Winter Walking Hazards

As far as your feet are concerned, there are two problems they have to contend with in winter: snow and ice.

These two hazards can cause a lot of falls. You are used to walking at a certain speed during the other three seasons and often forget to slow down for winter walking. Besides walking slower, you do a few other things to avoid falling on the snow or ice.

It's a good idea to keep walks, steps, and porches clear of ice and snow. You can melt the ice with rock salt. Sand and ashes can be spread on the ice to give added traction.

Wear overshoes or rubbers with good, distinct treads. Do not wear platform shoes or boots because they greatly increase the probability of your falling.

Stay alert. Look where you are walking. Avoid patches of snow and ice whenever possible.

Take shorter steps when it's slippery. Slide your feet in a drag and shove forward. Spread your feet slightly and keep your weight forward. Control your balance.

Be extremely careful on painted wood and cement steps. Place the whole foot on the step and don't just catch the edge. When going up, put your toe to the riser. Beware of water or powdered snow on painted surfaces. Hold on to available support.

When you are going up steps, get a good grip on the handrail before taking the first step. Examine the condition of the steps on the way up, looking for clear areas. Use handrails, if available; if not available, use the center area of the stairs if it is clear. Be careful going down stairs, too.

If, after taking all these precautions, you lose your balance, relax and fall as limply as possible. Let your heavy clothing cushion the impact.

When you are going down stairs, relax and fall as limply as possible. Let your heavy clothing cushion the impact.

Sun Oil Accused Of Overcharging Boston Fuel Firm

BOSTON (UPI) — A spokesman for New England's largest, unaffiliated heating oil wholesaler says he is hopeful of a prompt federal decision on his firm's complaint over high prices charged by Sun Oil Co.

Efforts to negotiate with Sun Oil to halt the rise in high prices failed, Alfred J. Kaneb said Tuesday.

Kaneb, vice president of Northeast Petroleum, said his company filed a complaint about two weeks ago with the Federal Energy Office (FEO) charging it paid Sun Oil Co. $5.9 million for 10.1 million gallons of heating oil — more than three times the price Sun allegedly was selling to its own distributors.

A second, unidentified wholesaler also filed a protest. Kaneb said the complaint was not a formal court action, but within boundaries established by the new FEO to make complaints about excessive charges.

Northeast said it paid Sun $5.5 cents a gallon for heating oil such refunds would be passed on to individual consumers.

The officials at the Western White House in San Clemente, Calif., said the peace talks have reached the stage of Egyptian and Israeli negotiators trying to decide how many miles should separate their forces along the Suez Canal.

The officials said a full disengagement of troops would take a month to six weeks from the day an agreement is reached.

The disclosure followed an announcement by the peace negotiators in Geneva that they have reached "an important stage" in the withdrawal talks.

Negotiators are consulting with their governments on the progress in the talks. The officials said both sides must get the government's approval before finalizing an agreement on the pullbacks.

On the battle fronts, Israel said clashes along the Egyptian and Syrian fronts Wednesday produced the heaviest one-day casualty toll since the ceasefire went into effect Oct. 24.

Israel reported the death of 10 soldiers wounded on the Egyptian front, but refused to disclose losses on the Syrian lines. In Cairo, Egypt reported the

Troop Pullout Seen Coming To Mideast

United Press International — Egyptian and Israeli negotiators at the Middle East peace talks in Geneva are expected to reach an agreement on crucial troop withdrawals by the end of the month, U.S. administration officials said today.

The officials at the Western White House in San Clemente, Calif., said the peace talks have reached the stage of Egyptian and Israeli negotiators trying to decide how many miles should separate their forces along the Suez Canal.

The officials said a full disengagement of troops would take a month to six weeks from the day an agreement is reached.

Low Cost Meal for Senior Citizens

Manchester senior citizens enjoy a 40-cent dinner of roast pork, corn, sweet potatoes, corn bread, ice cream and coffee, which was served Wednesday noon at Cronin Hall, Mayfair Gardens and Herrmann Hall of Westhill Gardens, Manchester's housing units for the elderly. This was the first of the new federally funded low cost meals for the elderly to be served in Manchester. Any Manchester senior citizen may participate in the program and reservations, which must be made in advance, are now being taken at each site for next week's meals. ## Gas Price Up, Simon Sees Higher Rise

The price of gasoline at the pump rose to well over 50 cents a gallon in many parts of the United States today and the nation's energy chief said it would go up as much as 11 cents more by March.

William E. Simon, head of the Federal Energy Office, also said at a Washington news conference that U.S. consumption of oil was 500,000 barrels per day below the forecast for the current week and 800,000 barrels per day below the forecast for the last four weeks.

Today's retail price increases reached as high as 57.5 cents per gallon at some Washington, D.C., area stations, mostly the result of passed-on price increases in the cost of raw materials.

Simon said he expected prices to go by a minimum of 8 cents a gallon and a maximum of 11 cents within the next two months, partly to compensate for the decreased amount of business because they have less gasoline and partly to reflect the rising costs of crude oil.

Simon's office only a few days ago had predicted a 10 cent rise by March 1. There have been some predictions that the price of gasoline ultimately may approach $1 a gallon in the United States. It is more than that in some countries.

The Washington Star-News said federal energy officials were conceding privately that the Arab oil embargo against the United States had only now begun to strike home, and that the worst may yet be to come.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Confessing While Asleep

Situation comedies often depict a hapless husband, confessing while sound asleep to some sort of indiscretion. His wife, of course, is scandalized. But in real life, how reliable is such a statement? Would it stand up in court?

In a homicide case some years ago, a "sleeping confession" did indeed help to convict the defendant of murder.

The court said his statement, "though in sleep, was but the disclosure of truth springing from guilt which rested heavy on the soul, the half-conscious man revealing secrets which, if not awake, he would fain have suppressed."

Modern courts, however, have generally refused to allow this kind of evidence. Thus, in a more recent murder case, inflicting excruciating pain on the defendant during sleep were held not admissible.

The court did not deny that his exclamations might be truthful. But it found other grounds for rejecting the evidence.

"Only the voluntary statements of the accused can be used against him," said the judge. "If the defendant was not conscious, the statement was not voluntary."

Not only sleeping words but also sleeping deeds are usually considered beyond the concern of the law. For example:

A hunter was doing in a hotel lobby, his gun in his hip, when a hotel employee gave him a shot that killed the other man.

Charged afterward with manslaughter, he was acquitted because the court held that he had still been asleep at the moment he pulled the trigger.

Accordingly, the court found that the hunter was not guilty.

"Our law punishes only for acts done by responsible moral agents," explained the judge. "The prisoner was unconscious when he killed the deceased, he cannot be punished for that act."

Plan Eases Way To Drop Lines From Railroads

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration has drafted legislation that would allow railroads to abandon lines automatically, unprofitable branch lines — estimated at more than 10 percent of all U.S. rail mileage.

The legislation, aimed at all the country's railroads, also would provide $2 billion in loan guarantees to upgrade railroad track, stations and freight cars on profitable lines, and an additional $5 million in grants to establish a nationwide computer system to keep track of freight cars.

