Rain Shortens Jazz Concert in the Park

The final Concert Series '74, sponsored by the Retail Trade Commission of the Greater Manchester Chamber of Commerce was cut short by rain Sunday afternoon. More than 100 persons risked the impending rain threat to come out and listen to Ken Morgester's Jazz Band. Earlier in the month, a concert was given by the Spinx Temple Shrine Band. The concerts were held in Center Park. (Herald photo by Pinto)

Experts Agree on Problems; But Widely Split on Solutions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The economic experts could agree on this: The United States is facing runaway inflation and rising unemployment. But they could not agree on solutions, and now President Ford is asking ordinary citizens to help.

In his closing speech Saturday to the summit meeting on the economy, Ford said:

"Right now make up a list of 10 ways you can save energy and fight inflation. Little things that have become habits but don't really affect your health and happiness. Exchange your family's list with your neighbors and send me a copy.

Asks for Ideas

"Some of the best ideas come from your home rather than the White House. The success or failure of our fight against inflation rests with every individual American.

The speech talked of a federal budget limited to $300 billion, hinted of a national energy policy, public service jobs and changes in the tax system to "encourage savings, stimulate productivity, discourage excessive debt and to correct inflation-caused inequities."

There were few specifics, but Ford promised recommendations for "a coherent and consistent program" within 10 days.

Two days of talk in the huge, oval-shaped underground ballroom of the Washington Hilton did not paper over the sharp ideological splits that still exist after a month of summitry.

—Labor and spokesmen for the poor and for consumers feel the Ford administration may be ready to trade off higher unemployment to create the marketplace slowdown that can lead to lower prices.

—Farmers fear the elements of scarcity that gave them a short-lived boom in recent years will be built out of the system through the creation of food reserves and controls on farm exports.

Imbalances Feared

—Democrats contend tax incentives designed to induce consumers to save, investors to invest and businesses to expand are bound to create greater imbalances in the tax system.

—Many felt the Federal Reserve had gone too far in controlling the amount of currency and credit in the economy, leading to high interest rates.

But Fed Chairman Arthur F. Burns made it clear the squeeze would continue until the government showed itself prepared to control inflation through other means—budget discipline and influencing labor and business to lessen their appetites.

On one point, no dispute existed. Gloom over U.S. vulnerability to foreign control of the price and supply of petroleum spread over the conference like an oil slick.

The experts were still in disagreement Sunday.

The conservatives said the first priority was to cut federal spending—which could itself increase unemployment. The liberals felt the poor and middle class should have cushions for the effects of inflation and were again proposing controls on wages, rents and prices.

In a broadcast interview (on NBC's "Meet the Press"), Chairman Alan Greenspan of the Council of Economic Advisors said, "I think we have stagflation already."

"I'd say that the current state of affairs in which we find ourselves—that is low double-digit inflation and an unemployment rate that was last published at 5.4 per cent—is already this state."

Two Democrat Leaders Favorable to Gaffney

HARTFORD (UPI) — Despite the Connecticut Bar Association's view that former Republican State Chairman J. Brian Gaffney is unqualified to serve on the state's second highest court, he should have little trouble getting confirmed.

The ranking minority members of the legislature's Judiciary Committee, on which Gaffney served as a representative, both had words of praise for their former colleague.

"I can't anticipate nonconfirmation," said Sen. Joseph J. Fauliso, D-Hartford. "Divorcing myself from partisan politics, I think the fellow will make a good judge."

Impression Favorable

Rep. James T. Healey, D-Waterbury, gave a similar assessment of Gaffney. "My impression of him is extremely favorable," he said, describing Gaffney as "knowledgeable and intelligent."

Fauliso and Healey are in line to become Senate and House chairmen of the Judiciary Committee if the Democrats win majorities in the Nov. 5 election.

The state bar association's judiciary committee found Gaffney unqualified to serve as a Superior Court judge, the second highest court in Connecticut, but "cleared" him for the Court of Common Pleas, a lower court.

Fauliso said there are no public hearings on state judgeships as there are at the federal level.

The appointment to the $31,925 post, made Saturday by Gov. Thomas J. Meskill in a letter to Gaffney, fills the vacancy created by Judge John J. Casale of Torrington, who retired as a full-time judge Sept. 1.

Because the legislature is not in session and will probably not be called into special session, Meskill's appointment is an "interim" one. Gaffney will serve without confirmation for the next three months.

He is expected to be sworn in early next week. The legislature will have to either confirm or turn down his nomination for a full term by the sixth Wednesday of the next legislative session.

Ignores Pledge

Meskill appointed Gaffney despite a written pledge in 1970 to the state bar association that he would "refuse to nominate for judicial office any individual who is found not qualified by the Judiciary Committee of the Connecticut Bar Association."

James R. Greenfield, president of the state bar, said no governor has made an appointment to the courts without bar endorsement since 1950.

Yale Law School Professor Geoffrey C. Hazard Jr. called the method of selecting judges in Connecticut "a kind of retirement program for people in politics."

Bar Standards Defended

Hazard, a reporter for the American Bar Association Commission on Standards Relating to Judicial Administration, said the bar "doesn't apply unreasonably high standards."

Herald Observing 60th Year as Daily

By SOL R. COHEN

Today is 60 years to the day since The Manchester Evening Herald became a daily newspaper.

It was on Sept. 30, 1914 that the paper, then almost 34 years old, graduated from a semi-weekly to a daily—and not without considerable misgivings.

The decision was made by Elwood Starr Ela, founder of The Manchester Saturday Herald in 1881, when in partnership with Thomas Pratt of Rockville, and principal owner in 1914.

News Shortage Feared

His associates and staff members in 1914 argued it would be difficult to find news to fill a paper every day and even harder to set it in type on the plant's two typesetting machines. They insisted there was no news outside Manchester other than excerpt reprints from other newspapers.

