For Energy Crisis Layoffs

Ribicoff Wants Extended Unemployment Benefits

By SOL R. COHEN
Connecticut Sen. Abraham Ribicoff announced today in Manchester he will introduce a bill to provide up to 48 months of unemployment compensation benefits to persons put out of work "during or because of the energy crisis."

Simon Orders More Gasoline For Connecticut

United Press International
Less than a day after his office had termed Connecticut's gasoline shortage only slightly worse than the national average, Federal Energy Administrator William E. Simon ordered emergency shipments of gasoline to Connecticut.

Gov. Thomas J. Meskill and Rep. Robert H. Steele, R-Conn., announced jointly Sunday Simon said the shipments would arrive within two weeks.

Simon did not specify the amount of additional gasoline to be made available.

He said it would be enough to reduce long lines at gasoline pumps and tide the state over until his office's regular gasoline allocation program has had time to distribute the shortage more equally across the country.

In a related development, some 500 Connecticut labor officials planned an afternoon meeting to discuss the energy crisis.

The meeting in Hartford was intended to make labor officials aware of the energy shortage facing the entire nation.

Meskill was expected to attend along with federal and state energy officials.

Simon told Meskill and Steele his office could not eliminate Connecticut's shortage but "is determined to meet Connecticut's special problem."

"We are trying to equalize the shortage around the country, and in the interim we will meet short run emergencies such as what is now occurring in Connecticut," he said.

Simon's commitment overruled Saturday's decision by his aide John W. Weber.

Weber had said Connecticut's shortage wasn't severe enough to include it on its list of 12 states and the District of Columbia which were ordered to benefit from the reallocation in a packed auditorium of about 300 students and faculty.

"New England," said Ribicoff, "has tragically become the nation's neck beneath the guillotine of fuel shortages. Every barrel of shortfall lowers the blade that much more to jobs and production."

Present federal programs offer 26 weeks of unemployment benefits, plus an extra 13 weeks in certain states where unemployment is unusually high.

The bill directs the President to make grants to states according to energy-related unemployment. The new benefits would take effect once a worker has exhausted his or her other unemployment benefits, but would not exceed the premium weekly benefits under the state's regular unemployment compensation program.

The cost of the additional weekly benefits, Ribicoff explained, would be borne entirely by the federal government out of general revenue; "and no additional tax would be charged the employer or employee."

"The workers of this country," he said, "can't afford to go through a severe period of unemployment without additional help."

Ribicoff urged passage also of his tuition-credit legislation — passed three times by the U.S. Senate but defeated each time by the House.

Under the bill, a maximum tax credit of $325 would be allowed for each student in college.

"This is not a deduction," the senator explained, "but a credit that could be subtracted directly from the tax bill of whoever supports the student."

He charged that the middle class is being discriminated against, and that parents, as a result, are becoming frustrated.

"The rich have their high incomes and tax breaks," he said.

Refineries To Increase Gasoline Production

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal energy chief William E. Simon says there is now enough home heating oil so that refineries can begin using more of their crude oil to make gasoline.

Simon's long-awaited decision to shift refinery priorities in preparation for the summer was announced Sunday as motorists in four states and the District of Columbia prepared to adopt the "Oregon plan" for gasoline rationing and as government officials said truck traffic continued to climb and incidents of violence fell.

Officials of the United States and 12 other oil consuming countries meanwhile were starting a two-day conference here on how to deal with shortages and high costs of oil.

On Sunday Simon said that some refineries already have increased gasoline output and that reports indicate gasoline production for the week ending Feb. 1 was 2 per cent higher than the week before.

"We want refineries who have adequate distillate and residual stocks to increase gasoline yields in order to alleviate some of the shortages we are experiencing," Simon said.

Decision Affects 440 Employees

By DOUG BEVINS
The Iona Manufacturing Co., one of Manchester's largest employers, today announced that its parent firm — General Signal Corp. of New York City — has decided to close the local industry.

The local company will continue manufacturing operations until Feb. 22, when a four-to-eight-week phaseout will start, Iona chairman William H. Sleith said this morning.

Sleith, who announced the shutdown plans to a "stunned audience" at Iona's Regent St. facility at 9 a.m., said the decision will affect 440 employees.

A significant number of salaried people — mostly management and supervisory employees — will probably be transferred to other divisions of General Signal Corp., Sleith said, and the company will assist other employees in finding new jobs.

Town Manager Robert Weiss, shocked and dismayed after learning of the decision this morning, said he has asked Sleith to arrange a meeting with General Signal's top management to see if the town can talk them into reconsidering.

Weiss said the town would at least seek to get another of General Signal's corporate divisions in Manchester. He said he has also contacted the state Department of Commerce for assistance.

Sleith said General Signal's decision to close the Manchester plant was "necessitated by the continuance of heavy operating losses throughout 1973 and early 1974."

He said he was just as shocked as anyone else to hear the sudden decision of corporate headquarters in New York City, although he knew the firm was suffering losses in the Iona division.

Sleith, who founded the Iona Co. in 1947 and sold it to General Signal Corp. in 1969, said he was not a participant in the decision-making done in New York City. He said the rationale for closing the facility was apparently economic, and he was assured that General Signal had explored alternatives to closing the plant.

Many Iona employees in Manchester knew "the string was running out," but employees were stunned and saddened by the drastic announcement this morning, Sleith said.

The closing of Iona's operations in Manchester will probably have a severe effect on Manchester's economy, Sleith said, noting that the individual employees will probably suffer a stronger blow.

"Considering the national economic picture," Sleith explained, "it's not a happy prospect for them."

"I hope they find jobs," he added, "but I don't see a very bright picture for at least a few months."

Sleith said he expects to remain as board chairman "for the foreseeable future — one or two years."

Although he couldn't release specific financial information about the division's losses, Sleith said the shutdown decision came under the pressures of increasing prices of materials, inflationary pressures on labor costs, and the inability of Iona to raise selling prices for its products.

"These factors made for an outlook for 1973 that didn't promise a reversal of the loss situation," Sleith said. "New York saw no hope," he said. "They couldn't stand another year of losses."

Normal manufacturing operations at Iona will continue until Feb. 22, Sleith said, to fill orders the company has on hand for its products — food mixers, blenders, can openers, shoe polishers, hair dryers, and knives.

After that date, he said, activity will be limited to phasing out production and the sale of existing inventory. The phaseout is expected to take four to eight weeks, Sleith said, and the only operation remaining after that will be maintenance service for Iona products.

Iona's plant at Toronto, Canada, is not affected by the decision to end operations in Manchester, Sleith said.

"In this country," Sleith said, "Iona products will disappear from the market," but Canadian production will continue.

Most of the production equipment at the Manchester facility will be moved to other divisions of the General Signal Corp., Sleith said, and company officials are considering sale of Iona's nine-acre complex on Regent St.

Sleith founded the company, named for his wife, in 1947 when he patented the world's first portable food mixer. The first plant was in Hartford, and the company moved to Manchester in 1956.

The plant was expanded in 1958 and again in 1961. The Canadian unit was created in 1968, and a branch was established near San Juan, Puerto Rico. The Puerto Rican facility closed in 1969.

Sleith has been nationally recognized for his practices of hiring physically and mentally handicapped persons.

DevCo Tour: Some Answers Plus New Questions

By ALEX GIARELLI
A group of Coventry residents toured three planned communities in Virginia and Maryland this weekend. They went to find answers to — or at least to get some insights into — the problems, potentials, and performance of new towns roughly similar to the controversial one being proposed in Coventry.

Presumably they found some answers, or at least the raw material for working out some answers over the next few weeks and months, but judging from the comments they made at dinner tables and on the weekend's many bus trips, they also came back with questions which will be put to DevCo planners and their consultants.

One thing they clearly did not find was a single exact model they could lift bodily and plant in North Coventry.

Those in the group, most of them members of the Citizens Advisory Committee to the developer, indicated they discovered too many differences in the economic situation, the lifestyle, and the governmental setup to find precise parallels.

There were close parallels, however, between the early stages of the new town at Columbia, Md. and what has happened so far in Coventry.

This first became apparent at the outset of the tour when Jim Rouse, who conceived of Columbia, spoke to the group in a temporary meeting room at the airport in Washington.

Rouse said, for instance, that the land for the development was acquired quietly.

Later on, in a seminar on municipal questions for one of the subcommittees of the advisory group, Thomas G. Harris, director of planning for Howard County, was to say that the purpose for the acquisitions was a well-kept secret until Rouse approached the county planning authority with a proposal.

Another similarity was that officials and citizens had difficulty believing Rouse when he said he had no fixed plan for the land in which so much money had been invested. Both Rouse and Harris made this point.

After the proposal became public, Rouse held meetings with many groups to explain his rationale of a mixed use community of variable density providing a variety of urban services and to seek ideas about its development.

As in Coventry, the government authorities stayed out of the discussions until Rouse came forward with a formal proposal on which they had to act.

Harris said, however, that members of the county government professional staff did discuss the planning with Rouse along the way, exchanging information.

Questioned about this later, Peter Labassi, president of Hartford Process, said he agreed that the policy of Coventry officials in not getting formally involved is proper, but he regrets that DevCo staff members are unable to talk with the professional staff of the Coventry government.

