Pardoning of Nixon Rekindles Watergate

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Ford says he pardoned Richard M. Nixon as an act of mercy and to bind the nation's wounds, but the reaction showed few wounds had healed and the Watergate controversy was back in the White House.

Ford's surprise statement said he wanted to write a conclusion to the Watergate tragedy.

TerHorst Resigns
His friend and press secretary, J.F. TerHorst, resigned as "a matter of conscience," and representatives and senators had strong reactions almost certain to end his "honeymoon" with Congress.

Ford signed the document at noon Sunday. It was a "full, free and absolute pardon" to Richard Nixon for all offenses against the United States which he, Richard Nixon, has committed or may have committed or taken part in during the period from Jan. 20, 1969 through Aug. 9, 1974.

In San Clemente, Calif., Nixon accepted the pardon, saying, "No words can describe the depth of my regret and pain at the anguish my mistakes over Watergate have caused the nation and the presidency."

He said he was wrong in not acting "more decisively and more forthrightly" but the former President did not admit breaking the law.

No Deal

White House officials denied that there had been a deal.

"I know there was none," said L. William Seidman, a close Ford friend from Grand Rapids. But the Chicago Tribune said today there had been a "six-part package" depending on Nixon's statement.

Special prosecutor Leon Jaworski now will not be able to seek an indictment against Nixon. Six months ago, a grand jury had voted 19-0 to call Nixon a co-conspirator in the Watergate cover-up, but he was not indicted.

Legal sources said it might help Nixon's six aides who face trial Sept. 30 for the Watergate cover-up. As one said, "I think you can't escape the fact that the No. 1 man among the team of top people at the White House got away free."

Sen. Barry M. Goldwater, R-Ariz., called it "the only decent and prudent course."

Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., complained that Nixon was being granted "a pardon while his subordinates are being sent off to prison."

Changes Mind

Ford had told a news conference last Wednesday that a pardon for Nixon would be "untimely and unwise" before any charges had actually been brought.

His old law partner and legal counsel, Philip Buchen, told reporters Sunday that the President apparently made the decision sometime last week.

Buchen said he checked with Jaworski and found there were "no time bombs" in the form of new charges.

Last Thursday, Ford authorized Washington lawyer Benton Becker to go to San Clemente and, Buchen said, "to advise the former President that President Ford was intending to give a pardon."

'Act of Contrition'

Becker, according to the counsel, brought word of Nixon's plan to issue a statement, but the wording was left open. Buchen said he considers Nixon's statement "an act of contrition."

Ford had deliberately chosen Sunday for his statement. Instead of services at the seminary near his old home in Alexandria, he went to holy communion at St. John's church, where Presidents since James Madison have worshipped.

He had not told his wife, Betty, of his decision. Through an aide, she later said Ford "gave a great deal of thought" to a pardon.

Ford and Former President

President Gerald Ford Sunday announced he had granted a "full, free and absolute pardon" to Richard Nixon for all offenses the former president committed or may have committed while in office. (The two are shown in a June 19, 1974, photo)

Most Local Politicians Term Pardon Premature

By SOL R. COHEN

"Premature," was the word most often used today by Manchester political figures, when asked to comment on President Ford's action in granting Richard Nixon "a full, free and absolute pardon."

Democratic Town Chairman Ted Cummings was outraged at Ford's action. His remarks were the most critical by far of all expressed.

"Ford has gone too far," said Cummings. "He insults our good sense by singling out his old buddy Nixon for favored treatment. If he pardons only Richard Nixon, then it's just plain incredible. For a one-shot pardon of Nixon and no one else violates everything I have learned and believe concerning fair and equal treatment for all."

"Shakes You to Your Boots"
"To be fair," continued Cummings, "it would have to include the whole bunch—the Cubans, Hunt, Liddy, Ehrlichman, Haldeman, Dean, and on and on. Ford might as well go the whole route and include the war resisters, the evaders and deserters. He might as well take the cover off the whole kit and caboodle and make it a political pardon across the board. To single out Nixon for amnesty, shakes you to your boots."

State Comptroller Nathan Agostinelli is one of those who thinks Ford's action was "too soon."

Agostinelli, GOP candidate for lieutenant governor, said, "The question that I ask is, 'What is the full pardon for?' I still don't know anymore today than I knew before. I always thought before you can give a pardon there must be a conviction."

Agostinelli acknowledged, "The congressmen and senators know more about the Watergate story than we do. They and the President have more information than the public."

Repentance Needed

"I'm a believer in the Bible," continued Agostinelli. "It teaches us forgiveness, but, it also teaches repentance. At what point do we forgive? If someone hurts you today, do you forgive him tonight? I don't think so."

Difficult to Comment

GOP Town Chairman A. Paul Berte remarked, "It is difficult to comment on the President's decision, since I know he has certain facts and information available to him I don't have. Personally, and based on what I do know, I must conclude President Ford's decision was premature."

"I have confidence in our President, and I respect his position," Berte said. "His pardon of Mr. Nixon was one of those tough, discretionary decisions reserved to the President alone under our Constitution. I think we all realize that as long as

German Miss Says She Has Lot to Learn

By JUNE TOMPKINS

"There is so much to learn," said Sabine Kloeke after she had come home from her first day as a senior at Manchester High School.

Home to Sabine, a native of Vlotho, Germany, is 8 Devon Dr. for this year while she participates in "Youth for Understanding," a foreign student exchange program.

The 18-year-old miss who bears the Nordic look of the northern Germans will call her temporary parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Albert, Mom and Dad. She even greets Mr. Albert's father as Grandpa.

The "so much to learn" for Sabine involves not only the many idioms in the English language (although she speaks excellent English having studied it for nine years), but her way around MHS which she says is much larger than her school back home. She wonders if she will be able to comprehend Fitzgerald and Hemingway, the authors she will study in her English class.

Spanish May Pose Problem
She wonders if she will be able to manage the Spanish class she has signed up for. Never having taken the language before, she explains she will have to translate from English to German to Spanish.

Vlotho, a town of about 15,000 population, is near Hanover. Sabine's school at home is small enough where everyone knows everyone else, she says. In her school in Germany, Sabine stays with the same class for all subjects. Here, she says, it seems very confusing to change all around for every class, go to different rooms, and be with a different group of classmates.

Mostly sunny and warm today with highs in the low 80s. Fair tonight with some patches of valley fog. Low in the upper 50s. Partly cloudy and warm Tuesday with highs in the mid 80s.

Sabine's father sells feed and grain for farm animals. She is the oldest in a family of four girls and one boy. In her host family in Manchester, she has two sisters living at home.

Wants To Ski

She wants to take part in a ski club and has signed up for ceramics at the high school. Her tastes in music run to country-western with a little rock on the side.

Hamburgers and hot dogs rate high on Sabine's list of favorite American foods, but when it comes to peanut butter, she stops and sighs while she exclaims she never tasted anything so good. That will be one of the sure things she will send home for Christmas, she says.

The dark, coarse flour bread to which Sabine is accustomed back in Germany makes our white bread taste sweet and "too soft" by comparison, she says.

