Town GOP Hosts Picnic

Despite a hot and humid afternoon, more than 150 Republicans and members of their families attended the Manchester Republican Town Committee's meet-the-candidates picnic in Center Springs Park Sunday.

Among the early candidate arrivals were Rep. Robert Steele of Vernon, who is bidding for the GOP nomination for governor at the state convention later this week. His major rival, Mayor Nicholas Panuzio of Bridgeport, put in an appearance late in the afternoon.

Also on hand were Nathan Agostinelli, former Manchester mayor who is seeking renomination and re-election as state comptroller; State Rep. Francis Collins of Brookfield, also a gubernatorial aspirant; Rube Figueroa of Middletown but in the process of moving to Portland, who seeks the First District congressional nomination; James H. Brannen III of Colchester, who seeks the U.S. Senate nomination; and Herbert V. Camp Jr., also a U.S. Senate aspirant.

Local contest candidates present included State Rep. Warren Westbrook of South Windsor and State Sen. David Odegaard of Manchester.

A. Paul Berte, town GOP chairman, expressed his pleasure with the turnout despite the hot weather and was especially pleased that almost all the major candidates were able to attend.

Henley Trial Nearly Over

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — Defense and prosecuting attorneys present their final arguments today in the trial of Elmer Wayne Henley, 18, charged with killing six of the 27 youths slain during a three-year period in Houston.

District Judge Presto Dial has allotted two hours each for arguments. The case could go to the jury by mid-afternoon. The state built its case primarily on written and spoken statements Henley gave police the night following his arrest Aug. 8, 1973.

The defense, led by court-appointed attorney Will Gray, rested its case abruptly Friday without calling any of its 59 subpoenaed witnesses.

The presentation of testimony had been expected to take about six weeks but required only one.

Six Zoning Variance Hearings on ZBA Slate

Six requests for zoning variances will be the subject of public hearings tonight at 7 — in the Municipal Building Hearing Room — by the Manchester Zoning Board of Appeals.

The requests are:
• Joseph Fortin, side yard variance for Tool shed at 54 Eldridge St., Business 2 Zone.
• United Pentecostal Church, rear yard variance for addition to church building at 185 Woodbridge St., Residence B Zone.

Releases Final Report

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Watergate committee released its final report Saturday, not drawing any conclusions about President Nixon's role. The committee said its investigation was incomplete, mainly because Nixon refused to give it recordings it wanted. The committee proposed new campaign laws and said the nation must demand higher ethical standards of its leaders if it wants to prevent more Watergates.

Crime Increase Reported

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Serious crime in the United States rose 15 per cent during the first three months of 1974, the FBI reported today. The biggest gains were in suburban and rural areas and in cities with populations under 25,000. Regionally, the South had the biggest increase, 23 per cent, followed by 17 per cent in the West and 9 per cent in the North and North Central states.

Ratify Pact

NEW HAVEN (UPI) — Two thousand employees of Olin Corp. plants in New Haven and Branford have agreed to a new two-year labor contract providing wage hikes of 70 cents an hour over the next 18 months.

Thunderstorms Forecast

The National Weather Service says thunderstorms moving into Connecticut today should break the high temperatures and humidity that prevailed over the state during the weekend.

Some thunderstorms struck portions of the state during the night. The high temperature Sunday was 93, seven degrees below the 100 degree record set in 1965.

Quite warm and humid today with occasional showers or thunderstorms likely, some possibly accompanied by strong gusty winds or heavy rain. Highs in the mid to upper 80s. Becoming clear with more comfortable humidity tonight. Lows in low to mid 60s. Fair and pleasant Tuesday with highs around 80.

- Michael and Catherine S. Tuck, area, frontage, and front yard variances at 168-170 W. Center St., Residence B Zone.
- Scott B. Clendaniel, side yard variance for addition to dwelling at 37 Kensington St., Residence A Zone.
- Raymond Damato, variance to erect garage on corner lot at 24 Homestead St., Residence B Zone.
- Robert McNamara, side yard variance for porch at 43 S. Lakewood Circle, Residence AA Zone.

Archbishop's Fate Unknown

Cypriot Guardsmen Overthrow Markarios

ATHENS (UPI) — The Cyprus National Guard, led by Greek army officers seeking union of Cyprus with Greece, overthrew the government of President Archbishop Makarios today and swore in newspaper publisher Nicos Sampson as new president, Nicosia Radio reported.

Turkey violently opposes union of Cyprus with Greece because it fears for the safety of the Turkish Cypriot minority. It almost went to war with Greece in 1964 and 1967 over alleged threats to the Turks and it alerted its armed forces today.

Conflicting Reports

There were conflicting reports whether Makarios, 60, was killed when the National Guard shelled the presidential palace and battled forces loyal to the deposed archbishop.

Nicosia Radio repeated several times that "Makarios is dead" but gave no further details. A Turkish Cypriot radio station broadcasting from Cyprus said Makarios was still alive and a clandestine radio, monitored in Israel and calling itself "The Radio of the Free Republic of Cyprus," said the death report was "lies, lies, lies."

With Turkish diplomats at NATO Brussels headquarters speaking of possible Turkish intervention, diplomatic sources in London said the ousting of Makarios threatened serious international trouble that could have unpredictable results for the island, the NATO alliance and the neighboring Middle East.

Caution Urged

The sources said that before the full story of the coup became known the Western powers were already counselling Greece and Turkey to go easy and avoid any steps that could lead to another confrontation between the two NATO members.

Cyprus, the reputed birthplace of Aphrodite, the Goddess of Love, lies 40 miles south of Turkey and 350 miles east of the Greek island of Crete. It has been torn with on-and-off civil war for nearly 50 years between the early 400,000 Greek Cypriots and the less than 100,000 Turkish Cypriots.

Cyprus radio said "turmoil created within the (Greek Orthodox) church and the impending danger that the armed forces could fall into the hands of anarchists and criminal elements with unforeseeable consequences for the future of Cyprus" led the National Guard to act.

New Leader

Sampson, 39, was born in Nicosia and fought against British rule in the 1960s. He was arrested and sentenced to death by British authorities for killing British servicemen, but his sentence was commuted to life. He was freed when Cyprus became independent in 1960.

His newspapers support enosis — the union of Cyprus with Greece — and are critical of Communist policies.

