The school board proposal is to delete the entire section of the contract. The MEA's position is that existing wording making such facilities "desirable" should be changed to definitely require the facilities.

The school board says teacher facilities are one of many competing needs of the school system that require taxpayer dollars. "It is the board's obligation under the law to balance the competing demands made for money and establish priorities," Pool said. "The board believes that such restrictions on board responsibilities should not be included in an employment contract of the teachers."

Cautiously Optimistic

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Lower food costs kept wholesale prices higher in a scant 0.6 per cent in June, prompting two administration officials to voice cautious optimism about the economy.

However, boosters in the costs of everything from textiles to televisions showed inflation was far from over, one official said.

The WPI measures the cost of annual food to farmers, raw materials to factories, and food and manufactured goods to stores — one step from consumers.

Stock market analysts said they believed the WPI news contributed to a rally that raised the average value of shares on the New York Stock Exchange by $1.4.

White House spokesman Gerald Warren said he believed the WPI meant "The economy is now beginning to expand slowly."

And Herbert Stein, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisors, said it showed inflation was easing.

A drop in food prices of 3.4 per cent was the chief reason for the lower rate of overall increase in the WPI.

But Stein said there were suggestions that inflation still had strength.

Ehrlichman Plans Appeal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John D. Ehrlichman, once among the most powerful of President Nixon's aides, was convicted Friday of conspiracy and three counts of perjury in the Ellsberg break-in case.

Ehrlichman immediately instructed his attorneys to appeal, and he said he was sure he would be cleared by higher courts.

A federal district court jury deliberated slightly more than 3 1/2 hours before returning a guilty verdict against Ehrlichman and three others. They were charged with conspiracy to violate the civil rights of Dr. Levin Fielding, the psychiatrist of Pentagon Papers defendant Daniel Ellsberg, as the guilty verdicts were returned.

Ehrlichman was cleared of one count of perjury relating to his grand jury testimony on the White House plumbers unit which prosecutors said planned the break-in.

With his wife Jeanne at his side, Ehrlichman talked briefly with reporters before leaving the courthouse. He said he ordered his lawyers to appeal the convictions, which together carry a maximum sentence of 25 years in prison and a $25,000 fine. He said he expects "complete exoneration."

"I have and have for many years had an abiding confidence in the American judicial system. Nothing has happened today that has shaken this confidence," said Ehrlichman, who was forced to resign April 30, 1973, as Nixon's domestic affairs adviser and No. 2 aide when the Watergate scandal reached the White House.

Ehrlichman, highest-ranking former administration aide to be convicted in a Watergate-related matter, also was found guilty Friday of three counts of lying to the FBI and a federal grand jury investigating the burglary.

He still faces trial in the Watergate cover-up case set to begin in September.

The prosecution said the California burglary was staged to examine Fielding's medical files in an effort to discredit Ellsberg after he leaked the Pentagon Papers on the origins of the Vietnam War.

Shows No Emotion

Ehrlichman, 49, and his codefendants, convicted Watergate burglars G. Gordon Liddy, Bernard Barker and Eugenio Martinez, showed no outward sign of emotion as the guilty verdicts were returned.

Ehrlichman was cleared of one count of perjury relating to his grand jury testimony on the White House plumbers unit which prosecutors said planned the break-in.

With his wife Jeanne at his side, Ehrlichman talked briefly with reporters before leaving the courthouse. He said he ordered his lawyers to appeal the convictions, which together carry a maximum sentence of 25 years in prison and a $25,000 fine. He said he expects "complete exoneration."

"I have and have for many years had an abiding confidence in the American judicial system. Nothing has happened today that has shaken this confidence," said Ehrlichman, who was forced to resign April 30, 1973, as Nixon's domestic affairs adviser and No. 2 aide when the Watergate scandal reached the White House.

Appeals Expected

The other defendants also were expected to appeal. Sentencing for all was set for 9:30 a.m. July 31 before U.S. District Court Judge Gerhard A. Gesell.

Asked whether Ehrlichman's conviction might affect the House inquiry into possible impeachment of President Nixon, presidential attorney James D. St. Clair said it would "have no effect on our case at all."

Gesell earlier in the day had issued a tough set of instructions to the jury of six men and six women which appeared to curtail their deliberation time to a bare minimum.

Judge's Instructions

The judge told the jury that an illegal and warrantless entry cannot be justified even if an individual believes he is acting "in the name of patriotism or national security or a need to create an unfavorable press image" or that his superiors had the authority without a warrant to suspend the constitutional protections of the Fourth Amendment.

The defendants, except for Liddy who is serving a lengthy prison term for his part in the June 17, 1972, break-in at Democratic National headquarters, were freed on bond pending arraignment.

Convicts Release 14

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two armed convicts holding seven persons hostage at the U.S. Courthouse today released 14 other prisoners who had been held in cellblocks awaiting trial when the convicts seized the lockup.

News Capsules

Market Rallies NEW YORK (UPI) — Bought by optimistic financial news, the stock market rallied Friday for its sixth strongest one-day gain in history, bouncing back from a low point earlier in the week.

The market appeared to be reacting to news of sharply declining demand for business loans, coupled with a slowdown in rising interest rates and an easing of wholesale price hikes.

The Dow Jones industrial average moved up 27.61 points to 787.23, the biggest rise since the 25.42 points of May 24, 1973. The abrupt increase almost erased the heavy losses earlier in the week which saw the market hit its lowest point in 3 1/2 years.

