

This is a Lesson in Economics

At first glance the wet sponge throw does not seem to have any bearing on the world of finance, but this little game at Bolton Elementary School is designed to teach second graders something about borrowing, income, earnings, and maybe losses. Second graders held a penny fair for first graders. The children thought of and made the games, rules, poster, and invitation. Teachers, acting as bankers, loaned the students money to buy prizes. The students will repay the debt out of income earned at the fair. If any profit is left, the students will decide how it will be spent. Teachers are Thelma Friedman, Eleanor Potterton, and Elsa Robinson. (Herald photo by Holland)

Special Training For Mothers Improves Childrens' I.Q.s

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI) — The I.Q.s of children whose mothers received special child care training was an average of 19 points higher than others without the benefit of such an experience, according to a Cambridge experiment with 2-year-old babies. According to statistics the Cambridge study showed significant improvement when mothers were given training in childhood education by instructors from the Cambridge High and Latin School. The women from low income families were shown how to get more joy out of reading aloud to their children and to share their toys. Babies of women taking part in the study, showed an increase in I.Q.'s after nine months.

Research by Dr. Burton L. White of the Harvard Graduate School of Education led to the program. White expressed the belief that building a child's curiosity in the first eight months of life could increase learning capacity.

Sullivan Denies Dean Allegation

BOSTON (UPI) — A former, high-ranking FBI official denies that he was willing to divulge FBI secrets in exchange for a White House appointment, the Boston Globe has reported. The newspaper said William C. Sullivan admitted giving former White House Counsel John W. Dean information about "the use of the FBI for political purposes by previous administrations."

But Sullivan said Dean lied when he told President Nixon during a March 13, 1973 meeting that Sullivan wanted to head a White House domestic intelligence system in exchange for the information. "If anyone had offered me a job it would have been a payoff. It would have been a violation of the law and I'd have turned him in," the Globe quoted Sullivan as saying. "I didn't want a damn thing from them. I never asked Dean or anyone else in the White House for anything."

The Globe said the transcript of the March 13, 1973 meeting with Dean depicted President Nixon "as having been so eager to conduct Watergate criticism of his administration he prepared to create a White House position as a payoff to Sullivan who was said by Dean to have been willing to disclose that Democrats used the FBI for political purposes."

However, the offer was never made, the article said. Sullivan, 61, was in charge of the FBI's domestic and foreign investigations and the bureau's

No. 3 official when he was ousted in October, 1971 by the late FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover. He was interviewed Monday in a Littleton, N.H. hospital where he is recovering from a heart attack, the newspaper said. "After much thought, I gave John Dean only the kind of material that I was willing to testify to publicly," Sullivan said. He said that was "less than one half per cent of what I could have divulged."

Board Vote 'Buys Time' On Salary Agreement

A proposed two-year salary agreement with public school administrators was rejected by the Manchester Board of Directors Tuesday night after several directors said they hadn't had time to review the proposal.

Directors voting to reject the agreement made it clear that they weren't objecting to the substance of the agreement, but instead were "buying time" to study the matter before approving it.

The board's rejection, however, leaves the door open for renegotiation of the administrators' agreement, which had already been approved by the Board of Education.

Asst. School Supt. Wilson Deakin said the school board is obliged to reopen negotiations with the Manchester School Administrators Association, but Deakin was hopeful that the agreement could be submitted to the directors for reconsideration next week, without further negotiations.

Principal Allan Cone, the association's negotiator, said he didn't think the administrators would push for further negotiations, and he was hopeful the directors would study the agreement and reconsider it.

Tuesday night was the deadline for Board of Directors' action on the proposed agreement. If no action was taken, the agreement would have gone into effect as required by state statute.

The directors voted 7 to 1 to reject the agreement. Carl Zisser was the lone dissenter, and Hilary Gallagher abstained.

The proposed two-year agreement would grant 6 1/2 per cent salary increases for school administrators, not including the central school office staff, Deakin said.

Deakin said the "fair" agreement would also provide for slight increases in fringe benefits, and the agreement would be "closed" in that it wouldn't provide for possible

Blind Visitor Thankful

By PAUL CORCORAN
BOSTON (UPI) — A former Japanese air force pilot in World War II says he was "lucky to become blind" because of the opportunities that have been offered to him, especially in America.