Judo Expert

For all her fair femininity, she possesses an orange belt in judo.

The variety of individuals' coloring amazes Sabine.

"At home, everyone is a blonde," she says. "But here, I see light hair, dark hair, in between hair, and light and dark skinned people—so many different kinds."

The Youth for Understanding program, similar to the American Field Service program, is a relatively new program in this area. Mrs. Glen Bonderman of Tolland, area representative for the program, says five foreign students under the program arrived in August to spend a year with host families in this area. There are two in Tolland, one in Rockville, and one in West Hartford besides the one in Manchester.

The family living experience includes foreign boys and girls from age 14-18. Most arrive in the United States in August for the entire school year and return the following July. Some, Mrs. Bonderman says, come in January for half a semester.

Students Have Choice

One of the particular advantages of this program, says Mrs. Bonderman, is that the foreign student applicant may choose the country he or she would like to go to. This program also applies to American students.

Two Women Killed

Mrs. Elizabeth W. Babcock, 47, and her daughter, Gail Ann Babcock, 23, both of High Manor Trailer Park, Rt. 30, Vernon were killed instantly Sunday night when they were struck by a car just outside their trailer park home.

The driver of the car was David Morin Jr., 22, of Mt. Vernon Apts., Mt. Vernon Dr., Vernon. No charges have been placed against the driver pending investigation of the accident.

Vernon Police said the two women were waiting on Rt. 30 for their driver to pick them up to take them to work at Pratt & Whitney Aircraft. Police said the women were thrown some 85 feet by the impact. Dr. Harold Shapiro, medical examiner pronounced them dead at the scene.

The accident happened shortly before 11:30 p.m. Autopsies are being performed today at Rockville General Hospital, police said. Sgt. John Bundy and Officers Roy DeLong and David Stefanik are conducting the investigation for the Vernon Police Department.

The Holmes Funeral Home, 400 Main St., Manchester, is in charge of arrangements which are incomplete.

Federal Mass Transit Role Outlined by President Ford

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—President Ford said today the federal government has a "legitimate and major role" to play in assisting urban transit systems, but federal taxpayers "just can't afford to pay for the whole package."

In an address prepared for the sixth International Conference on Urban Transportation, Ford said he supports using a limited portion of federal transit funds for mass transit operating expenses under the $11 billion House-passed bill.

"I am convinced that with enough imagination, with enough determination, and with a very careful ordering of our priorities, we can achieve our national transportation goal," he said. "And I am determined that we do so without further feeding the fires of inflation by busting the federal budget."

Ford flew to Pittsburgh for a quick trip, leaving a capital boiling with surprise over his controversial decision to grant former President Richard Nixon an unconditional pardon.

Federal Role

"There is a legitimate and major role to be played by the Federal government in assisting urban transit systems," said Ford. "But that role must be carried out in partnership with states and localities. We will help with urban planning and with transit technology development," Ford told the gathering. "Yet, it should be clearly understood that the chief objective of Department of Transportation grant programs is to help cities solve their transportation problems. It is not to restructure and rebuild cities.

Better Solutions

"America must have better solutions" to the growing problems of congestion and pollution now complicated by energy conservation, said Ford. But he added, "federal taxpayers just can't afford to pay for the whole package. I won't ask them to do so."

As a Michigan resident with the name of Ford, "you can be sure I'm not going to say any unkind things about automobiles," he joked.

Too Many Cars

"But excessive use of cars in dense urban areas increases pollution levels, causes jammed traffic, massive headaches, and the bumper-to-bumper tie-ups burn too much scarce and expensive fuel," he said.

The President said well planned action is essential to make major progress in urban transit, and that a selling job is needed.

TWA Crash Kills 88

ATHENS (UPI)—Searchers from the U.S. aircraft carrier Independence and Greek ships gave up hope today for all 88 persons aboard a crippled Trans World Airlines 707 jetliner that crashed Sunday in the Ionian Sea.

"We don't expect to find any survivors," said Ammanuel Kefaloyannis, Greek deputy minister of transportation in charge of civil aviation who was in charge of all search efforts.

Recover 17 Bodies

Kefaloyannis said that as of mid-morning, the Independence and a Greek vessel had recovered 17 bodies. He said they would be flown to Athens for autopsies before being handed over to next of kin.

A maverick Arab guerrilla group said in Beirut a commando on a death mission bombed the Boeing 707, but the major Palestinian organization denied involvement by any recognized guerrilla band. Autopsies would indicate if the victims died in an explosion or the crash.

Search Continues

"We are still searching the area for other bodies and debris from the crash and whatever items we can find which can help with the investigation of the disaster," Kefaloyannis said.

Athens airport officials discounted earlier reports that life rafts had been spotted in the choppy waters of the Ionian Sea between Greece and Italy where the plane went down.

The officials said the plane plunged into the sea late Sunday morning soon after a stopover in Athens. The pilot reported trouble and said he was trying to land on the Greek island of Corfu.

TWA reported 17 Americans among the 79 passengers and nine crew members on Flight 841, which was also scheduled to stop in Rome. Thirty-four passengers, including two infants, were traveling all the way to New York.

An air traffic controller said the pilot reported trouble in his last radio contact with Athens airport. "He then said he would try to make it to Corfu because one engine was on fire," he said.

Town Eligible for Grant of $470,000

Manchester received word today it is eligible for a $470,000 community development block grant, under the federal Housing and Community Development Act of 1974, signed into law recently by President Ford.

The information, relayed to Town Manager Robert Weiss by the Hartford office of HUD (department of Housing and Urban Development), informs the town it may submit an application as early as November.

Weiss said the funds could be approved soon after the application. He designated Alan Mason, human services director, to coordinate the grant.

Weiss said he doesn't know at this point how the grant will be utilized. He said the new legislation provides block grants for certain programs previously administered by HUD—such as open space, water and sewers, urban renewal, neighborhood facilities, and model cities.

OPINION
The Surplus Issue

Some of our state's lawmakers have criticized the State Mental Health commissioner because his department has shown a $4 to $5 million dollar surplus at the end of each of the last three fiscal years.

In the criticism we have read there seems to be an inference that under spending of legislative appropriations is an infringement upon legislative domain since Gov. Thomas Meskill's "tight money" and "no deficit" policy amounts to impoundment of state funds appropriated by the legislature.

We would be inclined to buy this thesis if: — There was specific evidence offered that the programs thus "underfunded" have been severely damaged; — Evidence was presented to indicate the legislature in its budget making process was inflexible in its determination of monetary needs to the point that the appropriation in question was a true minimum one; — Evidence was presented showing that any surplus in state appropriations is really "lost" money.

We think that much of the waste in state and federal government stems from the bureaucratic tradition that whatever is appropriated by the legislature or the Congress must be spent, lest your next budget be cut back.

We believe our legislators are enlightened enough to appreciate good fiscal management and would not penalize any agency for its thrift as long as agency's programs were satisfactorily achieved. The criticism of the Meskill surpluses has not reflected this enlightenment unfortunately. The objection generally is based on the political advantages inherent with surpluses rather than specifics of where alleged "tightness" has been achieved at the expense of the programs involved.

