Hundreds Killed and Injured

Hundreds of persons were killed and injured Friday in Zagreb, Yugoslavia, when an express train packed with migrant workers thundered off the tracks and slammed into a railroad station at 60 miles an hour. At least 120 bodies were recovered and casualty figures continued to climb today as

Express Train Hits Station Killing, Injuring Hundreds

ZAGREB, Yugoslavia (UPI) — An express train packed with migrant workers thundered off the tracks in Yugoslavia's second largest city Friday and slammed into the main railroad station at 60 miles an hour, killing and injuring hundreds of passengers.

The train's two engineers were given blood tests to determine if they were drunk and then arrested hours later after the eight-car train careened off the tracks, barreled 400 yards into the station and overturned.

Police said 120 bodies were recovered. They called it Yugoslavia's worst railroad disaster and predicted the final death toll would rise. Police said an additional 150 people were injured.

Many persons were electrocuted when the roaring train snapped concrete pillars along the track and brought down electric power cables.

The casualty figures climbed steadily today as cranes lifted away the crumpled coaches, exposing more bodies crushed beneath them. Cries of the dying and injured came from the wreckage.

Most of the passengers on the special train were Yugoslav migrant workers returning to Dortmund, West Germany, with their families after summer vacations.

The train demolished concrete pillars lining the tracks and the diesel engine barreled on through the station for another 400 yards before coming to a halt.

"We were going too fast," said a dazed passenger, Dragan Kostic of Belgrade, who escaped unhurt from the last car. "We were about 10 minutes late and I suppose trying to make up time."

Predict Low Traffic Toll

By United Press International
Travelers took to the highways Friday for summer's last holiday, and the National Safety Council projected the Labor Day traffic death toll could be the lowest in 11 years.

The council estimated between 450 and 550 persons would die in traffic between 6 p.m. local time Friday and midnight Monday. Last year, 569 persons died on the country's highways during the three-day Labor Day weekend.

The council said the reduced projection resulted from the 55 mile per hour speed limit.

Highway patrols in most states beefed up patrols for the holiday weekend. Resort owners and service stations joined police departments in bracing for the exodus from the country's big cities.

Wisconsin Gov. Patrick J. Lucey declared a state of emergency from 4 p.m. Friday to Monday night. The Wisconsin State Patrol and National Guard were in an effort to keep accidents down. Utah State Police, expecting a "migration out of the urban areas and into the lakes and canyons," threw aircraft patrols and radar-equipped cars into the battle against speeders.

Montana state patrolmen planned to use both aerial surveillance and roadblocks to help cut the traffic death rate.

In Ohio, an American Automobile Association spokesman said fewer travelers were expected during this weekend than during recent previous Labor Day weekends.

However, traffic back-ups were expected in the Columbus area Sunday when many Ohioans will attend either the Ohio State Fair or a pro football exhibition game.

Auto clubs and service stations across the country reported holiday travelers should have no trouble finding gasoline. Some stations put on extra help to serve motorists.

In many communities, free coffee or other refreshments were offered at tollroad plazas, expressway rest stops and truck stops.

President Reviewing Amnesty Proposals

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford met with his top legal and military advisers today to consider amnesty recommendations — probably including a Pentagon proposal for homecoming Vietnam draft evaders to perform 18 months non-military service to the nation.

Ford met with Defense Secretary James Schlesinger and Attorney General William French Smith to discuss the proposals he had asked them to prepare on opening ways for draft evaders and deserters to come out of hiding or home from self-imposed exile.

The recommendations will not be made public until Ford has decided what for a limited amnesty will take, White House news secretary J.F. TerHorst said. "He expects to act in a relatively brief period," but not before Tuesday and possibly not for several days after that.

Besides Schlesinger and Saxbe, the meeting was attended by White House counsel Philip Buchen, counselors Robert Hartmann and John O. Marsh, TerHorst and Laurence Silberman, deputy attorney general and Martin Hoffman, general counsel for the Pentagon.

UPI obtained a copy of a "memorandum for the President" prepared in the Pentagon which would cover 15,500 draft evaders who have been convicted, indicted or fled the country, and some 12,500 Vietnam-era deserters who are "at large."

The memo was marked "draft" and "working papers," and it was not known whether it would be the Pentagon's final recommendation or whether Schlesinger and Saxbe would submit a joint recommendation.

Its contents undoubtedly will be made known to Ford as one of a number of proposals.

The Pentagon memo concluded that "a substantial majority of Americans" favored some form of amnesty and that of these "a majority favor conditional rather than blanket amnesty."

For any program to "heal the wounds" of the Vietnam era, it said, "as large a majority of Americans as possible must view it as fair and just."

It proposed that both draft evaders and deserters make some form of "reaffirmation of allegiance to the United States" and promise 18 months work in places such as "hospitals, schools, ecology and other community or charitable organizations."

Their work would be monitored by the Selective Service System. The time could be reduced for mitigating circumstances. Evaders would remain subject to indictment until the work period was completed.

Deserters would get undesirable discharges immediately and a written notation later of completion of alternate service. Neither group would be eligible for veterans benefits.

Ford planned a round of golf later in the day, then a weekend with his family at the presidential mountain retreat at Camp David, Md., his first stay there as President.

He will return to Washington Monday to sign a pension reform bill in a White House ceremony, then return to Camp David for what is left of the weekend.

The Pentagon proposal was far short of the "universal and unconditional amnesty" urged in a petition presented to the White House Friday by a group led by the Rev. Eugene Carson Blake, former president of the World Council of Churches.

Ford, in Chicago speech Aug. 19, rejected extremes of either blanket amnesty or revenge and indicated he was leaning toward a conditional amnesty. Saxbe has publicly called for "an act of contrition" by returning Vietnam war resisters.

The Pentagon said it was looking at several military installations as possible administrative centers to process returning deserters.

Indiana Gov. Otis Bowen said state officials were contacted about possibly using the Army's Camp Atterbury and Ft. Benjamin Harrison, both near Indianapolis.

