Sam Groom

Sam Groom Calls New York Home

By VERNON SCOTT HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Sam Groom, who stars in the title role of "Police Surgeon," is among the last of a disappearing species, the prime-time television actor who still makes his home in New York.

In order to star in the nationally syndicated adventure show it is necessary for Sam to spend four months a year in Toronto, Canada, where the series is filmed.

It's a case of living two lives in two different cities. Groom is a handsome, rugged young man in his early 30s, personable and relaxed. He likes to talk about sports. Better still, he plays tennis, baseball, swims and jogs to keep his 6-foot, 2-inch, 175-pound physique in top-notch shape.

Backyard Sanctuary He and his wife, Kate, have been married a dozen years and moved to Rye, N.Y., three years ago when their family outgrew their two-bedroom apartment in Manhattan.

They are the parents of three husky, robust young sons: Sam, Jr., 11; Patrick, 9; and Chris, 6.

From cramped quarters in the big city, Sam and the boys now frolic around their suburban colonial home which has five bedrooms, large chambers of all kinds and high ceilings.

Previous owner of the house was an elderly woman who planted trees and other vegetation around the property to attract wild birds.

The half-acre now is something of a neighborhood bird sanctuary.

Kate and Sam have kept the wood floors uncarpeted except for some oriental rugs.

Sons Collect Animals One piece of furniture is a real treasure. It is a four-poster bed, now located on the third floor, which once belonged to Sam's great grandfather.

A dog named Andy and a huge black rabbit who answers to Blackjack scramble around the house. And the boys collect turtles, frogs and other delights.

Sam spends as much time as possible with his sons when he is in Rye because he must be separated from them for weeks at a time when he is filming the series in Canada. Eats Hotel Food He makes no attempt,

Uranium Load MENDOZA, Argentina (UPI) — The Sierra Pintada uranium deposits in this western Argentina province will produce between 1,000 and 2,000 tons of crude ore daily when production starts in the near future.

The announcement was made by members of the National Atomic Energy Commission. They said the Sierra Pintada mines should produce 400 tons of concentrated uranium annually, worth $10 million.

Does Great Shots More than anything else Sam misses Kate's hor-cooking when the series is in progress. She does things with a beef stroganoff that makes Sam's mouth water.

For the eight months when he is not involved with the show Sam busies himself looking for good movie properties and does occasional guest shots on other television shows.

On weekends he and his sons play football, soccer and go to ball games. He and Kate also take them to the circus when it's in town. While the Grooms make their home in Rye, their friends still live in Manhattan and they frequently drive to New York for visits, dinner and a Broadway play.

Sam likes the life he leads, but he would be happier if he could work in the same city in which he lives.

Tires, Petrochemicals Freed From Controls

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Cost of Living Council has dropped price controls on tires and scarce petrochemicals, materials, while leaders of three major industries want all government's war-time price controls to expire April 30 as scheduled.

John Dunlop, director of the council, said Wednesday the industry agreed to limit price increases for tires until just before the 1975 model cars come out. Dunlop said controls were dropped from petrochemicals because of shortages of the crude oil from which they are made.

The five largest tire companies — Goodyear, Firestone, F.F. Goodrich, Uniroyal and General — agreed to limit wholesale price increases to 5 per cent and to hold retail hikes on prices of tires for small cars to 4 per cent until Aug. 1. "Granting this exemption to the tire industry should provide maximum operational flexibility and incentive to accelerate the shift of production to new types of tires in heavy demand," Dunlop said, explaining that an increase in small car tire prices would be an incentive to raise production.

Petrochemical stocks, derived from crude oil, are used as raw material in the manufacture of tires, medicine, plastics, vinyl and other industrial, commercial and consumer products. O. Hendleton Thomas, chairman of Goodrich, appeared before a Senate subcommittee on Production and Stabilization Wednesday opposing wage-price controls. "Controls," he said, "are discouraging and even making it impossible for business to invest in needed productive capacity and thus impeding progress in the prospects of our nation's achieving long-term price stability."

Steel Negotiators Want End To Economic Reins

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Negotiations covering 350,000 workers in the steel industry opened Wednesday with both labor and management asking the government to let them work out an agreement without being hampered by wage and price controls.

Steel Workers' President I.W. Abel said the union would ask for very substantial wage and fringe benefit increases because of sharply rising prices in the worst part of inflation since immediately after World War II.