The provisions are contained in an omnibus bill, to be submitted to Congress shortly. It would relax government regulation of rail abandonment and rates, prohibit discriminatory state and local taxation of railroad property and, in general, overhaul government regulation of and policy toward railroads.

The legislation is the sequel to a bill signed by President Nixon Wednesday that would

Move on IRA Brings 20 Arrests

DUBLIN (UPI) — Troops and police arrested 20 suspected Irish Republican Army gunmen along the border with Northern Ireland today in the biggest crackdown on the outlawed IRA in 20 years, a police spokesman said.

In coordinated raids and roadblocks in the border area, he said 11 men were arrested in Banagher, five in Monaghan and four in Dundalk.

All may appear later today to be charged with membership in the IRA, which carries a maximum sentence of six months imprisonment, the spokesman said.

He described the continuing raids as the most comprehensive launched against the IRA since the early 1950s.

"This is a wholesale roundup," one police source said. "You might see a lot more behind bars before the end of the day."

Government sources called the arrests Premier Liam Cosgrave's response to the formation of a coalition government in Northern Ireland and the proposed formation of a Council of Ireland.

There was heavy political speculation that the raids were aimed to bolster the hand of Unionist party chief Brian Faulkner, who faces a threat to his leadership in Northern Ireland at a party conference Friday.

On Wednesday, the government announced that government wanted for murder in Northern Ireland could now be tried in the Irish Republic, it caught here.

Political sources said the arrests in Banagher could have a significant impact on the number of recent bombings and attacks in the western region of Northern Ireland. They said it served as the headquarters of the IRA squads operating in Londonderry, nine miles to the east.

They said Monaghan was the base for IRA incursions into County Armagh and Dundalk for operations in Newry.

Man Hospitalized After Rampage

HARTFORD (UPI) — A young Bloomfield man is under psychiatric observation today after a wild rampage in which he kidnapped a woman and her two children, injured four pedestrians and caused damage to a number of vehicles during a police chase.

Police said Richard C. Levine, 18, a Boston University honor student, began his rampage Wednesday afternoon after he left the psychiatric unit in Hartford Hospital where he was taken earlier in the day by his parents.

When it was all over some 40 minutes later, police said Levine stole two trucks, a car, tried to steal a motorcycle and caused damages to at least seven vehicles.

Levine, who was treated at the hospital for a nervous condition last week, was arrested Tuesday night after an incident at his home and was released in the custody of his father, who later took him to Hartford Hospital. The hospital said the young man was not considered in custody and was free to leave Wednesday afternoon.

Levine was arraigned on a number of charges after the rampage Wednesday night and was placed in the Norwich State Hospital.

Police said after he left the hospital, Levine jumped into an auto driven by Mrs. Joanne Webster of Newton and ordered her to drive. Later, he grabbed the keys from the ignition and ran. Mrs. Webster gave chase, but Levine doubled back and drove off with the car, with her two children in the back seat.

He drove to Newton and left the car and the children un-

Requests Sought For Debris Cleanup

Hick Gowen, town youth director, has requested all senior citizens needing assistance in removing storm debris from their property to contact Civil Defense headquarters no later than Friday.

"We hope to finish up the debris removal on Saturday," Gowen said, "and those who need help can call Civil Defense headquarters at 649-9088 during normal business hours, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m."

"Volunteers will meet at the Town Hall Saturday at 9 a.m. for crew assignments. Anyone interested in working with us welcome."

John Burchill, superintendent of highways for the Town of Manchester, reports that crews will be assisting in removal of tree limbs and other storm debris along the state highways.

Crews are working on Rt. 83 to the Glastonbury town line today. On Tuesday they will work on Charter Oak and Highland Sts. on Jan. 10, E. Center and Center Sts. and on Jan. 14, W. Center St.

Weiss Set To Report Storm Cost

When the Board of Directors meets at 6 tonight to review the pros and cons of the recent storm emergency, it will hear a report from Town Manager Robert Weiss. To include the town's costs in lacking the emergency.

The cost figures will go also to the state, in the event Manchester qualifies for state or federal assistance. Weiss said the state assistance seems likely. "Federal assistance," he explained, depends on whether the state is eligible for disaster funds.

Weiss said his report is the result of a meeting he held yesterday with key staff persons and representatives of Hartford Electric Light Co., Southern New England Telephone Co., Manchester Memorial Hospital and American Red Cross.

He said each of the staff members and representatives reported on their involvements and that written summaries and recommendations for the future were presented.

His report, he said, combines the several reports, summaries and recommendations into one package, so they may be discussed and, possibly, accepted by the board.

Tonight's board meeting is an informal one — in the Municipal Building coffee room. Mayor John Thompson said last week a subsequent meeting will be held with the public to review the ice-storm week.

Dealers Uncertain About Town Price

Most local fuel oil and gasoline dealers seem to be uncertain as to when or how much the next jump in price will be.

A spokesman from Moriarty Brothers, however, said that effective immediately their No. 2 fuel oil will go up 7 cents a gallon, Kerosene, or No. 1 oil will be advanced 12 cents in all three grades of gasoline.

The price increase was set by Mobil, the supplier for Moriarty's.

Other fuel dealers said any price increase they make would be to their suppliers.

Ted Bantly of the Bantly Oil Co. said he expected to hear from Exxon Automatic Comfort, his supplier, either today or tomorrow.

A spokesman from Wyman's Oil Co., Inc. said of their supplier, Exxon, that it is generally slower than some of this year's price increases.

Robert Clougherty, manager of the car wash, said their apparent ample supply of gasoline is reckoned on last year's supply. He explained they were open seven days a week last year. Being a car-wash, they did a larger gasoline business than many smaller service stations and accordingly their supply this year is greater.

Tenneco to Supply Gasoline in State

HARTFORD (UPI) — A Texas oil company which said last week it would stop supplying gasoline to Connecticut because of a short supply of gasoline in Canada has changed its mind.

Tenneco Oil Co. supplies about 25 million gallons annually to the state, said it would supply Connecticut following a meeting Wednesday with state Petroleum Products Control Commission Executive Director Albert E. Lussier and state energy chief Eckardt Beck.

Gov. Thomas J. Meskill arranged the meeting and had called upon Federal energy chief William Simon to reverse the Tenneco decision.

Meskill had said Connecticut was getting cut from gasoline deliveries, the cutback should at least be spread evenly throughout the country.

Tenneco's vice president, L. W. Marshall said Beck promised to help his company obtain the necessary crude oil.

Burns said the limit on non-interstate highways in Connecticut would remain at 50 miles per hour.

John Blasco, executive director of the Motor Transport Association in Connecticut, said he would recommend to Gov. Thomas J. Meskill that the interstate highway speed limit be boosted to 55.

Official Insists Towns Not Set For Storm

HARTFORD (UPI) — A representative of the state Office of Civil Preparedness said much of the crisis resulting from December's ice storm was due to incompetent municipal defense directors.

The utility companies in the State admitted they knew thousands would be without power for an extended period when the outages began and also they had done a poor job of informing town officials on the situation.

Alan Hekking, who handled OCP operations in the State Army during the storm, also said Gov. Thomas J. Meskill never approached him on whether to declare the state a disaster area Hekking said.

"I thought it was kind of strange. But everyone was calling politicians, and politicians were calling other politicians."