Friday, after telling the Ohio State University summer graduating class in Columbus that inflation is "creating a national state of anxiety," Ford returned to a busy schedule of meetings with aides at the White House.

He passed the word he does not favor a 10 cent a gallon federal gasoline tax increase, which he thinks would be "exorbitant, unwise and unnecessary."

TerHorst said Ford planned to campaign this fall with four out-of-town appearances tentatively set for October: a salute to retiring Republican Sen. George Aiken at Barre, Vt., Oct. 7, and fundraisers in Philadelphia, Oct. 9, Indianapolis, Oct. 16 and Louisville, Ky., Oct. 19.

U.N. Appeals for Aid For Cypriot Refugees

By United Press International
The U.N. Security Council has appealed to Greece and Turkey to aid tens of thousands of refugees left homeless on Cyprus by a month of bitter and devastating warfare.

The 15-member council unanimously approved Friday a resolution designating Secretary General Kurt Waldheim coordinator of Cyprus relief efforts and directing him to deliver a full report on the island's 140,000 refugees.

The resolution touched only briefly on the question of peace negotiations, but the Soviet Union urged the council to adopt a Kremlin proposal for 18-country talks on the future of the island.

In Athens, Greece told the United States and its other allies in NATO Friday it immediately would reclaim sovereignty over all of its territory, including seven American military bases.

The effect of the action, triggered by Greece's disappointment over NATO's failure to stop the Turkish invasion of Cyprus, was not immediately clear. The Greek government stopped short of formally closing the U.S. bases.

Premier Constantine Caramanlis told Washington his government wanted to set up talks on the future American military role in Greece. The United States operates bases in several other countries under foreign sovereignty agreements.

In order to permit employees of The Manchester Evening Herald to observe the Labor Day holiday with their families, there will be no Herald Monday. Publication will resume with Tuesday's edition.

Meskill to Meet Saxbe On State Lottery Legality

HARTFORD (UPI) — Gov. Thomas J. Meskill will meet U.S. Attorney General William B. Saxbe next Friday to discuss Saxbe's statements that state lotteries in the U.S. may be in violation of criminal provisions of the federal code.

Saxbe dropped the bombshell this week after a U.S. Attorney in Maine found several federal laws which appeared to make certain aspects of state lotteries illegal.

Saxbe sent telegrams Friday to the governors of states that have lotteries asking them to attend the session, during which he said he will explain the Justice Department's position on lotteries.

The alleged violations include the moving of lottery tickets across state lines, the handling of lottery funds by federally-chartered banks and the broadcasting or mailing of lottery information.

Meskill said Friday his trip to Washington should not reflect concern that the Connecticut lottery has been operating illegally.

State lottery tickets have been printed in Manchester, N.H., and Deep River, Conn., and now are being printed in Philadelphia. Banks are used as both distribution and pay-off centers and information on winnings is sent through the mails and broadcast.

John T. McDonald, the state gaming commission head who will accompany Meskill to Washington, said the tickets printed in Philadelphia do not become lottery tickets until numbers are stamped on them at the state data center in Hartford.

A spokesman for Meskill said the governor wanted to emphasize the trip is "in no way a reflection on the openness and fairness of the Connecticut lottery."

McDonald said Friday the state will delay a program where regular ticket buyers could request the same lottery number be reserved for them each week. The tickets would have been sent out through the mail.

Connecticut has realized more than $40 million in revenues since the lottery began in early 1972.

More than one million 50 cent tickets are sold every week, although that amount has fallen off the past few months.

Switching Riders for Bike-A-Thon Requires Coordination

Friday Damian Purcell (with cap) of 238 Blue Ridge Dr. and John "Jack" Lyon of 282 Blue Ridge Dr., both 11 years old, decided to stage a bike-a-thon to raise money for the Jerry Lewis Muscular Dystrophy Telethon which will be conducted Labor Day. Although they had a target of 16 hours of continuous bike pedalling, Purcell had a mishap about 6:00 p.m. after 12 hours of the bike-a-thon. As he explained it, he was watching something else and crashed into Glenn Glade's go-cart ending the marathon effort. But they did raise $20.84 in pledges for MS from neighbors who turned out to watch the effort. Purcell did get quite a soaking during a rainstorm and reports today that his feet and rump are rather sore. He estimates he spent about eight hours on the bike and Lyon about four.

In the series of pictures, Purcell and Lyon demonstrate how they were able to change riders while keeping the bike, a ladies model, in motion. (Herald photos by Pinto)

Goodspeed Trip
Wednesday I took 30 seniors to the Goodspeed Opera House to see "Shenandoah." We had a lovely time. We lunched at the Gettison House first, then browsed around the shops, and then saw a delightful musical. We hummed, laughed, and at the end had a few tears in our eyes; all this made for a delightful experience.

SCHOOL OPENS!

So Please... Drive Carefully!

With schools opening next week, there'll be a lot of children on the streets in the early mornings and late afternoons, and they won't always be careful to watch for cars. It's your responsibility to be alert.

As Fall turns into Winter, the morning hours are darker and it is sometimes difficult to see little children crossing streets, whether walking or riding their bicycles. So drive with caution, especially around schools.

Children are our investment for the future. Let's make sure they have the future we have been promising them. We urge you to please drive carefully!

Manchester Evening Herald OPINION

Self-Sufficiency Far Off

At the height of the energy shortage caused in part by the Arab countries boycott, the hope was energy self-sufficiency by 1980.

Due to many factors this goal now seems very unrealistic and self-sufficiency cannot be hoped for until much later in the decade, if then.

Oil companies, which are spending a great chunk of their record profits in exploration, are not finding enough oil to offset the production decline which has been going on since the 1970 peak.

Daily production in that year was 9.6 million barrels per day. A few weeks ago all United States production was only 8.9 million barrels per day.

Oil from Alaska will not begin to flow in the pipeline until 1977. And knowledgeable oil men say that this will perhaps level off production figures for a while but will not stop the decline over the long term.

Part of the lag in oil production may be due to a two-level pricing structure in which new fields can bear a price of $10 per barrel, the world price, but older fields can charge only $5.25 per barrel, except that the world price may be charged for oil produced beyond the wells' level of previous production.