Chief industry negotiator R. Heath Larry said continued price controls in the steel industry would inevitably lead to government allocation of materials and further intervention of the government into the economy.

Larry said that despite increases last year, steel industry profits still were only about half of what they were in the 1950s. Larry, vice president of U.S. Steel, spoke after his company announced that profits in 1973 increased more than 100 per cent over 1972.

Larry said the industry's cost were inflating more than 10 per cent a year and the Cost of Living Council was not allowing these higher costs to be made up in higher steel prices. Just last Friday, the CLC turned down an industry request for higher prices.

Both Larry and Abel said they were opposed to congressional extension of the Economic Stabilization Act, due to expire April 30, which gives President Nixon power to control wages and prices.

"The government ought to try running the government a while and leave us alone," Abel told a news conference held jointly by union and industry negotiators before the bargaining opened.

The union entered negotiations for the first time without its traditional strike weapon. Under an agreement signed last year, the union agreed to forego the strike in return for third party arbitration of any unresolved contract issues.

The negotiations cover 350,000 union members employed by the 10 basic steel firms. The average hourly pay of these workers is $5.30, and Abel has indicated the union will demand wage increases of more than 10 per cent a year plus extensive fringe benefit improvements.

Navy Music Muted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Navy Secretary John W. Warner has ordered a 25 per cent cut in the service's musical personnel, a move he says will save $2 million a year.

The action followed complaints from Congress that the military band budget of $53 million was not consistent with the Pentagon's claim it was operating under "austerity" spending authority.

The House Appropriations Committee reported there were 153 military bands with 6,400 members, and suggested the services "scale down to a more reasonable level."

Rocking Chair Brigade Loses Another Battle

By STEWART POWELL
SUGAR HILL, N.H. (UPI) — The rocking chair brigade has lost one more battle with the 1970s.

The middle aged and older, who for years came to the resort or a summer to sit on the rambling porch of the 95-year-old Sunset Hill House to watch the sun set behind the mountains, won't have their porch any more.

The Victorian-style hotel built in the 1890s has closed. It will be leveled by the time summer regulars return to this northern New Hampshire community of 400.

"A lot of the old people are very broken up," said Ben Moyer, one of the local people who bought and closed the hotel. "A lot of them are worried about what they will do next year. Some have been coming here for years and have no place else to go."

A 40-room annex to the hotel leased by three men from Northfield, Mass., will continue to operate even as the old structure is torn down nearby. But it does not have a porch.

Antiques Sold
"Demolition will be done so discreetly that people will not have a feeling of loss," Moyer said. "It will be taken down from the inside piece by piece. The stuff will be carted away to the dump."

Moyer, who works for a home heating oil dealer, said he and four other persons got together "to buy the property for selfish reasons — we wanted to protect the whole area."

The resort includes 700 acres between the Green Mountains in Vermont and the White Mountains in New Hampshire. Pressure for land development is growing in the area.

At an auction in October, a month after the hotel closed for the last time, wicker chairs on the porch and brass beds upstairs brought high prices, as hundreds of antique hungry buyers stripped the hotel clean. Not even the gasoline crisis, which might have spared the big hotel for one more season, can revive it now.

Victim of the Times
"With the gas shortage, we might have missed the boat," said Moyer. "Here we've got all the facilities for the extended vacation people are going to take this summer and we're not going to have a hotel. The hotel will be leveled as soon as we can find someone who wants to do it."

The facility fell victim to changing times, a change in vacation habits.

"Of course there's still a small market for the old type hotel. For the retired people who love that sort of stuff — the maitre d' meeting them with open arms every year," Moyer said.

"But there is a swing from places like this to the new resorts for transients, where people come for a night or two and then move on."

Montage Machine Aids Police

IRVINGTON, N.Y. (UPI) — The Connecticut youth arrested Tuesday night and charged in the death of a wealthy Westchester County woman was traced through a device that synthesizes human features, police said.

The suspect, Neal Giraldi, of 351 N. Candlewick Lake Rd., New Milford, Conn., was arraigned early today in Irvington and ordered held without bail by Village Judge John Norris.

Westchester County sheriff's deputies arrested Giraldi in Tarrytown on the basis of a description provided by one of the victim's neighbors.

He is accused of murdering Mrs. Elfride Bernard, 41, who was found by a maid stabbed to death in the driveway of her luxurious home on Jan. 18.

