

Shaw Work Pleasant Choice for Summer Theatre III

By JUNE TOMPKINS

George Bernard Shaw put his play "Arms and the Man" in the "Pleasant" volume of the two volumes which he published in 1894 called "Plays: Pleasant and Unpleasant."

It is a pleasant choice for Summer Theatre III's second showing of the season.

A typical Shawian creation, it illustrates Shaw's ability to satirize, to invent comic situations, and to create comic characters.

The play was presented in a series of three well designed and most attractive sets occupied by characters in beautifully created costumes of the 1890s in Bulgaria.

Shaw, in his comedy, discusses the absurdity of war, heroism and romantic love with obvious tongue-in-cheek.

Captain Bluntschli, played by J.D. Dunning, portrays a practical, forward-looking soldier who suggests the idea of the lion in "Wizard of Oz." A sword swinging escapes from the raging battle behind him, he is easily assuaged with chocolate cream offered him by the "lame" in whose bedroom he seeks refuge.

On the other hand, Sergius Saranoff, played by Gentry Cooke is the dashing, handsome, swashbuckling hero in battle who, though betrothed to the Bulgarian major's daughter, indulges in extra curricular flirtation with the maid.

Captain Bluntschli may lose out in war, but in the end, he eventually wins the major's daughter and, as a Swiss, impresses the others with his status in his country. He accounts for his material possessions, which are impressive, and is asked by the major if he has a title. Most appropriately for our Independence Day and the play's opening night, Bluntschli replies he has the highest title of all, "a free citizen."

The comely major's daughter, Raina, is attractively portrayed by Deborah Thomas who displays her charms effectively to both the captain and Sergius, her betrothed.

Mill Sylvester, who was seen last year in Summer Theatre III's "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" was the properly cultured major's wife who successfully carried out a convincing scheme with her daughter, Raina, to hide evidence of Captain Bluntschli's hideaway in their home and escape. Anne Scurlia was Louka, the maid, who knew more than she told of the romantic goings-on and eventually won the heart of Sergius.

The very dignified major was played to the hilt by Bruno Utley. Brian McEleneay gave a splendid and impressive portrayal of Nicola, the valet, although it was a supporting role.

Charles Alan Piese, Summer Theatre III's producer, directs this light and satisfying comedy, which plays through Sunday, and next Thursday through Sunday in the Manchester Community College air-conditioned auditorium. Tickets are available at the door.

The evening of July 12 is sold out to the Manchester Registered Nurses Association who will run the benefit performance for the scholarship fund to aid a high school graduate in the field of nursing.

MANCHESTER, CONN., SATURDAY, JULY 6, 1974 — VOL. XCIII, No. 226 Manchester—A City of Village Charm

Town Gets Main Street At No Cost

The state Department of Transportation (DOT) has agreed to turn over control of Manchester's downtown Main St. to the town at no cost, Town Manager Robert Weiss reported after a Friday negotiating session at the Municipal Building.

The tentative agreement was reached Friday with the understanding that the town will perform necessary maintenance on the street, Weiss said.

The town would take the road "as is," Weiss said.

The agreement reached Friday was actually a "trade-off," participants in the one-hour negotiations said.

Mayor John Thompson said Deputy DOT Commissioner George Koch acknowledged a state responsibility to upgrade the drainage system, but the takeover agreement provides that the town perform the drainage improvements because the state is abandoning its request for town payment of $25,000 for new traffic signals installed last fall.

Weiss said the drainage improvements, which would include the replacement of several catch basins and upgrading of storm sewers, will be necessary "fairly soon" and are estimated to cost about $28,000.

Town takeover of downtown Main St., a state highway (Rt. 8), is contingent upon approval of the town's Board of Selects. Weiss will formally present a report on the tentative agreement Tuesday night, and board action on the agreement is expected before Sept. 1.

In reporting on Friday's negotiations, Weiss and Thompson pointed out that the state had no plans to make improvements to the Main St. roadway for some time. Koch reportedly told town officials that he had inspected the street before the Friday meeting and said the street is in "good shape."

Supports Probe

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, sharply critical of President Nixon during its five-day convention, settled for a low-key resolution Friday supporting the House Judiciary Committee's impeachment investigation.

Suspect 'Pleased'

ATLANTA (UPI) — Marcus Wayne Chenault, the accused killer of Mrs. Martin Luther King Sr., apparently is pleased with his actions because of the emotional heartbreak he inflicted on the King family although he missed his prime target, his lawyer said Friday.

More Traveling

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (UPI) — President Nixon may travel to Japan in August, according to White House aides, and he is contemplating another European swing this fall.

Hearing Scheduled

HARTFORD (UPI) — Hearings on rate increases requested by the Hartford Electric Light Co. and the Connecticut Light and Power Co. are scheduled for 10:30 a.m. Monday by the state Public Utilities Commission. The hearings are expected to last several weeks.

Leveled Off

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government says unemployment virtually has leveled off, and veterans and prospective homebuyers seeking federally secured home loans will have to pay higher mortgage rates in the future.

Completes Week

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — President Maria Estela Peron completed her first week as Argentina's chief executive today with new pledges of support from the nation's leaders.

Talks With Pope

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, negotiator of military truces in the Middle East, conferred today with Pope Paul VI on religious differences over the Holy City of Jerusalem.

Tom Harris, 17, of 51 Brookfield Rd., Bolton could not make it through the flooded rear parking area of the Manchester Parkade. Here he and friends try to figure out what to do. The water level did not go high enough to flood any of the stores as it did during a less severe storm last summer. Repair of storm sewers and the digging of the nearby brook apparently made the difference. (Herald photo by Dunn)

The only utility pipe left intact after this Woodbridge St. washout near the Manchester Green is this gas line. The sewage and water lines were severed. The water line problem was corrected by town workmen quickly but the sewage line was being worked on well into the morning. (Herald photo by Dunn)

A tractor-trailer carrying diesel oil was traveling west on Rt. 6 in Bolton this morning when it ran off the right side of the highway near South Rd., knocking down guide posts and a utility pole. The accident happened about 7:45 and members of the Bolton Volunteer Fire Department were on hand in case of fire. The accident knocked out power in that section of Bolton, and a spokesman for HELCO said that power would be restored early this afternoon. Eugene Harding, driver of the vehicle, was taken by ambulance to Manchester Memorial Hospital where he was treated at the emergency room and released. Emanuel Hirth, general manager of Central Connecticut Coop Association of Manchester, owner of the truck, said the tractor portion was a total loss but the trailer portion is probably salvageable. ## Storm Hits Area Hard

By MAL BARLOW

Trees fell on power lines, backyards and cellars were flooded, and many roadways were impassable for hours due to the state thunderstorm Friday which struck the Manchester area about 4 p.m.

The area damaged the most appeared to be on Woodbridge St. near Manchester Green where an overflowing brook washed out the road and took with it water and sewage lines.

Mayor Jack Thompson, called to the scene by area residents, said Woodbridge St. is "a bad situation."

For some time Friday, the water main added to the flooding. When town crews stopped the flow, they had a more serious problem on their hands, the sewage lines. The sewage flow could not be stopped for some time. The town had ordered pipe to correct the problem, the mayor said. But for many hours Friday, the sewage came out of the pipe and into the brook.