Since secondary production from older fields is of lesser volume than in a new field, it is understandable that oil companies are putting the bulk of their development money into the new fields, at the neglect of older ones.

This is another example of how artificial price controls in the marketplace can contribute to shortage and prevent full production.

It was not expected, of course, that new exploration would tilt the scales of oil production in a miraculous manner. In addition to the great amounts of money it takes to discover new oil and to divert it into a steady stream of pipeline oil it also can take a long time.

In the meantime the rest of the energy picture is being frustrated and delayed by environmental and ecological considerations.

Western strip mining would probably be the most productive method of mining the coal the nation needs. But this is being delayed and hamstrung by environmental considerations and site reclamation.

The miners union took a memorial week of idleness ostensibly to protect safety practices and to dramatize the plight of miners with black lung.

Coal operators believe, however, that there was a secondary motive of reducing coal supplies above ground prior to operator-union negotiations to be held this fall.

And in spite of a report showing danger of nuclear generating plants releasing harmful radioactivity is about as remote as being hit with lightning, we are delaying the construction of new plants.

It is conceded that safety precautions at nuclear plants should be elaborate and detailed. However, even when this criterion is met the ecological fight will still go on.

We will achieve energy sufficiency only by reasonable compromise between the need for energy and preservation of the environment. Otherwise self-sufficiency may be a long way ahead.

To the editor: Somewhere, somehow, something went wrong. We were called the finest example of freedom and free enterprise. Yet, before our very eyes, precious freedom and unalienable rights dissolve and are distorted. As an illustration and a warning to all others, I refer your attention to the town of Coventry.

Taft's Bill Practical

WASHINGTON—Sooner or later, I hope President Ford's plan for "earned re-entry" of draft dodgers will wind up reading pretty much like the approach proposed in a bill offered last December by Sen. Robert Taft Jr., R-Ohio. Taft's bill is compassionate, fair and practical. It crosses all the i's and dots all the t's. Perhaps more important, it protects the right of the President, with the consent of Congress, to decide whether fighting another war (God forbid) is the last resort of the United States as a representative government.

Wings of Evening

Some years ago when the Pope died Center Church had on its wide pulpit words of sympathy to our Roman Catholic brethren. It was a message of good-will and the assurance of our prayers. Apparently it caught the eye of some reporter who had a picture of it in The Manchester Herald. Such a picture would not be so unusual today when there is increasing cooperation, both here and around the world, between Rome and her "separated brethren."

A recent news item states that five major church bodies in England have joined together for a discussion of practical reunion. They are Baptist, Church of England, Methodist, Roman Catholic, and United Reformed. This newly formed commission will work together for about three years, according to the present plan. As you know, the Manchester Area Conference of Churches now includes the majority of Protestant denominations and the Roman Catholics in our community. Pray God that this kind of cooperation will continue to grow.

Our illustration of the week occurred centuries ago in Paris. It concerns man's appraisal of himself. The story goes that a Latin teacher took to drink and slid down the slippery path of alcoholism until one day he lay in the gutters of Paris, dead-drunk. He was picked up by scavengers who sold his body to two young interns for medical research. As he was being prepared for the operation the doctors spoke to each other in Latin so that he would not understand. One remarked exultantly, "At last we have the opportunity to experiment in this vile vetch."

Our poem of the week culminates in a great hope for the future. We who believe in God may be immediate pessimists but are ultimate optimists.
A New Earth
God grant us wisdom in these coming days,
And eyes unsealed, that we clear vision see
Of that new world that He would have us build,
To Life's ennoblement and His high mission,
God give us sense—God-sense of Life's new needs,
And souls aflame with new-born convictions.
To cope with those black growths that foul the way—
To cleanse our poisoned founts with God's energies.

Here are some thoughts on that subject from a sermon by the Rev. Richard Hagan of the Bryn Mawr Presbyterian Church in Pennsylvania:
"Nobody grows old by merely living a number of years; people only grow old by deserting their ideals. No youth only a matter of ripe cheeks and supple knees. Youth is a temper of the will; a quality of the imagination, a vigor of the emotions, and a freshness of the deep springs of life. ... Ralph Waldo Emerson gives us the maxim for this week: "Beware of what you want — for you will get it."

Thoughts About Christmas

By DAVID E. ANDERSON
UPI-Religion Writer
The dog days of August are hardly the time to begin thinking seriously about Christmas. Unless, of course, you are Bob Kozlitzky, Jean Foggo, Beth Fannon, Amy Henkel or Tom McCarthy — the staff of Alternatives.
You wouldn't know it by looking at them, but the Alternatives staff is part of the worlds and realities, the serious side of the counter-culture. They're into a lot of the area of action and education for developing lifestyles, institutions and methods of social change that free people to be themselves.
One of the things they are most seriously into is Christmas and the "giving" aspects of the traditional emphasis on commercial consumption.
Instead, as its name implies, Alternatives would like to promote different ways of giving.
"We feel a national movement for life-supporting celebrations is the next step in our commitment to harness the power of celebrations for social and environmental conservation and world peace," they say in a forward to the second edition of the Alternate Christmas Catalogue.
"As we believe that celebration is a necessary part of life, we also believe that giving (self, money and things) is necessary and good," they say in a forward to the second edition of the Alternate Christmas Catalogue.
Years may write the skin, but to give up enthusiasm wrinkles the soul. ... Ralph Waldo Emerson gives us the maxim for this week: "Beware of what you want — for you will get it."

Remember the elder brother who stayed at home, helping with the business, the prodigal returned home after wasting his substance in riotous living with harlots in the far country, who was the one who began to be merry?
It doesn't seem fair. Or does it? If you disagree with Jesus, could it be that the Christmas approach is that all too often, in the view of the Alternatives staff, it is just the worlds and realities, the serious side of the counter-culture. They're into a lot of the area of action and education for developing lifestyles, institutions and methods of social change that free people to be themselves.

First Patrolman Walked Beat Before Department Was Formed

By MAL BARLOW

The first police patrolman in Manchester, paid but not in uniform, apparently walked his beat in 1896, two years before the 1898 date most often given for the founding of the Manchester Police Department.