The sheriff's chief investigator, John C. Deleo, said Giraldi was pinpointed as a suspect through the use of a device known as a synthesizer montage machine, a television-like screen that produces an image through feature-by-feature descriptions from witnesses.

Deleo said a final rendition of the suspect was circulated to police departments, hospitals and other locations throughout the New York metropolitan area. Some dozen persons said they recognized the man and, of these, more than one identified him as Giraldi, Deleo said.

UConn Dean's List

Manchester Residents

Many Manchester residents who are students at the University of Connecticut have been named to the fall semester dean's list, UConn Dean of Students Robert Hayes has announced.

A total of 79 Manchester residents are among the 2,745 students who earned places on the list, which was compiled under revised requirements that the dean's list students rank in the top 25 per cent of their respective school or college.

Previous requirements — posting of no mark below "C" earning at least 12 academic credits, an achieving a quality-point ratio of 3.0 or better — still remain.

Dean Hayes said the number of students who made the latest dean's list represent about 12.3 per cent of the nearly 15,000 undergraduates studying in Storrs or UConn's branches at Groton, Hartford, Torrington, and Waterbury.

The Manchester dean's list students, listed by school or college, are:

HARTFORD (UPI) — Motor Vehicle Commissioner Edward J. Kozlowski has reminded motorists that Connecticut's new helmet law has been in effect for more than two weeks.

Kozlowski said so far police have been giving only warning tickets to motorists stopped without safety helmets.

He warned, however, that police departments will begin Friday enforcing the law to its fullest extent, a $100 fine.

Lufkin Urges Meskill To Seek Re-election

HARTFORD (UPI) — Ban W. Lufkin wished Gov. Thomas J. Meskill "Happy Birthday" Wednesday and said later he urged the 46-year-old Meskill to seek a second term.

Millionaire Lufkin said the "best birthday present" Meskill could give him would be to seek another term.

Lufkin joins a list of Republican stalwarts, like Sen. Lowell P. Weicker, R-Conn., who have been urging Meskill to run.

Two Suspensions

HARTFORD (UPI) — Motor Vehicle Commissioner Edward J. Kozlowski said Wednesday his department has scheduled business license suspensions for Hart Twin Volvo Corp., of East Hartford, and Tyler Imported Motor Car Co., Farmington.

The East Hartford dealer drew a two-day suspension after a customer complaint he was sold a "demonstrator" car without being told of its status or having a record of the car's mileage.

FCC Approves WTIC Sales

HARTFORD (UPI) — The Federal Communications Commission has announced its approval of the sale of WTIC-TV Channel 3 to the Washington Post Co., and of radio station WTIC-AM and FM to the Ten Eighty Corp. of Hartford.

The FCC approval came one year after the Travelers Corp., owner of the stations, announced an initial agreement to sell the television station to the Post, and its plans to sell its radio properties.

Transfer of ownership is expected to be made early March.

The Post Company was unable to acquire WTIC's radio facilities because of FCC rulings barring acquisition of both VHF television and radio stations in the same market, a company spokesman said.

What Faces State Lawmakers

EDITOR'S NOTE: Connecticut's 187 legislators begin a three-month budget session next week. UPI takes a look at what the lawmakers will be dealing with.

By HOWARD S. DRESCHER
HARTFORD (UPI) — The 1974 Connecticut legislative session begins Wednesday with the budget in the spotlight but taxes, energy, education and elections are ready to steal the show.

Under a 1970 amendment to the state constitution, the 1974 session will be limited to the budget and financial matters. The only other legislation to be considered is bills drafted by the 19 standing committees and "emergency" legislation.

As of mid-week, 128 bills had been filed in the House and 62 in the Senate.

Tax reduction bills have been filed in both houses.

A number of bills propose lowering the sales tax to 6 or even 5.5 per cent. The governor has said he doesn't believe the tax, which provides the bulk of general fund revenues, can be reduced below 6 per cent.

Gov. Thomas J. Meskill will start the three-month session with his annual budget message to the 151 representatives and 36 senators.

The governor's proposal for state spending in the fiscal year to begin July 1 will reflect austerity and concern over economic uncertainties which could hurt the state's revenue position say sources in the governor's office.

Under Wraps

The budget is expected to rise from the current $1.24 billion spending level to at least $1.3 billion.