Despite these problems, the mayor noted the area residents were in a festive mood.

Temporary Respite
"The reason is that they've had their share of trucks and traffic on the street," the mayor explained. "At least now they'll have a temporary respite."

Walter Senkow, town engineer, said this morning the Woodbridge St. washout is comparable in scope, potential repair problems, and cost to the Olcott St. bridge washout a year ago. That cost more than $100,000 before fully repaired.

The mayor added several area people could see the roadway beginning to give way Friday and became alarmed for motorists crossing the road at the brook. One man ran up the street to the first intersection and began signaling people to go other ways. Some people drove around the brook anyway and went over the crumbling road.

Another man went down the street to the first intersection and had no better luck. People wanted to go through and would not listen.

Police finally sealed off the road. Motorists throughout the Manchester area were stranded in high spots waiting for flooding on streets to subside. Many people were returning from Hartford after working or shopping Friday. Traffic was heavy.

Areas especially bad included Center St. by the railroad overpass, W. Middle Tpk. by the Parkade, Summit St. at several points, the corner of Hilliard and Adams Sts., and many more spots.

Power downed lines, causing power outages in many towns and loss of telephone service in New Britain.

Connors Wins Tennis Crown At Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — Jimmy Connors, ignoring the hostility of the crowd and playing power tennis at its very best, blew sentimental favorite Ken Rosewall off the court in straight sets 6-1, 6-4, 6-4 today to become the youngest Wimbledon champion in 18 years.

Other Wimbledon stories are on today's sport pages.

Judge Orders Kissinger To Be Ready to Testify

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. District Court Judge Gerhard A. Gesell ordered Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger Friday to be prepared to testify next week in the presidential adviser John D. Ehrlichman.

In addition to charges he conspired to deprive Fielding of his civil rights, Ehrlichman is charged with lying to a grand jury by first saying he knew nothing in advance about a CIA psychiatric profile on Elsborg, and then admitting he initiated a discussion of the profile before the grand jury.

The White House "plumbers" unit broke into Fielding's office in a fruitless search for information that might damage Elsborg's reputation.

The CIA doctor, Bernard Malloy, said he was told by plumbers conductor David R. Young that Kissinger and Ehrlichman had ordered the Elsborg psychiatric profile and that he was told Nixon knew about it.

Malloy said that despite the fact the CIA previously had never made such a profile of an American citizen, except once when one was being held by a foreign power, the agency went ahead.

About three weeks after the conversation with Young, the plumbers entered Fielding's office.

Defense lawyer William S. Frates told reporters he was not sure whether the would call Assistant Attorney General Henry E. Petersen as a witness after Gesell implied he did not think that would be a good move.

Elsborg has admitted leaking the classified Pentagon Papers to the press. After the prosecution rested its case Friday noon and the defense lost a motion for a directed acquittal, the CIA's chief psychiatrist and two character witnesses testified on behalf of Ehrlichman.

News for Senior Citizens

by Wally Fortin

Hi! Well, I sure hope you enjoyed the big (ahem) Fourth-of-July. At least your private picnics, and that everyone who did go away returned home safely. Because of the short week the news is somewhat limited, but important. So if you're not a senior citizen as yet, but are reading this column, be sure to pass the word on to your folks so they may be able to join us. I'm sure they'll have a good time.

Monday Play
First of all, come this Monday evening we will be treated to the live play "Jacques Breil is Alive and Well and Living in Paris" that you told your Members of the Manchester Community College are going to perform for us, and it's all for free here at the Senior Center. The show starts at 7:30 in the evening, and our bus will pick up on its regular route starting at 8 o'clock.

Pinocchio Results
Here's a little news as to what's been happening at the center. Tuesday morning was our next to last class for beginners ceramics class, and in the afternoon many of our bowlers took advantage of the air-conditioned alleys to do some bowling.

By the way, we do have a couple of new fans available; that should help make the building comfortable. I'm sure that you will enjoy the evening so plan on joining us, and make a nice turnout in appreciation to the students for taking their time to want to entertain us. So remember this Monday evening we will be looking for you.

Big Picnic
Now that's the beginning of a busy week because along with our regular programs we have our big picnic coming up this Thursday, from 10 to 3 in the afternoon. We'll be playing cards, and bingo, as well as enjoying a singalong with some of our senior talent being at the picnic will be called upon to lead us. Oh yes, there will be lots of goodies to munch on.

Grasso-Killian Ticket

The Democrats may believe they have put together a winning gubernatorial ticket now that Bob Killian has agreed to settle for lieutenant governor with Ella Grasso as the nominee for governor.

When you think about it for a moment, the ticket should appeal to the voters and should certainly serve to unify the party. Certainly it took a mastermind and skilled politician like John Bailey, state chairman, to put it all together.

Our big disappointment rests with Killian. In his struggle with the major oil companies during the years, we viewed the attorney general as a down-to-the-wire fighter and battler. Perhaps some people take pride in being second. But to coin a phrase from athletic circles, we have always felt that finishing second was about like kissing your sister—there is little satisfaction.

For some reason, we can't imagine Killian being perfectly content with second place in the ticket. Even though he knew, as did everyone else, that his quest for the gubernatorial nomination was an uphill fight. In short, we thought Killian was a fighter, that he would struggle for the nomination to the bitter end.

However, Killian isn't the first to step aside to serve the desire of party bosses and he most assuredly won't be the last.

Now if Bailey can just find a spot for Frank Zullo, peace and harmony will certainly prevail.

Revenue Sharing Up Slightly

June 30 marked the end of the fiscal year. For government and corporations which work on the fiscal year basis, usually from July 1 to June 30, July 1 was their new year's day. Therefore we have pretty reliable figures on which to base some of the budgetary matters in fiscal 1975.

For example, according to a computer print-out made by the Office of Revenue Sharing, Department of the Treasury, the total available revenue sharing funds for fiscal 1975 will be increased to $6.2-billion from $5-billion. That means that there will be $200 million more available to the states, cities, and counties across the country.

Under federal policy, each state government itself receives one-third of the total allocation. The remaining two-thirds is divided among the localities. The allocation is based upon population, tax effort, per capita income, urbanized population, and state income tax collections.

The Senate Government Operations Committee, chaired by Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, Maine Democrat, found that revenue sharing "prevented an increase in a major tax." In that case, the funds were considered a part of an overall general fund and not as separate revenues.

New York state's general fiscal situation was described as "stable," compared to New York City's, which was termed "terrible." In the latter case, revenue sharing prevented "nuisance taxes."

Volunteer Juries

An innovative idea in choosing grand juries is being tried in San Francisco and early indications are that it may be a successful answer to a knotty problem.

Grand juries are selected in different manners in various states. In some a grand jury and a petit jury list is maintained and the jurors are chosen by lot.

In San Francisco grand juries customarily were chosen by judges or suggested by friends of judges. They tended to be of a certain age group and economic and social class.

Minorities protested that they were not being represented because of the manner of choosing.