"In the name of God and men and following an honorary choice by the armed forces, I took today the presidency of the Cypriot republic," Sampson said in an address to the nation. "You all know the events that dictated the intervention of our armed sons for the salvation of the country."

Guard Background

The Cypriot National Guard was formed in 1964 when Turkey and Greece appeared near war over the Cyprus question. It was a force of about 10,000 Cypriots, and 1,000 Greek officers were sent in to train and lead them. In recent years some Greeks returned to Athens and about 650 were left.

The loyal forces in today's fighting were units of the Reserve Police Force, a paramilitary group organized by Makarios to fight the EOKA B guerrillas who have carried out a wave of violence and assassination to force union with Greece. Radio dispatches said the reserves were resisting the coup and had engaged several national guard units.

Youth Hijacks Airliner

TOKYO (UPI) — A knife-wielding Japanese youth hijacked a Japanese airliner on a domestic flight today, and demanded passage to North Korea for himself and a jailed member of a leftwing terrorist group.

Police said the Japan Air Lines DC8 jet with 75 passengers and a crew of eight aboard was hijacked during a 300-mile flight from Osaka, Japan's second largest city, to Tokyo. The hijacker was not immediately identified.

Lands in Tokyo

In accordance with the hijacker's demands, the plane landed at Tokyo International Airport. The hijacker demanded that a leader of the terrorist band known as Japan Red Army be freed from jail and placed aboard the plane for a flight to North Korea.

Police said the hijacker, knife in hand, stormed into the cockpit and told pilot Tomoo Abe to land in Tokyo and have Takaya Shiomu, 33, brought from jail to the plane.

"Tell the government to release the Red Army's Shiomu," police quoted the hijacker as saying. "When Shiomu gets to the airport, take the plane to North Korea."

Terrorist group

The radical group has been involved in previous terrorist acts including the Lod Airport massacre in Israel in 1972, the hijacking of a JAL jumbo jet airliner in the Middle East last year, and an attack on an oil refinery in Singapore early this year.

The hijacked JAL plane touched down on runway C shortly after newly appointed

U.S. Ambassador to Japan James D. Hodgson flew in from Honolulu to assume his post. Hodgson did not know that the airport was sealed off shortly after his arrival.

Shiomu has been under detention for several years on charges involving anti-government demonstrations.

Eight members of the so-called Red Army were flown to Pyongyang in 1971 after hijacking a JAL jetliner on its way from Tokyo to Fukuoka.

Sidewalk Sales Please Shoppers and Merchants

By BETTY RYDER

The three-day annual Sidewalk Sales Days held this past weekend proved popular with customers and merchants alike. Crowds milled through the five major shopping areas in search of bargains and area stores are apparently pleased with the success of the event.

Werner Block, manager of D&L in the Parkade, said, "It was excellent."

Did he feel it was more successful than last year?
"For us it was," he said.

The K-Mart Shopping Plaza kept busy, too, with items geared to appeal to everyone. Ken Bly, assistant manager at K-Mart, said, "It was really fantastic. I had been on vacation but stopped in the store Saturday night and at 9, it was still very busy."

Main St. had its share of business with Bernard Apter of Regal's Men's Shop commenting "It was a good crowd."

"We went ahead of last year's sales," he said, "and are very happy with the Sidewalk Sales."

House & Hale's spokesman Greg Wildman, the manager, said, "We are very pleased with the results. We broke just about even with last year."

So-Pro Fabrics in Burr Corners Shopping Plaza is equally happy with the promotion. Mrs. Beverly Beagle, assistant manager, said "The first day was phenomenal — super. The second two days tapered off a little, but all in all business was very good."

It was business as usual at Harvey's, also located in Burr Corners Shopping Plaza, and Mrs. Jan Kelly, manager, says sales results were "very good."

Even a little incident there Saturday did little to dispel customers from searching for bargain. With dressing rooms full of customers trying on fashionable attire, the report of an electrical fire in one of the overhead light fixtures from which smoke was emanating was taken in stride by the partially dressed customers.

Fortunately, a fire truck and crew from the Manchester Eighth District Fire Department was parked in the Plaza as part of the Sidewalk Sales Days promotion. A call out the front door of Harvey's brought the firemen in and the ladies scurried behind dressing room curtains, as the "gentlemen" eyes straight ahead, proceeded to locate the source of the smoke and get the situation in control in a matter of minutes.

Also on hand at the Plaza was the Burger King clown who chatted with the youngsters and brought smiles to their faces.

Martin Boder, owner of Martin Ltd. in the Parkade, said, "Our sales ran 10 per cent higher this year over last year's Sidewalk Sales Days. We did very well, we always do. We look forward to the sales every year."

Everyone seems happy — customers and merchants — which only goes to prove Sidewalk Sales Days is a promotion that all will look forward to next year.

Variable Interest

Small investors may soon be able to participate in corporate borrowings with interest rates being adjusted twice yearly to reflect the money market.
It is a partial step towards "indexing," which if carried out fully would mean that interest rates and commodity prices and wages would be directly tied to the cost of living index.

These notes would not be insured like a bank deposit or savings and loan deposit.
Their attractiveness to the small investor would be that they could realize a rate of interest much higher than that being paid by banks or savings and loans except to the very largest depositor's for long term periods.

The bank holding corporations, seeking new sources of money, have been tempted by the $658 billion which it is estimated is now held by banks or savings and loan institutions.

The bank holding corporations, seeking new sources of money, have been tempted by the $658 billion which it is estimated is now held by banks or savings and loan institutions.

Corporations hungry for capital have been disappointed lately in the reception offered by a new bond issue and there has been a real dearth of stock issues because of the depressed market.
The parent companies of several large banks — not the banks themselves — propose to issue relatively long term notes. Twice yearly the interest paid on them would be adjusted to 1 per cent point above an average of the interest being paid on U.S. Treasury notes.

Banks and savings and loans are alarmed at the move since they fear a flight of their deposits to the higher paying notes.
Small investors, beset by inflation and low interest rates available in regular channels, will be tempted by this innovation.

Arsenal Security Needed

Theft of a veritable arsenal of weapons from a National Guard Armory in Compton, Calif., has emphasized the great danger to society of having large stockpiles of military-type arms which are too lightly guarded.

A similar theft, but on a much smaller scale took place earlier at the marine's Camp Pendleton, when a simulated inspection and check of weapons was a ruse to remove military rifles from the camp's armory.