Ela persisted and The Herald's history as a daily began. In 1914, Manchester's population was about 15,000 and The Herald's circulation about 2,000. Today, Manchester's population is about 50,000 and The Herald's circulation about 15,000.

Incidentally, the first edition of The Manchester Saturday Herald was published Dec. 17, 1881 and was distributed free.

Watergate Cover-Up Trial Opens Tuesday

WASHINGTON (UPI) — On the eve of the Watergate cover-up trial, U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica today granted a government motion to give one of the defendants, Gordon L. Strachan, a separate trial.

The cover-up trial—expected to be the culmination of the scandals that have absorbed the nation during the past two years and brought the resignation of President Nixon—is scheduled to begin at 9:30 a.m. EDT Tuesday with Sirica presiding.

Sirica granted the motion to sever Strachan's case from the other five defendants, but declined to reconsider his motion to dismiss the charges. The government had asked that the trial be separated because it has had difficulties with Strachan's indictment.

As with the other defendants Strachan, an aide to former White House chief of staff H.R. Haldeman, was indicted for conspiracy and in addition was indicted for obstruction of justice and lying.

In addition to Haldeman, the other defendants to go on trial Tuesday were former Attorney General John N. Mitchell, former White House aide John D. Ehrlichman, former assistant Attorney General Robert C. Mardian and Kenneth W. Parkinson, an official of the Nixon re-election committee.

But Nixon—named as an unindicted coconspirator in the cover-up—was the main center of attention.

The former president is the star witness. He is no longer subject to federal prosecution for whatever he did, because of the full pardon he received Sept. 8.

Might Be Full Airing

The trial might provide the fullest airing of whatever his role was.

Nixon resigned as president Aug. 9. He has been in a hospital 3,000 miles away for a week, and his lawyers suggest he is too ill to testify at the trial, or to answer questions the lawyers say only he can answer.

Both Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski and Ehrlichman have subpoenaed Nixon.

Presumably, Jaworski needs him to certify the authenticity of the 30 hours of White House tapes the prosecution wants to use, and Ehrlichman wants to show he was acting as the president's agent.

Chief trial prosecutor James F. Neal will take six weeks to two months to make his case.

Since five burglars were arrested inside the Democratic National Committee at the Watergate complex June 17, 1972, a series of events have come to light wider than any Washington fiction.

There were the White House "plumbers" and their 1971 break-in at the office of a psychiatrist treating Pentagon Papers defendant Daniel Ellsberg.

There were allegations of widespread wiretapping—including eavesdropping in the Oval Office—"enemies lists" and a campaign to raise illegal corporate political campaign contributions.

Four Cabinet Members

Four former Cabinet members and several top aides in the Nixon White House and re-election committee were accused—and in 14 cases, convicted—of crime.

Nixon resigned as the House neared an impeachment vote. The trial will begin in the large ceremonial court room on the sixth floor of the U.S. district Court house, with jury selection expected to consume several days and the trial most likely lasting until Christmas.

James F. Davey, clerk of court, said between 650 and 675 persons were on call for jury duty. Of these, 170 have been told to report Tuesday, 190 on Wednesday and 150 on Thursday.

After the jury is selected, the trial will be moved to Sirica's own Courtroom No. 2 on the second floor.

DevCo Seeks Approval Of Coventry Project

MONICA SHEA
Correspondent

The Greater Hartford Community Development Corporation today filed an application for a change of zone and the addition of a new section to the zoning regulations in Coventry which would permit and regulate a planned new community on 1,534 acres which DevCo controls in the northwest corner of Coventry.

David Hewitt, DevCo board chairman, commenting on today's submission, said, "This plan for the proposed new community in Coventry has been thoroughly reviewed, though each step of the planning process, by members of the DevCo Board of Directors. We feel it reflects a thoughtful and responsible approach to land conservation and development."

Two Years of Planning

Peter Libassi, president of DevCo, added to Hewitt's comments by noting, "Nearly two years of work on the plan for the new community have been successfully completed with this submission. We look forward now to full and public discussion with the people of Coventry and town officials, as the town's review process begins."

Accompanying today's application are a proposed zoning regulation of a planned community as well as a petition to establish the boundaries of a planned community zone and to approve the general development plan and first phase detailed development plan for the proposed project.

The submission to the Planning and Zoning Commission also includes in-depth reports on municipal impact, environmental impact, and populations projects, and various required legal and technical documents.

6,000 Unit Planned

The total number of dwelling units in the new zone is 6,000 with an intended overall maximum density of four units per acre.

Of the 1,534 acres controlled by DevCo it proposes to leave 27 per cent of it into open space.

The proposed plan calls for a broad range of housing types and hopes to draw its residents from the housing market of Windham and Hartford areas.

The proposed new community would be serviced by water from wells on land owned by the applicant in the Willimantic River Valley. This land is above a major aquifer with a projected water yield of 20.7 million gallons per day.

Sewer Plans

In the general development plan, the community would preferably be sewered by a townwide sewer system, or if that isn't feasible a system in the proposed

Storms Cause Outages

By United Press International

More than 5,000 homes were left without electricity for varying periods over the weekend as a storm brought strong winds, some hail and as much rain in two days as normally falls in Connecticut during September.

Communities in the Naugatuck Valley were hit hard by the storm, which knocked out power to some 2,000 Connecticut Light and Power customers in the area just before midnight Saturday.

Crews restored service to 1,500 homes two hours later but the rest had to wait until 7 a.m. Sunday, according to CL&P spokesmen.

In Southbury, the downpour cut power to 1,400 customers for three hours, and power was restored early Sunday.

A fallen tree limb in Newington left about 950 customers in the dark for one hour, and in Watertown 600 homes were without electricity for a brief period.

Lightning struck a utility pole in Granby early Sunday, cutting power briefly to about 500 homes.

