Sen. Weicker Alleges Abuse Of Privacy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Lowell P. Weicker, R-Conn., has disclosed the existence of a White House document which he says shows again the abuse of privacy by President Nixon's administration.

Weicker, who disclosed the document on a Public Television Network program Thursday, said it shows that the White House "penetrating" the offices of a liberal research group, "Potamic Associates."

The memo Weicker says was sent from former White House investigator John Caulfield to former White House counsel John Dean. Dean never acted on the memo, he said.

The memo told of the routine security measures at "Potamic Associates," a group which explores issues and which Weicker said was liberal in its outlook.

"A penetration is deemed possible," if required," the memo said.

Apparently, there was no burglary or break-in at the office, Weicker said, and the matter did not reach Dean's desk.

Bowling

Hi everybody! It's that time again, and I guess the big news is that Wednesday, some of our members will be off and running to South Windsor to the Coachlight Theatre to see "South Pacific." The bus will leave our Center at 10 o'clock in the morning.

During the morning and afternoon, activities at the Center will go on as usual with our regular pinocle and bridge games; however, the ceramic class will be canceled because most of the class will not be in for this trip.

We start with Tuesday, and in the morning we had our talented oil painting class downstairs, and our beginners ceramic class upstairs.

At the Parkade Lanes our Senior Bowling League was busy with the following results:

In the Men's Class A group, Wesley Frost won both the high triple with 525 and the high single with 201. In the Class B group, James Galsen won the high triple with 419 and the high single with 166.

In the Women's Class A group, Blanche Miller took both honors of high triple with 440 and the high single with 170. In the Class B group, Marion James won both honors with 374 for the high triple and 137 for the high single.

Wednesdays morning we had ten tables for pinocle with the big winners: May Derby, 613; Wilfred Messier, 585; Jennifer Fogarty, 575; Gladys Seeler, 569; Robert Schubert, 561; Joseph Windsor, 559; Esther Anderson, 550; Anna Haupt, 549; Grace Windsor, 548; and Marjorie McLain, 545.

Crenna Saddling Up For Western Series

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) - Richard Crenna, unmistakably one of Hollywood's best dramatic actors, is saddling up to star in a new western television series, "Honky Tonk," a preview of which will be aired April 1.

Crenna has a large saddle to fill-Clark Gable's. He will play Candy Johnson, the selfsame con man Gable portrayed in the movie, made shortly after "Gone With the Wind" when Gable was still in his Rhetoric Butler period.

He will not be compared with Gable, Crenna thinks. The span of years and change in tastes has been too great.

Mrs. Shuttleworth's Coloring Book Promotes Saving Of Energy

BARBARA RICHMOND

With her own two children in mind, Mrs. Barbara Shuttleworth of Vernon, designed a coloring book to put across the message to children, that conserving energy is very important.

Mrs. Shuttleworth, who gained national acclaim for her idea for the meat boycott when meat prices went sky-high, conceived the idea of the coloring book after attending a meeting of area leaders, called by Secretary of State Gloria Schaffer, to discuss the energy crisis.

Mrs. Shuttleworth said conservation was discussed in terms of getting pamphlets out to adults, and as she listened she had the thought that mention was made of involving the children in the conservation movement.

Children, being the most malleable of all citizens, were the likely ones to get to the heart of the matter. Mrs. Shuttleworth said she sat down after dinner that night and roughly put together a coloring book.

Saving Landmarks

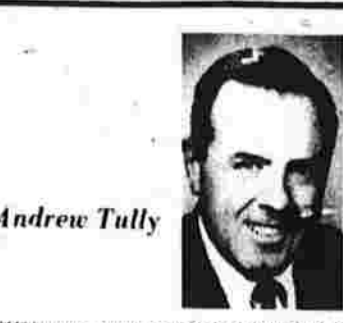

The Branford copper beech tree has been felled.
Despite an effort by a woman, her family and friends, to save the 200-year-old tree on private property, it was chopped down to permit the property owners to build a home.
The problem is becoming a frequent one because landmarks are precious to many people and yet too often landmarks are private property.
Of particular difficulty is the matter of raising money to preserve landmarks since the value of a landmark, like beauty, is in the eyes of the beholder.
Thus the Branford tree was valued as a cherished tradition to a few in the community but despite the tree-planting attempt to save it, apparently few were willing to make it a personal cause, other than the handful of "tree sitters."