The transfer appeared to go smoothly with the inmates being released one by one from the cellblock. Justice Department spokesman John Russell said the prisoners walked up the stairs from the cellblock and were searched and handcuffed before being brought to the marshals' room where they were searched again.

Woman Stays Russell said a woman prisoner, who was not identified, had decided to remain in the cellblock with the two convicts, Frank Gorham and Otis Wilkerson, alias Robert N. Jones.

Local radio station WASH said the convicts told them the woman was staying behind because one of the seven remaining hostages is female. The radio station has been in constant phone contact with the convicts since the seize began Thursday.

The seven hostages remained in captivity along with the unidentified woman inmate who apparently decided to remain with the convicts of her own free will.

Russell said the transfer came off without a hitch.

The police convoy, led by several squad cars, sped away from the rear of the house is driven into an elevator, lowered to the basement cellblock, loaded and returned to street level.

Economy Concerns Senators

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Democratic Sens. Edward M. Kennedy and Henry M. Jackson agree that the economy—not Watergate—is the issue Democrats should take to the voters in next fall's congressional elections.

The two senators were among a procession of potential 1976 Democratic presidential candidates who spoke to Democratic Party chairman from around the country at a two-day meeting which wound up Friday.

Kennedy of Massachusetts and Jackson of Washington hardly mentioned Watergate in separate speeches Thursday, and each said the public is crying out for solutions to inflation, unemployment and high interest rates.

Committee Completes Work WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Watergate committee officially went out of business Friday. The chairman, Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., said philosophically "The only sure antidote for future Watergates is understanding of fundamental principles and intellectual and moral integrity in the men and women who achieve or are entrusted with governmental or political power."

Nixon, Ford to Confer

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI) — President Nixon began a planned two-week California vacation today and scheduled an unprecedented sixth meeting this week with Vice President Gerald Ford.

The meeting, part of a series of more frequent talks between Nixon and his hand-picked vice president, was scheduled for 1 p.m. EDT.

To Discuss Economy Ford was in Southern California for a series of political appearances as Nixon began a stay at the Western White House. He and Nixon arrived within an hour of each other at El Toro Marine Air Station.

White House Press Secretary Bob Ziegler told newsmen Nixon wanted to confer with Ford on "domestic affairs" and economic policy as part of a series of meetings with top advisers in preparation for a major speech on the administration's plans to combat inflation, expected in about a week or 10 days.

But it also appeared that Nixon was keeping in touch with Ford to keep posted on the strength of impeachment sentiment in the House of Representatives.

Ford, formerly the House Republican leader, has close contacts with GOP congressmen and has said recently he feels the tide is turning against impeachment. Nixon was on route to the West Coast Friday when he learned that his former No. 2 aide, John Ehrlichman, had been found guilty of perjury and conspiracy in the Ellsberg burglary trial in Washington.

Aides said Nixon would make no comment on the verdict since Ehrlichman is appealing his conviction and the case is still in the judicial process.

Nixon aides and his Watergate lawyer, James D. St. Clair, retracted statements made early Friday that indicated the President expects the House Judiciary Committee to recommend his impeachment but believes the move will be defeated in a vote by the full House.

No Prejudgment Ziegler told reporters that the President "did not want to prejudge, that he did not want to presume what the outcome of the House committee deliberations would be."

But Ziegler said, he stands by his own earlier statement that he would not be surprised if the committee recommends impeachment, but feels that if that happens the House as a whole will find "there is no impeachable offense."

Petersen Says He Found No Evidence Against Nixon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Henry E. Petersen, who directed the Watergate investigation from the break-in until the Senate insisted that a special prosecutor be appointed, has testified he never found evidence of wrongful behavior by the President.

Petersen, an assistant attorney general and the highest career man at the Justice Department, turned out to be the House Judiciary Committee's most friendly witness to President Nixon over the cover-up investigation.

Petersen said he had no information or evidence that the President was wrongfully involved. Sandman told reporters.

"Put it on page one," he said.

Rep. Hamilton Fish Jr., R-N.Y., said Petersen's testimony on that point was exculpatory for Nixon "but he doesn't know what we know" about Nixon's cover-up role.

But on another point, members said, Petersen refused to defend Nixon's practice of telling H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman and other close aides what he had learned from Petersen about the cover-up investigation.

He was asked if it were proper for Nixon to fish along such evidence to potential defendants.

Fish quoted him as replying, "That's for you gentlemen to decide."

Saw Nixon Often Petersen saw Nixon seven times and talked to him on the phone 20 times during a two-week period during April, 1973, when high figures were appearing before the grand jury and the cover-up was falling apart.

Petersen said on only one matter did Nixon seek to limit the investigation.

Defense Rests

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — The defense rested Friday in the trial of Elmer Wayne Bentley, who is charged with six murders. Defense Attorney Will Gray called no witnesses. "It just sounded like the thing to do," Gray said.

Purnell Parking Closed for Paving

The Purnell St. Parking Lot will be closed completely Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday for repairs and paving. Robert Gorman, chairman of the Manchester Parking Authority announced today.

He advised motorists to utilize other parking areas those three days — such as the ones on Birch St., at Main and Forest Sts. and between Oak and Maple Sts. (between Hill & Hales and Forest Sts.)

The work will be done by the Armor Construction & Paving Co. of Newington, the low bidder at $22,000.