Meanwhile Hartford Electric Light Co. officials admitted they knew thousands of power customers would be without power for a week when the outages began.

HELEC President Joseph R. McCormick said his company had done a poor job of informing town officials to help them decide how to handle the situation.

Anthony Wallace, president of the Connecticut Light and Power Co. agreed that despite reports of the company's daily success in handling the situation, not enough was done to inform the public.

"All hell breaks loose at one moment in time, you just can't give a time sequence because you don't know the details of the problem," he said.

The conference agreed to assign utility representatives directly to regions and to distribute maps so town officials could better explain repair progress to the people in the event of another emergency.

Burns Expects Limit of 55

HARTFORD (UPI) — State Transportation Commissioner Joseph Burns says he presumes speed limits on Connecticut's interstate highways would be increased to 55 miles per hour, but Connecticut had already lowered its speed limit on both federal and state highways to 50 miles per hour.

Burns said the limit on non-interstate highways in Connecticut would remain at 50 miles per hour.

John Blasco, executive director of the Motor Transport Association in Connecticut, said he would recommend to Gov. Thomas J. Meskill that the interstate highway speed limit be boosted to 55.

Mike Lambron, 45, of East Hartford was charged Wednesday with the sale of liquor to a minor at a package store at the Colony Plaza, Court date is Jan. 21.

It Really Isn't LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A judge ruled Wednesday that a manslaughter is not a deadly weapon.

Robert Edward Callender, a college student, and Dean Krasomil, a hospital worker, filed suit demanding that their arrests for assault with a deadly weapon be expunged on the grounds it wrongfully hurt their reputations and careers.

Free Market vs. Controls

The president of the Connecticut Business and Industry Assn. has asked for an end to wage and price controls and return to the free market.

He cited the state's plastics industry as being particularly hard hit by controls and forecast that nearly one-third of its 18,000 employees could be out of work unless wage and price controls end.

We agree in principle that a free market is desirable and, if there had actually been a true free market in operation, wage and price controls may not have become necessary.

The crux of the problem is that we are now finding out what we should have known ever since our great experiments of the 1950s that politics and economics, like oil and water, don't mix very well.

As consumers we want the best at the lowest possible price. In essential items such as food, clothing, shelter and transportation, we are conditioned to expecting these to remain stable in price and abundant in availability.

This when someone suggests a free market, the politicians immediately cite the impact of a price rise that can be expected on articles in high demand, but limited supply. They plead the case of the poor and those on fixed incomes and not without some justification.

But the fact remains that in the case of the great bread crisis last year, prices began to decline after an initial jump when controls were dropped.

The need for a free market and the taking of steps toward it are apparent. But like a child, this nation under direct and indirect controls for so long, beginning with hog burying in the 1930s; virtually complete production controls in World War II; presidential threats such as faced the steel industry under John F. Kennedy and the current series of phases; it now needs to be weaned away from controls.

We believe that if such a weaning is to be accomplished it will require tremendous political courage in government and in business.

Business, while expounding free market enterprise, has long been prone to seek out protection measures from government, be it tariffs, the now-notorious oil import quotas, or tax incentives, to modernize and update production facilities which would have never become antiquated in a free market climate.

While we agree with the state's business leaders that wage and price controls should end, we would like also to hear from them on how this reform can be implemented without major social and economic upheaval.

We fear that while they are asking the politicians to have the courage to drop such controls, and the consumers the fortitude to make such a traumatic transition, business and industry may not have enough of either.

We would like to see some complete proposals from business and industry on how they would exercise their responsibilities in a free market. After all they had it once and blew it.

Taxes And Taxpayers

As usual, that welcomed holiday mail of cards from friends far and near ends and to us the more-or-less formal ending of cheerful mail is the arrival of the Federal Income Tax Form, a piece of mail that seemingly has never been lost, delayed or mutilated.

It means that despite the cherry glow of the holidays, deep inside most of us are gradually getting ready to wrestle with this annual fiscal reckoning with Uncle Sam.

To those who are employed and have had Uncle take his off the top of each paycheck, it is a matter of hoping that what has been deducted and what the tables say should be paid, will be about even or the family budget will be out of wack until the Fourth of July.

To some of those who are self-employed it may be a time when you get almost panicky as you try to remember if you sent your friendly neighborhood banker a Christmas card.

But the amazing thing is that the multitude of small taxpayers share a common attitude, an attitude directed more on how we can pay up our share of the federal taxes rather than how we can get out of it through loopholes in the law, etc.

While public attention gets focused on tax evaders from time to time, it is the big income earners, who get the headlines. Now this is not to say the little guys aren't also cheating but for the most part they are honest and if they err, audits clearly indicate that it is in favor of the government. It would appear that the little guy has a strong sense of ethics that transcends legalities.

He may grouse about taxes, he may really scream about how his tax money is misused or illused, but when it is all over he quietly pays without the Internal Revenue pounding at his door.

So as we prepare to gird ourselves for the annual battle with Form 1040, let's not concern ourselves with the tax cheaters, big or small, but join the millions of others who will pay their share, perhaps not eagerly but at least will pay, and in doing so prove again that the American tax system with all its faults and inequities still does not require an army of tax collectors hounding our citizens for the government's title.

If this wasn't so, how could we unleash our IRS agents to police non-tax-related activities such as gasoline station prices?

Today's Thought

To live day by day is not easy, but failure to do so is one of the basic causes of worry. We are not so much troubled about today as we are about the mistakes of yesterday and the problems of tomorrow.

Take from our lives all the worries that have to do with yesterday and tomorrow, and we will have few remaining. Sir William Osler, one of the world's greatest doctors, suggests that we live our lives in day-tight compartments. To look to God and smile and pray becomes an unfulfilling help to day-by-day living. Submitted by Ruth Porter, Center-Congregational Church

The Essence Of The Human

BOLINAS, Calif. — At holiday time, families and friends hail each other, from whatever distance, to take heart from each other's words and warmth. Thus, it is a time to think also about the total human family and man's essential nature. The parts of that human family — races, religions, nations, sexes, generations — have differences in traits and skills, in habits and values, which are a healthy part of human diversity. But they are differences within a common human frame.

In the current debate raging around the IQ theories of Jensen, Ashby and Herrnstein, we must hold fast on both sides to the idea of diverse traits and talents within a common frame — not ethnic inferiorities or superiorities but diversity. The same is true of national character. It is also a fact that men and women are neither inferior nor superior to each other but different — within a common human frame.

I have been visiting with my son, Michael, who has given up university teaching for a time to build and start a school for neurologically disadvantaged youngsters. For him and his little band of co-workers, here in the hills around San Francisco, it will mean a harder kind of teaching but more rewarding, imaginative and devoted.

Learning from Thoreau's injunction to "simplify, simplify" their lives, these young people have largely opted out of the affluence race and the status race. But that doesn't mean they have opted out of either action or thought, either passion or compassion.