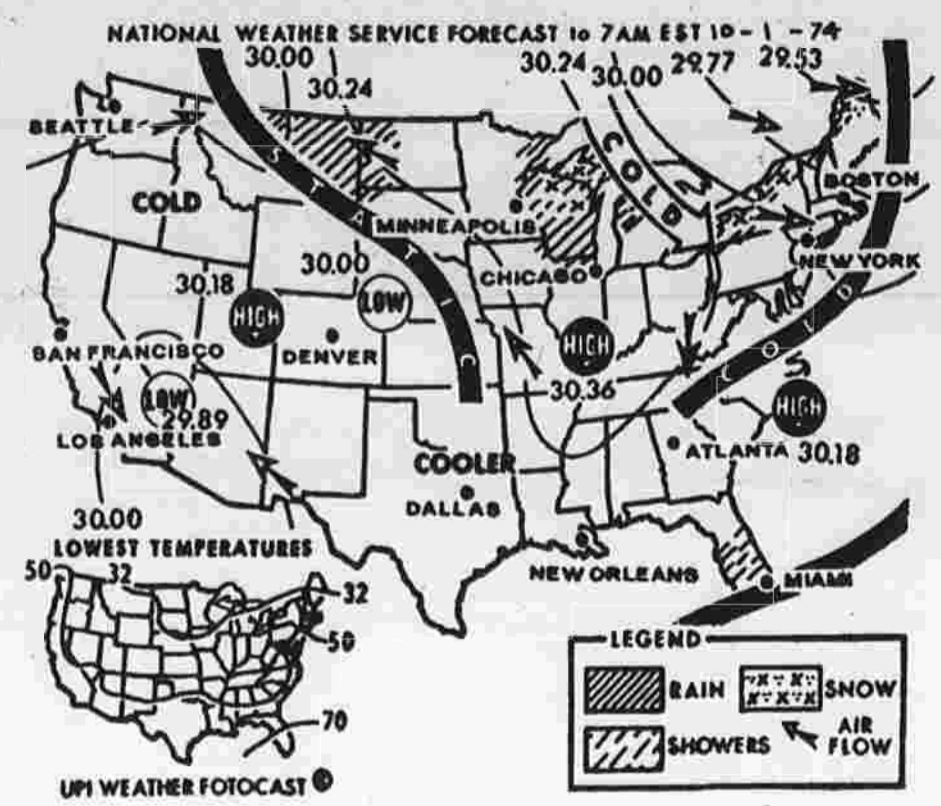

Highway flooding as reported in several sections of the state, and some areas reported hailstones the size of dimes. The National Weather Service at Bradley International Airport in Windsor Locks reported the rainfall there over the weekend amounted to 3½ inches, about what Connecticut usually gets for the entire month of September.

Manchester Evening Herald OPINION

One Man's Patronage Is....

This is a tale of two political issues. Both have to do with political patronage.

One is the issue of superior court judgeships.

The other is the issue of state leasing practices.

In the case of superior court judgeship nominations and that of J. Brian Gaffney, in particular, the Democratic nominee for governor has stated her intention to make judge nominations in concert with the state bar association. It is a pledge which Gov. Thomas Meskill also made but is making an exception to in the case of his political pal, Gaffney.

The point is that campaign pledges might be more easily made than kept, especially when the constitutional responsibility for appointments is the governor's, whoever he or she might be, and whatever procedures used for screening are entirely up to the governor.

Forgotten in the matter, we think, is that while it is possible for a governor to make a bum choice, it is equally possible for the state bar to err in its judgment of proposed candidates.

The real issue is much more sophisticated than who is consulted in determining a candidate for the bench.

The issue is whether the state bar or the national bar for that matter, should by inference, implication or political pressure, have a veto power over judicial appointments.

If this is what the people desire, then the state and federal constitutions should be amended accordingly. But until this is done, criticism of the judiciary appointment process on the basis that certain nominees are not acceptable to the legal profession's union, is just so much political propaganda.

The other issue, state leasing, involves patronage too.

While an effort is being made to get to the bottom of the practice by a legislative committee and other efforts are being made to link Gov. Meskill directly to some of the dubious leases granted during his administration, it is significant that neither candidate has offered an alternative to the present practice.

It would appear to us that patronage, whether state leases or political plums, is a hot potato within the parties. Both are willing, if the opportunity presents itself, to criticize the opposition for alleged abuses of patronage power, yet neither convincingly promotes abolishing the practice.

Patronage is still a part of the election process and if we assess the attitudes we have seen to date in our state it will become a bigger part because of the limitations being imposed under election reforms, which significantly have skirted the patronage issue.

In summary, two patronage issues are in the news.

Mrs. Ella Grasso, the Democratic candidate, is seeking to exploit the judicial one just as Gov. Meskill did when he was a candidate. This practice is apparently par for the course and relatively meaningless since there is no legal requirement that any candidate for a state judgeship be bar association inspected, stamped and approved as prime, cheap, or commercial grade.

Her opponent, Robert H. Steele, has been silent on the Gaffney appointment since he disposed the Meskill cronies as state party chairman.

But the silence of both on the state leasing issue is the clincher. If either is elected, both apparently have made patronage commitments which they feel they must honor and both are willing to toss the patronage hot potato to the legislative committee conducting the leasing investigation.

It may be just a coincidence but the committee is not expected to issue any report until after the election.

Exit Ted

NEW YORK CITY — You couldn't have asked for a more final exit from presidential politics than Ted Kennedy's. If ever a door was closed on a future presidential nomination, this was it. Whether it will stay closed forever, no one can say. Forever is a long time. But certainly, pressed by family tragedy, frustrated by political reverses, bedeviled by Chapquiddick, Sen. Kennedy now means the door to stay shut.

One must not play down the sadness of it. Politics is trouble, first for Nixon, then for Mr. Ford, now for Kennedy. It has been trouble for all the Kennedy brothers and for their families. And the people? The people have some compassion — at times — but they also have anger. Ted's two brothers were heroes for years, even more when they became martyrs. Ted himself seemed to carry the special family magic with him for a time. But he became a flawed hero. And the flaw brought the anger.