There is no problem in finding ways to spend public funds. The waiting line is a long one and once access is gained to the public trough, appetites for funds inevitably increase.

We are pleased with state surpluses and hope they can continue, not just for the sake of surpluses but because the production of a surplus reflects an attitude toward government management that is needed.

We would like to see the day that an administrator in state government can go to the legislature with an honest budget reflecting his agency's true needs knowing it won't be arbitrarily axed because it is padded or as a penalty for good management or other means of saving tax dollars.

It would be a millennium in government if we could reach the state of affairs where a budget becomes what it is supposed to be, a projected estimate of fiscal needs, not a mandatory expenditure target regardless of effectiveness or need.

So until the surplus critics can convince us that belt-tightening has been specifically detrimental to a particular program, we think they are tilting against windmills when they should be studying how the surpluses were achieved so that surpluses can be the rule rather than the exception.

Pardoning Nixon

We agree President Gerald Ford's absolute pardon of former President Richard Nixon may have been politically and judicially premature.

We agree President Ford had to make the decision alone on the basis of his own conscience.

We agree that the pardon opens up the question of what clemency, if any, should be considered for others involved even more directly than the former president in the Watergate affair.

We do not agree with the recurring criticism being advanced that the pardon sets a double standard of justice in the case of presidents.

The Constitution of the United States created a double standard of justice with the impeachment process as the basis for judging alleged presidential crimes and misdemeanors in a different context than alleged crimes and misdemeanors committed by ordinary citizens.

The complicating factor is that former President Nixon was not formally impeached by the House and found guilty by the Senate. He chose instead to resign the office and in doing so admitted responsibility for the Watergate crimes and implied he was wrong in abetting its coverup.

His acceptance of the pardon Sunday reaffirmed this partial guilt but to many of his critics it falls short of the full confession of guilt these critics feel is necessary to "put Watergate behind us."

It is obvious there are those in this nation who wish an "eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth" justice applied to the former president, not because of the crimes alleged so much, but because he was the President. This logic in itself is a double standard of justice in that it implies that the higher the station of trust, the greater the punishment should be.

tion did not constitute for many Nixon critics the atonement they wished. It is apparent that Mr. Ford felt his action might put Watergate into a less political perspective but initial reaction appears to make it obvious that the opposite will be true.

For there is another double standard of justice. These are the times when legal punishment the law prescribes for a crime doesn't seem sufficient to purge our national soul of a shared guilt, and we seek a scapegoat to sacrifice upon the altar of self-righteousness.

The disturbing thing is this apparent desire to nail Mr. Nixon's hide to the cross so to speak is that we are doing little, if anything, to fundamentally change the conditions out of which the whole Watergate affair festered and grew.

Mr. Nixon will not go to jail. He has been pardoned. The question of whether or not he should have been indicted, tried and perhaps convicted remains an issue. The debate will no doubt detract from other national issues more pressing and in the face of an election, it will detract from local issues as well.

The ultimate judgment of history may well not be Mr. Nixon's guilt, nor the viability of the American system or whether the act of pardoning him established a double standard of justice, but whether or not the American people and its leadership really understand that the essence of justice are the lessons we learn and apply rather than the ultimate vengeance we, as a society, heap upon wrongdoers.

Shortly after an FBI agent named John Devlin, of the New York office, ran a credit check on the girl's father — for reasons he'll never be able to explain to me — and interviewed the Chester police chief. The chief reported, as if it were relevant, that no member of the Paton family had a criminal record.

Finally, Devlin got around to visiting the school. There he was "surprised" to learn that she was still a student and that the letter had been part of the class exercise. He recommended that "the case be closed administratively," but the FBI placed the reports of the investigation in its files, and labeled one of the five file cards bearing Miss Paton's name "SM-SWP"

NEW YORK CITY — "To bind up the nation's wounds," was the way Lincoln's second inaugural put his postwar purpose, but it seems to be only the lesser half of the national purpose in the post-Watergate age. The other and larger half is to deal out equal justice under the law to all transgressors, high and low alike.

President Ford's difficulties in reaching an amnesty decision for war deserters and Richard Nixon if that conflict of purposes in his own heart and probably in many others.

Richard Nixon should have asked for a war amnesty right after his 1972 reelection, and could have rallied support. He chose not to. Later, during the time of the hot Watergate pursuit, he could no longer do it, because he couldn't afford to lose the hard-line votes.

President Ford was right to ask for it. One can't help speculating about his mixed bag of motives: to sound the note of a "healing" Administration, to show a measure of his own liberalism, perhaps also to retain his option of exercising a balancing decision of amnesty later — a pardon for Richard Nixon if he should be criminally convicted.

The much-discussed Kissinger doctrine of "linkage" in foreign policy applies to the current domestic climate as well. Every move made on issues of amnesty and justice is potentially linked with every other move.

The phrase "earned re-entry," which someone on President Ford's staff minted for him, is a good one to describe an amnesty measure somewhat sweetened for those who will feel bitter about it. I supported an early similar proposal by Sen. Robert Taft (R-Ohio) and I see it now as the only possible and sensible course.

An out-and-out unforgiving policy would be a way of saying that the young men who found the war an outrage to their moral sense must stay stuck with their decision and remain outcasts forever. It would leave an unhealed scar right across the draft even while disapproving of the war but who went along with it as an act of civic duty — and dying. They will feel it

Unconditional amnesty would never be accepted by the nation, nor would it make sense. Here, too, there would be a lingering scar on the minds of many who would feel a passionate sense of injustice as between the living and the dead.

Even with a conditional amnesty there will be some of this sense of injustice. It will be sharpest for those whose sons, husbands and brothers submitted to the draft even while disapproving of the war but who went along with it as an act of civic duty — and dying. They will feel it meaning "subversive matter — Socialist Worker's Party. How about that! The girl had done nothing subversive or even suspicious. She was simply trying to be a good reporter and gather some facts. Yet, if she ever applied for a government job — she says she wants to join the Foreign Service — there was that "SM-SWP" in her file.

But how about those who, like Lori Paton, had only innocent contact with the SWP? How many of those who were cleared of suspicion are still listed on FBI file cards under the label "SM-SWP"? Too many, I suspect, because it's a lot trouble to get a court order that an FBI file be destroyed. But I think President Ford could take care of that little matter by an executive order. He should take such action forthwith.

Confound it, that sort of thing is insupportable. One of the FBI's jobs is also to proclaim the innocence of individuals if further than that. The FBI should be required to destroy all files pertaining to persons cleared of any taint of subversive activities or associations. So far as I know, not even the late J. Edgar Hoover spelled

At about that time, a 120-day mailcover on the SWP was ordered by L. Patrick Gray, then acting FBI director. The SWP was listed on the now-defunct Attorney General's list of subversive organizations.

A postal inspector came up with Miss Paton's name, even as the SWP was sending her the girl its newspaper and some literature.