Gorman said the Monday-Tuesday-Wednesday schedule is dependent on good weather.

Wings Of Evening

What were you doing on your head that President Kennedy was shot?

I was driving to Hartford on Center Street and had just completed the cloverleaf onto the Wilbur Cross Highway. I drove to the edge of the road and wept unashamedly. Something in America seemed to die in that tragedy.

When Martin Luther King was shot my wife and I were in Kyoto, Japan. The following Sunday we went to a little Japanese church, exchanged our shoes for slippers, and listened to a sermon in a language I would not understand. But we understood the words "Martin Luther King" which were many times repeated. In some way my stature as an American was diminished. There was a sense of emptiness and loss.

Perhaps my feeling was akin to Isaiah's "in the year that King Uzziah died." For over half a century the king had been a symbol of peace and prosperity. There had been security in the land; the sound of hammers in the suburbs and the clipp-clipp of canals in brick trade through the streets.

When Isaiah's world collapsed he went into the temple. There he had a tremendous experience of God. He saw the Lord "high and lifted up" and realized that "the whole earth is full of His glory." He found hope instead of despair, forgiveness instead of guilt, a job to do instead of bewilderment.

This classic experience of man's confrontation with God is found in the sixth chapter of Isaiah. It is described with oriental imagery which is strange to us but the renewal which came to him as he worshipped is not strange. It has come to countless others in times of bewilderment and despair.

God is present no matter what happens in history and it is work through those who turn to Him.

This same unshakable faith was demonstrated poignantly by Martin Luther King Sr. when tragedy struck his family again in the murder of his wife.

The Kentucky Baptist Convention had an intriguing device a couple of years ago that may become universal wherever long-winded clergy and laity abound. Three lights were on the platform, green, red and blue. The lights were on for three minutes for the speaker. The green one indicated only one minute left. When the red showed, time was up. The new item concluded with this sentence: "Flashing of all three lights means that in ten seconds this pulpit will be destroyed!" Preachers beware!

Too often we are inclined to make statements based on insufficient information. Such a statement is frequently made about missions.

Recently a college professor spattered to me: "This business of missions is all foolishness. Nobody wants them. They do no good. Who are we to force our God on others?"

I had him beat in a vision of the Valada, India. In that one area of our Board of World Missions (United Church of Christ) a school, a college, a general hospital, a leper hospital, an agricultural Experiment Station, a road building program employing 3,000 workers, a garage, a tractor repair school, a self-sustaining industry making special services, a well-digging machine that had already dug 5,000 wells, the rental of pumps that would do in two hours what it had taken a man with two oxen all day to accomplish. In addition there was a church that maintained over sixty chapels in the surrounding countryside.

Prayer of the week: — A nineteen-year-old servant girl is reputed to have written this a long time ago: "Lord of all pots and pans and things; since I've no time to be busy, I pray for you, Lord, when I'm washing the dishes. Or dreaming in the dawnlight or storming heaven's gates. Make me a saint by getting meals and washing up the plates."

Economics vs. Politics

In all our reading of late concerning inflation at home and abroad there is one thread that is apparent to us. It is this: There are many things economically speaking which we can do as a nation and in consort with other nations to halt spiraling inflation; but the problem is finding those which are politically acceptable.

The sad aspect of this dilemma is that it means whatever action is taken may be only partially effective because our leaders fear the political consequences more than the erosion of inflation.

For example, almost every discussion of cutting back the fiscal 1975 federal budget to $300 billion, thus reducing the anticipated deficit from $11 to $6 billion, gets bogged down in where to make the cuts. Selective trimming of the federal budget has eluded many congresses and administrations because of the politics involved. There is an adage that every congressman is for economy in government as long as it doesn't cut into appropriations in his district.

This many of the dollars in the defense budget, for example do not necessarily reflect vital or essential contributions to the national defense.

but rather, the economic and political impact a cut-back might have on a state or a community.

Our neighbor, Rhode Island, is experiencing the economic dislocation of a military cutback now with the closing of installations which employed many people.

The point is that as much as we need a balance budget, anti-inflationary monetary policies, and other economic restraints if we are to avoid continuing inflation and possible recession, we may have to accept Rhode Island-type local economic impacts in Connecticut and all the other states.

The question we think the administration and the congress is really wrestling with now is not so much what can be and should be done; but whether the people will accept needed economic adjustments when it hits close to home.

It would appear while there is general agreement that inflation is our number one national concern; there still are too few of us willing to bite the bullet.

The courage to face the economic realities of today, like charity, must begin at home.

Occupational Hazards

A few months ago, the Washington vice president of one of the merchant marine companies dropped in to see me to give me a check for $50. I told him he must be kidding. In fact I phoned the president of the company and figured they were in worse straits than I am if all they could afford was fifty bucks, and I told him frankly I didn't want anything to do with an outfit that would only produce $50 in a political campaign and they'd better believe it after elections. And the result was that I got $200 out of them. From a congressional interview to be included in a yet-unpublished research study of the ethical attitudes of members of the House of Representatives.

Paul E. Beard and Stephen Horn did this work while with the Brookings Institution. A reading of the preliminary draft provides many shockers and perhaps explains why confidence in Congress rated a low 21 per cent in a recent public opinion poll.

The data in the research comes from questionnaires returned by 43 congressmen and from interviews with a random sample of 50.

