DevCo Releases New Town Plan

MONICA SHEA, Correspondent 742-9458

In a new conference yesterday afternoon, Peter Libassi, president of Greater Hartford Process DevCo said "I believe that residents of Coventry will support the new community after they have had a chance to look over and review the proposal and will realize that the alternative to the new community are far worse than having the new community in Coventry."

The press conference was called to make public the details of plans for the new community.

Libassi said DevCo is interested in making public three basic points about the new community: what the proposal actually is; why it is in Coventry's best interest; and that the new community will be good for the region as a whole.

Libassi said, "We own 1,800 acres in Coventry, 25 per cent of this land will be preserved as open space. This open space will not include roads of back yards."

Sixty-five acres have been put aside for schools sites, four elementary schools and one middle school."

He said, "We had taken great pains to preserve bog, wetlands and large trees."

Libassi said the new community would include two village centers, each of which would include commercial and retail space, office space as well as housing.

"The village centers are important because they will be the focal point of community life," he said.

He said, "The new community will contain a total of 6,000 dwelling units in a full range of prices from $25,000 to $80,000."

Two thirds of these units will be family-owned with one third of the units rentals ranging from $200 to over $450 monthly."

Libassi said, "The new community would also include 1,000 one-family detached family homes and 110 acres of employment centers with approximately 4,000 jobs on the site. The new community will generate another 3,000 jobs in the vicinity."

Libassi said the new community would include: "a walk-in health care center with ten or more full-time physicians and extensive recreational facilities such as an 18-hole golf course, tennis courts and swimming pools."

Libassi said the new community "will be a credit to the town and something that the people of Coventry can be proud of."

Libassi listed six reasons why the new community would be in Coventry's best interest: it will stabilize the tax rates and produce a tax revenue surplus of $18 million dollars by 1990 and $2.3 million every year thereafter; attract additional employment opportunities; supply housing for the elderly; provide additional health and recreational services; provide sewer service and help the town to preserve the rural atmosphere in the rest of the town.

Libassi said the new community will be good for the region because, "It will fulfill a variety of goals which are traditionally in conflict in our society. The new community will show a concern for the environment, show an appropriate concern for education and housing needs and is fiscally responsible."

Libassi said, "It will generate initially an average payroll of $5 million per year for people in and around the new community, with an ultimate payroll of $3 million per year."

Libassi said the plan reflects the needs and interests and desires of the people of Coventry that we have heard during the many hours spent in conversations with Coventry residents."

Rondino Leaves Hearing

Rep. Peter Rodino, chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, talks to newsmen following a closed session of the committee's impeachment inquiry. The group was told in a letter from President Nixon to Rodino that the Chief Executive would not turn over any more tapes or documents relating to the impeachment panel's investigation of the Watergate case.

Rodino called Nixon's response to the committee's subpoenas "a very grave matter."

Officials Turn Back Data

COVENTRY (UPI) - An informal proposal for "new town" development by the Greater Hartford Process, Inc., got a cool reception from Coventry officials.

The Greater Hartford Community Development Corp. (DevCo), development arm of Process, Wednesday sent its first written proposal to Coventry officials.

But Soira Stave, chairman of the town Planning and Zoning Commission, said Wednesday that town attorneys advised against accepting anything less than a formal proposal from the firm.

DevCo sent out copies of a 75-page proposal to Coventry officials.

DevCo also requested a meeting with zoning officials to talk about the project before a formal request for a zoning change to accommodate the community is made.

Mrs. Stave said that request will be discussed at the commission meeting Tuesday.

DevCo plans to have about 6,000 housing units built by 1990, plus schools, business and commercial developments and transportation and other public services.

The Public Utilities Commission allowed Hartford Electric Light Co. and Connecticut Light & Power to raise their rates by only 40 and 70 per cent of the requested amounts respectively.

HELCO wants to increase its revenues $23 million and CL&P wants to increase its revenues by $25 million."

However, the partial increase will provide HELCO with only $13.8 million and CL&P with $17.5 million. The temporary increases will raise customers' bills by 9 per cent and 10 per cent, respectively, as early as next month.

Lelan F. Sillin Jr., president of Northeast Utilities, the holding company for HELCO, CL&P and three other utilities serving Connecticut and Massachusetts, said the lower-than-asked for increases fall to solve the companies' financial woes.

Sillin said the rate hikes are not enough to improve the companies' abilities to raise the capital it needs to continue its construction programs.

Dismissal Asked In Ellsberg Case

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Defense lawyers asked Federal Judge Gerhard A. Gesell today to dismiss charges of all five defendants in the Ellsberg break-in case on grounds of "massive, prejudicial, pretrial publicity."

Gesell implied that if the material is not provided, he might dismiss all charges in the case involving the break-in of the Beverly Hills office of the psychiatrist of Pentagon Papers defendant Daniel Ellsberg in 1971.

Ehrlichman, Colson and three others are charged with conspiracy in the burglary.

"I don't want to go to trial today, on motions about the national security and publicity aspects of the case."

The judge issued a subpoena on Wednesday for personal files of former White House aides John D. Ehrlichman and Charles W. Colson, two of the defendants, saying he wanted all "relevant and material" evidence made available to the defendants.

Gesell implied that if the material is not provided, he might dismiss all charges in the case involving the break-in of the Beverly Hills office of the psychiatrist of Pentagon Papers defendant Daniel Ellsberg in 1971.

Agnew May Face New Federal Suit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Justice Department is considering filing a civil suit to recover payments Spiro T. Agnew allegedly received from Maryland contractors while he was vice president, an official said Wednesday.

Robert Ashbaugh, a trial attorney in the Justice Department's civil fraud section, said "we have a file concerning the possible civil liability of Mr. Agnew."

Ashbaugh said a final decision would be made after Maryland officials completed their corruption investigations. A Justice Department investigation of Agnew made public at the time of his resignation as vice president last Oct. 10 alleged that he received $30,000 from two Maryland contractors while vice president in addition to kickbacks he allegedly received as Baltimore County executive and governor of Maryland.

Agnew was allowed to plead no contest to a single charge of income tax evasion, pay a $10,000 fine and resign.

A New Way With Whey
Belleville, Md. — Whey, a liquid by-product of cheesemaking, exceeds demand. Federal scientists have devised a way to evaporate and solidify it so it can be crushed and dry-blended with other cattle feed or pelleted.

This discovery may provide cheesemakers with a useful and profitable outlet for their excess whey.

Fluoridation Debated In Boston

BOSTON (UPI) — Members of the House Ways and Means Committee have been told that 5.8 million needless tooth cavities developed in the past four years because the Metropolitan District Commission (MDC) failed to fluoridate its water supply.

Myron L. Alakian of Boston, a proponent of fluoridation, has appeared before the committee to urge immediate approval of $11 million to fluoridate the MDC supply.

"Fluoridation," Alakian said, "has been delayed for four years and during that time 5.8 million new cavities appeared which could have been avoided."

Alakian was joined by representatives of the Massachusetts Dental Society and former Public Health Commissioner Wilfred Frechette in supporting the expenditure.

Joseph B. Kelly of the dental society estimated that $5 million a year in dental bills could be saved by fluoridation of the supply which serves Boston and several surrounding communities.

The requested funds would cover the installation of needed equipment to complete the four-year battle for fluoridation.

Frechette said that 28 of the 33 communities in the district have voted in favor of fluoridation.

Later in the hearing, however, several opponents of fluoridation appeared to oppose the request. The $1.1 million item is part of a $167 million capital outlay budget now pending before the Ways and Means panel.

'Bug' Helps Police Keep Track of Undercover Men

EDITOR'S NOTE: The police want to keep an electronic eye on their undercover men. This report shows how it is done and the concern some have for the method's other possible uses.

By JAMES V. HEALON
HARTFORD (UPI) — James Bond concealed an electronic bloodhound in Goldfinger's Rolls Royce and he was able to track the fat man as it beeped its "Here I am" message. Now a similar device has surfaced in the police arsenal and its signal may generate a constitutional question.

The magnetized gadget weighs about a pound, has a 12-inch aerial, operates for almost a week on transistor radio batteries and can be slapped on a subject's car. Maximum range varies between five and 12 miles, depending on terrain. It emits a radio signal that creates a beep in the receiver of the surveillance car. When the beep gets stronger, it indicates the follower is getting closer to the target vehicle.

In the old days, a wary driver could "square a block" to check the tail, but the new gadget makes detection more difficult. While they sometimes are known in the trade as "bloodhounds," and "bumper beepers," they are essentially tracking transmitters. Dick Sulman, a Hartford electronics surveillance man, says their use is legal.

The units were contained in 12 crime kits the Connecticut state police received under a $15,000 grant from the federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, the government's anti-crime agency.

No mention was made of suspects' cars. The versatility of the gadgets concerns civil libertarians who visualize their being placed on cars whose owners are unaware of their presence.

"It's a wiretap of the car, really," said Robert E. Smith, associate director of "Privacy Project," a Washington-based American Civil Liberties Union study group monitoring government surveillance and data collection by consumer credit agencies and insurance companies.

Smith said possible use on unsuspecting could be an infringement of privacy and encroachment on freedom of travel. Totally legitimate activities would be tracked and would include anybody using a targeted car, just as wiretaps include conversations of innocent people, he said.

As far as he knew, their use was concentrated on the Mexican border by the federal government to thwart drug smuggling into the United States. Connecticut's use may be the first on a state level, he said.

Any applicable Federal Communications Commission regulations would have to be observed because radio frequencies are used in the process, Smith said.

Tracking devices are not exactly new to Connecticut. UPI has learned that a less sophisticated gadget was used in the mid-1960s to keep an electronic eye on some burglary suspects, but it was then found lacking.

Surveillance specialists say the improved gadgets help greatly in tracking trucks and cargo. Despite its small size, the threat of discovery is always present and can be costly. One tracker found his beeper going awry and he determined the driver of the target car had discovered it, and was rattling it, wondering what it could be. The tracker said it cost $300 for a replacement.

Wingfield Last Of Nation's Windmill Fixers

HAMILTON, Ill. (UPI) — Edwin Wingfield may be the last full-time windmill repairman in the nation. He says he knows of no others in his line. At 59, "It's not any easy way to make a living," he said in an interview.

From his Hamilton home — across the Mississippi River from the Iowa-Missouri border — he travels hundreds of miles to jobs. Sometimes he just cruises rural roads looking for a windmill needing fixing.

"I can size up a windmill in two minutes. I can tell you how old it is, what repairs have been made, and what's wrong with it," he said.

When he spots an ailing windmill from the road, he will stop to the farm house, introduce himself as "the windmill man," and offers his services. Often the people have been trying for years to find someone who could repair their windmill.

Wingfield is a self-taught repairman — he was in construction until a day 23 years ago when a friend asked him to help repair a windmill.

"I have sort of a categorical mind when it comes to windmills," he said. "I remember them like I remember faces."

About once a year Wingfield, his wife and their 15-year-old son ride the Santa Fe to California to visit relatives. One reason they take the train, he said, is "so I can look at windmills."

"I bet I know every windmill on both sides of the tracks between here and Los Angeles," he said.

At one time, Wingfield said, 19 to 20 companies in the United States made windmills and sold them to farmers and ranchers from coast to coast. Today, he knows of only one firm that makes the small-bladed, American-type windmill and its plant is in South America, where windmills are in demand for large cattle ranches.

Pre-World War II Wingfield said the windmills now in use are mostly pre-World War II types, some of them manufactured 75 or more years ago. Fixing them has its hazards.

Wingfield must climb the spindly-legged windmill towers — generally about 50 feet high — to get to the mechanism that connects the wind-driven wheel to the pump. The wheel and large metal vane that keeps it pointed into the wind can shift suddenly and deliver a damaging and possibly fatal blow.

Sometimes the platform near the top of the windmill gives way, leaving his dangling in space by a nylon safety line. "That's something you never get used to," he said.

Wingfield said he "never had any trouble" with the door-to-door approach. "Everyone likes to talk windmills, but some don't want to have them fixed," he said.

Sheen Considers A Return to TV

NEW YORK (UPI) — Archbishop Fulton J. Sheen, the eloquent priest who became a TV idol during the 1950s and 1960s, may return to the air next year with a new series. UPI has learned.

Sheen, one of the Roman Catholic Church's best known preachers and evangelists, is negotiating with a public broadcasting station in Toledo, Ohio, WGTG, for a half-hour, 13-week series, "What Now America."

The Public Broadcasting System and Archbishop Sheen's office in New York confirmed that talks are under way. WGTG said a contract has been drawn up and will be sent to Sheen.

The theme of the show will be contemporary problems affecting the United States and the world. "It will not be a religious show," said Dana Cox, WGTG vice president and general manager.

Among the topics that have been proposed for the show are: "Can America Survive?" "Honesty" and "Freedom." The show will be offered to the public broadcasting television network free. PBS has more than 200 television stations. A spokesman for PBS in New York said the network will study WGTG's proposal.

Archbishop Sheen began his broadcasting career in 1930 with "The Sunday Catholic Hour" on the NBC radio network. In 1962, he started a 14-year television career that gained him numerous awards including an Emmy. During his peak, he was one of the top-rated performers with his series, "Life is Worth Living."

The archbishop's style was marked by a witty and persuasive personality that often left his audiences enraptured. In recent years he has been an occasional guest on television.