Shortly after an FBI agent named John Devlin, of the New York office, ran a credit check on the girl's father — for reasons he'll never be able to explain to me — and interviewed the Chester police chief. The chief reported, as if it were relevant, that no member of the Paton family had a criminal record.

How Many Secret Lunatics In FBI

WASHINGTON — Man and boy, I have generally defended the FBI against the onslaught of ideological nuts but there are times when I wonder how many secret lunatics lurk in the cubbyholes of that splendid investigative agency.

Reference is to the case of Lori Paton, a 17-year-old high school student in Chester, N.J., who won her fight to force the FBI to destroy all records pertaining to a letter she wrote the Socialist Worker's Party to get information for a political science course.

In ordering the files on Miss Paton destroyed, a Federal judge in Newark wrote that the existence of individuals is "may at a later time become a detriment" to the girl.

I hope the judge didn't take more than five minutes to reach that conclusion. The FBI's action in the Lori Paton case can only be described as preposterous, and in violation of all kinds of constitutional guarantees.

To recapitulate: Last year Miss Paton wrote a letter requesting information on the Socialist Labor Party as part of her work in a social studies project. "From Left to Right." By mistake, she addressed the letter to the Young Socialists Alliance, which is affiliated with the Socialist Worker's Party.

At about that time, a 120-day mailcover on the SWP was ordered by L. Patrick Gray, then acting FBI director. The SWP was listed on the now-defunct Attorney General's list of subversive organizations.

A postal inspector came up with Miss Paton's name, even as the SWP was sending her the girl its newspaper and some literature.

PE Has Merit

To the editor: Adults often look at small children playing and see only that the child is having fun. Actually much more is happening. The child is working hard, mentally, as well as physically. A child cannot ride a bike or write his name until his body has learned to control and use his muscles properly.

There is another aspect of physical education that I feel can easily be overlooked. Children need to have self-confidence and good self-images. Physical education is an area where many children can achieve and learn to feel good about themselves.

For these reasons I urge the Board of Education to include in its budget a trained physical education teacher for Grades 1 and 2.

TODAY'S THOUGHT

"Stand Aside, and Watch Yourselves Go By"

They say that the unexamined life is not worth living. This week, I suggest we each focus on our very selves — not in a morbid sense, but to try to assess how we are doing. This is a big task. Let's start by comparing our personality with the person we feel God really wants us to be.

He calls us to be TRUE to our word. Well, how about it? What about our words? We speak many every day. Are we true to them? Do they accurately represent us and our life? How much can others trust our words? God make us honest in this exercise.

Rupublicans Split Views on Nixon Pardon

HARTFORD (UPI) — Connecticut Republicans are divided in their reactions to the sweeping pardon of former President Nixon issued Sunday by his successor in the White House.

Former Watergate Committee member Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr., R-Conn., expressed disappointment over the pardon.

"President Ford's pardon might be a personal political or emotional reaction, but it's neither equal justice nor leadership in a government of law," Weicker said today.

But Gov. Thomas J. Meskill, a Republican who Nixon nominated for a federal judgeship in his last week as president, said President Ford's pardon showed courage and signals a "time for healing."

Key Democratic candidates were unanimous in condemning the action.

Rep. Ella T. Grasso, D-Conn., Democratic nominee for governor, said Ford's action is "premature" and "raises serious questions about the adjudication and punishment of other Watergate conspirators."

"It seems obvious that President Ford firmly believes this is the time for healing," Meskill said. "We have seen his decisiveness and compassion demonstrated first on the question of amnesty and now by pardoning the former president."

Rep. Robert H. Steele, R-Conn., the GOP gubernatorial candidate, called the pardon ill-timed. "It is premature to issue a pardon before we know what offenses may have been committed," Steele said.

"It raises major questions about the treatment of all the Watergate figures. It suggests a double standard which raises very serious questions of justice in my mind," he said.

"It is clear that President Ford is committed to getting the pardon behind us and that he is courageously moving toward that goal," Steele said.

Rep. James H. Brannen, R-Conn., Republican nominee for U.S. Senate, called Ford's move "a great disservice to the American people's right to know."

Brannen said he was "concerned that now we will probably never know what really happened in the Watergate mess."

"And I think it's unfortunate that the American people are to be robbed of the only good thing about Watergate, the knowledge of how corruption seeps into high office," he said.

"President Ford is correct in claiming, as his opinion, the right to grant a pardon," Brannen said. "But to do so before all the evidence is in a great disservice to the American people's right to know."

"Special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski should have the opportunity to honor his oath of office and present the case against Mr. Nixon so that a judgment of the various charges may be rendered," Mrs. Grasso said.

"While no one wants to see a former president subjected to humiliation, the proposition that all Americans must have equal justice before the law and be treated equally is the cornerstone of the American judicial structure," she said.

Rather than putting the agency of Watergate behind us, such a blanket pardon before a judicial determination is made may prolong the national debate," she said.

Anthony "Toby" Moffett, a Sixth District Democratic congressional candidate, said he was "shocked and appalled" by Ford's action.

"President Ford has emasculated the judicial process and ensured that the bill stators to file as candidates for president will never be told," Moffett said.

He said Ford "owes the American people a detailed explanation why he has decided to establish a different brand of justice for Mr. Nixon."

Rep. Samuel B. Heller, R-Mystic, Republican nominee for Congress in the Second District, said, "Prosecution invited students to file as candidates for President so that, if elected, they could feel free to commit crimes."

James Gardner said Sunday that anyone on campus who signs up "will become a candidate for president on the assumption that if elected he is free to pursue his wishes and cannot be convicted of crime."

Gardner said there would be a booth on campus today to accept candidates. The drive was organized in protest of President Ford's pardon of former President Nixon Sunday.

We had hoped that President Ford's assumption of office would bring a period of rationality to our nation as well as our campuses," Gardner said. "As citizens especially entrusted to enforce the rule of reason we see no other alternative than irony at this point."

Gardner said his students include "hippies and policemen."

"As a member of a faculty entrusted to instruct law enforcement officers as well as ordinary citizens, I feel currently perplexed as to our proper responsibilities," he said.

Mrs. Grasso Proposes To Limit Pardon Power

HARTFORD (UPI) — Rep. Ella T. Grasso, D-Conn., is proposing an amendment to the U.S. Constitution that would prevent the kind of pardon of former President Nixon issued Sunday by President Ford.

The amendment would prevent the President from granting reprieves or pardons for offenses against the United States until the offenses were defined in court. Mrs. Grasso Sunday called the pardon for Nixon "premature."

"Under the American system of justice," she said, "a person is presumed innocent until proven guilty."

"While former President Nixon's own statements and the releases of the June 23, 1972 tapes indicate his involvement in the Watergate cover-up, no formal charges have been lodged against him and now the American people will never know the truth," she said.

Mrs. Grasso Sunday also repeated her position of neutrality between the two Democratic campaigns to succeed her in Connecticut's Sixth District.