Certainly the family troubles counted heavily in his decision, but they were not the whole story. The post-Watergate moral storm was a big part of it. A tempest of moral anger has been sweeping the nation. Whoever gets in its path — for whatever reason, even for non-Watergate reasons — they're swept away. That happened to Ted Kennedy.

DON OAKLEY

More Disparity Than Justice in Court

We use the term "delivery system" when we talk about means and process by which people obtain the treatment they may need, chiefly from the nation's physicians and hospitals. The term has to do both with their availability and their competence.

There is a "delivery system" in the field of law, too, the means and process by which justice is meted out to offenders as well as to the innocent who are offended against. In this "delivery system," the nation's judges are the primary agents and to them we have given immense power and wide latitude.

All men may be equal before the law (although some doubts have been raised about that of late), but the law is not equally administered by those charged with the responsibility of administering it.

The results of the survey moved one commentator to describe the nation's system of justice as "roulette in the courtroom."

The survey dealt with hypothetical cases. A real-life example of how justice can be delivered — or misdelivered — and an illustration of the vast discretion enjoyed by our judges is found in an incident that took place in Cleveland the other day.

A man described by police as the principal supplier of LSD to pupils at a local high school had pleaded guilty to two narcotics charges. The first carried a mandatory prison sentence of not less than 20 years to life, the second a mandatory sentence of not less than 10 years nor more than 25.

Whatever "mandatory" means under the law, it apparently does not mean mandatory. Common Pleas Judge Frank J. Gorman sentenced the pusher to five years' probation.

Time To Unite

To the editor: I've sat back long enough and listened to everyone making excuses for draft evaders and deserters.

I think the amnesty that President Ford proclaimed is quite fair. These men are getting off quite easy. It's about time the American people started making a decision on what kind of society we're going to live in and the standard of values we're going to follow.

I didn't read Mr. Hayden's letter. I wish I had, but I did read Mr. McKinney's letter. I can understand somewhat of what he says. My husband also served in Vietnam. But whether this was a wrong or right war, these men committed a criminal act by deserting and when they left they knew the chances they were taking.

It's an awful thing to make the boys who fought over there feel as if they were the guilty ones for not deserting and all they did was follow orders their country gave them.

So how is it we can make excuses for these men who deserted when the same American people found former President Nixon guilty of a crime two years ago before all evidence was in? They actually forced a man out of office before he had a trial and yet people walk around saying how well our Constitution works. I'm not claiming what he did was right nor am I making excuses for him.

To me, I didn't see any Constitution at work, at least not by the American people. If you call convincing a man and forcing him out of office is constitutional before a trial could be had and he be found guilty, and yet let draft evaders and deserters come home with unconditional amnesty (which a lot of people want) or everyday criminals get off so easy because our laws and courts are too lenient, then we better start examining our consciences.

We've got bigger problems now that the American people should be more concerned with. Inflation, food shortage, gas, oil, are the things we should be working at to get our country back on its feet again. This is a great country to live in even with its faults. So we should put our hate behind us and make this an even better America to live in. We can only do this if we unite with each other and work together.

Tennis Courts Need Supervision

To the editor: I have lived in Manchester for the past 15 years and can now enjoy participating in the town tennis tourney.

When there is a tennis tourney, which is once a year, why haven't we had proper supervision of the courts? Meaning, for the past three weeks, broken glass was all over the high school courts without anyone trying to maintain them properly.

Softball fields are maintained all summer long, why can't the tennis enthusiasts have some consideration from the Rec. Department all season long.

Middle Ground Approach

Certainly President Ford knew, when he presented his program of "conditional amnesty," that he was offering a compromise which would not be well-accepted on either end of the extremely divergent viewpoints on what to do about draft evaders and military service deserters.

As was to be expected, veterans organizations deplored it, and the militant spokesmen for the draft ex-patriates exorated it.

Yet we are sure that the great middle ground of American thinking wanted something done about the evader problem as well as the deserter. It was a running wound on the body of American society which needed attention.

Looking beyond the militant spokesmen for either group, we will find many veterans and parents of men who did not return who are willing to extend a merciful hand.

And although the reaction of evaders and deserters has been slow we do not swallow as gospel the protestations of the leaders who now swathe themselves in the highest of ethical motives and by implication consider those who served their country to have been dupes.

The President's compromise is an imperfect one. But there is no ideal answer; no way could be devised to encompass the clashing thoughts on this emotional problem.

Reaction to the Ford plan has been slow, although some of the fugitives have signified their intent to come back. Some have come out of the underground in the country and many have been released from prison.

We think it will accelerate as the Jan. 31 deadline approaches. Many may want to come home for Christmas for the first time in many years.

The choice has been offered, however, and no extension should be made of the cut-off date, nor softening of the terms of return.

The Way Some Women Remove Eye Make-Up Is A Crying Shame

How you take it off can be more important than how you put it on.

Has rubbing away shadow, liner and mascara night after night finally started to take its toll on your delicate eye area? Left increasingly dry and rough, vulnerable to the beginnings of those "fading beauty" age lines? Are you fighting a losing battle against the intruders of today's longer-lasting, deeper-colored, wear-resistant eye makeup, that's tougher than ever to remove?

Perhaps you need more than just your ordinary, old-fashioned way of removing eye make-up. It's time you discovered the very special workings of Andrea Eye-Q's—the handy pre-saturated pads that amaze eyes as beautifully as you've made them.

Eye-Q's let you stroke away the most stubborn make-up gently, easily, safely...without rub, burn, fuss or mess. Even more important from your long-range point of view, they condition as they cleanse...help fight the dryness that brings out those discouraging age lines. And you can be sure that when you put on your new eye make-up, there won't be a trace of your old make-up underneath.

Small wonder that, at home or away, Eye-Q's have become America's favorite eye makeup remover pads. $2.00.