Sheen, who holds the honorary post of titular archbishop of Newport, R.I., was formerly archbishop of Rochester, N.Y. He resigned that post in 1969 after three years.

He was also director of the Society for the Propagation of the Faith, but resigned that post in 1969.

Tramway Firm Started With Lowly T-Bar

By BRENDA W. ROTZOLL
CANTONVILLE, N.H. (UPI) — The first time one asked O. D. Hopkins if he would like to build a T-bar at New Hampshire's Mt. Sunapee ski area, he asked "What's a T-bar?" and turned the job down.

John A. Roebing's sons refused to take no for an answer, and now Hopkins is one of the nation's leading builders of aerial tramways — from T-bars to gondolas to those little chairs that skitter along on overhead tracks above some of America's biggest state fair and outdoor amusement parks. He also is branching into incline railroads in Puerto Rico, where at El Conquistador Hotel a winch pulls a car up a cliffside on rails in a variation of the Italian Funicular Railroad.

Along the way, Hopkins pioneered the use of helicopters in heavy construction work, lifting up the huge pipe of more than 20 inch diameter which forms the supports for the cables the various tramways run upon.

Hopkins went into business for himself at age 14. Born in Peking, China, where his grandparents were in business, he spent his early days in New Jersey. He was in boarding school in New England when at 14 he got fed up and ran away.

Within months he had persuaded his father to loan him operating money to run a farm he bought on a no-money-down mortgage, some indication of his persuasive powers.

He hauled milk Sundays to oblige a friend, started excavating building foundations, and was happily snapping up most state public works bids for multi-phase general contracts in the $10,000-$25,000 range — nobody else wanted that size job — when Roebings came calling in 1959.

Hopkins said it was sheer pleasure at having one of the world's leading specialty steel companies ask him to work with them that got him to accept the first job from Roebing and put up that T-bar. Then Roebing was bought out by a conglomerate, and Hopkins eventually bought out Roebing's tramway plans section.

Aerial tramways were still something fairly new to him when in 1961 he got a contract to put up four lifts at Sunapee and Cannon Mountain, in the two state-owned ski areas in New Hampshire. There must be an easier way, he thought — what about helicopters to lift the 20-inch pipes which he was using for supports?

He put in permanent foundations and takes one set of chair rides on circuit each year to the Milwaukee Summerfest and state fairs at Springfield, Ill., Columbus, Ohio, Richmond, Va., and Phoenix, Ariz. He operates another tramway at the California State Fair in Sacramento.

He now is commuting by air to Wisconsin Dells, Wis., building a tramway to cross over Riverview Park, an amusement area which spans a scenic ravine near the Wisconsin River.

At major expositions, the tramways are planned for dual duty — an amusement ride, and a way of ferrying people from one part of the grounds to another, such as the parking lot.

South Windsor Sewer Project Status Explained

JUDY KUEHNEL
Correspondent
644-1364

The South Windsor administration has released the following information regarding status of the current sewer projects.

Residents living on the following streets may now connect their homes to the sewer lines: Arada Dr.; Beebeebub Rd.; Ellington Rd. (from Oakland Rd. to Foster St.); Foster St. (from Ellington Rd. to Beebeebub Rd.); High St., Hillside Dr., and Sleep Rd.

The following streets will be ready for residents' connections by June 1: Deepwood Dr. (from East of Palmer Dr. to Foster St.); Foster St. (from Beebeebub to Birch Hill Dr.); and Norman Dr.

Residents wishing to avail themselves of this new service must contact the collector of revenue at 644-2511, to arrange for the payment of a connection fee of $400.

Residents may select a licensed drain layer who will complete the necessary applications and permits to carry out the connection work. A list of drain layers, licensed to perform this work in South Windsor is on file at the Department of Pollution Control, 289-0185.

This connection fee is not to be confused with the assessment which will be levied in the future.

Final pavement overlay of the following streets will be completed by June 1: Beebeebub Rd., Ellington Rd., Foster St., Norman Dr., Palmer Drive (lower section), and Valley View Dr. (lower section).

Sewer installation and trench paving of the following streets will be completed by June 1: Brook St. (western and southern sections), Dart Hill Rd., Deepwood Dr. (eastern section), Fairview Dr., Farmstead Dr., Graham Rd. (southern section), Hayes Rd., Lewis Dr., Locust St., Mark Dr., Meadow Rd., Norma Rd., Oakland Dr., Overlook Rd., Also Poplar Dr., Robert Dr., Sunnyside Dr., Sunset Terrace, Thomas Dr., Tumblebrook Dr., and Valley View Dr. (upper section).

Loaming and seeding will be completed in the following streets by June 1: Beebeebub

Rd., Ellington Rd., Foster St., and all streets west of Graham Rd.

Sewer work will begin in the following streets on or about June 1: Deepwood Dr. (western section), Ellington Rd. (northern section), Felt Rd., Hazel Rd., Niederwerfer Rd., and Palmer Dr. (upper section).

Sewer construction on Buckland Rd. is proceeding, and it is anticipated that the construction will continue. The road will remain closed during daylight hours through June 15. During the week of May 20 it is necessary for the sewer contractor to install the main line sewer across Buckland Rd. which will require closing the road overnight, also.

This additional Buckland Rd. sewer construction has been necessitated by difficulties experienced from soil conditions in the area.

In conjunction with the sewer project, the widening of Graham Rd. will begin during the week of May 20. This project involves the installation of additional shoulder width on the road with a new pavement surface applied to the full new width.

Hornpipe For Health?

London — For a time on British ships, music was considered therapeutic. In the days before scurvy was known to stem from lack of vitamin C in the typical seagoing diet, British ships traditionally carried a fiddler, and seamen were made to dance — in belief that a lively hornpipe would stir up their blood and prevent disease.

Firm Issues Warning On Coffee Pots
WASHINGTON (UPI)—The West Bend Co. is notifying its distributors that $26,000 electric coffee pots turned out during the past 15 months may be a shock hazard.

The company told the Consumer Product Safety Commission it does not regard the problem as major. The hazard could develop if consumers fail to follow instructions in washing the pots, the firm said, but otherwise they should remain safe.

The pots involved were identified as "electric drip coffeemakers," distributed from February, 1973, until earlier this month.

Madrid—Spain imported about $1.5 billion in goods from the United States in 1973, a 45 per cent increase over 1972. This gave the United States a 16.9 per cent share of the Spanish market, about the same as in 1972.

Columbia

Plans Being Made For Bicentennial Events

VIRGINIA CARLSON
Correspondent
Tel. 238-9224

Plans for the Bicentennial celebration are beginning to take shape with a target date of June 10, 1976.

That date has been set around which to plan week-long or longer activities. Other activities will be held at other times but this date will be the highlight of this town's participation.

Suggestions include marking local sites, including dates of older houses, signs for public cemeteries, markers to help locate the sites of former structures at Wells Woods.

House tours are suggested as well as publications on historic aspects in town with one possibility a history of education in Columbia now being prepared by the Historical Society.

As of now, there are no funds appropriated for any project. To officially become a bicentennial committee, the local committee must write projects that cover at least two of the following three fields: Heritage 76; Festival U.S.A. of Honors '76.

The application is sent to the state and, on approval, to the federal government. If the project is approved, the town is presented with a bicentennial flag with the possibility of being federally funded.

The Boy Scouts have already planted trees at Firemen's Field, the Girl Scouts have begun a nature trail around the perimeter of the recreation area on Henniquin Rd.

The Lions Club intends to renovate that portion of "Stage Coach Road" which runs from east of the hockey rink to an old cellar hole in the back boundary of the property.

The Columbia Homemakers are interested in doing something on Colonial cooking and the Columbia Calicoes are interested in Colonial crafts on an adult education basis.

Other suggestions included a field day and parade including a field hockey rink to an old cellar hole in the back boundary of the property.

Bolton Planners Approve Subdivision

DONNA HOLLAND
Correspondent
Tel. 646-0375

The Planning Commission officially approved the first phase of the Fiora subdivision following receipt of a bond for it.

The entire parcel is owned by Lina Lucarelli.

The commission is allowing the owner to develop it by phases. Upon completion there will be a total of 90 lots.

Included in the first phase are 16 lots having frontage on either Fiora Rd. or Birch Mt. Ext.

Moratorium Suggested

Marshall Taylor, town counsel, recommended to the planning commission that a moratorium be established on all future subdivisions until the regulations for subdivisions are updated.

"Townpeople recently approved funds in the 1974-75 budget for the planning commission to hire an engineer to update the present subdivision regulations.

Funds were also approved to enable the engineer to be on plans for their inception and to officially check all roads from the start.

The planning commission usually hires the services of Hayden Griswold of the firm Griswold and Pius.

Selectmen

The town is in the process of leasing a dog pound on Rt. 6 located at Yankee Kennels for a period of six months with an option to continue provided it is agreeable to all concerned.

Louis Paggioli, who presently provides a dog pound for the town will terminate his services on May 31.

Cheerleader Clinics

The Women's Auxiliary of the Bolton Football Association will sponsor three clinics, at which the fundamentals of cheerleading will be taught, for girls who will be entering Grades 4 through Grade 12 in September and who are enthusiastic about cheering Bolton's midge and pony football teams to victory in the fall.

Clinics are scheduled to run May 29 and 31 from 3 until 4 p.m. and June 1 from 1 until 3 p.m.

Girls may attend one or all three of the clinics.

Tryouts for cheerleaders will be scheduled early in June. Important judges from out of town will choose team cheerleaders.

Anyone having questions may call Jocelyn Soares, WABFA president, 646-1261 or Donna Holland, WABFA vice president, 646-0375.

Bolton Ambulance Study Starts

DONNA HOLLAND
Correspondent

An ambulance study committee was appointed by the selectmen Monday to study the feasibility of the town's owning its own ambulance versus present ambulance services available.

The committee was also charged with how the ambulance service would be acquired, administered and funded.

Appointed to the committee were Jim Clark and Norman Preuss, individual residents and representing the following organizations, Bolton Volunteer Fire Department, Noel Pagan, Women's Auxiliary of the Bolton Volunteer Fire Department, Correnda Haugh, Bolton Junior Women's Club, Judy Miner, Selectmen, Leon Rivers, Fire Commissioners, Donna Holland.

Many area towns, upon learning a committee was being formed have offered their assistance.

The Manchester Ambulance Service, upon learning that service from Andover would end as of July 1, called to remind residents that its services are available 24 hours a day and it has qualified help.

It noted that persons unable to pay for an ambulance should not worry or hesitate to call if one is needed as arrangements for payment can be made.

The number of the Manchester Ambulance Service is 643-0550.

The selectmen urge residents to keep the number by their phone.

They also asked the committee to have the study ready for presentation in January.

Bolton Several Town Projects Under Way

At a recent Public Building Commission meeting, members discussed the future construction of the new town library, tennis courts and firehouse addition.

The PBC told architect Alan Wiedie to proceed with bid documents for the new town library.

The documents will be given to Marshall Taylor, town counsel, for his approval.

Members of the PBC hope to be able to send the bids out following their next meeting which is scheduled for May 29.

Once the bids are returned, concrete figures for the project will be available. Any and all bids can be rejected if necessary.

Andrew Maneggia, Board of Education chairman, presented the PBC with specifications for tennis courts that were used by the town of Ellington.

Maneggia and Douglas Cheney, PBC chairman, viewed two possible locations for the tennis courts at Bolton High School.

Edward Deslignere, PBC member, will write up specifications for Bolton's tennis courts so bids for the project can be sent out.

Cheney was authorized by commission members to investigate the feasibility of having an architect draw plans for the addition and renovation to the present firehouse which will be able to serve as a basis for bids.

Members hope to be able to purchase the plans outright from an architect.

Members also discussed the need for a zoning variance if the addition is approved as it will be too close to adjoining property lines.

At town meetings held earlier in the year residents approved a sum not to exceed $271,000 for construction of a new town library; $40,000 for construction of tennis courts at Bolton High School which is 50 per cent reimbursable and a sum not to exceed $1,000 for plans for an addition to and renovations to the present firehouse.

Castro's College Professor Still Teaching Him Lessons

By LEE RODERICK
(Special to The Herald)

WASHINGTON—When Fidel Castro seized power in Cuba in 1959, he stripped his former college professor, Herminio Portell-Vila, of his considerable influence by degrees but failed to silence him totally. It was an oversight that Castro no doubt has come to regret.

Dr. Portell-Vila, an outspoken anti-Communist who is well known in Latin America, has been a major thorn in the side of the Cuban dictator ever since. He managed to reach the United States in July, 1960, and since that time has been recording political radio programs that have been broadcast throughout much of Central and South America.

"Castro was in the class I taught in 1946 at the University of Havana," said Dr. Portell-Vila in a recent interview in his small office, tucked away in downtown Washington. "The class was on the history of the Americas and, although Castro was a good student, I flunked him for missing so many classes."

Dr. Portell-Vila added that Castro's frequent absences were due to his travel out of Cuba to learn the arts of revolution.

Castro, who, incidentally, later passed a special test and received credit for the class, got his revenge after seizing control of the government.

"I had been broadcasting in Cuba since 1939," said Dr. Portell-Vila, a small, pleasant man with white hair and horn rimmed glasses. "At the time of the revolution I had both a radio and a television program. They first took my voices away, then my teaching positions."