Commenting on public reaction, Rouse said that people had been in a state of anxiety of the land acquisition in the early stages. After the many discussions over objectives, he said, "not one single person opposed our zoning" when the time for a zoning hearing arrived.

Harris, who said, "Jim Rouse has a tremendous sales approach about the good life," agreed that no great opposition developed.

Both said that attitude was that the residents of Howard County would have preferred no development at all, but felt that if there must be development, they wanted to have a say in it.

Rouse said "They would have preferred us to go away." He said he has concluded, however, that "people who are presented with a rational plan for a community do not panic."

Jack Benny 80

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) - Jack Benny will celebrate his 80th birthday this week when Frank Sinatra hosts a party for him in Palm Springs.

The comedian contemplated the celebration with mixed feelings. Clearly he did not relish turning 80 - two years older than his pal George Burns. But he was looking forward to the Sinatra celebration and away from his age.

Benny sat in his Beverly Hills office puffing contentedly on a cigar. He was dressed in expensive blue slacks, sports shirt and high polished shoes. Whenever possible he directed the conversation to his activities and away from his age.

"I don't eat very much so I don't have to worry about getting fat," he said. "I have a highball before dinner at night with Mary. Other than that I don't drink."

"I play golf as often as I can. And the caddy who gets me is lucky. He rides in the cart and I do all the walking. Best thing in the world for me."

"Most nights I go to bed early unless we go to somebody's house to see a movie. I'm usually in bed by 9 o'clock and fall asleep watching TV."

Benny has his own projection room but seldom uses it. His home is a large mansion surrounded by manicured grounds, set well back from the street in Holmby Hills, a fashionable enclave tucked between Beverly Hills and BelAir.

He wears his wealth unostentatiously. He wears his years lightly.

"I've made more than 500 appearances on television, counting my own shows and guest spots," he said with a note of pride. "I can still remember the exact date of my first radio job."

"It was May 10, 1932. I'll never forget it. If you asked me any other date I couldn't tell you. I remember my opening line of my first show: 'Good evening ladies and gentlemen, this is Jack Benny - I will now pause while everybody says, 'Who cares?''"

As it turned out, millions cared, and still do.

Jack Benny recently starred in the television special "Jack Benny's Second Farewell Appearance." His first won the highest ratings he'd ever received. He plans as many other farewells as he can.

But through the years the comedian has given higher priority to his violin concerts with symphony orchestras for which "I don't get paid a dime."

He reckons he has saved dozens of such orchestras in the United States from bankruptcy.

"I should practice the fiddle more. But I do take two lessons a week and I try to practice two hours a day."

Bridgeport Election Sparks Attention

BRIDGEPORT (UPI) - gas company executive, Democrat Matty DeBerco, a House store owner and band leader, and Ralph Comano, an independent.

Some political observers view the contest as the first chance to see what impact the Watergate scandal has had on Connecticut voters.

A congressional election in Pennsylvania this week proved inconclusive after the Democratic contender won by a scant 230 votes out of 120,870 cast.

The pros say the Bridgeport election will mean little in terms of Watergate-induced voter apathy or the November elections.

James Donnelly, executive director of the GOP State Central Committee, said it would tell him "Zip."

Democratic state chairman John Bailey said it would have solely no meaning whatsoever" outside of local party strengths and local issues.

Facing New Challenges

In one sense it marked the end of the era and in another it marks the beginning.
The successful completion of the Skylab series marks the beginning of a relative lull in outer space activity as it climaxed a space effort which started in the early 1960s.
While it is still debated whether the cost was worth the achievements, the space program has demonstrated without a doubt that the United States can mobilize its resources, both monetary and technological, to accomplish what was once the impossible.
Perhaps the lessons learned from the space program can be utilized to more effectively and efficiently mobilize our technology and funds to meet the challenges of the energy crisis.
The organizational system alone in the space program, which coordinated theory, engineering, training, manufacturing, research, and all the thousands of details that go into a successful space shot whether around earth or to the moon and back, might well become a pattern for a concerted and coordinated effort to master energy and other national problems.

The biggest intangible and yet perhaps most valuable benefit of the space program which culminated with the Skylab 3 splashdown Friday was that once again man has proven he can meet the challenges of his imagination.
While we are still in the infancy of outer space exploration, the fact that such exploration is now possible is an encouragement to all of us who feel that the many problems here on earth are not insurmountable and can and will be solved in the years ahead.

Violence Not Justified

The strike of the independent truck drivers will take on added implications in the months ahead.
Whatever settlement is accepted will have impact on all consumers since so much of the material, especially food, is transported somewhere in the transportation chain by trucks.
While we feel the independent truck drivers have as much right to seek redress of grievances through collective action as any organized union does, what is disturbing is the violent aspects of the protest.
Clearly state and federal laws have been violated. Individual and civil rights have been violated. Property has been destroyed, drivers killed and wounded as militant drivers, and undoubtedly some hoodlums taking advantage of the situation, attempted to force non-complying trucks off the highways.
Just as the Congress has diligently pursued and continues to pursue the crimes attendant to Watergate, we hope that it will be just as diligent in seeking to bring those who violated our laws in this strike to justice.

We cannot condone illegal acts in any segment of society. In the past violence has occurred in labor disputes. Now it has occurred in a dispute affecting independent businessmen. It is our hope that the Congress will study this criminality and come forth with constructive legislation so no segment of our economy, which has the same economic clout as the truckers, will be tempted to use illegal means to attain its goals.
Not to do so could lead to more violence and more bloodshed and would give credence to the assumption of many people that the ethical standards of the Congress are more political than moral.

Arab Oil Not That Important

WASHINGTON — Those who run our foreign policy in the picky factory otherwise known as Washington, D.C., seem to be overlooking a traditional United States principle in their attempts to solve our alleviate the energy crisis caused by the oil embargo imposed by the oil-producing Arab states.
Jefferson, Truman and Eisenhower would have described this principle as one of preserving the United States' independence in foreign relations. In street-corner language, it can be summed up as a position whereby we are able to live with other nations by providing we can live without them.
In negotiating with the proprietors of Arab oil, the Nixon-Kissinger team has abandoned that principle. So abashed is Washington by the

Why Not Prayer?

Dear editor:
I have been an American citizen for three years now, my original home being Ottawa, Canada. I would like to ask your readers a couple of questions, if I may. Has this ever happened to you? You get out of work, after a hard day, jump into your car, and head for home. You're driving along and you see that someone coming from a ramp off the highway would naturally like to get into the line of traffic, so you stop up and let him in, and does he wave his hand in gratitude? No, or are you the one who doesn't wave? It is such a small simple gesture, but has a great feeling behind it.
Have you ever held a door for someone and had their thanks right by you without a "thank you" or a smile? How much does a "thank you" cost? There are other examples that I am sure all of you can think of similar to the ones I have stated but they all boil down to the same basic fact: We have forgotten how to love each other and to be considerate of other human beings. It really scares me to think of what is happening in the world today. I don't think we have ever experienced such tragedies as we are now experiencing. Look at the horrible plane crashes taking hundreds of lives, the brutal murders that have occurred, robberies, earthquakes, increased prices, the gasoline shortage and unemployment. These are just a few of the many disasters happening every day. I wish people would sit down for a few moments in their busy day and take a look at what is actually happening around us. Just because it doesn't happen to us personally, doesn't mean we can block it out of our minds. I am sure that all of us at one time or another have looked to God for help, either for ourselves or for someone we love. I really think that it is time for us to stop and concentrate on how each one of us spends our day and how we treat our fellow man.
Our whole being and the way we do our thing, goes back to the very basics that we were taught as youngsters. Basics such as politeness, respect for others, truthfulness and the love of God. I am a Catholic and firmly believe that God is trying to warn us of what will happen to us if we don't get out of our ruts and start loving and caring for people who need us. We may think that we don't have time for that, but if we have love and kindness towards others, that's all that counts. Just as when you start working in a big company and you start at the bottom and work up, so will we, the everyday small people start loving, then maybe some day it will reach the top, and we will be able to help the world. We are all panic-stricken by the energy crisis now and the outlook for the future and I am sure we will all be listening to the TV and radio and heard the same old thing over and over again. All the talk in the world won't do any good who not try prayer. What do we have to lose?
Love to Mr. Editor and your readers.

Washington Window Commentary

By JOHN F. BARTON
WASHINGTON (UPI) — It may be little or no consolation to affluent citizens of the industrialized countries daily becoming acutely aware of their own shortages, but out in the remote Sahara Desert of Africa there are 25 million people who have it worse.
Their energy crisis is much more basic than fuel for such sophisticated machines as automobiles or furnaces. The energy they are short of is their own.
These people, members of nomadic tribes who were homeless by choice and now by necessity are victims of an even more severe drought that has swept through a six-nation area south of the Sahara, drying up wells and cracking the earth in a relentless and merciless grip.
The six countries — Chad, Mali, Mauritania, Niger, Senegal and Upper Volta — form a chain of malnutrition and human suffering that stretches 2,000 miles along the southern edge of the Sahara.
Mass Starvation
They are simple people who once lived off the land that now is falling off. Living quietly, some would say even backwardly, in a remote area, their mere existence is largely unnoticed by the rest of the world.
Faced with the specter of death by mass starvation, the Agency for International Development (AID) has launched a new foreign aid program it hopes will bring relief and awaken the world to the continued plight of these people.
The entire area faces a second year of drought that has ruined the crops and killed 40 per cent of all cattle, a devastating blow to the area's agriculture-based economy.
Maurice J. Williams, the deputy director of AID and the president's special coordinator for sub-Saharan Africa, said recently the $109 million in emergency food supplies provided by the United States last year averted mass famine in the area and saved millions of lives.
But Williams added: "The drought continues and the 25 million people in that area may be even more seriously affected by another disaster they might be totally unaware of — a devastating famine that could dry up foreign aid funds."
The $21 million that Williams has announced has already been approved by Congress and is under way. Whether it will be enough to meet anything but immediate needs to stave off starvation, only time will tell.
But for people whose fear is that tomorrow may never come, relief today is what is important. Tomorrow for the hungry is a luxury enjoyed only by the rich.