The Case Against Divorce

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—"Divorce is not the healthiest thing a couple can do. It may end up stunting everybody's growth."

This strong comment against dissolution of marriage in a country where divorce is increasing steadily comes from Dr. Sonya Friedman, psychologist and marriage counselor.

But if a couple is determined to end the marriage, she would like to see it "phased out." This delay would give the children time to grow up and would give the wife, who most likely has no experience at making a living, a chance to develop a means of support.

Dr. Friedman said that although some 34 million women are in the labor force, this still is a nation where the man usually is the major breadwinner.

Self-sufficiency thus is fundamental for the woman, said the counselor, who lives with her physician husband, Stephen, and their two teenage children in Troy, Mich. The cooling off period would let a woman go back to school or into some other job training.

But when you get down to the nitty gritty, the children would benefit most with the delay in divorce, she said. They are the ones most devastated in a breakup.

"You can correlate the rise in crime to broken homes," said the counselor, citing the statistic that one of every three marriages will end in divorce.

"In this, our youth-oriented society, we're committing a total, unmitigated fraud against our children," she said. "Parents are saying, 'We are more important than you.'"

"Marriage is a series of commitments. One of these is to children. And a divorce which gives custody of one child to the mother, another to the father also is destructive. 'You've immediate dissension and competition.'"

MACC NEWS

Executive Director Nancy Carr

So much time and effort have been given with sparkling and generous spirit, such a gathering together of talent and ability has come about, that the Evening of the Performing Arts has become a tremendous success in hope and example, far beyond any monetary gain achieved.

In these times of watching our people standing isolated from one another by distrust, indifference and fear the example of these groups to the community can only leave us encouraged and richer in hope.

All the money raised by their efforts will go into those programs of the Manchester Area Conference of churches which enable us to reach out and help one another, such person to person services as the ecumenical chapel and a special program at Manchester Memorial Hospital, the convalescent home ministry, the MACC needy program, the interfaith community worship services and Honor Court sponsorship.

Being so impressed with people bringing this evening into being we shared with you some background on the Manchester Civic Orchestra Strings and the Manchester Civic Brass Quartet, the Sweet Adelines and the Sil City Chorus. Hard as it may be to believe that impressive list is only half of the program for the evening. Here are the others:

The Singing Savoyards The Manchester Gilbert and Sullivan Workshop will be represented by the Singing Savoyards appearing in selections from "The Mikado." It's worth the price of the ticket just to see the delightful costumes designed by Louise Wilber. A musical comedy set in Japan the plot centers around Nanki-Poo, a Japanese nobleman in disguise as a wandering minstrel, who falls in love with Yum-Yum, ward of the Lord High Executioner. In typical Gilbert and Sullivan fashion the plot immeasurably and hilariously grows more complicated.

Nanki-Poo will be played by one of our Manchester favorites, Bob Horton, and Yum-Yum by Susan Bort who had the lead in last year's production of "Showboat."

Others appearing in "The Mikado" are Debbie Benson, Harry Carr, Robert Gordon, Doris Gordon, Mary Kahlfleisch, Kitty Keller, Rita Kenway, John Lombardo, Jerry Lyons, Alan Lyons, and Pierre Marteney. — many of whom are familiar to Gilbert and Sullivan enthusiasts here in Manchester.

Shirley Slager will be serving as assistant stage director. Joan Niller, director of the Manchester Gilbert and Sullivan Workshop group, describes the Singing Savoyards as a "very talented group most of whom have had a lead role at one time or another. Ms. Niller who also serves as their able and talented accompanist says that which will be available on request and for a remuneration to groups or individuals looking for holiday programs. Those interested may call Joan Niller at 633-9094 or write to 20 Bell St., Glastonbury.

The Little Theatre of Manchester Another outstanding performance group, The Little Theatre of Manchester, will offer "Us and Them," a one act play by British author David Crompton. A contemporary comedy, the play will be entirely presented in clown whiteface which for many of us will be a new and novel experience.

The cast will include Adrian Belchman, Bill Brindamour, Nancy Chappelaine, Beth Donnelly, Rick Gentilec, Rick Gowen, and Carol Schofield, with Sharon Kay responsible for choreography.

Bill Brindamour, director of "Us and Them" also wishes to thank the Manchester Recreation Department for allowing the company to rehearse at the West Side Rec.

The Manchester Civic Chorus Some 75 men and women drawn from the surrounding area come together to form the Manchester Civic Chorus under the directorship of Ralph MacCarone.

Offering a varied program their selections will include Cain's "O Sing Your Sings," the beautiful Mendelssohn rendition "He, Watching Over David," by Randall Thompson, several selections from "Carousel," and Jacques Bel's "If We Only Have Love." Clara Dubaldo will again accompany the chorus on the piano. Ralph MacCarone describes them as "a fantastic group to work with." Mentioning that they have been working hard to put it all together, he adds that, after rehearsal many people have expressed their pleasure in singing in such a large and enthusiastic group. MacCarone says the chorus is built on "using music to make people happy whether they are singing or listening," and he welcomes people to come and sing with the chorus if they are interested. Singing last year with the Manchester Civic Orchestra, the Chorus presented Serge Prokofiev's

"Alexander Nevsky," Opus 78 — a magnificent experience for those of us fortunate enough to attend. Singing out John McChlain for special thanks MacCarone says, "He has helped immeasurably in taking care of many of the behind scenes arrangements without which the chorus could not function as it does."

The Combined Bell Chorus Coming together for the first time, members of all three Manchester bell choirs — the Emanuel Lutheran Church Bell Choir under the direction of Melvin Lumpkin, the Center

Congregational Church Bell Choir directed by Alan Bockus, and the South United Methodist Bell Choir led by Mary Ford, East Hartford, and West

Tickets are on sale at all MACC church offices, Lift the Latch Gift Shop, Manchester State Bank, and at the door the night of the performance.

