Arab Diplomats Meet With Nixon

Nation To Tap Gas Stockpiles

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The government is prepared to tap the nation's gasoline stockpiles to ease the auto fuel shortages that are very close now, a razor thin edge at this time. It could go either way.
 Other senators predicted during floor debate Monday that Americans would be rationing and acting like animals soon if Congress doesn't act quickly on a solution to the current gasoline shortage.
 According to the Federal Energy Office's Petroleum Energy chief William E. Simon is expected to order oil firms to draw down on their gasoline inventories rather than, as some have urged, shift gasoline from states with an excess to states with shortages.
 Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., meanwhile, predicted today's vote on the much-

State Buying Non-Embargoed Foreign Gasoline

HARTFORD (UPI)—Connecticut will be able to purchase eight million gallons of foreign petroleum on a one-time basis under an emergency agreement.
 Connecticut Energy Administrator Eckenrodt C. Beck said Monday the Connecticut Energy Emergency Agency worked with the independent Connecticut Petroleum Association to arrange for importation of the petroleum. It would be available for distribution in March, Beck said.
 "Connecticut will become the first state to arrange such a spot-market purchase for independent dealers," Beck said.
 "This gasoline is not being purchased on either the grey or black markets," Beck said, "it was processed by a European refinery and is a non-embargoed product."
 It will be a one-time shipment, but the CEEA is working on other deals for future cargoes. Beck said the gas will be sold by independent stations in the hardest pressed areas in the state.
 The energy chief added that a price per gallon has not yet been established for the spot-market gas.
 Governor Thomas Meskill has petitioned the federal energy office for a redistribution of the prices of gasoline sold by independents," he said.
 "If the petition is successful, the price at the pump of this gasoline will be competitive with prices at the pumps of major oil company service stations."
 Scheduling arrangements were made Monday to ship the petroleum, which is a mixture of regular and premium gas.

Washington's Birthday Sales Reports Mixed

Washington's Birthday Sales yesterday was generally considered by most businessmen to be just another good average business day.
 Most stores did not have the great "one-shot" business on Monday because the special sale was carried over from last Saturday.
 "Friday and Saturday were our busiest," said David Anderson, manager of World's He shoes, located on the corner of the city.
 "We've been successful holding it in check so far," he said, "it's there."
 Matties said any action will be announced ahead of time to allow the public to prepare. No action will be taken against emergency vehicles, he said.

MCC Council Urges More Funds For Community College System

By FLOYD LARSON
 The future of the state's community college system was very much on the minds of the executive board of the Manchester Community College Regional Council at a Monday night.
 The council's mission is to guide the State Board of Trustees to obtain the money needed to obtain its requested budgets for the coming term.
 The trustees had requested $2.4 million for operation of the 12 colleges but Gov. Thomas Meskill's budget presented to the legislature calls for $2.5 million.
 In reviewing the overall community college budget request, James Nakos, chairman of East Hartford, noted the governor had also recommended only $2 million in capital funding for the system as compared to $12.6 million requested.
 The operations budget, Nakos reported, compares with $17.7 million in the 1973-74 fiscal year for 1973-74; but "these figures are not all that they seem" since the governor's increase of $2.5 million is largely com-

'Good News' Hinted On Mideast Peace And Oil Embargo

Two Volunteers Seek To Assist Elderly

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Two high-ranking Arab diplomats came on President Nixon today to bring him a "good news" message from last week's Big Four Arab summit meeting.
 The President met in the Oval Office with Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy and Saudi Arabian Foreign Minister Omar Sakab. Sitting in on the session were Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Maj. Gen. Brent Scowcroft, duty assistant for international security affairs at the White House.
 Some observers said that they expected the President to be told there might be a partial, gradual lifting of the Middle East oil embargo against Israel and Syrian troops since Kissinger helped arrange Israeli-Egyptian talks.
 Informed sources said that the two diplomats were delivering a verbal message to Nixon on the Big Four—Egypt, Syria, Algeria and Saudi Arabia—on its conclusions reached Tuesday in the summit conference in Algiers Feb. 12-13.
 There was speculation that the Arab leaders were ready to have been agreed to at a meeting in Algiers last week. Without specifying details, Fahmy told reporters, "It was a unanimous decision. We believe it was a very positive decision."
 He added that "everything is moving in the right direction" (with) progress on every front.
 Fahmy said that "israel is doing a good job" and "it is a very positive decision."
 There was some speculation that the "good news" could also concern prospects for lifting of the Arab oil embargo against the United States. There have been persistent reports that an end to the oil embargo is tied directly to disengagement of Israeli-Syrian forces.