In the Pendleton case the FBI was able to track down the weapons and make a quick recovery of them before they were sold on the black market or used illegally.

Police officials in Compton have suggested that the theft of weapons there may have been the work of a para-military group such as the SLA. In addition to 96 rifles, grenade launchers, machine guns, etc., the Compton thieves also broke into another room and stole 75 gas masks. It was recalled that the six members of the SLA who died in May 17 shootout in Los Angeles all were found wearing gas masks. This could well have been the reason that they failed to come out of the house after police had lobbed in gas bombs.

The M-16 rifles stolen in Compton are fully automatic weapons designed for combat use. So, too are the seven M-60 machine guns which were stolen. Authorities say that although the bolt assemblies had been removed from the rifles that they can be acquired easily.

Washington says that the security of National Guard armories is the responsibility of the state. In any event either the state or national government should take immediate steps to insure maximum security of these weapons.

Case Mountain Story Too Late

The excellent article by Malcolm Barlow entitled, "The Confusion over Case Mountain," in the July 10th Herald deserves the serious attention of every Manchesterite. However, it is most unfortunate that this article was not published at least six months ago, before the Case Mountain deal was consummated.

For the past three years I have repeatedly brought to the attention of Manager Weiss, Mayor Thompson, and the Board of Directors all the abuses cited in Malcolm Barlow's article and much more. For some reason The Herald reporter covering such public hearings did not see fit to report fully the serious nature of what I described that goes on constantly at Case Mountain.

The whole Case Mountain area has become a vast staging center for all sorts of illegal and immoral activities far removed from the purposes for which the Conservation Commission tells us that it would be used. It has become a mecca for the users of marijuana, heroin, and other drugs; a hideout where children as young as 14 years go to drink alcoholic liquors supplied by the over 18 year olds; a secluded place for nude displays and unchecked sex orgies; and a race course for minibikes, motorcycles, and snowmobiles. In fact, Case Mountain has become known as a place where anything goes!

Town Manager Weiss and Mayor Thompson are primarily responsible for spearheading the final drive to purchase Case Mountain. The Directors must also share the blame. All these officials chose to swallow the Conservation Commission line while completely ignoring the real hard facts of life which I revealed to them time and again.

Police Chief James Reardon should have exerted all the power at his command to deter these officials from buying Case Mountain. He, above all people must know all about what goes on in that area. I never once saw or heard Chief Reardon at any of the public hearings regarding Case Mountain. WHY?
Where were all the people from Spring St. east of Gardner St. when all the public meetings were held concerning Case Mountain?

Today's Thought

A minister often watched the caterpillars in his garden climb the painted sticks. He saw them reach the top, look high and then in search of some juicy twig on which to feed, only to be disappointed and to return slowly to the ground.
Later in preaching to his congregation, the minister said, "There are many painted sticks — pleasure, wealth, power, fame. All are calling, 'Climb me and find satisfaction.' But there is no satisfaction except in Jesus."
Peter and John knew that. When the lame man in the temple asked for alms, Peter offered him something far greater — healing in the name of Jesus. At Peter's command the man arose and walked. Never again would the painted stick of alms-asking be a portion of this man, for he had met Christ, the One who truly satisfies.

Many today are climbing painted sticks that offer no satisfaction for body or soul. They need to meet Jesus, the only One who can supply every need. "Faith in His name hath made this man strong." Acts 3:16.

The Court and the President

NEW YORK — More than a hundred people lined up overnight to get into the Supreme Court, as if they were a crush of young rock fans: not bad for the stuffy old girl, is it?
They endured the ordeal of waiting, I think, for two reasons. They sense the court's role as their depository of authority at a time when so many other institutions have lost their authority. They sense also the fact that this is the sharpest constitutional crisis in American history since the Civil War, and that the question of the President's tapes is at the heart of the crisis.
An objective student of constitutional law, regardless of his feelings about the impeachment itself, has to conclude that special prosecutor Leon Jaworski had the better case to present, and the President's counsel — James D. St. Clair — the less tenable one.

I don't go as far as Raoul Berger goes in denying that executive privilege ever existed or was ever given to the Presidency. In the nature of presidential functioning there has to be a measure of secrecy reserved for delicate discussions. But it becomes as an absurdity to say that the President alone must decide which conversations or documents he will release, especially when the case involves the possible impeachable and criminal guilt of the President himself.
To hold anything else is to give up on the accountability of the President or — what amounts to the same thing — to say that the President must be the judge of his own accountability to the law.
St. Clair has argued that impeachment belongs to Congress; that the court cannot become involved with it; that any tapes delivered to prosecutor Jaworski are bound to wind up with the House Judiciary Committee, and that therefore the surrender of the tapes would mean involving the judiciary with the impeachment process. The final judge, he says, of whether the President has made the right decision or not is withholding the tapes must not be the courts but the people.
It is tortured reasoning at best. The impeachment power of Congress won't operate effectively unless evidence is made available which might give rise to the question of the President's actions or the President's decisions about the tapes unless there is some way by which someone other than the President — the prosecutor, the Congress or a judge — can find out what is on the tapes.
There is a danger that prosecutors and congressional committees might go berserk in their demands for tapes — "insatiable" is St. Clair's term. This has been called the "slippery slope" on which a reasonable release might grow into a disasterous one. But it can be avoided by having the tapes or documents handed to a judge — perhaps even to a sitting panel of retired judges — to decide on what is relevant in them.
Some of the Supreme Court justices may well feel that the decision of this case is pushing them into a political role by making them settle political questions they have no right to settle. But the time is long past when the Supreme Court was terrified by political questions. This one, at any rate, however political it may be, is deeply a constitutional question also and needs deciding. More than Richard Nixon and his political fate are involved in it. The nature of constitutional government, the distribution of powers, the accountability of the highest official of the government — all these are involved.
St. Clair's argument — that there is a "special nature" to the Presidency — may prove his most important and most vulnerable contention. It is interesting to note that all the present constitutional positions taken by Mr. Nixon's strict counsel have stressed a virtue rather than a broad reading of the Constitution. All except this one. On this one score, St. Clair argues for the broadest possible interpretation of the Presidency as out of reach of judicial accountability because the President is the executive department and therefore has a special nature.
It is a dangerous mystique to develop, and too late in the history of the United States and the Constitution to develop it.