Dr. Shigeharu Matsura, 46, who did not speak a word of English until a severe case of tuberculosis caused his blindness in 1948, has particularly strong feelings about the way he has been treated in the United States. And he says the Japanese "may never catch up" to American or some European countries in the treatment given the blind and other handicapped people.

Matsura, at Boston University since April 18 to complete his oral doctorate examination for philosophy, is chairman of the education department at Shikoku Christian College, Zentsuji, Japan.

This is his third extended visit to America — he was here to study in 1958 and again during 1968-70. "I was happy to see Americans overcome some of the things that came out of Vietnam and campus unrest in 1968," he said. Watergate, he contends, is no different from the periodic abuses of Japanese government authority. But the articulate, slightly balding educator, is primarily interested in explaining what he has learned from his professional reading instruction from American friends and through U.S. educational institutions have done to change his life.

Mrs. Parkman Harding of Boston, who works with the blind at Boston University, sent tapes to Matsura for years as he progressed in learning English.

Kopecnes Would Vote For Teddy Kennedy

SWIFTWATER, Pa. (UPI) — The parents of Mary Jo Kopecne, who drowned in Sen. Edward Kennedy's car in Massachusetts in July, 1969 said today they would support him if he ran for President.

Kennedy said Monday night that "deep down" he would like to be President but would make a "definite kind of decision" about his plans by late 1975 or possibly earlier.

Mrs. Gwen Kopecne, 56, said from her home here, that "I'm for him and I would vote for him."

Mrs. Kopecne said she and her husband, Joseph, 61, were not politically minded and would not actively campaign for the senator but "he is still a lot better than what we've got now."

House Kills Transit Plan

HARTFORD (UPI) — A plan for a statewide mass transit program in Connecticut will have to wait until next year. With only hours left before adjournment, the state House Wednesday refused to suspend its rules to accommodate a bus subsidy bill approved by the Senate Tuesday. The House action effectively killed the measure for the session. The bill, which would have forced towns and cities to form transit districts and operate their own bus systems, specified a formula for state-local subsidies. The state would have paid 100 per cent of the cost of acquiring new buses, and two-thirds of a district's operating deficits, plus 90 per cent of its administrative cost. Passed by a 19-18 vote by the Senate, the measure was transmitted to the House after some deft maneuvering by Republicans. The measure should have been on the House calendar for at least two days before it could be acted on, but it reached that chamber only one day before adjournment. Not enough House members voted to suspend the rules, killing the measure for this session. The bill would have also created a 13-member Connecticut Transportation Authority, headed by the state transportation commissioner, to oversee the formation of transit districts and plan statewide mass transit programs. House Minority Leader Carl R. Ajello, D-Ansonia, criticized the Republicans for the defeat of the bill, which he said was "the most important bills of the session was put off until the last day in the House," Ajello said. House Democrats protested not enough time had been allowed them to study the provisions of the measures. Ajello said the Republicans "were trying to create a phony issue of the Democrats' action." "The truth is that the GOP leaders couldn't get their own troops behind the bill at today's caucus, and they decided to kill it in this manner rather than have it defeated on the floor," Ajello said. "This is the political party whose governor talked during the long bus strike in the Hartford area," Ajello said. They Were Hungry SAN REMO, Italy (UPI) — Four rats gnawed at electric cables overnight and touched off a short circuit that cut off power to the Mt. Biognone cableway, officials said. It took technicians three hours to fix the damage.

According to local coordinator Mimi Dunbar, individuals can still apply on their own, however, to the Social Security Administration. "If an elderly, blind, or handicapped person has an income under $160 a month, or a couple has an income under $260, it would certainly pay to check into the possibility of additional benefits," said Mrs. Dunbar. National Cemetery Proposed for State

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr., R-Conn., Wednesday called for the establishment of a national cemetery in Connecticut. Weicker said the lack of a burial ground for veterans in New England was a "disgraceful deficiency." He said he has won backing of veterans groups for his proposal. Weicker said the Veterans Administration estimates that 800,000 veterans will die in New England by the year 2,000, including 220,000 in Connecticut. In 1975, he said, 5,800 veterans are expected to die in that state alone and no national cemetery plots are available.

BOSTON (UPI) — Massachusetts Sen. John M. Quinlan, 38, of Norwood today officially launched his quest for the Republican nomination for secretary of state with a hard-hitting attack at John F.X. Davoren, the Democratic incumbent.

Describing the secretary of state's office as "the public's first line of defense against the corrosive influence of special interests and secret money on public policy," Quinlan charged that Davoren "through inactivity and incompetence" has "reduced the office" to a virtually ceremonial role.