Cuban Detente Next?

There are strong rumblings that the freeze in relations which has existed since 1959 between the United States and Cuba may be thawing slightly.

The speculation has accelerated with the visit of Russia's Premier Leonid Brezhnev to the island, and the special trip to the United States which Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko has made, interrupting his Cuban visit.

There is some logic in the thought that since the United States and Russia have reached some degree of detente it would follow that there might be some relaxation of the arms length stance of the two American countries.

From the point of view of the Cuban government and the Russian rulers such a move would probably be welcomed. Cuba's economy manages to stay in the feeble condition which has been constant in its history as a nation.

Russia is reportedly spending a million dollars per day in support of its Caribbean ally. Since there is really no tactical advantage in having a Communist bastion off our shores, the Soviet would probably be ready and willing to give up their economic burden.

With nuclear missiles capable of reaching the United States from thousands of miles, there is little point to keeping Cuba in such a close grip.

And Cuba's Marxist leader, Castro has been a failure in his goal of exporting Communism to Latin America. Perhaps awareness of what has happened in Cuba has made other Latin American countries take a very wary view of the Russian embrace.

From the Cuban point of view, opening relations with the United States could be very lucrative, if the island's beauty is still there.

Pre-Castro Cuba was one of America's favorite vacation and holiday spots. Warmed by the balmy Caribbean and only 90 miles off Florida it was a tourist mecca.

Tourist dollars could do much to shore up the chronically faltering economy of the island which has always been dependent on its sugar crop, principally, and in recent years on what Russia would pay for it.

Our inclination would be a negative one as to what Russia might find desirable, or what the Castro government might want. Neither deserve anything from us after the missile crisis of 1962 when President Kennedy found it necessary to confront Russian Premier Khrushchev.

However, the people of Cuba are another story. Almost 500,000 of them have fled to the United States to escape the Castro rule. They form an important nucleus around which our future relations with the island might be built.

Cuba gained its independence from Spain as the result of the Spanish American War. It is not often remembered that the U.S. governed Cuba from 1899 until 1902. And that we had to go in again to aid the country and did not really withdraw until 1909.

After that Cuba's economy depended greatly on selling its sugar to the United States. The Castro government showed its gratitude by expropriating a billion dollars worth of United States business properties in Cuba.

If we can help the Cuban people, without financial entanglements with the Castro government, we should be considered. The Cubans must sometimes look to Puerto Rico and wonder if they might not have been better off if the United States had made the country a dominion in 1899.

Sex Education

In Bolton Schools
To the editor:
In recent years only the issues of social integration and busing have caused more controversy and concern in the nation's schools than sex education. The Bolton Board of Education in its proposed "Family Life Program" is attempting to implement a course of sex education in Grades K-12. Some of the ardent proponents of this course take an approach which does not need or will they understand the meaning of these sex terms. This instruction belongs in the home.
It seems to me that this teaching of the sex aspect of the Family Life Program, as outlined by the Bolton Board of Education, violates the ninth and sixteenth amendments of the Constitution of the United States because it encourages the board to preempt the natural right of parents to direct the upbringing and education of their children in matters of family privacy. Further encourages the board to invade the right of privacy of children with respect to their sexuality and family life. This is indicative of the unrestricted power of the board which enables it to provide any topic or instruction to children in respect to family sexual relations and even deviant sexual activities.
Tradition is antagonistic to the religious beliefs of the children and the parents, regardless of their faith or church affiliations. This program would discourage virtue in sexual matters and would imply that there are no fixed moral standards. It might have an unhealthy impact on some students. We should not surrender this critical aspect of our children's education to people who apparently take a tolerant approach to sexual perversion. Again, this is with public funds raised from our taxpayers.
It is interesting to note that cities like Hartford, Bridgeport, New Haven, etc. have no such extensive program in regard to sex education. To my knowledge, up to a year ago, none of the 169 towns in the state had it. Since then, I believe one or two towns have instituted some similar program. So why Bolton? What is so different in our Bolton children that they need such an intensive sex education at such an early age?
For many weeks only 10 copies of the proposed curriculum were available for public inspection at the town library. It is evident that the majority of parents have not had adequate opportunity to study its contents or understand its implications on the minds of these young children. Has this led the board to feel that they have gained the initiative through lack of information (the parents) and must keep it against the many who object to this program?
Let us listen to say that I