Bolton Sewage System Plan Reviewed

Donna Holland Correspondent 646-0375
The plan and basic data regarding the proposed sewage disposal system for the proposed new town library are satisfactory and should be approved, the town sanitarian, Calvin Hutchinson, was told by Theodore Willerford, principal sanitary engineer of the state environmental health services division.
The plans, prepared by A.R. Lombardi Associates, civil and sanitary engineers, were reviewed by Willerford at Hutchinson's request. The proposed site was inspected by Willerford in the company of Hutchinson in June.
Willerford said the soil on the site has a relatively slow percolation rate and a high seasonal ground water table. He said the engineer plans to overcome intercepting drains and by raising the area of the leaching system with pervious fill.
The volume of sewage expected from the library facility is minimal and the system should function properly if installed in accordance with the proposed plans, said Willerford.
Willerford recommended the well be in south of the proposed location of the leaching system. He said there appeared to be sufficient area for it.

PZC Sees No Need to Review Liquor Zoning Regulations

VIRGINIA Correspondent Tel. 228-9224
The Planning and Zoning Commission (PZC) says there is no need to publicly review zoning regulations here specifically pertaining to the sale of alcoholic beverages.
Atty. Charles Tarpinian, representing owners of the Columbia Package Store, said in view of the possibility that a petition being circulated for a referendum on liquor, he was interested in the PZC's position on the matter. Tarpinian asked if there is intent to circulate a petition for a referendum on selling beer in grocery stores. Charles Keegan, owner of Keegan's Country Market, is reportedly interested in this, Tarpinian said.
Town regulations state the sale or exchange of spirituous and alcoholic liquors may not be done if the building is situated within 1,000 feet in a direct line from any entrance to a church, public school, public facility, playground or library.
If, in such a referendum, voters support the sale of alcoholic beverages in grocery stores, regulations still prohibit it, said Dr. Bruce Bradford, PZC chairman.
Tarpinian said his client is apprehensive of misinterpretation citizens may make. If they did not want beer in Keegan's Market and voted "no," is so doing many people might be market.
Member Emmi Koiva said he likes the regulation as it now stands. He doesn't want to change anything in the cultural part of town and felt this would not be taking a step forward in zoning.
Leo Goldberg, commission member, favors a public hearing to get 'the voice of the people.'
In the area is Porter School, two churches and a post office.

South Windsor Church Groups Plan Car Wash
The Youth Choirs of Wapping Community Church will sponsor a car wash for the benefit of the Pat Lydick Fund, July 27 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the church parking lot.
The Pat Lydick fund was established by the Church Council to assist the Lydick family with medical expenses. Pat Lydick, music director at the church, recently underwent open-heart surgery.
The charge for the car wash will be $1. Those who can't make it to the car wash, but would like to donate to the fund, may do so through the church office. Checks should be made out to the "Pat Lydick Fund."

Boards Study Options Open For Library

BOLTON
Donna Holland
Correspondent
644-0375

The Board of Selectmen will meet tonight at 8 at the Town Hall.
The Public Building Commission will meet tonight at 7 at the Town Hall.
Commission members are meeting to discuss the options open on the proposed new town library.
Bolton voters earlier in the year approved a sum not to exceed $271,000 for construction of the library. The sum included the costs of construction, sitework, equipment, tests and blueprints, contingency fund and architect's fee.

When bids for the project were opened recently the lowest bid, for construction of the facility only, was $279,000. It appears another $70,000 is needed.
The PBC and Selectmen will decide tonight what road to take.
Four choices appear open to them:
(1) All bids can be rejected.
(2) additional funding in order to accept the bids can be requested.
(3) the library can be redesigned and bids sent out again, or (4) an entirely new project can be proposed.
First Selectman Richard Morra spoke of calling a town meeting in order to see what direction townpeople wanted to take.

One resolution will ask for an additional appropriation of $80,000 to build additions to, and alterations of the V-o-Ag building at Rockville first School. A referendum several months ago approved an amount of $120,000 for the project. The state originally said $200,000 was available. The town will be 100 per cent reimbursed by the state but the voters have to approve it first.
The other resolution is asking for an appropriation of $78,000 to build additional tennis courts at the high school. The Board of Education has approved the project. This, if done in connection with the high school expansion program, will be reimbursed 50 per cent by the state.

Acting as the Sewer Authority, the council will also conduct a public hearing on a proposal to extend the sewer system in the areas of Talbotville, Rt. 30 and Loveland Hill Rd.

The council, at its regular meeting to follow the 7:30 hearing, will hear a report on an ice rack feasibility study. Geoffrey Wabale of Carlisle-Edwards, Inc., the firm doing the study, will explain the project to the council a few weeks ago.

The council will also be asked to act on resolutions to: Authorize the mayor to sign a deed for land sale to the state; approve a resolution to authorize the mayor as HUD agent for the town to apply for an extension of the Emergency Employment Act program; to act on a proposed ordinance appropriating $3.2 million for the extension of sewers and set a date for a public hearing; discuss sewer user charges for restaurants; and act on a request of the Board of Education for expenditure of funds for programs to be reimbursed 100 per cent by the state.

The council will also be asked to act on the resignations of Herman Olson and Andrew Tricario from the Traffic Authority and to approve 19 resolutions to various boards and commissions.

Following the council meeting the sewer authority to consider a request of the Kingfisher Corp. of Tolland to tie in to the Vernon sewer system; and the request of the Talbotville Co. for sewer extension and waiver of assessment.

The discussions are similar to "living room dialogues" which became so popular during the time of ecumenism in the 60s. The people taking part have a real desire to learn about each other's beliefs and traditions, and each one brings with him a love and openness which are necessary ingredients for dialogue, which must begin in the heart. Praying for each other has no place in this setting, even though each person, in his sharing, is witnessing to what he believes.

Turnout for the first meeting was gratifying, although most were surprised to find that the greatest response was from the Jewish community. It appears that while the Christians were anxious to call for the games, the Jews have carried the ball!

Attendance at the three meetings which followed continued to increase. While most dialogue groups are best kept small, this group (of upwards to 25) decided to stay together. They have been meeting in the large living room of the Susanna Wesley House on the campus of South United Methodist Church.