When we feel pretty low about the world, we might think of the little groups of people across our continent, younger and older, who are caught up in their imaginative, creative ventures. Often, they have started them from the ground up, out of nothing except their will and talent. Amid the arid stretches of the self-seeking, the torpid, the destructive, there is no lack of creativeness in America. The problem is to put it all together into a frame of what is essentially human. You don't grasp essential nature, as I have written earlier, unless you accept the fact that it is very much of a mixed bag, including the destructive as well as the creative. If you want some hint of what we are learning about the human brain, read Marilyn Ferguson's exciting survey of "The Brain Revolution" ("Tanjans") and to round it out, read Nigel Calder's "The Mind of Man" (Viking Compass).

Together they will make your own brain race and reel with what we are discovering about this soft, three-pound mass of billions of cells, neurons, synapses, of ions and nucleic acids and bioelectric potentials; this clearinghouse of perception; this computerized storehouse of memory; this vulnerable, fragile thing that can get hurt and yet is resilient; this strongest, this pathway across the world beyond, which is also the world within us.

Several years ago, Arthur Koestler, having read the brain research of Paul MacLean, began to feel pretty desperate about the destructiveness of the human animal, much as Eric Fromm has currently been wrestling with that destructiveness. MacLean started with the split between the old brain — limbic, reptilian, the "horse brain" — and the two newer brains. He said that the destructive, paranoid emotions are in the old brain and that the intellectual job of the cortex in the higher brain is to control the lower one.

Good News

WASHINGTON — Perhaps we in the media (confound that Madison Avenue word) have learned by bitter experience to be suspicious of good news. At any rate, commentators have lavished precious little attention on a recent revelation of honesty in government.

So if nobody minds, I should like belatedly to pin a couple of metaphorical medals on Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz and former Internal Revenue Commissioner Johnnie M. Walters for rectitude and prudence in the line of duty. More than six months ago a lot of knowing eyebrows were raised when former White House counsel John Dean told the Senate Watergate committee that he had turned over to the IRS a fat list of "Nixon enemies" for possible audit.

Actually, however, John Dean's testimony may have been the best news of 1972. It triggered a long and exhaustive investigation by the Joint Congressional Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation, and the committee's conclusions did much to bolster the working staff's faith in his government.

The list went over to IRS all right. But the committee found that Walters and Shultz ignored the White House request to conduct a special audit of those on the enemies' list — most of them supporters of Sen. George McGovern in the 1972 Presidential campaign. Walters took one look at the list and immediately — and quite properly — dashed over to Treasury and showed it to his boss Shultz.

Shultz, a Nixon appointee and his chief economic and domestic affairs adviser, also was appalled. He forthwith ordered Walters to "do nothing" about the White House request. Walters subsequently told the Watergate committee he locked the list in his safe and that nobody but he and Shultz saw it.

It is very well to say that both men merely did their sworn duty by refusing to have anything to do with taxation by political chicanery. Of course it was their duty. But in a year when so many public officials have been charged with — and in some cases indicted for — using their office for political warfare, Shultz and Walters brought us all reassurance that Washington is not the exclusive preserve of crooks, adventurers and corner-cutters.

Both men in effect were risking their necks. According to Walters' notes on a meeting with Dean on Sept. 11, 1972, the list was compiled under the direction of John D. Ehrlichman, then a domestic adviser to the President. Ehrlichman, according to Dean, "wanted to see what type of information could be developed on the persons named."

Dean flatly stated he had not been asked by the President to submit the list to the IRS, and I believe him. But both Shultz and Walters were not born yesterday. Ehrlichman was Mr. McGovern in the White House staff and even Cabinet officers were accustomed to jump when Ehrlichman spoke. In government, any "request" by an Internal Revenue Taxation, and the committee's conclusions did much to bolster the working staff's faith in his government. The list went over to IRS all right. But the committee found that Walters and Shultz ignored the White House request to conduct a special audit of those on the enemies' list — most of them supporters of Sen. ## Rockville Water Seeks To Buy Vernon Company

The Rockville Water & Aqueduct Co. and the Vernon Water Co. have joined with the Public Utilities Commission for the sale of the Vernon company to Rockville Water & Aqueduct.

The application also asks for permission to meter the Vernon Water Co. customers and for Rockville Water to apply to the customers of Vernon company the flat rates presently authorized for Rockville customers, until such time as meters can be installed.

The Vernon company is owned by Munroe Moses. At one point customers of the company were going to buy it when Moses said he wanted to sell. This fell through and then the town also considered buying it but this was also dropped after much discussion.

No date has been set by the PUC for the hearing on the sale. This will be after legal notices have been published for the purpose of notifying the public. Customers of the Vernon company have been notified that the contract for the pending sale provides, as a condition of the sale, that the rates for service to be paid by customers of the Vernon company must be increased.

The increase, it was explained, is based on a quarterly rate for an average single-family residential customer in Vernon using 2,500 cubic feet or 18,750 gallons per quarter. The current quarterly bill for this customer is $16.33.

Upon completion of the sale of the company, this same customer will be paying $25.11 under the current rates in effect for customers of Rockville Water & Aqueduct. This indicates a proposed rate increase of about 54 per cent for this type of customer.

Recently the Rockville company applied to the PUC for an increase in its rates. It has asked for a 15 per cent increase. Three years ago it was granted a 15 per cent increase after it had a long treatment plant to improve the quality of the water.

Mayor Frank McCoy has indicated he will oppose the increase when a hearing date is set. Rockville Water and Aqueduct is a subsidiary of Suburban Water Co.

Vernon Commuter Bus Hearing Set Wednesday by PUC

The Public Utilities Commission will conduct a public hearing Jan. 9 on a request for a commuter bus route from Vernon to Hartford. The hearing will be held in Room 567 of the State Office Building, Capitol Ave., Hartford.

Vernon Mayor Frank McCoy said he would like to hear from persons interested in having the route started. They should either write to the mayor's office, Administration Building, Rockville or call the Vernon Planning Office, 872-9921. They may also write the PUC. The application for the bus service was filed by Harold Collins, owner of Post Road Stages, owner of New Stage Co. Plans are to have the bus go to Hartford and to Pratt & Whitney in East Hartford.

Mayor McCoy said the only opposition, to date, has come from the Connecticut Company. If this opposition is withdrawn then temporary approval for 90 days can be granted immediately. If it is not withdrawn then the opposition will be heard and the PUC will decide. Several Hartford Insurance Companies have already arranged a commuter service for their employees. This will start Monday, Mayor McCoy said, and the parking lot of Sacred Heart Church on Rt. 30 will be used.

Mayor McCoy said he was not particularly happy to learn about this route as he questioned why the Connecticut Company can spare buses for this run when he was told that no buses were available for the run proposed by Vernon. The mayor said he feels the Connecticut Company's objections to the proposed Vernon-Hartford run would be questionable in light of the fact that that company said it could not provide the service. Plans are to temporarily use the parking lot at the Vernon Center Middle School for those using the commuter bus. Later it is hoped some state-owned land can be used for parking.

Mayor McCoy asks those contacting his office to indicate where they live, where they work, and their working hours plus how many people usually ride with them.

The fare for the bus will be 75 cents a day. Runs, if approved, will first be set up for those working on an hourly basis at Pratt & Whitney and who start work at 7 a.m., and also for those office workers on the first shift.

Mayor McCoy said if not enough persons are interested in going to Hartford, because of the insurance bus, such a run will probably be dropped for the time being.