A study by The Herald makes it clear there was such a man. He was first an unpaid constable, one of seven elected at the annual meeting each fall. They served when called or when they happened to see trouble.

Then in 1896 in response to demands for peace and order in Manchester the man also took the paid, regular hours and regular beat job of patrolman. There still is a question of whether this man and a second constable also paid to patrol regularly made up a department. Since it is not the job of The Herald to decide on this question in semantics, the paper merely offers its evidence.

The Herald published a special section July 30 called "The Thin Blue Line" which stated in a history of the department that it began June 28, 1898. Three policemen of the City of Hartford were sworn in that day and began patrolling Manchester's streets.

Soon after delivery of "The Thin Blue Line," Mrs. Emma Swetzer of Wadsworth Heights brought in evidence that her grandfather, John Johnson, actually began the local force two years earlier in 1896.

Her evidence was mainly an article written in The Herald Dec. 17, 1927 and titled "Town's Pioneer Patrolman Was Once 'The Whole Force.'" It covered half the page and told of John Johnson's patrol work here. It was fuzzy about dates but positive of Johnson's status.

It read: "Manchester's first cop is still living.

"He is John Johnson of 15 Stock, place between known as Stockhouse Road, and he is not yet what one would call an old man. Less than 45 years of age, he was the first policeman Manchester ever had on regular duty, and from the way his physique has weathered that 50 or more years, it might be said that he must have been a rather close approach to the ideal policeman."

Johnson told the writer of that 1927 article how he got his job.

"This time I talk about was Governor's Day and the chief executive of the state was there with his staff," he tells us. "There were generals, colonels, and all the rest of the visiting officers who had come to see the Connecticut boys parade."

"We were all dressed up on parade that day, with white helmets and white pants, which we had to buy ourselves. Somebody noticed a soldier, a big husky boy, break out of the ranks of one of the companies. He had been drinking a little too much, I guess, and he was feeling in that friendly mood."

"Up to the reviewing stand he came. People wondered what he was going to do. He showed them in a minute. He was going to shake hands with the governor and the rest of the people in the reviewing stand."

"A lieutenant spoke up in a minute or so, and I went for the drink."

"Johnson picked up the six-footer, threw him over his shoulder like a big sack of meal, and carried him to the guardhouse."

"I was the constable then, but when I got home the first selectman (Clarence G. Watkins) made me a cop and I was a cop for two years," he explains.

Town Records Today's Town Clerk Edward Tomkiele helped us clarify the fuzzy dates.

The handwritten records of the time note that John Johnson headed a list of seven constables elected at the Annual Town Meeting of Oct. 1, 1894.

He was again at the head of the list of constables in 1895. Constables were not paid and were charged with keeping the peace. When this farm town began in 1823, the constables could keep peace. But the

John Johnson, Manchester's first police patrolman, is the man holding the bag of clams and the bucket of liquid refreshment in this 1896 photo taken during a clam bake. The other men in the photo and the occasion for the clam town's small industries such as the Cheney silk mills grew. The peace-keeping chores must have been largely neglected in the 1890's due to the call for a Special Town Meeting on Jan. 3, 1896. Its purpose was, "To see if the town will authorize its selectmen to appoint not exceeding two patrolmen."

It was first voted, "That the constables of this town be, and they are hereby, instructed and expected to use their authority as officers in the arrest of all drunken or disorderly persons who are in the street or on the premises of any person or persons in the town."

The meeting also voted to go ahead with the two paid patrolmen.

There are no records at the town hall that show John Johnson or anyone else was appointed a patrolman. It may be that since he was the lead constable, no one thought he needed to be sworn in formally and have it go in the written record.

Today's police chief, James Reardon, recalls seeing a report by town officials of the 1930's with a photo of John Johnson and a note to the effect he was the first cop here. But The Herald could not find it.

The town records record fairly routinely that at the Town Meeting of Oct. 3, 1896, the selectmen were again given the power to appoint two paid patrolmen. Johnson again headed the list of constables as he did in 1897.

At a Town Meeting June 16, 1898, "...it was further voted to authorize the selectmen of the town to appoint three patrolmen, one for duty at the north end of the town, and two for the south end."

A note in the town records on June 28, 1898 reads, "Personally appeared before me this day, Albert L. Thomas, Edward F. Balcock, and John H. Watson, who have been duly appointed Patrolmen of the Town of Manchester to whom I then administered the oath prescribed by statute for executive officers. Charles R. Hathaway, Justice of the Peace."

Johnson still led the list of elected constables until 1901. It was about this time he moved to a farm on which today stands the Bolton High School.

More Proof The Herald itself appears to uphold Johnson's status as the town's first cop several times again after the 1927 article. An item in the Oct. 1, 1896 issue reads:

"The town meeting of 1896, forty years ago, took the first action towards regular police patrol in Manchester when the meeting voted to instruct the 'constables to do their duty.'"

Up to that time, Manchester had elected constables who served as criminal officers when called upon only and in many cases when a constable was called to make an arrest, he would prove to be a peacekeeper instead of an arresting officer.

"Complaints had been made from time to time about crowds that gathered in different parts of the town and caused trouble and it had reached such a state that some of the voters were of the opinion that the constables and the deputy sheriff were not doing what they should to keep the peace."

"It was the subject of much debate at the annual town meeting, in October, 1895, and after there had been much time given to a free expression of feeling, it was decided that the constables were rather a law unto themselves and the selectmen could not bring them to do more work than they wanted to do."

The article notes the vote to empower the selectmen to hire two patrolmen. Then it reads: "Selectman C.G. Watkins named John Johnson as one of the men. He went on duty at 7 o'clock and remained until 1 o'clock in the morning. Ephraim Symington, another constable, who was employed in the silk mills, was assigned to street duty from 7 o'clock until 11 o'clock at night.

"Mr. Johnson remained for two years as the night patrolman and also did special duty later or until the next step was taken by having three men from the waiting list of the Hartford department come to Manchester and form the first uniformed police department."