What Should We Bomb First?
The Nixon government's motives were viewed as either clouded or questionable by defense critics when last month, Defense Secretary James Schlesinger proposed we "re-target" some of our nuclear missiles aimed not at Soviet cities but at military targets.
The splendor of the idea will continue under debate. But there should be no purpose. The intent, I can say flatly, is to convey what is deemed a vital message to the Soviet Union, to the American people, to Western Europe and to all areas dependent upon our nuclear umbrella.
There is deep concern here, the given recent Russian progress and to convey to Russia and Western Europe the firm sense that the United States will not permit any Soviet nuclear advantage — real or perceived — to be gained in the uncertain future.
"Catch the Joy," a live action presentation of the fun of nose bugs, will be featured. Also will be "Dick Whittington and His Cat," a favorite folk tale for all ages and "The Music Box," a classic Laurel and Hardy comedy.
The program is about one hour long and is planned for children six years old and up.
Also during vacation week, there will be a story hour on Tuesday morning, Feb. 19 at 10 for children in kindergarten through second grade.

Time Ticks Along

LAURENCE MOSKOWITZ
GRANTSVILLE, Md. (UPI) — A 16-nose Westminster melody rang out as Olen Miller played another block of Honduras mahogany into his wood lathe.
"Chairs and tables don't take," said Miller, 81, whose retirement career as a clockmaker was launched by admiring friends. "Clocks do."
He was a metal pattern maker for Glenshaw Glass Co. Inc., before his retirement.
"A clock is something that is alive. It talks to you every minute. It keeps telling you that time is ticking along. And if you forget the ticking, then the bells remind you every 15 minutes."
As one of his finished grandfather clocks ticked closer to another chorus of chimes, Miller stopped his lathe and glanced at the several incomplete cabinets stationed throughout the small, coal-heated garage to which he commutes 80 miles to work each week from his home in Pittsburgh.
It Takes Time
"Making clocks takes choice wood, a solidly dependable movement and tools. Most of all, it takes time," he said.
It takes Miller about three weeks to make a grandfather clock. He machines all the wood himself on the six power tools he keeps in his workshop, behind a restaurant and curio shop where he displays his 83-inch tall timepieces after he has polished them with steel wool, applied three coats of lacquer and rubbed them down with lamb's wool.
The only parts of his clocks that he doesn't make are the movements themselves: eight-day clocks, powered by weights enclosed in gleaming, polished brass shells.
Miller imports the ornate, massive clock movements from Germany, but he assembles, installs and regulates the movements himself.
"I had the ambition to build a grandfather clock for myself," he said.
At that time I was making cupboards and chairs and church furniture," he said.
After some friends saw his first clock, they began asking him to build clocks for them.
"I got the blueprint of the style of clock my friends said they liked, and before I knew it I was selling them to people in Wisconsin, Michigan, West Virginia and Ohio."
National Recognition
Miller said his national recognition as a clockmaker came after he exhibited his timepieces, fashioned from solid cherry, Philippine mahogany and Spanish cedar, as well as the popular Honduras wood, at the Mountain State Art and Craft Fair in Ripley, W. Va.
"People from all over the country were asking me to make clocks for them. But then I could only work on the clocks in the evenings and on weekends," he said.
"I retired six years ago, but then again, you could say I just started on a new career."
He said he doesn't mind spending three weeks on each clock, "as long as people don't mind waiting a year or two for their clocks. I have 61 on order," he said.

District 9 Democrats

Caucus Losers Will Primary

The seven incumbent members of the Democratic Town committee who were defeated Jan. 29 in a District 9 (Kenney St. School) caucus have announced they will primary March 5. The district is allocated seven committee members.

The seven are: N. Charles Roggini, Paul B. Greenberg, Matt Moriarty Jr., Theresa M. Parla, Robert B. Price, Pascal Prignano and Mary A. Roy. Mrs. Parla, who announced the plan to primary, explained, "The state of seven feels their experience and record of service to the community would allow them to best represent the Democrats of District 9. They also feel that it is important that elected local officials be members of the town committee, to better respond to the needs of the community."

The seven who defeated them Jan. 29 are: Frank M. Stammer, Nicholas R. Jackson, Richard Prignano and Mary A. Roy. Mrs. Parla said, "We feel that a primary will give Democratic voters in District 9 a better opportunity to participate in the selection of their town committee members." The seven have taken out the necessary papers for the primary and each has paid a $15 filing fee, as required. They must obtain the signatures of 5 per cent of the 785 registered Democrats in the district - 39.

Woman's View

Gay Pauley

UPI Women's Editor
NEW YORK (UPI)—The problem of the battered child takes a new turn.

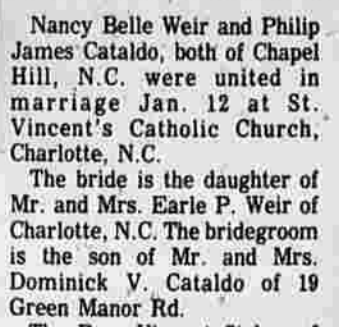

This time, it's the matter of innocent injury, rather than the angry, explosive and deliberate battering which a parent does and which has been of increasing concern among medical and legal authorities. "Don't rattle the baby," headlines the National Safety Council (NSC). Babies are more delicate than we realize and even a heavy-handed burping could damage permanent.

NSC quotes Caffey's writing in the current Good Housekeeping magazine. "The council, in its current newsletter from the women's department, also delves into effectiveness of the federal flame-retardant regulation for children's nightwear."

It's not a signal for parents to "sleep" on the job of safety, NSC says. It urges that parents study the sleepwear regulation, know its limitations, and exercise vigilance in selecting safe wardrobes.

The federal regulation covers only sleepwear in sizes 0 to 24, manufactured after last July 29. Pajamas, nightgowns and robes made before that time still may be sold legally. Further, NSC says, "the vast majority of children's garments are still not flame resistant and care must be taken to keep the youngster in the air, "riding the horse" on a group's spin, "cracking the whip," or somersaulting a baby by grasping its wrists from between the legs.

Cataldo-Weir

Nancy Belle Weir and Philip James Cataldo, both of Chapel Hill, N.C. were united in marriage Jan. 12 at St. Vincent's Catholic Church, Charlotte, N.C.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earle P. Weir of Charlotte, N.C. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dominick V. Cataldo of 19 Green Manor Rd.

The Rev. Vincent Stokes of St. Vincent's Church celebrated the nuptial Mass and performed the double-ring ceremony. The church was decorated with red poinsettias. Miss Marion Crawford of Chapel Hill, N.J. was organist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white malle jersey gown designed with Empire waist, beaded yoke and cuffs and chapel-length train. Her three-tiered veil of silk illusion was attached to a beaded headpiece. She carried a floral arrangement of three white orchids and assorted white flowers.

Miss Ellen Glendon of Trenton, N.J., the bride's cousin, was maid of honor. She wore a red jersey gown fashioned with Empire waist, scoop neckline and long sleeves. She carried a cedar spray entwined with red berries.

Bridesmaids were Miss Kathleen Absalom of Newburgh, N.Y.; Miss Virginia Cataldo of Manchester, the bridegroom's sister; Miss Diane Adkins of Chapel Hill, N.C.; and Mrs. Shirley Jenkins of Pittsboro, N.C. They wore gowns identical to that worn by the bride.

Christopher Stopps of Windsor Locks, the bridegroom's cousin was ring bearer. A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, Albert Gratia of Pittsboro, N.C.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip J. Cataldo

N.C. was best man. Ushers were Matthew Weir of Charlotte, N.C., the bride's brother; Dr. Randy Griggs of Chapel Hill, N.C.; Charles Stopps of Windsor Locks, the bridegroom's cousin; Dr. James Groce of Chapel Hill, N.C.

Mrs. Cataldo is employed as a registered nurse at North Carolina Memorial Hospital in Chapel Hill. Mr. Cataldo is employed as a respiratory therapist at North Carolina Memorial Hospital.

agreed and so did county officials. Ed Cochran, a member of the county legislature, said a good many consumer complaints had been received. It was reported that there had been difficulty getting skilled construction workers in the area. The responsibility for building inspection rests with the county. The developer has retained a control over design and architecture, but not construction inspection.

From the government's point of view, Harris stressed several points about dealing with a developer. He said regulations alone would not guarantee success for either the developer or the municipality.