Dr. Portell-Vila began broadcasting for the Voice of America, the official U.S. Government radio network, in 1961. Although he still does limited work for VOA, his primary influence in Latin America comes through his harder hitting broadcasts on a radio series called Radio Free America, sponsored by the American Security Council, an independent organization specializing in national security affairs.

The Radio Free America broadcasts, which Dr. Portell-Vila has been recording for seven years, are widely heard in a dozen Latin American countries.

Although he has reported and analyzed numerous stories involving Cuba since coming to the U.S., Dr. Portell-Vila believes one of the hottest yet is a current one that has been all but ignored by U.S. media. It involves two recent murders in this country and strong though circumstantial evidence that they may have been directed from Havana.

The first victim was Jose E. de la Torre, a wealthy, Cuban-born U.S. citizen, and a leading anti-Castro figure. He had helped unite Cuban factions in the U.S. and in Latin America and reportedly had raised millions of dollars to purchase weapons for an eventual attack against the Castro regime.

On April 8th, Torre returned to his home in Miami following a visit to five Latin American countries where — according to Dr. Portell-Vila — he had reached agreements with individuals to supply arms for the hoped for attack. Four days later, at 10:00 p.m., while sitting in his living room watching television with his wife, Torre was shot to death.

"A neighbor said that only one gunman had done the shooting, after which he calmly walked to his car nearby," explained Dr. Portell-Vila. "However, two hours after the killing, Radio Havana reported the news, saying that more than one gunman was responsible."

The following day, an autopsy revealed that the neighbor was wrong and Havana was correct. At least two gunmen had indeed been involved.

Dr. Portell-Vila said that two days after the first killing, Radio Havana "casually" mentioned the name of another Cuban exile, Arturo Rodriguez-Vives, who also had a long record of anti-Castro activities, was murdered in his upper Manhattan home.

Following the first slaying, the Miami Bureau of United Press International received a "death list" of seven persons from an organization known as "Zero" — the name of a pro-Castro guerrilla group in Venezuela. He listed the list of anti-Castro figures was the name of Guillermo Martinez-Marquez, a former president of the Inter American Press Association. He is now U.S. correspondent for "La Prensa," a newspaper in Buenos Aires.

Martinez-Marquez, who has had police protection but obviously must move around in his job, is the man whom Torre announced publicly would replace him in the effort against Castro, if anything should happen to Torre," said Dr. Portell-Vila.

Despite current problems, Dr. Portell-Vila seems resigned in the longer run to a normalization of relations between the U.S. and Cuba. "The United States seems to be giving up all over the world," he said. "If the trend continues, we probably will establish relations with Cuba."

Dr. Portell-Vila said such a move would come as early as the annual meeting of the Organization of American States, scheduled for next March.

Dr. Portell-Vila added that the FBI has been reluctant to step into the murder cases until it can be definitely shown that the Miami and New York killings are linked, or that the killers crossed state borders to perpetrate the crimes.

Energy Crisis Economic Impact Beginning To Hit New England

BOSTON (UPI)—The energy crisis in the Northeast has become an economic crisis and its long-term effects on individuals and businesses is just beginning to be felt. There were no cold homes or power blackouts as feared this winter on the East Coast and, with the lifting of Arab oil embargo, lines at gas stations have grown fewer and shorter. Energy is available — if you can afford it. The economic impact of sky-high oil costs — which have doubled in the past year — is being felt across the nation. But nowhere is the impact greater than in the Northeast, and New England in particular, where three-quarters of the power plants, heating units and factories run on oil. According to the Oil Buyers Guide, the price of one per cent sulfur, residual oil used by electric utilities and industries has jumped on a contract purchase basis 200 per cent in the past year — from $4.24 to $11.57 per barrel. During the same time period, home heating oil prices on a cargo-load, contract basis rose 105 per cent from 11.95 to 22.5 cents per gallon at New York City, according to the guide. The cost of gasoline on a spot purchase basis in New York has increased in the past year from 25 to 41 cents per gallon for regular. The price does not include state and federal taxes. Regions of the county which produce substantial amounts of energy from relatively low-priced coal, natural gas and hydroelectric sources are not as adversely affected by these oil prices as the East Coast. The largest discrepancy in energy costs between the Northeast and other regions is for electricity. The New England Electric System, a private utility holding company, estimates that the cost of electricity in New England now averages between $1.50 and $2.50 per BTU compared to 50 to 70 cents in the country as a whole. The situation has become so acute that government officials and electric companies representatives have requested federal action to equalize fuel costs across the nation in keeping with the Emergency Energy Act of 1973, which states that no region should be forced to suffer more than any other from the energy crisis. In a letter to the Federal Energy Administration, Massachusetts Public Utilities Commissioner Robert L. Meade supported the New England Power Pool's (NEPOOL) request that the federal government act to equalize energy costs. "The economic effect of the cost of oil to New England utilities and industrial companies has already had an alarming effect on the entire economy of the Northeast," Meade said. Unconscionable increases in the cost of oil to New England utilities and industrial companies has already had an alarming effect on the entire economy of the Northeast," Meade said.

Professor Says There's Money in Blueberries

By WARREN TALBOT KINGSTON, R.I. (UPI) — The growing and selling of cultivated blueberries can be a profitable business for an industrious person with a green thumb, a couple of acres of unused land, and sense enough to learn a little bit about the fruit. "Unless you are running a terribly inefficient operation, there is no reason why a person could not make quite a bit of money in blueberries," says Dr. V.G. Shatak, professor of plant and soil science at the University of Rhode Island. "You don't have to be a trained farmer to do it, either," he says. Blueberries are adaptable to most any climate, but seem to thrive more readily in New England where the soil is more acidic. "I do think a big blueberry market exists across the nation. Unfortunately there are no big commercial growers. There used to be some, but the price of land forced them out, and there is a terrible problem with birds," Shatak says. The professor says one acre planted with 650 blueberry bushes could earn up to $3,000 per growing season. After subtracting operating costs, Shatak figures the profit would be about $1,500. The average bush produces about 10 pints. The current selling price in New England is about 50 cents per pint. The initial profits from the blueberry business would be smaller in the first year because of the cost of buying the bushes, about $1 each. Secondly, Shatak says, the whole growing area should be covered to protect the berries from being eaten by birds. He says an inexpensive screen would be sufficient. There are basically three types of blueberries: high-bush wild, low-bush wild, and high-bush cultivated. Shatak says the high-bush cultivated produces more and larger fruit, the best for commercial production. He admits, however, that there are people who prefer the cultivated berries on the grounds they do not equal the taste of the wild berries. "But that is a matter of taste. They all taste great in a pie," he says. Shatak has been studying blueberries for more than 20 years, and says he has grown them as round as a quarter. "It is my opinion that there is an untapped market for them. I've talked to store owners from all over New England who can't get enough of them." The growing season runs from May to October. "You don't have to go into the business in a big way. In fact grow them around your house and sell them at a roadside stand. Blueberries are in great demand, especially in the summer by tourists," he says. Shatak and his students have been cultivating the berries at a university farm, and he says those that are left over from experiments are sold to local stores. "They keep begging us for more." In a recent edition of Rhode Island Resources, an agricultural magazine published by the University of Rhode Island, Shatak wrote, "The versatility of this crop, particularly for the tractive lilly-of-the-valley flowers in spring, huge skyline berries in the summer, red-orange foliage in autumn, and striking gray and red branches in winter."

UConn First In Freshmen Applications

STORRS (UPI) — A survey by the National Association of State Universities and Land Grant Colleges has shown the University of Connecticut continues to be the most difficult such institution for freshmen to enter. UConn ranked first in the number of applications per freshman vacancies, an average of 6.03 per slot. The Massachusetts Institute of Technology averaged 4.4 applications per freshman opening. UConn also placed first in the 1973 survey and fourth in 1972. UConn also led the association in the number of out-of-state applicants, almost 15 per opening.

SUBSTITUTES NEW YORK (UPI) — Fluid and dry coffee whiteners generally are made from nondairy ingredients, says Cornell University Cooperative Extension Service. The main ingredients of fluid whiteners include a vegetable fat which usually is coconut oil. The dry, instant-dissolving whiteners are made up of ingredients similar to the fluid products. The whiteners contain about the same number of calories as light cream.

Slab Bacon Is Delicious

If you have never had slab bacon, you don't know what you have missed. My friends, Russ and Joyce Prentice introduced me to it several years ago. The Prentices' own a summer home jointly with Jan and Harry England of Coventry. It sits high up on a hill with a large porch overlooking the sea. One can sit, sun, meditate while boats from small outboard motors to ocean liners pass by.

Russ is an early riser — anywhere from five on. Sometimes later on, closer to eight, he will wrap on our bedroom door. As he hands me a steaming cup of hot black coffee, the odor of bacon stimulates the appetite. Russ' bacon is thick, crisp and has a special flavor. It orders the whole slab or a half a slab from his local butcher, cuts it himself which I have done on occasion ever since.

The slab in the photograph above is from Georgia. I bought it in the Atlanta airport if you would believe. It is not refrigerated when purchased, being wrapped in paper, then in a cloth bag. A preservative must be washed off first. Use a vegetable brush. If you buy slab bacon locally, your butcher will cut it for you to your desired thickness or you can buy a piece and cut it yourself with a good sharp knife.

In buying a slab, you may have to remove the rind on one side which is a very simple process. It is edible but a little tough to chew.

Bacon is made by curing the whole sides of pigs, usually in salt or salt water. If it has a smoky flavor, it has been hung over smoldering chips or sawdust for at least a couple of days.

The quality of the bacon will vary depending on the animal from whence it came, the feeding of that animal and the age of it. Top quality bacon comes from the side meat right next the spareribs.

At one time, the word bacon was used, at least in France, to describe any pork. As a matter of fact, the French used a word "baconique" until the 16th century to describe a meal comprised exclusively of pork.

The early settlers of our country always included bacon in their list of travel supplies, along with saw pork. The travelers of the Old Northwest had a trail diet so basic that they were called "pork eaters" throughout the fur frontier.

We must remember that in the Old Northwest, the Keweenaw and other early territory, men outnumbered women. Their gear was at a minimum. Often, they would have only a kettle with them. If they were lucky enough to kill a wild animal for meat, they would stew it up with wild vegetables in the kettle. If they had a little salt pork or bacon, that would go in too.

Often, the one kettle served

Thoughts APLENTY

Keep on Guessing
High school baseball is a strange animal. If there is one sport where you can't fairly consistently predict the winner, this is it.

Manchester High is a good example of this phenomenon. The Indians were 12-5 going into the regular season finale with Windham yesterday. When Coach Harold Parks' diamond edition wins, it's usually by a sizeable margin and when they lose, they lose big.

Against Bristol Central Monday, the Tribe took it on the chin, 21-4. Earlier in the campaign, Manchester topped this same club in extra innings, 11-0, after trailing badly in the early going. What all this points out is that anything can happen.

Parks stated Tuesday that he thought his pitching was all set but Monday's debacle, it's a question mark. Dave Bidwell, Connie McCurry and John Koepsel, the latter with a leader above, have all pitched well at different stages of the season. They've been bombed also, however.

With the tournament upcoming shortly, Manchester can't afford any off days by its pitching corps. The Indians have a team batting average of over .275 but as everybody knows, good pitching can stop good hitting. The winner of the Class AA Division? It's anybody's guess. Most likely the team which gets solid pitching, some hitting, and the right bounces at the most opportune moments.

Odd Schedule
The schedule for the CIAC Class AA Division championship is an odd one. After rushing the schoolboys through their schedules, the qualifying round won't be played until May 28. Playoff round action is slated for the following day with the quarterfinals on June 1. The semifinals are four days later and the finals June 8.

"The way it is, it's making it easy for somebody who just has one pitcher," Parks said. "It's highly unlikely, but conceivable, that a team will go with just one burier in the lineup. It is possible for one moundman to chuck the final three contests. Just doesn't seem right somehow."

Locally, Manchester High and East Catholic have qualified for post-season play. Rockville High and Ellington High are definitely in while Rham, 8-9 going into Wednesday's play, had a defeat East Hampton to make the Class C Tournament. Cheney Tech, South Windsor, Bolton and Coventry will be spectators this time around.

Bits and Pieces
Rich Babe, righthanded pitcher for Rockville High with a 6-1 record this year, will attend the University of Connecticut in the fall. Husky Coach Larry Panciera has also landed Job Hager from the unbeaten Cromwell High club.

With the addition of these fine performers and a returning nucleus consisting mainly of freshmen and sophomores, UConn should return to the top of the Yankee Conference standings next year. The Huskies compiled a 12-9 standard this campaign, a bad one for them. Two seasons back, UConn was fifth in the College World Series in Omaha and the only club to give perennial champ Southern California a difficult time before bowing. East Catholic golfer Mike Cooney is unbeaten in 24 straight matches. The sophomore linksman recently set a school record with a two-under-par 69. It was an incredible year for the track team at Manchester High and East Catholic. Most records at the respective schools went by the wayside this year. Coaches Dick Williams and Dave Kelly will have many of their top performers back next season.