"Despite promotional advertising which may be misleading, I have made no endorsement for the Congressional nomination and do not intend to do so," Mrs. Grasso, Democratic nominee for governor, said.

Supporters of Mayor Stanley J. Pae of New Britain asked her to restate her neutral position because of advertising for the endorsed Democratic candidate, Anthony "Toby" Moffett.

They say a Moffett advertisement "seeks to create the impression that Moffett has the congresswoman's backing." The primary in the district is Tuesday.

Parsons College Being Sold to California School

HARTFORD (UPI) - Connecticut General Life Insurance Co. said today it has approved an arrangement under which bankrupt Parsons College of Fairfield, Iowa, can be bought by another college.

C.G., a creditor of Parsons, vacant since June 1973, said it has reached agreement with Maharishi International University of Santa Barbara, Calif., on the sale of Parsons.

Terms of the agreement call for a cash downpayment of $1 million with a balance of $1.5 million to be paid by Feb. 1 and a higher amount if paid after that date, the insurance company said.

Maharishi plans an enrollment of 750 students at the 165-acre campus in southeastern Iowa. The sale has been given provisional approval in a federal bankruptcy court, Connecticut General said. It expected other creditors to approve the transaction.

Westbrook: Wants Recaps Law

State Rep. G. Warren Westbrook has written to U.S. Sen. Lowell Weicker, asking him to consider legislation that would require truck tire recappers to clearly mark their tread.

Westbrook cited the danger to drivers, especially of small cars, of the pieces of tread that litter the roadways. He noted that identifiable tread would enable the manufacturer to "be fined if parts of the tread are thrown onto the highway during use."

In addition to safeguarding other drivers on the road, Westbrook noted that proper recapping will also protect the truckers. He suggested that the entire tread can be identified by marking the tread mould or by burning the identification in or rolling a hot marker around the tire after recapping.

Westbrook, who represents the 14th Assembly District, is a member of the Legislature's Public Health and Safety Committee.

An administrator shall be designated to receive contraband and including controlled drugs, and for delivering or reporting such evidence to authorities.

A receipt must be furnished the owner, if known, and one must be demanded of the officer who takes possession. No other employee of the board may act in a law-enforcement capacity.

The curriculum of all grades, starting with kindergarten, will provide an ongoing program, including the effects of alcohol, nicotine, tobacco and controlled drugs on health, character, citizenship and personality development.

The program may be an isolated study, or may be related to family life or a personal adjustment program.

Minimal reference books at the lower grade levels should be used and at the junior high level the course should provide an opportunity to gather facts and hold discussions which lead to informed personal decision-making.

An ongoing in-service training program, meeting state requirements, will be provided for teachers.

Professional employees shall not be required to disclose information on alcohol or drug abuse received in private talks between the employee and student. The employee shall not be required to disclose the name of the student. Immunity does not apply to information received by other than professional communication with a student.

In case of emergency, the school will cooperate with the police within legal limitations, but will protect students rights under civil rights legislation.

Questioning a student or teacher in school or on school premises must be done in the presence of a school official and the parent or guardian of a minor child.

Avery Brook Grant Hangs In Balance

SOUTH WINDSOR Judy Kuehnel Correspondent Tel. 644-1364

The on again off again state grant, to be used for South Windsor's flooding Avery Brook problem, appears to be hanging in the balance at this point.

For five months the Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) has been debating whether or not this town is eligible for $300,000 in grant money for the brook, and if it is, exactly how the money could be spent.

Initially the money was believed to have strings attached and would have been used only for channelization work. However, sometime this summer officials became optimistic with the belief that the money would have no strings attached, as long as it was used toward solving the brook problem.

The DEP has now informed town officials it has asked for an opinion to ascertain whether the money can be made directly available to the town for use in the project.

Until a decision is reached, the town must continue its semi-monthly practice of clearing out many of the Avery Brook culverts. While the practice is not a solution, it does help to keep the waters from backing up as quickly and as high as they normally do during torrential rains and melting snows.

Whether the state grants the money or not officials here are in agreement that eventually a definite move must be made toward controlling Avery Brook.

About 22 faculty members, represented by the American Association of University Professors, agreed to a new contract Sunday night that provides for higher salaries and gives a $1,000 across-the-board raise for AAUP members.

The faculty voted last week to go on strike if their contract demands were unmet.

BRIDGEPORT (UPI) - The fall semester opened at University of Bridgeport today without a threatened professors' strike materializing.

Development has taken away much of the drainage land around the brook causing rain and snow to enter the stream and swell it out of proportion.

Following the business meeting there will be a grocery social. Each member is asked to bring a grocery item worth $1.

This year the group has decided to offer the participating merchants a double advertising advantage, since the ad book will appear both in the fall and spring.

Being aware of the difficulty which the businessmen face in contributing to community activities, the group is hoping that this "two for the price of one" campaign will help the merchants cope with the money crunch and at the same time help the Tri-Town Players continue to provide a quality community theater.

The fall production by the group will be the "Miracle Worker," scheduled for Nov. 8 and 9 at the Vernon Center Middle School.

Plans are to present the "Apple Tree," a musical, for the spring production in March. Chamber Meets The Board of Directors of the Rockville Area Chamber of Commerce will meet Wednesday at noon at Steve & Tom's Pizzeria, Rt. 83, Ellington.

The date and place was voted on at the last meeting of the board. The decision on a meeting place and date for the coming year will be voted upon by the new board which will take office on Oct. 1.

The new board will also elect officers and three new directors but the current board will vote on the budget for the coming year.

Auxiliary Social The Ladies Auxiliary to the Vernon VFW Post 1021 will meet Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Post Home, Rt. 30, Vernon.

Fife and Drum Corps Changes

Mr. Francis Minor of Happy Acres Antiques, Coventry is director of the show.

Committee chairmen are Miss Emma Chamberlain, treasurer; Mrs. Zapadka, publicity; Mrs. Joseph Haloburo, hostesses; Leon Zapadka, flowers; Hank Ryba, dinner; Mrs. Peter McConnell, team room; Mrs. Richard Alton and Mrs. Robert Czarnicki, country store.

The Quarryville Ancient Fife and Drum Corps of Bolton, Conn. will be the new name of the Bolton Ancient Fife and Drum Corps beginning Sunday.

They feel the name will fit the corps as the quarry at Bolton North was well known in the history of Bolton.

Soon members of the corps will conduct a door to door canvass of the town selling booster tags.

The corps hopes to raise enough money to uniform itself as an ancient corps. The day of the drive will be announced prior to the day it will be held.

Smith hopes townspeople and area residents respond to the needs of the dedicated young people who believe in the corps and work hard to keep it going.

Members hope to be in complete ancient uniforms when they participate in the Corps of the Year Competition in October.

The corps received a trophy for appearance at a competition in Middlebury recently. It was the second competition corps members entered.

Columbia School Board Adopts Drug Policy

Virginia Carlson Correspondent 228-9221

The Board of Education, in adopting a policy on drug use and drug education, is directing its efforts against the prevention of the "first illicit experimentation" with drugs.

