider spending any funds whereby the legality of the appropriation is questionable.

The selectmen took their action in spite of a statement from Dr. David Cattaneo, superintendent of schools, in which he informed Aaron Reid, first selectman, that the authorization to borrow the funds was not a budget matter and therefore does not require a public hearing.

If it is decided that the action is a budgetary matter, a petition, which the selectmen will support, must be submitted to the clerk of the regional board at least three days before the district meeting and the board must then hold a referendum on the question the day following the date of the regional meeting. The petition must carry at least 200 signatures of residents eligible to vote at a district meeting.

The Vanishing Windowsill

According to an advertisement in a recent home-makers magazine, the newest thing in window design, is the window without a sill. As the advertisement explains, "It has a sleek, uncluttered look that's as modern as tomorrow."

The very thought of a window without a sill strikes a blow to my heart! And I'll just bet that the architect responsible is the same man (it has to be a man) who designed the front porch off the house and the running board of the car.

No windowsills. Think about it for a minute. Perhaps a household could function without windowsills in the bathroom, the bedroom or the living room (though pray tell me where that would leave the cat and the African violets.) But, the thought of no windowsill in the kitchen or the sink, throws me into a virtual panic.

Where would you ripen your tomatoes or peas or peaches? Where would you safely drop your car keys, your glasses, your rings or your watch? Where would you prop the recipe card so it wouldn't get splattered during cooking?

Now you could argue that the dining room table could accommodate these items. And you'd be partly right. The dining room table is the place for the big library books, but it's much too big for stray buttons and dental appointment cards.

You could also argue that the things on the windowsill should be put away in drawers. Remember the old adage, "Out of sight, out of mind." Well, it's vital that the things on the windowsill be "in mind."

Now we are blessed with a DOUBLE windowsill in our kitchen and I will defy anyone who tries, in the name of modern design, to cast aspersions on it. My mother had a windowsill. So did my grandmother. Why I suspect it was one of the amenities that early pioneer women were pioneering for.

The kitchen window-sill is an American tradition, and an American motherhood and apple pie it's worth speaking up for!

Privacy Protection Needed

WASHINGTON (AP) - John Clifton of Somerville, U.S.A., may lose a job, a loan or a barber's license if the zeal for national computerized crime records grows unchecked, says a federal crime commission said Monday.

The National Advisory Commission on Criminal Justice Standards and Goals urged criminal-justice agencies at all levels to enact regulations protecting individual privacy by restricting the collection and distribution of criminal history records.

The risk of unwarranted encroachment on individual privacy also existed in the days of paper records, but it was diminished by the very sloppiness of the system, the commission said.

The 286-page report was prepared by a task force headed by Col. John R. Platts, director of the Michigan State Police. The report is one of a series prepared during a two-year study financed by a $1.75-billion grant from the Justice Law Enforcement Assistance Administration.

The commission said the computer system has not substantially changed the kinds of information collected by criminal justice agencies, but it has provided instant access nationwide, compounding the risk of unwarranted encroachments on individual privacy.

In addition, the commission said, many persons do not view the computer as infallible though it "can make errors, even monstrous ones." It also warned against "a growing tendency to gather more and more data... to seek new uses for the data."

The report encouraged the compilation of more accurate crime statistics to facilitate a coordinated and intelligent attack on crime.

Law-enforcement agencies have a firm right to data on an individual's arrest, trial, conviction and sentencing, the commission said. But it continued:

"Arrests that do not lead to convictions, detentions resulting from drug activities, permanent records of juvenile misbehavior, and the contents of increasingly bulky intelligence files - the dissemination of these materials does represent a potentially serious infringement on the right of privacy."

A huge willow, shrubbery and tall trees shade the secluded home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Stewart at 179 Boulder Rd.

A Travelogue House

Mrs. Stewart calls the den her museum as many of her artifacts collected from Afghanistan are displayed here.

The extensive window area enhanced by exotic indoor greenery provides an indoor-outdoor atmosphere in the living room where Rhea and Arthur Stewart like to relax.