Meat Same Despite Price

STORRS (UPI) — A student research group says it could find no difference between high-priced ground beef and low-priced ground beef in more than half the supermarkets sampled in a recent survey.

The Connecticut Public Interest Research Group, which consists of students from five Connecticut colleges, said Wednesday consumers are losing thousands of dollars each year by paying for top quality hamburger which is no better than lower priced beef.

The group said students from Trinity College and the University of Connecticut collected and analyzed samples of ground beef from 14 supermarkets in the Storrs and Hartford areas.

Of the 14 supermarkets, seven were selling ground beef for premium prices that was no better than lower-priced grades, the group said.

"One store was selling extra lean for 35 cents more per pound than their regular ground beef, yet the fat content in both was the same," said Steve Kayman, a spokesman for the group.

Kayman urged the state Department of Consumer Protection to institute fat content limits for ground beef, ground chuck and ground round.

Students in Mrs. Nellie Manwarren's fourth grade at the Hebron Elementary School went for their small town environment to the city of Willimantic for a field trip Tuesday. The first stop was the large, new Willimantic Post Office.

Adolph Wojcik, the post master, met with the children and discussed the complex job of moving the mail. He told them that 80 per cent of the mail is moved by air today, but trucks, trains, cars and even horses are still in use.

Wojcik stressed the importance of zip code in speeding the mail delivery process. He explained that the first three numbers indicated an area of the state and the last two indicated the specific town or part of a town.

He told the children that the Willimantic Post Office is the sectional center and mail for 42 other towns is delivered to Willimantic first. Mail comes to the sectional centers in large trucks and is sent to the smaller communities, including Hebron, in small vehicles.

There are 72 employees at the Willimantic Post Office. They handle about 150,000 pieces of mail per day.

Super Market

The next stop on the trip was the Willimantic Shop-Rite store. At the supermarket the children were shown all of the back room activities necessary to the operation of a large grocery outlet.

They examined the meat cutting room, the dairy cooler, the stock room, the delicatessen and the bakery. They also saw a demonstration of the computerized ordering system and learned the meaning of the unit price stickers.

Senior Citizens Club

After lunch in Willimantic's Recreation Park the children moved on to the Senior Citizens Club where they entertained the members by playing the spoons.

The performers were given a warm reception by the seniors and were treated to cake and soda after the show. Before leaving for school the children, each placed a penny in the club's wishing well and made a wish.

Meskill outlaws use of bow and arrow for deer hunting unless a permit to use such weapon is obtained.

Peace Corps Seeks French-Speaking Recruits

JIM MCGREGOR

MADAWASKA, Maine (UPI) — Nelson A. Pepin is a man with a strange mission. He is searching Maine's north woods and the remote St. John River Valley for people with names like Levesque, Roy and Pelletier.

He wants to send them to Africa.

His search, however, is far from sinister. He is a Peace Corps recruiter who is hooked on ethnic recruiting and the father of an idea to recruit native Franco-Americans who are fluent in French. The northern sections of Maine are dotted with communities filled with people who have lived all their lives in the state but who have inherited a second language and culture.

Pepin, of French Canadian descent, thinks both can be put to good use in several emerging African nations that were former French colonies. French is still a common language there along with the native dialects.

"We're looking for all skills and trades," said Pepin during a stop in this town. "We want carpenters, plumbers and dirt farmers. Africa needs all skills and all professions."

To find these people, along with professionals like teachers and nurses, Pepin stops at colleges, vocational trade schools, and the local employment office. He secures air time on the local radio station and talks to the editor of the weekly newspaper.

Peace Corps had been tried among blacks and Pepin said he was convinced it would work among other groups. The current Franco-American project is being tried in Rhode Island and Massachusetts as well as Maine.

Pepin, who lives in Biddeford, said he feels the program is going to be a success. "We already have 10-15 excellent candidates," he said. "We have one man from this area who is working on a degree at UCLA and he is going to interrupt his studies to take part. We've also got people skilled in fisheries and teachers."

However, it takes a lot of talking and work on Pepin's part to get the recruits.