Of interest to us is that Cheney Hall faces a similar precarious future. The town has a committee seeking ways and means to acquire the building but it is a slow process.
In this day of rising prices, rising taxes, and rising everything else, it is difficult to get public financial support to acquire landmarks for preservation and even tougher, we fear, to get public contributions to buy them.
Branford had a historic tree but could not rally the people to preserve it.
Will Manchester people let a similar fate befall Cheney Hall? We would hope not.

Toys Are To Play With, Not Study

WASHINGTON — It is a pleasure to report, after an unscientific survey of some homes with kids in them, that no parents of my ken are buying their brood gift certificates for a free science with a head-shrinker and have opted for real birthday presents.
Put another way, the parents surveyed seem to have latched on to the modern theory that children should get only what is good for them. Mostly, the loot I examined was stuff kids could have fun with.
This comes out a healthy trend against a trend, it seems to me, I agree that kids are dangerous and that if we don't watch out they'll turn out to be some odd rascals years from now more intellectual mamas and papas have been overdoing the curbsome sociological bit.
They loaded down their offspring with "toys" designed to improve their character and intelligence, and for all I know their libido, they passed over electric trains with the sneer that they would intoxicate the kids with power. Show them a Teddy bear and they'd kick it away with the snarl that they didn't want any of their tads storing up false affection for a playing. Boxing gloves were out, naturally, but so — for some odd reason — were those old-fashioned, paraphernalia of yid Charlie's Atlas school.
Instead, parents went for books with practically inchoate sentences designed to test a child's IQ. They gave him portfolios of Old Masters, with a big space under the picture for a critique by the unlicked sprout on style and shading. For birthdays and Christmas, they came up with make-it-yourself kits that would drive an engineering professor from MIT to the nearest book store.
As a result, even today a lot of kids with highbrow parents are always whining about the house to try to wheedle, or beg, a chance to hide some one of their kid's pet dog or his bike. I heard tell of one boy who bought himself a baseball bat, which he kept concealed from parental eyes by securing it under his bed.

But recently, thank heaven, toys are beginning to look as if they were designed for kids and not for the curriculum of grades 5-A. I came across a number of real fancy electric trains in the houses on my route. There were some mechanical jobs that gave a boy a chance to try out his new screwdriver. There were plenty of bikes, lots of Teddy bears, some dump trucks, jigsaw puzzles that can be put together by children without PBs, and even one punching bag.
I also saw two space suits, complete with plexiglass helmets, three footballs, several Washington Redskins football jerseys, a Batman costume and two sets of toy saws. Happily, there were no switchblade knives, no air rifles and — despite TV — no marjuna joints.
The book situation also is improved. Boys of seven are getting books with big print and colored pictures of medieval knights and pirates, not "Nietzsche Made Easy" or "Das Kapital for Beginners." Little girls are getting a flock of "Or" books, some copies of "Alice in Wonderland," and one set of "The Bobsey Twins." I saw not a single collection of lectures on how to set a formal table for 18 guests, including the ambassador from Outer Muggwump.
There are also good tales of adventure, such as "Treasure Island" and "Kidnapped," the original nonmovie "Peter Pan" and some old-fashioned bedtime stories about rabbits and beavers and amiable skunks. If any moppet was reading "How to be Your Own Boss" he was doing so behind the barn.
These are wild times, so fingers should be kept crossed. But I view as a good omen signs that parents have given up trying to transform kids into geniuses and tireless drawing room know-it-alls and have concluded that toys are to play with, not study.

Need Downtown Parking
To the editor:
Herewith is my contribution to the Main Street business area parking situation. How many times it is a mystery to me how the bureaucratic thought-process goes to work on problems and the decisions that result.
Here in Manchester, we have an old business district that appears to have seen its best days during the horse-and-buggy and trolley car era. Every now and then a business enterprise located there gives up and pulls out, with chances of its quality replacement uncertain.
In these days of the universal automobile, it should be a fact clear to everyone, including bureaucrats, that parking space is an absolute necessity to the survival of a business section. It seems that Main Street was taken over by the State Highway Department — now the DOT — about 10 years ago. During that time the DOT has been planning "improvements" for the business area, including parallel parking in the narrower parts of the street and a new set of traffic lights.
The reduction in parking spaces and its effect on business appears to be of no concern whatever to the DOT. Its set of rules probably states that diagonal parking cannot be allowed on streets of less than a minimum width, and as far as the DOT is concerned, that is all that matters. If Main Street business suffers, that's its hard luck.
As for traffic lights, the new one hung by DOT makes me laugh. For the past 25 years, more or less, the 12 traffic lights installed by the town have worked pretty well. They have needed synchronization body for the past several years but we got along with them without too much difficulty.
Come the traffic experts from the DOT, who decide that a light for each traffic lane and lights cocked at every conceivable angle. I'll say this for them: they sure did a thorough job but they made me necessary. It almost looks as if they were trying to help out the poor traffic light manufacturers.
My solution to the problem is this:
The retention of those 30 parking spaces is absolutely essential to the business life of Main Street and for the convenience of people who want to get there and use them.