But with the actual figures under wraps until opening day, leading Democrats think this may be the year the governor opens the cornucopia represented by a budget surplus of $70 million carried over from the last fiscal year.

The governor's announced intention was to limit spending increases to 6 per cent, a difficult goal to achieve with inflation and soaring costs.

A 5 per cent increase would add slightly more than $62 million to current state appropriations from the general fund, the main source of money for state operations.

Broad Categories

Spending is broken down broadly into categories of legislative and general government, regulation and protection, conservation and natural resources, health and hospitals, transportation, welfare, aging and mental health, education, corrections and judiciary.

Of these, education and welfare, aging and mental health account for close to 60 per cent of the money being spent this year.

Goldwyn Dies at 91, Pioneer Moviemaker

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Samuel Goldwyn, one of the last of Hollywood's fabulous pioneer moviemakers, died today. He was 91. Goldwyn died during the night at his home where he had been under the care of a nurse. He was released earlier this month from St. John's Hospital in Santa Monica where he had been under treatment for an undisclosed ailment for several weeks. Goldwyn who helped found three studios—MGM, Paramount and Goldwyn saw him rise from a $3-a-week glove-maker to multimillionaire in the movie industry which he helped found.

Samuel Goldwyn

He became interested in movie-making when he dropped into a nickelodeon on Broadway to watch a five-minute comedy reel. He talked his brother-in-law, Jesse L. Lasky, into forming a movie production company with capital of $20,000. Goldwyn and Lasky sent a young friend, Cecil Z. DeMille, then playwright, to Hollywood to take advantage of year-round sunshine. Four years later the fledgling company became the $25 million Famous Players-Lasky Corp. This company later became Paramount Pictures.

In 1918, Goldwyn organized the Goldwyn Pictures Corp., which later became the giant Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. But he withdrew to become an owner-member of United Artists Corporation with Joseph M. Schenck, Douglas Fairbanks, Mary Pickford, Charlie Chaplin and D.W. Griffith. He broke off his association with United Artists in 1940, charging that his studio alone was carrying the production burden while other members sat back and shared in the profits.

He brought to the screen such figures as Lionel Barrymore, Geraldine Farrar, Irene Rich, Lewis Stone, Constance Bennett, Ronald Coleman, Vilma Banky, Joan Blondell, Helen Hayes, Eddie Cantor, Loretta Young, Melvyn Douglas, Merle Oberon and Frederic March. He spotted a lanky cowboy extra on the set one day and made Gary Cooper a star in "The Winning of Barbara Worth."

Publicized for his misuse of the English language, Goldwyn nevertheless became an eloquent spokesman for independent producers, blasting the movie industry for "fat-cat complacency" in the face of foreign competition. He continued to produce what he considered better movies, collecting eight Oscars during his career and also the coveted Thalberg award for his post-World War II film, "The Best Years of Our Lives," in 1946.

From the time he struck out on his own at the age of 11, making his way from the ghetto where he was born in Warsaw, Poland, to America, Goldwyn was an independent thinker and action. He remained independent through the stormy years which Mrs. Elizabeth Moran, Mrs. Elizabeth Moran of Andover, Mass. died Monday at her home. Survivors are a son, John B. Moran of Manchester, another son, a daughter, and five grandchildren. Funeral services were held today at St. John's Church in Clinton, Mass. Burial was in St. John's Cemetery in Clinton.

Miss Edna Doyle, 55, of Bidwell St. died this morning at a Manchester convalescent home. Nixon Outlines Legislative Aims

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon's State of the Union report offered a 10-point list of legislative goals by an effort to "break the back of the energy crisis." The word "Watergate" was not mentioned in the 25,000-word report that accompanied the State of the Union address but seemed apparent in proposals for campaign reform and a revision of governmental and private practices affecting the right of privacy. In the 51-page document, delivered to Congress at the same time as Wednesday's address, Nixon said, while making it clear that he has no intention of resigning, "the chief legacy that I hope to leave from the eight years of my presidency" was a structure of world peace for generations to come. Nixon's legislative goals:

- To "break the back of the energy crisis" by providing emergency powers to cope with energy shortages and begin the longer-range project of achieving self-sufficiency in energy resources.
• Continue work toward lasting peace in the world by negotiations with adversaries and assisting in the achievement of a lasting settlement in the Middle East.
• Check the rise in consumer prices, which Nixon conceded was the darkest spot in the economy.