King Will Be Guest Of Study Committee

Preston C. (Bud) King, former town manager in Bloomfield and presently executive vice president of the Connecticut Bankers Association, will be the guest of Manchester's government study committee Jan. 9. His appearance will be at 8 p.m. in the Municipal Building Hearing Room.

The 15-member committee, sometimes called the Blue Ribbon committee, is conducting a review of Manchester's government, to determine whether the existing council-manager form is best for the town or whether it is advisable to change to a strong-mayor form. It is to report its findings by May to the Board of Directors.

East Hartford Mayor Richard Blackstone, an advocate of the strong-mayor government, spoke to the committee last month. He is a former vice president of the International City Management Association. His wife teaches at Greater Hartford Community College.

He began his government career as assistant town manager in Brunswick, Maine. He was town manager for four years in Boothbay, Maine and, from 1954, accepted the position of manager in Bloomfield. He remained there until about two years ago, when he accepted the post with the Connecticut Bankers Association, with offices in Hartford.

There will be a public hearing on a proposed amendment to the sewer ordinance before the meeting, at 7:30 p.m. A number of appointments remain to be made to complete various town agencies. Still to be named are two members to the Planning and Zoning Commission for terms ending Nov. 7, 1977. Also one member each to the Economic Development and Mass Transit Commission. Alternates must be appointed to the Zoning Board of Appeals and the Planning and Zoning Commission to fill unexpired terms.

It is also expected that a town auditor will be named for a term ending Nov. 10, 1975, and an administrator for the State Demolition Code. Under new business will be the acceptance of the auditor's report for the fiscal year 1972-1973 as submitted by Peat, Marwick, Mitchell & Co. Also planned is discussion and consideration of a collective bargaining agreement between the town and South Windsor, the Highway and Park Department employees.

Dear editor: As a senior citizen who suffered the horrible effects caused by the lack of electricity in our lovely city, I wish to extend my grateful thanks to the anonymous help of the women and men at the Army who volunteered to help serve, clean and organize the schedule.

God Bless

Dear editor: Thanks to Town Manager Robert Weiss for all his efforts through long hours in what appeared to be a confusing situation during last week's ice storm. It was heartening to hear his voice over WINE with news about power on particular streets. Thanks also to his young son and friend, who manned the town hall switchboard, nights. Thanks also to all the town officials, linemen, oil company men, phone men, plumbers, electricians, firemen, policemen, highway and water crews, tree cutters, newsmen, radio station crews, and all the other who worked long hours to make our houses and apartments into homes again. God bless you, everyone.

Europeans Betting On Railroads

BY LEROY POPE UPI Business Writer
NEW YORK (UPI) - While Americans insist on traveling by airplane and automobile the Europeans are rushing to rebuild their railway system to handle passenger trains at 120 miles an hour.

to and from airports. The European plan requires tremendous rebuilding. Roadbeds on major trunklines must be built up to a standard allowing trains to move safely at 120 miles an hour and to average 90 miles an hour.

The Americans thus are betting on railroads as the economic backbone of the future. On the other hand, the bill just passed in Congress to restructure the railways in 17 Northeastern and Midwestern states with the aid of $2 billion in government guaranteed loans is expected to create a trunkline freight system in the main.

The American railroads are no longer considered a factor in the tourist business. The Europeans have a different attitude. They are restructuring their railroads to take over an ever increasing share of tourist traffic from the airlines.

The goal is to shift virtually all short haul traffic in Europe from the highways and the airways to the railways by 1985.

The plan for this has been drawn up by the International Union of Railways representing 50 government and privately owned carriers. The plan is being publicized by the union in the United States because of the importance of American tourist dollars.

The goal is to make train travel more economical and faster than travel by air in most of Europe and to make it faster than airline travel for round trips of 500 miles or less.

The gain in time, as compared with the planes, comes from elimination of taxi or bus trips

From Your Neighbor's Kitchen

By Vivian F. Ferguson

January 6 is the day that Christmas ends. This is the 12th day after Christmas and supposedly is the day that the wise men brought their gifts to the Christ Child. In some European households, gifts are given.

There is a legendary character called Befana whose story is related mostly in Italy and Spain. Befana was a lonely old lady whose children were gone. She lived alone. One night she heard a knock on her door and opened it to three strangers. They asked for directions to Bethlehem.

When Befana heard their story of a king, she wanted to travel along with the richly attired men. A compulsive cleaner, Befana chose to do her housework first for she was very fussy about her home. Soon others stopped by asking the same questions. By now, her curiosity was at its peak so she set off bringing two toys that had belonged to her children.

Unfortunately, Befana had waited too long. The star that was to have shown her the way to this new little king faded in the morning light. Befana wanders on year after year. It is Twelfth Night, or the Eve of Epiphany, when she goes searching. As she goes from one house to another, she litters the covers from sleeping children looking for the little king. Always a kindly lady, Befana leaves behind a gift for each child.

As with many modern religious observances, Twelfth Night was once a special custom. It stemmed from the Romans who held masquerades at this time. A king would be chosen - interestingly enough from one of the slaves of the household.

If there is a traditional dish for this occasion, it is a special cake. Twelfth Night Cake is a grand creation of fruits and spices. In France, the traditional Epiphany cake is a very plain pastry-type cake, called Three Kings Cake. However, when the cake is made it always includes a little treasure. Usually, this is a pea and a bean. The King and Queen of the evening are chosen in this manner. Sometimes a tiny figure of a baby is baked into the cake or a silver coin.

This recipe comes from Adeline Simmons of Capritans. 1/2 cup coriander seeds 1 cup raisins 1 cup currants 1/2 cup candied peels 1 cup mixed candied peels 1/2 cup chopped almonds 1 dried pea, wrapped in foil 1 dried pea, wrapped in foil 1 almond, angelica, cherries, etc. for decoration.

Scotch Eggs: An Old British Favorite

By Aileen Clair NEA Food Editor

Scotch eggs may well be the British equivalent of the U.S. hamburger or hot dog. They're favorites all over Great Britain and eaten at almost any hour of the day, they especially are in great demand in pubs at lunch time. Scotch Eggs are good money stretchers and are eaten hot with a tomato sauce or cold with a salad for a pint if you prefer.

Scotch eggs are tasty combination of sausage and hard-cooked eggs.

reheat. Serve over hot Scotch Eggs. Makes 2 cups sauce.

HERBED TOMATO SAUCE 4 slices bacon, diced 1/2 cup minced onion 2 tablespoons flour 1 can (1 pound) tomatoes, broken up 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce 1/4 cup dry bread crumbs 1/2 cup fat for frying Herbed Tomato Sauce

Peel eggs and dust with flour. Mix sausage meat with Worcestershire sauce, divide into 9 equal parts. Shape each part into a flat cake and mold evenly around the egg, making sure that there are no cracks in sausage meat. Dip into lightly beaten egg and then roll in bread crumbs, gently patting bread crumbs in place. Preheat fat to 325 degrees. Add eggs, three at a time; fry for 7 minutes or until sausage is cooked and golden. Drain on paper towels. Serve immediately with Herbed Tomato Sauce or cool and serve with salad. Makes 6 Scotch eggs.

Add eggs and shallow fry three at a time for 7 minutes or until sausage is cooked, turning occasionally.