Be Heard

To the editor:
Sunday, March 31, at the Timothy Edward Middle School, 100 Arnold Way in South Windsor, a debate of the four Democratic candidates for governor will take place. The debate will be at 2 p.m. and will be open to the public.
This debate will be important because towns in the area will be picking their delegates to the State Convention in April in Manchester, members of the Democratic Town Committee will cast ballots before mid-April which will determine the proportion of the town's delegation to the state convention.
I would hope that my fellow members of the town committee will wait until after the debate before casting their ballots. Furthermore, I would hope that many Democrats who are not members of the town committee would attend the debate, and let their town committee members know how they feel. It is important that a majority of the House of Representatives may have been in mind in that an impeachment proceeding need not necessarily mean the removal of the President. It is, or should be, a calling of him to account for certain specific actions by which he, in the judgment of a majority of the House of Representatives, may have been illegal or in violation of the Constitution and his oath of office — and indictment which would be weighed by the Senate sitting as a court.
Unfortunately, by resisting the attempts of the House to ascertain the facts of the matter — especially his personal involvement in forcing the issue as one between the Congress and "the presidency" — and giving it the color of a sheer power contest between the two branches.
Such a contest he believes he would win, and, indeed, if that was all that it was about, he would, like Andrew Johnson before him, deserve to win.
But the presidency is not in peril from the Watergate investigators. It will endure long Watergate and Richard Nixon depart the scene, and whatever Mr. Nixon's own fate may be, the real danger is that by going to Congress in the position of attacking him but that of office he holds, and possibly winning on this ground the right to complete his term in office, Mr. Nixon will not only leave all the questions about himself and Watergate forever unresolved but may place his successors forever above the reach of constitutional accountability.
This would truly "strengthen the presidency." It also would gravely impair the health of the American system of government.

Forcing The Wrong Impeachment Issue

It is clear that President Nixon's last line of defense against the gathering storm of impeachment is so to identify himself with the office of the presidency that Congress, and behind Congress the American public, will shrink from pursuing the issue of its ultimate extreme.
As Mr. Nixon has stated repeatedly in appearances around the country, he will do nothing that in his judgment would weaken the presidency. He has no constitutional choice but to resist demands from the legislative branch which — again in his judgment — are a breach of the principle of separation of powers.
Taking his stand on this lofty and embattled ground, his refusal to comply with requests by the House Judiciary Committee that amount to virtually unlimited access to White House tapes and documents is thus giving it the color of a sheer power contest between the two branches.
Such a contest he believes he would win, and, indeed, if that was all that it was about, he would, like Andrew Johnson before him, deserve to win.
But the presidency is not in peril from the Watergate investigators. It will endure long Watergate and Richard Nixon depart the scene, and whatever Mr. Nixon's own fate may be, the real danger is that by going to Congress in the position of attacking him but that of office he holds, and possibly winning on this ground the right to complete his term in office, Mr. Nixon will not only leave all the questions about himself and Watergate forever unresolved but may place his successors forever above the reach of constitutional accountability.
This would truly "strengthen the presidency." It also would gravely impair the health of the American system of government.

Shorter Campaign Bill Becomes Law

HARTFORD (UPI) — One certainty about this year's election campaign, it is going to be shorter.
Gov. Thomas J. Meskill Friday signed a measure chopping one month from the electoral campaign. Under the bill state nominating conventions will now move from June to July.
It is the first in a series of campaign reform measures being considered in an atmosphere of cynicism stemming from Watergate and associated scandals.
Dix proposals being debated by lawmakers would place limits on campaign spending and contributions.
The bill signed Friday shortens campaigns by about one month. It requires changes in scheduled dates for party nominating conventions.
Republicans, aware that Meskill would sign the bill, have already changed their nominating convention date from the month of June to July 26 and 27.
For their part, Democrats plan an April 4 meeting of the State Central Committee to change their scheduled convention from its present June 14 date to July 14.
Party Chairman John M. Bailey opposed the so-called "short campaign" bill but said the party could live with the new law.
I still believe that the shorter campaign will make it easier for incumbent office holders to win re-election," Bailey said.
Democrats are the minority party in the General Assembly which fell to Republicans following the 1970 election of Meskill. He is the first Republican governor in 16 years.