According to the policy adopted, the board recognizes "its responsibilities concerning drug use and abuse."

While the school is not a treatment facility nor a law-enforcement agency, the policy cooperates with such agencies concerned with student welfare and drug use.

The curriculum of all grades, starting with kindergarten, will provide an ongoing program, including the effects of alcohol, nicotine, tobacco and controlled drugs on health, character, citizenship and personality development.

The program may be an isolated study, or may be related to family life or a personal adjustment program.

Dr. Lamb Allergic Reaction To Bee Stings

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D. DEAR DR. LAMB - I am concerned about allergic reactions to bee stings. I was stung by a honey bee on the leg by what I think was a honey bee. There was some reaction with discoloring and swelling, but it cleared up after two weeks without medication.

Later she was stung just under the right eye. The reaction was very strong reaction with swelling and shock, severe itching in the palms of the hands and under the feet, and red blotches appeared on her arms. Within 30 to 40 minutes she developed a low pulse and weak heart beat. No medication was administered, but the allergic suggested a series of shots to be taken after a 30-day waiting period. After the 30 days she declined to have the shots. I'm concerned about what kind of a reaction she would have if she should be stung now after several months have elapsed, and if it is imperative that some medication be prescribed now.

DEAR READER: You have good reason to be concerned. There are several deaths recorded from bee and wasp stings. If a person has just a limited swelling near the location of the sting, usually it is not serious. However, anyone who has something more, as the hives (the red blotches) or a shock-like reaction, is in danger. With each subsequent sting the reaction is usually more severe than before. You should consider it as a form of allergic reaction. The chances are that your wife will have more trouble the next time she is stung than she did the last time.

Those who your doctor recommended desensitize a person so he will be less likely to have a severe reaction should be stung again. Usually it is necessary to complete the series, that is, take shots every so often to keep your protection. It is not too late, and she should have them now.

In addition, you should have an emergency kit available. You can get these through your doctor. It may save her life. These kits contain medicine to counter the reaction in case of a sting, and a tourniquet to tie above the sting if it is in a location where this can be done.

Mrs. Robert H. Davis

Escorted by her father, the bride wore a scalloped Chantilly lace over Empire satin gown trimmed in seed pearls over the bodice, tapered sleeves and down the flowing skirt with a detachable chapel train. Her three-tiered bouquet of silk illusion was attached to a matching Camelot cap. The gown and veil were made by the bride's mother.

Miss Karen Cooney of East Hartford was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Angela Hey of East Hartford, the bride's sister; Miss Nancy Black of Norwich, the bridegroom's sister; Donna Soles of Kansas and Mrs. Peter Boudreau of East Hartford.

The Tragedy of a WET BED

PACIFIC INTERNATIONAL HAS ENDED BEDWETTING FOR HUNDREDS OF THOUSANDS

When children discover that a playmate wets his bed, the result can be a devastating, lasting and serious psychological problem. The entire family can be affected. The cost and work of taking care of a bedwetting child can cause friction and irritability among parents.

Medical authorities have stated that a bedwetting child feels that he is a disgrace to his family. Statistics prove that bedwetting children achieve below his real ability in school. And the child is embarrassed and ashamed. But, now, bedwetting, when not caused by organic defect or disease, can be ended safely. Our method is endorsed by many doctors. Andover Constables Press For Equipment

Donna Holland
Correspondent

Town Constables met with the Selectmen recently to request equipment for a police cruiser, identification cards, phone stickers and reimbursement for the hours they had worked in June when their budget had been depleted.

The constables said they are tired of toting around with the situation. The town is no closer to resolving the problem than it was three months ago, the constables argued.

The town voted to purchase a cruiser at a town meeting earlier in the year. In May townpeople rejected hiring the services of a resident state trooper at a salary of about $12,500, but approved a budget which included a constable operating budget of $5,500.

The amount approved for the cruiser was $3,000. Townpeople also approved $1,500 for a police cruiser radio light and siren, $700 for a police portable radio, and $500 for a portable radio revenue sharing funds were allocated for the items.

David Yeomans, first selectman, said there wasn't much that could be done until the town received specifications and bids from the Capital Region on what was available and at what cost. He said the information was expected about Sept. 15.

The constables at the meeting were William Kowalski, chairman, and Donald Mike, sergeant. Kowalski said his personal car wasn't going to make it much longer and said "let's get this thing on the road."

Kowalski questioned whether the Capital Region could provide a less expensive cruiser than an area dealer and questioned the feasibility of purchasing from a dealer that might be quite a distance from Andover.

Percy Cook, selectman, said the town should follow up prices from the Capital Region and area dealers and compare them.

There were differences of opinion by those at the meeting as to what townspeople wanted by rejecting the services of a resident state trooper, but approving a cruiser for the constables.

Yeomans said the town had no long range plan in mind for police protection. He said the action at the town meeting did not indicate any change in the town's present policy.

Yeomans said there wasn't any budget for many of those expenses and "tonight is not the night to discuss next year's budget."

Kowalski said it was time for the town to realize times were changing, crime was on the rise and that the constables needed equipment to work with.

and the constables needed equipment to work with. Cook advised the constables to put in black and white what they planned to do and how they planned to do it.

The selectmen did approve the purchase of telephone stickers, a lock for the file cabinet, raincoats and traffic vests. The money will come out of the constables budget.

They also will check into the purchase of a typewriter for the constables. The constables said even though the gun was part of the uniform they purchased their own out of their own money.

One of the selectmen answered that it wasn't really part of the uniform. One of the constables replied, "What do you expect us to do, throw stones?"

Kowalski also requested that the constables be reimbursed for services rendered in June. Kowalski said one could not be reimbursed for services rendered in June. Kowalski said one could not be reimbursed for services rendered in June.

Kowalski said he has been a constable since 1963 and has learned a lot through experience. He said he was the highest vote getter of either party in the last town election.

People have a lot of confidence in me, he said.

Kowalski said the constables need equipment to work with. He said eventually the town would need 24-hour police protection, but couldn't jump into it "you have to start slow and work up," he said.

"All we're asking is a little help from the selectmen, back us up and stop dragging your feet," he said.

The constables also requested used of the downstairs room at the town office building, a police blotter (log book), lock for file cabinet in which to keep confidential records, microphone downstairs so the radio kept upstairs in a locked room could be used, an extension telephone, decals, fire extinguishers for the cruiser and a first aid kit.

Yeomans said there wasn't any budget for many of those expenses and "tonight is not the night to discuss next year's budget."

and many times didn't get paid for it, but they didn't go around talking as Kowalski was doing.

Cook told Kowalski that if he felt he needed more money to send in a written request and it would be turned over to the finance board.

Yeomans said if the constables wanted to question the judgment of the selectmen they could.

Kowalski said the constables would send a letter to the selectmen requesting reimbursement for services rendered in June.

Kowalski said there was a verbal agreement in June between him and Cook that if the constables had to spend time in court they would be reimbursed for time lost from their regular job.

Constable Mike lost two days of work due to a court case. He was reimbursed at the regular constable rate of $3 per hour, considerably less than his regular job paid.