Oil And The Third World

COMMENTS
OCHO RIOS, Jamaica — Sometimes it is the industrial nations who are also a satirist will write an account of how, in 1974, the Third World nations were dealt a staggering blow, not by the Great Powers but by their own comrades and boom companions of the Algiers Conference — the Arab oil-producing states. Jamaica offers some visible evidence of one case history of this cruel, It operates in almost every Third World country through a series of consequences, each with a brutal effect on the economy and on the lives of the people, especially the poor.
First, by leading to a doubling of the price of gasoline in Jamaica $1.20 a gallon), it has riddled the transport system and thrown the daily life of the people into confusion. It has also laid a perceptible, although still minor, blight on tourism, which is now Jamaica's first industry.
Second, all through the Third World it has led to a fertilizer and, therefore, a crop crisis, since oil products are a crucial ingredient of chemical fertilizers. Norman Borlaug, the Nobel Prize agronomist largely responsible for the "Green Revolution," estimates that in Africa alone — as a combined sequence of the slow monsoon shift and the sharp fertilizer cutback — some 20 million people are likely to die.
Third, by raising the cost of everything the Third World has to import from the industrial nations it has imposed a heavy additional burden on the already fragile developing economies. This applies especially to products and technology which the Third World industries need for their own functioning, to produce exports revenue.
In many cases, as in Jamaica, there is an overall fourth result — a perilous shrinkage to products and payments drain. I have watched the fortunes of the Third World from India to Jamaica, from Bolivia to equatorial Africa, and I can't recall a time when the danger was greater.
It is too simple, of course, to blame everything on the Arabs and OPEC (Organization of Petroleum-Exporting Countries). The oil companies must bear a share of it for having allowed the profit lure to blot out the national and world interest. The lack of planning and vision by Western governments and the unrestrained gobbling up of energy by consumer societies must also share the blame.
But the Arab oil sheiks gave the final mighty push over the precipice. Even today, while they exult over having brought the rich nations to grief, they refuse to admit any guilt for the even more bruising wounds to the poor nations. Their foreign gobs trying to get rich the easy way, to wit, on the taxpayers' dime. I fear a Grenadian newspaper soon will be carrying headlines like "Charge Nutmeg Ministry Riddled with Reds." Or Whites, or Blues.
Gairy is a rightist; some of his enemies call him a black Hitler. On the right, businessmen oppose him as a demagogue because of his influence with small farmers. Gairy also is a whisky-swilling doctor, a believer in occult powers and reincarnation. Thus political conditions on the island are custom-made for attempts by jokers like Fidel Castro and foreign business tycoons to export their particular brand of ideology.
Grenada is a potentially well-to-do country. It produces most of the world's nutmeg (whatever happened to Connecticut?) and of bananas. But it also has labor troubles. On Independence Day, the island was still crippled by a general strike that had closed down the port for more than a month. Revolutionaries on both left and right thrive on such problems.
But, this essay grows too gloomy. Whatever lies ahead, the Grenadians are to be congratulated, for in choosing freedom from foreign domination they have reclaimed their country and that's the name of the game. We've had our rough times here in the U.S. from the days of British naval press gangs to Watergate, but somehow we've survived without being taken over by Bulgaria.
So go to it, Grenadians, and good luck. Keep a stiff upper lip, but above all beware of peddlers hauling attachments to freedom.