Bald Eagle Eggs Transplanted On Maine Refuge

AUGUSTA, Maine (UPI) - Two bald eagle eggs transplanted from Minnesota to Maine nests last week are apparently being accepted by their foster parents. Frank Gramlich of the U.S. Wildlife Service office here said the eagles were absent from their nests for only about 30 minutes Friday when the transplanting operation took place. He said the birds have been tending the Minnesota eggs with great care since their return to the nests. The experiment, believed to be the first of its kind, is being carried out to determine the causes of poor hatching success in nests along Maine's Kennebec River. Gramlich said that eagle eggs in Minnesota were already beginning to hatch and that the two transplanted eggs may yield eaglets in the very near future. "Operation egg plant" is a cooperative venture involving the Maine Fish and Game Department, the U. S. Forest Service, the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources and the Maine Audubon Society.

Boston Diocese Seeks Priest

BOSTON (UPI) - Hoping to offset what Cardinal Humberto Medeiros has termed a critical shortage of priests, the Catholic archdiocese of Boston has started an advertising campaign to attract men to the priesthood. "We are trying to reach parents," said the Rev. Paul Walsh, director of the Vocation Information Center at St. John's Seminary. "We feel priests are not mentioning the priesthood or the religious life as a career choice for their children." The archdiocese will use low key public service television and radio spot announcements and advertising on public transportation systems to get the message to the public. In addition, the center has already begun to sponsor regional forums to urge parents to encourage their children to become priests.

Investment Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI)—Soaring interest rates have kept investors on the sidelines and volume sluggish, according to E. F. Hutton & Co. "The overall impression is of a sold out market," the firm says, "one which would not need much of an excuse to go up."

The mixed trend of many economic indicators will continue for some months, but no major recession is in the offing," says International Statistical Bureau, Inc. It predicts the prime rate and discount rate will peak in the next several weeks.

HOW ABOUT SERVICE?

It seems more and more people are asking this question, and rightly so. An expensive item like a Color TV or Stereo should give many years of good, economical performance. We love to answer this question because we have something to be proud of. We sell only one brand. We do our own service. We stock more replacement parts in our service shop for Magnavox than many others do for all their brands combined. We like to have our customers happy and we try hard to have them that way.

Downtown Parking

(Continued from Page One) The impetus for consideration of town takeover of the street (State Rt. 83) was a campaign by downtown merchants who wish to retain angle parking on the street. The state has plans to change some areas to parallel parking, resulting in a loss of about 30 parking spaces.

Teen Drop-in Center Proposed

Ambitious plans for a Teen Drop-In Center have been proposed in a report prepared by James Young, director of Tri-Town Youth Services. Young recommends that the town authorize the program, guarantee payment of essential operating costs and moving his office, presently located in the Memorial Building, to the Teen Center on Rt. 30.

Young also suggests that a full-time non-professional staff member be hired to supervise the center and he recommends a salary of $6,000 for the position, plus vacation time and other benefits given town employees. Young said he polled students at Rockville High School and the Vernon Center Middle School, with the assistance of Christine Bettinelli. He said the success of the open house plan for teen-agers, established by the Knights of Columbus, prompted interest in establishing a town-operated drop-in center. A suggested place for the drop-in center is the building formerly occupied by the Lutheran Church on W. Main St. Young said he feels the present Teen Center on Rt. 30 is away from the population center and is on a hazardous stretch of road.

Gas Leak Stopped — Chloroform leaking from barrels aboard a truck was transferred safely to sound containers, averting the possible need to evacuate nearby houses.

Police moved the truck from a truck stop Tuesday after the leak was discovered, then used special safety equipment to complete the transfer Wednesday.

The area around the truck carrying the barrels full of poisonous, volatile liquid was cordoned off while the work went on. Workers wore masks and air packs borrowed from the fire department to work around the faulty barrels, which were being shipped from Delaware to Grotton.

Mr. and Mrs. Nalley, while residents of North Carolina, were selected to join a group of clowns known as the Carolina Clowns, Inc. His clown name is "Doodles," and hers is "Tiny." The Carolina Clowns is a non-profit group of people who banded together because of their desire to make others happy. They visit hospitals, schools, church functions and such.

Since moving to Vernon, the Nalleys have become active in town affairs including Boy Scouting, Vernon Teen Center, Vernon Jaycees, and the Rockville General Hospital's volunteer program. The couple has one son, Michael.

Lincoln Center Bids Opened — Bids were received Wednesday from 11 suppliers for furnishing materials for alterations to Lincoln Center (the old Lincoln School) and from six other suppliers for furnishing air conditioners for 16 of its rooms.