So the court decided to ask for volunteer jurors and the response was surprising. More than 400 people offered to serve. Some expressed interest in learning more about the process; others said that they felt it was a duty which they should perform.

Thirty persons were chosen, 21 volunteers and nine named by the judge. Hence the jury is assured a majority from the volunteer group, as 19 will be finally chosen.

No doubt there will be drawbacks to the attempt to attract volunteers. Cranks, crackpots and people with causes may volunteer and will have to be weeded out.

It is also possible that groups with an axe to grind may urge people to volunteer hoping to gain a majority favorable to their causes.

It must be refreshing to judges, however, to have people willing to serve on juries rather than making the excuses which have been so prevalent.

Nixon's Ruling Passion

NEW YORK — "What will history say about us?" That question, in more elaborate, phrasing, summed up President Nixon's last in the open exchange at the Moscow summit. It was again evidence of the extent to which Mr. Nixon moved by a passionate concern for his place in history.

It is his ruling motivation. It is why he waited all through the '50s, from the Hiss case on, for his chance at the presidential nomination, why he ate salad at Dwight Eisenhower's table when he served under him as vice president; why he survived the galling defeat by John Kennedy in 1960 and the even more humiliating governorship defeat in California in 1962.

It is why he waited in the arid of national Republican politics; why he so assiduously wooed his party professionals in the lean years after Sen. Barry Goldwater's defeat; why he endured the condemnation of the Republican liberals, the contempt of the Democrats, the hostility of most of the media leaders, the hatred of the intellectual elite.

After he won the presidency in 1968, with the Vietnam war still to be ended and a new foreign policy to be shaped, his passion for a place in history made him overcome his cold-war past and pick Henry Kissinger as his actual — although not nominal — secretary of state. Most of his Cabinet officers were mediocre, his Palace Myrmidons were loyal and unscrupulous, and he had the good luck to fill four Supreme Court vacancies. His hope was to extricate the United States from the war, slow down the convulsive changes within the nation and use Kissinger to turn American foreign policy around: Out of this came the theatrical journey to Peking and the first summit at Moscow.

This was to be the road toward his place in history, for which he was willing to handle every obstacle, take every risk, bomb any city, embrace any enemy, betray any friend, employ any means, incur any cost, pay any moral price.

When you are so dead certain of your goal, and your strategy has the success which Mr. Nixon's had by 1972, then any lion in the path becomes a menace to be eliminated. The episode of Ellsberg and the Pentagon Papers loomed as the crucial lion in Mr. Nixon's path to his place in history.

It threatened the winding up of the war in the way he had chosen. It became the symbol for all leaks of high secret documents, all ruptures in the fabric of national security, all challenges to Mr. Nixon's course. It awakened the slumbering hatred for the left intellectuals who had made him their favored target for years. He was convinced that the only use any means to destroy them

Of Musical Whales And Japanese Protein

By DONALD MCKERMAN

The world controversy over the hunting of whales continues. On one hand, Mrs. Christine Stevens, president of the Animal Welfare Institute, writes, "If you and your friend John, thousands of other humanitarians in refusing to buy anything made in Japan until Japan stops the hideously painful killing of the whales, these kindly, gentle, musical, intelligent creatures can be saved. Otherwise, they are doomed."

On the other hand, the Japanese and Soviet position is that whales are similar to other stocks of animals and should be managed so as to achieve the maximum sustainable yield from the stocks. The Japanese point out that they have been a whaling nation for hundreds of years and that their people eat

Whales are not endangered. That statement can be categorically made. The scientific committee of the International Whaling Commission, composed of the most highly competent and respected marine scientists in this field, stated in their 1973 report to the commission, "Because the concept of individual species management is now operative, the scientific committee is agreed that at the present time there is no biological requirement for the imposition of a blanket moratorium on all commercial whaling."

Still, while the scientific committee rejected a global moratorium on whaling as being unjustified, it did call attention to the low level of the Antarctic and North Pacific fin whale stocks and the absence of any favorable upward trend in these depleted stocks.

The match aligned International Whaling Commission has, in the past 10 years, placed a ban on the killing of five of the great whales and, in addition, it has set quotas on all levels. Clearly the commission has been successful during the past 10 years in bringing about a virtual halt to the overkill of the world's great whale stocks.

In recent years it has become polarized between the whaling and nonwhaling nations. Nonwhaling countries such as our own believe that the stocks will have a better chance of early recovery.

The whaling countries believe that their industry's welfare and their consumers of whale products must be taken into account.

By the same token, the whaling nations must be willing to make reasonable management decisions based upon the interests of all. This is the simple formula for ensuring a future for the world population of whales.

Donald Mckerman, director of the Institute for Marine Studies at the University of Washington, recently called for an assistant to the secretary of State specializing in oceanic affairs.

Surely the cause calls for cool heads, logic, a dialogue, and a willingness to make reasonable management decisions based upon the interests of all. This is the simple formula for ensuring a future for the world population of whales.

Donald Mckerman, director of the Institute for Marine Studies at the University of Washington, recently called for an assistant to the secretary of State specializing in oceanic affairs.

Wings Of Evening

CLIFF SIMPSON

"For heaven's sake, come to your senses!" How often have we heard that expression? It usually means — use your brains, get some horse sense, think straight. I am using this phrase to challenge the dull way so many people go through life. Come alive and celebrate the immediate. Be entranced by the swift streak of red as the cardinal swoops by. Listen for his cheerful cheer-up in the early morning. Notice the brightly plumaged male pierce a sunflower seed to his soft-brown, plumedly attired mate. Come to your senses and live life more fully.

Every time I open a fresh can of coffee I inhale the aroma. It makes me think of a time in Florence when I was feeling homesick and walked by a coffee store. The flavor of the atmosphere coming out the door was a breath from home. Come to your senses and savor the delicate aroma of a garden, a fresh breeze off a lake, the smell of baking bread.

Now, not for one moment do I believe that because somebody enjoys the aromas around him he is a "religious" person, but I do feel that God intends us to live an abundant life. Part of this is enjoying the senses He gave us. Any one of us who has had his senses by being more aware of tasting, feeling, touching, hearing, smelling.

I like the story of the timid old woman in a museum who, thinking she was alone, reached out and gently stroked an alabaster statue, not only to hear the voice of a guard, "Go right ahead, lady. When no one else is around I often feel it myself." There is a world of wonder waiting to be discovered if we would only come to our senses.

Our book for the week will help anyone trying to find new forms of satisfaction and excitement. Even the title is tantalizing: "Celebrate the Temporary" by Clyde Kilby, professor of ministry in the Illinois School of Theology in the University of Denver. I recommend it especially to those who seek a fuller appreciation of God's world. Let his own words describe its purpose:

"In this book I invite you to live more fully in the present experience, rather than focusing life in the future or in the past. I talk about ways in which we can relax more into present reality by really tasting our food, really feeling our pain, really seeing a single flower..."