Grenada Now Independent

Andrew Tully
WASHINGTON — It's hard to decide whether to be happy or sad over what has happened to the 110,000 Grenadians. The Grenadians live on Grenada, a small island in the Caribbean and they are mostly a happy and lighthearted people.
However, this island — 20 miles long and 12 miles wide — has now become an independent nation, the smallest such in the Western Hemisphere, after 200 years under the British flag.
As a citizen of the world's best republic, I naturally think it's fine that Grenada at last has become its own boss. The world can always use another self-governed country in a day when the rights of the individual are taking such a flailing in such countries as the Soviet Union, Red China and some of the African dictatorships. Besides, the Grenadians decided that's what they wanted, and they're the only people who should have been consulted.
Nevertheless, it saddens me to think of this happy people being tossed into the political pot, domestic and international, with all of us pros. Around the world, politics is not widely known for helping out a friend across the street, and the Grenadians are going to learn that some so-called statements are lies and news are claims.
Indeed, the Grenadians already have a built-in problem named Eric Gairy, the island's prime minister and strongman. Everybody seems to agree that Gairy is fairly elected, which is good. But Gairy also is a tough baby. He owns and operates a secret police organization called the "Mongoose Gang," which has been known to take a dim view of civil liberties, especially those which guarantee an individual's right not to be slugged by cops.
But even if Gairy cools the Mongoose Gang — he claims he's disbanded the outfit — the Grenadians will find self-government a mixed blessing. For years Grenadians have longed for the world's more practiced rascals, the Grenadians will find it hard to cope with their own set of domestic nogoodniks.
Any time you set up a government, you are going to have guys trying to get rich the easy way, to wit, on the taxpayers' dime. I fear Grenadian newspapers soon will be carrying headlines like "Charge Nutmeg Ministry Riddled with Reds." Or Whites, or Blues.
Gairy is a rightist; some of his enemies call him a black Hitler. On the right, businessmen oppose him as a demagogue because of his influence with small farmers. ### Today's Thought

Pray For Our President
At this crucial time in history should we not follow the Scriptural injunction to "pray for our leaders and all who are in authority, that we may live in quiet and peaceful life, in entire godliness and proper conduct." (1 Tim 2:1-2)
The president needs and deserves our prayers and our respect. As Senator William Proxmire, democrat from Wisconsin, pointed out concerning the president — "His private life has been a superlative example to the nation. He is a man of simple tastes and modest ways. He has a sense of humor and a sense of fun. He is a family man, and he is a father. So, let us not be quick to condemn, but rather to pray for our nation and its leaders in this crisis hour. When mistakes have been made, let us not add to those mistakes, but let us remember God's Word which declares that "love covereth a multitude of sins." (1 Peter 4:8)
Like any other person, the president is not faultless; nevertheless, he is worthy of respect when he is seeking to perform the duties of his office. When the president took the oath of office, he pledged his hand upon the Bible, saying he would protect, defend and preserve the Constitution of the United States.

"You have a right to know the Quality of Meat you buy!"

Think Cost "Per Serving" When You Buy Meat!
The best way to judge economy when buying meat is by price per serving — not price per pound. Simply divide the number of servings you'll get from a pound into the price per pound. To determine serving size, use this rule of thumb: Plan on a 1/4 pound per serving for meat without bone, 1/2 pound per serving for meat with some bone, and 3/4 to 1 pound per serving for meat with a lot of bone cost per pound. Compare carefully. Use Frank's USDA Choice Silver Sticker meat with some bone, and 3/4 to 1 pound per serving for meat with a lot of bone.
Most of us are involved in the battle of the budget — particularly now with the energy crisis and rising prices. Always remember, you're more likely to be on the winning side of the budget if you judge meat purchases for economy by the price per serving instead of the price per pound. You'll save more with quality in the long run, than with cheaper grades offered by the so-called discount stores.