Mr. Maurice Pass, Manchester purchasing agent, said the bids will be analyzed before any contracts are let. He said prices were offered on eight categories of materials and on seven varieties of air conditioners — with one or another of the bidders the apparent low for one or another of the categories and varieties.

Clowning for Charity

Richard and Pam Nalley of Vernon "clown around" for charity. A husband and wife team, formerly of North Carolina, the couple will be aiding the Suburban Women's Club of Vernon, Tolland, and Ellington in its "Clown Town" event scheduled for later this month.

The club sponsors the event each year and it is the prime fund-raising activity of the year. Proceeds go to support local charities.

Transcripts Selling Out

NEW YORK (UPI) — Paperback versions of the Watergate transcripts are selling faster in New York and Washington than they can be produced. A normal big first run for a paperback publisher is 100,000 copies, but Dell said it printed 700,000 in a first run and has started a second. Bantam hiked the first printing from 450,000 to 600,000 because it was being flooded with reorders by bookstore owners.

The government printing office is selling the official volume, a bulky softbound double spaced pages, for $12.25. Dell is selling the transcripts printed in 600 pages for $2.45. Bantam's version, at $7.95, costs $2.55, and a commercial version similar in format to the government's official one, except it comes in three volumes, is offered by Brentano's for $10.95.

Airbags Won't Eliminate Need For Seat Belts

By JAMES V. HEALION GREENWICH (UPI) — It only takes a moment for some things, but when an airbag is activated in an automobile accident it takes just a "millisecond" and it deflates almost as quickly. A timetable set by the federal government makes it mandatory that the bags or some similar passive restraint system be standard equipment on 1977 models. As good as the bags may be, when new cars roll off the Detroit assembly lines it is expected they will still be equipped with lap belts. Eugene P. Conese, president of Irvin Industries Inc. here, which makes the protective systems says the bags have to be used in conjunction with lap belts because the bags are ineffective in all but head-on crashes. If technology in the meantime advances to the point where the bags would be effective in rollovers, side impacts, secondary or tertiary crashes — when most accident fatalities and serious injuries occur — then the belts might not be needed. Company spokesmen differentiate between lap and seat belts, saying that seat belts include shoulder harnesses which, generally, would be unnecessary with an airbag installation. Lap belts will be required front and rear in 1977 models with the bags required only in the front. The airbag is activated by a sensor in the car's front end which causes the bag to inflate upon impact between the driver and the steering wheel or between a passenger and the dash. It deflates quickly to allow a driver to regain control of the vehicle. Conese's firm manufactures both air bags and lap belts. Its founder, Leslie L. Irvin, presented a seat belt to Barney Oldfield, the American racing immortal, in 1922. Texas, Anyone? AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Texas measures 801 miles from north to south and 773 miles from east to west, with each distance measured at the longest possible spot.

Scout Council Honors Two from Town

Two Manchester residents were honored recently at the Long Rivers Council of Boy Scouts annual banquet at the Aetna Life Insurance Co., Hartford. Wilbert N. Auden of Starkweather St. was presented the Silver Beaver award, and Mrs. Ann Madson of Northfield St. the Silver Fawn award. Both citations are the highest awards a scout council may bestow upon a volunteer leader for distinguished and outstanding service to youth. The awards were presented by Jonathan Birnie of Eastfield. Auden is Boy Scout Roundtable commissioner in Manchester and previously served as scoutmaster of Troop 27 for three years. He formerly taught Sunday School at St. Mary's Episcopal Church for 13 years. He has been a member of the Manchester Permanent Memorial Day Committee for about six years, and last year served on the Sequelcentennial Committee. Mrs. Madson is a member of the Cub Scout Roundtable staff and teaches craft to den leaders in the Algonquin District. She also teaches the art of leaded glass at adult education classes at South Windsor High School and for the Manchester Recreation Department. She formerly was den leader coach for Pack 54 at Bentley School and a library aide at Bowers School. She is a member of the Women's Auxiliary of the Manchester Midget Football Association.

Mrs. Jane Harrison, Bennet art teacher, shows Bennet students the methods of making plaster casts in the beach sand. The students scraped in the sand, sometimes adding branches and leaves, to make a form and then poured plaster into the design to create the final product.

Bennet Students in Outdoor Class

Students work on the beach at making terrariums, which are floral displays in jars made with any of the assorted leaves, flowers, or pebbles the students can find. Mrs. Cathleen Sampson, center, demonstrates.