Manchester was 10-7 and East 12-1 in dual meet competition. The Manchester High girls' track team hasn't been so successful record-wise, 2-7 at this writing, but most school records have been broken this campaign. Only a handful of Coach Barry Berstein's charges will be lost next year. East's premier track star, Joe Martens, will attend the University of Massachusetts on an "athletes" scholarship. Martens was unable to participate in last weekend's Hartford Public Invitational because of a muscle pull. Werner Cacace and Billy MacLean, two members of the 17-1 Manchester High soccer team which was runner-up in the Class A Division, have been named to a Connecticut All-Star team which will tour Scotland and England in August. Cost of the trip is $600 per person and anyone wishing to help defray the cost for these top-notch youths can send donations directly to Cacace at 253 Highland St. or MacLean at 88B Ambassador Dr.

By Dick Ledbetter
Sparked by Dan Smachetti, it's three-run homer in the opening frame, East Catholic registered its fourth straight baseball victory, 5-4, over Leyard High yesterday at the losers' field. The Eagles are now 12-3 while Leyard fell to 9-9.

After two down in the first inning, Dan Socha singled to center and Ron Soucier worked out a base on balls. Smachetti followed with a line shot over the left centerfield fence for a 3-0 bulge.

Leyard retaliated with the single run in its half of the frame as starting and losing pitcher, Doug Gould singled to center and Ron Soucier worked out a base on balls. Smachetti followed with a line shot over the left centerfield fence for a 3-0 bulge.

Leyard scored its final run in the fifth with the marker being plated on a fielder's choice. Moffett was able to work his way out of further trouble.

That should be warning enough for Hill and Trevino since Player won the Masters at Augusta this year and the Hill South African said he is hitting the ball good.

"Yes, I played well," said Hill. "I just can't understand what it is. But I love this golf course and this town. The people are wonderful," said the defending champion.

Indians Top CCIL King Windham With Solid-Hitting Offense, 8-3

By Len Auster
Rebounding from a humiliating defeat at the hands of Bristol Central, the Manchester High baseball team upset CCIL champ Windham High, 8-3, yesterday at Kelley Field.

The season finale for both clubs left the locals with a 13-5 mark and the Whippets at 14-4. Both will now prepare for the CIAC State Tournament which begins Tuesday. Rankings and pairings will be announced shortly.

"It's no replacement for winning the CCIL title, something which I thought we could this year, but winning today was some sort of consolation," Coach Harold Parks said. "Hopefully, we can go a long way in the tournament."

Senior righthander Connie McCurry, after a mid-season slump, continued to pitch well to notch his fourth victory against a lone set-back. McCurry hurled the first six innings before firing in the blistering sun. He and a sacrifice fly in the seventh also chased home markers as Maloney had three-for-five, scored four times and drove in one run.

slowly and unpectacularly formulated an 11-game hitting streak, whiffed four batters and yielded just one run on two hits in finishing up in fine fashion.

Jack Maloney and Ray Sullivan were the batting stars for Manchester this day. Maloney had two hits in four trips to the plate including a two-run homer up the alley in right in the sixth frame. A single in the first and a sacrifice fly in the third also chased home markers as Maloney had three-for-five, scored four times and drove in one run.

The Indians tallied twice in the opening frame. Sullivan laced a single down the leftfield foul stripe and took second as Paul Lehoux had trouble in the outfield finding the handle. Maloney singled up the middle with Sullivan scoring just ahead of the relay home. Maloney took second on the play at the plate and came all the way around to score as catcher Clayton Ladd's peg trying to get Maloney at second bounced into centerfield.

Manchester added a run in the third without the benefit of a base hit. Two errors and a sacrifice fly brought in the marker. Windham, in unchampionshiplike form, committed seven errors.

The Silk Towners tallied one run in the fifth, two in the sixth on Maloney's blast, and two in the seventh with Sullivan and Bruce Peck recording RBIs.

Two of the Whippets' runs were accounted by Ladd, who blasted solo round-trippers in the second and eighth frames. Brad Ladd drove in the third run in the seventh with a two-out single off Bidwell, who replaced McCurry on the hill with no outs after the latter walked the first two batters.

Gary Player In Warning At Memphis

MEMPHIS (UPI) — Take that old wives' tale about "anybody can win anything" on the pro golf tour and file it away. Far, far away.

Dave Hill had the lowest score in the pro-am event for the $175,000 Memphis Golf Classic Wednesday with a 68. Gary Player was next at 69 and Lee Trevino had a 70 over the long, par-72 Colonial Country Club layout.

So, what else is new? Hill and Trevino have won this event five years in a row and in six of the last seven. "Player saw the course for the first time Wednesday and was one of only 11 among the 147 pros to practice under par on the course," said Player.

"I had a pretty good round," said Player. "I'm really looking forward to Thursday's start. This is simply a beautiful golf course. The fairways are as good as any course I've ever played."

"Our infield play is as good as you can expect these last few games," commented Eagles' Coach Jim Penders. "Our pitchers know that if the ball is hit, it will be fielded."

Banning had a super play in the sixth when he glove a grounder which took a wicked hop. Making the play, Banning kept Leyard from developing a threat.

"The Eagles conclude regular season action today with a 7-3 contest against Acadia at their own field against HCC over Northwest Catholic. Ron Smeaton draws the mound assignment.

Tech Blows Lead, Bows to Seminary

Close but no cigar. Leading 8-5 going into the sixth frame, the Cheney Tech baseball team couldn't hang on and absorbed a 9-8 loss to St. Thomas Seminary yesterday at the Beavers' field. The loss dropped the Techmen to 1-11 while Seminary concludes its campaign at 7-5.

Trevor White had three hits for the winners while Rick McQuane added two triples to the cause.

Dave Balon and Tom DeGrandi were the batting stars for Cheney. Balon had three hits in four trips to the plate including a two-run homer while DeGrandi was a perfect three-for-three which included a two-run homer as he drove in three runs. Starting and losing pitcher for Cheney was Steve Lebel with Pete Ostashev hurling shutout all the final 1 1/3 innings.

The Beavers conclude their season Friday with a home engagement against Bolton High.

Gift on Way

CHICAGO (UPI) — When the Chicago White Sox heard 14-year-old Greg Lehner of Irving, Tex., was going to be right after being struck by a bolt of lightning, the team did its part to encourage the youth to return to playing baseball.

Greg was hit by a bolt of lightning last week while playing third base. He survived and is out of the hospital. But along with his injuries, Greg's White Sox cap was shredded when the lightning struck him.

The White Sox are sending Greg a new team cap, autographed by Manager Chuck Tanner, and an autographed baseball along with other gifts.

Knights' Win Skein Helped by Homers

Its winning streak is now five, as Ellington High demolished Suffield, 22-4, yesterday in North Central Connecticut Conference baseball action. The win boosted the purple Knights' overall mark to 12-4 and 9-5 in the NCCC. Suffield, now 10-6 overall, has already clinched at least a tie for the conference title.

John Basch paced the winners with five hits including two home runs, his 9th and 10th blasts of the season which sets a new school record. The hard-hitting catcher totaled five RBIs. Bill Cavanaugh had four hits including two doubles while Dan Sitek was the winning pitcher.

Rockville High won its fourth straight upending Simsbury High, 6-5, in a Central Valley Conference clash. The 11-6 Rams were paced by Joe Adams' pair of doubles and two RBIs. Den-

Wind Helps Preserve Victory As R Sox Move Toward Lead

BOSTON (UPI) — A chilly wind helped the Boston Red Sox breeze toward the top of the American League East. The Sox won their 11th straight game Wednesday night, pushing Bobby Murcer's drive into the lunging grasp of right fielder Bernie Carbo and the catch allowed the Red Sox to win 6-3 over the New York Yankees. The wind-vept victory was Boston's fifth straight, leaving the Sox just .003 behind first-place Milwaukee, which lost 4-2 to Detroit. The Red Sox and Luis Tiant were leading 4-2 with one out in the seventh when Horace Clark and Elliott Maddox hit back-to-back singles. Murcer slashed a liner that looked like a two-run extra base hit. But the wind held the ball up long enough for Carbo to catch it 30 feet from the wall. "That wind was really bad," said Carbo, who also drove in a pair of runs. "I'm sure affected Murcer's hit because the ball was hit well. I was scared I wouldn't catch up with it." Tiant, who lifted his record to 4-5, worried for a while that the wind would catch up with him. He was staked to a 2-0 firstinning lead but gave up the tying runs in the fifth.

Osteen Continued 'Lesson' to Jones

NEW YORK (UPI) — Claude Osteen continued a "lesson" and Milt May made a "mistake." The result was a 5-1 victory for the Houston Astros Wednesday night over the San Diego Padres. Osteen gave a "lesson" to Randy Jones, a young pitcher he first gave some pointers to a decade ago when the Los Angeles sandlots, with a five-hitter. The "mistake" was by May, who batted for Osteen with two out and the bases loaded in the ninth inning and hoped to single in the winning run. Instead, he hit the first grand slam homer of his career. It was his second homer of the season and in as many nights. "Home runs are a mistake with me more than anything else. I have a negative attitude in the Astrodom. The ball just doesn't carry too well. I was just hoping to get it over the rightfielder's head for a hit," May said. "I've got to keep that homer from going to my head. I'm not that type of hitter. I hit more line drives." May, who came to the Astros in the deal with Pittsburgh for Jerry Reuss, said, "In Pittsburgh, I never played for two days in a row, much less hit two homers." At Houston, he catches regularly although he sometimes sits down against lefthanded pitchers. For eight innings, Jones and Osteen were deadlocked in a 1-1 game after Bob Watson singled to lead off the ninth, Vicente Romo replaced Jones. Romo's error and a walk loaded the bases and he retired two batters before he gave up May's homer. It was the first time Osteen pitched against Jones. Back in 1956 when Osteen was traded to Los Angeles, he was asked by a friend named Leonard McKain to give some tips to two teenagers.

A's Reggie Jackson On Road to Goals

NEW YORK (UPI) — Reggie Jackson sounded hard to believe last winter when he said winning the American League's Most Valuable Player Award didn't leave him without important words to conquer. "I've never batted .300, hit 100 homers and knocked in more than 100 runs in the same season," said the two-time world champion Oakland A's slugger. "That gives me plenty to shoot at." Well, Reggie seems just as unbelievable now—although the statistics verify the truth—as he is starting the A's early season drive to the lead in the AL West with a .397 average, 13 homers and 37 RBIs. Should Jackson even approximate those figures for the full season, he'd be a sure-shot second-time MVP and, no doubt, lead the A's to their third straight pennant. "You have to play with this man every day to understand his skills," says A's captain Sal Bando. "He is capable of almost anything he sets out to do." Jackson, still serving as the A's designated hitter because of a pulled hamstring, drove in five runs with a homer, bases filled double and single Wednesday night when Oakland defeated the Minnesota Twins 7-4. The victory enabled the A's to sweep the three-game series and win their 11th game in their last 14 starts. Baltimore defeated Cleveland 1-0 in 12 innings, Boston beat New York 6-3, Texas topped Chicago 9-2 after a 6-2 loss, Detroit downed Milwaukee 6-4 and California topped Kansas City 6-1 in other AL games. Jackson's bases-filled double tied the score at 4-4 in the seventh and he singled in the fifth run of the game in the ninth after Joe Rudi's two-run double broke the 4-4 tie. Paul Lindblad and John Brown hit safely twice for the P's with the former homering with two mates on base. AMERICAN FARM Army & Navy nipped Police & Fire at Valley, 18-17. Jeff Edwards' homer in the seventh inning turned the tide for the Vets who trailed at one time 14-0. Chris Levine had four hits, Andy Ertel, Roger Kost and Rick Casavant hit each for the Vets. Bob Pierce and Earl Lappen stoked four and three blows for the Police. INTERNATIONAL FARM Pro Remodeling trounced Ansaldo's 2-5, last night at Riverfront Stadium. Bob Gentile and Peter Johnson leading the offense. Bob Gentile, Don Barrett and Randy Travers limited the Contractors to three hits.

Holds No Grudges

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Houston Astros left fielder Bob Watson, showered with flowers on Monday night after he was injured crashing into a wall, says he holds no grudges because of the incident. Watson suffered a cut underneath his eye in a game at Riverfront Stadium May 12. Lying on the ground next to the wall, he was splashed by beer tossed from the stands. Watson Tuesday night made a long distance telephone call from Houston to Los Angeles, where he was playing, to tell a Cincinnati sports writer he held no grudges. "I've received more than 200 letters aporly from Cincinnati fans expressing their regret about the incident," said Watson.