Fuel Cost Adjustments Exceed $100 Million

By Mark C. Miller
HARTFORD (UPI) — Connecticut electricity consumers forked over more than $100 million in fuel cost adjustments in the past three years because utility companies billed them for the entire amount of their increased fuel costs.

Coal and oil prices have stiffly risen, and consumers are shouldering the whole increase because of a state Public Utility Commission decision in 1971. The commission decided to let utilities pass on the fuel cost increases to their customers without requiring public hearings as are standard for all other utility requests for higher rates.

So customers of Hartford Electric Light Co. are now paying $3.06 for the same thousand kilowatt hours they paid 77 cents for a year ago.

Expanded to include all residential, commercial, industrial and governmental ratepayers in the state, the increase passed along by the utilities amounts to $102,472,717, according to commission figures.

In addition to paying steep increases in their electric bills, consumers also pay more through their tax and purchasing dollars when other cost increases are "passed on."

A legislative subcommittee is taking a wait-and-see stance regarding corrective measures on the fuel cost adjustments.

"It is essential that something be worked out on the fuel cost adjustments, which are increasing each month, in order that we can give some relief to the beleaguered home owner," said the two co-chairmen of the subcommittee.

But Sen. Joseph T. Gormley, R-Fairfield, and Rep. Ernest L. Nichols, R-Bridgewater, aren't signing bills in support of what they plan to work out or how much relief they plan to offer.

Sen. George L. Gunther, R-Stratford, who is not on their committee, has offered some suggestions to relieve the burden of high electric rates, not all of the suggestions confined to fuel cost adjustments.

Gunther wrote Gormley and

Harkins Party Friday Night

Tickets still are available for a testimonial dinner Friday for John Harkins, former Manchester assistant town manager, the committee planning the event announced today.

They may be obtained at the Municipal Building switchboard or by calling 646-3281. Tickets are $8 per person.

The dinner will be at 7 p.m. at Willie's Steak House, Center St. It will be preceded by a social hour at 6:30.

On Jan. 7, Harkins became Tolland's first town manager under its new charter.

Population Growth Eases
Washington — In the United States and other industrial nations the population problem seems to be easing.

Scene From Here

The primary which Manchester Democrats are conducting March 5 in Voting District 9 (Keeney St. School) is only for membership on the town committee, but considering the bickering and in-fighting going on, anyone who didn't know better might think it's for a major elected office.

One wonders that it is about Democrats that they can't stand prosperity. Here they are, winners in two successive elections of every major office in town government, yet they act as if the most important thing in political life is membership on the town committee.

The bickering and in-fighting has reached such proportions that it is noticeable even at Board of Directors' meetings, where five of the nine directors (four Democrats and one Republican) are District 9 residents.

On Feb. 7, which was nine days after the township Democratic caucus, Town Chair Peter Cummings told his Democratic committee, "It is apparent from the god humor expressed here, the scars left over from the caucus already are being healed. We've tried the new math and we've tried the old math, but we can't come up with an answer to the puzzle."

Which cars waste the most gas — those waiting in line to buy gas, or those waiting in line for the light to change, on streets leading into Downtown Main St.?

We've tried the new math and we've tried the old math, but we can't come up with an answer to the puzzle:

Nate Will Introduce Steele at GOP Affair

State Comptroller Nathan G. Agostinelli, who was Manchester's mayor from 1966 to January 1971, will be honorary chairman March 9 when Manchester Republicans hold their Lincoln Day dinner.

It will be at the Colony restaurant, Talcottville, with a social hour at 6:30 p.m. and dinner at 7:30. Dancing will be to 1 p.m.

Morra Criticizes Vote Not to Buy Shredder

First Selectman Richard Morra objected strongly to a decision by Board of Finance members at the meeting Monday to reject an appropriation of $3,800 for the purchase of a shredder.

The shredder is a Model 41, Morris Silverstein being the lone member approving the purchase.

