Bicentennial Idea Hearing Tonight

Examining the remains of the last one-room school house left in Manchester are, left to right, Mrs. Carol Kuehl, Nathan Agostinelli, and Francis Mahoney of the Manchester Bicentennial Committee. The men are co-chairmen and Mrs. Kuehl is secretary of the committee which will hold an open hearing tonight at 7:30 in the cafeteria of the Manchester High School. They hope to hear suggested ideas for how the town can best celebrate the nation's 200th birthday. Moving this school from the Vonecker farm on Keeney St. to the Cheney Homestead on Hartford Rd. is one of the suggestions they have already received. "It's the number one project suggested to us so far," Agostinelli said. "It's urgent because it looks like it won't last much longer," Mahoney added. All three urged people to come to the hearing tonight. (Herald photo by Barlow)

Nixon Doctor Says Pardon No Help to Nixon Spirits

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former White House physician Walter Tkach says President Ford's pardon was no help in lifting Richard M. Nixon's spirits.

He described Nixon as a "man looking back and wondering what had happened to topple him from the presidency." Tkach said he has given up, for the time being, trying to persuade the former president to enter a hospital for treatment of the thrombal phlebitis in his left leg.

Oct. 1 Trial
Nixon has been subpoenaed to testify in the Watergate coverup trial of six former aides which begins Oct. 1. While Tkach did not address himself directly to the question whether Nixon would be well enough to appear, he said in general: "I'm recommending to him that he not get under any more pressure."

Tkach, an Air Force major general, was relieved of his White House duty after Nixon resigned and is now command surgeon at nearby Andrews Air Force Base. He flew to San Clemente, Calif., Friday to examine Nixon at the urging of the Nixon family, and said he would go there again late next week.

Tkach said in an interview that he had detected "no depression," but found Nixon suffering from exhaustion and "more concerned" than Tkach observed him to be two weeks ago.

Hartford Fireman Killed in Blaze

HARTFORD (UPI) — Authorities today were investigating a three-alarm blaze that killed one fireman and injured about eight other persons before it was extinguished.

The fire Sunday night swept through Ray's Auto Trim Inc., 529 Park St. The building was gutted by fire the previous night, but investigating authorities refused comment on possible causes.

Fireman Thomas Fisher, 35, of Newington was killed in the blaze when the roof of the building collapsed on top of him.

Officials say the blaze Saturday was completely out, and the fatal fire Sunday swept through the building so quickly that the roof collapsed shortly after the first fire companies arrived.

As many as 175 firemen fought the blaze as firemen from surrounding towns stood by on alert. The others injured included firemen, policemen, an ambulance attendant and spectators. Their injuries were not thought to be serious.

Conditional Amnesty Plan Implemented by President

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford today offered conditional amnesty to thousands of Vietnam era draft evaders and military deserters in exchange for up to 24 months of public service and a reaffirmation of allegiance to the United States.

The offer of conditional amnesty requires that draft evaders and deserters present themselves to a United States attorney or military officials before Jan. 31, 1975. The offer applies to those who violated military law by deserting or evading the draft from Aug. 4, 1964, to March 28, 1973.

Alternative Service

In a special proclamation, Ford said the period of alternative service may be reduced to less than the proposed 24 months by the attorney general, the secretaries of the armed services or the transportation secretary, who has had jurisdiction over the Coast Guard, in cases

"of mitigating circumstances."

In an executive order, Ford also established a nine-member presidential board which will recommend such clemency to the President on a case-by-case basis. "In the absence of aggregating factors, the clemency board would be expected to recommend clemency," Ford said.

Priority Consideration

Ford instructed the board to give "priority consideration" to those men now imprisoned for such offenses and asked that their confinement be suspended as soon as possible, pending the board's review.

House Republican Leader John J. Rhodes, who was one of the congressional leaders from both parties who met with Ford on the amnesty issue before the public announcement, said there was no connection between the amnesty plan and Ford's controversial pardon of former President Nixon.

Rhodes predicted the reaction in Congress to the proposals would be "most favorable." Assistant Senate GOP leader Robert Griffin said the Joint Chiefs of Staff told Ford that his plan "would not undermine the military services."

The offer of amnesty, which went into effect immediately with Ford's announcement, fell short of the demands of the thousands of American young men now living in Canada and Sweden to avoid punishment for deserting or evading the draft.