House members were not reluctant to inform the investigators which congressional committees are best to serve from the standpoint of receiving campaign funds. In order of dollar worth, they are Interstate and Foreign Commerce, Ways and Means, Armed Services and Appropriations. The four worst, apparently, are Judiciary, Education and Labor, Rules and Public Works.

Those congressmen sampled believe a section of the House members would make personal use of stock information gained in executives sessions of a congressional committee if the opportunity presented itself. They also estimate that if given the opportunity, somewhat more than a few other colleagues would play poker with lobbyists who deal with their committees — and consistently win.

The random sampling of congressmen gave almost the same answer when asked whether their fellows would, if offered, take a $1,000 honorarium from an interested party while yet undecided on how to vote on an issue at question.

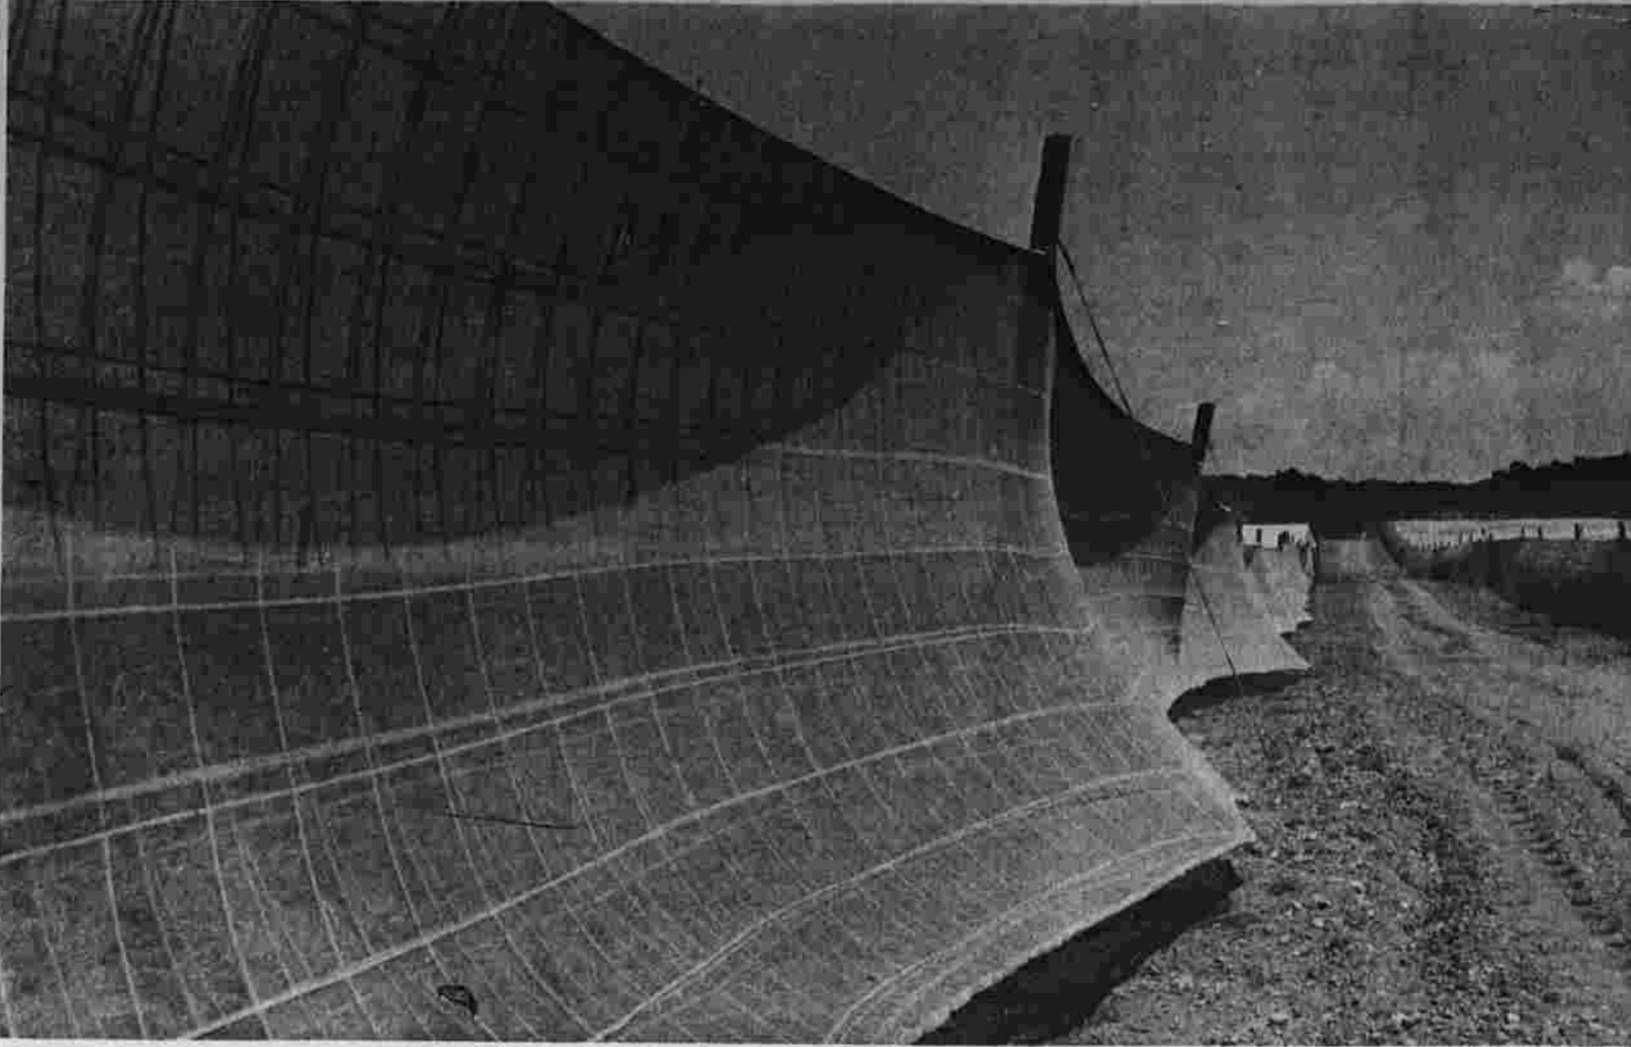

There was a feeling among some of the congressmen questioned that many of their fellow members would, if they had the opportunity, vote in favor of an industry they had a considerable personal investment in.

The use of private company planes by congressmen raised few eyebrows among many of those questioned. Others were not bothered by the thought of free hotel rooms. There were complaints that the availability of cut-rate cars from automotive manufacturers was in the main reserved for committee chairmen.

Much of the private law practice of House members, the study makes clear, is generated because of their positions in Congress. The correlation of law business and congressional business is so close that it is an obvious channel for sanitized bribery and influence peddling. And the system is almost foolproof, as note these Beard and Horn examples:

Rep. John Dowdy of Texas was convicted of bribery, conspiracy and perjury. In 1973 an appeals court overturned the bribery and conspiracy counts. It did not find him innocent — but it ruled that the acts could be interpreted as part of his committee duties and as such would be protected legislative acts, even if he was being bribed to do so.

The 1963 conviction of Rep. Thomas Johnson of Maryland on charges of receiving a bribe for giving a speech on the House floor was also overturned on these constitutional grounds.

Today's Thought

Witnesses have been important ever since God asked Adam and Eve for the truth in the Garden of Eden. When perfect harmony with God was broken we were plunged into the life-time necessity of seeking to wisely discern the truth from other people, and after sorting the information make our own decision.

The Bible says that in forming a judgment about something as important as eternal life, we also need to receive information. "If we receive the testimony of men, the testimony of God is greater; for this is the testimony of God that he who believes in the Son of God has the testimony in himself. He who does not believe in God has made him a liar, because he has not believed in the testimony that God has borne to his Son. And this is the testimony that God gave us eternal life, and this life is in his Son. He who has not the Son of God, he who has not the Son of God has not life. I write this to you who believe in the name of the Son of God, that you may 'know' that you have eternal life."