Disgruntled Race Car Owners Get Their Chance to Testify

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Five disgruntled racing car owners get their day in court today when they testify that they were denied a chance to qualify for Sunday's Indianapolis "500" by the Indianapolis Motor Speedway and the United States Auto Club. Officials of Ron Woods Racing, Rasmussen Racing Products, Carl Gehlhausen, K&L racing and Webster Racing will be called by attorney Don A. Tabbert in their million dollar suit to have the defendants set up a special day to qualify their cars. Tabbert questioned three defense witnesses Wednesday during an eight-hour session that brought no decision from Judge Frank A. Symmes. The case was recessed to 10:15 a.m. EDT today. Actually, there were 11 cars ready to go for their first qualifying run on May 10 when an arbitrary 6 p.m. deadline was enforced. Only five owners elected to institute the suit, which could conceivably postpone Sunday's 58th running of the Indy Classic. Tabbert hammered at Speedway owner Tony Hulman, vice president Joe Cloutier and chief steward Tom Blinford Wednesday in direct examination to show how confusing the qualifying procedures are to contestants. A former U.S. Attorney for Southern Indiana, Tabbert was smooth in his questioning, but couldn't elicit any damaging testimony from the witnesses. He concentrated on determining the reason why car 94 driven by Johnny Parsons Jr. received a second qualifying run while others were not. "Many first timers reached the starting line, but aborted and went to the end of the line. None moved in ahead of 94 and it was allowed to proceed. That meant all cars behind 94 had neglected to pursue their advantage," Blinford said. Blinford admitted he would have extended the time beyond 6 p.m. if no 94 had shown up for a second turn. The 73-year-old Hulman, often faltering in his answers as he tried to select the right words, said he left the operation of the Speedway to others. Questioned about the accuracy of a statement he made in a local paper, Hulman chuckled and said "I was at an old timer's dinner and was just trying to fill my plate with some pork and beans when somebody began asking questions. I was really concentrating on getting the pork and beans." Hulman was a stubborn witness and Tabbert had to pound him with the same question time and again before receiving an answer. The Speedway official, Hulman's right hand man, said he told a representative of the plaintiffs he would give the question of qualifying termination some consideration if he could get signatures from owners of the 33 qualifiers and two alternates stating they would allow the track to amend its entry blank concerning deadlines. Carburetion runs were scheduled for today as the Speedway returned from a three-day hiatus. Most of the cars were taken apart and searched for hidden faults. Some Drivers went golfing. Mike Hiss, who will drive a Penske McLaren, flew his private plane to Connecticut to pick up his dad for the race.

New Car for Star Presented to Shero

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Philadelphia goalie Bernie Parent received a car Wednesday from Sport Magazine but gave it to Flyers Coach Fred Shero because "he was responsible for us winning the Stanley Cup." Parent, winner of the Conn Smythe Trophy as the Most Valuable Player in the Stanley Cup playoffs, received a car to go with his award. "I decided in a meeting with my team this morning to give the car to our coach. It was a team effort and Fred Shero was responsible for us winning the Stanley Cup," Parent said. Shero, accepting the keys during ceremonies at a mid-city hotel, said, "I always said you have to be goofy to be a coach. My players also have to be a little crazy to do this." Parent, 29, who will fly to Acapulco Monday for a much-deserved vacation, said he wished "there were 25 of these cars. The whole team should get part of this." Addressing a news conference before the ceremonies, Parent predicted that the Flyers had not seen the last of the Stanley Cup. "We have a young team," Parent said. "I don't see any reason we can't win the cup four or five times in the next 10 years." The 5-foot-10, 170-pound goalie registered 12 shutouts while appearing in 73 games during the regular season. He averaged 1.89 goals allowed per game. Both figures are tops in the league. In the playoffs, Parent recorded two shutouts and a 2.02 goals against average against Atlanta, the New York Rangers and Boston.

D'Estaing Promises Changes for the French

By PHIL NEWSON
UPI Foreign News Analyst

On May 19, Valéry Giscard d'Estaing, age 68, became the youngest French president of this century and the oldest Frenchman. "You want changes — politically, economically and socially. You won't be disappointed."

Giscard had overcome the disadvantages of wealth and patrician appearance and by a slender 1.6 per cent had won over the Socialist-Communist opponent, Francois Mitterrand, the right to serve as French president for the next seven years.

For the future of France and of Western Europe a key question was the course he would choose in his relations with the United States.

Close Ties With U.S.
In previous statements, the new president-elect has indicated he wants a strong Western alliance and close ties with the United States on a basis of equality.

In other words, he is telling Secretary of State Henry A.

Kissinger, "Don't lean on us and we'll cooperate."

This also suggests a departure from the narrow nationalism of de Gaulle and to a lesser degree of the late President Georges Pompidou.

Giscard d'Estaing has been sharply critical of the obstructionist tactics employed by French Foreign Minister Michel Jobert at the recent Washington conference on energy, suggesting Jobert's immediate departure when the new regime takes over.

Of equal importance will be a special subject of speculation in the Giscard d'Estaing administration is the position to be held by another ambitious man, Jean Lecanuet. Lecanuet is leader of the small Democratic Center party.

Lecanuet brought immediate and much-needed support to Giscard when he announced his party would back him at the outset of the campaign.

Lecanuet is among the most ardent of French politicians pressing for positive cooperation with the United States and the nations of Western Europe, and an end to Gaullist nationalism.

Like Giscard, his campaigns have been compared to a signpost for the direction of the American system.

After all, he still must get along with the Gaullists and in coming months his first job will be to cope with the French economy, in which inflation is running close to 16 per cent, and with the restless French labor unions.

Study Seeks Educational TV Upgrading

STORRS (UPI) — Three Connecticut colleges are teaming up to try to make television live up to its potential as an educational medium at higher levels.

The University of Connecticut is conducting a study with Yale and Wesleyan Universities to find out how colleges can use television more effectively.

A seven-person team will study television's educational strengths and weaknesses and try to determine what experiments are worth pursuing and how.

Dr. David Zeaman, a UConn psychology professor, is directing the study with other faculty in the fields of biology, the classics, engineering, dramatics, geography and psychology.

To date, some say, educators have not used television beyond transmitting conventional classroom situations.

"It seems to be that the higher the level, the less appropriate television is," said Zeaman, noting that the medium serves "motivational and attitudinal" functions at lower levels.

The "think tank" project is supported by a $35,000 grant from the Sloan Foundation.

Acupuncture Now Legal

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — The practice of acupuncture is now legal in Rhode Island, but a spot check of major hospitals in the state showed most were hesitant to use the ancient Chinese medical method.

"Right now there is no discussion at this hospital for its use," said a spokesman for Pawtucket Hospital.

"At this time we have no intention of using it," said William K. Turner, administrator of Newport Hospital.

Miriam Hospital in Providence, a spokesman said, "The answer is no."

An official at Roger Williams Hospital in Providence said, "We are actively interested in learning more about it, but at this time we have no plans to practice acupuncture."

At Lying-in Hospital, also in Providence, Assistant Administrator John Farley said some work and experimentation with the method has been done, but "We are not ready to implement it until more research is done." Farley said his medical staff is most interested in its use during childbirth.

Gov. Philip W. Noel, who is currently touring China with five other governors, signed into law earlier this month a bill which allows certain qualified medical persons to practice acupuncture under rules and regulations promulgated by the director of the state Department of Health.

Home Security For Simon Costs $6,000

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Secret Service is installing about $6,000 worth of security facilities at the McLean Virginia residence of Treasury Secretary William F. Simon, spokesman Bill Hawthorne confirmed Wednesday.

He said work has begun at Simon's home to install housing for the special agents protecting Simon and to provide storage space for equipment.

Simon has been under Secret Service protection since last February when he headed the Federal Energy Office and reportedly received threats against his life.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger is the only other cabinet official who is under Secret Service protection.

BUYER'S billboard

By MICHAEL J. CONLON
WASHINGTON (UPI) —

With the price of mailing a letter now a dime, new attention is falling on a not-so-new idea — letting the public write the government free.

Rep. Harold V. Froehlich, R-Wis., recently introduced legislation that would let a constituent write his congressman in Washington or at his district office simply by writing the lawmaker's name where the stamp would go.

An aide said the bill was prompted by a constituent who complained about having to pay to mail back a questionnaire the congressman had sent him.

But Froehlich's bill is only one of several pending in a House subcommittee which has seen similar proposals over the years. One of the other bills, for instance, would extend the write-back-for-free privilege to letters addressed to the President, vice president and all federal agencies, in addition to Congress.

"Everybody's Money," a consumer publication of the Credit Union National Association Inc., is launching an editorial campaign in its pages to promote the idea.

But prospects from Washington don't look promising. The main problem is that the Postal Service is becoming so automated that a system would have to be devised so stampless letters aren't automatically rejected. There also are problems guarding against unauthorized use.

One aide in the House Postal Service subcommittee, where all the bills are officially listed as pending, said it would cost the Postal Service more to run such a system than consumers would save in stamps.

In any case, it does not appear there will be any movement on the idea very soon.

A recent column, and news stories, on the potential fire problems associated with instant-on television sets, failed to mention one possible solution to the problem, which a reader in Huntington, Pa., passes on.

"In October, 1970, I bought an Admiral TV for just under $500. The light bulb was more than a year with it. I had to take the set in two times to a repair store for new tubes where I found out the constant burning of the tubes made them burn out much faster.

"Then a friend of mine told me about someone who would help me. He said look in back of the set and showed me an instant on and off switch. They are there on most all sets. Don't get me wrong, I think our set is great, except it's not impossible for one to start a fire. Turn off the instant-on button in back and be safe."

Thanks for the tip.

A reader in Harlingen, Tex., writes: "In January I entered the Benson & Hedges 100 sweepstakes and all my entries were in by Feb. 1 as so stated by the rules. I entered over 150. I also sent a self-addressed envelope for a list of winners but as yet I have had no reply. Maybe you can find out something for me. I sure would appreciate it."

Benson & Hedges says the contest took a long time to wind up because the company ran it had to verify the results and then notify the winners, but the lists are being mailed out and they said they'd make sure you got one.

Occupational Training Center Wins Endorsement of Democrats

By SOL R. COHEN
The proposed construction of a $14 million Regional Occupational Training Center, in Manchester won the unanimous endorsement of the Democratic Town Committee Wednesday night. The endorsement came after an explanation of the proposal by Norman Fendell, director of special education for the Manchester school system, and Richard Lawrence of Lawrence Associates, architects for the "Trade School for the Handicapped." The explanation included slides, plans and a question and answer period. Town Chairman Tom Cummings was authorized to ask the Republican Town Committee "to join in the endorsement and to work in a non-partisan effort." Herbert Stevenson, Democratic registrar of voters, announced he is organizing a non-partisan committee in support of the proposal and urged all interested persons to contact him.

Weak Anti-Bus Bill Faces Nixon Veto

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon, restating his "unequivocal opposition to forced busing" for the purpose of achieving racial balance. The experience of the past five years across America shows that we can dismantle dual school systems without resorting to massive forced busing. The Senate refused to go along with language in the House-passed bill to forbid courts to order students bused beyond the second closest school to their homes to achieve desegregation and permit reopening of any existing court order on busing if it violated the new definition.

Nixon expressed hope that the bill, approved by a 91-5 vote Monday, could be reconciled with a stiffer House version which contains strong anti-busing language. In a written statement issued by the White House Wednesday, Nixon said: "I must once again state my unequivocal opposition to forced busing for the purpose of achieving racial balance. The experience of the past five years across America shows that we can dismantle dual school systems without resorting to massive forced busing."

Nixon Defense Costs Set At $382,474

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congressional auditors estimate the White House has spent $382,474 on President Nixon's Watergate defense in nearly two years.

According to the General Accounting Office, Congress' watchdog agency, the money went for attorneys fees, salaries of other employees, travel and supporting expenses.

The auditors said the White House charged most of the costs to the budgets of other departments such as Defense, Justice, Transportation, Housing and Urban Development and the Federal Communications Commission, from which aides were borrowed to work on Nixon's defense.

Proposed Review Procedures

Among a series of fact sheets contained in the press release packet distributed by officials of Hartford Process-DevCo Thursday was one outlining its proposed procedures for town review of its new town plan.

The text of that fact sheet follows:
The Greater Hartford Community Development Corporation (DevCo) is proposing that a section be added to the Town's Zoning Regulations and that a chapter be added to the Town's Subdivision Regulations which would permit and regulate development of a new community in a Planned Community Zone. The proposed regulations would provide for Planning and Zoning Commission review and approval at various stages in the development process.

1. Zoning of land as a Planned Community Zone and approval of a General Development Plan for the proposed new community as a whole and approval of a Detailed Development Plan for the first phase of development in the new community.

2. Approval of the General Development Plan by the Planning and Zoning Commission will assure the developer that it will be permitted to complete the development of the new community, provided the developer continues to satisfy all the review and approval standards and the development criteria set forth in the regulations. It will also limit the developer to a fixed number of dwelling units and establish the amount of land the developer must devote to open space, village centers, employment centers and residential uses.

3. Approval of Detailed Development Plans for each subsequent development phase. These would cover portions of the Planned Community Zone, and would include:
a. The location and acreage of each of the four types of use areas — open space, residential, village center and employment center.
b. The maximum number of dwelling units and the maximum amount of space to be devoted to commercial, office, community and other permitted uses.
c. The location of principal streets, water lines, sewer lines and school sites.

4. Approval of site plans which would be required prior to the construction of any building in most residential areas and in all village center areas and employment center areas. Site plans would not be required in areas for single-family detached houses.
5. Approval of single-family subdivisions which would ensure compliance with the approved Detailed Development Plan and with specific development criteria just as site plans ensure such compliance in other areas.

The review proposed by the regulations provides the town with continuing review over the development process to assure that all development conforms to the plans approved by the Commission and to the standards and criteria specified in the regulations.

Libassi said, "I believe this plan covers the major concerns of the opposition. I don't think the opposition is gaining momentum, but has peaked."
Housing in the new community will cover a full range of incomes: 15 per cent for families with less than $7,500; 20 per cent for families with up to $12,000; and 65 per cent of the housing will be for families with more than $12,000 income.