Born under the astrological sign of Leo whose signs are the lion and the sun, Rhea has made a hobby of collecting lion miniatures in wood and metal. Her sun sign appears in the sunburst print seat covers of her dining room chairs. Her lions have come from India, England, China, and antique shops and even thrift stores.

A corner cupboard in the dining room glows with a collection of pink Staffordshire. On a sideboard is a set of demitasse porcelain "Lanville" made in Alsace-Lorraine. Rhea says she loves to treat her guests to "chocolat" served in her pot-de-creme.

A few rare shells are displayed on a table near the entrance. One shell has been carved with a prayer from the Koran, and another is set in carved silver. A slotted silver box through which soap can seep is used by the women of upper social class in Afghanistan when they bathe.

Other collectibles from the Near East are a Tibetan temple bell which vibrates with a continuous mellow tone when rubbed around the bell rim, and a small round box encrusted with colored stones from Afghanistan.

Probably the most interesting room in the den which Rhea modestly calls the museum. Here are most of Rhea's collection from Afghanistan, her books on the Near East, and figurines and pottery.

The coziest room, it is where the Stewarts often spend a quiet evening eating supper from snack trays and watching television.

The wall hangings are gold and purple illustrating a type of Bokhara embroidery, (Bokhara is now in Soviet Russia.) Framed treasures on the wall display a group of old Persian playing cards, and a lithograph of King Amanullah, the Afghan king of whom Rhea wrote in her book "Fire in Afghanistan." Pieces of broken pottery look like nothing until Rhea explains they may have come from the ancient city of Balkh and may even date back to the time of Alexander the Great. Turquoise plates from the town of Ispah in Afghanistan, a camel teapot, and a miniature ebony tambour with inlaid camel bone are among the "museum" pieces. A Persian area rug on burnt orange carpet carries out the feeling of the Near East.

A low coffee table of distinct design is a memento of Rhea's earlier days in a New York City apartment. It was the rage then, she says, to find an old iron stove, cut off the top leaving just the iron flange base, and cover it with glass or wood. If you wished, you could paint the iron base.

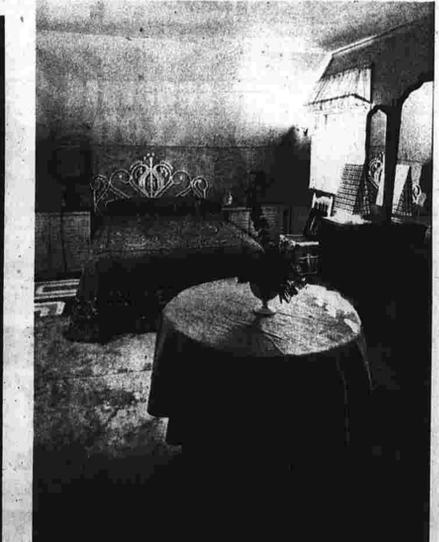

Appearing on shelves and tables are various collections of pipes which Arthur collects. He smokes most of them.

For Rhea's writing, her study has been designed for her special needs with lots of counter writing space and file compartments. An old postal compartment from the Clinton post office holds "all kinds of things" which she wonders how she ever got along without before acquiring it.

In the turn of the stairway is another fountain, a bronze girl standing in a rock well surrounded by a della robia which adds color.

Completing the mood of treasures from far away places, Rhea occasionally dresses in native Afghan costume which is a black dress with pleated skirt and tiny pieces of mirrored glass embroidered on the front of the bodice and around the sleeves. To properly complete the costume, she wears long black matching bloomers and a black scarf over her head and shoulders. At any time, the Stewarts can and do enjoy the romance of the East within their own home.

Arthur, retired from Pratt and Whitney Aircraft Division of United Aircraft Corporation in East Hartford, divides his time between working on his boat in Clinton during the summer, and working in his yard the rest of the year.

A white wicker headboard enhances an oriental patterned orange bed spread in a guest room decorated in shades of apricot.

Dog Track Interests Work on Application

The three Manchester men planning a $5 million dog-racing track for Colchester are working on a $-page application that must be submitted to the state Commission on Special Revenue (the gaming commission). They have retained a consultant for a feasibility study and plan to file the application and study in three to six weeks, one of the principals said today.