Johnson must have been well thought of, at least by the editor of The Herald. His obituary notice after his death in September, 1939 was long and detailed even for those days. The head was "First Policeman of Town Passes" and it read in part:

"Born in Sweden 70 years ago, Mr. Johnson came to this country at the age of 12 and made his home for a short time with Pehr Jacobson in the Hilltown section. Farm work did not appeal to him and after one year, he secured employment with Cheney Brothers.

"He was big for his age and was soon given a nickname by the other boys employed in the department. They called him 'Jumbo' because of his large frame and his ability in feats of strength."

It repeated the story of his hiring but the dates were more fuzzy than in any previous article. It appeared to draw on "chats" with Johnson through the years. Towards the end it reads:

"Mr. Johnson never wore a uniform. He just sauntered along the streets, his long arms hanging by his sides and with a pipe in his mouth which he always smoked upside down, either looking for trouble or running away from it."

"The first two or three weeks he was on duty, he was taunted by some of the young men, but 'Jumbo' was able to handle all matters."

"Mr. Johnson may have gone along and become the head of the police department instead of having it necessary to bring men from Hartford to form it, but he did not like the work. He preferred to hunt, to work a garden, or run a farm."

In His Footsteps Johnson also told his tales of police work to his family. Some of them may have been inspired by those tales, and repeated, telling through several generations, to become policemen themselves.

A great-grandson, Brian Smith, is now an officer on the East Windsor Police Department which formed May 7, 1973. He was one of the first five officers there.

A grand-nephew, Robert Neil, is on the Vernon Police Department. Other progeny have hopes of being appointed to area departments, according to Mrs. Emma Carroll of 123 Hilliard St., Johnson's daughter.

The latest to join "the thin blue line" is John's great-grandson, Michael S. Swetzer, 23, of Manchester, son of Mrs. Emma Swetzer. His appointment to the local department is to take effect Nov. 3.

Bus Conduct Discussed

Donna Holland
Correspondent
646-0375

At a meeting earlier in the week bus procedure for all school children was thoroughly discussed in order to get off to a good start Wednesday, said Raymond Allen, superintendent.

The drivers were reviewed with bus drivers and the drivers were asked to be alert to any stop which has too many children or which appears hazardous.

On the first day of school bus behavior guidelines will be reviewed by all teachers of kindergarten through Grade 8 students. The students will also be given a copy of the guidelines.

Allen said he hoped parents would also review the guidelines with their children. "We are concerned with good behavior on all buses so as not to be concerned with the health and safety of the students," he said.

The guidelines were first published in April when it was learned that the behavior of some students while riding the school buses was not what would be considered acceptable.

The guidelines, which all students are expected to follow, are:

1. Students boarding a bus are to go directly to a seat and remain there until reaching their destination (they are not permitted to stand or change seats unless directed by the bus driver).

2. Under no circumstances should any portion of a student's body be extended out of an open window.

3. State law specifically prohibits the throwing of anything out of a window.

4. Pushing, tripping, hitting or annoying another passenger on the bus will not be tolerated.

5. There will be no eating, smoking, throwing of objects or playing with matches.

6. The emergency exit is for drills and emergency use only. Students are not to distract the driver while the bus is in motion.

7. Students are to refrain from shouting, making disruptive noises or using profanity.

8. Students must be present at the bus stop at the time the bus arrives in order to get off a bus other than the assigned stop or (b) ride a bus other than the one assigned in emergencies only.

9. Damage done to any portion of the school bus by a particular student is to be paid for by the student or the parent.

Vandalism represents grounds for immediate suspension without the usual warning.

The guidelines also state that the bus driver is in full charge of the bus and the students being transported in it.

In the interest of the safety of all, the driver must take responsibility for controlling those students who seem unable to control their own behavior.

Undesirable behavior will result in the following steps being taken:

1. The bus driver will stop the bus and warn the offenders assigning them seats if necessary.

2. If such misconduct is repeated the driver will submit a detailed written report to the principal or assistant principal or assistant principal to remove the student's privilege of riding on the school bus for a period of up to five days for each occurrence. The student and his parents will be responsible for his regular attendance at school.

3. Continued misconduct will be referred to the superintendent's office.

4. Offense Closed All town offices will be closed Monday in observance of Labor Day.

5. Selection Meeting The Selection meeting usually held on the first Monday of the month will be held Sept. 9 due to the holiday.

6. Corps Competition The Bolton Ancient Fife and Drum Corps (BAFDC) will enter its second competition Sunday at Lake Quassapaug in Middlebury.

7. Earlier this month at the group's first competition it took second place in its division.

8. To Host Staff The Bolton Parent Teacher

Organization will sponsor a luncheon for all school employees Tuesday at noon at Bolton Elementary School.

All administrators, teacher and other staff members as well as the PTO executive board are invited.

Gretchen Wiedie and Phyllis Daily, PTO hospitality committee are co-chairman of the event.

Many parents are providing food for the luncheon. The event is an effort by the PTO to welcome the staff to the new school year.

Physical Exams Physicals for Grade 9 through Grade 12 girls planning to participate in the high school's cross country, softball or soccer program will be given Tuesday beginning at 1 p.m. at the office of Dr. W. Ames LeFan, school physician.

His office is located in Vernon. Directions follow: Take Reservoir Rd. to Rt. 30; turn left onto Rt. 30; approximately one mile down the road is a yellow building with his name on it.

Town Invites Cruiser Bids Bids will be opened Sept. 12 in the Municipal Building for furnishing the Manchester Police Department with two new cruisers - either 1974 or 1975 models.

No trades are being offered because the two cruisers will be additions to the police fleet.

The specs call for four-door sedans with eight-cylinder motors, four-way flashers and mounted six-inch spotlights.

Ryan May Have Set Last Record for Angels, Strikes Out 300 for Third Straight Season

NEW YORK (UPI) — Nolan Ryan may have set his last single season strikeout record for the California Angels. The 27-year-old right-hander, who Friday night became the first pitcher in modern history to strike out 300 or more batters in three successive seasons, admitted he expects to be traded after the season even though he is easily the club's No. 1 drawing card.