In the discussions, most of the questioning was aimed at the Christians who had first to accept the misunderstanding of Jews throughout the history of the church. This led to discussion of anti-semitic feelings and the ideas Christians have of Jews, and vice-versa.
Many misunderstandings were uncovered on both sides. Christians discovered the subtle ways in which considerations for Jews are ignored, for example, scheduling of school dances and class parties on Friday nights; or important class work and testing during high holy days (even though teachers are asked not to schedule such things at that time).
Upon reflection it was revealed that among Christians, many scout leaders plan camping weekends for their parents who must pick up their children must also miss church services. It appears that sympathy has often become the accepted way of life as church and religious teaching takes a back seat to pleasure and recreation. Small points perhaps, but considerable nevertheless.

Through these dialogues, the Christian becomes aware of some of the problems faced by Jews, as well as other minorities, even today. And because of this new "awareness", the senses become sharpened to pick up injustices wherever they appear in print or in spoken word.
The next step, hopefully, is to act to erase these biases before they spread.
With the situation in the Middle East what it is today, the understanding derived from these dialogues is of timely importance. It is amazing that while the Mideast conflict has often been the reason for breakdown of many Jewish-Christian Dialogues held elsewhere, here in Manchester, it has yet to be discussed.
Fortunately, by getting to know first the history, culture and religious beliefs of each group, a firmer foundation is built for discussion of such "hot issues."
"We've only just begun" might well speak for the possibilities that lie ahead as this group continues in dialogue. Through their caring and sharing, many doors are opened and bridges built. Personal relationships are also formed. This is what brotherhood is all about.
The group meets again Thursday night, at 8 in the Susanna Wesley Hall. For any

Council to Conduct Hearings On Appropriations Tonight

VERNON
Prior to its regular meeting tonight the Vernon Town Council will conduct public hearings on two requests for appropriations and if approved will then conduct a special town meeting to ask authorization for the amounts.

who might be interested in reading on the subject or taking part in such a group, please contact Mrs. Elaine Holcomb, 649-2274, for information.

At the first meeting the expectations of the group were discussed, and it was decided to use two companion paperbacks, "Homework for Christians," and "Homework for Jews," as a guideline for discussion topics. Through the generosity of B'nai Brith, both booklets were purchased for each participant from the National Conference of Christian and Jews office in Hartford.

Giard-Gallo

Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Giard

Frances Elizabeth Gallo and Edward J. Giard, both of Manchester, were united in marriage June 22 at St. Bridget Church, Manchester. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. William J. V. Gallo of 242 Summit St. and the late William V. Gallo. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward S. Giard of 410 Summit St. The Rev. William McCarthy of St. Luke's Church, Hartford, celebrated the double-ring ceremony. The church was decorated with spider chrysanthemums. John Carlson was organist and the Bossidy family were the folk group. The bride, given in marriage by her godfather Joseph Tesoro, wore a silk organza gown trimmed with Bishop lace and designed with Bishop sleeves and A-line skirt terminating in a train. She wore a veil trimmed with matching lace and attached to a Juliet cap and carried a bouquet of white gardenias, stephanotis, baby's breath, and ivy. Miss Constance Anne Gallo of Manchester was her sister's maid of honor. She wore a polyester knit halter gown with matching jacket and carried a crescent spray of yellow roses and white carnations. Bridesmaids were Miss Jean M. Gallo of Hartford; Miss Catherine M. Giard of Brookline, Mass.; Miss Victoria Gallo of Manchester; and Miss Sandra A. Giard of Manchester. They were given similar to that worn by the honor attendant except in pink, lavender, apricot and pale yellow. They carried crescent sprays of matching carnations which were a shade darker than their gowns. Henry J. Fay Jr. of Manchester was best man. Ushers were Joseph Tesoro of Dorchester, Mass.; Paul Gorham of Jamaica Plain, Mass.; Robert Baldoni of Hartford and Robert Jordan of Manchester. A reception was held at the Colony in Talcoville, after which the couple left on a trip to Montreal and Quebec, Canada. For traveling, Mrs. Giard wore a blue and white suit with white accessories. The couple will reside in Manchester.

Researchers Study Sticks Which Deter Tooth Decay

By DALE SINGER ST. LOUIS (UPI)—About 90 per cent of all Americans have some tooth decay. In some African areas the figure is as low as 15 per cent. What could do a better job of shielding American children and adults from tooth decay than is being done by the best toothpaste modern science has to offer? A team of researchers at Washington University here thinks the answer may be hidden in African chewing sticks, widely used in Africa for cleaning teeth. The team, headed by Dr. Memory Elvin-Lewis, associate professor and chairman of the department of dental microbiology, has done preliminary research that indicates the antiseptic substances, known as an-

Japan To Honor Its Johnny Apples

QUINCY, Ill. (UPI)—Even without being officially asked yet, Margaret Wilson Wetlin of Quincy has snatched up an invitation to go to the northern tip of Honshu to honor the "Johnny Apples of Japan."

invite all the relatives of the Rev. John Ing to visit Sept. 3. That will be roughly 100 years since Ing, a Methodist missionary, is credited with introducing American apples to Japan. It is said that one Christmas Ing gave apples from the State of Washington to his students at his missionary school and one of them took his apple home to his father, who buried it in his garden. The apple germinated when spring came, the story goes, and eventually this brought wealth to the family. One biographer, Lowell Dearinger of Mount Vernon, Ill., says Ing is remembered in Amori, much as is Abraham Lincoln in Illinois.

Arts, said of the prospect of a trip to Japan. "It's rather exciting, and she is ready to go. But if the province picks up the tab for all the traveling, it may have a crowd on its hands." Descendants have been traced to Southern Illinois, Missouri and Colorado, and a daughter, Lavinia, was known to be living in Evanston, Ill., two years ago. Mrs. Wetlin said she still has about a dozen letters Ing wrote to her mother and Ing's niece, Gertrude Grady Wilson. "I guess I have almost thrown them away a thousand times while housecleaning but now I'm glad I didn't," she said. She recalled that one of the letters described her great-uncle's pleasure when the emperor of Japan visited his school. Another told about growing apples and peaches and said kindly that he had learned that bees have something to do with growing them. Ing, the son of a Methodist minister, is buried in a cemetery at the Masonic and Odd Fellows cemetery at Benton, Ill.