Richard P. Hayes, real estate broker and developer, said he and the other two developers are "on the verge" of hiring a general manager for the track, although no formal commitment has been made. With Hayes in the Colchester venture are Stephen J. Cavagnaro, owner of Cava's Restaurant, and Raymond F. (Sonny) Damato, building contractor and developer.

The facility is planned for a 47.5-acre tract at the junction of Old Rt. 2 and O'Brien Rd. The project would include a dog-racing track, kennels, a clubhouse with dining rooms, a semi-enclosed grandstand to accommodate 3,000 persons and a parking lot for 2,700 cars. The Colchester Planning and Zoning Commission has approved the proposal and submission of the application is the next step. State law provides for a local referendum on race track construction if at least 5 per cent of a town's residents petition for one. Petitions may be filed after an application is submitted for a state license.

Hayes said the state application requires that the names of key personnel for operating the track must be submitted and that the requirement has its problems.

"We've had some trouble hiring key people, because they are hesitant to give their names to something that might not go through if we didn't get the license," he explained. "Once someone signs an agreement with us, their present employers know they're looking for another job."

He said the man being considered for manager has had 20 years of track experience, including many years as manager of another dog track. He declined to disclose his name.

The feasibility study for the track is being conducted by C. E. Maguire Inc. of Wethersfield, which completed studies also for horse-racing tracks in Newton and Wolcott and another dog-racing track in Shelton.

The study, said Richard Sargon, Maguire's director of planning, will deal mainly with a cost-benefit analysis, "to include projected financial benefits for the developers, the town and the state, in terms of revenue." He said it wouldn't be a detailed market analysis.

In addition, the firm will submit several alternate methods of financing the estimated $5 million track. Sargon stressed that the final decision would be left to the developers.

The three principals recently lost their two legal advisers—John F. Shea Jr. of Manchester, who became a state Superior Court judge, and Joseph Goldberg of Norwich, who became a Circuit Court judge.

One Man Happy in His Work

There are altogether too many men, and women, in this world engaged in occupations that they really don't like. One man who is tickled pink in his every day assignment is Porter Blinn of South Windsor, a one-time Manchester Trade School (Cheney Tech) athlete, who was later a successful shade grown tobacco grower and then a self-employed fuel oil businessman and American Legion baseball coach in South Windsor.

Foreign-Born Players In NFL Year-of-Kicker

NEW YORK (AP) — Lancia, Cyprus, Opole, Poland, Petronell, Austria, Budapest, Hungary, Oslo, Norway, Bushey, England.

Roll call at the United Nations? Nope. Roll call in the National Football League. It is, as some critics have said, the invasion of "aliens and old men" who have turned 1973's Year of the Runner into 1973's Year of the Kicker.

Of the 26 first-string extra-point and field-goal specialists in the league, 10 are imports: Miami's Garo Yepremian from Lancia, Green Bay's Chester Marcol from Opole, Dallas' Tom Fritsch from Petronell, the New York Giants' Pete Gogolak from Budapest, Kansas City's Jan Stenerud from Oslo, the New York Jets' Bobby Howfield from Bushey, plus Cincinnati's Horst Muhlmann of Dortmund, West Germany; Pittsburgh's Roy Gerela of Sarrail, Alb., Canada; San Diego's Raimund Werschling of Montedese, Austria; and Atlanta's Nick Mike-Mayer of Bologna, Italy.

But have the kickers taken over? Hardly.

Last year there were 817 field-goal attempts and 499 made. At the halfway mark this season there were 435 attempts and 279 made. Project that through the 14-week season and there will be 870 attempts, about 47 tries per game, barely up from 1972's 44 per game average.

There's a bit of bitterness from imports reacting to the complaint that foreigners

Two-Team Race For Grid Honors

NEW YORK (AP) — Runner-up Alabama has narrowed the gap on No. 1-ranked Ohio State in what seems to have become — for the time being, anyway — a two-team race for college football's national championship.