Leaving early Monday morning, April 22, a group of about 90 seventh grade students from Bennet Junior High School left for a week-long trip of coexistence with nature at the YMCA Camp Jewell in Colebrook. The students are part of educational team D-7 which works with the same group of teachers throughout the year. The students engaged in such activities as camping, lumbering, plaster casting, terrarium building, as well as classes in art and formal composition and writing.

The team teachers accompanying the group were Ms. Josephine Taylor, Mrs. Micheline Poremba, Miss Susan Redney, and Richard Bennet.

Other teachers from Bennet and Hilling Junior High School who assisted in the week's activities were Killian P. Steinmeyer, Lou Gamache, Mrs. Cathleen Sampson, Andrew Vincens, Mrs. Jane Harrison, and Michael Ortitelli.

Photos and Story by John W. Mrosek

In the old Hitchcock Cemetery, some Bennet students try their hand at grave rubbing. The cemetery is located within Camp Jewell and is scenically tucked away.

Juan Sanchez, director at Oak Grove Nature Center, explains how a beaver has cut off a tree limb at the beaver pond. He told the students a beaver can chew through a three-inch tree in about six minutes.

Two students learn the fine points of splitting wood. Lumbering skills were among those taught at the camp.

Three youngsters take break after constructing their lean-to. Each of the 92 campers spent one night sleeping outdoors sometime during their stay. The group of campers assigned to "sleeping out" would spend the day preparing the camp for the night.

ENERGY WORLD

By ANDREW A. YEMMA AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Quiet and unassuming, Lt. Gov. William P. Hobby makes an unlikely spokesman for the most energy-active state in the nation.

Yet during the past year Hobby has devoted more of his official time to his duties as chairman of the governor's Energy Advisory Council than anything else.

"Texas is well known as the largest energy producing state," Hobby said. "But Texas is the largest consuming state as well."

"Because our size is second only to Alaska, we use more energy in transportation. We're also a leading agricultural state, and agriculture is a large user of energy. And with our refineries we're the largest petrochemical producing state, and that takes a very large amount of energy."

Drives Small Car As lieutenant governor, Hobby's constitutional duties prescribe that he preside over the Senate and be prepared to take over for the governor in case of illness or death. But during his first term, Hobby has maintained a low political profile, choosing to work behind the scenes on a project he believes is vitally important to both his state and nation.

Though his family is one of the state's wealthiest, Hobby was driving a Volkswagen to save gasoline long before it became fashionable, and his wife, Diana, rode a bicycle daily between the State Capitol and the University of Texas during the 1973 Legislature.

"It's very ironic that the 20th Century is going to go down as the century of oil and gas," Hobby said. "All the discoveries made in this century are going to be burned up in this century."

That statement leads him to advocate new governmental regulations on the uses of the nation's cheapest fuels — gas and oil.

Must Preserve Fuels "Natural gas is the basic feedstock for the petrochemical industry," he said. "It's a basic raw material for most of our chemical fertilizers, and the effect of the energy crisis on agriculture is something we've just begun to see."

"It's silly to use natural gas as a boiler fuel when it's so valuable as an agricultural feedstock. We have got to — through governmental policy, whether taxation or regulatory — see that gas and oil are preserved for their highest uses — transportation, agricultural and petrochemical feedstocks."

Still Hobby insists a hands-off governmental approach to the energy industry's pricing and profits policies is necessary for a healthy national economy. For that reason he opposes the Consumer Energy Act now before Congress, agrees with critics that the act may lead to nationalization of the oil and gas industry and says President Nixon "wisely" vetoed similar legislation last December.

"The real danger from legislation like that is, that it would lead to the worst of both possible worlds," Hobby said. "We need more investments in the field of energy, and it's going to take the investment of mass amounts of capital funds."

Favors Coal The Chase Manhattan Bank put out a figure just recently that was so immense that it staggers the imagination — it was in the hundreds of billions of dollars.

"But where does the investment money come from? Investment is made in the expectation of making a profit. This kind of legislation can lead to high prices and still not attract the investments necessary to solve the problems."

Hobby predicts that the 1975 Legislature, with recommendations from his Energy Council, will handle its energy legislation in a routine manner. He doesn't anticipate the need for an emergency session as was contemplated at the height of the energy crisis last December.

Until the lawmakers return to the Capitol, Hobby says he will be advocating more efficient uses of the state's oil and gas reserves — like turning to coal, for instance, to fire the boilers of electrical generators.