China Makes Changes in Military Commands

By CHARLES R. SMITH
UPI Senior Editor
HONG KONG (UPI) — China has made the biggest shakeup of its military command in more than five years. It was disclosed Wednesday.

But the posts of defense minister and chief of the general staff, vacant since September, 1971, apparently are still unfilled.

The military shakeup, which mainly involved transfers of powerful regional commanders, was disclosed in a routine dispatch of the official New China News Agency (NCNA) on attendance of top military men at New Year's Day functions in Peking and provincial cities where major military commands are headquartered.

The most important man involved in the transfers was Li Teh-sheng, who was elected one of five vice chairmen of the party at its 10th National People's Congress (NPC) last August.

He was identified as "Commander of the Shenyang Units of the People's Liberation Army (PLA)." Previously, he was the army's top political commissar and chief of the Anhwei Military District.

13 Military Regions in China has 12 military regions. Under these are more numerous military districts. Shenyang, capital of Liaoning Province, is the headquarters for what probably is the most important of all the military regions at present. This is in the northeast, where the largest concentration of combat troops is located and where the most serious border clashes with the Soviet Union have occurred.

Chen Hsi-hien, a politburo member who had been commander of the Shenyang region since November, 1959, was identified as being in command of the Peking Region.

Hsu Shih-yu, a man often mentioned as a possible successor to the late Lin Biao as defense minister, was transferred from the Nanking Military Region, a post he had held for almost 30 years. His new command was the Canton Military Region in South China. In addition to being a member of the politburo, Hsu also has been a vice minister of defense since 1959.

Ting Hsiang-shan, replacing Hsu in Nanking, the east coast region with the largest population concentration, was Ting Sheng, the former Canton commander. China also began the New Year with an attack on "reactionaries" and a warning to intellectuals to follow the Communist party line.

A joint editorial in the party newspaper, the party theoretical journal and the army paper also said 1974 was "crucial" for China's 4th five-year plan, which ends this year. The New Year editorial referred to the long-delayed 4th NPC, but gave no indication when it would be held.

The 3rd NPC, elected for four years in 1964, wound up its only session nine years ago. China's leaders have promised several times during the past four years that the 4th NPC would be convened "soon."

Faster Fossilizing Required

BY DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI) — More of everything you wanted to know about the standby gasoline rationing program:

Q. The spokesman for a gasoline dealers association referred to the author of the rationing plan as "Simple Simon." Is that an appropriate literary allusion?

A. No. The plan was devised by William E. Simon, head of the Federal Energy Office, whose counterpart in literature is Simon Legree.

Q. The average allocation under the program would be less than 10 gallons per week. How far could we get on that?

A. It would vary from car to car but most of us would be lucky to get as far as Tuesday.

Q. Why is there a shortage of gasoline?

A. Gasoline is derived from the so-called fossil fuels, which are rapidly being used up and which cannot be replaced.

Q. Why is that?

A. Why can't the fossil fuels be replaced?

A. Because there aren't enough new fossils coming along to keep up with the rate of consumption.

Q. Why are new fossils so scarce?

A. Plants and animals that used to become fossils are now being used for other things. In the old days, a tree that toppled over in the forest would just lie there and fossilize. Nowadays, somebody comes along and carves it up into hockey sticks.

The same is true of potential animal fossils. They are being made into frozen TV dinners before they have a chance to fossilize.

Q. How They Taste Fossilized?

Q. Then how come so many frozen TV dinners taste fossilized?

A. They probably need a dash or two of nutmeg.

Q. What about human fossils? Is there any action there?

A. The fossilization rate among human beings has increased considerably since the advent of televised football. However, except for New Year's Day and weekend, there aren't enough games to make up for the loss of Middle East oil imports.

Mrs. Knauer Optimistic On Energy

VIRGINIA H. KNAUER
Written for UPI

WASHINGTON (UPI) — There can be no doubt that the most significant consumer issue facing consumers next year will be the energy crisis. It will affect virtually every aspect of our daily lives—how and whether we work, how we relax, how we get to work, the price we pay for goods—even the food we eat and the clothes we wear. Putting it bluntly and succinctly, no matter who we are and where we live, the energy crisis will affect what we do and how we do it.

This drastic change in our living and working habits will answer a fundamental question about the American people.

There are those who claim that Americans are soft and easy people—unwilling to sacrifice and unwilling to forego past patterns of unlimited energy consumption. As evidence they point to those few who are now hoarding, who are now threatening drastic action if their patterns of life are altered.

I don't agree with that analysis. I have another view of the American people.

I believe that the vast majority of Americans will do as much as they can to conserve energy, whether it be joining car pools, turning the thermostat down, or driving 50 miles an hour on interstate highways.

Americans are a generous people. Starting with Thanksgiving, we have shared our harvests, our labors and our good fortunes. Today we need to share our available energy supplies just as the pilgrims and pioneers shared their limited resources.

I believe that most Americans will be willing to sacrifice in their use of energy so that all Americans will have energy. And I think my beliefs are supported by much of the evidence we have read in the newspapers and seen on television in recent days.

If my diagnosis proves correct, then future historians will be able to say that in the year 1974, when the chips were down, the American people were found to be made not of marshmallows, but of steel.

Race Track Referendum Next Week

WOLCOTT (UPI) — Old Rock Road Corp. promoting the idea of harness and thoroughbred racing in Wolcott, is emphasizing economic benefits as it looks forward to a Jan. 12 town referendum.

Of the 945 employ positions the corporation says would be needed to operate Connecticut Park, 700 could be filled by local people, Norman Wenz, executive vice president, said Wednesday.

The claims of full- and part-time job opportunities are similar to those made by Sunny Oak Park, Inc., which proposed a track in bordering Southington, only to see it overwhelmingly defeated in an October referendum. Like the Sunny Oak Park backers, the Old Rock Road group is expressing optimism as the referendum approaches.

They point out economic differences between Wolcott and Southington: Wolcott has a smaller industrial base than Southington, Rick Eaton, a public relations employee of Old Rock Road said today. Largely because of this, Wolcott has a tax rate 20 mills higher than Southington's, Eaton said the fact that the track would lighten the tax burden in Wolcott would be a major determination in the vote.

Another difference in the two referendums is that Southington's appeared on the ballot in a regular municipal election, while that in Wolcott is a special referendum.

Old Rock Road backed a race track in Newton before its Wolcott move and encountered stiff opposition at hearings. The subject never came to a vote in Newton. Eaton said comparing Wolcott and Newton was "like comparing apples and oranges," and mentioned market studies showing Old Rock Road would do better in Wolcott.

John Smith, editor of the Newton Bee, thinks the track issue had an even chance of passing in a referendum, even with the social opposition.

Twenty years ago, Americans spent 23 per cent of after tax disposable income on food, compared with 15.7 per cent in 1972.

A tissue shortage is nothing to sneeze at.

If, from time to time, we don't have all the tissues, napkins, towels and other paper products on your shopping list, there's a good reason—a nationwide shortage of paper!

Pulp and paper industry spokesmen say the shortage is the result of a number of factors which has affected manufacturing capacity. Price controls at the manufacturing level have frozen profit margins. This has resulted in a lack of available capital for construction of replacement facilities or the updating of present manufacturing facilities to comply with the new ecological standards. The paper industry has been funneling money into pollution controls. Another factor is the spiraling cost of a ton of pulp—it has nearly doubled in the past year. And the fact that pulp brings as much as 1 1/2 times more money on some foreign markets.