"Desertion in time of war is a major, serious offense; failure to respond to the country's call of duty is also a serious offense," Ford said in his statement. "Reconciliation among our people does not require that these acts be condoned. "Yet reconciliation calls for an act of mercy to bind the nation's wounds and to heal the scars of deviousness."

The clemency board will consider only the cases of persons who apply before Jan. 31, 1975, and it is expected to complete its work no later than Dec. 31, 1975.

Many Potentially Eligible

The White House said about 15,500 draft evaders are "potentially eligible." Of that total, it said, about 8,700 have been convicted of draft evasion; about 4,350 are under indictment (4,060 listed as fugitives); about 3,000 are in Canada, and about 2,250 are under investigation, but not yet indicted.

About 130 individuals are said to be currently imprisoned for draft evasion. The board will review the records of two kinds of applicants:

—Those who have been convicted of a draft evasion offense committed between Aug. 4, 1964 and March 28, 1973.

—Those who received a punitive or undesirable discharge from the armed forces because of a military absentee offense committed during the Vietnam era or those serving sentences of confinement for such violations.

Deserters were defined by the White House as those absent from the military without authorization for 30 days or more. The White House said about 12,500 deserters still are at large, including about 1,500 in Canada. About 600 are presently serving prison sentences or awaiting military trial.

"In furtherance of our national commitment to justice and mercy these young Americans should have the chance to contribute a share to the rebuilding of peace among ourselves and all nations," Ford said.

Anti-Busing Marchers Ignore Boston Police

BOSTON (UPI) — Defying police, a noisy, unorganized crowd of 200 white youths and parents, staged an anti-busing march through a section of South Boston today, the third day of a court-ordered plan to integrate Boston's public schools.

One arrest was reported. There was no violence, but a few youths threw a couple of ash cans at police. Other children ran across the hoods and roofs of parked cars.

Try to Contain Crowd

Some 300 police tried to contain the crowd with horses, motorcycles and foot patrolmen, but they kept spilling out and tried to move up side streets towards South Boston High School — the most racially troubled of the city's 80 schools affected by the federal court order.

Police cordoned off East Broadway and Emerson Street thus preventing the group from marching on the school.

The march began shortly after classes started and as it appeared that a black boycott of South Boston High School softened when four buses full of black children attended classes.

Liquor Stores Closed

Mayor Kevin H. White called on all liquor stores in South Boston to close until at least 4:30 p.m. — and possibly all day.

Early estimates were that about 200 students, including 110 to 115 blacks children were in classes at South Boston High. Only 61 children, including 25 blacks, 32 whites and four other minorities were in the school Friday. The school has a projected enrollment of 1,480.

Seven buses arrived safely at Gavin Middle School in South Boston. Officials said about 250 children were in classes at the school today, with more blacks in attendance but less whites. There were 207 children at the school Friday. It has an enrollment of 894.

Police Escort Buses

The buses were escorted by police on motorcycles, in cars and mounted on horses. A police helicopter hovered above. Hundreds of other police, spaced only 25 feet apart, lined roads and rooftops in South Boston.

Thomas I. Atkins, president of the Boston branch of the NAACP, rode on one of the buses with the children. Atkins, who earlier called on black parents to keep their children home, had reversed his stand during the weekend and issued an impassioned plea for blacks to send their children to South Boston High School after he became convinced they would be safe.

Disgruntled Officer Destroys Jet Plane

SAIGON (UPI) — Authorities blamed a disgruntled officer in the government's crack anger force today for blowing up an Air Vietnam jet during an abortive attempt to hijack the plane to Hanoi.

Police said the rafter officer, who was recently demoted for car theft, led a three-man band that blew up the Boeing 727 Sunday over coastal Phan Rang air base, killing all 70 persons aboard.

Police identified the hijacker as Le Duc Tan, a 34-year-old lieutenant recently reduced in rank from captain. Police sources said he was "well known around Da Nang as a heavy drinker, womanizer and gambler."

The pilot's radio transmissions to ground controllers indicated Tan, disguised in the uniform of a paratrooper major, had two accomplices in the tragic hijack attempt.

Airline officials said the hijacking began just before noon during a 390-mile flight from Da Nang to Saigon.