He said it has to be made clear that the government will not be left holding the bag. The planning commission, he says, uses a lot of leverage on the developer and is reluctant to approve a subsequent stage of development if it feels that some stage of the last one is incomplete.

One of the controls involved is a requirement that the final development plan as approved by the planning authority becomes a part of the land records and any changes from that plan require a public hearing.

Another is the requirement preliminary plans for a wide area be submitted so that the planning authority is not asked to make decisions on limited areas without knowledge of how they fit into a wider picture.

Harris indicated he felt it is important that the developer be required early to have some non-residential development completed.

Harris said Columbia resulted in a net tax gain to the county. Similar statements were made for Reston, Va. and Montgomery Village, Md., the other two communities visited. Some in the Coventry group, however, were skeptical about the claim as applied to Montgomery Village, which is a wholly residential community.

One difficulty in making comparison arises from the fact that the State of Maryland builds the schools. The touring group saw a wide variety of housing styles and reactions to them were diverse. They ranged from boxy pre-fab undertaken in the military. Industrial or office workers could be helping in raising high school equivalency tests.

Retired persons could take non-credit courses. Another private group in Coventry could, under contract with the county, obtain services such as sales training programs or training to solve.

Another key proposal in the education center study is the formation of a consortium of area colleges for mutual benefit of Coventry residents. The consortium would enable townspeople to draw on a pool of participating colleges to provide educational programs in town.

Copies of the preliminary education center proposal are available at DevCo's Coventry office at Rts. 44A and 31.

Coventry Seminar

Tenzer said that the Hartford Process hiring plan was the James Rouse indicated that the plan for Hartford rehabilitation would include a new community. Rouse conceived the idea for a similar new community at Columbia, Md.

The concept of a new community, Tenzer said, dictates preservation of open space and prevention of urban sprawl and encroachment of parking lots.

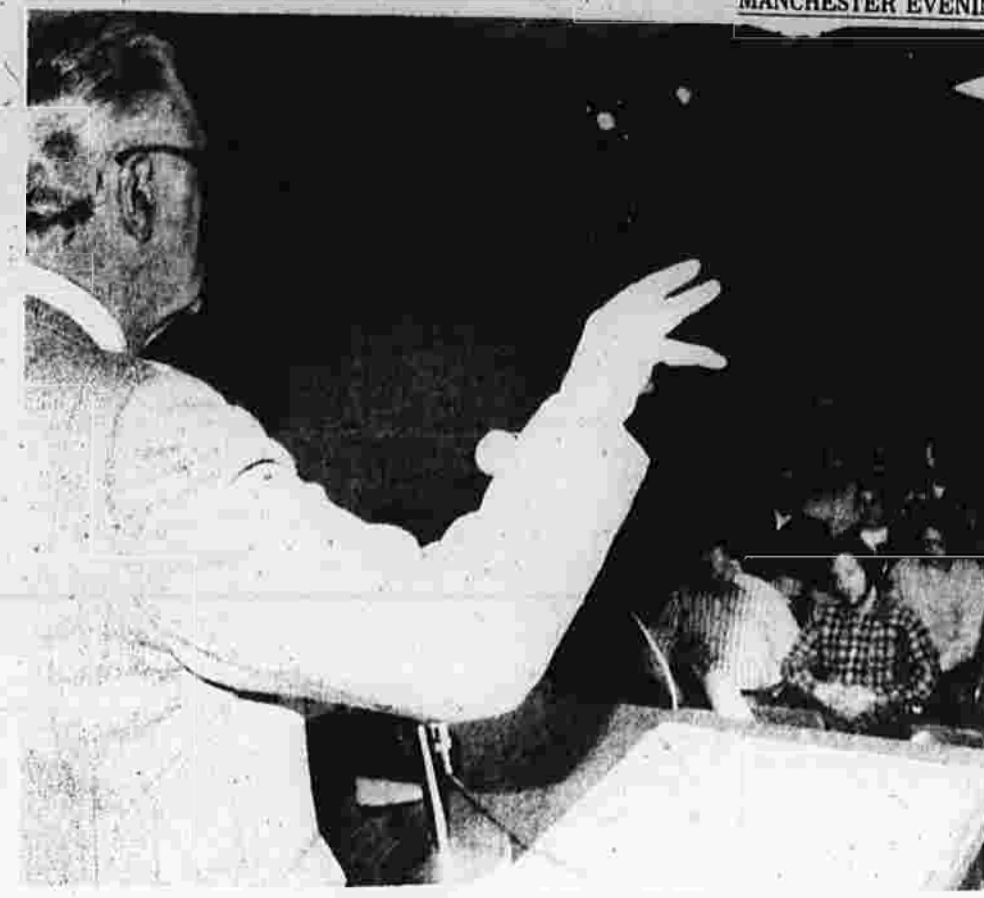

The dilemma facing Coventry residents, Tenzer said, was the question whether a new community - which might be good for the region - would be good for Coventry.

The "New Town Seminars," funded by a $45,000 federal grant, will feature outside experts with "new town" experience, Tenzer said. The seminars are planned to inform townspeople so they can make intelligent decisions about Hartford Process-DevCo plans for a new community in Coventry, he said.

Coventry Planners Study Lavitt Proposal

The Coventry Planning and Zoning Commission will consider the 100-lot Coventry Hills subdivision at its meeting tonight at 7:30 at the Town Hall board room.

Developer Mark Lavitt will attend the meeting to discuss the subdivision plans. The commission will also review the Bright Tavern Rd. and realignment of Merrow and Goose Lane Rds. These proposals were referred to the commission by the Town Council.

Ribicoff Wants

"the poor have scholarships and special grants, but the middle class have nothing — no help, no college, no opportunity. We would shortfall America's future by restricting the educational opportunity of the children of a middle class family."

He said he is making appearances throughout the state this week (during a Congressional recess) to learn what's troubling the people. "There's great uncertainty in the nation," he said. "People want to know if anyone's listening to them. I want to assure you — I'm listening. I've by these appearances I learn what problems people want their legislators to try to solve."

Asked which of the four candidates seeking the Democratic nomination for governor he is backing, he replied, "All four are friends of mine. All four are able and capable. Any one of them would make an excellent governor."

"I don't think it's right for me, as a political leader and senator to put his arm around the shoulders of one or another and say, 'This is my choice.' And it shouldn't be the decision of politicians in a smoke-filled room. My feeling is there will be a grass-roots support — a choice of the people. I will support that choice."

Ribicoff spent considerable time answering questions concerning the fuel situation.

"The whole thing is a mess," he said. "The Federal Energy Office has made so many promises, I'm skeptical of its latest that Connecticut would receive an emergency allocation of gasoline."

He criticized the administration's concept of ending the crisis by letting the price of gasoline rise.

"The concept is outrageous," he said. "The rich don't care and the poor suffer. If it keeps going like this, it's a disaster."

Nearly 800 Tour Police Facility

An open house Sunday from 1 to 4 at Manchester Police Headquarters as part of the observance of Crime Prevention Week drew between 600 and 800 area residents.

Guided tours of the facilities were provided and policemen from each division described the work.

"We were quite pleased with the response. It was greater than we anticipated," Lt. Robert Laman, head of the training division, said.

The open house Sunday was sponsored by the Exchange Club in cooperation with the Police Department.

That's why their taxes are so small here," he said. "If they paid the same tax as other United States corporations, they'd add an extra $4 billion a year to the treasury."

Ribicoff said he is pushing for the repeal of the tax credit now enjoyed by oil companies.

"That's why their taxes are so small here," he said. "If they paid the same tax as other United States corporations, they'd add an extra $4 billion a year to the treasury."

He said he is surprised Connecticut hasn't adopted the "Oregon Plan" of gasoline buying. Under the plan, gasoline purchases are made on alternate days — according to the last digit of a license plate.

"It's not the ultimate answer," said Ribicoff, "but it could bring order out of chaos and would at least end some of the confusion."

Asked by a student, "Who's in charge in Washington?" Ribicoff replied, "Nobody's in charge."

"The people have a right to be depressed," he said. "If the administration had been devoting as much time to the country's troubles as it has been devoting to what we know as Watergate, we'd be moving ahead. No — nobody's in charge."

Red Cross Helps Winegers

Life is beginning to look a little brighter for Mrs. Janet Wineger and her four children who lost most of their possessions in a fire Tuesday night at their home at 302 Adams St. Mrs. Elaine Sweet, director of the Manchester office of the American Red Cross, 243 E. Center St., has informed The Herald that her organization has provided bedding and clothing for the family. "While these are not all the items needed by the family, they will help," Mrs. Sweet said.

Accident Takes Three Lives

United Press International
At least three persons were killed in accidents over the weekend, including a 67-year-old Bristol man who apparently drowned in his bathtub. Two others died in traffic accidents. Dr. Alden W. Selman, medical examiner, said Paul E. Clavette probably died about 1 a.m. Sunday. Clavette was found after residents in the apartment complex where he lived complained of heat loss in the building. The building superintendent arrived about 3 p.m. and discovered water flowing under the door of his apartment, authorities said.