Masters of Mediocrity for Years, Patriots Assume Giant-Killer Role

FOXBORO, Mass. (UPI) — New England 34, Miami 24 — A fluke.

New England 28, New York Giants 20 — These things can happen.

New England 20, Los Angeles 15 — What is going on?

National Football League fans around the nation want to know what has happened to the New England Patriots, masters of mediocrity for so many years that people were waiting for them to succeed from the circuit.

What happened was defense. The Patriots, 26th against the rush in 1973, yielded more than 100 yards on the ground for the first time this season Sunday in whipping the Rams. And then they gave up just 109 yards. In fact they surrendered merely 32 yards in the second half when they won the game.

"The key thing was the play of the defensive team; they came through in the clutch," said a stunned Chuck Fairbanks after his Cinderella team's latest win. "It's remarkable to me that we could really beat them with all that talent and years of experience."

The win may have been understandable after a scrutiny of the statistics.

New England was beaten in every offensive category except the vital third down efficiency (Patriots 7-of-17 and Rams 2-of-10). But defensively the Patriots recovered three fumbles to none for the Rams and intercepted two passes to one for Los Angeles.

"They played like hell," praised Plunkett who contributed two touchdowns passes among his 14-for-25, 189-yard performance. "They caused problems, early in the second period; driving the Patriots close enough for 39 and 23-yard field goals by John Smith; and hitting Stanford with a touchdown with third-degree burglary (four counts), third-degree larceny (three counts), fourth-degree larceny, intoxication, and breach of peace.

Several of the charges are in connection with the Sept. 22 and Sept. 25 breaks into the Verplanck School. In the first break, an electric typewriter and three tape recorders were taken and an attempt was made to open the safe.

On Wednesday, Sept. 25 in the early morning, a second break was made into the school, a second new typewriter stolen, and extensive damage done to the walls surrounding the school safe.

In both school breaks, the alarm system failed to notify police and the breaks were not discovered until daylight.

Another set of the charges stem from a theft of a TV from a home on Hathaway Lane.

And a fourth set of charges stem from an August break into Tommy's Pizzeria on W. Center St. Taken was $20 in cash and two cartons of chocolate.

Finally, the intoxication and

Police Charge Youth, 17 In Two Verplanck Breaks

Police have arrested a 17-year-old Manchester youth and charged him with the two most recent breaks into the Verplanck School on Otlet St.

Michael T. Daly of 146 Woodland St. was charged Saturday with third-degree burglary (four counts), third-degree larceny (three counts), fourth-degree larceny, intoxication, and breach of peace.

The chief also noted there is evidence the typewriters were sold for $30 each at a Hartford cafe. Hartford police have been notified, he added.

He compared the case of Daly with other teens arrested recently on a large number of breaks and other criminal charges. He again said he regrets the police do not seem to be able to stop the breaks despite successful investigations and many arrests.

More adequate solutions for the youths must be found, he said. He had no suggestions this morning but said he looks to the courts for possible answers.

He refused comment on the alarm system at the schools.

School Head Comments Dr. James P. Kennedy, superintendent of the schools, said this morning vandalism and breaks in the last year have cost the school system over $20,000 in window breakage.

About the Verplanck alarm system that apparently did not work Sept. 22 or 25, he said no system is 100 per cent effective. He believes the new alarm system with the monitoring console at police headquarters "will pay for itself."

The system soon to be installed is expected to cost over $50,000, half of which may be paid for by the state.

"It should deter vandalism and thefts. It should allow us to guard against this severe, serious kind of attack," he said.

Theodore Fairbanks, building and grounds supervisor for the schools, said his morning the total cost of the stolen equipment is over $200. He is now compiling the costs of cleaning up the mess and hiring tradesmen to repair the damage.

Fairbanks noted the Verplanck School has not had a break since the alarm system was installed a few years ago.

He said he has worked well at other town schools also, he said.

The system came under attack by local officials Thursday after the two Verplanck breaks.

Daly's bond was set at $1,000 and he was being held at the police station for appearance in court Tuesday 12 sometime today.

Mini Back Herron Stopped Patriot Kick Out Down in Mid-Air

IRVING, Tex. (UPI) — Bill Arrnsperger, who won his first game as a head coach, called it a team effort. Tom Landry, who suffered through his second straight loss, could not have agreed more.

"I don't think I've ever been prouder," said Arrnsperger, the former Miami assistant whose New York Giants whipped Dallas Sunday 14-6. "They've worked and worked some more and have done everything we've asked them to do."

"We've made great improvement but we have a lot more improving to do. We had a great team effort against Dallas. I say it when we lose and I'll say it when we win, this was a great team effort."

Landry said, "There was very little overall team play. We had a tough game last Monday (a 13-10 loss to Philadelphia). We didn't work well all week in practice. We hoped we would bounce back but we didn't. Maybe they thought they had an easy touch against New York." They played that way.

The Giants took a 14-point lead in the second quarter on two touchdowns that came within a 64-second span and then New York's defense cut down the Cowboys' efforts to rally.

New York had a shutout going until 11 seconds remaining when Roger Staubach, who had thrown three interceptions, hit Bob Hayes with a 35-yard touchdown pass.

The Giants had scored on a two-yard run by Doug McNair (after a 50-yard pass from Norm Sneed to Bob Grim) and a 14-yard throw from Sneed to Joe Dawkins. Both clubs are now 1-2 and

Bills Prevail On Ground

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. (UPI) — "It was a golf tournament they'd have called it off."

Joe Namath summed up his feelings as the wind and rain took over Sunday at Rich Stadium, forcing both the New York Jets and the Buffalo Bills to abandon their passing games and take to the ground, with the Bills winning 16-12.

For a while, the 76,778 persons who attended the game thought Hurricane Gertrude, which was spotted in the Caribbean Saturday, had skipped across the continent and landed in western New York, especially in the first half as heavy downpours and winds gusting near 45 miles per hour pelted the stadium.

The wind was the major factor. On a kicking situations, snaps from center blew off course and balls blew from tees.