Foresight Needed

The exercise of hindsight is very soothing to the ego. It gives us a feeling, almost of infallibility, and we wonder why others didn't see things as clearly as we did.
For instance isn't it a good thing that the pleas of so many for gasoline rationing were denied? And those urging the creation of a billion and one-half dollar bureaucracy to administer rationing included such highly placed figures as Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington.
Rationing would not have produced one more drop of gasoline and might not have spread it out any better than was done by the fantastic and sometimes futile juggling efforts of William Simon's Energy Office.
And do you remember just a few weeks ago when President Nixon, in a press conference, said that the oil crisis was over but the problem remained?
And, of course his critics, and they are many, immediately pointed out to this as an error, since there were still long lines at the gasoline stations.
But he was right, as events proved out. Although Arab oil shipments may be several months away, the lifting of the embargo has eased the shortage situation greatly and will make it possible to draw on reserve supplies, which could not have been touched, otherwise.
And we suspect that a good bit of the shortage was caused by scarce or panic buying. A lot of people who couldn't pass a gas line a few weeks ago as their tank was registering less than half full are now driving around with less than that, safe in the knowledge that gas is available at most any station.
It is, however, time for a little foresightedness. We must make every effort to become energy self-sufficient very soon.

Timely Quotes

"The government's position toward the oil companies has been to encourage free enterprise so far as economic controls are concerned but to provide public welfare in matters of tax policy and industry. The government has a half-hearted policy that provides a carrot for the oil industry, but it has no stick."
—Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis.

"It has always astounded me that the only job we tackle without any real previous training is that of being a parent."
—Dr. William Gurte, Harvard pediatrician.

"Students are intelligent young animals subject to a lot of temptations. If we left them too much free time we would be in the situation (similar) to before the war, with a class of professional students who, spend their lives sitting."
—Dimitri Pop, professor of literature at Cleveland University, Rumania, explaining to newsmen what he believes to be the average college student behind the Iron Curtain.

St. Bridget Church Salvation Army to Hear Talk by Sister Mary Cassidy

Sister Mary Patricia Cassidy, executive director of the Manchester Area Conference of Churches, will be guest speaker Sunday at the 7 p.m. service at the Salvation Army Citadel. The service is open to the public.

The visit of Sister Mary Patricia is in conjunction with the Salvation Army's monthly "Getting to Know You" series during which a member of another denomination explains the doctrines and background of his particular faith, and later, brings the message of the Evangelist.

Sister Mary Patricia, formerly the religious education director of the Church of the Assumption, received her BA degree from Emmanuel College, Boston, her master's degree in education from Salem (Mass.) State College and her MA degree in religious education from Fairleigh University.

Before coming to Manchester, she was a high school teacher for many years in the Boston Archdiocese, the Fall River (Mass.) Diocese, and the Providence, R.I., Bridgeport and Hartford Dioceses.

Today's Thought

A thought that recently crossed my desk. Life is no brief candle to me. It is a sort of splendid torch that I got hold of for the moment, and I want make it burn as brightly as possible before handing it on to future generations.

I enjoyed reading this thought for it seemed to capture one of the major concerns in my life—that I might have the courage and strength to live in this world. And it puts that concern in the context of the future. What I have been given is something that I have only for the moment; and something that I, in fact, will be passing down to future generations. I am not an Einstein, nor a Kennedy; my legacy is not going to be of earth-shattering importance. Yet, as this thought reminds me, I do have a history and involvement in life that I am responsible for using and sharing.

O God — you have lit our candles of life with your creative breath. Give us the courage to face our fears of the unknown; the strength to step towards the future, face forward; and the freedom to live outside the petty pace of the Monday to Friday work week. Help us meet our responsibilities at work, at home, at play, and with others; that the splendid torches of our lives might burn ever brightly and not be fading candles. Amen.