• Establish a new health insurance system "that makes higher quality health care available to every American in a dignified manner and at a price he or she can afford."
• Continue the "new relationships with international trading partners so that U.S. goods will get a better break in world markets."

Nixon's aides regarded the message as a crucial effort to put his Watergate troubles behind him. The President referred to "the intense public focus on the campaign abuses of 1972" and criticized Congress for failing to act on a proposal last May to create a nonpartisan study commission on campaign reforms.

The President left specific details out of most of his proposals. They will be spelled out in a series of proposals to be sent to Congress in the coming weeks. Messages on education, veterans, and energy have already been delivered.

(Continued from Page One) longer hours and set uniform minimum-maximum purchases wouldn't work, Listro said. "There's no way in the world we could put up all day," he said. "We'd use up our monthly allotment in a week."

Listro thinks it's a better idea for individual stations to post "pumping hours" which are best for them and their customers, because different gasoline dealers have different limitations placed on them by their suppliers.

Listro noted that the shortage of gasoline seemed to hit Manchester stations harder this month than in December. "I can't understand it," Listro said, pointing out that his gasoline allotment for January was substantially more than in December.

There's been no relief in shortages, he said, noting that several service stations haven't been pumping gas in the last few days. He said he knew of very few stations still pumping gasoline today.

Most Manchester stations, though, are open for service to customers, because different gasoline dealers have different limitations placed on them by their suppliers.

McKinney also said he has asked the cooperation of the major oil firms to get the word out to local stations which have experienced business growth. He said the companies' cooperation "could alleviate much of the hardship in Connecticut in general, and Fairfield County in particular."

The Connecticut congressman said he has sent letters to nearly 500 gas dealers in Fairfield County advising them of the provision and offering his assistance in their efforts to get more gasoline.

Tech Runs Out of Gas, Win Skein Ends at Four

By Earl Yost

There's no question about the gas shortage in these parts and many motorists have found themselves running out of this important commodity of late.

This is exactly what happened last night to the Cheney Tech basketball team at home as it eyed an unprecedented fifth straight win and a first win ever against Coventry High. The Beavers failed to hang on to a five-point edge with less than three minutes to play and completely ran out of gas in the final minute in absorbing a 64-55 defeat.

NBA Roundup

Warriors' Offense Defensive Weapon

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Golden State Warriors obviously believe a good offense is the best defense.

The Warriors, who beat the Buffalo Braves, 128-121, only 24 hours earlier, outlasted the Atlanta Hawks, 128-122, Wednesday night and moved within 1 1/2 games of the first-place Los Angeles Lakers in the National Basketball Association's Pacific Division.

ABA Stars Turn Funky In Mid-Season Contest

By Earl Yost

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI) — All the ABA All-Stars cared about Wednesday night was having a good time and playing what one called "good old schoolyard ball."

And that's exactly what the game was like. It was back to the schoolyard all the way, with Carolina Ted McChain pumping three times on a funky layup in the second period, New York's Julius Erving throwing fancy passes and Kentucky's Artis Gilmore defending the goal like Tony Esposito.

MCC Athletic Squads Lack Outside Facilities

By Len Auster

For the past 11 years, including this one, members of the athletic program at Manchester Community College have been nomads. They have been shuffled from place to place, being pushed around like vagrants. This year the MCC basketball team call "home" Cheney Tech. Next year? That's the issue.

Pat Mistretta, director of athletics at the college, has a goal. That of having facilities which the school can call its own. Preliminary sketches have already been drawn up by the Lawrence Associates of Manchester.

The layout, as planned, calls for lighted tennis courts, a lighted soccer field, a baseball diamond and a multi-purpose field which would include two softball fields. This would be on a tract of land about 40 acres of a parcel 160 acres, where the proposed new MCC campus is to be built.

total cost of $300,000. Set aside already for such an undertaking is $25,000 from student surplus funds. "The students felt such a project was important enough to contribute," Mistretta said. Also, the college administration has reportedly committed itself for $75,000. That leaves quite a bit to be uncovered somehow.