This book, drawing on experiences from the field of sensory awareness, yoga, and encounter, suggests some concrete, non-theological ways in which an average person can let go and live to some extent in the present moment without sacrificing concern for the future or the reality of the past... (Pg. 84)

There is nothing startling in the reminder to be aware of the pleasant sensations around us, even though we may need to be more conscious of them. But when we are urged to lean into our pain it makes us pause. Our culture, through its advertisements, constantly encourages us to believe that life can be pain-free. This book maintains that those who try to live without pain can too easily become like walking zombies, cut off from all feeling. Our lives become deadened if we try to avoid the experience of pain at all costs.

In any deep personal attachment there is the risk of suffering. To love is to open oneself to the possibility of hurt. Dr. Reid cites the example of a woman who did not want to make any new friends because of the great loss that had come to her as close friends in her life. His chapter "Lean into Your Pain" ends with this comment on death:

"It often does not occur to us to celebrate the good, the joy, and the love that we have received. We spend our time feeling bad but we don't still have it today, and so today is jammed by that sadness and is not celebrated for itself... when you have nothing else to celebrate, celebrate your suffering, at least it proves you are alive." (Pg. 55)

The book closes with the thought that today can be "a new beginning, a new thing, a new life."

You cannot serve this new life; it is given freely; that is the miracle called God; so celebrate the miracle and celebrate you."

Come to your senses — for heaven's sake! When I read this book I recalled an experience related to me by Dr. Yuasa, president of International Christian College in Japan. During the second World War he was our guest in Vermont where he preached in our church. At that time he was pacifist in a militant Japan. He told me that one night the students rioted outside his home, calling for his resignation. That same evening his four-year-old daughter tragically died, and he bowed in prayer, thanking God for the joy of the four years of her life that had been such a blessing to them. He had learned to celebrate life, despite the violence of war, and the threat to his livelihood — even in the midst of death.

The poem for the week: "Say not the struggle tonight available, The labor and the wounds are vain, The enemy faints not, nor faileth, And as things have been they remain."

If hopes were dupes, fears may be liars: pain may be in your smokes cone, and your comrades chase at you now there. And but for you, possess the field.

For while the tired waves, vainly breaking, Seem here no painful link to gain, Far back through creeks and inlets making, Comes silent, flooding in, the main.

And not be eastern windows only, When daylight comes, comes in the light, In front, the sun climbs slow, how slowly, But westward, look, the land is bright.

Arthur Clough (1819-1861)

The thought for the week: from Friedrich Nietzsche, "He who has a way to live can bear with almost any how."

And a final chuckle: Johnny and Mary started dating regularly. The parents in neither case seemed to mind particularly, although Mary was Roman Catholic and Johnny was Protestant, until the couple got together. Then both sets of parents became alarmed.

Mary's parents informed her that she could not marry Johnny unless he became Catholic. So she went to work him, talking to him on every date about her church, giving him literature to read. At last she got him to agree to attend instruction classes.

All seemed to be going her way until one Saturday night when Mary's parents returned home at midnight to find her alone in the living room crying uncontrollably.

"What's the matter?" they asked.

Through her sobs, Mary informed them, "We've overdone it. Now Johnny wants to become a priest."

Oldest Tiger Still Has Few Growls Left, Cash Gets Chance to Start and Gets Two Hits

NEW YORK (UPI) — The oldest Tiger still has a few growls left.

Norm Cash, one of the most popular players ever to wear a Detroit Tiger's uniform, proved Friday night that it's not quite time to hang 'em up yet despite the fact the 38-year-old first baseman has lost his starting job for the first time in 14 years.

Cash, who has been relegated almost exclusively to pinch-hit duty since early in the season, started the second game of a doubleheader and responded with two hits, including a two-run homer, to help the Tigers defeat the Chicago White Sox 7-4 and sweep their twinning.

The 38-year-old Cash, who was the oldest player on the Tigers (beating Al Kaline by one month), touched off a two-run rally in the second inning with a single and scored on singles by Micky Stanley and Ed Brinkman. Then, in the third, he hit his first homer of the year following a walk to Gates Brown to put Detroit ahead to stay at 4-3.

The mere mention of Cash's name at Detroit Stadium brings instant applause and the veteran first baseman was given a rousing cheer when he strode to the plate in the second inning for his first at bat.

"I was glad to repay the people," said Cash. "That was a hell of an ovation they gave me before the first time up. It gives a guy a helluva feeling."

Cash really set the crowd of 25,819 off after his homer in the fifth. As he rounded third and headed for home, he broke into a fast sprint, took his hat off and waved it in the air a few times.

"When a guy like Norm belts one and it puts you ahead, it gives the whole club a lift," said teammate Jim Northrup, who was one of the hitting stars of the Tigers' 6-6 first game victory. "I was really glad for Norm. He's been struggling. He's been in a difficult situation, but he hasn't complained."

Northrup, another of the Tiger greybeards at age 34, hit his sixth homer in six games in the opener to help Joe Coleman to his first win since May 15. Detroit got only eight hits, but drew nine walks and also benefited from an error and a wild pitch. Coleman, who had lost eight of his last nine decisions, was tagged for 12 hits, including a pair of homers by Ed Herrmann and a solo shot by Jorge Orta, but went the distance to register his seventh win against nine losses.

In other AL games, New York routed Texas 14-2. Milwaukee beat Minnesota 5-3 then lost 6-4. Cleveland topped California 7-2 and Oakland blanked Baltimore 6-0. Kansas City at Boston was rained out.

Yankees 14, Rangers 2

George Hendrick ripped a two-run homer with two out in the seventh inning for the first hit of the game off Nolan Ryan and the Indians went on to whip the Angels and move into a tie for first place with Boston in the AL East. Fritz Peterson allowed only four hits in eight innings to get the win. Bob Oliver homered for the Angels, who have now lost six in a row.

A double error by third baseman Steve Braun enabled the Brewers to score twice in the fifth inning and beat the Field State Softball League game Friday evening forced postponement of the Boston Red Sox game with the Kansas City Royals, a club spokesman announced.

Red Sox 6-3

The game will be made up at 1 p.m. Sunday as part of a doubleheader.

The spokesman also announced that the Red Sox husband and wife game, scheduled for Friday night, will be played Monday evening at 6:30 p.m., preceding the Red Sox-Royals night game.

Groman's Busy

Saturday night at Fitzgerald Field, State Softball League play will find Groman's featured in two of the three games.

The locals face CCS of North Haven at 6:30, sit back while New Haven and North Haven meet and then face New Haven in the nightcap.

His and Hers Wimbledon Titles Halfway Home for Jim and Chris

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — Jimmy Connors and Chris Evert may become the first married couple with "his" and "hers" Wimbledon titles.

Nineteen-year-old Chris won "hers" Friday by beating Olga Morozova of Russia 6-0, 6-4 in the women's finals, becoming the youngest winner of the crown in 22 years.

Twenty-one-year-old Jimmy gets a chance to win "his" today when he meets 39-year-old Ken Rosewall of Australia in the finals of the men's singles.

Chris came into a press conference after telephoning news of her $16,000 victory to her father in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Friday to say that she and Jimmy hadn't set the exact date yet but they probably would get married in November.

Her father, she added, had wept with joy at a triumph which made her the first girl since 1962 to win the French, Italian and Wimbledon crowns in a single season.