The Bible Speaks
by Eugene Crowder

In his recent book, See The Church Affire, Dr. Wayne Dehoney, former president of the Southern Baptist Convention, makes some candid observations. "While statistical totals suggest a declining church, a close look at the Churches of Christ would hardly reveal that their brand of religion is on the downgrade." He calls them "one of the most potent missionary and evangelistic forces in the country." He calls them "one of the most potent missionary and evangelistic forces in the country." He calls them "one of the most potent missionary and evangelistic forces in the country."

TOWN OF MANCHESTER, CONNECTICUT

March 25, 1974

TO: BOARD OF DIRECTORS
FROM: R. B. WEISS, GENERAL MANAGER
SUBJECT: Tentative Budget and Budget Message
Fiscal Year Beginning July 1, 1974

INTRODUCTION

During this unprecedented era of inflation problems of budget determinations have become increasingly more difficult. In order to project Town expenditure requirements for the period ending/fifteen to eighteen months from the time the budget is prepared obviously requires intelligent guesswork dealing with unknown conditions in the national economy.

Fixed costs both in the Town and Board of Education budgets show dramatic increases. Also, with the phase out of the E.F.A. program nearly completed, the Town has to determine whether to fund some of these positions in the regular budget or to reduce services. The gasoline shortage will probably put an extra load on our recreation and library facilities and activities since there is likely to be less out of town travel than in recent years.

Federal Revenue Sharing in the current year has a boon to local government permitting, in our case, both funding for capital improvements and property tax relief. Realistic handling of these funds in the new budget will require thoughtful consideration by the Board of Directors.

The fact that we have not yet negotiated any contracts with our organized employee groups further complicates our budget process this year. We may well end up going to fact finding with some, if not all, of these groups which could mean that final salary figures will not be set until we are into the new fiscal year. The department salary budgets only show increments required under present contracts.

Recent discussions with the Board of Directors confirms a desire to simplify the budget document making it more feasible for the Board to concentrate on general concepts rather than details. The present format was developed over several years and represents the objectives of previous Directors. I look forward to working with the present Board on changes that will reflect our current thinking on budget format.

TAX RATE

A tax rate of 52.33 mills, up 5.67 mills, is recommended to support the general fund budget. An increase of .82 mills to 6.17 is recommended for the Fire District. The Parking Authority provide funding for additional district parking. The alternative of expanding the district boundaries might be explored. No change is required for water and sewer rates at this time.

REVENUE PROJECTIONS

Despite the impact of the Olcott Street Bridge washout, the tornado and ice storm Felix, we feel that we will end the current fiscal year in the black thanks primarily to the availability of Revenue Sharing Funds. Unfortunately, we cannot count on as much from this source next year. In the current year we had available $1,254,010 reflecting not only the normal revenue sharing allocation for the year but also a carry over from the six month allocations of the previous year and a substantial addition to our first allocations.

In the new year we are estimating a total of $844,000 for new revenue sharing funds plus a carry over of $113,000 from current year allocations for a total of $957,000. Of this $957,000 is recommended for General Fund operations and $507,000 for Capital Improvements. The reduction from $770,500 in General Fund allocations in the current year is recommended for two reasons - we anticipate the likelihood that our annual allocations will decrease over the next two years and we feel that we should fund our capital improvements with revenue sharing monies.

Revenue projections from state sources reflect amounts recommended in the Governor's budget. These may change - hopefully improve - by the time the Board of Directors completes budget deliberations.

The methodology in setting the tax rate is essentially as follows:

- Determine the total amount of funds required to be raised to support expenditures recommended.
- Determine the amount of money estimated to be received from all sources other than taxes - including use of surplus, if any, revenue sharing and any other state or federal funds.
- The difference between the two figures above represents the amount to be raised from taxes. In determining the tax rate this year a 90% collection rate was anticipated. Due to the fact that under a relatively new state law, property that is completed after the October 1 tax date is entered on the tax roll on a pro-rata basis. This makes it prudent to increase the anticipated collectable by 1/3 of one percent.

As can be seen on the attached table entitled Revenue Summary some of our revenue estimates show an increase from prior years - particularly funds from state sources. This is more than offset by the fact that we will not have any surplus from prior year operations to apply toward revenues. Funds from the State in the adopted budget for the current year. Also, the amount recommended to be applied from revenue sharing funds has been reduced by $222,500. The net reduction is approximately 284,000 so we are starting our revenue projections, in a sense, one mill behind the current year.