"We tried continuously to get money from the state. We had $150,000 up from the contingency fund before the State Bonding Committee, but they tabled the bill and that's the situation existing now," Mistretta said with a hint of annoyance. Over avenues explored by Mistretta and the college is the town of Manchester. "We've had talks with town officials but nothing concrete came out of those meetings," Mistretta noted. "The town is Mistretta's biggest hope. In a prepared statement, Mistretta said that he would like to see the state make much elsewhere. But, if funds became available, fine. If we can get more facilities at less cost, then we'd be foolish not to go into such a venture."

Who should foot the bill? Mistretta has said that he doesn't want to be fighting for facilities five years from now. It wouldn't be beneficial to him or the program, which he is trying to build. Silver? He has candidly said that the Rec Department definitely needs more room than what presently exists. Considering Manchester Community College is a state school, shouldn't the state pick up the tab for improvements? They're hesitant about releasing funds, however, for the project. Where do you turn to now? There is no clear-cut answer. But one which could make all parties concerned make concessions, is a tripartite among the state, college and town where they share the costs. That way, at least two benefit instead of the stagnant position which exists today.

Billie Jean Has This Gal's Number

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Kristen Kemmer is the other "Chris" on the women's pro tennis circuit, but her nemesis goes by another name—Billie Jean King. In three meetings against Mrs. King in 1973 and one already this year, the third-year Virginia Slims veteran from San Diego has a frustrating 0-4 record. It's about 0-12 overall. Win No. 1, however, isn't far off, she says. "She's not impossible to beat," declared the slender 21-year-old, who was voted the tour's most improved player in 1973 and who Chris Evert credits as having one of the two best forehands in the game. "Every time my scores get better against her, the easier it is the next time I play her. The most important thing is that I go out on the court now and I'm not afraid of her anymore."

Coventry PTOs Sponsor Dental Program

MONICA SHEA Correspondent. The parent groups of the two grammar schools are sponsoring a fluoride coating and dental cleaning program for the students of the grammar schools. Mrs. Wilma Visny has been hired as the dental technician. The program is voluntary and available at a nominal cost. Approximately 300 students from Coventry Grammar School and about 200 students at Robertson School will take part in the program. Officials hope that a program can be expanded to include all the schools in town. The program was conducted at Robertson School last March, and as there must be a wait of one year between fluoride applications, the grammar school is being attended to first. Some of the equipment used in the program is borrowed from the state, such as the chair, engine and compressor. It will be possible to purchase this equipment next year with the help of the PTO of the various schools.

LaBrecque Adventurous Man, Say His Former Neighbors

JUDY KUEHNEL Correspondent Tel. 644-1364. Cyril E. LaBrecque was a determined and adventurous man with a goal. He and his wife Jessie, formerly of 42 Hillton Dr., South Windsor, dreamed of the day they could put their belongings on their 61-foot schooner, the "Sadie and Edgar," and set out to sea.

Friday, lasted only a few days, however, when a severe storm beat the ship against the Bregantine Shoals off Atlantic City, leaving two of the crew members dead. Michael Riker, 18, of 186 Hillside Dr., South Windsor, was one of the crew members and was injured when the boom snapped off the ship.

When the "Sadie and Edgar" began to sink, Michael shared a small skiff with LaBrecque and his wife, while the three other crew members - Paul Sagarino, 19, and Bradford Blakely, 20, both of Wethersfield, and Valentine Bach, 47, of Chester - tied themselves to the sides of the skiff and waited in the 43-degree waters for rescue. Of the three in the water, only Bach survived.

Police Report

MANCHESTER Five break-ins and one burglary were reported yesterday to Manchester Police.

Three of the breaks reportedly occurred at establishments on Hartford Rd. between 7:30 and 8:30 a.m. Two were at service stations, Martini's Getty service at 888 Hartford Rd. and at Moriarty's Cliggo at 270 Hartford Rd. In those, about $350 worth was taken, police said.

The third break occurred at the Exxon station on Tolland Tpk., police said. Reported taken was $19 in change, police said.

A Manchester detective bureau spokesman said he doesn't believe these cases are related. The burglary reported to police occurred at the apartment of Frank Murko, who resides at Marilyn Court on Olcott St. Reported taken was a radio and stereo equipment valued at $900.

Earl Reichle of South Windsor reported to police Wednesday that a potato sack he owns on Tolland Tpk. was broken into and seventy-five 50-pound bags of potatoes were stolen. Police are now investigating.