Astrologer May Be Key to Future

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI

Foreign News Analyst

When Argentians speculate about what the stars may have in store for them and for Argentine President Isabel Peron, they may be asking literally about Argentina's most influential astrologer.

It is Jose Lopez Rega, a pale-faced man of 57, a practicing astrologer and author of a book on the subject called "Alpha and Omega: A Message for Humanity." Among moderate Peronists he is thoroughly disliked, sometimes described as a fanatic and as a "grey eminence."

Left-wing Peronists have threatened him with death. But none can deny that among the few people really close to Peron and to Peron's widow, the first woman president in Latin American history, Lopez Rega was and remains the closest.

Mrs. Peron confirmed it when she retained him in the powerful post of presidential private secretary, the same post he held under Peron.

Lopez Rega claims to have been a "servant" of Peron's cause for 17 years but his position of influence is more recent.

He met Isabel in 1965 during one of her trips to Argentina as Peron's emissary. He asked her help in arranging a meeting with Peron if he went to Lopez's exile headquarters in Madrid at his own expense.

She did so with the result that Lopez Rega became superintendent of the Peron household, finally superintending everything from Peron's working schedule to the silver service to be used at dinner.

He accompanied Mrs. Peron on vacation when work kept her husband in Buenos Aires and on official and private trips abroad. He was with her when she visited Europe in June and on a trip to China in 1972.

When the president appeared in public, Lopez Rega usually stood only a few feet behind, watching him with unbroken gaze.

He is expected to perform the same duties for Mrs. Peron.

Like other Peronists, Lopez Rega has pledged himself to Peronism and in a national television broadcast appointed himself the chief interpreter of the "thoughts of General Peron."

In the early days of taking over her presidential duties, Mrs. Peron has been described as showing a surprising amount of independence from the various factions surrounding her, military and leading Peronists.

There is a feeling that she may be building support of her own.

Nevertheless, it is obvious that Mrs. Peron, a 43-year-old one-time professional dancer, politically inexperienced and with no political base of her own, will be the central figure in a political tug-of-war.

Peron never permitted talented men to rise to challenge him and his death leaves the country without a political structure.

The Peronist party is torn between left and right and some 200 deaths have been attributed to the party in the last year to gun battles between the two.

Kidnapings of foreign businessmen for huge sums of ransom have frightened off foreign investment and the country faces huge economic problems.

In the midst of all these Lopez Rega, who is accused of organizing the youthful militant right wing as his own private army.

Leaders Aware No One Wins Nuclear War

WASHINGTON (UPI) —

National leaders aware of the incredible destructive power at the disposal of the big nations have always said, in one way or another, that nobody is going to win a nuclear war.

The late Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev once said, in trying to get this idea across, that after a third world war, "the living would envy the dead."

Former Secretary of State Dean Rusk had another way of saying the same thing. He declared on a number of occasions that when statesmen attempt to negotiate limitation and reduction of nuclear arms, what was really at stake was "the incineration of the Northern Hemisphere." Sufficient weapons to accomplish this were already in place.

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger last week expanded on the theme when questioned about the failure of Russia and the U.S. to make any progress on offensive nuclear arms limitations.

Kissinger emphasized that time was running out. He predicted that unless there was agreement within two or three years "you will see an explosion of technology and an explosion of numbers" that will make it "impossible to describe what strategic superiority means."

Kissinger then asked: "What in the name of God is strategic superiority? What is the significance of it politically, militarily, operationally at these levels? What do you do with it?"

Implicit in his remarks was the belief that "strategic superiority" had no real significance at military or operational levels since the aggressor would perish with the victim.

On another occasion, Kissinger made it clear that the principal significance of "strategic superiority" was political. He said that "both sides have to convince their military establishments of the benefits of restraint."

Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger sternly protested this and he was at least partly correct.

The problem facing the nuclear superpowers, particularly the United States — is that of convincing the public that the potential adversary is not gaining an advantage in nuclear weapons. No politician or general has forgotten the political hay the late John F. Kennedy made in 1960 by charging the Republicans with permitting a "missile gap" — which he later acknowledged did not exist.

Allies too, like to feel that their protector is ahead in the nuclear race. The difficulty is that persuading the public at home and abroad of the superiority of nuclear defenses and offenses has to be calibrated in some way they can understand. This gives rise to the "numbers game" with regard to missiles and warheads.

The Soviet Union and the United States cannot let the genie back into the bottle but they hope to put a lid on the nuclear arms spiral in an agreement prior to 1977.

Panuzio Leading Field As Campaign Fund Raiser

United Press International

Bridgeport Mayor Nicholas A. Panuzio, a leading contender for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, leads the field in campaign fund-raising.

Reports filed with the secretary of the state show that Panuzio had received about $161,000 through June 30, with more than $50,000 coming from out-of-state contributors.

One of the largest contributors to Panuzio's cause was millionaire Dan W. Larkin of Newtown, who gave $5,000, the maximum legal amount.

Larkin, former state environmental protection commissioner, was also a heavy financial backer of Gov. Thomas J. Meskill.

Rep. Robert H. Steele, R-Conn., has reported total contributions of about $50,000 while Rep. Ella T. Grasso, D-Conn., reported that she has received about $45,000.

Mrs. Grasso is virtually assured of running on the Democratic ticket for governor in November, while Steele is favored as the Republican nominee.

Although new election campaign laws prohibit individual contributions higher than $5,000, Steele has set his own limit of $100 for any contributor. His total of out-of-state contributions came to $1,500 from 22 contributors.

Mrs. Grasso's report showed that she had received some $1, 900 from out-of-state supporters through June 30.

Panuzio's report showed about 75 contributors of more than $500. Mrs. Grasso's disclosure listed about 25 $500-plus donors.

Nearly 40 persons contributed $1,000 or more to Panuzio's cause, a number of them strong financial backers of Meskill when he ran for governor.

Mrs. Grasso listed six $1,000-plus donors.

In other news of Connecticut politics, 35 state legislators have announced they will not seek re-election this November, with Republicans leading the rush for the doors in the year of the elections.

Watergate, Republicans heavily outnumber Democrats in the state legislature, however.

Some of the representatives are seeking the higher offices and may be persuaded to return to their seats if their bids are turned down.

In the Senate, seven congressional nominees have announced they are leaving — one Democrat, J. Edward Caldwell, and six Republicans.