Passing attempts littered around like butterfly and the rains caused parts of the field to resemble islands in the Pacific.

"The conditions were the same for both sides and they were not," said Namath. "I don't want to sound like I'm blaming the game on the weather, but it was a factor. They won the game and that's the way it is."

The Bills got off to a 7-0 lead late in the first half but quarterback Joe Ferguson going over from one yard out midway through the first quarter. John Leypoldt kicked a 21-yard field goal midway through the second period to make it 10-0.

Jets running back John Riggins scored on a 13-yard TD run late in the first half but the Jets failed on the extra point because the snap from center was blown off course by the wind.

New York took a 12-10 lead in the third quarter on two Bobby Howard field goals. But fullback Jim Braxton ran 21 yards for a TD with 8:01 left in the game for the winning score.

Namath took to the air late in the final quarter, completing two passes but having two intercepted. He finished the game with only two completions on 18 attempts. Ferguson, who

Colts Fire Coach

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The rebuilding of the young Baltimore Colts was in a state of disarray today with the abrupt dismissal of Howard Schellenberger in his second year as head coach.

General Manager Joe Thomas, an assistant coach for the Colts and the Los Angeles Rams but never a head coach, assumed Schellenberger's duties at the direction of owner Robert Irsay, who was irate over the Colts' third straight loss — 30-10 Sunday to the Philadelphia Eagles.

Emerging from a postgame team meeting where he announced the coaching change to the Colts players, Irsay said, "I just fired the coach. There was no other way. We have to win ball games."

Giants' Win, Team Effort

IRVING, Tex. (UPI) — Bill Arrnsperger, who won his first game as a head coach, called it a team effort. Tom Landry, who suffered through his second straight loss, could not have agreed more.

Existing Services Not Meeting Needs of Elderly, Says Report

By ALICE EVANS

The elderly in Manchester and what services are available for them was presented with slides and tape recordings to the Manchester Community Services Council by the Department of Human Services Friday.

A luncheon meeting was held at Community Baptist Church.

The presentation, which pointed out that existing needs of the elderly are not being met with existing services, was prepared by Mary Ellen Nemerug, VISTA volunteer who is working with the department.

VISTA volunteers have been going door to door visiting Manchester senior citizens during the past six months, according to Miss Nemerug. The Department of Human Services reported that it recognizes the needs of the elderly in the area of food and nutrition, housing and transportation.

There are 85 senior citizens participating in the federally-funded meal program: five days a week at the elderly housing projects; plus others who eat meals served at the Senior Citizens Center. The center also delivers a hot meal each Thursday to shut-ins, and meals are prepared at the center during the summer months.

'Skins, Broncos Paired

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Washington Redskins and the Denver Broncos meet tonight in a nationally televised game to top off a hectic weekend of NFL play marked by upsets of presumed powerhouses by one-time passives.

Washington was slightly favored in the 9 p.m. EDT contest, but both teams have gotten off to uncertain starts. The Redskins (1-1) were upset by surprising St. Louis in their last outing and their offense has generated only two touchdowns in two games.

The plan also calls for the construction of the first elementary school in 1979 in the new community, the first middle school will be needed by 1979, and an additional high school by 1982. Other schools will be needed throughout the 18-year development phase with a total of four elementary schools, one middle school and one high school.

The municipal impact statement shows DevCo generating over $80 million in revenue over the 15-year development phase but using only $65 million in town services thus producing a revenue in excess of town cost of $15 million dollars.

John Willauer, zoning agent for the Town of Coventry, issued a statement concerning the filing of the DevCo application today.

Procedure Outlined
Willauer said, "This morning at 10 a.m. was presented with an application for a change in zoning regulations by Greater Hartford Community Development Corp. I was also presented with a petition for a zoning district boundary change for approximately 1334 acres in the northwest section of Coventry."

Both applications were signed by F. Peter Libassi, president of DevCo and John LaBelle, legal representative.

"Both applications will be reviewed by me and if found to be complete and proper they will be presented to the Planning and Zoning Commission."

"If any error or omissions are found in the applications they will be returned to the applicant with the reason for my rejection in writing."

"The application will be for reclassification by the Planning and Zoning Commission. Once accepted by the commission, a date for a public hearing will be established."

Simon Says United States Won't Curb Grain Exports

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Treasury Secretary William E. Simon told world bankers and finance ministers today the United States will not tighten its purse strings or curb exports of precious grain and other items to limit inflation at home.

"I do not believe the world is in imminent danger of a drift into cumulative recession — though we must be alert to act quickly should the situation change unexpectedly," Simon told a meeting of governors of the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank.

He pledged the United States would maintain open markets and "foreign borrowers will have free access to any item which some here. The U.S. government offers no special subsidies or incentives to cut capital here, neither do we place obstacles to outflow."

Simon said the United States believes in an open market for commodities although many Americans want the country to keep some items — "from wheat to coal" — at home.

President Ford addressed the meeting on Monday and attacked inflation in general terms, promising that Simon would take into more detail on U.S. policy today.

Ford again urged international cooperation in trade, monetary policy and other economic means.

Free World Trade
Simon said the administration is trying to get Congress to take concrete steps by the end of this year to keep up the United States' momentum toward freer world trade, cutting restrictions on exports and import capital.

Some are concerned that a determined international attack on inflation by fiscal and monetary restraint might push the world into deep recession, even depression, he said.

"I recognize this concern, but I do not believe we should let it distort our judgment."

Simon told the meeting that many experts had expected the United States would receive the bulk of American dollars being spent in the Middle East for oil, but that so far this had not been the case.

Trade Deficit Small
The net capital flow into the United States from all foreign sources, as measured by the U.S. current account deficit, has been small — about $2 billion so far this year, Simon said.

"During the same period our oil import bill has been about $12 billion — larger than it was in a comparable period last year. While some have expressed concern that excessive oil funds would flow to the United States — the picture thus far has been quite different."