"The club is going to have to make a lot of changes to help themselves and of course they'll need to give up someone. I think it will be me if the right deal can be made," Ryan said after pitching the Angels to a 9-2 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers.

"I would prefer to go to Dallas, Houston or the Dodgers because I'm from Texas and I'm building in Alvin (Texas) and I've always liked L.A.," Ryan added. "I'm not really set to be traded but if that's what they want to do, that's where I want to go."

Ryan, who was traded to the Angels by the New York Mets after the 1971 season, has been the most feared pitcher in the American League since coming to California and has broken virtually every strikeout record.

In his first year with California, he won 19 games and struck out 329 batters, last year he won 21 and fanned a record 383 and so far this year he has won 17 games with 304 strikeouts. Earlier this season he also equaled the record for most strikeouts in a game when he fanned 19 against Boston.

Ryan got plenty of offensive help, especially from Frank Pritchett, who collected two homers and a triple. Robinson, who now has 19 homers and 571 for his career, drove in four runs and scored three. Dave Chalk also homered for California while Don Money connected for Milwaukee.

In other AL games, Baltimore topped Kansas City 9-2, Cleveland beat Texas 7-3, New York downed Chicago 5-1, Minnesota edged Boston 3-2 and Oakland whipped Detroit 10-5.

Friday night Ryan struck out "only" nine but those enabled him to reach the 300 plateau for the third straight year. The record was shared by Rube Waddell, 1904-04, and Sandy Kousser, 1895-96. Before the turn of the century Amos Rusie of the New York Giants had three consecutive 300-strikeout seasons from 1890-92.

"It's nice to have the record but I didn't set out this season to do it," said Ryan. "It shows, if nothing else, that I've thrown consistently for three years. I'm not really elated. Winning 20 games would mean more to me if I had to choose between them, but I'm glad to have it."

Road Race Decision Lauded

As expected, the first to laud the Nutmeg Forest, Tall Cedar Five Mile Road Race Committee's decision to open the 1974 presentation to both sexes was Harold Veal, father of two girls who have been prominent in foot racing for several years.

Ruth Veal, a pretty junior at Trinity College in Hartford, has taken part unofficially in the last five Turkey Day frolics. An honor student, during the summer months she has competed in 10 races in Manchester, Middletown and Rockville and triumphed in nine and placed second in the other.

Fourteen-year-old Lori Veal, a student at Bennet Junior High, entered a dozen races during the vacation period and topped three, with seconds and four third placements.

Harold Veal has campaigned vigorously for several years to have the race sponsors' lift the ban on not allowing females to compete.

The Veal sisters won't be on the prize list — only the first 25 finishers qualify for the merchandise awards — but it will be nice to have them in the race officially as well as all other registered runners.

Coffin Corner Kicker Deluxe Coffin corner kicks, which will be plentiful this season in the NFL, appear to be Tom Blanchard's cup of tea. The New York Giant specialist lofted three out-of-bounds against Pittsburgh last week, the ball being put in play at the one, two and five-yard lines. The New England Whalers have signed their 28-man squad for the 1974-75 season. Three former local athletes who look in great shape today are Bruno Byeholki, John Greene and Bill Murray. All three look like they could step up to the plate and hit a baseball with the same uniformity they were 30 years ago.

Speaking of baseball, 25 years ago the British-American Club's baseball team represented Connecticut in the National Baseball Congress Semi-Pro Tournament in Wichita, Kan. How the time flies... After Sunday's game, the Red Sox will have only 30 games left to play. George "Red" McCaughey, long-time volunteer helper in the concession stand at Memorial Field, reports that each year vandalism of one form or another amounts to at least $500. Proceeds from the stand help support Police & Fire entries in the youth baseball and football programs in town. Just wondering: When the town will take a good hard look at building much needed additional tennis courts... Bob Kierman, a fine volleyball spiker a decade ago, plans to come out of retirement this winter and rejoin Watkins... This year's receipts from the softball benefit doubleheader at Fitzgerald Field involving Groman's were $500 under a year ago when $2,000 was realized to send the Groman girls to the National ASA Tournament... Girls 14 and over may now serve as golf caddies in Wisconsin after protests to the labor office in that city.

End of the Line Long-time ranking local tennis player, Martin Duke has been slowed down by nagging ailments this season. One of the brightest young female tennis players in town is Duke's daughter, Annette, who got considerable tourney experience this summer... Next major golfing event at the Manchester Country Club will be the Open, Sept. 7-9. Have a nice holiday weekend.

Ted Martinez Hero for Mets NEW YORK (UPI) — Teddy Martinez has knocked in 34 runs so far this season and if that doesn't look like such a large total, look again. He knocked in two big ones Friday night, giving New York a 4-2 victory over the Atlanta Braves. The RBIs came with two out, the bases-loaded and Atlanta winning 2-1. He has batted only 21 times this season with 51 hits for a .221 average. Those numbers don't rate Hall of Fame consideration but they do point out one important fact: When Martinez hits, it usually counts.

CHICAGO (UPI) — "They didn't win it," Chicago White Sox Manager Chuck Tanner said. "We gave it to them."

Tanner could argue a good case for his opinion after the Sox' 8-5 defeat by the New York Yankees Friday night.

The Sox made four errors and three of them came in one inning, the seventh, to help New York to four unearned runs and enable them to wipe out a 5-3 Chicago lead.

First pitcher Skip Pitlock threw the ball wild to first base for an error to give the Yankees two runners without an out. Then pitcher Rich Gosage threw wild to first base for an error to give New York a run and leave runners on first and second. Gosage faced only one batter, Thurman Munson, making his error on the play, and Munson scored the winning run to saddle Gosage with his fifth loss against three wins.

Terry Forster relieved Gosage and got Bill Sudakis to hit a grounder but Bill Melton, threw wild to first base for an error to allow two runs to score and put the Yankees in front.

Sudakis later scored on a sacrifice fly by Roy White. Munson also had two sacrifice flies to give the Yankees a team record 57 for the season.