Libassi said that land acquisition in the area has not stopped but that DevCo was not interested in land in other parts of town, only land adjacent to the site.
According to Libassi, DevCo borrowed $8 1/2 million for land

Phase I of the new community will encompass 400 acres with 1,800 dwelling units and a village center that is to serve two phases. It is projected that 4,500 to 5,000 residents will live in Phase I. This phase should be completed in four years.

Libassi said, "The proposal calls for new zoning regulations and that DevCo would make a formal application to the Planning and Zoning Commission within 6 to 8 weeks."

Libassi said, "Before we go to the PZC, one of the issues to be resolved is whether the zoning commission is legally valid. We question whether you can amend a charter by ordinance."

Libassi said, "We are willing to discuss with town officials the need for additional cemetery land. We own land adjacent to the cemetery on Grant Hill Rd."

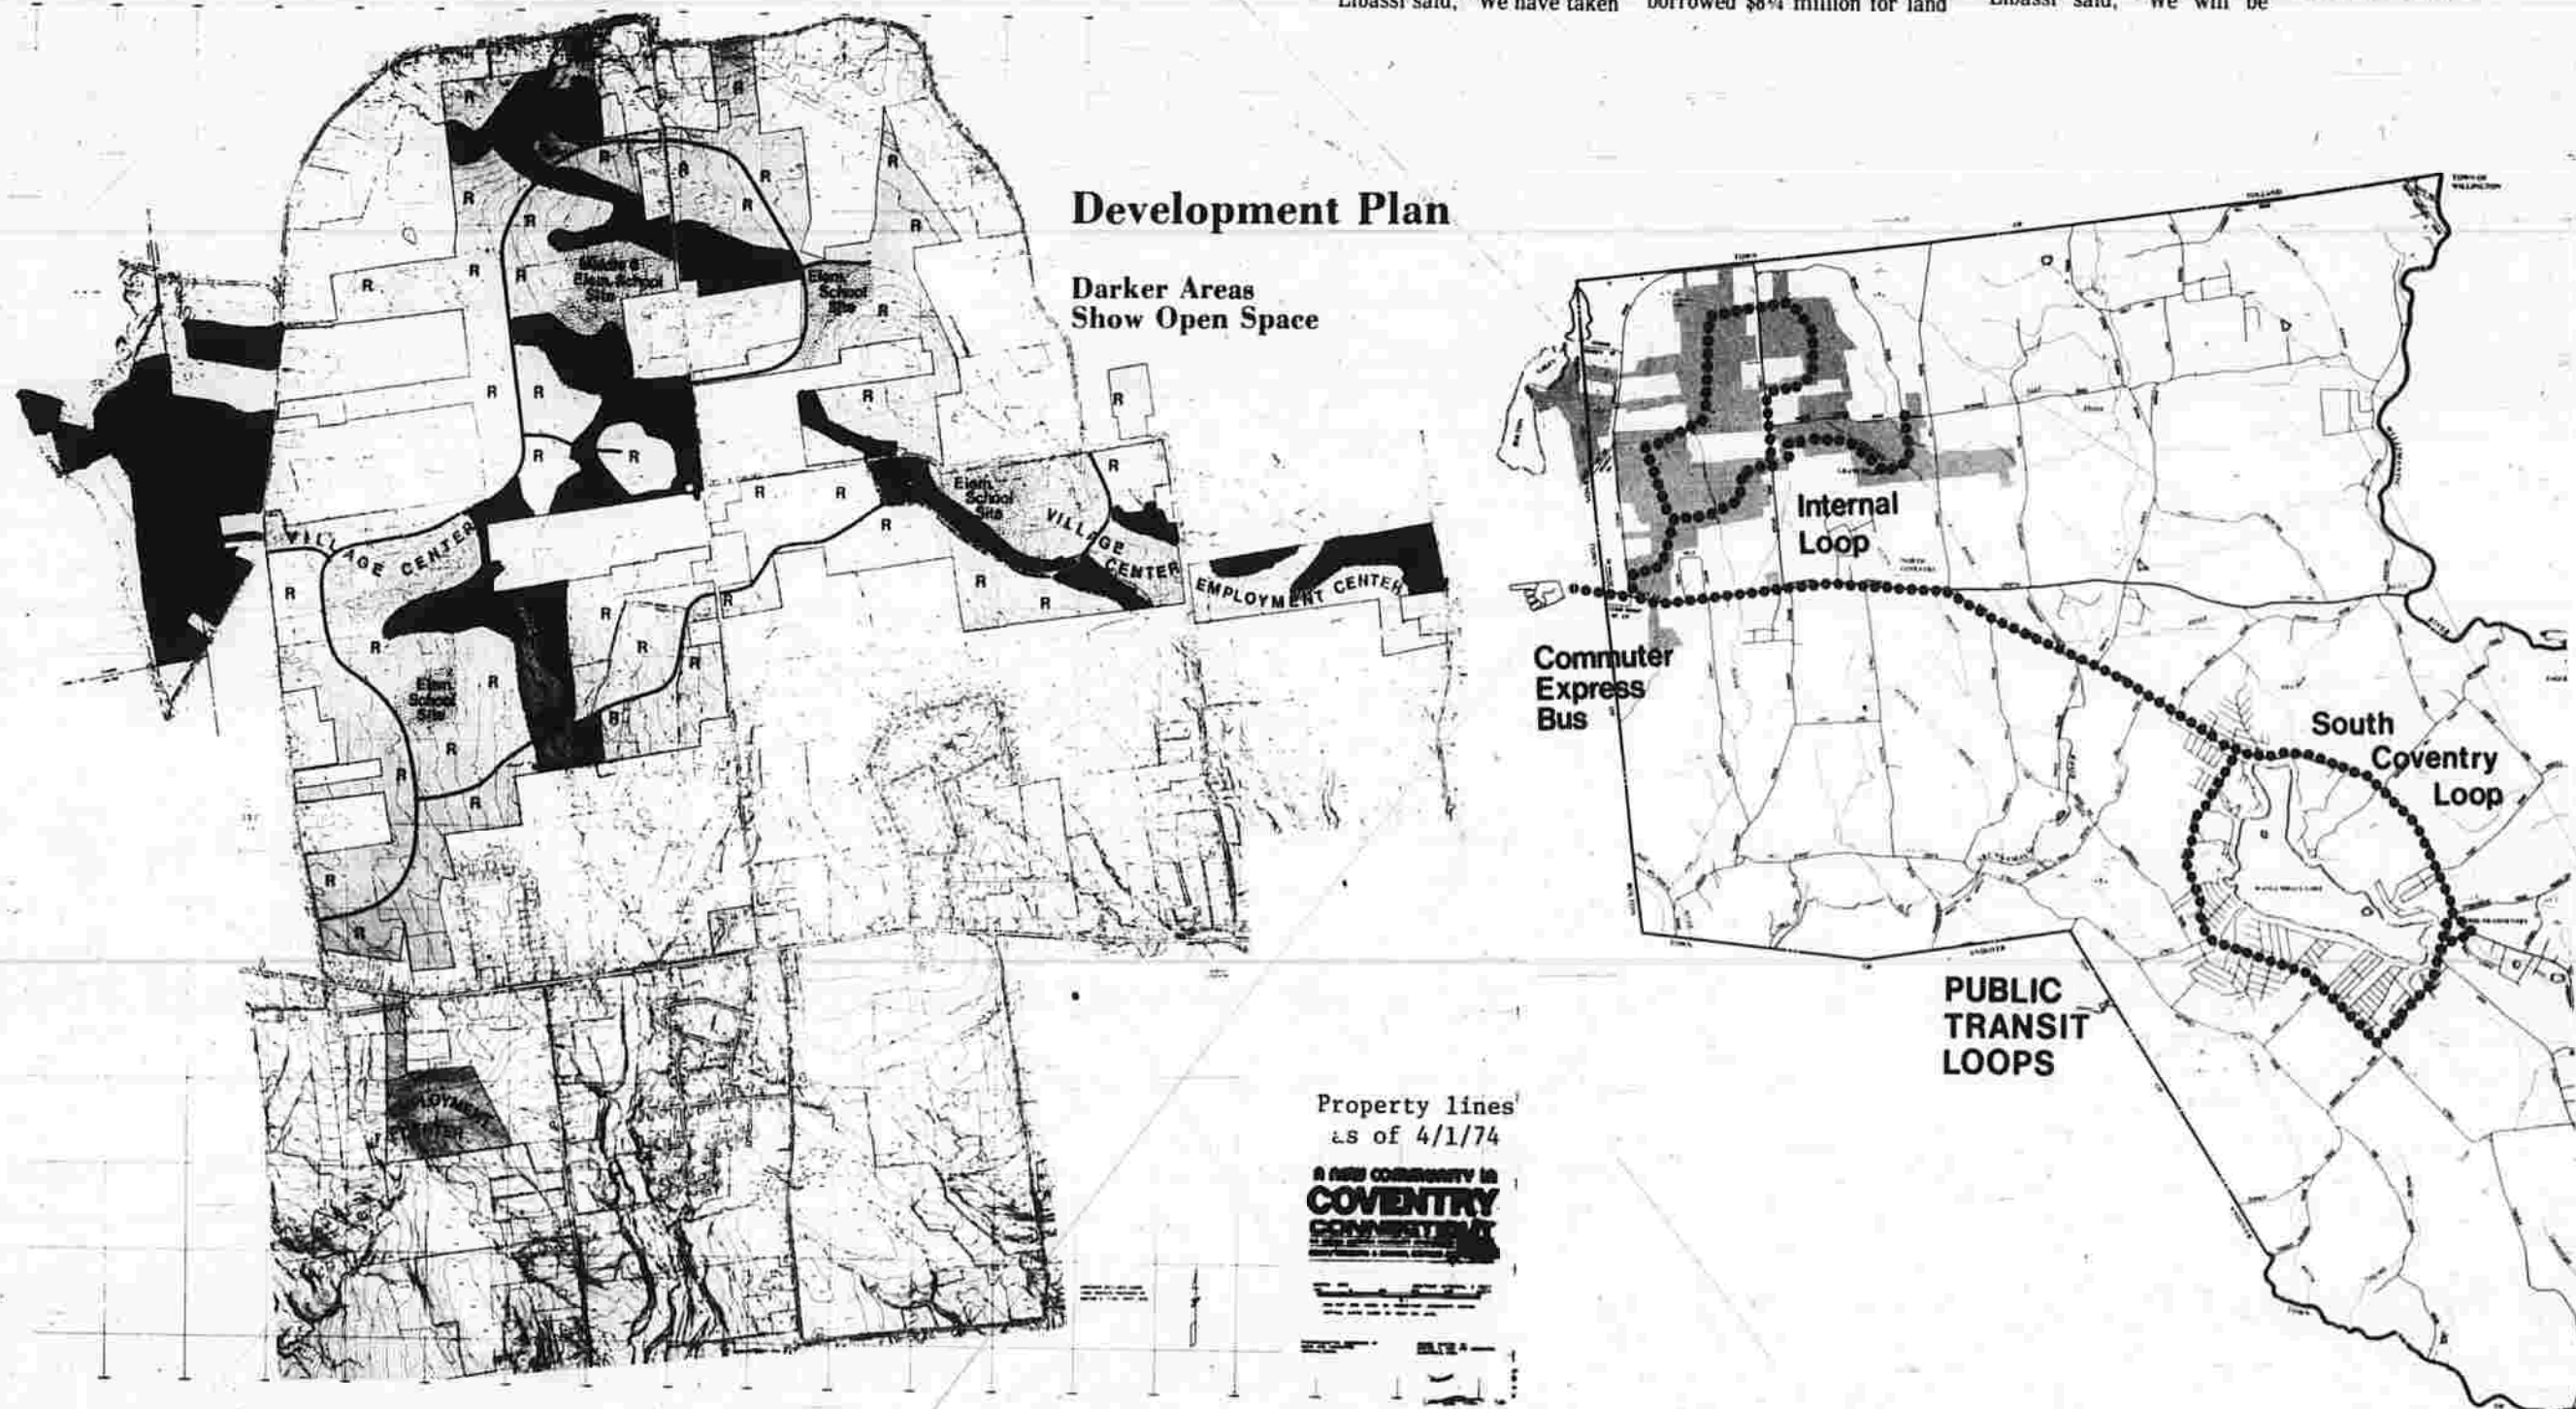

Libassi said, "The town is facing a solid wastes disposal with or without the new community on the people of Coventry. But we will use every legal assistance available to us to insure a fair hearing."

great care to protect our neighbors, we will provide buffer zones around the new community, keep one-family housing on the outer edges of the site and keep traffic within the new community."
Libassi said, "We have heard from 12 or 15 Hartford corporations who have expressed an interest in locating in the new community."
Libassi said, "I am optimistic and confident that when the people of Coventry have an opportunity to consider our proposal they will approve of it."

If the new community does not get its zone change, Libassi said, "We would then, over a period of years, dispose of the land at prices we thought were fair and use the revenues to retire the debts."
Libassi said, "If PZC and the Town Council conduct the hearings in a fair manner we would not institute a court battle if we are turned down. We are not going to force the new community on the people of Coventry. But we will use every legal assistance available to us to insure a fair hearing."

Big Turnout Expected In Today's City Primary

HARTFORD (UPI)—A large turnout was expected for the Democratic primary today that could decide who will get the party's nomination to run for governor.