The plane carried eight crewmen and 62 passengers. The passengers included an American, a Filipino, a Frenchman and two South Koreans. The American was identified as Bach Lan Truong, a naturalized citizen living in Saigon.

Turkish Premier Resigns

ANKARA (UPI) — Premier Bulent Ecevit, hailed as a hero over his handling of the Cyprus crisis, resigned today, plunging Turkey into its second government crisis in seven months.

Ecevit handed his resignation to President Fahri Koruturk during a one-hour meeting at the presidential palace, a spokesman said.

Refuses to Command

Ecevit refused to answer newsmen's questions when he left the presidential palace.

"The premier will hold a news conference later today," a party official said. Ecevit, a former labor minister who first gave Turkish workers the right to strike, rose to the peak of popularity when he landed troops on Cyprus July 20 to protect the island's Turkish minority.

Relations between the premier's party and the Moslem group, always tense since the start of their partnership in January, soured further when the Moslems publicly claimed credit for the Cyprus intervention and said ministers of Ecevit's party had opposed it.

Trip Sparks Crisis

Matters came to a head in a dispute over who should serve as acting premier during a scheduled foreign trip by Ecevit this week. The Moslems argued Erbakan, as vice premier, was the logical choice for the job, but Ecevit said he would name one of his own followers, State Minister Orhan Eyuboglu.

Ecevit had been scheduled to leave for Norway Wednesday on the first leg of a 12-day tour that also was to take him to Sweden, Finland and Denmark.

Shrine Band Pleases Center Park Audience

By JUNE TOMPKINS

The winning marching band at the national convention of the Shrine in Atlantic City in June won the hearts of townspeople Sunday afternoon as the Sphinx Temple Shrine Band opened a Sunday afternoon concert series in Center Park.

Several hundred men, women and children, and a few dogs, listened to the group in their colorful uniforms as they played a pop-type program.

The Shrine Band was under the direction of John Hefferman, its regular director, who is also an associate director of the Coast Guard Band at the academy in New London.

The band displayed its artistic ability in a variety of rhythms and moods. One of the outstanding selections was the familiar "Trumpeter's Lullaby." A trio of clarinetists from the band performed a lilting "Waltzing Clarinets."

A familiar medley of tunes from the musicals "Oliver" and "The Music Man" along with the favorite "Candy Man" were among the present day popular songs on the program.

The band spiced its repertoire with a little ragtime in Scott Joplin's "The Entertainer."

Harold E. Turkington, a member of the band, announced the program and introduced area members of the band to the audience, and was invited to direct one of the numbers.

The concert, one of a series of three Sunday afternoon concerts in the park, was sponsored by the Retail Trade Commission of the Greater Manchester Chamber of Commerce.

The Manchester Pops Orchestra will perform in the park Sunday, and the Ken Morgester Jazz Group will be heard Sept. 29. The concerts will begin 2 p.m.

In case of rain, the concerts will be in the auditorium at Howell Cheney Technical School at 791 W. Middle Tpke.

A Perfect Day for a Concert in the Park

Honor Court
1st Anniversary
The Manchester Honor Court celebrates the completion of its first year together tonight in the Circuit Court 12 courtroom. Held in the courtroom every Monday evening at 7:30, the sessions have had an average weekly attendance of some 50 persons including those seeking help, a personnel, family relations officers, family and friends. Nancy von Hollen, MACC coordinator of volunteer services to Honor Court, says "everyone concerned feels it has been a very successful year. In part, she continues, "because of the excellent community support Honor Court has received. The coffee, sandwiches, and finger foods served each week by local church groups will be supplemented tonight by a special anniversary cake. A number of special guests including resident Judge Nicholas Armeniano and the chief of family relations for the State of Connecticut, Patrick W. Ward, will be coming to celebrate with us." Honor Court provides an opportunity for persons who have a problem with alcohol to be referred through the court system, the Family Relations Office or by family or friends. The Honor Court program is carried out through the cooperation of the judges of the Circuit Court, Alcoholic Anonymous, family relations officer, and the church and other groups who provide not only refreshments but community support.

Some TV Stars Falter When Old Shows End

By Dick Kleiner
HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — With more and more frequency, it's happening: the detection of TV stars who appear to feel they have outgrown TV. This year, Michael Onkean, one of the three members of the cast of "The Rookies," has departed. There are conflicting stories about how and why — nobody will talk — but the rumors are loud and clear. Onkean, apparently, had begun to feel that he was a Big Star. Doing something like "The Rookies" was beneath him and his capabilities. So he made some heavy salary demands. When they weren't met, he took a walk.