Some of the representatives have announced their departure, 20 Republicans and eight Democrats.

Henry E. Parker, a former New Haven mayoral candidate, has been endorsed by the executive committee of the Connecticut Federation of Negro Democratic Clubs for a spot on the November ticket.

Parker received the votes of 21 of 23 of the committee's members, with Hartford lawyer Sanford Cloud receiving the other votes.

The federation's membership is expected to uphold the executive committee's recommendation when it meets Wednesday at the Hartford Elks Club.

Parker, who has lost two bids to become mayor of New Haven, has not announced which spot on the ticket he would prefer, but he is reportedly interested in the nomination for state treasurer.

The federation and state Democratic leaders have had an unwritten agreement for the past years which allows the federation to recommend a black candidate for the Democratic state ticket.

Ruben Figueroa appears to have the Republican nomination in the 1st District locked up since no other Republican has expressed interest in running against two term incumbent, Rep. William R. Cotter, D-Conn. The former State Comptroller Nathan Agostinelli, the only other Republican at first believed ready to battle Cotter.

Legion Backs Vets Hospital

HARTFORD (UPI) — The American Legion in Connecticut has approved a resolution urging the federal government to build a hospital in the state where veterans can get psychiatric treatment.

The Legion, during its annual convention Saturday, also voted to oppose blanket amnesty for men who refused to serve in the armed forces during the Vietnam war.

Rep. Ella T. Grasso, D-Conn., who spoke at the convention, told the legionnaires that veterans hospitals in Connecticut have one bed for every 814 vets, which is fewer beds than the national average of one for 449 vets.

Vets with emotional problems are now treated at Northampton, Mass., and the West Haven branch of the Veterans Administration hospital in Newington.

The Legion also urged congressional action to upgrade educational benefits for Vietnam era vets and property tax exemptions for totally disabled veterans.

The 852 delegates to the convention also urged the improvement of civil defense programs and the reopening of 700 acres of forest in Barkhamsted to the public.

Weekend Accidents Kill Five

United Press International

Accidents claimed five lives in Connecticut over the weekend, including two drownings and the state's 18th motorcycle fatality this year.

Another was killed when his car struck a bridge railing and a pedestrian was killed on the Connecticut Turnpike.

Clint A. Jeanotte of Griswold drowned late Saturday in Hopkinton Pond in Griswold.

Robert A. Holovich, 18, of New Hyde Park, N.Y., drowned Saturday while trying to rescue a swimming companion in the Housatonic River.

Russell G. Cole, 43, of Fairfield was killed late Friday when his motorcycle crashed into a highway sign near Exit 74 of the Connecticut Turnpike in East Lyme.

Leo G. Giroud, 48, of Boston was killed early Sunday when he was hit by a car on the Connecticut Turnpike in Greenwich.

Gregory Pease, 20, of Litchfield, died in a one-car crash early Sunday when his car struck a bridge falling on Rte. 72 in Harwinton.

Stamford Shows Crime Decrease

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Stamford was the only one of 10 Connecticut cities to show a decrease in crime during the first three months of 1974, according to official FBI crime statistics.

WIN AT BRIDGE

Diets 'forced' to grand slam

Jim: "I have just been reading 'Dancing in the Dark' the autobiography of Howard Dietz. Isn't he an old friend of yours?"

Oswald: "He certainly is, I knew him first in college. Your mother and I used to play tennis with him when you were a baby. I have always played bridge with him. He was a very good bridge player. Here is a hand from a match I played with him right after I got back from World War II. I sat North and was most unhappy during the bidding."

Jim: "Looking at your hand I can see why. And each time Mr. Dietz bid again things must have looked worse to you."

Oswald: "Howard's bidding was really wonderful. He knew he would make seven."

Ribicoff Won't Oppose Meskill Judge Nomination

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., says he won't oppose the nomination of Gov. Thomas J. Meskill of Connecticut to the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals despite American Bar Association criticism. The Democratic senator, commenting in a local WCBS television interview Sunday, said he considers Meskill an able man and has high respect for the man who nominated him, Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr.

Genovesi Removes Self From District 12 Race

State Rep. Donald S. Genovesi, Republican, who represents Manchester's 12th Assembly District, has announced he won't run for re-election. He said his decision has been difficult, "signifying in the General Assembly for seven years."

"I feel the time has come that I can no longer devote the amount of time necessary to adequately fulfill the responsibility of this office," he said in his statement. Genovesi, 42, has been Manchester Republican's most consistent vote-getter since 1967. In that year, he was elected to fill a vacancy caused by the death of his brother, Vincent. He was re-elected in 1969, 1970 and in 1972. He has been assistant majority leader of the House the past two years. He heads the Donald S. Genovesi Insurance Agency.

Genovesi said in his statement, "To win re-election in the fall, and then not be able to devote the time necessary to carry out the duties of the office, would not be fair to the voters."

Turkey Getting Ready To Intervene in Cyprus

By United Press International
Turkey called on Britain today to join it in intervening in Cyprus and said it would go it alone if Britain refused to help. President Archbishop Makarios, ousted by a Greek-led coup March, was reported rallying his loyal troops today against the insurgents and heavy fighting was reported.

The United States and other Western allies already had increased their diplomatic intervention to urge Greece and Turkey, both members of NATO, to exercise restraint. But developments indicated Turkey and Greece once again might be approaching a war over Cyprus as they were in 1964 and 1967.

In the background was a watchful Soviet Union. The Communist nations of Europe took the line that the coup was sponsored by NATO to turn the Mediterranean island into a NATO base — a development which would be unpalatable to the Russians. Russia protested the coup to the Greek government. The U.S. 8th Fleet was in the area but not on any special alert. A Turkish note to Britain set off an all-night cabinet session that ended at 2:30 a.m. Asked Britain to use its troops stationed in Cyprus for joint Turkish-British intervention to counteract the threat to Cyprus' independence, a government spokesman said in Istanbul. The note said Turkey would take unilateral action if Britain did not act within 24 hours. UPI Correspondent John Lawton reported from Istanbul.

By United Press International
dominance by a number of countries including Turkey and Greece. Announcing the note had been sent, a Foreign Ministry spokesman said this afternoon said no reply had been received from Britain.