The constables will also send a letter asking the policy specifically pay constables their regular job rate for any time lost.

Kowalski asked where the town could get the services at any time that the constables gave the town. He said money was coming out of their own pockets and the town officials don't seem to appreciate it.

Kowalski said many officials did not seem to appreciate it.

Malfunction Cuts Knievel Canyon Jump Short

TWIN FALLS, Idaho (UPI)—Evel Knievel blasted over the Snake River Canyon in a powerful steam rocket Sunday but a puzzling, premature parachute opening jacked him to a halt and dropped him on the north shore of the river, $6 million richer but 10 seconds short of his 8-year goal.

Knievel's "skycycle" bumped and battered against the lava walls of the canyon as he floated down into the 600-foot deep gorge and bounced onto a rock outcropping.

New Miss America Says She Enjoys Being a Woman

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI)—When Shirley Cothran walked down the runway as the Miss America before over 80 million television viewers, the only thing she could think was "Jeepees! Johnny Carson is probably watching me."

Miss Cothran, 21, of Fort Worth, Tex., laughed Sunday about her nervousness during the nation's largest beauty contest. Each time she went before television, she said she repeated a little prayer.

"I thought, 'Lord, just help me not to trip and fall and to do my best.'" She said she was nervous during the preliminaries, she won a trophy in a bathing suit contest.

Miss Cothran, a teetotaler and devout Baptist, said she had never wanted to try marijuana, because "I believe my body is the temple of God, and I wouldn't want to harm it."

She said she does not smoke and has never taken a drink in her life. "I don't even like the smell of alcohol."

"Before the talent competition, I tried not to think of those millions of people watching. I thought, 'Jeepees! Johnny Carson is probably watching me.' I didn't think of anyone else but Johnny Carson," she said.

The new Miss America, who entered as Miss Texas, favors legal abortions for rape victims or when the life of a mother or child is at stake, and she supports the Equal Rights Amendment.

But she said she would "rather not deal with" questions about amnesty for draft evaders or about other aspects of the women's movement.

Asked if she was a feminist, she replied: "I enjoy being a woman. I thought I am very feminine in my own way. I enjoy putting on a pair of cut-off jeans and putting my hair in a pony tail."

She said President Ford is "in the most exciting position in the nation. She said former

Spurrier, Landry Hurt In Final NFL Contests

NEW YORK (UPI) — While National Football League teams had their last chance to "put it together" before the regular season starts next week, a pair of quarterbacks failed to keep their shoulders in similar condition.

San Francisco's No. 1 signal-caller Steve Spurrier and Detroit Lions' backup Greg Landry suffered separated shoulders in the fourth quarter of the exhibition season.

Spurrier suffered a separation of his passing shoulder in the third quarter of the 49ers' 17-7 loss to the powerful Los Angeles Rams. He will undergo surgery Monday and is expected to be sidelined for at least two months.

Landry sustained a hairline fracture of his non-passing shoulder in the fourth quarter of the Detroit Lions 21-7 win over the Cleveland Browns Saturday night. He is out indefinitely, but should be back before Spurrier.

Detroit is fortunate to have Bill Munson, an 11-year veteran in hand. Munson started last half of the 1973 season for the Lions after Landry underwent knee surgery following the seventh game last year and won the starting nod this year.

San Francisco is not as well stocked with reserve quarterbacks. Joe Reed, who was a third stringer last year, will handle the chores. Spurrier, a former Heisman Trophy winner, finally moved into the No. 1 spot this year after John Brodie's retirement.

The Rams' victory was their fifth straight exhibition win for a 5-1 record, while San Francisco lost all six of its games. David Ray booted a 30-yard field goal, Jack Youngblood ran 54 yards with a recovered fumble (by Spurrier) and John Hadji threw a 10-yard touchdown pass to Harold Jackson for Los Angeles' 17 points. Reed swept five yards on a keeper for the 49ers' lone score.

Munson, whom rookie coach Rick Forzano had named to start the Browns game, completed 15 of 21 aerials for 179 yards and one TD, a 15-yard toss to All-Pro tight end Charlie Sanders.

Landry was not the game's only casualty. The Lions have lost starting safety Mike Weger for an indefinite period with a knee injury.

In other games Sunday, New England dumped Philadelphia 27-17 and Atlanta defeated Denver 20-14.

In games Saturday, Miami mauled Chicago 30-7, Minnesota crushed San Diego 42-0, New Orleans downed Houston 24-16 and Oakland drubbed the New York Jets 31-6.

Patriots 27, Eagles 17
Jim Plunkett fired one touchdown pass and engineered four other scores in rolling up 184 yards passing with 14 completions in 19 attempts as the Pats finished the exhibition season with a 4-2 mark, their best in 14 years.

Falcons 20, Broncos 14
Tom Hayes raced 62 yards with an interception at the outset of the fourth quarter for the winning touchdown as the Falcons overcame a 14-3 halftime deficit.

Dolphins 30, Bears 7
The defending world champion Dolphins, who failed to get a first down until there were nine minutes left in the second quarter, scored 10 quick points in the final 1:34 of the season for the Lions after Landry underwent knee surgery following the seventh game last year and won the starting nod this year.

Forty-year-old reserve quarterback Earl Morrall was 7-for-7 for 102 yards and two touchdowns in a second half stint.

Vikings 42, Chargers 0
Bob Berry passed for three touchdowns and Oscar Reed ran for three more to spur the Vikings to a romp over the Chargers. Berry, battling injured Fran Tarkenton for the starting quarterback position, hit on 13 of 15 passes for 198 yards before leaving the game midway in the third quarter.

Saints 24, Oilers 16
Wide receivers Doug Winslow and Joel Parker ran for a touchdown and ran 19 yards to set up another as Oakland defeated the Jets, Lawrence, a free agent from Iowa, while newly-acquired Frank Pitts on a scoring pass in the third quarter. Early in the final period he ran 19 yards to the New York 15 and three plays later Leroy Kelly scored from the four.

Boston College No. 1 On New England Grid

BOSTON (UPI) — Fellow New England coaches obviously feel Joe Yulka's 1974 Boston College Eagles are in a class by themselves.

In a UPI preseason major college poll answered by 27 coaches, 26 picked the Eagles as the region's top teams, it was announced Thursday.

The Eagles, 7-4 last year and with All-America candidate Mike Esposito returning, gathered 122 points. Boston College, however, will do well to equal its 1973 record, since it opens a toughened 1974 slate Sept. 14 at home against nationally ranked Texas.

Dartmouth, seeking a sixth straight Ivy League crown, was a distant second with 85 points. But the Big Green, who received the only other first place ballot, held a comfortable edge over three other teams that were separated by a single point.

Yankee Conference champion Connecticut and Harvard each accumulated 42 points to tie for third, while Yale rounded out the top five with 41 points. Harvard and Yale finished tied for second in the Ivy League last year with 5-2 league records.