The Buckeyes of Ohio State blanketed Illinois 30-0 Saturday and received 35 first-place votes and 1,146 points from the 23 sports writers and broadcasters who participated in this week's Associated Press poll.

Alabama also posted a shutout, 35-0 over Mississippi State, and earned 14 first-place ballots and 1,098 points. Last week, there was no change among the next five teams, either — Oklahoma, Michigan, Notre Dame, Penn State and Louisiana State.

Oklahoma defeated Ohio State 34-17 and polled seven No. 1 votes and 910 points. Michigan, a 49-13 winner over Indiana, received one top vote and 588 points.

Notre Dame pulled down one first-place vote — its first of the season — and 746 points for a 47 trouncing of Navy while the four remaining No. 1 ballots and 714 points went to Penn State, which beat Maryland 42-22.

Louisiana State received 580 points for a 51-14 rout of Mississippi.

Previously unbeaten Arizona State's 39-31 loss to Utah dropped the Sun Devils from eighth place to 14th, enabling Southern California and UCLA to move up. Southern Cal rose from ninth to eighth by walloping California 50-14 while UCLA climbed from 10th to ninth with a 62-13 drubbing of Washington.

Missouri, which dropped out of the Top Ten a week ago, moved back in with a 31-7 triumph over Kansas State that lifted the Tigers from 12th to 10th.

Booming Economy, Wheat Deal Causes Car Shortages

By DAVID BURKE
AP Business Writer
NEW YORK (AP) - Record freight shipments, spurred by a booming economy and a sharp rise in grain exports, have put a severe strain on the nation's 1.7 million car fleet but still a significant number.

Government figures indicate the current shortage involves some 33,000 cars a day, less than 2 per cent of the nation's 1.7 million car fleet but still a significant number.

The worst car shortage in the nation's history came earlier this year with the movement of Russian wheat. Now with new bumper crops it looks like we are on the brink of it again," said a spokesman for the Interstate Commerce Commission. To meet the crush, railroads have been forced to assign livestock cars and open-topped coal hoppers to grain shippers, causing car shortages elsewhere down the line.

"They used everything possible, even regular boxcars normally used for appliances and furniture," said Bill Goldstein, general manager of the Chicago

Shippers Association, a nationwide group which handles bulk shipping for large retail chains. "Still the situation was critical."

Some observers blame part of the problem on the financial conditions of some of the railroads, which prevents them from buying enough new cars. However, the Association of American Railroads, a trade group, says that orders for new and rebuilt cars in the first eight months are more than double 1972 levels. "Adding more cars to the nation's fleet isn't the total answer," said a spokesman for Burlington Northern. "The whole transportation pipeline is not geared to handle the tremendous amounts of grain we have been pushing into it in the last 15 months."

Grain is only part of the problem. Because of the strong economy, total freight shipments this year are so far running about 9 per cent ahead of last year's records. Burlington Northern, for example, says it is short on virtually all kinds of cars, while the Penn Central and Chessie System acknowledge a shortage of cars used for shipping steel.

A spokesman for Ford Motor Co. said, "We have been experiencing a shortage of rail cars for the past year. As a result, we've had to turn to other forms of transportation, mainly trucks, and pay a premium for this."

And R.J. Brelinger, traffic and transportation director for Westinghouse Electric, said, "We're being affected, but we're not missing any shipments. We just have to spend a great deal of time finding rail cars to ship with."

Dr. Hendricks: Still A Rebel At 81

Still a Rebel at 81: Education is a mind-to-mind adventure, insists founder of three colleges.

I'd start still another one tomorrow," said mild-mannered Dr. Walter Hendricks, 81, his gray mustache bristling in defiance.

Dr. Hendricks became a highly controversial figure in education after going through an orthodox academic career.

Born in Chicago of impoverished Norwegian immigrants, he worked as a copy boy and later salesman of forest land at $10 an acre to help finance his way through Amherst College. There he graduated a Phi Beta Kappa and began a lifelong friendship with poet Robert Frost, whose ideas became the basis for his own revolutionary educational experiments later.