Peron's Two Lives

NEW YORK, N.Y. — The postman rang twice for Juan Domingo Peron, and the second time the message got through — that power can be gained and regained, but that it must give way to the urgency of death, which can't be maneuvered, manipulated, cajoled.

Peron had two spells of supreme power, thus two lives. The first, a nine-year spell (1949-55), showed a striking skill of maneuver in gaining power. After his overthrow, he spent 18 years "wandering in the wilderness," as the phrase goes for withdrawal and return. But it was a plump, luxurious wilderness, much of it in a mansion in Madrid to which the discontented were repaired and from which he spun his web of reconquering power as a savior of the nation.

His second power spell lasted scarcely more than a year (1973-74), but it was long enough to show that the strategies which captured power were not adequate to heal the splits between right and left in a deeply divided society. Thus the Peron who had lived two lives as a political adventurer died as a failed savior.

His last wife, Isabel, his successor in the presidency, shows few signs of the political talent possessed by his second wife, Eva Duarte Peron. There is a myth that Peron created Eva as a political power, a truer, if anything, that she created him. It was the actress and TV personality who built up the mystique of Peron as a savior. She rescued him from disgrace and prison by raising a force of a half-million demonstrative workers to restore him to his post. It was

Working Stiff Restless

WASHINGTON — Something truly astonishing seems to be happening within the rank-and-file of the labor movement. The working stiff apparently are growing restless.

Reference is to a recent poll on the so-called Right to Work issue by Opinion Research Corp. (ORC), which shows that a majority of union members are not all that enamored of a compulsory unionism. Indeed, 60 per cent of union members polled believe there is too much power concentrated in the hands of leaders of the big unions.

Moreover, 78 per cent of union members said they were opposed to use of their dues money to help finance the campaigns of candidates for public office. Sixty per cent of union members said they would vote for legislation which would provide that a worker could not be discharged from his job for either joining or refusing to join a union.

This is not quite the kind of reading matter AFL-CIO President George Meany finds exhilarating. It is a bone in Meany's craw that 19 states now have laws banning forced union membership, and he is out there campaigning for a "veto-proof" Congress which he assumes, I expect accurately, would be hostile to Big Labor.

At any rate, it seems to me that Reed Larson, executive vice president of the National Right to Work Committee, has a cogent point. It is that Big Labor actually is "a small but powerful minority," not necessarily representative of labor's rank-and-file, but reflecting only the views of Big Labor's hierarchy.

The ORC poll shows that most union members don't want their dues money spent on political campaigns. Yet, says Larson, the so-called campaign reform bill "strongly backed by AFL-CIO officials and passed recently by the Senate curbs the political activities of every special interest group in the country except Big Labor unions."