Massachusetts, coming off a 6-5 year that saw the loss of quarterback Peil Pennington and wide receiver Tim Berra, grabbed sixth place with 31 points and Brown, an also ran for many years, picked up 20 points.

Other schools receiving votes included: Holy Cross, 7; New Hampshire, 2; Boston University, 2; and Rhode Island, 1.

Points are awarded on a descending scale, with a first place vote worth five points.

Is my name Rip Van Winkle? Wrong! All of these things happened during my vacation.

As you can see, my vacation was very exciting. For everyone who didn't go.

The biggest shock of all was opening my mail and finding myself addressed in one form letter as "Dear Media Person."

Gad, sir! Smile when you call me that.

They say it takes one to know one, but I ask you in all honesty — do I look to you like a media person?

If so, I'm changing jobs tomorrow.

Anyway, when a media person here misses out on something, the practice is to corner another media person for a "fill." Short for fill-in.

I got my post-vacation fill from Phil Dalperding, media person for the Butterfield Falls Morning Edition and Evening Enquirer.

"Who's this Ford fellow everyone is talking about?" I asked.

"Why that's of Jerry Ford," Phil said, filling in. "You remember him. He used to be House minority leader."

"Of course. There has been for the past year or so?"

"He has been vice president," Dalperding explained. "The Missing Persons Bureau turned him up after Nixon resigned."

Thus filled, I was ready to grasp the topic all of the Washington media persons are writing about — the transition from one President to another.

For Ford, the transition is going smoothly. But a lot of us media persons are having trouble finding the handle.

It's like coming home from a stint as war correspondent and going back to covering Kiwanis Club luncheons.

This will give you an idea — the first press release I encountered upon my return was an Interior Department bulletin that began as follows:

"The polar bear is enjoying a banner year."

The next release, also from Interior, listed items that qualify as authentic Alaskan Native handicraft under the Marine Mammal Protection Act of 1972.

The list included "hunting pants, boots, mattresses, cushions, rifle pads, and ornamental trim made from polar bear fur and hide."

How can a polar bear be enjoying a banner year? Such are the issues we media persons will be dealing with in the transition period.

Dick Nixon, please come home.

Free or Reduced Lunch Policy Adopted by Area Public Schools

The Manchester, Vernon, Bolton, Andover, Tolland, and Coventry Boards of Education have adopted a policy which will allow some students to have free and reduced-price meals or milk under the National School Lunch and Special Milk Program.

The boards and administrators have adopted the following family size and income criteria for determining eligibility for the program:

If the number of persons in a family is one and the income is $2,010 or below then the child is entitled to a lunch reduced cost.

Running from two to 12 persons in a family, in order, the low income level and the reduced lunch cost level, are as follows with the reduced level in brackets: $1,500 ($5,300), $4,740 ($6,530); $5,640 ($7,900); $7,310 ($10,240); $8,060 ($11,200); $8,810 ($12,340); $9,510 ($13,200); $10,190 ($14,260); $10,860 ($15,200); $11,530 ($16,140).

For each additional family member above the 12 an amount of $670 should be added to the low amount and $940 to the high amount.

In addition, families not meeting the criteria set forth, but who have other unusual expenses due to unusually high medical expense, shelter costs, and such, in excess of 30 per cent of their income may be eligible.

All the schools are sending application forms to all homes in letters to parents and additional copies are available at the schools in the four towns.

Each school will also have, on file, a copy of the complete policy which may be reviewed by any interested party. The information provided on the application forms will be confidential and used only for the purpose of determining eligibility. Applications may be submitted any time during the year.

Under the provisions of the policy, the principal in each school will determine eligibility. If a Manchester parent is dissatisfied with this ruling he may contact, either by letter or phone, Mrs. Jean Campbell, chief social worker, 45 N. School St., (646-3554) for a hearing or appeal of the decision.

In Vernon the request for review should be referred to Dr. Robert Lintone, assistant superintendent, Park St., Rockville, (875-5861); in Bolton the appeal should be made to Raymond Allen Jr., superintendent, North Rd., (443-1889); Andover, David Cattanch, superintendent, Gilead Hill School.

In Tolland and Coventry those interested in appealing should call or write the office of the superintendents.

Late for Appointments Today

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) — Both Gary Player and Lee Trevino were late for appointments today.

The two superstars of golf, who battled head-to-head through five sudden death holes in the 13th annual World Series of Golf Sunday on the 7,180-yard par-70 Firestone Country Club course only to be halted by darkness, were to resume their quest for the $50,000 first prize at 10 a.m. (EDT).

The playoff, third in the history of the World Series, which annually matches the winners of the Masters, U.S. and British Opens and the PGA, was halted by PGA Tour Director Jack Tuttil, who ruled at 7:30 p.m. it was too dark to continue.

"I would like to have called it a tie," said Player, who took a three-shot lead over Trevino into Sunday's final 18 holes and who at one time led the "Merry Mex" by six shots. Player had been scheduled to play an exhibition at Hilton Head, S.C., today.

Trevino, who had a one-under-par 69 Sunday and matched the one-under 36-hole total of 129 of Player, who had a 72 in the second round, was not as disturbed about staying around an extra day, possibly for just one hole.

"If a guy goes to see a ballgame he wants to see a winner," said Trevino. "I think the same goes for golf. I have a lot of things to do, but for $50,000 I'll cancel them."

Actually, Trevino is scheduled to be in Newark, Ohio, only 100 miles from here. "I'll just be a little late," he said.

Player, who has won the World Series the last three times he has appeared and who could tie Jack Nicklaus for the most Series victories, four, said he could "not get excited" about continuing the playoff.

"There is no skill involved in it," said the little South African. "Anybody can beat me on just one hole, even a 14 handicapper. Sudden death is the worst thing that can happen in golf."

Bobby Nichols, his best pro at Firestone playing in his second World Series, shot a 37-58-72 Sunday and a 36-hole total of 143 to pick up third money of $7,500. Nichols got into this year's event by virtue of his win in the Canadian Open, the first alternate tourna-

Carner Goal $100,000 Year

DALLAS (UPI) — Prize money on the ladies golf tour has climbed slowly through the years but it is now to the point where one player could win $100,000 in a single year.

JoAnne Carner wants to be that player.

"That's my goal," she said Sunday after winning her fifth tournament of the year—the Dallas Civitan Ladies Open. "I want to be the first to do it."

"A few months ago I would have said I had no chance at all. And the chances are still slim. I figured before coming into this tournament I would have to win four or five of the ones left (there are seven) to have a chance."

Fezler Southern Winner
COLUMBUS, Ga. (UPI) — Forrest Fezler had the feeling he would shed his role as a PGA-tour runnerup in the Southern Open Golf Tournament.

The 24-year-old pro from San Jose, Calif., had finished second to Gary Player in the Southern than $100,000 for "bridesmaid" finishes.

But he put it all together over the Green Island Country Club course Sunday for a nine-under-par total of 271 and a one-stroke victory over Bruce Crampton and J. C. Sneed.

The $20,000 prize money boosted Fezler's earnings for the year to more than $86,000.