Fortunately we experienced an unusually large grand list increase this year of 6.52% or $812,832 based on the current tax rate. This will produce the equivalent of 2.85 mills based upon the present tax rate.

CAPITAL IMPROVEMENTS - CURRENT YEAR

The following capital improvements are proposed to be funded from Revenue Sharing funds. In addition, a $1,200,000 mini-bond issue is recommended by the Public Works Committee for extensive drainage improvements. The six-year Capital Improvement Budget is in the process of being updated and will be presented shortly.

Raking in the Goods
Fairfield University basketball coach Fred Barakat is raking in the top in-state talent at record breaking speed. The latest to join the Stags' ranks is East Hartford Ford standout 6-7 Mark Piefka. Piefka joins previously announced Steve Balkun of Northwest Catholic and Fairfield Prep's Don Foster at the Jesuit school. The downstater has also inked a top Long Island product who'll be competing in the 13th annual Bridgeport Jewish Community Center Invitational Classic, April 20-21.

Room to Breathe
This past Wednesday, Whelton, Balkun and Eagles' mentor Stan Ogradnik, who'll be one of two Connecticut coaches, journeyed to Bridgeport to take part in a light scrimmage and picture taking session. Already on the scene when Whelton arrived were coaches from Fairfield and the University of Connecticut, both hot on the heels of the Eagle star. Each took a shot at some last-second recruiting — Whelton has not made his decision yet on this fall.

Someone Doing Well
UConn basketball coach Dee Rowe hasn't as of yet done well in the recruiting war but someone who has in Storrs is football mentor Larry Navaux. Seemingly a day doesn't pass without another name of a top-notch in-state grinder being added to the Huskies' list. From the Naugatuck Valley region, Navaux has received a windfall. Roger Ings from Ansonia, Kevin Carroll from Derby, and John Palombi from Meriden are all Valley League club as just some of the names Storrs-bound. Winning breeds success and that is what Navaux has found in the recruiting war in the Nutmeg state.

A "Salute to Hank Aaron" will be broadcast by NBC-TV April 8 prior to the first Monday night baseball game. Sequences from both careers of Babe Ruth and Aaron will be shown. Two former East Catholic basketball stars continue to receive accolades. Thomas Sullivan of Manchester, a senior at Colby College in Maine, has been named co-recipient of the Coaches' Award for team contribution on the college's basketball team. Williams Paces Bucks to Victory, Knicks Destroy Capital in Opener

NEW YORK (UPI) — The rookie supplying the heroics for Milwaukee said he was "a little nervous," and that's to be expected. One of his teammates, though, never showed a tremor at all doing as big a job, and that's to be expected also. The rookie was Ron Williams, who poured in six consecutive points in the last five minutes to help the Bucks pull out a 99-95 victory over the Los Angeles Lakers Friday night in their NBA semi-final opener at Milwaukee.

Williams' teammate, who did as much in a different way, was Kareem Abdul Jabbar with one of his customary performances. All he did was score 35 points, grab 21 rebounds and block a couple of key shots in the final seconds. The Lakers looked as if they were going to annihilate the Bucks, running up a 12-2 lead in the opening minutes. Williams, playing in place of sidelined Lucius Allen, did not have much of a first half. "I was nervous early," he said. "Soon you get that first one you're all right though."

Williams' first one didn't come until near the end of the third quarter at which point the Lakers were leading by 10. Gail Goodrich was high man for the Lakers with 31 points.

The New York Knicks also got the jump over the Capital Bullets, scoring a 102-91 triumph in their semi-final opener. Julius Erving (32) takes off with Squires' George Carter in hot pursuit in the opener of the ABA's semi-final playoffs. Erving netted 24 points to lead his quintet's attack.

Reed, out for four months of the season trying to get his knee in shape, entered Friday night's contest with a 7-34 remaining and took over direction of the Knicks' attack. He played 15 minutes during which the Knicks outscored the Lakers 18-8, and took over the lead, 49-42. That was it, as far as the Bucks were concerned although Hayes played superlatively. "This is what worked for," Reed said afterwards referring to all the long hours of therapy he submitted to in order to strengthen his knee. "This makes the whole thing worthwhile."