So don't waste paper. Conserve it by using cloth wherever possible... in your cleaning, wiping and car-washing chores. Use paper bags, again and again.

And we'll continue doing everything we can to keep all your favorite paper products on our shelves.

Lead important in modern play

One of the many developments for the better in modern play is that defenders think more carefully about what card to lead during the play.

Twenty-five years ago South would have had no trouble making his four trump contract, as he had almost any defending players. He would win the heart lead with dummy's ace, draw trumps and lose the diamond finesse.

Some East players would lead back partner's suit. After that friendly play South would be able to discard two of his clubs on dummy's good diamonds and score an over-trick.

A better East player would see the need for a club shift and would automatically lead back the three spot. Fourth best was standard then; it is still standard now, but with exceptions.

IN IOWA

The bidding has been:

West	North	East	South
Pass	1♥	Pass	2♥
Pass	2♥	Pass	2♥
Pass	3♥	Pass	3♥

What do you do now?

A - Bid three trumps in spite of the fact that your partner appears to be very weak.

B - Bid two trumps. This bid allows him to bid four hearts if he wishes to do so.

Chalone Research May Open Door To Cancer Cure

By ROBERT MUSEL

LONDON (UPI) — British scientists, looking for something that would inhibit cell division, found a substance in skin that did just that and may have opened another door in man's long search for a treatment or cure for cancer.

Prof. William Bulough of Birkbeck College named the active principle of the substance he and Dr. Edna Laurence discovered in epidermis, "chalone" from a Greek nautical term meaning to slow down a boat. It is pronounced kay-lone.

For a number of years the discovery provoked interest but no excitement, mainly because of the difficulty in extracting the chalones from animals in slaughterhouses — thousands of pints of blood yielded only one dose for a human.

But now new techniques are being developed for large-scale isolations of chalones and an international conference was held in Britain recently to discuss experiments which have begun to hold out distant hope in both cancer treatment and organ transplants.

In an article in New Scientist Prof. Bulough said: "A nautical term meaning to slow down a boat. It is pronounced kay-lone. Chalones are defined as a substance that is synthesized within a tissue to inhibit mitotic activity (cell division) specifically within that same tissue." Its action was reversible and non-toxic, he said, thus making it particularly attractive as a potential agent in tumor therapy.

At the International Chalone Conference Bulough said a tiny amount of chalone had saved the life of a Frenchman after a bone marrow transplant. It was used by Prof. G. Mathe of the Villejuif Cancer Centre, a medical research advisor to the French government to suppress rejection symptoms.

In Helsinki two researchers treated 40 rats suffering from normally fatal Granulocyte leukemia. Ten rats were completely cured and death was delayed in 30 others. Cancer cells of the same type from humans were treated with chalones in a test tube and the growth stopped but there wasn't enough of the stuff for a full clinical trial.

In his New Scientist article Bulough said Dr. J. Hock of the Children's Hospital in Washington, D.C., had also used lymphocytic chalones as an immunorepressive in preventing the rejection of skin graft.

"Research on chalones represents a new and fascinating branch of biology," Bulough said, "and it is perhaps too easy to be over-optimistic about its potential. Nevertheless, it is fair to say that chalones in a test tube and the coveries made since the war present such exciting possibilities for the treatment of some of man's worst problems."

Unbeaten East Finishes Strong, Martens Big Gun in Seventh Win

By Earl Yost

Breaking loose for 47 points in the second half, including 26 in the final canto, East Catholic rolled up win No. 7 in an unbeaten path to date.

JOE MARTENS

Once again it was a complete team effort with jumping back Joe Martens leading the balanced scoring attack with 19 markers.

on against undefeated South Catholic High Saturday night at the University of Hartford gym.

dedicated, hardworking kids," an elated Coach Stan Ogradnik said after his club had whipped the defending HCC champions.

"We followed our game plan in the second half," the slender team effort was said.

and Denny Robinson and Frank Harrison each carried three buckets. Balkum was a tower of strength off both boards in the first half but was boxed out repeatedly in the final two periods and had just four rebounds in the final 18 minutes.

Overall, play in the first half was sloppy with many turnovers on both sides but the tempo, from an East stand-point, picked up in the second half and after three periods the locals led, 42-33.

Coach Jim Penders' Jayvees made it a big night by winning the prelim, 43-39.

What about South Catholic? "I haven't even thought about South yet," Ogradnik said. "I know one thing, it will be a good one. Our games with South always are. I have heard nothing but great reports about South."

East posted a 14-0 edge in the period then had to settle for a 21-11 tie at intermission. Martens and Soucier were the only consistent scorers while Balkum carried the load for North.

Pistons Stop Bucks As Lanier Features

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bob Lanier didn't exactly stomp Kareem Abdul-Jabbar in his back pocket Wednesday night, but he did a pretty good job of nullifying Abdul-Jabbar's presence.

Lanier scored 21 points in the second half, 34 overall, and had 15 rebounds, five blocked shots and six assists leading the Detroit Pistons past their Midwest Division rivals, the Milwaukee Bucks, 106-92.

Milwaukee's Lucius Allen hit 25 of his career high 30 points in the first half to help the Bucks take a 54-48 lead. Dave Bost had 20 points for Detroit.

The victory pulled Detroit to within six games of division-leading Milwaukee. Chicago is in second, two games back of the Bucks, who have a record of 22-14.

In other NBA action, New York whipped Capital 92-81. Phoenix edged Atlanta, 116-113. Houston nipped Philadelphia, 101-99, and Buffalo beat Seattle, 115-111.

Senior guard Nerl Mackey had 16 markers for the Bobcats while junior 83-forward Blair Boucher had a team-high 29. Mackey used its standard to 5-1 overall and 4-1 in the CVC while South Windsor dropped its first game in four starts.

Bacon was led to its fourth win in five starts by Mike Chemenrenski's 21 lattes. Sophomore Paul Groves led the Bulldogs with 20 points in now a 2-4 overall and 1-4 in the league.

Hadl Player-of-Year, Learned New Tricks

NEW YORK (UPI) — John Hadl proved this season that an old quarterback can learn new tricks.

JOHN HADL

Hadl collected 13 votes to beat out Minnesota's Fran Tarkenton, who received eight votes.

Last year's winner was Washington Redskins' running back Larry Brown, who didn't get a vote this season.

Hadl started his career in the pros back in 1962 with the Chargers when the AFL was only in its third year of existence.

Hadl's statistics — he completed 135 of 258 passes for 2,008 yards — were lower than the ones he compiled in the previous nine seasons with the Chargers.

Hadl teamed up with Lance Alworth to give the Chargers the best AFL passing combination in that era and the Chargers made it to the AFL-TV in his praise of his teammates.

"Without a doubt, Harold Jackson is just a superb receiver," he said. "He's got great speed and great hands, but the big thing is that he's a good competitor and a team man above all."

"Obviously, a quarterback is a tough area to improve on, but Hadl says, 'We're going to be better next year because now we've all got the experience of playing together in the top running game in the league, plus we had a great defense that got me the ball every 3-4 downs.'"