The contest pits the strength of Attorney General Robert K. Killian in his home city against that of Rep. Ella T. Grasso, D-

Conn., who has the blessing of a million in annual royalties to allow construction of a $60 million refinery three miles off Cornfield Point in Old Saybrook.

Refinery on Sound Seen as a Threat

HARTFORD (UPI)—A refinery proposed for Long Island Sound near the mouth of the Connecticut River would be an eyesore and a threat says an environmentalist.

David Barack, director of the New England River Basin Commission Long Island Sound study said Wednesday "there are overriding reasons why the sound near the mouth of the Connecticut River would be a poor location" for a refinery. Aside from threats to the wetlands in the area, Barack said, the navigational hazards off Old Saybrook would make it hard for oil tankers to approach the facility without foundering and spilling their cargoes. "The effects of spills would impact both on Long Island and Connecticut and would linger longer inside the enclosed waters of the sound," he said. ## Jurors Inquiry Narrows LITCHFIELD (UPI)—A Superior Court judge seems to have narrowed his examination into possible jury impropriety in the trial of Peter A. Reilly, 19, convicted last month of manslaughter.

Judge John A. Spitaleri held the second day of a closed-door hearing Wednesday and concentrated on questioning four persons. Alternate juror Frank N. Solitto of New Hartford is believed to have spoken with the jury during an unguarded lunch. Reporters said Solitto may have told the jurors his feelings about Reilly's guilt, thus serving as a 12th juror. The examination was to continue today. Reilly was convicted in the killing last September of his mother Barbara Gibbons, at their Falls Village home. Originally charged with murder, he was convicted of the lesser charge.

Reilly is tentatively scheduled to be sentenced Tuesday, but his attorneys are expected to file a motion to have a mistrial declared or some other strategy to nullify the conviction.

Mayors Agree On Exchange With Russia

MOSCOW (UPI)—The president of the U.S. Conference of Mayors, Mayor Roy B. Martin of Norfolk, Va., says his group will sign an agreement on a regular exchange of visits by Soviet and American municipal officials.

Interest in the primary was reported at an all-time high for this type of election. At least half the city's 37,700 registered Democrats are expected to cast ballots between noon and 8 p.m. today.

Mrs. Grasso already has a lead in the overall delegate count for the nominating convention. Should she win today's primary, as predicted by some, she would be an almost certain winner of the nomination.

Killian said about a month ago that defeat in the primary would mark the end of his hopes to run for governor.

He needs the 70 delegate votes not only to hang on to a slim chance for nomination at the convention, but to maintain the greater chance of pushing the party to a state-wide primary if he can capture 20 percent of the delegate vote at the convention.

Six other primaries for delegate slates are being held today in Colchester, Farmington, Plainville, South Windsor, Thompson and Windham.

Cotter, Hogan, Fitzgerald Backed by Town Democrats

By SOL R. COHEN

The Manchester Democratic Town Committee, by unanimous vote Wednesday night endorsed three incumbent Democrats for re-election — District Congressman William R. Cotter of Hartford, Patrick J. Hogan of Bristol, and Judge of Probate William E. Fitzgerald of Manchester.

Judge Fitzgerald, the only Democrat elected judge of probate in Manchester's history, was present at the meeting and received a resounding round of applause. He thanked the committee members for their endorsement and pledged to work tirelessly for re-election.

A prominent national figure (possibly Massachusetts Congressman Thomas "Tip" O'Neill, House majority leader) will be the guest speaker July 13, when the committee holds its second annual "Honoring Friends" Dinner-Dance. The award luncheon will be at Will's Steak House.

To be honored are Dr. William Buckley, educator, author, chairman of the Board of Education; Matt Moriarty Sr., civic leader and benefactor; and Eelden Schaffer, former member of the Board of Education.

Also, Katherine Bourne, former chairman of the Board of Education; Pascal Mastrangelo, chairman of the Manchester Housing Authority; and Ann Larivee, Hales worker for the Democratic party.

Tickets are $25 per couple and the profit, if any, will be used for campaign finances. Co-chairmen are Herbert Stevenson and Paul Phillips.

Phillips, treasurer of the town committee, reported a balance of $2,943—with all bills paid.

Senatorial District will meet later in June, for the same purpose. John Hutchinson and Mary LaDuc, both of Manchester, are candidates for the state central committee posts from the Third District. Cummings said the Manchester Board of Directors will host a meeting June 19 in the student lounge of Manchester Community College—with all members of town boards, agencies and commissions invited guests. Similar meetings held at least twice in the past, it is for discussing town problems, goals and plans.

Meskill Scores Practice Of Heavy Bond Issues

HARTFORD (UPI)—Lame duck Gov. Thomas J. Meskill has suggested that future legislatures abandon the practice of authorizing heavy bonding to finance state capital improvements.

The governor Wednesday told a business group that the next legislature should consider a pay-as-you-go policy financed out of annual appropriations, rather than borrowing from the sale of bonds.

Meskill said the cost of bonding is high and getting higher and that the state could save "tremendous" amounts of money by avoiding bonding.

The governor also said abandoning the practice could curb excessive capital improvements.

The governor made his comments soon after signing the 1974 legislature's bond authorization bill of $305 million, which included $100 million worth of transportation projects requested by the governor himself.

The governor was speaking to the Connecticut Public Expenditure Council, a private organization that researches state spending.

Vernon Connie Kelly Named Outstanding Teacher

Mrs. Constance B. Kelly, a teacher in the Vernon School System for 45 years, has been chosen the "Outstanding Elementary Teacher" for 1974. Mrs. Kelly was nominated for the honor by Joseph Bellis, principal of the Northeast School. Teachers are selected for the honor on the basis of their professional and civic achievements. The educators chosen for this award are now eligible to receive the Outstanding Elementary Teacher of the Year Award Trophy and $500 unrestricted grants will be awarded to the schools represented by the five outstanding teachers chosen from the nominees from all over the United States. Prior to coming to Vernon to teach Mrs. Kelly taught in a one-room school house in Pletty Marsh, Maine and also taught for two years in Middletown. Since 1960 she has been elementary supervisor in charge of reading in the Vernon school system. Prior to that she has taught Grades 1, 2 and 3 in Vernon. Bellis said Mrs. Kelly was one of the motivating factors in the Continuous Progress Program which has been adopted in all of the local elementary schools. She was also instrumental in the implementation of the Individually Guided Education (IGE) program at Northeast School and Maple St. School. Mrs. Kelly has also taught courses to the student teachers who come to the Vernon system from Eastern Connecticut State College. Her father, Dr. George Brooks, pastor of the Union Church in Rockville for many years, was the author of a book on the history of the town, "Cascades in Courage." Mrs. Kelly was also a committee member of the Vernon Historical Society that wrote and published, "Vernon, Our Town," a history of Rockville and Vernon, used in all of the Grade 4 classes in the Vernon schools. In her spare time Mrs. Kelly is an avid golfer. She was the first woman member of Ellington Ridge Country Club to make a hole-in-one. She also enjoys traveling and has visited many of the islands during school vacations.

HELCO Says Cyclists Trespass on Property

Contrary to reports made to police last week, the Hartford Electric Light Co. doesn't allow motorcyclists to trespass on its power line rights-of-way, local HELCO manager Charles Hoffman said today, commenting on motorcyclists' complaints that there are lethal traps in the Bush Hill Rd.-Keeney St. area. Hoffman, saying he was quite concerned, said that while we do our best to stop these neighborhood nuisances, he emphasized that company rights-of-way are posted "no trespassing" and a survey of the rights-of-way area showed that the reported booby traps weren't on HELCO property. "HELCO has not given any permission whatsoever to motorcyclists to ride on the rights-of-way," Hoffman said. "Police have been notified to make arrests if trespassers are reported," he said. Hoffman's comments today came in the wake of reports to police Saturday that there were traps set along rights-of-way.

House Gives Pentagon Nearly All It Wanted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House liberals managed only a compromise victory Tuesday in their efforts to pare military assistance to South Vietnam, before the full House finally passed a $2.6 billion defense budget. The final vote, which gave the Pentagon almost everything it wanted for the coming fiscal year, passed 358-77. The Senate is considering its own version of the authorization bill, and any differences will have to be worked out in a conference committee. The bill was passed after an eight-hour session in which the only liberal victory came on what appeared to be a tactical mistake by Armed Services Committee chairman P. Edward Hebert, D-La., in handling a section setting a ceiling on arms aid to South Vietnam. Faced with possible defeat on an amendment by Rep. Robert L. Leggett, D-Calif., that would have reduced the aid ceiling $500 million from the $1.4 billion level set by his committee, Hebert offered a compromise setting the level at last year's $1.26 billion.

Leggett, however, proposed a further cut from Hebert's compromise figure, to $1 billion. When a vote was forced on the amendment, Leggett lost 100 to 211, indicating that Hebert could probably have had the higher ceiling he originally wanted. Just before final passage, Hebert's conservative forces narrowly defeated, 209-183, an overall cut of $733 million proposed by Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., with the backing of 15 Republicans and Democrats. Earlier, the pro-Pentagon bloc defeated amendments that would have reduced the Trident missile submarine program to one ship instead of two in 1979 and would have killed the Air Force B1 supersonic bomber. Also beaten were attempts by House Democratic leader Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill, D-Mass., and Rep. Ron Dellums, D-Calif., to force substantial cuts in U.S. troop levels abroad. O'Neill wanted to bring home 100,000 GIs by the end of 1975, and Dellums sought to have nearly 200,000 returned to the U.S. by the middle of the year.

He Combats Fuel Bills With Free Solar Heat

By MAL BARLOW A free winter fuel bill is a bad memory? Louis Daigle of 23 E. Maple St. may have an answer for your next winter. He built a small-scale parabolic reflector to catch and store the energy of the sun. It works and he believes a larger model could be built costing under $1,000 to supplement a home-heating system. The beauty of Daigle's idea is that, once built, all the heat from it is free — forever. Last fall before the December ice storm, Daigle read articles by Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT) scientists on sun power. The sun gives off 1,500 watts per square yard before it hits the earth's atmosphere. At ground level, the sun still packs a 900 watt wallop per square yard. Harvesting that energy is a problem. Intrigued by these figures, Daigle set up a small reflector to see if he could measure this power and even try with ways of using it. His reflector is simple. It has a parabolic-shaped curve covered with aluminum foil. It is exactly one square yard. The focus of the parabola is a copper pipe painted black. When aimed at the sun, all the rays should bounce off the foil back to the pipe. Since it is black, the pipe absorbs the rays and gets hot. Daigle has attached a garden hose to one end of the black pipe to pump in cold water. At the other end he has set up a thermometer. The heated water is then stored in a jug. In winter tests, Daigle said he was able to measure only about 250 watts by noting the change in temperature between the garden hose and the jug far from the 900 the MIT men said was possible. This spring, he was able to get up to 480 watts out of his reflector. He is convinced he could better that with stainless steel instead of aluminum foil and more black pipe. Daigle insisted his reflector is purely a hobby. He does not intend to adapt it to home or commercial use and sell it. But if he did, this is how he would do it. To be at the practical, the reflector would have to be at least 20 square yards. If it could contain 900 watts, it could produce 2,000 BTUs per hour per square yard or a maximum for a 20-square-yard reflector of 60,000 BTUs per hour. At best, there is good sunlight for about eight hours a day making almost 500,000 BTUs in a day. An average-size house on a cold winter day needs about 2 million BTUs to stay at room temperature all day and night. Daigle noted. This means the sun reflector's 500,000 would merely be a supplement to an existing heating system, he said. It might be all a house needs, however, on a warm winter day or an average day in the fall or spring. Daigle also noted the problem of storing the heated water during the day and using it at night along with the sun has gone down. Heavily insulated pipes would be needed as well as a large "reservoir" tank kept, perhaps, in the basement.

Social Welfare Forum Backs Ted's Health Plan

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Sen. Edward Kennedy's proposed "Health Security Act" received enthusiastic endorsement from a speaker at the "National Conference on Social Welfare" Wednesday. The conference, the world's largest forum on social welfare which has attracted 5,000 people from around the country, winds up today. Grover C. Abney, associate general secretary for the Board of Church and Society of the United Methodist Church, praised Kennedy's plan and condemned private health insurance. "The welter, chaos, deficient coverage, and bewildering complexity of the thousands upon thousands of private health care policies would be replaced by universal, simple, comprehensive coverage for the entire nation," Abney said, in support of adopting the Kennedy measure. "The personal and family tragedies and the thousands of personal bankruptcies caused each year by the outrageous exclusions, deductibles, copayments, cancellations, denials of coverage and maximum limits of private insurance policies will be done away with," he said. "Private health insurance policies are so full of holes that Leonard Woodcock, president of the United Auto Workers Union, has likened them to Swiss cheese."