Jim Lonborg Ready for NL Season, Theodore Stars As Mets Triumph

NEW YORK (UPI) — Jim Lonborg says he's going to find out how smart a pitcher he is this year. WIN AT BRIDGE

We aren't going to say that the queen was the right play, but would like to show the whole line after that start. Ely wins the trump return in dummy and ruffs a low heart. He enters dummy with a trump and ruffs another low heart. Back to dummy with the king of spades to ruff the last low heart. Back to dummy once more with the king of diamonds. The ace of diamonds is led. Now the last trump forces her to check the jack of diamonds and the ace of hearts finds her caught in a hopeless squeeze.

Hal Sims opened a heart. Ely was up with dummy's ace. Dorothy Sims ruffed and returned a trump. Ely struggled along, but eventually had to go down one trick. Sims promptly pointed out what the Sims system would have led to an unbeatable six trump net, but one at the table noticed that Ely had played the king of hearts at trick one he could have made the slam in spite of the ruff.

Meet the Author and Artist of "The Monster Book"

From Where the Wild Things Are, by Maurice Sendak; Harper & Row, Publishers. Copyright © 1963 by Maurice Sendak. Reproduced with permission.

Where the Wild Things Are is about a boy named Max who gets into trouble and is sent to bed without his supper. He sails away to become king of the monster-like "wild things." Children often call this book, "The Monster Book." It's a favorite. It won the 1963 Caldecott Medal for the best illustrations by an American artist.

Maurice Sendak

Maurice Sendak is one of the world's leading children's book illustrators. In 1970, he won the Hans Christian Andersen Medal, the highest worldwide honor given to an illustrator. He is also an author and has written some of the 60 books he has illustrated.

From Where the Wild Things Are, by Maurice Sendak; Harper & Row, Publishers. Copyright © 1963 by Maurice Sendak. Reproduced with permission.

This picture was taken several years ago. Since that time, Mr. Sendak has grown a beard.

Mr. Sendak is a 45-year-old bachelor who lives in a farmhouse in southern Connecticut. He works in a big studio that has a writing table, a work table, a couch, a drawing table and many bookcases. His windows overlook a pretty landscape.

The Wild Things

Mr. Sendak thought about writing Where The Wild Things Are for three years. He sat down and wrote it in an hour, and took a year and a half to illustrate it.

His Ideas

Children often ask him where he gets his ideas. He feels they are like dreams. They come from an unconscious source in his brain. It's really a mystery.

Pets and Hobbies

Mr. Sendak had a terrier named Jennie who lived to be 14 years old. His own favorite book, Higgity Pigglety Pop, is about her. He now has two dogs, a German shepherd named Erda and a Golden retriever named Io.

Mr. Sendak likes to collect and to read books. He has just taken up needlepoint, which he does while relaxing and watching T V.

Hard Work

After finishing high school in Brooklyn, New York, he went to work for a window display company in New York. He studied art at night school. Mr. Sendak believes that hard work is the secret to success. He is working on a TV special planned for next Christmas.

His Goal

Mr. Sendak does not write just for children. His books are for people of all ages. His goal is to tell the truth and not soften the facts. He believes that children are a lot smarter than they are given credit for being. His success shows how much readers like what he does.

Book Report

Where The Wild Things Are, story and pictures by Maurice Sendak, published by Harper and Row.

Marty Michaels

"I think Where the Wild Things Are is an EXCELLENT and funny book. Mr. Sendak writes good and funny books, but this is an EXTREMELY good one. He draws realistic pictures. The monsters in the story are dumb and funny. These are the reasons I like Where the Wild Things Are."

By Marty Michaels, grade three, Raleigh, North Carolina.

Other books written and illustrated by Mr. Sendak are In the Night Kitchen, The Nutshell Library and Kenny's Window.

Animal of the Week:

The Walking Catfish

Walking catfish live in Florida. They can walk on land and live out of water for as long as 12 hours. They like to stay moist, so they usually walk at night, using their tail and fins to move like a snake. It is believed that these fish were brought here by tropical fish salesmen who threw them into ponds. These fish have done a lot of damage because they eat shrimp and other fish. However, cold weather has killed many of them, and helps keep them under control.

International Children's Book Day

International Children's Book Day is April 2. It is sponsored by the International Board on Books for Young People. This group is made up of librarians, teachers and other interested people from all over the world. They try to see that good books from many countries are translated into other languages so children around the world can enjoy them.

This group presents the Hans Christian Andersen Awards every two years to the outstanding living author and illustrator who have contributed the most to children's literature.