Jimmy, who didn't have to phone Belleville, Ill., because his mother is with him, got to the airport, beating Dick Stockton of Port Washington, N.Y., 4-6, 6-3, 6-4 and then learned his next opponent would be Rosewall—he thought it would be Stan Smith.

"How do you play a legend?" asked third-seeded Jimmy.

He said he last played Rosewall a couple of years ago and lost to him. Rosewall recalls that match well, as he recalls all his games. They played on concrete.

"Jimmy is a much better and more experienced player now," he said. "I'm going to have some practice with one of my left-handed friends, probably Tony Roche, before the match."

Rosewall, the ninth seed, has been the betting underdog in practically all his major matches here because bookmakers cannot convince themselves legs nearly 40 years old can withstand the killing pace of big time tennis singles.

Connors starts a 4-5 favorite today.

Rosewall said Friday that this is only the second tournament he has played in this year, the other was Tucson. He is the player-coach for the Pittsburgh Triangles of World Team Tennis the rest of the time.

He disagreed with suggestions that the tennis league with their short matches do not build the endurance needed for five-setters.

"I was playing better at the end of my match with Smith than at the beginning," he said.

"I have a good chance of winning," said the oldest man ever to play for the singles title.

He and Connors will be fighting for the first prize of $44,000 as well as the glory. Rosewall has been in three losing finals and this may be his last chance to win. The runnerup will get $14,400.

Year after year Wimbledon continues to amaze the tennis world with its box office. This year, despite rain and a cold year of the two weeks the tournament, is assured of a record attendance of more than 301,896.

The exact figure will be known today, but tickets already sold ensure a new mark.

In order to fit in four title matches today—men's singles, men's doubles, women's doubles and mixed doubles—the championships will again start at noon.

Hard to Please Everyone

It's hard to please everyone. That's something we learned years ago in this business.

Now, with more sports than ever before being played in Manchester, there are more rumblings that one sport gets a bigger play than another.

For example, the softballers claim there isn't enough coverage in comparison to Little League. The Little Leaguers feel that softball gets too big a play...The golfers feel that they are neglected and should get more space...The Two League fans and readers want more coverage, as much as American Legion baseball gets. The Legion would like the same amount of space devoted to Two League action... Little Miss softball feels it's in the background and rates a better play at least equal to Little League... The Alumni Baseball League would like bigger print for its stories...The swimming program, too, feels it is in the background...The soccer followers are looking for increased coverage of their three leagues...Stock car racing buffs have also asked for complete coverage and hockey interests would like more information on their sport.

On another scale, from time to time this corner is asked why major league baseball is condensed, or why the American League gets more space than the National, or the National more space than the American. Also, why don't we carry the major league boxscores...We have also had requests to run the boxscores of all local softball games, as well as Mortuary and League games, plus Little League baseball games. Add, the major PGA golf tournaments, and a list of the full money winners every week...Also, the daily standings of the World Tennis League.

That's just skimming the surface.

During the school year, and the fall and winter season, there are just as many sports that feel they are being neglected.

I'll accept the credit or criticism for what sports we publish and how it is played.

We try each day to present what we think has the biggest readership appeal — with local, ewh spotlighted.

Zahn Allows One Hit Rookie Impresses In Second Victory

NEW YORK (UPI) — Walter Alston says he didn't want damage Geoff Zahn's arm Friday night—but he obviously isn't worried about Mike Marshall's arm.

Zahn is a 23-year-old lefthander who posted the second major league victory of his career Friday night when he stopped the Montreal Expos on just one hit for seven innings in the second game of a doubleheader.

Alston then lifted the youngster.

"He's young and I need him again soon and I don't want to do any damage to his arm," the manager explained.

But guess who Alston brought in with a 7-0 lead. If you guessed Mike Marshall, you're absolutely right. Marshall sat out the opener, which the Dodgers lost 11-6, and Alston apparently didn't want him to get "rusty."

Marshall, who's 31, obviously has convinced Alston of his own history that he's virtually indestructible. He's now appeared in 15 of the Dodgers' last 17 games. After appearing in 92 games for the Expos last year, he's appeared in 55 already for the Dodgers this year.

Marshall, who's working on his doctorate at Michigan State, says that you have to understand physiology to understand how he can pitch so often. And since he figures reporters don't understand physiology, he doesn't bother to explain it.

Marshall stopped the Expos on three hits over the last two innings to wrap up the 7-0 victory. The opposing hitters don't understand Marshall either.

It was Marshall's first appearance on the mound in Montreal since he was traded in the off-season and he was booed roundly by the crowd of 20,167.

The outspoken Marshall became controversial in Montreal with some Montreal fans must have a void in their lives because they got so excited when the Expos win and so depressed when they lose.

He shrugged off questions about pitching in Montreal.

Koosman Got Out When Needed Most

NEW YORK (UPI) — Jerry Koosman said of Bobby Bonds, star of the San Francisco Giants: "He's a good fastball hitter. If you can get a changeup, curve or slow curve over, you've got a chance of getting him out."

Not only did Koosman have a good change of getting him out, he did get him out—a streakout with two on and one in the eighth. The game was on the line as New York led 3-2 and the Giants were threatening.

A single by Tito Fuentes, a pop-up and an infield hit by Garry Maddox had put the tying run on second with Bonds coming to bat. Koosman went to him like a surgeon.

"The first pitch was a slider, the second was a fastball and the third, a curve in the dirt, blocked by (Jerry) Grote. I got him on a slow curve. He was looking for a fastball, figuring I wouldn't want to bounce another breaking ball."

Bonds didn't get the fastball he wanted and Koosman did get the strikeout he needed. "The whole idea was to out-guess him. Set him up for the fastball and get him on the breaking ball," Koosman said. It that was the whole idea, Koosman said an 4-1 in carrying out the theory.

The Mets' lefty, now 9-5, credited his catcher, Jerry Grote, with "calling a great game and making the key stops of the breaking ball in the dirt. There's no better defensive catcher in either league. Johnny Bench is greater at the plate, but not defensively. Jerry would call the right pitch and I would shake him off a few times until he came around to the same one. I guess it confused them a little (the Giants)."

The Giants were probably more concerned with the performance of Dave Schneck, who had been 0-16 and had not knocked in a run for more than six weeks. He came up with a two-out RBI single in the second inning and another in the fourth to lead the Mets offensively. The center-fielder didn't find out he was starting until he "saw the lineup card, about 6:30 p.m."

Red Sox Ret Royals' Game

BOSTON (UPI) — Heavy thunderstorms which swept through the Boston area Friday evening forced postponement of the Boston Red Sox game with the Kansas City Royals, a club spokesman announced.

The game will be made up at 1 p.m. Sunday as part of a doubleheader.

The spokesman also announced that the Red Sox husband and wife game, scheduled for Friday night, will be played Monday evening at 6:30 p.m., preceding the Red Sox-Royals night game.

Personal Fortune Awaits Cup Kings

Munich, Germany (UPI) — There is more than glory and a golden trophy waiting for the team that wins the World Soccer Cup Sunday. There is a personal fortune for each player.

As West German midfielder Uli Hoessner, who is 21, said, "If we win, we will have no more financial worries for the rest of our lives."