In other Manchester Police reports: -Daniel Delano, 16, of 48 School St. was picked up yesterday by local police on Hartford Rd. and turned over to Glastonbury Police who wanted him in connection with a theft of a motor vehicle from that town earlier that day. Delano was charged with second-degree burglary and second-degree larceny and he was to be presented in East Hartford Circuit Court 12 session today. Bond was set at $5,000 non-surety.

Bolivia Says Revolt Crushed

LA PAZ (UPI) - The government of Gen. Hugo Banzer reported a week-old peasant uprising in central Bolivia crushed today following a bloody, daylong drive against the rebels by troops, armored cars and jet fighters. Banzer's right-wing government also claimed to have broken up an alleged leftist military plot, partly directed from abroad, and said the ringleader, a former Bolivian army commander, was in hiding.

The situation in Cochabamba has been brought under control by the armed forces, who have restored peace, tranquility and order in the area after momentary threats by rebel extremist groups, the Information Ministry said. Sources close to the military said, however, that peasants still manned a few scattered roadblocks in embattled Cochabamba, the third most populous province in this landlocked Andean nation of 5 million.

The sources said authorities, wanting to avoid further fighting, were trying to talk the remaining rebels into abandoning their roadblocks voluntarily and returning to their homes in the province of 825,000.

The total value of real property on the New Haven Grand List now exceeds $645.5 million. A year ago, the increase in the Grand List was $1.8 million. Guida attributed the largest portion of the increase to an East Shore project by United Illuminating Co. He said other major factors were housing projects and office buildings.

He received his bachelor's degree in music education cum laude in 1959 from Boston University. While in Boston, he was organist and choir director at St. Mark's Church for three years. He also did graduate work at Grace Episcopal Church, Dalton, Mass., while teaching in the Dalton school system. He also did graduate work at North Adams (Mass.) State College.

Blue Dots Tell Progress At Library

The staff of the South Windsor Public Library has begun a massive undertaking, "Project Blue Dot."

The project, which was given its whimsical name by the staff of the library, calls for the refiling of the public card catalog. The name was derived from the fact that the staff places large blue dots on the outside of each catalog drawer to indicate that a preliminary step in the refiling process has been completed.

According to William Clayton Massey, library director, the library has approximately 100,000 catalog cards. It is interesting to see that the cards themselves tell a history of South Windsor. They range from the very old ones, hand written, to the modern printed cards received for the Library of Congress.

Money for Movement
NEW YORK (UPI) — Young business executives with families rarely are willing to pull up their roots, so a sizeable increase in compensation should be used to encourage movement from one area of the country to another.

That Big Snowman May Live in Woods

SCIENCE TODAY
By ROBERT MUSEL

LONDON (UPI) — A team of zoologists studying the evidence for and against the existence of the Abominable Snowman or Yeti believes there may be such an animal but he has not been found because explorers are looking in the wrong place.

The Yeti, they believe, is not a dweller of the Himalayan snows where there is not enough food to sustain life for a creature of its size, but probably lives in the dense forests below where he could find enough to eat.

Writing in "Oryx", the magazine of the Fauna Preservation Society, J.A. McNeely, E.W. Cronin and H.B. Emery gave as one theory the possibility of the Yeti may be a descendant of Gigantopithecus, a giant ape whose fossil jawbones and teeth are about twice the size of a gorilla's.

They theorize that some 500,000 years ago Gigantopithecus, under competitive pressure from early man, was able to survive only in areas where man was not a threat.

"Such areas," they said, "are today generally confined to the high mountain forests of the Himalayan chain. That Gigantopithecus might still survive in such areas is indicated by tracks seen by many reputable westerners and by eyewitness accounts of local people."

The authors went to the Himalayas for their research on behalf of the Thailand Association for the Conservation of Wildlife. They said their tent was visited one night "by an animal which left tracks that are not referable to any known animal."

"Expeditions sent in search of the Yeti have returned with tracks, feces, hairs and other evidence but have not been able to confirm the existence of the Yeti," they said. "This seems to be due to a poor research design. The name Abominable Snowman suggested to earlier expeditions that the Yeti would most likely be found in the snowfields, where the tracks had most often been seen. But such a habitat clearly would not support a large primate, whereas the rich Himalayan forests could."

"These forests are largely unknown so a preliminary step in the search for the Yeti should include a study of the entire ecosystem of the Himalayan forests...caves especially should be closely investigated."