South Catholic Takes Over HCC Leadership, Superior Rebounding Keys First Place Battle

By Len Auster
Ever trying to stop a runaway locomotive? You may slow it down but putting the brakes on it is something else. South Catholic's basketball team was something else Saturday night at the University of Hartford, overwhelming HCC rival East Catholic, 64-47. The standing room only crowd of 2,200 saw the Hartford-based Rebels raise their HCC record to 21-2. South Catholic's record is 13-2 and East is 14-3. Both clubs have qualified for post-season play in the Class A Division.

Our big guys (Mauro and Eller) did a job tonight. We worked them extra hard lately and they came through as we knew they would," winning mentor Joe Reilly said. East, which had won the first meeting between the two clubs, 67-55, was paced by Joe Whelton's 24 points. Mauro's 10th point with 4:47 left in the second stanza gave him 1,000 for his career; only the third East Catholic player to do so. His total now reads 1,014. But, it wasn't enough as the next highest East player had just six points, that by Joe Martens and Ron Soucier.

With two losses in the conference, East will have to hope for someone else to beat South, to at least keep a share of the HCC crown. The Eagles are off until Friday night when they journey to Waterbury to take on Holy Cross High in a non-conference clash. In the preliminary, which had just as much excitement if not more than the varsity tilt, East's jayvee team won No. 17 in a row, beating South, 50-47.

Cougars Had Their Guns Loaded And Result Was an Easy Shootout

By Chris Blake
The guns were loaded Saturday afternoon at Cheney Tech as Manchester Community College showed plenty of ammunition in shooting down CCCC's foe Middlesex Community College, 113-83. The win was the Cougars' sixth straight and pushes their overall mark to 15-4, including a 9-3 lead in league play. Mel Ward of Middlesex carried the most accurate weapon, hitting on an assortment of shots (16 for 27 from the floor) and making 15 of 17 foul tries for 47 points. Ward's awe-inspiring performance shone brighter because of the game-high 17 rebounds he gathered.

The Cougars finally hit the century mark at 2:13 on a John D'Agosta three-point play for a 102-75 count. The 7-14 losers bettered the Cougars in one aspect, foul shooting. Middlesex was 21 of 25 for 54 per cent while MCC was 17 for 25 for 68 per cent. Floor percentage was a different story with the Cougars shooting 55 per cent compared to 41 per cent for the Middletown-based school. The 6-4 Ward had half of his team's 54 rebounds while the Cougars carried the boards for 30 caroms. Moore, Iverson and John Dishaw had eight rebounds apiece. Iverson also matched his average of five steals per game.

UConn Hopeful of NIT Bid
"I just hope that New England will place three teams in the NIT (National Invitational Tournament) at Madison Square Garden in March, just as it did a year ago. I just hope that we have enough W's (wins) to get in," Des Rowe told a dozen newsmen and as many hangers-on Saturday afternoon. Minutes before, Rowe had seen his UConn basketball team lose an 11-point halftime advantage and then scramble back to gain a tie in regulation and win out in overtime against Massachusetts.

Strong Finish Nets Mat Win
Walking a tightrope to victory Saturday was the Manchester High wrestling team over Bristol Eastern, 2-2 in the CCHL. Victory was provided in the last three weight classes by Brendon Duffy, Rick Letts and heavyweight Craig Bushey. After the match, the first three matches, junior Lee Snuffer opened the locals' offensive by beating Chris Deas, 4-2. Junior Skip O'Dell maintained his unbeaten streak, pinning Emil Veera.

Praise for UMass
"Massachusetts is a great team. They are a fantastic team. They will never beat themselves. We didn't want to foul them. They are one of the best foul shooting teams in the country."
UMass did well at the line, hitting 16 of 20 but the UConn were even better with 15 bullets in 17 attempts. "To beat Massachusetts is a super win. We've had some big before, but this is a super win," the winning mentor added.

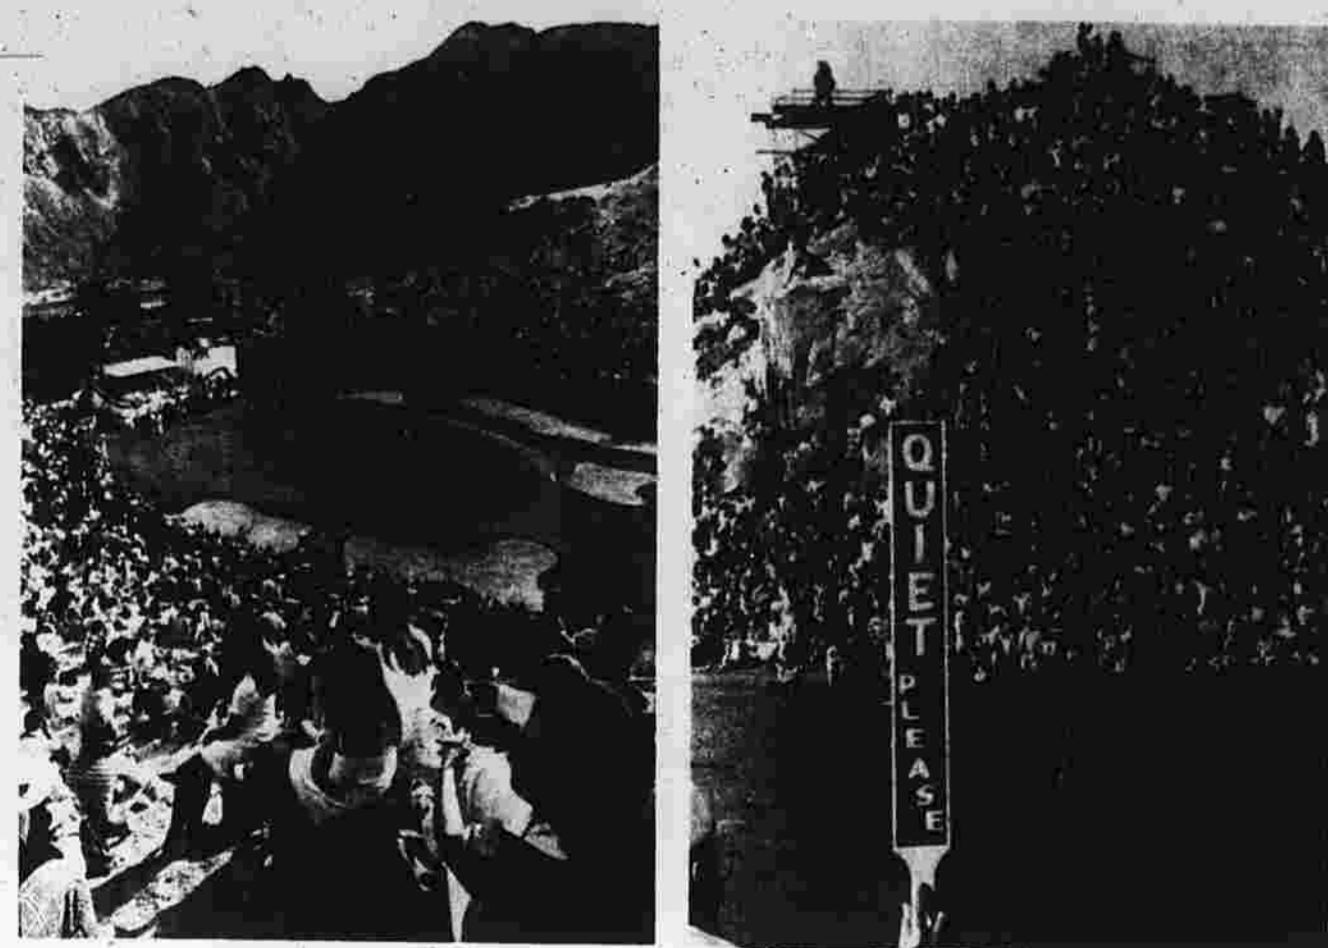

Moran Sets Bennet Mark By Recording 48 Points
Shattering the school scoring mark was Brian Moran as he registered 48 points leading UConn's basketball team to an 85-73 win over Windham. Moran's point total eclipses the old standard of 44 set by Mark Demko.

Two Different Angles from 18th Green at Palm Springs

Green on Birdie Spree To Wrap Up Hope Golf

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — Maybe now Hubert Green won't have to worry about anyone mistaking him for Bert Greene.

All it took was a charging two-stroke victory over Bert Green in the $100,000 Bob Hope Desert Classic, or so Hubert hopes, to clear up something that has been bothering him for a long time.

Green won three previous tournaments but he labored on the fringes as far as the public was concerned. That's because he usually was the right man in the wrong place at the wrong time.

Sunday, he had all the audience he needed as he birdied four of the last five holes at Sunny Indian Valley for a seven under 65 and a two-shot victory over the veteran Yancey. A crowd of 34,500, most of it seemed congregated at the 18th green, plus a national television audience saw Hubert run down a short birdie putt to win the Hope Classic.

"I've won before," said the 27-year-old native of Birmingham, Ala., "but never on television. So this victory was pretty important to me. I've had a fairly decent record for a man only in his fourth year on the tour but no one knows me. There is nothing like television exposure. I'm sure a lot of people now know I'm Hubert Green and not Bert Greene."

Hubert, who won more than $114,000 last year plus the B.C. Open and Tallahassee Open, picked up a check for $32,046 for his Hope victory and now has 1974 earnings of $47,386.

His closing 65, which wiped out a three-stroke lead by Yancey, gave him a 90-hole score of 19 under par 341.