"When a guy has all that going for him, I suppose he should be in contention for some award," he concluded.

Hadl's passing figures are down considerably from previous seasons. He completed 135 of 258, his lowest totals since 1963.

But with the zone defenses geared to choke him, Hadl's regular season stats over the last two years are 12-2 record.

"Sure, I remember when we threw 40 passes a game but if you did that now, you'd lead the league in interceptions and interceptions," Hadl points out.

Hadl, though, was still effective with the pass. For example, he tossed four touchdowns passes to Hal Jackson in a 37-31 regular season triumph over the Dallas Cowboys — although Dallas averaged that loss in the playoffs.

Summing up his philosophy as a player-caller, he says, "It takes the ability to come up with plays they don't expect. They will succeed at quarterback is to call the unexpected consistently."

Who's No. 1?

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — Southern California played Oklahoma, Notre Dame and Ohio State during the college football season and so far as the Trojans are concerned, Ohio State is the best.

"Overall, offense and defense, they're the best team we've played," said quarterback Pat Haden after the Bruins rolled over the Trojans, 42-21, in the 60th Rose Bowl game New Year's Day.

Coach John McKay agreed. "I said before the game that Ohio State would be the best, and that's what it was. Then they would be better than Oklahoma and Notre Dame," he said. "I'm not going back on my word."

Running back Anthony Davis recalled the thoughts of football coach McKay. "Oklahoma and Ohio State. That would be some game," Davis said. "Notre Dame is out of the picture."

Offensive tackle Booker Brown said, "Oh yes, they're the best team we've played. I like playing against them. They were hard-hitting but clean players."

Linebacker and other Trojans were surprised that Ohio State was able to score 42 points against the highly-touted defense.

"They must be awesome if they can do that," Haden said.

USC tied Oklahoma, 7-7, and lost to Notre Dame, 23-14.

Three 'Mad Bombers' Fire Away As Wethersfield Downs Indians

By Len Auster

There were three "mad bombers" at Wethersfield High last night. And that's what demolished the Manchester High basketball team as the long-range bombing of Steve McNeish, Matt Gorman and the "shooting machine" Jim Moriarty.

Ayers hit for a team-high 20 points despite the tight guarding of Roy Sullivan, who stuck to his opposite like glue. Ayers managed to free himself to connect on seven of 15 floor shots and all six of his free throws. McNeish contributed 18 markers while Gorman added 12. Most of the shots taken by the trio were from the 20-30 foot range, earning a combined 16 for 44.

Manchester, like in its previous contests, vainly tried to control the ball, but fell short once again. They trailed 15-12, after the first quarter but were able to deaden at 30-14 at the intermission.

The third stanza proved fatal to the Silk Towners as Coach Jack Kennedy's Eagles opened a 53-46 spread at the quarter's conclusion. Wethersfield had a 51-40 lead at one juncture, outscoring the Indians 11-2, but the locals reeled off six unanswered points to come within striking distance.

Moriarty's quietest narrowed the edge to two, 57-55, with 3:44 showing on the clock. After that, it was a steady march to the foul line for Wethersfield as Manchester had to foul to regain possession. It backfired as Gorman cut the chords with four straight from the charity stripe. A bucket by reserve center Perry Pratt off an Ayers' feed led it with 41 seconds left. As John Koepsel senior captain Larry Ayers bested the locals, 44-41, in CCIL action. It was the fourth straight setback for Coach Jim Moriarty's Indians who have yet to taste victory.

Foul shooting kept Manchester in the contest as they converted 21 of 27 opportunities while the Eagles were 16 of 24. From the floor, the Indians were a dismal 33 per cent (20 for 60), while the Eagles were just as wild, 24 for 66, for 37 per cent. A good third period of long-range bombing (10 for 21) by Wethersfield proved to be decisive.

Scoring honors went to Manchester's lanky center Kim Bushey with 28 points. The 6-4 Indian pivotman sank 11 of 20 from the floor and six of eight from the 15-foot line. He also grabbed nine of Manchester's 31 rebounds and led the club in that department. Bushey was also tough defensively, batting away several Eagle field goals. Sullivan and John Feeney had 12 lattes apiece. Wethersfield's sniper, But minor contributor Kurt Carlson was off target, registering just one point and missing on all six of his floor shots.

Tex Ritter Dies, Country Music Star

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI)—Singing cowboy Tex Ritter, whose recording of "High Noon" became a Western classic, died of a massive heart attack Wednesday night while visiting a friend in the Davidson County Jail.

A veteran of 85 movies, 78 of them Westerns, and a singing cowboy, Ritter, 67, was visiting Lamar "Jack" Watkins, apparently an employee, when he was stricken. He died at a local hospital a short time later.

"He was sitting here laughing and talking about getting this man out on bond and all of a sudden he just slumped over in his chair," said Police Lt. John Brewer.

Services are scheduled Friday at the First Presbyterian Church with burial Monday in Nederland, Tex.

"He was a giant in the industry and we will certainly miss him," said fellow singer Roy Acuff.

Ritter, who got his professional start singing on a Houston, Tex., radio station in 1929, was active until his death.

More Shots Slam Into Phnom Penh

PHNOM PENH (UPI)—Rebel forces slammed seven 122mm rockets into the heart of Phnom Penh today, hitting a crowded refugee center and a military hospital.

Police reported at least four persons killed and 18 wounded. It marked the second consecutive day of guerrilla rocket attacks on the capital.

The attacks came 19 hours after rebel gunners lobbed six 105mm artillery rounds from a captured American howitzer into a squatters area on the northern fringes of the capital.

One person was killed and nine others were wounded in the artillery attacks late Wednesday night.

The attacks were believed to be part of the predicted rebel dry-season offensive. Fighting across the country has increased considerably since the monsoon season ended in December.

There have been three attacks against the city since Dec. 30. In Saigon, Communist forces fired 151 rounds of 60mm and 82mm mortar fire and 13 rounds of 107mm rocket fire.

A sharp encounter between South Vietnamese infantrymen, and Communist forces Wednesday, half a mile south of Ben Cat district town, 25 miles north of Saigon, killed three Communist troops and five government soldiers.

Directors Hear Storm Reports. The key word to Manchester's problem during the ice-storm emergency is "communication"—the lack of it and breakdown and its inaccuracy.

That was the consensus reached by those attending a critique Thursday night at the emergency, chaired by Town Manager Robert Weiss, who presented a printed and oral report on ice storm week and its aftermath.

As Clark outlined the program, it would encourage Manchester residents to contact the local Chamber in regard to concerns or complaints relating to gasoline price increases.

The Chamber's only role would be to communicate at the local level between the consumer and the station in question. If this communication is unsuccessful and the station in question is in violation of state or federal regulations, it would therefore be the responsibility of the appropriate state or federal agency to take necessary legal corrective action.

Clark said, "The intent of this assistance program is not to 'clobber' the service stations, but rather to offer a vehicle for communications between the consumer and the station in an attempt to develop a workable solution to consumer concerns."

He added, "We felt it appropriate for the Manchester Chamber to initiate action to assist the State Department of Consumer Protection in its efforts to service Connecticut residents."