West Germany takes on Holland in the climax of the 38-game tournament that pitted 16 teams from around the world after qualification matches that started two years ago.

It is West Germany's third appearance in the final, Holland's first.

The last time the Germans won, in 1954, they earned 2,000 marks per man—equivalent to $300 dollars on today's market.

If they win Sunday, they can expect to make a total of $3.1 million, a German public relations expert said today.

"A World Cup victory would double their income from advertising," said Wolfgang Mantow, a Hamburg public relations expert.

Already the German team players have signed advertising contracts worth a sum of approximately $1.55 million.

"Second place means nothing," Mantow said.

Max Morlock, a member of the 1954 championship team, said, "We got 2,000 marks a man when we won the World Cup. Advertising was illegal in our time, but the present players are professionals. They would be silly if they did not make maximum use of their publicity."

Captain Franz Beckenbauer, 28, heads the list of cashmakers with about $400,000 due in the event of victory.

Stefan Hoffmann, 26, is expected to receive about $300,000. Hoffmann and Paul Breitner about $200,000 each, public relations experts said today.

In addition to advertising income, the Germans negotiated a $20,000 bonus with the German Football Association.

New Meet Record

DURHAM, N.C. (UPI) — A new "event" was introduced Friday during the USA-USSR track and field meet—the nude running of the 125-yard dash topped off with a high jump.

An unidentified male stalker came out of the stands and amused the crowd of 27,000 at Wallace Wade Stadium by taking off across the infield area. He finished his jaunt by leaping over a temporary fence erected for the meet.

"The stalker fled into a tree-filled area, the public address announcer credited him with a meet record."

Pressure Felt As Sneed Leads

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — Ed Sneed has been leading the $100,000 Greater Milwaukee Open for three days, but he isn't planning on even looking at the leaders board in today's final round—at least "not until the last three holes."

"I felt the pressure out there," Sneed said Friday following a one-under-par 71, which left him with a 12-under 204 total and a four-stroke lead.

"No leader can play without feeling that pressure," he said.

"But I'm just trying to avoid mental mistakes. I don't feel the same when I'm shooting 75 and 15 strokes off the lead."

Sneed, 29, and a graduate of Ohio State University in Columbus, Ohio, where he still lives, is seeking only his second tournament win in six years on the pro tour. He led the GMO by two strokes after 18 holes and by three after the second round.

"I don't look at the leader board because I just try to play my own game," he said. "Tomorrow I won't look at it either, not until the last three holes."

Among the names he'll be checking out will be Dave Hill and Bob Zender, who were tied at 208, and Grier Jones at 209 after he shot Friday's low round of 66.

Others with a chance at the $26,000 first prize included Larry Trevino, Cesar Sandoz, Tommy Aaron, Hubert Green, Lee Hinson and Bob E. Smith, all tied at 211. Aaron trailed Sneed by only three strokes after two rounds, but he ballooned to a 75 Friday.

So-So Day for U.S.

Russians Lead In Track Meet

DURHAM, N.C. (UPI) — It was the best of all possible days for rapid Reggie Jones, the worst for young Tom Byers and just so-so for the United States track and field team.

Today, being another day, the U.S., on the short end of a 90-75 combined team score, looked to catch up with and possibly surpass its Soviet opponents in the conclusion of their 12th dual meet at Duke University's Wallace Wade Stadium.

"We are five points down (54-49) in the men's competition," noted head coach Jimmy Carnes of the University of Florida, "but several of today's events should be close and if we can win some of those close events we should be very competitive for the title."

Carnes agreed the highlight of the first day of competition, as far as the Americans were concerned, was provided by the 20-year-old Jones, a freshman at the University of Tennessee who captured the 100-meter dash and anchored the men's winning 440-yard relay.

"I don't really aspire to be the world's fastest human," said Jones after upsetting world record holder Steve Williams of San Diego State in 10.2 seconds, three-tenths of a second above Williams' record. "If I had the reputation, then every other speedster would be out to beat me."

Jones looked for a third triumph today when he takes on Soviet speedball Valery Borzov, the 1972 Olympic champion in both the 100 and 200. Borzov, claiming he was not yet in shape, scratched from the 100 and Williams said Borzov's absence caused him to have a big letdown, contributing to his upset by Jones.

The biggest disappointment for the U.S. team, which was turned down 1-1 in the 1500-meter contest Friday, came in the men's 1,500-meter run when Byers, a 19-year-old freshman from Ohio State, stumbled while in the lead turning for home and finished third.

"He didn't stumble, I was tripped," Byers claimed. "The Russian hit my foot with his knee as I was beginning to make my sprint."

"Tom was in good position before he was tripped," Carnes agreed. "We filed an appeal with the judges but it was turned down. I watched the TV replay and in my opinion I felt it was definitely a foul."

Other U.S. men's winners, besides Jones, were Darwin Bond who upset favored Maurice Peoples with a time of 48.1 in the 400-meter run and Army Lt. Tom Hill who also put a surprise in the 1500-meter contest by beating Charles Foster in the 110-meter hurdles with a time of 13.5.

The U.S. women, trailing 36-26, scored triumphs with Joni Hunter of Sheridan, Ore., in the high jump (6 feet); Renay Brown of Los Angeles in the 100-meter dash (11.6 seconds) and the 200-meter dash (24.8 seconds), and the 400-meter run (52.1).

"I was very pleased with the results as far as our women were concerned today," said women's coach Will Stephens. "The women don't figure to do as well as the Russians because the training and discipline methods are below those used in Russia."

The Jones-Borzov duel in the 200 meters and Rick Wohlhuter, the half mile world record holder, running in the 800-meters, figures to highlight today's competition along with the appearance of little Mary Decker in the women's 800.

However, the expected clash between Wohlhuter and 1972 Olympic silver medalist Yevgeniy Arzhanov will not take place. Arzhanov suffered an injury in training and also had to be scratched from Friday's 1,500-meter.

Federal Court Dismisses Suit

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — A federal court Friday dismissed an antitrust suit filed against the National Hockey League in 1972 by two World Hockey Association (WHA) groups, the Metropolitan Hockey Club and its successor the Golden Blades Hockey Club.

Judge A. Leon Higginbotham Jr., in granting an NHL motion, threw out the complaint because Metropolitan-Hockey Blades failed to provide NHL counsel with essential pre-trial information.

"There comes a point where courts are not required to enforce the patent of a patent," Higginbotham said in his opinion, adding that after 17 months "crucial interrogatory remained substantially unanswered by the Golden Blades."

"There is a time, even in this hockey litigation, when the penalty box is required to enforce the rules of the game. Dismissal is inequitable both as a matter of discretion and also as a matter of public policy," Higginbotham said.

The Golden Blades were one of only 13 WHA clubs to bank at signing an out of court peace pact settling a $50 million legal battle between the WHA and the NHL last Feb. 18.

Metropolitan Hockey, which received a WHA franchise for New York in 1972, reorganized in May 1973, after the club ran into financial difficulties over meeting player payrolls. It became the Golden Blades, which shifted operations to Cherry Hill, N.J., midway through last season, and has since moved to California.