Yancey closed with a 70 for 343 and won $18,267, while John Mahafey, another youngster without much of a following, came out of the pack with a 67 to finish at 347 and win $11,377.

Johnny Miller, who won three straight tournaments at the start of the year and was still out there charging Sunday although he couldn't make a birdy putt, wound up in a tie for fourth with Mike McCullough, Bob Murphy and Mark Hayes. Each won $6,240 and Miller picked up an additional $639 in pro-am money to go over the $100,000 figure in only the sixth event of the year. Miller's exact earnings stand at $100,943.

Arnold Palmer, who won here last year to snap an 18-month slump, never was a factor this year as he finished far back in the pack at $382, 21 shots behind Green. Still, though, his gallery was as big as if not bigger than the ones that followed Green and Yancey.

Green made up a three-stroke deficit by sinking birdy putts of 10, four and three feet from the third through the fourth holes to draw even with Yancey. They battled on even terms until the 14th when Green got off another streak of three birdies and it was all over.

Now, the tour moves up the road to Los Angeles but they'll have to play without Green, who is going home to Birmingham to attend the Alabama Hall of Fame banquet.

"They asked me to sit at the head table," Green said proudly.

Obviously, he doesn't have any identification problems with the home folks. Maybe now he won't with everyone else, too.

Billie Jean No. 1 In Net Rankings

RANCHO LA COSTA, Calif. (UPI) — Billie Jean King is the top-ranked woman tennis player in the country while Jimmy Connors and Stan Smith share the men's top spot, according to the United States Lawn Tennis Association.

USTA rankings approved Saturday put Mrs. King ahead of 19-year-old Chris Evert and third-ranked Rosemary Casals while Smith and Connors were followed by Arthur Ashe and Tom Gorman.

Smith held the top spot in 1971 and 1972. During this year's ranking period, he won the French International, the Stockholm Indoor and six events on the 1973 World Championship Tennis tour. Connors was ranked No. 3 a year ago.

Rounding out the top 10 women's rankings were, in order, Miss Casals, Nancy Gunter, San Angelo, Tex.; Julie Heldman, Houston; Pam Teeguarden, Los Angeles; Kris Kemmer, San Diego; Mona Schallau, Iowa City, Iowa; Janet Newberry, La Jolla, Calif.; and Valerie Ziegenfuss, Mission Viejo, Calif.

Following Gorman in the men's rankings were Cliff Richey, San Angelo, Tex.; Charles Pasarell, San Antonio, P.R.; Marty Riessen, Chicago; Erik van Dillen, San Mateo, Calif.; Brian Gottfried, Fort Lauderdale; and Bob Lutz, Sausalito, Calif.

The rankings, based on play from Oct. 1, 1972, to Sept. 30, 1973, were approved at the USTA's 83rd annual meeting here.

Melville Defaults To Chris

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI) — Kerry Melville was "disappointed" she had to make Chris Evert a $10,000 winner by default because of a fractured toe, but she says she is glad the accident won't keep her out of any more action.

Miss Evert took the $10,000 first prize in the $48 Women's Tennis Classic Sunday after her Australian opponent reported she couldn't play because she had broken a toe.

The accident happened Saturday night, Miss Melville said, when she stumbled in the darkness of her motel room and hit her toe against a chair.

"I would have liked to have played," she said later. "I was disappointed."

Miss Evert took on former Wimbledon champion Althea Gibson instead in a hastily arranged exhibition game, and won easily 6-1, 6-4.

But Melville, who took the $4,817 $7,500 runner-up check, said the mishap will not keep her from other tournaments.

Singles Crown To Newcombe

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI) — Top-seeded John Newcombe captured the singles title in the $50,000 Raymond W.C.T. classic Sunday and then teamed with Owen Davidson for the doubles crown in the tournament.

Newcombe's mastery had never been seriously challenged in the early rounds of competition here and the Sydney, Australia, veteran Sunday easily defeated Russia's Alex Metreveli, 6-0, 7-5 for the $10,000 singles first prize.

"I thought I played as well as I'm capable of playing," Newcombe said. "My goal for this year is to win the W.C.T. championship in Dallas and I think I'm off to a good start."

Although Metreveli fought Newcombe to a tie-breaker in the second set, Newcombe kept the match from going into a third set by downing the Soviet journalism student 7-3 in points.

But Metreveli, who last week called a news conference to protest alleged unfair press treatment of Soviet bloc players, was no match for the powerful Newcombe.

"I lost my timing at 4-0 in the first set," Newcombe said. But the fact remained that he ran through the first four games against Metreveli.

Newcombe praised his opponent saying, "For the rest of the match I couldn't get my first serve in and that's a problem against a player like Metreveli who has such a good service return."

Teaming with countryman Davidson, they defeated Clark Graebner of New York and Charlie Pasarell of Puerto Rico, 4-6, 6-3, 6-4.

Dixon to Detroit

DETROIT (UPI) — The Detroit Wheels of the new World Football League signed 13th round draft choice Daniel R. Dixon, 23, of Boise State University. Dixon, a six-foot-one, 225-pound offensive guard, was all-conference in the Big Sky Conference.

Tests Planned

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Billy Cunningham, the American Basketball Association's Player of the Year last season, was to undergo tests and possible surgery today for repair of a congenital kidney package.

Pearson Gets Pole For Daytona 500

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — David Pearson will start next Sunday's Daytona 500 race at the pole — the 20th time he has started in that position in a super speedway, and he will be looking for his first win in the world's richest stock car race.

Jipcho Debuts

NEW YORK (UPI) — Kenyan Ben Jipcho, world recordholder in the 3,000-meter steeplechase and the second fastest miler ever (3:52), has joined the professional International Track Association and will debut in the tour's season opener at Long Island's Nassau Coliseum Friday.

Kings Had Excuse To Lose But Didn't

NEW YORK (UPI) — As easy as it sometimes is to make an excuse, it's still a lot less painful to simply go out and win.

The Los Angeles Kings had a perfect excuse to lose on Sunday afternoon when they stumbled into Atlanta's Omni for a nationally televised game against the Flames.

They hadn't even arrived in Atlanta until 3 o'clock that morning following a rugged Saturday night affair in St. Louis, which they won 2-1, leaving them with just a few hours sleep before taking to the ice again.

Instead of giving up, the Kings went out and played near-perfect hockey for two periods. They scored on their first two shots, driving Atlanta goalie Phil Myre out of the game in less than six minutes, and later added a short-handed goal by Butch Goring and a penalty shot goal by Juhä Widing.

After taking a 4-0 lead into the final period, Los Angeles settled for a 6-3 victory that stretched its winning streak to four games. In the process, the Kings climbed past Atlanta into fourth place in the West Division of the National Hockey League, just a single point behind St. Louis.

"It often happens that way," Los Angeles Coach Bob Pulford said in reference to his club's inspired play following the near-sleepless night. "Sometimes it even works to your advantage. If you come off a victory as we did, you can really be charged up."

St. Louis further contributed to the Kings' profitable weekend by dropping a 4-2 decision to the New York Rangers Sunday night. In other games, Phil Esposito notched his 47th goal and 52nd assist to power Boston to a 4-0 victory over Minnesota, Philadelphia beat Montreal 3-1, Chicago beat Pittsburgh 5-3 and Vancouver beat Buffalo 5-2.

Whalers' First Place Edge Cut Down to Three Points

NEW YORK (UPI) — After setting the pace for most of the season, the defending World Hockey Association champion New England Whalers suddenly find their hold on first place in jeopardy.

New England dropped a 5-2 decision to the streaking Minnesota Fighting Saints Sunday afternoon and had their East Division lead sliced to three points when the Quebec Nordiques edged the Edmonton Oilers 4-3 at night.

In addition, the third place Toronto Toros overcame the Jersey Knights 5-4 to close within four points of the top. Elsewhere, the Chicago Cougars beat the Los Angeles Sharks 4-2, the Winnipeg Jets gained a 2-2 tie against the Houston Aeros.

Lakers' Reign May Be at End, Warriors Take Over Top Berth

NEW YORK (UPI) — Rick Barry and Jeff Mullins have put the Los Angeles Lakers in a precarious position.

Barry and Mullins put on a brilliant shooting exhibition Sunday night, combining for 66 points as the Golden State Warriors rolled to a 121-105 victory over the Phoenix Suns. The win moved the Warriors a half-game ahead of Los Angeles, which lost 98-86 to Chicago, in the Pacific Division race.

With three hot teams—Milwaukee, Chicago and Detroit—in the Midwest, only the Pacific champion will make the playoffs this season. Los Angeles has participated in post-season play in each of the 13 years since moving west from Minneapolis but the departure of Bill Chamberlain to the American Basketball Association and recurring injuries to star Jerry West may mean the end for the Lakers.