Simon told newsmen at a breakfast meeting before his speech that the current international financial meeting would not "produce solutions," but it does "offer an opportunity for progress toward solutions."

Teacher Contract Decision Delayed

The Board of Education Monday night delayed action on a new contract for Manchester's 550 public school teachers, who have been working a month without a labor agreement.

School board members said they needed more time to study recommendations of an arbitration panel studying the contract dispute. The Manchester Education Association (MEA), bargaining agent for the teachers, has already approved the arbitration award.

About 75 MEA members Monday night attended a public meeting of the Board of Education in the Robertson School cafeteria and heard the board's comments on the arbitration award.

The snag revolves around a dental rider in the recommendation. The annual cost of the benefit, which would start under the second year of the contract, would be about $57,000 for teachers.

In a review of the contract negotiations, board member John Yavis, chairman of the personnel and finance committee, said the board had had one week to study the arbitration award. He said wording of the contract was a concern to them, but the major point which they wanted to consider was the dental rider.

Yavis said the net result was "somewhat of a surprise to the board that the item was included in the package, and that there had been no prior inclusion in the contract."

However, Yavis said, the board tried to look at it with an open mind. To the board's knowledge, he said, there was no other town around or other school board with a similar rider benefit.

"It is an item we are giving careful study," he said. He felt it would be imprudent to pass on an award which the board believed would be backed up by evidence presented to a jury in a criminal trial.

Mrs. Grasso Asks Abolishment Of Public Utilities Agency

HARTFORD (UPI) — Democratic gubernatorial candidate Ella T. Grasso today accused Connecticut utilities of an "improper" $5-million overcharge and called for the abolishment of the Public Utilities Commission for failing to prevent the alleged overcharge.

She said the utilities have been using outdated data to "pad" fuel cost adjustments in the past three years, according to a private study she commissioned.

The Manchester WATES will meet Tuesday at the Italian-American Club. Weighing in will be from 7 to 8 p.m. followed by a business meeting. Members with last names ending in M-R are reminded to bring fruit for the basket.

Disaster Control Director James Fogarty will report on the status of Manchester's plans to cope with emergencies similar to last winter's storm tonight at 7:30 at the Highland Park School auditorium on Porter St. Certificates will be presented to many of the volunteers who helped emergency efforts during the storm and its aftermath.

Rep. Grasso said she did not know how the alleged overcharges could be regulated. When asked whether she would initiate a class action suit on behalf of consumers, Mrs. Grasso said "We'll have to wait and see."

In calling for the abolishment of the PUC and the suspension of current rate hearings, Mrs. Grasso said she would disclose on Thursday her plan for a "new commission."

$15 Million Estimated
She told newsmen Harcom Associates, a Hartford-based energy consultant firm, calculated conservatively the overcharges amounted to $15 million in the three years the fuel cost adjustments to monthly bills have been effective.

Eleven million dollars was for the last six months of 1973 and the first half of 1974, while the rest was for 1971 and 1972, Mrs. Grasso said.

On Monday, PUC officials admitted Factor B may have caused some overcharges in the computation of fuel cost adjustments and they said public hearings on the situation may be scheduled for sometime in November.

PUC Laxly Blamed
The results of the study, which Mrs. Grasso labeled as preliminary, blamed the overcharges on the PUC's failure to get the utilities to use updated figures on their efficiency levels when computing fuel cost adjustments.

"The utilities' efficiency in producing and delivering electrical power, known as Factor B, is figured into the formula for determining fuel cost adjustments," she said. "The PUC last updated Factor B for each year."

Every place that offered help was used, some to capacity, Fogarty said.

The town's main shelter place by plan is Manchester High School. If the school got full, the town would open a public information officer who will seek accurate facts and transmit them to the public. Fogarty noted the town manager and mayor were the effective information officers during the storm and got soundly blasted for their efforts. He praised them (See Page Ten)

Town Disaster Agency Reviews Ice Storm; Volunteers Given Recognition for Efforts

Every resident is being urged to get a transistor radio. WHP of Manchester carried 24-hour storm messages to help those who could hear them, he said.

The town should appoint a public information officer who will seek accurate facts and transmit them to the public. Fogarty noted the town manager and mayor were the effective information officers during the storm and got soundly blasted for their efforts. He praised them (See Page Ten)

By MAL BARLOW
The town met its obligation to the people," said James F. "Dutch" Fogarty, Manchester's disaster control director, Monday night as he thanked volunteers who worked hard to help people survive the storm which began Dec. 17, 1973.

"At no time was anyone refused a vital service," Fogarty recalled.

Some of the many volunteers, Town Manager Robert Weiss, Mayor John Thompson and others came to the auditorium of the Highland Park School Monday night to recall the strengths and even the weaknesses in the town's emergency preparedness as shown by the ice storm. Weiss and Thompson also gave out certificates of appreciation to many volunteers and groups that helped get Manchester through one of its worst disasters.

Weiss opened the meeting by noting, "We were organized here, thanks to 'Dutch'."

He noted, "It's this kind of public spirit (as shown by the volunteers) that makes it a pleasure to be town manager in Manchester."

Disaster Recalled
Fogarty recalled the disaster.
By noon, Monday, Dec. 17, it was clear to many town leaders that the ice storm's ravaging of power lines and trees was creating at least a small disaster. Fogarty contacted Fire Chief John Roberts to ask that he open up the Spruce Street fire station to feed and house possible storm victims. The chief opened the station and about 40 people came out of the cold to eat and sleep in them Monday night.

By 9:20 p.m. Monday, Fogarty went on. Capt. Dave Gay of the National Guard called to volunteer the Army for shelter.

Soon after, offers of shelter and food came from the Meadows Convalescent Hospital, Manchester Memorial Hospital, Manchester Community College, the Eighth District Fire Station, and the Elks Club.

Soon public and private shelters were sheltering and feeding over 800 people per