Possibly it has at last dawned on the working stiff that the money Meany & Co. lavish on hand-picked political favorites comes out of their meager pockets as a condition of their employment. This practice would be democratic only if union members were permitted to vote on which candidates they favored, but the decisions are made in Big Labor's executive suites, not in local meeting halls. I don't know about the typical steel worker, but I don't want anybody not named by me marking my ballot next November.

But he fared less well with the students and upper-middle-class professional groups. During his 18 years of exile, much had changed in Argentina. In the vacuum left by his absence, the students had nowhere to go except to the left. They gave lip service to him on his return, but they were not his. His second power spell was a Populist appeal as a wedge for his reforms. Thus he was the foreman of the right-of-center state capitalism of the military regime in Brazil as well as the left-of-center state socialism of the military regime in Peru. The only strong government that owes little to him is the Democratic Action regime of Carlos Andres Perez in Venezuela.

Where Juan Peron failed, Isabel Peron — former cabaret dancer — is unlikely to succeed. But the left may not have an easy victory against her. If they try to use chaos as the road to power, as they have done elsewhere, they may find that the army — with the support of the unions and business — will head them off. I shouldn't be surprised if, in six months or a year, there were a military junta ruling again in Argentina.

Welcoming Committee of Teammates Await Jeff Coughlin Solo Shot Gave Miles Early Lead in Third Inning at Waddell Field

Miles Oust Ansaldi's, Oppose A&N Tonight

By Len Auster

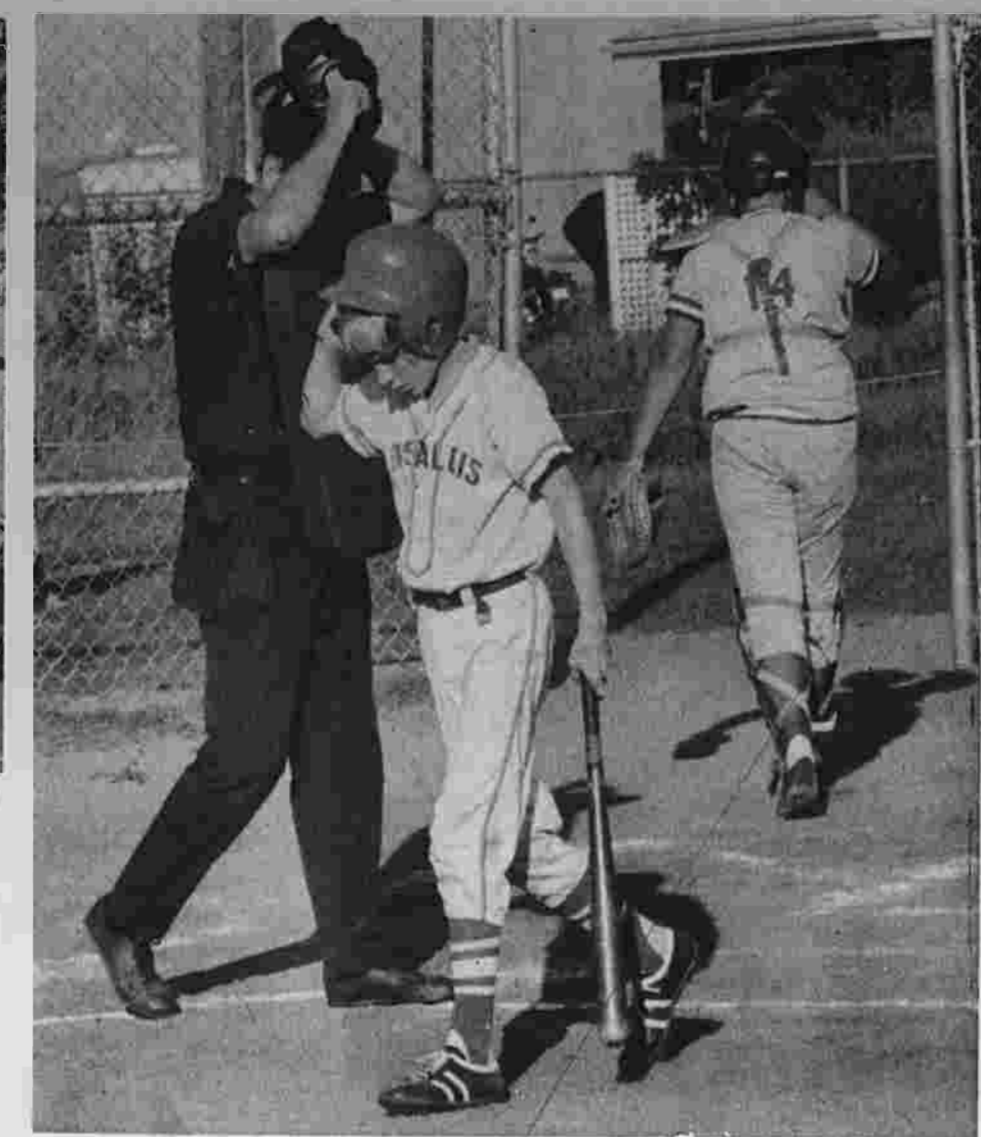

Snapping a 3-3 tie with two runs in the fifth inning, National League champ Miles Auto Sales ousted International League winner Ansaldi's from the double elimination Town Tournament, 6-3 last night at Waddell Field. Miles and American League King Army & Navy, victor in two previous outings, square off tonight at 8 at Waddell and if the Vets win it's all over. A victory by Miles would force another contest Sunday.