After serving as an aviator in World War I, he took his M.A. degree at the University of Chicago, his Ph.D. at Northwestern, and studied at Grenoble in France. A poet himself, he became a noted Chaucerian scholar and served as chairman of the English department in the Armour Institute in Chicago. He held a high administrative post in the Illinois Institute of Technology when the Army invited him to help found its short-lived American University in Biarritz, France, in 1945.

"That experience changed my life," said Dr. Hendricks. "At Biarritz we had few books, but the 3,000 students were fresh out of combat and eager to learn. We had a real mind-to-mind exchange which I think provides the best of all educational atmospheres."

The next year, at the age of 54 and with the full consent of his wife, Flora, he turned his back on his own long academic tenure and founded on his nearby farm the first of his three shoe-string-financed revolutionary colleges - Marlboro.

Town Attracting Industrial Prospects

A report, given by E. Russell Trotman of the South Windsor Industrial Development Commission, said that out of more than 70 companies that have visited South Windsor seeking industrial sites since the first of the year, more than 30 have conducted site inspections and approximately 400 acres of industrially-zoned land are presently involved in serious negotiations among companies, and owners and developers.

Since January 1973, construction of three new plants totaling 40,000 square feet of space has been started. Few other towns in Connecticut report this type of industrial interest indicating local factors have come into play Trotman said.

These factors include the work of previous commissions, a program of regional and national advertising, and the work of South Windsor's economic developer, Robert Bruce.

Bruce has developed economic development plans on South Windsor and its resources which companies have used in evaluating the town against their requirements for new facilities.

Several major companies previously established in South Windsor are considering expansion plans in the Buckland area. A full presentation on the project was made by the Fisher company to the South Windsor Industrial Development Commission some weeks ago.

The Manchester Planning and Zoning Commission requested a public hearing Monday night on zoning changes requested for the Manchester portion of the proposed 56-acre development site. An account of that hearing is on Page One.

On the basis of that presentation to the development commission, an impact study was made covering one major phase of impact potential, that involving possible school requirements resulting from the proposed residential portion of the project.

The study showed that the project, if all commercial and industrial proposals are completed, may well pay its own way in taxes needed for additional schools. If they are not completed, the reverse would be true.

The study also showed that the project, if all commercial and industrial proposals are completed, may well pay its own way in taxes needed for additional schools. If they are not completed, the reverse would be true.

A vote was taken by the commission on the question of whether they favor or oppose the "Buckland Homes" project of the Fisher company as understood at this point and a unanimous approval was taken because there is no way to determine the commercial and industrial development as proposed under present zoning regulations and the off-site impact of said development is not clearly understood.

Buckland Plan

because Monday night's session was running late.

In an unusual question-and-answer session during the applicant's presentation, the developer asked housing plans, tax impact, water and sewer plans, open spaces, and education.

The question-and-answer session, in which Fischer called on his expert to detail development plans, was a departure from normal PZC procedure and wasn't part of the official hearing record.

At Diana, representing the homeowners' group, presented petition, which he said was signed by most of the Buckland area residents, opposing the zone changes.

In other Manchester Police reports:

Ray Webber, 20, of 940 E. Middle Tpk., was charged Monday with misuse of marker and operating an unregistered motor vehicle.

In an associated case, Anthony Michael, 17, of 442 Middle Tpk., was charged Monday with looting of marker pens.

Court date for both is set for Nov. 19.

Gary Lagus, 16, of West Hartford, was charged Monday with possession of a handgun (shooting) as it was released on his written promise to appear in court Nov. 19.

School Impact Minimal

The impact of a proposed residential - industrial development at South Windsor's public schools will be minimal, School Superintendent James P. Kennedy said Monday night at a public hearing on the proposed development.

Kennedy, emphasizing that he didn't have much to go on, said he estimates the Buckland development planned by Arthur M. Fischer, Inc. of New York City, would produce about 300 school children when the development project is substantially complete in about ten years.

Kennedy said he expects the development of about 1,000 residential units in Manchester will require additional elementary school space. Secondary school space should be sufficient to handle an increased number of students, Kennedy said, if Manchester voters approve a junior high renovation-additions program in a town referendum today.