Of course, making salary demands when a contract is up is hardly a new phenomenon. Baseball players do it every year. And, increasingly, TV stars are following that time-honored tradition. Redd Foxx and Carroll O'Connor had their shows over a barrel and got every cent and every job consideration they could in the audience at East Catholic High School. But the case of some of the lesser stars is slightly different. People like Onkean, who begin to believe their publicity really went out and figured they can become major stars on their own.

It's happened before. The classic case is "Mod Squad," which was discontinued at the end of a five-year run. It had three young stars — Michael Cole, Peggy Lipton and Clarence Williams III — and it was still riding high in the ratings when it suddenly ended its run. At the time of Mod Squad's demise the stories were all that the show's three stars all had delusions of grandeur. Cole was still riding high in the ratings when it suddenly ended its run. At the time of Mod Squad's demise the stories were all that the show's three stars all had delusions of grandeur.

In the two years since Mod Squad went off the air, the three stars have not become major stars, as perhaps they had anticipated. Cole says today that the stories circulated then were untrue. "I don't think I didn't want to go back," he says. "It was simply that my five-year contract was up. He adds that it wasn't a question of money, either. The money was fine with him. For a kid who'd never had much, the money was, in fact, spectacular. "The first couple of years on the show," he says, "I blew a lot of money. Because I'd never had any, I can't get a Maserati when you're a busboy."

When the show went off, the assumption was (at least among the three stars) that they were so hot they would move on to bigger, better and more glorious things. It hasn't happened. Miss Lipton and Williams have hardly been heard from. She had a baby. He moved back to New York. Cole has been working, although the major starring movie roles that had been predicted for him failed to materialize.

Ziggy Gozdz, Havlicek Rescue Four in Water
Long-time Manchester resident and Talcoville businessman, Zigmond Gozdz, now residing on Cape Cod, yesterday morning helped rescue four fishermen at the mouth of the Cape Cod Canal. Included in Gozdz' fishing party was John Havlicek, captain of the Cape Cod Canal. Gozdz, a resident of Sandwich, Mass., to safety. Gozdz said the men reported they had been in the cold water for nearly an hour. Two were in deep shock, he said. They reported that they had hit a wave broadside and overturned. One man tried to swim to shore for help but turned back when the waves were too strong. The Coast Guard was called and pulled the men ashore. After the life-saving ordeal, Gozdz and Havlicek continued on to their fishing destination.

Thompson Asks Steele
Manchester Mayor John Thompson, a member of the Democratic party's platform committee, charged Saturday the Republican gubernatorial candidate "seemingly wants to be a Democrat because he never admits to being a Republican or mentions the GOP platform." In his tongue-in-cheek statement, "Bob Steele must sleep with a copy of the Democratic platform under his pillow because he talks about nothing else." The mayor added, "I noticed that Steele's bumper stickers fail to identify him as a Republican. With all his talk about the Democratic platform and his nondescript identity, some people might get the impression he supports the Democrats."

Constitutional Week

Tuesday marks the beginning of another observance of Constitution Week which is fostered locally by the Orford Parish Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

In the almost 200 years the U.S. Constitution was adopted, it has weathered many a political storm but none perhaps as crucial as that of the past year.

A most serious challenge was raised in the form of executive privilege in connection with the Watergate tapes and papers. However, a unanimous U.S. Supreme Court decision limited this executive power, in keeping with the Constitution's basic premise of a system of checks and balances between the executive, legislative and judicial branches of government.

In essence the decision reaffirmed the concept behind our Constitution that laws, rather than the whims and wishes of men, should prevail.

But to assume our Constitution is unchanging is wrong and an assumption never intended by its drafters.

Our Constitution was never intended to be a finished document. Through its basic provisions for amendments and interpretation it is itself is a form of checks and balances. While it rather explicitly defines the co-equality of the three branches of government, in practice it has proven also a check against the excesses of misguided public opinion, as in the 1930s when major social legislation such as the National Recovery Act (NRA) was ruled unconstitutional.