"These errors happen to every team," Tanner said. "Except we never seem to get the benefit of them. You can't get on a player for making an error."

NEW YORK (UPI) — Pittsburgh Pirates' pitcher Jim Rooker is the kind of guy who can't resist blabbing how a movie ends in the middle of the third run.

Earlier this season, when the Pirates' were mired in last place in the National League East, Rooker took several of his teammates to task for not trying and said the club belonged in first-place, not last.

"That prophesy fulfilled, the Pirates' outspoken right-hander Friday ruined the suspense of both National League pennant races for those who like to wait and see if the butter did it.

After pitching the Pirates to a 4-3 victory over the NL West leading Los Angeles Dodgers, Rooker quietly predicted, "This series is an example of what's to come in October."

Well, so much for a suspenseful September, as the apparently clairvoyant Rooker foresees a Pirates-Dodgers matchup in the NL playoff. Despite Rooker's fearless forecast, Friday's victory gave the Pirates only a 1/4 game lead over St. Louis in the Central, and no lead over the East.

And Los Angeles Manager Walt Alton is not so assured of eventual victory over Cincinnati that he would regret the Dodgers' blown opportunity to increase their lead to 4 1/2 games in the West race.

"It was a tough game to lose," Alton said. "We hit the ball hard."

The Pirates needed a three-run rally against relief specialist Mike Marshall in the eighth inning to win after Los Angeles had jumped to a 3-0 lead in the first inning.

Pittsburgh trailed 3-1 entering the eighth when starter Doug Rau, who had limited the Pirates to five hits, walked Rennie Stennet to open the inning. In a reflex reaction, Alton brought in Marshall for the 87th time. Singled by Oliver and Willie Stargell closed the gap to 3-2 and Richie Zisk, who had homered in the sixth, delivered a sacrifice fly to score Oliver. Bob Robertson then doubled line as Stargell raced home from first with the winning run.

Dave Lopes' single to open the Dodgers' first against Rooker and Mike Culler tossed a seven-hitter for his 16th win and Ernie Casella and Brooks Robinson drove in two runs apiece to spark the Orioles over the Royals. Tommy Davis collected five hits for Baltimore while John Mayberry slugged his 21st homer for Kansas City.

Rico Carly greeted his former teammates with three hits, including a three-run double, to lead the Indians over the Rangers. Carly, who has hit 444 in 14 games with 10 RBIs since being purchased from the Mexican League two weeks ago, delivered his bases-clearing double in the fourth to put Cleveland ahead 6-1.

OBITUARIES Fire in Rockville House Doused Quickly by Firemen

Charlton Sperry Jr., 21, of 11 Franklin St. died Friday night at Hartford Hospital.

Mr. Sperry was born July 26, 1953 in Manchester and had lived here all his life. He was a 1972 graduate of Manchester High School and had been employed as a machine operator at the American Tool and Machine Co., Windsor.

Survivors are his mother, Mrs. Phyllis Modan Graham, and stepfather, John F. Graham, of Warehouse Point; his maternal grandfather, Harold O. Modan of Manchester; and two sisters, Mrs. Sheryl Boileau of Manchester and Mrs. Donna Daigo of Hartford.

Funeral services are Monday at 10:30 a.m. at Holmes Funeral Home, 400 Main St. The Rev. C. Henry Anderson, co-pastor of Emanuel Lutheran Church, will officiate. Burial will be in East Cemetery.

Friends may call at the funeral home Sunday from 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p.m.

A fire that "could have been a bad one" was doused by Rockville volunteer firemen within 10 minutes of the call at 4:32 p.m. Friday to 77 High St., according to Chief Donald Maguda of the Rockville Fire Department.

"It was a very good stop by the boys," Maguda said this morning as he explained the fire. The fire began in the storage space between a second-story bedroom and the roof of the two-family, two-story older frame house from as yet undetermined causes, Maguda said. A family of the surname LaPlant was living in the portion of the house where the fire began.

About 25 men of the 50-man volunteer department arrived at the scene. They hooked up a pumper truck to a hydrant.

With the use of the ladder truck, they began pumping water on the fire which had broken through the roof.

A second pumper was connected to another hydrant and it was connected to the first pumper to increase water pressure, Maguda said.

The firemen put plastic sheets over downstairs furniture to protect it from water and smoke. They also began blowing out the upstairs smoke as soon as possible to minimize smoke damage.

When the fire near the roof seemed under control, they conducted a careful search for fire that might break out later in the older home. Within 40 minutes of the call, they began to clean up and leave.

The house had a hole in the roof, smoke and water damage upstairs and minor water damage downstairs. Rain was coming into the house through the hole and was making contact with wires so the power was kept off and the family spent the night with relatives. The other portion of the house was unoccupied at the time of the fire.

A fourth Rockville truck was kept on standby. One truck each from the Vernon and Tolland Fire Departments came to the Prospect St. and Nye St. station houses for standby.

"The houses in that area are pretty close together and old," Maguda said, explaining the standard measures.

There were no injuries to residents or firemen, he noted.

Smith Asks Meskill Probe Lease Plans

HARTFORD (UPI)—A state senator has asked Gov. Thomas J. Meskill to recognize charges surrounding the state's leasing practices and start investigating them.

Sen. Wilber G. Smith, D-Hartford, referred Friday to reports that Motor Vehicles Commissioner Edward J. Kozlowski, when deputy public works commissioner, had used "pressure tactics" to get at least one lease contract approved with a private individual.

"I urge you to launch your own investigation of the state's leasing practices — an investigation using all the considerable powers of your office — and independent of the probe already under way by the legislature," Smith said. "This could be a final chance to redeem, at least partially, your record as governor — a record which has been marred by secrecy and patronage excesses," Smith told Meskill, a Republican not seeking reelection, in a letter.

Cycle Club Barred From Beach Festival

The owner of the Clear Water Beach Club on the Ellington-Stafford town line has been ordered by the circuit court not to permit members of a motorcycle organization to attend a Labor Day weekend festival at the club.

Circuit Court Judge Philip Dwyer in the 12th circuit court at Manchester issued the order in response to an injunction request by the two towns. Officials of the towns said they feared that sanitary and health problems would be created if large numbers attended the festival.