Mr. Planner J. Eric Potter, explaining his estimates of educational system impact of the proposed development, said the number of students from the proposed development would be "very minimal."

Potter noted that other developments which might be completed in Manchester in the next ten years would also have an impact on increasing school space needs. "You can't blame increasing education needs on this project alone," Potter said.

Fischer said at Monday night's hearing that about 12 to 15 acres in the proposed development land would be set aside for a possible school site. Fischer said his firm would assist with school planning for the development, but he said the developers wouldn't pay for construction of schools.

of Consumer Concern

Connecticut Department of Consumer Protection
Barbara A. Zinsler, Commissioner
Terry Higgins, Director of Consumer Education

This holiday season give your children a special gift. Buy them a toy that is safe and fun. It is very important when buying toys for your children to choose all toys carefully and selectively.

Choose a toy appropriate for your child's age and development. Many toys have age group labels on the package. This is a good guide but should always be coupled with plain common sense. Don't be fooled by the package that says: "Wonderfully entertaining and educational for children from four to 14!" Nothing can be quite that appealing to children so different in age. Avoid the elaborate, the complex, the potentially frustrating. Look instead for the sturdy, the simple, the easily understood.

Warfare is not intended for children Under Three Years of Age, should be headed. Remember that younger brothers and sisters may have access to toys intended for older children once the toy has been brought into your home.

Your child's age determines his ability to handle electrically operated toys or chemistry sets. It is wise to buy toys of these types for older children only. Don't allow your child to remove or replace electrical components. Also, never add to or substitute substances in a chemistry set.

"Label looking" plays a vital part in careful toy selection. Check for labels on fabric toys for "washable," "flame retardant," or "flame resistant" notices as well as "washable" and "hygienic" for stuffed toys and dolls.

Avoid toys that produce excessive noise. Even toy catapults fired too close to a child's ear can cause damage. Also, avoid shooting games, especially those involving darts and arrows, unless the games are played under close parental supervision.

Toys for the very small child and infant should be chosen with extra care. Playthings that are safe for older children become hazardous in the hands of little ones. When choosing a toy for a toddler or infant, make sure it: —Is too large to be swallowed.

—Does not have detachable small parts that can lodge in the windpipe, ears, or nostrils. —Is not apt to break easily into small pieces or leave jagged edges.

—Does not have sharp edges or points. —Has not been put together with easily exposed straight joints.

—Is not made of glass or brittle plastic. —Is labeled "non-toxic" and "avoid painted toys" if infants who put playthings into their mouths.

—Does not have parts which can pinch fingers or toes or catch hair. —Does not have cords or strings that could be strangled.

Examine all toys. Don't mistake such things as high price, fancy packaging and ads for quality, durability, and safety. To help you judge for yourself the merits and relative safety of playthings, our department is offering free single copies of a booklet titled "What You Should Know About Toys!" We are also offering free single copies of our "Banned Products" list. This list shows products, mainly toys that have been found hazardous by the commission and subsequently banned from sale. For a copy of the booklet or list, write: Drug Control Division, Department of Consumer Protection, State Office Building, Hartford, 06115.

Company Planned To Seek Consumer Justice

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Public Equity Corp., the company that hopes to make a living suing other companies in the name of consumer justice, won't be in action until nearly a year from now, but at least plans are moving ahead.

Earlier this year, those plans almost came to a halt as its backers, became involved in other projects, including some backstage roles with the Senate Watergate committee. And the arrival of some of the seed money that had been pledged was delayed because the donors lost it in a badly depressed stock market. But Tom Mechling, the founder, says that the "counter corporation" should be in action by this time next year, the Securities and Exchange Commission willing. It will be registered with the SEC in February.

"Assuming a six- to eight-month period of consideration by the SEC, the company hopes to begin selling $2.4 million of shares at $5 a share, or $50 for the minimum purchase of 10 shares. As profits are made on class action and civil damage suits and the like, they will be plowed back into the company, with only minimal dividends paid to shareholders. Can shareholders be happy with minimal dividends? Mechling thinks they can be, and he bases his view on the nature of the people expected to invest: altruistic, idealistic, eager for change, perhaps angry at industrial abuses.