On the other hand, it has been a fountain head for social justice, as in the many rulings concerning racial bias when public opinion was unconcerned. But our Constitution thrives as one of the modern world's more enduring documents because it has meaning for each of us which we cherish, defend and protect.

Without this popular respect and support, it would be a meaningless document.

And to the extent we as individual citizens strive to achieve our social and political aspirations within the spirit of this document, the Constitution of the United States can and will endure.

It will continue to be challenged. It will continue to change because it is our charter of freedom which our forefathers astutely and securely bound together with responsibility.

Oil Price Pressure Up

The world's oil exporting nations have agreed to freeze the price of crude oil at the current $11.65 a barrel and to increase royalties paid by the oil companies to producer governments.

While the amount of the royalty increase was not announced immediately, it was indicated the tactic is intended to insure that oil companies will not pass on royalty costs to the consumer.

If the royalty increase is limited to about 2 per cent, as was done in Quito, Ecuador, in June, oil exporters will probably get strong support from consumers to force the oil companies into absorbing the increased royalty costs in the light of the huge profits reported thus far this year.

Consumer complaints have to date not been too persuasive in keeping prices in line and it is doubtful whether oil companies will absorb the cost.

It may be that oil exporting nations will use the economic tool they used so successfully last winter — the boycott.

Thus the oil companies face an agonizing decision.

Already in hot water because of increases over the past year and the fact that we, and almost all the other oil-poor nations are not self-sustaining, the companies can either undercut their arguments that their profits are justified by absorbing increased royalty fees or face the threat of blame if a boycott is imposed because they increased their prices.

From the consumer point of view, the oil exporting nations action, in the wake of growing supplies of oil which in normal trade relations could bring down prices, is but a refined form of blackmail.

We in America have allowed ourselves to be lulled into complacency since the crisis last winter. It is clearly time that we dust off some of those plans for energy self-sufficiency. The oil exporters are riding high now and for the immediate future we may have to eat some of their costly drug but we cannot accept this for the long run. It may be that oil companies can and should forego passing on the extra royalty cost this time around but they can't nor should they be expected to absorb a royalty increase every six months or so when the oil exporting nations' decide to fatten their treasuries.

True Healing For Entire Body

Dear Sir:

Culmination of the machinations between President Ford and San Clemente, abtroll since August 30 (spawped, I suspect, before the wily Nixon's resignation) have debunked the pleasant myth of an "open administration."

The pious implication that the shattering announcement was the result of prayer, a directive from God to his conscience, turns me off. Too easy. The Nixon touch has obviously contaminated that conscience.

Unfortunately Nixon's communications with the Almighty via Billy Graham et al, shortchanged him in compassion ("no amnesty," "return the dead penalty" veto of all humanitarian legislation).

President Ford's decision is an affront to the premise that all men are equal under the law and a blow at democracy but we are supposed to believe that the divine justice revealed to him abrogates all that in favor of just one man who, above all others, should have respected the laws of the land.

This latest coverup cancels the hoped-for "cleansing process" of the Watergate trauma; now its lesson is that a dishonest president can hand pick a successor who will carry on for him, have compassion for his disregard of law, preclude knowledge of the truth, and prevent accountability for his acts. (And quickly too.)

Equal justice now demands that all prisoners serving time for similar crimes, breaking and entering, obstruction of justice, perjury, etc., and for far lesser offenses, should be released and receive some redress. These prisoners "loved ones have already suffered enough" under far less fortunate circumstances than the $80,000 and other excessive emoluments granted the Nixons.

Draft evaders who have paid with years of exile from "loved ones who have already suffered enough" should be accorded the unconditional welcome long overdue. The "healing process" cannot be limited to the rich and powerful; true healing must be for the entire body.

The Pardon Storm

NEW YORK CITY — Gerald Ford has learned how suddenly a President's image changes — hailed one day as a fresh, open spirit, booted the next. Yet it doesn't follow that it can change back just as easily, from boozing to cheering. When the pardon storm has abated, President Ford will doubtless retrieve some measure of the credibility he lost by the manner and timing of the pardon. But something important will have vanished. Each wave of disillusionment leaves a deposit behind which erodes the trust that had been built up.

Mr. Ford and his close adviser, Philip Buchen, were moved by a mixture of motives — in part compassionate, in part political. It was a political as well as personal pardon, so don't omit the political element behind it. Mr. Ford couldn't tolerate the prospect of the former President in jail, nor could he tolerate the drawn-out legal and court process that would get him there.