Boston Suburb Hit By Second Blaze

CHELSEA, Mass. (UPI) — A fire in an industrial section of Chelsea caused an estimated $1 million damage Wednesday. Seven firemen were injured in the blaze. The blaze began after 8 a.m. and was not contained until early afternoon. It broke out in the American Barrel Co. plant, a block-long, three-story structure near Boston's Northeast Expressway and only about a half mile from the site of an Oct. 14 conflagration which destroyed a large warehouse home and several tenement houses. The damage in that fire was estimated at $40 million. Acting Fire Chief William Capistran said there was a problem getting enough water pressure to fight the fire. Capistran was in charge because Chief Herbert Forthright was at a convention in Miami, showing photographs of October's conflagration. Community firefighting assistance came from as far away as Salem, N.H., to the north and Framingham to the west. An estimated $5 to 40 pieces of fire equipment were reported at the scene during the height of the blaze. The fire, fed by creosote and other flammables, quickly spread through the building to nearby structures, destroying three. The heavy smoke was visible as far as 10 miles. Explosions were reported in the area of the barrel plant during the fire. Several homes in the area were scared by the extreme heat and residents were evacuated. However, firemen doused the homes with water, preventing them from catching fire. State police had to close a section of the expressway and the northbound and southbound lanes of the Tobin Memorial Bridge over the Mystic River during the morning.

Re-Elected

Mrs. Madeline Uccello of Spring St. recently was re-elected for her third term as president of New Hope Manor, the drug rehabilitation home for girls on Hartford Rd. Mrs. Mary Patterson of 107 South St. was re-elected as secretary. Mrs. Tracy Dr. vice president; Atty. Robert McNally of Simsbury, secretary; Mrs. Alice D'Arcy of Somers, assistant secretary; Ray Weinstein of West Hartford, treasurer; John Gormley of West Hartford, assistant treasurer. "In 1973 the American people bought $20.5 billion worth of this cheese, paid another $30.3 billion for taxes for government supported personal health care services, and then found they still had to pay $20.1 billion additional dollars directly for the hospital and medical bills that slipped through the holes of the comprehensive health care policies they were then against the costs of health care. "Nobody today possesses genuine insurance against the costs of illness except military personnel, veterans, and that 6 per cent of the population who have been fortunate enough to enroll in a prepaid group practice offering comprehensive coverage. New members of the board of directors are Dr. Alice Turek, Manchester's director of health; Carol Laddy, Rockville probation officer; Mrs. Terry Holmes of Vernon; Atty. Ruth Franks of Hartford; Beatrice Steves of West Hartford, and Roberto Colon of Hartford.

Muskie Criticizes Secrecy Systems

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, says the government's system of classifying secrets is unwieldy and outmoded. Muskie's subcommittee headed by Muskie opened hearings on government secrecy Wednesday. "The problem has become as complex as the classification practices of some 17,000 officials in 25 different government agencies and 11 presidential offices can make it," Muskie said. He said the result has been to deprive Congress and the people of information needed to make judgments about governmental policies. "The efforts of people in the executive branch to correct the problem have been unsuccessful. So Congress is now considering five proposals to change or alter the secrecy classification system," the Maine Democrat said. "It is essential that the system of secrecy be tightly controlled, thoroughly inspected and continually challenged," Muskie said. Muskie filed a report earlier this week with the office of the Senate secretary showing that he has received more money from speaking honoraria than any other member of the New England congressional delegation. His report showed total earnings of $55,000 for 25 speeches; delivered last year to colleges, religious and civic organizations.

Remark Prompts Recall

BOSTON (UPI) — The Rev. John J. McLaughlin, the Jesuit priest who works as a White House aide and lives in Washington's plush Watergate apartment complex, has been called back to Boston by his religious superior "to pray and reflect about his life." McLaughlin, 47, recently became involved in controversy when he said he did not think the President's frequent use of profanities during talks with the Soviet premier "is a moral meaning." He also said he thought the President "acquired himself with honor" when he made public the White House transcripts of Watergate-related conversations. The Rev. Richard T. Cleary, the regional provincial of the Jesuit Fathers of New England, Wednesday disclaimed any connection between the Church and McLaughlin's statements about the President. He also said that in view of the Jesuit vow of poverty, he was "puzzled" by McLaughlin's life style, including living at the Watergate complex. Cleary said before deciding whether to take any action against McLaughlin, he would call him back to Boston "to pray about his situation and reflect about his life with me." Cleary said he had three choices — take disciplinary action against McLaughlin; recommend that he be expelled from the order; or take no action at all.

McLaughlin Statements Disclaimed

BOSTON (UPI) — The New England provincial of the Jesuit fathers Wednesday disclaimed any connection between the church and statements made by a Jesuit priest, serving as a special assistant to the President, in support of President Nixon and on various aspects of life and morality in the U.S.

On May 8, Fr. McLaughlin said in a briefing for White House reporters that he was an "active Jesuit priest" and said his duties at the White House included "political fact-finding and presidential spokespersonship."

"As his religious superior, I would like to state that Fr. McLaughlin does not speak officially in any way whatsoever for the church, the Jesuit fathers or myself," said Fr. Cleary in a statement.

"When he speaks, he does so for himself alone, his opinions, interpretations of the moral law, and points of view are entirely his own, and they should be taken and evaluated as such."

Fr. Cleary added, "I do not personally subscribe to or approve them, although I do recognize his legal right to make such statements as a private citizen."

"There is, however, a more fundamental moral issue. Since Fr. McLaughlin has freely made a religious commitment with clear and specific obligations, I am indeed puzzled by his publicly stated interpretation of his vows of poverty and obedience, as well as his understanding of his status as a Jesuit priest."

"I am in the process of clarifying these matters with Fr. McLaughlin."

American Plan May Break Israeli-Syrian Deadlock

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said today he had made good progress in three hours of talks with Prime Minister Golda Meir on an American middle-of-the-road compromise plan to break the deadlock over a troop disengagement agreement with Syria. Kissinger met with Mrs. Meir and the Israeli negotiating team this morning and was to meet her again later in the day. He was expected to delay his 11th shuttle to Damascus until Saturday morning in order to be able to present the completed plan to Syrian President Hafez Assad.

There was a possibility the pact would be initiated on Sunday. The Israeli cabinet met in the meantime to go over Kissinger's ideas to bridge the gap between Israel and Syria on the remaining major issue — thinning out their forces along a cease-fire line.

As I pointed out on the remaining issues, especially on the thinning out of forces, we are considering whether the time is approaching when an American proposal might help matters," Kissinger told newsmen.

A similar American plan broke the deadlock just a week ago on the issue of where the cease-fire line should be drawn. Israel Information Minister Shimon Peres said the American proposal was "something in the nature of the middle road."

Asked if the agreement could be concluded this weekend, Peres said "I don't know. If things will happen very fast, it may be a possibility, but I'm not sure."

An American-Israeli working group was set up to prepare the text on the points already agreed upon, such as the location of a cease-fire line, the role of U.N. troops and an exchange of prisoners.

One of the other main issues still unresolved but believed to be moving toward agreement is the size of the United Nations force to be stationed along the demarcation line in the Golan Heights. Israel wants several thousand troops, Syria wants only a few hundred.

The appeals court said the Senate panel could read the published transcripts of the tapes and, for further information, could await the findings of the impeachment inquiry of the House Judiciary Committee, which has been given the tapes themselves. But

Irish Protestants Shun Confrontation With Army

BELFAST (UPI) — The nine-day-old strike by 350,000 workers has virtually halted normal life in Northern Ireland. The UWC called the action to press demands for new elections in the province and to make concessions saving Northern Ireland from the "brink of disaster."

With only one of five generating stations operating, power supplies were 30 per cent of normal. Officials warned that without propane and hydrogen supplies by Sunday there would be no electricity.

But the UWC decided late Thursday to take down its street barricades and let major oil companies set up areas to distribute gasoline and other fuel to essential workers such as doctors and farmers.

It also decided to allow propane and hydrogen through end to power sharing with the Roman Catholics. The military Ulster Workers' Council (UWC) yielded to the threat of British soldiers moving into power stations and relaxing its ban on delivery of some supplies.

This is the fourth time in 10 days we've moved back from the brink of disaster," said a spokesman for the British province's electric power services.

Prime Minister Harold Wilson called a meeting in London today with leaders of the province's moderate, Roman Catholic-Protestant coalition government.

Government sources in London said the talks would determine whether to use the 16,500 troops in Northern Ireland to keep emergency services going.

The sources said that a London meeting Thursday night with key ministers, Wilson considered arresting strike organizers but decided "at the moment it would be unwise to do so."

The 'Duke' at the Keyboard

Famed jazz musician Edward Kennedy "Duke" Ellington died early today in New York City at the age of 75. He entered the hospital earlier this week with pneumonia.

Doctors said Ellington died of pneumonia at 3:10 a.m. Ellington, whose sophisticated music made him one of the most influential bandleaders of the 20th Century, was hospitalized last month for a respiratory infection.

His condition was first reported as serious Wednesday. Almost three generations knew Ellington as the tall, gracious man in the tuxedo, conducting his band from the keyboard of a grand piano; the man whose tunes like "Mood Indigo," "Sophisticated Lady" and "In My Solitude" are woven into millions of memories.

Ellington received virtually ever honor that could come to musician, topped off by the Medal of Freedom, the nation's highest civilian award, presented to him by President Nixon on Ellington's 70th birthday, April 29, 1969.

Ellington's compositions expanded over the years to include sacred music, tone poems, background scores for movies and stage dramas, ballets and operas. He assembled some of the best sidemen in the world, including Johnny Hodges, Harry Carney, Cootie Williams and Cat Anderson.

The Duke was born April 29, 1899, in Washington, D.C. He taught himself to play the piano.

Throughout his life, the Duke wrote more than 500 compositions, many of which have become classics: "Satin Doll," "Don't Get Around Much Anymore," "I Let a Song Go out of My Heart," "I Got It Bad and That Ain't Good," "Do Nothing Till You Hear From Me," "Caravan."

He also scored and conducted the music for the film "Anatomy of a Murder." Ellington was hospitalized for eight days in January of 1974 at St. Vincent's Hospital in Los Angeles for influenza.

About two months later, he was hospitalized again at Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center in New York, and became seriously ill with pneumonia.

A quiet man, he avoided the controversies that follow many stars. In 1965, the Pulitzer Prize Advisory Board unanimously voted that either a long-term achievement award be presented to Ellington or no prize be given at all for that year. Ellington's comment, when the board finally decided against honoring him, was quoted around the world: "Fate doesn't want me to be too famous too young."

He had no set pattern for composing. His son, Mercer, also a musician, said Ellington wrote "everywhere...in taxis, on the bus, even on the bandstand."

Kiwians Are Doers; But Reluctant Marchers

(Editor's note: Stories like the following will appear in a special feature section in the Tuesday, May 28, issue of The Herald celebrating the 50th anniversary of the Kiwanis Club of Manchester. Pictures and stories will note their great civic accomplishments despite being handicapped by a high level of "tomfoolery" and good fellowship.)

John Mrosek, president during the club's celebrations of its 40th anniversary, told this story of the club's special banner for that year.

"We were invited to march in a parade," John recalled. "And I hoped we would turn out in great numbers marching behind a banner proclaiming our 40th anniversary."

At a luncheon several weeks before the parade, John announced the Kiwanis Club was invited to march and John had accepted.

"How many are going with me?" John asked. Silence from the club members.

"We'll talk about it again," John said. "In the meantime, I'm having a banner made that we can carry in front of our contingent."

At the next meeting, silence again greeted John's request for marchers.

At the last meeting before the big parade, the Kiwanians still had not given up one of their ranks to march in the parade.

John was mad. "I'm going to carry that banner if I'm the only Kiwanian in the parade," he announced.

"And if I'm the only one, I intend to resign on Monday morning."

This shook up the group quite a bit but few took John seriously. Also, none wanted to march in that parade.

At parade time, John was alone with his banner getting ready to march when Warren Howland, the first vice president, showed up. Warren carried one side of the banner and John the other.

"I didn't want to become president that fast," Warren said referring to the club's practice of the first vice president assuming the presidency when the president either completes his term or leaves for some reason.

Mrosek recalls the whole incident with humor. He now knows the Kiwanians are not fond of marching in parades. However, he has taken the same banner and had it redesigned to read for the 50th anniversary. Are there any parades coming up?

Recent Bride Wins $100,000 At Vernon Lottery Drawing

BARBARA RICHMOND Federal Savings had made arrangements for this, number 5 will always be considered a lucky number. Mrs. Linda Besson, who works at Sears Warehouse at Corbin Corner, West Hartford, said she plans to buy a body shop for her husband. Mark now works at Papa's Dodge in New Britain.

State Rep. Dan McKeever of Ellington opened the capsule containing number 3 and Mrs. Irene DeMatteo of New Haven, with that number, won the $15,000 prize. Her son, Ralph, 24, accompanied her. She said she plans to buy him a car and put the rest of her winnings in the bank.

The drawing was conducted in the tent set up for the "Clown Town" sponsored by the Suburban Women's Club of Vernon, Ellington and Tolland, and lottery officials said last night's crowd of some 2,000 persons, was the largest yet at a drawing.

For this week's number A. Bernard Crowl, executive director of the Rockville Area Chamber of Commerce drew the first digit; Harvey DesRuisseaux of First Federal Savings and Loan of Rockville drew the second number; Vernon Mayor Frank McCoy, the third; Mrs. Betty Regan, president of the Suburban Women's Club, drew the fourth number; and the fifth was drawn by Deputy Secretary of State Harry Hammer, a resident of Vernon.

When the fourth number was drawn, Miss Ursula Wohlebe of Tolland had the four numbers in proper order but the final number was 3 and she had a 7. She did win $200, though.

The winning number was 6573 and there were many present who won $20 and $25 prizes. These persons could cash in right at the tent as First