The underwriting will be handled by the company instead of by an investment banker, with solicitations made to many of the people who earlier aided George McGovern's 1972 presidential campaign, Common Cause and other groups. A great deal of emotion exists on the issues in which Public Equity plans to be involved. Millions of Americans are angry over faulty products and pollution, to name only two concerns, but have felt powerless to act. Given this opportunity, Mechling said, they might quickly absorb the 488,000 shares being offered. Nobody knows if they will, of course, but Mechling, a challenge-seeking youth of 33, distills energy from optimism. He is, in fact, contemplating possible measures to keep the stock from rising em-

Democrats Sweep Town Election

State Voting Results Mixed

By The Associated Press

Republicans won a sweet victory in Bridgeport and an upset in Meriden while Democrats notched an upset of their own in Stamford in Connecticut municipal elections Tuesday.

On balance the Democrats won the day by wresting control from the GOP in at least 32 towns. Republicans took control in 10.

Leaders of both parties said Republican stay-at-homes accounted in large measure for the shifts. Incumbents were re-elected in Connecticut's other major cities while a racetrack referendum was defeated in Southington.

Democratic state Chairman John M. Bailey said the only effect recent national events such as Watergate seemed to have on Tuesday's outcome was to keep some Republicans home.

GOP state Chairman J. Brian Gaffney agreed, noting the turnout appeared lower than in the last municipal election in 1971. Bridgeport Mayor Nicholas A. Famulo scored an unofficial 29,915-to-18,914 victory over Democrat William E. Mullaney in the state's most closely watched election. Socialist candidate Albert M. Perocco drew 2,175 votes.

Famulo, who won his first term two years ago by a scant nine votes, carried a host of Republicans into office, including 10 Common Council members enough to give Republicans control.

Speculation that Famulo will be the GOP's nominee for lieutenant governor next year is bound to increase.

Although he said Tuesday night he wanted to finish his term in Bridgeport, Famulo added: "No politician chooses to do anything."

In Meriden, Republican John Quine spoiled Democratic Mayor Abraham G. Grosman's bid for a second term by lodging an unofficial 10,277,945 victory. Grosman, who had been denied his party's endorsement and had to win the nomination in a primary, asked for a recount and conceded 10,000 to 4,516. More than 2,000 of the nearly 14,700 persons voting in the election said they did not cast votes on the school question.

The proposed $5.6 million renovations-additions project defeated by town voters last year. Last year's referendum lost by 470 votes of the more than-18,600 votes cast in the 1972 election; about 3,000 voters in 1972 didn't vote on the school question.

Passage of Tuesday's school referendum, which he also headed an independent state. The unofficial vote was 10,473 to 8,249.

Stamford Mayor Julius M. Wilensky's bill for a third term was upset by Democrat Alderman Frederick P. Lenz Jr., who netted an unofficial 15,630 votes to Wilensky's 15,486.

In other major cities: Democratic Mayor George A. Athanson won a second term in Hartford, defeating Republican Madeilyn C. Neumann 19,318 to 4,867.

Democratic Mayor Bartholomew F. Guida was given a third term by New Haven voters. He defeated Republican newcomer John A. Esposito by an unofficial 21,284 to 12,231.

Waterbury Mayor Victor S. Goff was re-elected by a margin of 3,500 votes to 3,000. The pay raise proposal lost by 497 votes — 5,194 for — 5,691 against.

The five charter-changes approved pertain to a Merit System for town employees, 7-18 to 3-482; a change in the police grievance procedure, 6-560 to 3-782; a change in the designation of zoning enforcement officer, 4-649 to 3-780; removal of sections referring to water and sewer regulations, to conform to state statutes, 5-500 to 4-682; and a change from the designation Welfare Department to Department of Social

School Referendum Approved

DOUG BEVINS
(Herald Reporter)

Manchester voters Tuesday reversed a trend of school referendum defeats and approved, by an approximate 2-1 margin, a $5.6 million appropriation for renovations and additions to Bennett and Iling Junior High Schools.

The vote on the school proposal, which was the first of 13 questions on the voting ballot, was 8,008 to 4,516.