He knew he would have to pardon Nixon someday, and decided to do it sooner rather than later, before Leon Jaworski could move to indict him and before the inevitable wave of anti-Nixon feeling began to build up again. If he waited, it could imperil the 1976 elections for himself and his party.

The reasoning was plausible. But it omitted one factor, the crucial one. Mr. Ford failed to calculate on the widespread feeling about the arbitrary Watergate figures was "under study," the fear of arbitrariness came close to panic. President Ford had to move quickly to disown the report of a blanket amnesty, but he had suffered damage again. The legend in private life that disasters come not in ones but twos may apply to public life as well.

Mr. Ford seems to be his worst when he is working furtively with a tiny circle of advice, cut off from the currents of opinion. He seems to be best when he is working more openly with a broad spectrum of consultation. The latter is his true style, and he will do well to stick to it. Remember that Gerald Rutherford, Mr. Ford's former press secretary, resigned because there were too many things going on secretly that were being kept from him.

The whole pardon play might have raised less of a storm at another time in a different and earlier America — the America of Eisenhower, Kennedy, Johnson, Nixon. The nation was more naive then. It has lost much of its innocence. It has become a more passionate republic.

To the earlier anxieties about freedom there have been added a passion for equal justice and a fear that it will be replaced by the arbitrary use of presidential power. This doesn't make the American republic an easy one to run. It has become devilishly hard. Any man or group who tries to do it by wile and surprise will have misreckoned with the temper of the time and with the mood of an awakened people.

Rockefeller Indeed A Politician

WASHINGTON — Once upon a time Nelson Rockefeller told reporters, "I'm proud to be a politician." That was on Oct. 30, 1973. A little more than a year later, on June 7, he announced, "You know I'm not basically a politician."

Well, without belaboring the subject, Rockefeller is indeed a politician and always has been. No one but a politician could have survived almost four terms as governor of New York, where amateurs are served up as appetizers in smoke-filled rooms. As a politician, he would have liked to be President, perhaps he still does — hope dies hard in the politician's breast.

But because above all the politician wants a victory, Rockefeller is indeed a politician. All of which suggests that Rockefeller is Gerald Ford's kind of man. Ford is basically a conservative and Rockefeller likes to describe himself as a centrist, but in fact neither is a rigid ideologue, as revealed by Ford's moderate stand on amnesty and Rockefeller's prudent turn to the right during his last years in Albany.

I suggest that both are pragmatists in the best sense of the word. Ford might well have addressed himself to the subject of national priorities in the same language Rockefeller used last February.

We know so much today, as a nation, that the ideal is way beyond the realistic grasp of our society," Rockefeller said. "Therefore, what the government's got to do is to combine the ideal with the realistically do-able, or possible, and balance one sector out against another."

In the House, Ford always worked for what could be done in a given, controversial situation.

Ford Continues Changing Staff to Fit His Style

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford is still shaping his White House staff to suit his style of work.

His organization and operation will become clearer with the departure this week of Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr., the Nixon holdover chief of staff who is being named supreme commander of NATO forces.

Some Nixon holdovers remain, but they soon will be leaving their White House posts with the end of the transition period.

The man Ford appears to rely on the most for advice, speech writing and secret keeping is Robert T. Hartmann, a White House counselor, who appears to have more clout with the President than anyone else on the staff.

Hartmann was Ford's chief of staff when Ford was vice president. There are recurring reports of friction between Hartmann and Haig.

As Ford's chief speech craftsman, Hartmann quips Ford's speeches, which were once called "simple" and now are described as "eloquent."

With the help of another speech writer, Milton Freedman, Hartmann drafted the inaugural address Ford delivered in the East Room Aug. 8.

He occupies the small office once used by former President Richard Nixon's personal secretary, Rose Mary Woods, but he likely will move to Haig's more luxurious suite on the other side of the Oval Office when Haig departs.

Nearness to the Oval Office is the major sign of power in the White House. When Hartmann is not around, the President can be heard to say "where's Bob?"

Hartmann formerly was chief of the Washington bureau of the Los Angeles Times, and he served as House minority sergeant at arms for several sessions before becoming a legislative assistant to then Republican leader Ford.