The court decided that James Conway, owner of the club, could conduct his business over the weekend, but ordered state police to check motocyclists, especially in groups, to bar them from the club grounds if they are members of the NSKK Motorcycle Club, which is sponsoring the event.

The club has distributed flyers advertising the festival, and, according to the club president, has already spent about $2,450 which can not be refunded.

Spurned Suitor Kills Self After Shooting Girl Friend

MIAMI (UPI) — The note in James Terry's wallet was addressed only "to whom it may concern" and read simply, "It hurts too much. I'm sorry."

Terry, 35, died in a pool of blood from a double-barreled shotgun wound in the head Friday after he ambushed the girl friend who spurned his affections and shot her in the face in front of a downtown office building.

Rose Murphy, 35, whom Terry had just asked for a date one last time, was rushed to Jackson Memorial Hospital where she was reported in serious condition. She was shot in the neck and jaw.

The shooting in the Rivergate Plaza office building parking lot apparently was touched off when Miss Murphy turned down

Terry's invitation for lunch.

As she drove out of the underground parking area with an unidentified woman passenger, Terry stepped out of a hiding place behind some nearby bushes, stuck the shotgun through the window next to Miss Murphy's face and fired. The car jerked forward as its driver slumped in the seat, and crashed into a railing at the end of the building garage.

Police said Terry then walked calmly to the car's passenger, who was uninjured, assured her she would not be harmed, and went to the rear of the car, where he put the shotgun to his head and pulled the trigger.

He died almost instantly.

A deliveryman who declined to identify himself said he saw no weapons when he spotted Terry in the parking area before the incident.

"He must have laid that gun in an alcove," he said. But the deliveryman left the lot he heard the blast.

"I knew it was a shotgun," he said.

The deliveryman ran to aid the injured woman, then heard the second blast and saw Terry slump to the garage floor.

Other witnesses said they had seen Terry in the lot and he appeared to be looking for someone.

Gas Merger To Reduce Rate Hikes

HARTFORD (UPI) — Connecticut Natural Gas Co. President Robert H. Willis says the merger of CNG with Greenwich Gas Co. will reduce the amount of future rate increases.

CNG is approaching its goal of controlling all Connecticut gas distribution facilities, and the company plans to make a merger offer to Southern Connecticut Gas Co. and try to buy the gas facilities of Northeast Utilities.

Prehistoric Times! Pro-Social Messages!

What You'll See on Kids' TV

Saturday, September 7 is Kick-off Saturday for children's TV. All three networks will begin the new fall season. In the Saturday morning line-up, each of the three networks will carry a new show about prehistoric times. Of the 14 new shows, six will be live action or a mixture of live action and cartoons. Executives from all three networks say there will be more pro-social, or good citizenship, messages mixed with the entertainment.

CBS

There will be more "In The News Programs." There will be 12 features every weekend.

There will be six news specials in the "What's It All About?" series. These are news features that take a look at such subjects as impeachment and Congress.

CBS will air six new programs this season.

The three live action series are:

"The Harlem Globetrotters' Popcorn Machine" will feature 11 of the Globetrotters' basketball stars and superstar Rodney Allen Ripsey.

"The Hudson Brothers' Razzle Dazzle Comedy Show" will be music mixed with comedy and some animation.

"Shazam" will be about a young boy who can change into the mighty Captain Marvel.

The animated shows are:

"Valley of the Dinosaurs" about a family of today, thrust back into the time of dinosaurs.

"Partridge Family, 2200 AD" will feature the famous entertainment family living in the future.

"U.S. of Archie" stars the famous Archie characters. This time they will take a look at history.

"GO" is a show that is returning to NBC this fall. This new type of program uses a mobile camera to bring viewers a variety of "first person" experiences. In one program, the "GO" cameras will go underwater to film an old shipwreck. Other shows include live action stories about football, ballooning, the Bicentennial and skiing.

NBC will have three new shows.

"Run Joe Run" is a live action show about a runaway dog.

"Land of the Lost" is a live action fantasy about a ranger and his family who wander into a prehistoric world and have to struggle for survival.

"The Chopper Bunch" is a cartoon about motorcycles and a car named "Wheelie."

NBC will also show short consumer education features during the Saturday morning programs.

ABC

This year, the three minute "School House Rock" series will also include history.

ABC will air five new series:

"Krog, 70,000 B.C.!" is a live action show presenting the struggles of a family thousands of years ago.

The new animated shows are:

"The New Adventures of Gilligan" is based on the live action program, "Gilligan's Island."

"Devlin" is about a young motorcycle stunt rider who tries to support his orphaned brother and sister.

"These Are the Days" is about the life of an American family in the early 1900's.

"Kung Phooey" is just for fun and is about a janitor in a police station.

The award winning "After School Special" series will be expanded from 12 to 14 shows.

Action for Children's Television

Peggy Charren is the President of ACT

By the time a child finishes high school, he has spent 11,000 hours in the classroom and 15,000 hours watching TV. The average child sees more than 25,000 commercials a year!

Six years ago, a group of women from Newton, Massachusetts met and formed ACT, or Action for Children's Television. Today, the group has thousands of members.

The purpose of the group is to persuade the networks and advertisers to give good quality programs for children of different ages and to encourage research into the field of children's television.

Canada no longer allows commercials on children's television. ACT would like to see that happen in this country.

Due mainly to the efforts of ACT, you will be watching fewer commercials during children's shows. The number of commercial minutes in one hour has been cut from 16 to 12 minutes. This is still more than prime time viewers watch at night, since they see from 8 to 10 minutes of commercials per hour.

Super Sport: Ralph Garr

Ralph Garr is a baseball player who doesn't seem to do anything right at the plate—but get base hits. His swing is not stylish, nor the kind that Little Leaguers should copy. Sometimes he swings at bad balls. But still, he gets base hits.

In his first three seasons with the Atlanta Braves, Garr had batting averages of .343, .325, and .299.

This year, he got off to a tremendous start. He is a good bunter and has excellent speed.