Ace Helps Murle Breer Take Lead in LPGA

GRAND ISLAND, N.Y. (UPI) — Murle Breer probably has her seventh consecutive today than she did Friday morning.

Mrs. Breer, who has not won a Ladies Professional Golf Association (LPGA) since 1969, used the seven-iron for a hole-in-one on the par-three 164-yard seventh hole at River Oaks Golf Course Friday to take the first round lead in the $35,000 Niagara Frontier Classic.

Playing a sunny, breezy course of the Niagara River, Mrs. Breer strung together three sub-par holes in 164-stroke from one over-par to under-par 71, one off the pace, with Sharon Miller.

Mrs. Carter, who credits her recent spectacular showings (three wins and two seconds in her last seven starts) to a 30-pound weight-loss and a "long talk with baseball manager Billy Martin," is the second-leading money winner on the tour this year.

Mrs. Miller, 33, of Marshall, Mich. had only one tourney victory in 1973.

Physical Exam Dates

Physical examinations for junior and senior high school athletes at Bennett, Dilling and Manchester will be held later this month, Dave Wiggin, director of athletics, announced.

The schedule: Manchester High, July 9-10, Aug. 6-7, at the NHS nurses' office; Bennett, July 16-17, Aug. 13-14, at Bennett nurses' office; Illinois, July 23-24 and Aug. 20-21, at Illinois nurses' office. Hours are 9-3:15. All boys and girls enrolled at these schools interested in participating in competitive sports next year must pass the physical exam which is free.

Marichal to Join RSox

BOSTON (UPI) — Veteran pitcher Juan Marichal, 35, will report to the Boston Red Sox Sunday for a workout and tests, following almost two months of inactivity caused by back problems.

Marichal, who was purchased over the winter by Boston, was put on the disabled list in May after numbness in his pitching hand forced him out of action. It was also feared that a disc problem in his back would require corrective surgery.

The former San Francisco Giants star was in traction for most of June after doctors decided that surgery would not be necessary. His record as of May 15, his last pitching outing, was 2-1, with an earned run average of 7.18.

Another pitcher, Don Newhauer was recalled from the Red Sox farm team in Pawtucket in a move to bolster Boston's pitching staff.

DIAMOND FINESSE SURE THING

Double dummy defense by North and South could have set West to trick at diamond four-pace contract. The defense could collect one heart, the bid of club two diamonds and a club ruff. But the bidding was rolling along so quickly that dummy's last trump and finally discarded my last spade on dummy's fourth trump.

Having pushed his opponents as far as he could get off to the one lead that could cause dealer trouble. He opened his singleton trump.

South won in his own hand and after long study worked out the sure winning line of play. He led a spade at trick two. East took the trick and led a second trump. South won in dummy, led a diamond and finessed successfully against East's queen. Then he ruffed a trump with dummy's last trump and came to his own hand.

"Nice guess in the diamonds," said North.

Friends may call at the funeral home Sunday from 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p.m.

Criticize Agency

HARTFORD (UPI) — The disbanded State Ambulance Commission allowed alleged widespread ambulance service abuses to flourish in metropolitan Hartford, according to a legislative subcommittee.

A report, issued Friday, said the dissolved commission "failed in its statutory responsibilities of inspection and regulations as it failed to enforce its own regulations with regard to minimum equipment, required inspections, personnel requirements and license requirements."

The lengthy report, based on last spring's public hearings, said a supplement would be issued describing billing procedures in the Welfare Department after state auditors complete their inspection of welfare records.

The subcommittee, headed by Rep. Elinor F. Wilbur, R-Fairfield, began hearings after three local ambulance operators were charged with defrauding the Welfare Department of an estimated $80,000 through false billings for welfare client riders.

One of the accused, Harvey L. Kagan, owner of Professional Ambulance Co., has been ordered to appear July 29 before a successor agency to the defunct Ambulance Commission to show why his license should not be suspended or revoked.

In preparation for yesterday's storm, workers tied tobacco plants to the tops of nets and let down the sides of nets to ward off the wind and rain. Despite the precautions, heavy damage was reported to the crops by hail, wind, and the torrential downpour. (Herald photo by Pinto)

Power Outages

Hartford Electric Light Co. office supervisor, Franklin Delany, said this morning power outages were townwide and mostly repaired early Friday evening but some took until much later that night.

At 4:25 p.m., 98 customers were out two hours and 50 minutes in the area of Henry and White Sts.

At 4:57 p.m., 54 customers were out two hours and 58 minutes in the area of Porter and Westminster Sts.

At 6:10 p.m., 156 customers were out 35 minutes in the area of Oak Grove St. and Pilgrim Lane.

At 5 p.m., 92 customers were out five hours in the area of Tolland Tpke. and North School St.

At 4:12 p.m., 803 customers were out for two hours and 18 minutes in the area of Colonial Dr., Center St. and Parker St.

At 4:20 p.m., 167 customers were out three hours and 35 minutes in the area of Center St., Love Lane and Preston St.

At 5:10, 84 customers were out four hours and 20 minutes in the area of Devon St. and Deepwood Dr.

At 4:12 p.m., 554 customers were out four hours and 29 minutes in the area of Lucien, Broad and O'Leary Sts.

At 9 p.m., 11 customers out for one hour and 34 minutes due to branch falling in the area of Windsor St.

At 8:45 p.m., 16 customers were out two hours and 25 minutes in the area of Green Rd. and Woodbridge St.

Most of the outages were caused by tree branches falling on the lines. Calls complaining of further outages were coming into the HELCO office this morning due to branches still falling. Some came from Hartford Rd., Tolland Tpke., and Lookout Mt. Rd. this morning.

The repairs are permanent as they are being done, Delany said.

There were 27 different locations in Manchester hit by outages by late this morning. There were two locations in Bolton.

At 5:25 p.m., 53 Bolton customers were out for eight hours and 50 minutes in the area of West St. and Lyman Rd. Shortly after, two customers lost their power for at least four hours each.

Most of the HELCO crews worked all night to repair the downed power lines as quickly as possible, Delany noted.

Thai Students Protest Action Of Riot Police

BANGKOK (UPI) — Indications of student unhappiness over the actions of police in Bangkok rioting that took 24 lives began surfacing today.

Posters appeared at the Thammasat University campus condemning police for the killing of civilians. Some 10 uniformed officers tore down the posters, which were placed on an outer fence, but made no attempt to remove placards placed inside the campus grounds.

Three student groups announced they were opening their own investigation into the causes of the riots, in which nearly 200 persons were reported injured and 97 arrested.

The appearance of the posters was the first student criticism of the role of the police. University students have disassociated themselves from the violence, with their leader keeping in close communication with government authorities.

Students spearheaded the rioting last October which overthrew a military dictatorship and installed a civilian government.

Members of an association of university students, meanwhile, toured the streets in a car, urging residents, "Please go home. We do not want to see more killing."

Police put up traffic barriers again tonight to cordon off the city's Chinese district, patrolling in force. They cut off the flow of cars and trucks that jammed the narrow streets during the day and told people on the streets to return to their homes.

Police said three persons were killed and two wounded by gunfire in the late afternoon and evening Friday as violence ebbed. Two of the dead were innocent bystanders whom police mistook for rioters.