He is stocky, has a florid face and is described as extremely "sensitive" to political nuances. But he has an abrasive manner that sometimes rubs other staffers the wrong way.

He thoroughly understands Ford and was one of the small circle of associates in the secret negotiations that resulted in an unconditional pardon for former President Nixon.

One of the most important slots in the Ford administration is now vacant because of that pardon. J. F. TerHorst, Ford's first appointee, resigned as press secretary one month after he took the job the day the pardon was announced, on grounds of "conscience."

Ford is looking for a replacement which is no easy task in view of TerHorst's stand and the fact that he was "misled" by other senior advisers about the pardon. TerHorst felt his own credibility was at stake.

John W. Hushon, 39, deputy press secretary, has been serving temporarily as Ford's chief spokesman. Hushon was director of public information at the Justice Department with five attorney generals. He previously worked for the Detroit News and is a native of Detroit.

Among Ford's closest advisers in his former Grand Rapids, Mich., law partner, white haired Philip W. Buchen, 58, who serves as counsel and was recently elevated to cabinet rank. Buchen handled the pardon negotiations and is holding talks with Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski in custody of the Watergate tapes.

Buchen held two news briefings to explain the pardon and is one of the new ad-ministrations's most articulate spokesmen. He attended the University of Michigan Law School and was one of the small group of Ford associates who laid early plans for Ford's accession to the presidency, just in case Nixon resigned.

Counselor John O. Marsh Jr., formerly Ford's assistant for defense affairs when Ford was vice president, is highly visible as a key adviser. Marsh, 47, served four successive terms in the House as a Virginia Democrat.

Marsh sits in on the staff meetings and is privy to Pentagon matters and veterans affairs.

Among those at the top is L. William Seidman, of Grand Rapids, a successful accountant before joining Ford's vice presidential staff. Seidman, 50, is an organizer and is in charge of the forthcoming economic summit meeting as its executive director.

He is a longtime intimate of the Ford family. Years ago, First Lady Betty Ford taught Seidman to dance. He is short, stocky and assertive.

Ford also has kept on his staff two of Nixon's counselors. One is Anne Armstrong, who has a number of areas under her supervision, including the bicentennial celebration, women and Spanish-speaking groups. Mrs. Armstrong has been active in arranging Ford meetings with women leaders.

The other counselor is Dean Burch, who is Ford's key political adviser and also watches over the regulatory agencies. Burch, a lean, tense man in former chairman of the Federal Communications Commission and a Phoenix, Ariz., Goldwater Republican.

William E. Timmons is Ford's chief liaison assistant with Congress, a Nixon appointee, who has been asked to stay on Timmons and Ford had a long association

Gray Becomes Eagle Scout

Gray is 17 and is a student at Rockville High School. He joined Troop 11 in 1968 and has served as assistant patrol leader, patrol leader, quartermaster, assistant senior patrol leader, and is currently senior patrol leader. He is an official of the Order of the Arrow, Wiponook Lodge.

Gray attended St. John's Episcopal Church in Vernon and is presently serving as the president of its young people's fellowship.

A senior at the high school, Gray hopes later to pursue higher education in the science or medical field. He plays saxophone and is a member of the Concert Band, Marching Band, and Woodwind Ensemble groups as well as the Ski Club at the high school.

Several other scouts received a number of awards Wednesday night, among them were John Hayes who was raised to the rank of Eagle several months ago. He was presented with the Bronze Palm.

Tom Maguire is scoutmaster of Troop 11.

Brunells Host Exchange Student

American students go to other countries but the program does not involve direct exchanges.

The Roger Brunell family of 41 Forestview Dr., Vernon, has as its guest, Angela Drosser, an exchange student from Germany.

She is here under the "Youth for Understanding" program and is a senior this year at Rockville High School.

Although the program is new in this area, it has been in existence for 23 years. Mrs. Glen Bonderman of Colubine Rd., Tolland, is area representative.

If any area family is interested in having one of the exchange students live with them they should contact their local high school, or Mrs. Bonderman at 875-0901. She is also interested in finding complements including: library displays and story hours, preschool screening to detect hearing and "lazy eye" difficulties, a $500 scholarship to a Tolland High School graduate, sponsorship of a girls' basketball team, a sports program, adoption of a woman's hall at Mansfield State Training School, "Meet Your Candidate" program near local elections, and many others. Mrs. Michael Lauria, Mrs. Evan Mandiger, Mrs. Donald Seligman, Mrs. Donald Sierakowski, and Mrs. Fred Wuscheski.