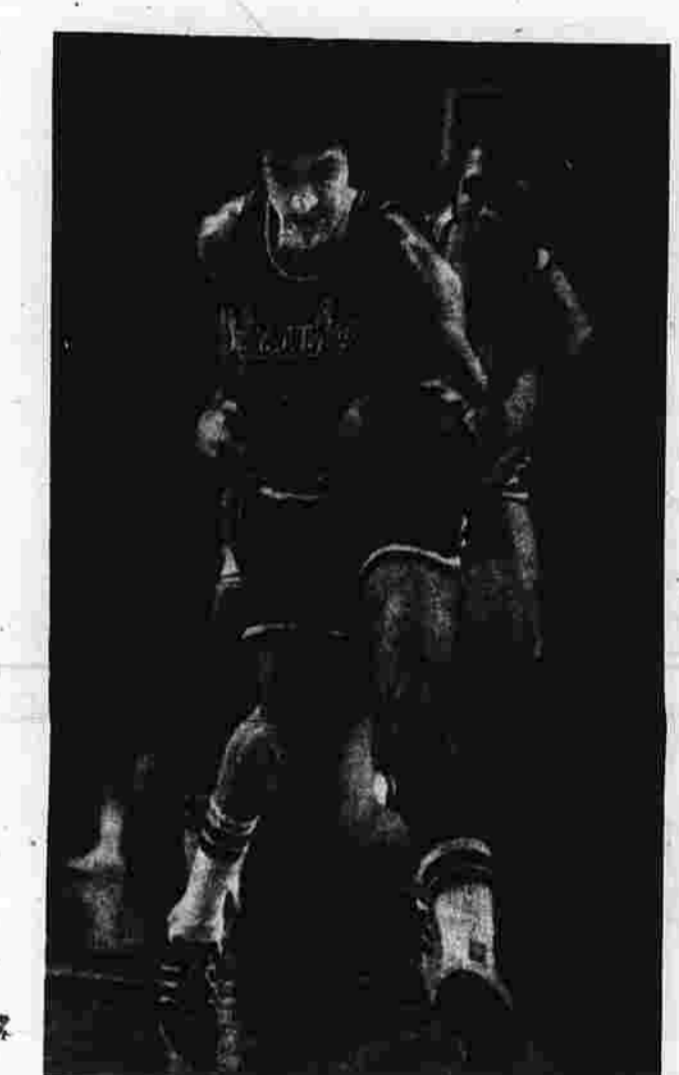

Barry scored 30 points, which included 6-of-8 shots in the first quarter when the Warriors moved to a 32-23 lead, and Mullins had 26, including 10 in the third quarter on 10-of-12 field goals, a Memorial Coliseum record.

In other NA games Sunday, Milwaukee beat Boston 95-86, Philadelphia edged Capital 95-94, Cleveland upset Buffalo 125-121, Houston defeated Portland 112-106 and Seattle whipped Kansas City-Omaha 119-103.

Bulls 96, Lakers 86
Bob Love scored 30 points to lead Chicago past Los Angeles for the first time in four games this season. The Bulls paced to a 30-18 lead in the first period, boosted it to 23 points and then held off a fourth-quarter rally. Gail Goodrich led the Lakers with 24, 16 in the second half.

Rockets 112, Trail Blazers 106
Rudy Tomjanovich had 29 points and Mike Newlin had 26, including eight points in a three-minute stretch of the last quarter, to lead Houston past Portland. John Johnson scored 27 and Sidney Wicks 26 for the Blazers.

Sonics 119, Kings 103
Spencer Haywood scored 24 points and Dick Gibbs 22 to carry Seattle past the Kings. They combined for 41 points in the third quarter to break open the game. Nate Williams had 16 leads the Kings, who lost Coach Phil Johnson in the first quarter with two technicals.

Jabbar Gets Revenge As Bucks Beat Celtics

PROVIDENCE, R. I. (UPI) — Kareem Abdul-Jabbar has his revenge.

Jabbar, who was as helpless defensively as a 7-4 center could be last week when Boston pulled out a one-point victory against his Milwaukee team, dominated in every aspect Sunday as the Bucks ripped the Celtics 95-86 in a nationally televised game that was blacked out locally.

Last week, Dave Cowens had 28 points in the comeback 105-104 win and stole the game for Boston. On Sunday, Jabbar had 28 and a more important 21 rebounds against the Celtics, who had shooting problems early in the game because of an effective Milwaukee defense.

"Our defense was super in the first half," said Bucks' Coach Larry Costello. "although we got into a running game with them in the last few minutes" when Boston closed to within seven after trailing by 20.

"Oscar Robertson did a great job on John Havlicek in the first half," said Costello, noting Havlicek had only two of his 18 points in the first 24 minutes.

"But Kareem was the key to our victory. He played tough on defense all game and had three key blocks in the last few minutes," Costello said. Jabbar's rebounding and blocking really was the difference. Compare, for example, Jabbar's 32-point, yet defenseless effort in Boston's win last Thursday night.

Hannum Protests ABA Defeat

NEW YORK (UPI) — San Antonio lost its first two games with George Gervin on its side so one in the ABA West complained very much.

But when the Spurs beat Denver 99-90 Sunday night with the help of Gervin's four points and two rebounds in the last two minutes, Rocket Coach Alex Hannum was not about to stay silent.

Actually Hannum filed a protest as soon as Gervin entered the game with 5:34 left in the third period. He claimed Gervin, who last week was allowed to play for San Antonio for 10 days by a federal judge before a final ruling on the controversial sale from Virginia, was an ineligible player.

In other games, Kentucky beat Virginia 122-116, New York routed Memphis 121-91, Carolina edged Indiana 96-93, San Antonio downed Denver 99-90 and Utah whipped San Diego 120-107.

Vernon Briefs

The Vernon Board of Education will meet today at 7:30 p.m. at the Skinner Road School in conjunction with the PTO meeting of that school.

Also to be discussed will be teacher tenure contracts and rules concerning field trips. Dr. Raymond Ramsdell, superintendent of schools, will explain both.

Daniel Woolwich, chairman of the curriculum committee, will have four items to explain: Bus safety, Spanish and French programs at the Middle School, television and photography course at the high school, and the high school evening hours for the library.

Following is the business meeting, Paul Geyer from the House of Glass, Clinton will demonstrate the art of glass blowing.

CROP Walk
An organizational meeting for persons interested in recruiting walkers for the "Walk for the Hungry" will be held in May at 10 a.m. in Union Congregational Church, Rockville.

This will be the third annual walk for the tri-town area of Vernon, Tolland and Ellington. The money raised will go to Community Response to Oversee Poverty (CROP).

CROP is a branch of Church World Service. Frank Hawes of Woodland St., Rockville is chairman of this year's walk. Each person participating secures sponsors who pay them much for each mile they walk. The entire walk will cover 15 miles.

CROP does not receive grants from denominations and does not seek gifts from within congregations but rather it provides a channel through which church persons can help with others to help help hunger.

Money raised is used to provide emergency relief for times of disaster. The money is spent in the United States and five other continents.

LOSE 10-20-30 POUNDS! Easy To Lose Lbs. Fast With New Vitamin 'E' Diet
HOLLYWOOD (Special) New scientific discoveries have produced a Vitamin E diet that quickly works wonders on overweight people, and reportedly is gaining great popularity across the country with glowing reports still eating almost as much as you want.

Those who follow the simple Vitamin E diet report an average loss of at least a pound a day and even more without exercise and starvation. Nutritionists' files are bulging with happy testimonials from formerly overweight people who are now trim and slim again. Best of all, you can still eat almost as much as you want of the "forbidden foods" like steak, chicken, fish, saucers, gravies, bacon & eggs and still lose weight.

Chewable (candy-like) vitamin E tablets, as used in the diet plan, contain the scientific combination of ingredients that quickly curbs and controls the appetite, under Article II, Section 7, Paragraph D of the Zoning Regulations, and that to good health.

The use of the new Vitamin E Diet tablets and foods registered in the plan will help your body use up excess fat. According to recent clinical test, a person who is deficient in Vitamin E or Protein "will double the speed of fat utilization" with the use of Vitamin E.

E-DIET AVAILABLE
To get a copy of this highly successful diet and E Tablets, send $5.00 for 10 day supply (or $7.00 for 30 day supply) or $10.00 for 90 day supply.

OWNING BOARD OF APPEALS
Bernard R. Johnson, Chairman, will meet Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Senior Citizens Center. All members are reminded to bring a can of fruit.

NOTICE
The Zoning Board of Appeals will hold public hearings on Monday, February 25, 1974, starting at 7:30 p.m. in the Board Room, 40 West Building to hear and consider the following petitions: STATE HEARING ALSO.

Health Plans Discussed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — No new taxes will be required to finance the Nixon administration's $5.8 billion voluntary national health insurance plan, the secretary of Health, Education and Welfare said Sunday.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., sponsor of a free health insurance plan the administration claims will cost more than $80 billion, said he is willing to compromise if the administration makes "some adjustment."

HEW Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger and Kennedy debated the issue in separate network interviews. Weinberger was on NBC's Meet the Press and Kennedy was on CBS' Face the Nation.

The cost, quality and availability of care under the competing plans are the main issues. Weinberger said the administration plan would cost $5.8 billion in new federal plus an additional $1 billion in state outlays.

"If a mother has a sick child and picks up the phone, there is nothing in that bill that is going to make sure that there is a doctor at the other end of it rather than an answering service," he said.