Prime Minister Sanya Dhamasakti emerged from an urgent cabinet meeting late

Friday and defended the use of arms by police and military forces sent in as reinforcements.

Fireworks Kill Four

BOSTON (UPI) — Fireworks killed four persons, including a four-month-old child, and injured nearly 200 others during Fourth of July celebrations, the National Fire Protection Association reported Friday.

Injuries ranged from loss of limbs to loss of sight, it said. The association said its figures only represented incidents reported to it. There was no nationwide estimate of property damage, but the association said in the Los Angeles area alone fireworks were responsible for 48 fires causing an estimated $76,000 in damage.

It said the fatalities occurred in Anaheim, Calif., where a four-month-old child died in a house fire after a firework was inserted in a mail slot; Arlington Heights, Ill., where a woman died as the result of a firework and another person was injured; Fackler, Ala., where an M-80 took the life of a 34-year-old man, and Stark County, Ohio, where a 16-year-old boy was killed and a male companion injured by fireworks.

The group was highly critical of the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission for lifting its ban nationwide on fireworks. The commission removed the ban June 17 under pressure from the fireworks industry, which said it would lose an estimated $50 million in inventory.

"What the totals would have been if the commission had not lifted its nationwide ban on fireworks can only be surmised," said the association's president, Charles S. Morgan. "In all probability, it would have been lower. This Fourth would have been safer. Lives could have been saved and maiming injuries avoided if the (commission) had shown a little courage and not caved in to the fireworks industry."

He said the association has called for detailed reporting by state fire marshals across the nation of firework fatalities and injuries. "The figures reported today are just the skeleton of a complete study of the fireworks problem" that will be presented to the Consumer Safety Commission, Morgan said.

"This study will be an in-depth report on what happened over this Fourth of July as well as certain NFPA recommendations on the fireworks problem," he said.

Bloodmobile Visits MCC

The Red Cross Bloodmobile will visit Manchester Community College at Bidwell St. Monday from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Appointments may be made by calling the local Red Cross office, 643-5111.

Walk-in donors are also welcome.

Gas Station Robbed

An armed robbery was reported Friday at about 10:15 p.m. at the Gasland service station at the Five Corners in Ellington.

The station attendant told State Police he was in the back room when a white male wearing dungaree jacket and pants pointed a revolver at him and tied him up. The man then stole an undetermined amount from the cash register and left.

The attendant worked himself free and called police who are still investigating.

VERNON

Eladia F. Rogas, 32, of Hartford was arrested Friday on a Circuit Court 12 warrant charging him with first-degree assault stemming from an April 7 incident at a private home in Vernon. He posted $2,500 non-surety bond for court Aug. 7.

More swimmers racing than ever!

Mark Spitz Made a Big Splash!

A timer stops her watch as a swimmer finishes a race. Swimming competitively should be fun without too much pressure.

Mark Spitz made a big splash when he won seven gold medals in the 1972 Olympics.

Inspired by the hope that someday they might swim in the Olympics, children have become more interested than ever in competitive swimming.

Champion swimmers have to start early. Some children even begin swimming when they are babies. Most of our Olympic swimmers began racing when they were between eight and 12 years old.

The Amateur Athletic Union, a group that sets up rules for most amateur sports, established Junior Olympic and "age group" racing for children. These meets offer boys and girls under 18 a chance to compete on their own age levels. The age groups are: 10 and under, 11-12 years, 13-14 years, and 15-17 years.

Most swimmers race on teams sponsored by clubs or city recreational departments. Competitive swimming is demanding. It is not for everybody. The goal should not be to win medals, but rather to train young people to do their best. Parents must not be too pushy. Coaches must be understanding.

The swimmer in training puts in many miles of swimming back and forth in swimming lanes. Swimming is good exercise, but it is strenuous and sometimes painful.

Many of our country's champion swimmers are teenagers because older swimmers can't keep up with the full-time training schedule. However, some swimmers 18 and older, who have grown up in "age group" competition, win college scholarships and swim on college teams.

Swimmers; take your mark. The result of hours of training shows up in minutes of competitive swimming. The four competitive swimming strokes are the freestyle, the breaststroke, backstroke and the butterfly.

Water Safety

Don't cry for help unless you need it.

Use the buddy system.

Don't dunk your friends and don't play too rough.

Check to see how deep the water is before you go in.

Swim in areas supervised by a life guard and never swim alone.

Don't push anyone in. They might not know how to swim.

Walk, never run, around the pool.

Don't show off. Know what is safe for you to do.

Be sure you know how to use a life preserver in case you ever need one.

Be sure that little children understand that they must always wear a bathing suit in the water. In this way, they won't go in unless they have them on.

Get out of the water if there is a storm.

Super Sport: Mark Spitz

Mark Spitz was a Junior Olympics champion by the time he was 10 years old. Now, at the age of 24, he rarely ever goes into the water.

The good-looking sports hero has made millions of dollars since he won his record setting seven gold medals in 1972. He has endorsed swim suits and other products. He has made television appearances and has turned down many movie offers.

Mark is from Carmichael, California. He has set records in the butterfly and free style. He recently married a very pretty girl named Susan.

Mini Jokes

You're pretty dirty Sally!

Yes, I'm even prettier when I'm clean.

What state has the smallest drinks?

Mini soda.

Water Safe Babies

With the help of mothers, some experts can train babies as young as six months old to become "water safe."

"Reach and pull," says the teacher. This tells the baby to paddle to the side of the pool and reach up and hold on.

"Windows open," tells the baby to keep his eyes open.

"Doors closed and hum," trains the baby to keep his mouth closed.

If a baby who is not "water safe" falls in the water, he will usually sink. The old story about coming up three times for air is not true. Therefore, this training is important.

Training Champions

"If you want to be great, you have to work," says one college swimming coach. "You have to be able to take the yardage."

The girl at the left is about to enter the pool. She will swim with a "pull buoy" between her legs and straps on her feet to keep from kicking.

This will make her arms stronger.

To make their legs stronger, swimmers practice with kick boards.

Allison Grant is one of the country's prettiest and most outstanding young swimmers. At left, she models the new "skin suit" that many competitive swimmers have started wearing. Allison is also Junior Olympics Champion.

Hello, Allison Grant

"When I was 10, I wanted to do something, rather than just sit around the house," Allison Grant told the Mini Page. She took up swimming competitively.

Now, at the age of 14, she is one of the fastest swimmers in the country in the women's breaststroke. In the recent Nationals competition in Dallas, she broke the U.S. record and came in third. She was competing against the nation's top women swimmers. The two that beat her were older.

This past December in Cincinnati, Ohio, she set the girl's 13-14 records in the 100 and 200 yard breaststroke and the 100 and 200 yard freestyle.

In top training, Allison spends a total of five hours a day working out. "I like to work," says Allison, "and I like to win."

Allison would like to swim and win in the '76 Olympics.

What Do You Do?

You are at the beach or a pool. You have promised your parents that you would not go in the water until they get there. There are many other adults around and you feel certain they would look out for you. You feel as if you have waited and waited and waited. What do you do? Talk it over.