The ways and means committee is making plans for a casino night Nov. 18 at St. Bernard's Church in Rockville.

The arts committee made arrangements for the display at the Tolland Library featuring a collection of dolls made in Germany and representing storybook characters. The collection belongs to Laura Matto and will be displayed all month.

Miller: Stands On Record

"I pledge to do nothing in the future which might tarnish my record of concern for and trust by the people of my district," said Dorothy Miller in an opening campaign statement.

Mrs. Miller is the Republican incumbent to the Connecticut House of Representatives for the 5th District which includes Andover, Bolton, Columbia, Hebron, Marlborough and a part of Vernon.

Mrs. Miller said, "I believe the people of 5th District ap-

Investment Chatter
NEW YORK (UPI) — Since former President Richard Nixon's resignation Aug. 8, the "stock market has behaved in a manner suggesting the anticipation of nothing short of economic havoc," says Harris Upham & Co. The firm says it is not pessimistic, however, but "the extent of the market's descent in the past month has come as something of a surprise."
The selling "habits" taken over the stock market, according to Abraham & Co., "and investors have learned to lead lives of quiet desperation — perhaps a new form of stock market hysteria." The firm says it would be sensible for the market to move upward in light of its recent pounding but there are no assurances it will perform this way.

Peck Store Chain Officially Fatally Injured

LITCHFIELD (UPI) — A. Wells Peck, former board chairman of the fashionable Peck & Peck store chain has died at a hospital in Torrington of injuries received when he was run over by his own car last week. He was 85. The chain of women's stores was started in 1899 by Peck's father and uncle. Peck started working for the firm in 1907 while a student at Yale and continued with the business after graduating from Yale Law School in 1911. Peck served as a Coast Guard artillery officer in World War I. After taking over as chief executive of the firm, he built it from 10 stores to a coast-to-coast operation with 70 outlets in 1970. He retired and sold the chain. His chief retirement activities included raising eight hounds, fishing and involvement in animal humane groups, especially the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. State police said Peck parked his car in his garage last Wednesday, but failed to set the brake. He left the car and began walking down the sloped driveway. The car rolled out of the garage, hit him, and passed over his body. He was taken to Charlotte Hungerford Hospital, where he died Sunday. He is survived by his second wife, Catherine, two sons by his first marriage, which ended in divorce in 1926, and a brother. Services are scheduled for Wednesday at St. Michael's Episcopal Church in Litchfield.

Minister's Namesake
KIEL, Germany (UPI) — A cow gave birth to a calf just when Defense Minister Georg Leber walked past a farmstead during a recent NATO military exercise. The farmer, recognizing Leber, named the newly born calf "Schorsch," the Hesse dialect expression for Leber's first name, Georg. When Leber heard of the calf's name, he sent the farmer a bottle of liquor and congratulatory letter.

Weekend traffic accidents claimed four lives, including the state's 29th motorcycle victim of the year and a three-month-old baby girl.

Classified

The one word that's worth a thousand pictures!

A picture may be worth a thousand words in sentiment, but when it comes to selling nothing covers the market as well as a little word ad. In fact, just one word, Classified, means many thousands of buying and selling opportunities, like homes and apartments, big and small appliances, musical instruments, toys and sports equipment, pets, repair services, new and used cars, home furnishings and all kinds of marine equipment and supplies.

We could go on, but we think you have the picture. Every day thousands of people sell many thousands of non-longer-used items for hundreds of thousands of dollars. Have you looked at your attic, basement or garage lately?

Picture yourself saving money on one hand and earning extra cash on the other with just one word: Classified.

Little Old Lady trounces Ozzie

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Jim: "How about some article on the Little Old Ladies?"
Oswald: "I can tell you one thing about them. They have become a lot younger of late. In fact I would be inclined to refer to them as the Little Old YOUNG Ladies."

Jim: "They all used to be underbidders. Today they are unpredictable. Point cut is probably responsible."

Oswald: "They sure got to me in a recent duplicate game. I sat East. North's six notrump bid followed the remark, 'I really shouldn't bid this against Mr. Jacoby.'"