Democratic Mayor Bartholomew F. Guida was given a third term by New Haven voters. He defeated Republican newcomer John A. Esposito by an unofficial 21,284 to 12,231.

Waterbury Mayor Victor S. Goff was re-elected by a margin of 3,500 votes to 3,000. The pay raise proposal lost by 497 votes — 5,194 for — 5,691 against.

The five charter-changes approved pertain to a Merit System for town employees, 7-18 to 3-482; a change in the police grievance procedure, 6-560 to 3-782; a change in the designation of zoning enforcement officer, 4-649 to 3-780; removal of sections referring to water and sewer regulations, to conform to state statutes, 5-500 to 4-682; and a change from the designation Welfare Department to Department of Social Services, 4,532 to 3,737.

In addition to rejecting a pay raise for directors, the voters rejected the following proposals:

To require the Board of Directors to elect a vice chairman and deputy mayor, 3,789 to 6,576; to create a Department of Finance to consolidate all fiscal operations under a director of finance, 3,834 to 6,287; to raise the ceiling for purchases without competitive bidding, 4,766 to 5,648; to permit emergency borrowing without a referendum, 3,877 to 6,383.

Also, to place the water and sewer departments under the jurisdiction of the director of public works, 4,391 to 5,836; to place the Park Department under the jurisdiction of the director of public works, 4,632 to 5,742.

The defeated proposals, except for one, followed the recommendations of the Manchester Property Owners Association. The MPOA had recommended passage of the proposal for pay raises for town directors. It took no position on the school bond question.

"The town will be proud they got approval of school projects, and school officials will now begin working with the Town Building Committee, and selection of architects for the renovations-additions program is the next formal step."

Kennedy said he hopes the junior high school project will be out to bid by early spring, and he said he's looking toward a September 1975 opening of the completed buildings.

The $5.6 million project is estimated to be split into $2,719,000 for Bennett and $2,881,000 for Iling Junior High School. About $3,150,500 of the project cost will be financed by a town bond issue, and the remaining $2,440,500 would be paid by state grants.

Re-elected to the Board of Directors are: Republicans Mrs. Vi-Ann Ferguson with 6,802 votes. Re-elected to the Board of Directors, she will be minority leader, the first woman in that post in Manchester history. Joining her on the Board of Directors are: Republicans

Voters Favor Incumbents

Manchester Democrats completely swept the municipal election Tuesday and retained control of all offices except those guaranteed the Republicans under minority representation rights.

Manchester voters, besides electing candidates to town offices, approved by a 2,008-to-4,516 vote a $5.6 million appropriation for renovations and additions to Manchester's junior high schools. They approved, also, five town charter changes and rejected seven others.

The election sweep was by margins ranging from just under 1,000 to some instances to about 4,500 in others and, compared to Democratic victories in Manchester of past years, was almost a landslide proposition. Not one Republican candidate defeated his or her Democratic counterpart in any of the town's 10 voting districts.

The high vote-getter was Mayor John W. Thompson, with 8,265 votes of 14,698 cast. Next highest was Town Clerk Roger Negro, returned to office with 9,203 votes. Town Clerk Edward Tomkiel, endorsed by both parties and running without opposition, received 6,655 votes as a Democrat and 5,276 as a Republican. Town clerk since 1956, he was re-elected to a four-year term.

Democrats elected to the Board of Directors in addition to Thompson are: Pascal Prignano, 6,959 votes; Mrs. Phyllis Jackson, 6,644; John Tami, 6,648; Anthony Pietranonzo, 5,557; and Robert Priece, 7,779. All are incumbents except Prignano.

The board will meet for its organizational meeting Nov. 19 at 7 p.m. in the town building. Thompson's mayor and Prignano's deputy mayor, the secretary is expected to be Mrs. Jackson, to replace Pietranonzo in the office.

The highest vote-getter on the Republican side was Mrs. Vi-Ann Ferguson with 6,802 votes. Re-elected to the Board of Directors, she will be minority leader, the first woman in that post in Manchester history. Joining her on the Board of Directors are: Republicans