Government sources said Premier Babis Ezerov was seeking opposition party backing for government intervention in Cyprus if the leaders of Moscow's coup against President Makarios moved against the island's Greek community or tried to unite the republic with Greece. Turkish Cypriot Bayrak Radio monitored in Adana said rebel infantry and artillery had moved against Makarios' headquarters at Paphos, where the president fled following the revolt.

The radio said 20 pro-Makarios troops were trying to turn Cyprus into a dictatorship. It said the rebels had failed to capture Limassol and Famagusta on the coast.

There were reports of renewed fighting today in the capital of Nicosia. There had been no confirmation of fighting since UPI correspondent Andreas Hadjipapas reported Monday before communications were cut that there was shelling and heavy firing in Nicosia. Makarios, who had been reported dead by Nicosia Radio following the coup, clandestinely broadcast that 250 Greek officers and men stationed in Cyprus had staged the coup and said Greece was trying to turn Cyprus into a dictatorship. "I appeal to the world's countries not to allow these reactionaries to turn Cyprus into a dictatorship," Makarios said. The president-archbishop called on Cypriots to "resist and fight." "They are very few. We shall win," Makarios said. "God is with us and the world is looking at us." Nicosia Radio said a curfew would be lifted in the capital for an hour and a halt to allow shopping. It also announced a list of six ministers in the new government of Nicos Sampan, named by the rebels as Makarios' successor. It said that Dimitrios Dimis had been appointed former minister and Anastasios Dimtrios defense and interior minister. He said the government held its first session today but gave no details.

State Aid Funds For Town Roads Said Inadequate

Manchester's 1974-1975 share of state transportation department funds isn't enough to keep town roads in good shape and use of the money for public transportation is unlikely, Public Works Director Jay Giles said Monday.

Of a state total of $16.4 million, Manchester has been allotted $12,731 for roads and public transportation services this fiscal year. The 1974-1975 allotment is about the same as funds granted Manchester last year, Giles said. "The money continues to be distributed by the state on a formula based on town road mileage and population, and Manchester's share of the available funds has increased little in recent years."

On the other hand, costs of town road improvements have skyrocketed in the last few years, Giles said, and Manchester is falling behind in its road-paving program. "Because the paving program is lagging, Manchester probably won't be able to spend any of the 1974-1975 state road money on public transportation, Giles said. Use of road improvement funds for public transportation facilities was okayed by the 1973 General Assembly.

"We can't afford to spend any of the money on transit," Giles said, noting that town budgeting should include a commitment to contribute toward road maintenance now funded by the state. Manchester's 1974-1975 allotment of $12,731 is based on a town population of 48,600 and town road mileage totaling about 167 miles.

Distribution of state funds in other Manchester area towns, announced last week, include $41,960 for Andover, $44,146 for Bolton, $75,028 for Coventry, $69,849 for Hebron, $81,158 for South Windsor, $78,207 for Tolland, and $121,488 for Vernon.

Zoning Session Brief

By DOUG BEVINS
Public hearings on six zoning variance requests took the Manchester Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA) 24 minutes to complete Monday night, and unanimous votes of approval for the requests took only three minutes.
One of the longest events in the short ZBA session was a six-minute cigarette break, when board members had to leave the Municipal Building Hearing Room because of a recently enacted law prohibiting smoking at public meetings.
The six public hearings and subsequent ZBA votes were marked by little discussion. Aside from variance applicants or their representatives, no one spoke at the public hearings.
ZBA action on the requests amounted to quick motions and immediate votes.
The variances approved Monday night were:
• Joseph Fortin, side yard variance for lot 34 at 54 Eldridge St.
• United Pentecostal Church, rear yard variance for Sunday School addition to church building at 185 Woodbridge St.
• Michael and Catherine S. Tlack, variances of area, frontage, and front yard requirements for legal purposes, clearing way for sale of their property at 168-170 W. Center St.
• Scott B. Clendaniel, side yard variance for addition to dwelling at 37 Kensington St.
• Raymond Damato, variance allowing erection of detached garage on a corner lot at 24 Homestead St.
• Robert McNamara, side yard variance for porch at 43 S. Lakewood Circle.
In brief discussion after the voting on variance requests, ZBA members agreed to extend the filing deadline to mid-August for the board's September state of public hearings. The ZBA doesn't meet in August.

Nixon Fires OEO Director

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon has fired the head of the Office of Economic Opportunity for trying to save some of the programs the President wants abolished. OEO director Alvin J. Arnett said Monday afternoon that he was fired by a presidential order that took effect at 10 a.m. Tuesday. His line was that the President does not want

OEO and that I have been accused of lobbying to continue the agency." "The resignation will become effective July 31, and Arnett will be replaced by OEO general counsel Ben Galleago, acting deputy director of the agency under Arnett's predecessor, Howard Phillips, who was forced out of office by a federal judge for trying to kill the agency without congressional approval. Arnett said he had fought against Nixon's plan to abolish the agency "because I've been concerned about the programs for the poor."

He said his lobbying was not for the purpose of keeping the 19-year-old OEO alive as an operating agency but for keeping its programs intact, mainly the Big Community Action project that provides federal grants to set up anti-poverty agencies at local and state levels. John Carlson, a White House press spokesman, said that Arnett has been opposed to phasing out the OEO and "has been running around the country advocating that it be continued."

Other White House sources said that Arnett is being fired because of his opposition to administration policy. But a congressional source close to OEO legislation over the years said the firing was "impeachment politics" on Nixon's part. "What else could it be?" asked the source who refused to be identified. "Everyone knows OEO is dead but there are a certain number of senators who want Arnett's scalp, and Nixon needs 24 votes to vote (against conviction if he is impeached) and so he's giving them what they want."

Asked if he thought impeachment was behind his ouster, Arnett said "I've heard that too, for weeks."

Baltimore Police Hear Contract Terms

"Save at CBT? Don't savings banks pay higher interest?"

Yes, if you like to collect quarters. You see, savings banks pay one-quarter of a percent higher interest on regular savings. But that only comes out to 25¢ a year for every hundred dollars you save. If you're putting money away for retirement, vacation or to buy that something you've always wanted, you should be getting more than just extra pocket change from your bank.
That's why CBT gives you free personal checking with a savings account. Along with high interest, automatic savings plans and a lot of other services no savings bank can give you.
And remember, CBT has over 80 offices throughout the state. So no matter where you work, live or travel, there's a branch nearby.