Winter Carnival Weekend Theme
Mickey Mouse as the Sorcerer's Apprentice, sculptured in ice and snow, evokes a frosty magic for the 84th edition of the famed Dartmouth College Winter Carnival this weekend, the oldest collegiate winterfest in the land. This year the carnival was fashioned around the theme of "The Wonderful World of Disney." Skiers pass Mickey enroute to the ski slope adorned with snow just in time for the weekend festivities. Meskill Budget Getting Democratic Scrutiny
HARTFORD (UPI) — Democrats are expected to challenge the budget of Gov. Thomas J. Meskill in the state legislature. A similar bill was defeated by the heavily Republican legislature last year.

The federal revenue sharing funds in Connecticut have amounted to $54.3 million over a two-year period. By the end of June, when the current fiscal year ends, only $27.7 million will have been spent and the remainder will amount to $26.6 million.

Food Prices To Increase

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Consumers can expect higher prices on almost everything from beef to beans in 1974, but there should be no severe shortages, a top Agriculture Department economist says.

Dr. Don Paarlberg, director of agricultural economics, said that prices for beef and pork would be "at present levels or higher" for the remainder of this year, but dairy products would be short-forty percent higher.

Steele March 9 Guest Of Lincoln Day Dinner

Second District Cong. Robert H. Steele, R-Vernon, will be the featured speaker March 9 when Manchester Republicans hold their Lincoln Day dinner.

Robert H. Steele will be the featured speaker March 9 when Manchester Republicans hold their Lincoln Day dinner.

The event will be at the Colony Room, 155 Shillineau Ave., with a social hour at 6:30 p.m. and dinner at 7:30. Dancing will follow. The date for the event was pushed forward to fit the schedule of the speaker. Steele is being mentioned for U.S. senator or, in the event Gov. Thomas Meskill doesn't seek re-election, for governor. Meskill's and Steele's plans may be resolved near the time of the March 9 dinner-dance.

Co-chairmen are Wally Irish Jr. and Harriet Haslett, with Elinor Haslam in charge of arrangements; Elsa Dobkin, tickets; and Anita Murphy, publicity.

South Windsor Sen. Odegard Conducts Comment Session Today

JUDY KUEHNEL

South Windsor State Sen. Dave Odegard, R-Fourth District, will provide a comment session to the public of South Windsor tonight in the Council Chambers at the Town Hall, from 6:30 to 8:30.

The comment sessions afford anyone within the district the opportunity to offer complaints or suggestions concerning any aspect of state government, or ask any questions they may have.

Sen. Odegard feels that the comment sessions give him "a chance to stay in touch with the real world, and to hear what people are concerned about."

Sen. Odegard welcomes letters, calls or visitors at any time but has found that many people prefer to use the "office hours" provided by these sessions.

The sessions will be completely informal and no question or opinion should be considered inappropriate.

The Wapping Community Church Women will hold an executive board meeting tonight at 8 at the home of Mrs. Marian Hollowell, 125 Valley View Dr.

An Ash Wednesday Lenten Service will be held Feb. 27. The program will include a potluck supper at 6:30 p.m. for the entire family.

A short service will follow with family communion and hymn singing. The worship service will be led by Evelyn Hight assisted by the Harfields and Kaesers. George Hawkins will lead the hymn singing.

All members of the families can partake of communion. Women's Club will hold its monthly business meeting tonight at 7:45 at the Eli Terry School.

Hostesses for the evening are Mrs. Leonard Black and Mrs. John Nidolo. The program will be at 7:30 at Cooper Hall of South United Methodist Church.

Taking on New Exterior Look

St. James Church, which will observe its 100th anniversary in 1976, has a new look these days. The work of applying new aluminum siding to the exterior of the church, which began last October, is in its final stages, according to the Rev. Msgr. Edward J. Reardon, pastor of the church. The work is being done by the Rossi Co. of Wethersfield at a cost of $35,000.

Paul Grobert, Manchester attorney, has been named a counsel to the General Assembly's Democratic minority. The minority's other counsel are Robert Satter and former State Rep. Peter Gillies.

Grobert, a former two-term state representative, was clerk to the House of Representatives from 1967 through 1972.

Sixth District Cong. Ella Grasso, D-Windsor Locks, will speak to the Manchester Democratic Town Committee March 1 at 7 p.m. in the Municipal Building Hearing Room.

Her appearance will be her request, to acquaint the committee members of her position on state issues. She is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor.

Mrs. Grasso will leave Washington, D.C. in the afternoon. She will speak in East Hartford at about 8:30 p.m. Her last appearance in Manchester was Feb. 2 at the annual dinner-dance of the Democratic Women's Club of Manchester.

Endorsed Jan. 29 to the new 80-member Democratic Town Committee was Frank J. McConville, 49 Keener St. He is a Manchester native who moved to Seymour several years ago and now has returned. While in Seymour, he served as a town selectman.

The Democratic caucus has cost the town committee just under $196 to date, with a few more bills anticipated. All costs of a party caucus are borne by the party.

Incidentally, speaking of President Nixon's promise Jan. 30 there won't be a recession in the United States this year, one is reminded of what the late President Truman said.

Hebron School Board Expects $10,526 Budget Deficit

NANCY DRINKUTH
The Hebron School Board expects a budget deficit of $10,526 for the 1974-75 school year, according to a report presented to the board on Feb. 11.

The deficit is the result of a combination of factors, including a 12 percent increase in the cost of gasoline, a 10 percent increase in the cost of electricity, and a 15 percent increase in the cost of food.

The board also expects a 10 percent increase in the cost of maintenance and a 15 percent increase in the cost of salaries.

The board is expected to vote on the budget on Feb. 12. If approved, the deficit will be covered by a combination of cuts in expenditures and an increase in the mill rate.

Excludes Pay Increases Under Negotiation

By JUNE TOMPKINS
The Board of Education last night adopted a proposed budget of $11,900,000 for the fiscal year 1974-75.

The proposed budget reflects an increase of 7.7 per cent, or $850,000 more than the current budget of $11,050,000.

There is a misstatement in the budget proposal, the board made it clear that the proposed 7.7 per cent increase does not include salary adjustments.

Other than their normal increase, the board will include salary adjustments for teachers and administrators.

The board also expects a 10 percent increase in the cost of maintenance and a 15 percent increase in the cost of salaries.

The board is expected to vote on the budget on Feb. 12. If approved, the deficit will be covered by a combination of cuts in expenditures and an increase in the mill rate.

The Manchester committee for the St. Patrick's Day parade will have an open meeting Thursday at 8 p.m. at the Army and Navy Club.

The parade is scheduled for March 16 at 11 a.m. in Hartford. The committee, hoping to assemble a large parade contingent from Manchester, has asked all organizations, including the fire and police departments, Boy and Girl Scouts, veterans and civic groups and local businessmen, to attend Thursday's meeting.

Last year, the Manchester committee won the "Best Participating Town" trophy at the parade.

The committee is also seeking floats for the parade and will accept any floats from Manchester's Sequoianque Parade that are still of interest on savings, payable monthly. It's "The Money Place." Open daily 10:30 - 6. Thursday nights 8 P.M. Tel. 228-9471.

Workers Shocked by Closure Announcement

By DOUG BEVINS
The usual joking and laughter wasn't there, many employees had long faces, and production seemed to be slowing down.

At 9 a.m. Monday, Iona's 400 employees - about three-quarters of them women - were told by company chairman William Sleith that the company was closing the Iona plant.

"It was like a morgue today," said Mrs. LaMesa of East Hartford, who has worked at Iona for 17 years.

Mrs. LaMesa, who celebrated her birthday Monday, said the announcement that Iona would start phasing out operations Feb. 22 was "a birthday present I didn't expect."

When the workers were called into the company cafeteria Monday morning, some of them suspected "something was wrong," said Mrs. LaMesa.

"We thought we were being laid off," said Mrs. LaMesa, a 44-year-old employee.

Summing up comments made by many employees, Genevieve Huginski of Broad Brook said, "We were shocked."

"Not only were the employees shocked, almost all of them were sad, and some were worried about finding new jobs, even though they were the company."

The large percentage of women working at Iona apparently was not a surprise, said Huginski.

"I've heard that Iona was a breadwinner's plant," she said. "Expected to be hurt the most by Iona's closing are the men and women whose only income comes from employment at Iona."

Some of the women employees said they'll probably stop working when Iona's doors close, but others said they'll have to find another job - not an easy prospect with the present economy - to help support their families.

Very few of Iona's employees were bitter about Monday's announcement. Most of them spoke favorably about Sleith, who founded Iona in 1947. A minority of workers criticized General Signal Corp., which bought the company in 1969.

"Bill Sleith was all choked up when he told us about the shutdown," Mrs. Huginski said. She suggested that if Sleith still owned Iona he could have worked out something to keep the plant open.

"I felt bad for Mr. Sleith," said Pauline Bourget, a lead lady on the food mixer assembly line.

Many of Iona's employees grew up with the company - Over the years they saw Sleith develop the firm into a leading manufacturer of mixers, blenders, can openers, shoe polishers, hair dryers, and electric knives.

"It was terrible to see how he (Sleith) hurt," Josephine LaChance of East Hartford said.

Sleith was crying when he made the Monday morning announcement, one employee said.

Sleith was quoted as saying that he wished his wife could have been with him to make the announcement. His wife, Iona, was recently hospitalized.

"It's a good place to work," Dennis Courtney of West Windsor said. "They were good to me," he said.

All the employees apparently enjoyed working with Sleith, and nobody had a bad word about him.