Strong pitching and a stout defense played a key role in the Automer's win. Pin-sized Randy Phelps struck out the just two but got the ball over the plate and his teammates made several sparkling defensive plays. Third baseman Bill Frattaroli, second baseman Paul Johnson and first baseman Kelly Mcweeney pulled off a major league-like 5-4-3 doubleplay in the third.

NEW YORK (UPI)—O.J. Simpson and Johnny Unitas, two of the most glamorous names in pro football, found themselves on opposite sides of the picket line Friday when the strike of National Football League players concluded its 12th day.

Unitas, whose status with the Chargers is in doubt this season because of his age (41), had announced in advance that he would appear at camp as scheduled. Veterans picketing the Chargers' camp were at Unitas as he crossed the line and he waved back at them.

State Aid Use Study Initiated

HARTFORD (UPI) — A study of how well Connecticut municipalities use state aid will be conducted by the legislature's Program Review Committee. Some communities may not be even aware of some of the state funding that is available to them, the chairmen of the committee, Sen. David O. Odegar, R-Manchester and Rep. John G. Groppo, D-Winsted, said Friday. "Preliminary research has indicated that the General Assembly has appropriated payments to local governments of approximately $325 million for fiscal year 1974-75," Odegar said. "It is obvious that these grants have tremendous effect on state finances as well as services provided to municipalities," he said. The committee, which will begin the study next week, will concentrate on administration of the grants-in-aid by state agencies and examine the structure of the system as well as communities' local needs.

People Mover Groundbreaking Set for July 18

WINDSOR LOCKS (UPI) — Gov. Thomas J. Meskill will officiate at groundbreaking ceremonies July 18 for the controversial "people mover" at Bradley International Airport in Windsor Locks.

Also scheduled to attend the event are Commissioner Joseph B. Burns of the state Transportation Department, a number of legislative and municipal officials and representatives of the Ford Motor Co., which developed the system.

The "people mover" is a system of self-guided, bus-like vehicles that will operate between the airport and a parking lot about about 250 yards away.

Funding for the $4.5 million project was denied earlier this year by the legislature but Burns then announced it would be built from regular operating budget funds.

The system includes three passenger stations and a maintenance facility, and is expected to provide employment for some 70 skilled workers by the time it is completed in early 1975.

Winsted Man Dies Of Swim Injuries

WINSTED (UPI) — A Winsted man has died as a result of a swimming accident June 18th when he nearly drowned at Compensating Reservoir in Barkhamsted.

Roger H. Groman, 24, was given mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and heart massage when he was pulled from the waters of the reservoir more than eight minutes after he had gone under, but he never regained consciousness.

Groman was swimming with two friends and strayed into a restricted area.

UConn Trustees Seek $85.6 Million Budget

GROTON (UPI) — University of Connecticut trustees have voted unanimously to request a $85.6 million budget for fiscal 1976, $15 million more than presently allocated.

UConn vice president Richard DeHaan said after the trustees meeting in Groton Friday that the largest single budget item, $24 million, is for the university's health center, an increase of 24 per cent from this year.

DeHaan said the request is a "catch-up" budget because in the past the budgets have not kept pace with inflation, rising faculty salaries and a number of maintenance projects which have had to be shelved.

He said discounting the projected effects of inflation on the proposed budget, the $85.6 million figure would only be about 12 per cent higher than the present allocation.

UConn president Glenn W. Ferguson said although the quality of education at the university has not suffered because of the low-need budgets in the past, the future does not look bright if the low budgets continue. "For example, we could in the next year lose our best faculty talent because the competitive (salary) situation today is not as good for the University of Connecticut as it was three or four years ago," he said.

Some trustees also mentioned during the session that the strict budgets of the past have kept UConn from beginning a number of construction programs, especially a new library, and increasing the number of teachers per students.

And that call costs so little. It's never more than 70¢ to anywhere in Connecticut. That's for 3 minutes without using an operator, from 8 A.M. to 5 P.M.

Evenings, nights and weekends are even less! So why not phone South to check when that zoo is open. Or North to get the weather. Or East to greet a friend. Or West to reserve that table.

It just doesn't cost that much to call anywhere within the state. At any time. To get, or to give what's needed.

It's lower than you think within Connecticut.

Let's Put on a Magic Show

Tips for Magicians

1. Practice, practice, practice.
2. What magicians say when they perform is called "patter." Practice this. Remember, the power of suggestion is important. Here are some magic words that might help.
  - All-a-kazam
  - Shazzam
  - Hokus Pokus
  - Sim Sala Bim
3. Do not repeat the same trick for the same audience.
4. Never give away your secrets.

Pin in Balloon Trick

Patter: "I can stick a pin into a balloon and it won't pop."

1. Blow up a balloon.
2. Put a strip of transparent tape over a spot.

3. Stick a pin in the strip. The balloon won't pop. When you try to take the pin out, the balloon will then go down slowly.

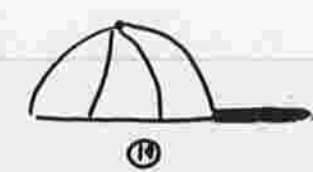

A young magician puts on a show. Maybe you would like to practice the tricks in this Mini Page and put on your own performance.