Food Prices May Stabilize This Summer

By LEONARD CURRY UPI Business Writer WASHINGTON (UPI) — Declining worker production in 1974 is the latest sign the economy is in recession, but the 3.5 point drop in private, nonfarm production is a symptom of economic recession, rather than an indication that the work force is growing less efficient.

The Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics has reported output per man hour fell by 5.5 per cent in the first quarter — with about 2 points of the drop in the farm sector.

The 3.5 point drop in private, nonfarm production is a symptom of economic recession, rather than an indication that the work force is growing less efficient.

"I don't think workers suddenly became unproductive between December and March," said Arthur M. Okun, senior fellow at the Brookings Institution and chairman of the Johnson administration's Council of Economic Advisers.

Lower Prices AFL-CIO economic chief Nathan Goldfinger agrees it is "not a reflection of inefficient output by workers." And Dr. Richard S. Landry, economist for the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, believes the decline in worker output is a signal that the "economy peaked late in calendar year '73."

Within the sagging worker production figures, however, lies the promise of more plentiful and possibly cheaper food supplies for consumers — depending on U.S. weather conditions and harvest in other nations.

Traditionally, farm production based on the flow of dollar income against dollars paid out declines in the winter and spring when fields are being tilled and planted. The production figures reverse in the summer and fall when crops are harvested.

In the first quarter of 1974, however, there was a "sharp" drop in farm output, according to Labor Department statisticians. They said this confirms Agriculture Department reports that farmers are putting more land into production and that weather has been unusually kind.

The Chamber's Landry points out that factory worker production declined by 2.2 per cent in the first quarter, a slight improvement from the 3.3 per cent drop in the last quarter of 1973.

The Roman Catholic Church maintains 23,796 churches in the United States with approximately 48,900-990 members.

Factory Production Declined But aside from the prospects of more food, which could lead to stable or lower prices to consumers, is the gloomy confirmation that the nonfarm economy is in decline.

Swedish-U.S. Breach Healing

By Phil Newsom UPI Foreign News Analyst

With an exchange of ambassadors, the United States and Sweden are about to close a breach which never should have occurred in the first place.

It began in 1968 and if it proved anything it was that governments are made up of human beings.

"Few people are so pro-American as the Swedes," said Swedish Premier Olaf Palme, and American travelers in Sweden can bear witness to his words.

Yet it was Palme with an extraordinary lack of diplomatic tact who contributed most to the chill. And it was two American administrations under Lyndon B. Johnson and Richard Nixon, reacting with extraordinary harshness against an ordinarily friendly nation, that sustained it.

Speak on World Affairs It was the more extraordinary since criticism even more harsh than that leveled against U.S. policy in Vietnam by Palme also had been voiced not only by the Soviet Union and China, with whom the United States was seeking friendly relations, but also by another supposed ally, France.

In no case was American retaliation so severe. It was the late Harry S. Truman who warned those who couldn't stand the heat to stay out of the kitchen. Palme not only never was in the Vietnam kitchen, he also never had to take his heat. His position was that even though neutral, Sweden still had the right to speak out on world affairs.

In the case of Vietnam, it led him: On Feb. 21, 1968, while Swedish education minister to march with the North Vietnamese ambassador to Moscow in a torchlight protest against the war in Vietnam.

On Dec. 23, 1972, to issue a statement condemning the U.S. bombing of North Vietnam as an "outrage" comparable to Nazi atrocities in World War II.

Cambodia Bombing On other occasions, Swedish spokesmen condemned "discriminate" U.S. bombing in Cambodia, and, after the overthrow of the Marxist Allende government in Chile, attacked the military junta and criticized American policy.

School books distributed in Sweden pictured Russians dolls on the volume dealing with the Soviet Union. The book on the United States pictured black children behind a fence, suggesting segregation.

Adding to American irritation was asylum granted by Sweden to more than 400 American deserters and a Swedish announcement even before the war had ended that $40 million in reconstruction and other assistance would be made available to North Vietnam.

After Palme's march with the North Vietnamese ambassador in 1968, President Johnson called home the American ambassador, William Heath, and for a year the post was not filled. Palme's strongly expressed views in 1972 led Nixon to withhold an ambassador and to tell Sweden a Swedish envoy would not be welcome.

Perhaps a better measure of U.S.-Swedish relations is the fact that cultural and business relationships have continued strong.

Diplomatically, it is possible that both sides over-reacted.