Morra urges all residents who object to the decision to contact any of the selectmen or their party leaders, Robert Dickson, Republican, and John Mahan, Democrat, so they in turn can inform the board that the people want the shredder.

It was through request by township people for help in getting rid of ice storm debris that the request for the machine came about. People found it difficult to get to the dump and difficult to get a burning permit because of restrictions.

The town is presently renting a chipper for a month at the cost of $1,000 through March 6, and the annual need for a chipper for a $1,000 in January. The manufacturer has agreed to deduct the $2,000 in rental fees from the original cost resulting in a cost of $3,850 if purchased now. The town has until March 6 to make a decision.

Morra said it would be impossible to finish the job by March 6. He said it will cost more to haul the brush to the dump then its costing to shred it.

Silverstein, having seen a similar machine in operation, feels it is a tremendous buy. He said it will be a gross injustice to township people to deny clearing the debris accumulated in the December ice storm, especially after advertising about the shredder and the fees from the original cost resulting in a cost of $3,850 if purchased now. The town has until March 6 to make a decision.

With the CIAC State Basketball Tournament qualifying deadline Thursday, every team is trying to get games under the wire. For most areas, however, the verdict is already in.

Closing out a most disappointing season tonight is 7-10 Manchester High. The Jim Moriarty-coached Indians had high expectations at the outset of the season only to see the dreams go awry. Tonight's finale at Clarke Arena is against Penney High of East Hartford, which is sporting a woeful 3-18 over-all ledger.

At the Eagles' nest tonight, 14-4 East Catholic will hope to keep its slim title hopes in the HCC alive. Coach Stan Ogradnik's outfit is 6-2 in the conference behind 8-1 South Catholic. South still has to play Xavier while East has St. Paul of Bristol.

The 11-7 Bristol school handed East its first loss of the season, 72-70 in overtime, and Ogradnik's crew must have this in mind. East has lost its last two outings, the last a heart-

Setbacks Costly To UCLA in Poll

NEW YORK (UPI) — If there was an energy shortage in Oregon last weekend, it was UCLA that suffered from it.

North Carolina State's point total was 334 to the Irish's 318.

Notre Dame also has been the victim of a 19-point defeat at the hands of the Bruins, but was the Irish who ended UCLA's record 88-game winning streak at South Bend earlier this season.

The North Carolina Tar Heels survived a loss at Maryland last week to hang onto their No. 4 rating, while Vanderbilt remained fifth with a 20-1 mark.

Maryland was sixth, followed by Marquette and Pittsburgh.

Southern California advanced to ninth in the rankings with a pair of victories last weekend, but more important, tied UCLA for the Pacific-8 lead.

The record winner was a solid choice for the No. 1 ranking as their 20-1 record attracted 22 of the 35 first place ballots cast.

Notre Dame, with an identical 20-1 mark, received 10 first place votes, plans to be a music major in college. He has received inquiries from Clark and Brandeis Universities but is waiting for word from others who've expressed interest.

"There is no question he has college potential. I'll take him about a year to make the switch to forward. Someone is going to have to get everything going around," Moriarty frowned.

Lack of bulk has been Bushey's biggest problem thus far. He's tried everything possible to gain weight but without success. And he's still growing — one-half inch since school began in September.

Wooden Puzzled by Bruins

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — John Wooden seems to be as puzzled about what has happened to his UCLA Bruins as the average basketball fan. "We haven't played well and I don't know exactly what's the matter," Wooden told the Southern California Basketball Writers Monday.

"Certainly I'm hoping we can snap to it a little better. I don't want to rationalize about things, it could be this, it could be that. I know the reasons in a sense that we haven't played well but I don't know how to correct the reasons. The turnovers for example, the intensity. We're probably not as hungry.

Adamy was a member of the winning 200-yard medley relay and 400-yard freestyle relay teams. He also captured the 100-yard freestyle in his best time of the season, clocked in 55.0. Naktenis won the 200-yard individual medley, the 100-yard butterfly and was a member of the 400-yard freestyle relay quartet.