Hat and Coin Trick (just for fun)

Patter: "I can move this coin without touching the hat."

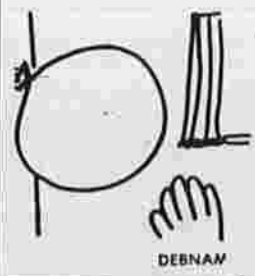

1. Put a coin on a table and put a hat over it.
2. Say a magic word and then ask a friend to lift the hat and see if the coin has moved.
3. When your friend moves the hat then pick up the coin and say, "It worked! I didn't touch the hat, you did."

Balloon to Wall Trick

Patter: "I can make this balloon stick to the wall."

1. Rub the balloon on a wool sweater or any wool material for about one minute or until you count to 60.
2. Place it against the wall and watch it stick.

Egg Squeeze Trick

Patter: "I can squeeze an egg without breaking it."

Hold the egg between the palms of both hands. Be certain you press in at the ends, not the sides.

You might want to try this over a sink.

Magic Bottle Trick

Patter: "I can blow out the candle through a bottle."

2. With your mouth even with the candle flame and about five inches away from the bottle, blow out the flame.

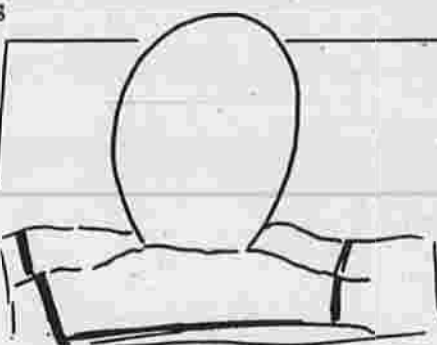

Be certain that an adult is around when you try this trick since you will be lighting a match and candle.

1. Put a bottle on a table. About five inches directly behind it, put a lighted candle.

3. This looks like you have blown out the candle through the bottle. What really happens is that the bottle splits the current of air, but it meets on the opposite side of the bottle.

The Egg Stands Alone

Patter: "I can make this egg stand up on its smaller end."

1. Sprinkle a pile of salt on the table.
2. Cover the salt with a handkerchief.
3. Place the egg in the middle of the pile of salt. Wiggle it down into the salt.
4. Now your egg should stand alone.

(Cover the salt with the handkerchief before you start doing the trick so you can keep how you do it a secret.)

Crayon Trick

Patter: "Without looking at it, I can tell you which color crayon you picked."

1. Give a box of crayons to a friend. Ask him to pick any color he wishes while your back is turned. Keep your hands behind your back so the audience can see them.
2. Ask your friend to put the crayon that he picked into one of your hands. Then turn and face the audience. Rub the tip of your right thumb nail across the point of the crayon. Drop the crayon into your left hand. Do not look at it.

3. Bring your right hand around in front and point to the person who picked the crayon and say "You gave me the color . . ." You can tell by noting the color under your nail. By pointing with your index finger, others can't see the mark under your nail.

Super Sport: Laura Baugh

No matter where Laura Baugh goes, golf fans are sure to follow. She is one of the prettiest players to ever play on the pro tour. She turned pro in 1973 at the age of 18 and won "Rookie of the Year Honors." Before that, she won several tournaments as an amateur.

She grew up in Gainesville, Florida where she started playing at age 4. When she was 12, she would practice so much that her hands would bleed.

Besides playing golf, the 5-5, 115 pound "blue eyed" blonde enjoys crocheting, dancing, modeling and acting.

Magic Coins

1. Put an odd number of coins in your hand. Three will do fine. Don't let your friend see them.
2. Ask a friend to take some coins in his hand. Be certain you don't see them.
3. Tell him: "I will add my coins to the coins you are holding. If you have an even number of coins, then the total will be an odd number. If you are holding an odd number of coins, then the total will be an even number."
4. Both of you will show your coins and add up the total and you will see that it works. The secret is: Always keep an odd number of coins in your hand. By adding odd with even, you will get an odd answer. By adding odd with odd, you get an even answer.

Roman Numeral Tricks

Mini Maze

Help the magician find his rabbit. Hurry! The show is about to begin.

Put Out the Flame Trick

Patter: "I can put out the flame without blowing on or touching it."

1. Light a candle.
2. Cover the candle with a glass.
3. The flame will go out. This is because the fire must have oxygen to burn. You have cut the oxygen off by placing the glass over the flame.

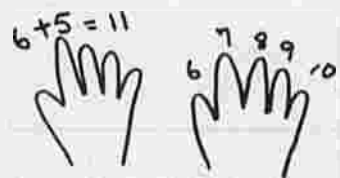

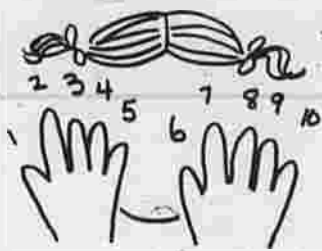

DEBNAM

Be certain an adult is around when you try this, since you will be lighting a match and candle.

The Eleven Fingers Trick

Patter: "I can prove that I have an extra finger. I'll count them for you."

1. Hold up your hands and count each finger up to ten.

2. Now, start counting backwards on one hand by saying, "10, 9, 8, 7, 6." Hold up the other hand and say, "Six plus five equals eleven."
