Agostinelli Says Voters Fear State Income Tax

By FLOYD LARSON

Citing voter concern over a possible state income tax to meet the financial needs of Democratic platform goals, Nathan Agostinelli, state comptroller and Republican candidate for lieutenant governor, gave Manchester Republicans an optimistic report on the campaign Wednesday night.

The occasion was the formal opening of party headquarters at 109 Center St. and Agostinelli's talk climaxed a series of short talks by local, district and state candidates.

The former Manchester mayor reported the state ticket members are continuing a vigorous campaign which they started immediately after the convention.

He said the surtax announced by President Gerald Ford Tuesday has rekindled concern among Democratic and unaffiliated voters that a state income tax or increased sales taxes are inevitable if the Democratic ticket is elected in November.

Reviewing the fiscal condition of the state in 1971 when the Republicans won the state House, Agostinelli urged the Republicans to carry the message that it was Republicans in the administration and legislature who turned things around from a deficit budget and state debt of $286 million to a reduced state debt of $244 million and three budget surpluses in a row.

"There have been some reports," he continued, "that there will be a deficit at the end of fiscal year 1975. I want to assure you as state comptroller that we will have a surplus on June 30, 1975, making it four in a row. We (the Republicans) have turned the state around. We have come from a deficit fiscal situation to a stable one. The Democratic candidates are promising all things to all people in their return to old-style politics. If they attempt to fulfill only a portion of what they have promised state employees, teachers, and other groups, an income tax or sales tax increase is inevitable," he said.

In response to the Democratic claim their party platform represents goals rather than a budget, Agostinelli told those present that the Democrats' gubernatorial candidate was the chairman of the 1968 Democratic platform committee and it was in the following four years that the state slid into its deficit and high debt situation.

He reported that despite the predictions of skeptics, Robert Steele's limitation of contributions to $100 is working.

"For the first time we stand a chance of having a governor in Hartford who is not committed to any big contributor or group making a large contribution," he said in reporting that to date more than 6,000 people have joined in helping finance the Steele campaign which is an all-time record of small contributions.

"Our slogan, 'You and Steele can drive big money out of politics' is becoming a reality," Agostinelli said, "and if you believe in stable government we need your help not only to elect the state ticket but the local candidates as well. Manchester has been good to me in the past and I feel it will continue to support good government."

Prior to his talk, Agostinelli introduced

New Police Arrive, Boston Scene Quiet

BOSTON (UPI) — Four-hundred-fifty riot-trained State and Metropolitan Police surrounded schools in racially troubled South Boston and provided armed motorcycle escort to buses today protecting children and enforcing a court ordered plan to integrate public schools by busing.

Boston Police, which came under fire by some residents for allegedly overreacting, withdrew from the school areas in South Boston, leaving security to the fresh reinforcements.

Buses arrived without incident and classes got under way as State Police and Metropolitan District Police maintained tight security. The buses were escorted by MDC motorcycle police and State Police cruisers.

Attendance was higher citywide than Wednesday, with a greatly increased number of black students bused into South Boston.

One black man drove up, stopped his car, got out and stood on the corner near the Old Colony Housing Project, a predominantly white area in South Boston where trouble has occurred in the past. Several State Police troopers talked to him. But when he got back in his car and didn't drive off immediately, a state policeman said, "Get the hell out of here. It's for your safety. We don't want any trouble here."

The Tactical Force of the Boston Police were grouped in the Fenway area ready to move into predominantly black Roxbury if trouble broke out there. Roxbury has been the scene of rock throwing, fighting and some looting the past two days.

The reinforcements were called to help local police cope with the widespread violence that has erupted in both white and

Cuba Frees Four

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Four Americans who ended up in jail apparently because they got too close to Cuba will be released as a personal goodwill gesture to two senators who visited there.

A spokesman for Sens. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., and Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., said Wednesday the Czech embassy, which has handled Cuban affairs since diplomatic relations were broken some time ago, announced the imminent release of the four.

Keane, 69, faces a maximum sentence of 90 years in prison. Defense attorneys said they would appeal.

Keane was the latest target in a federal assault on corruption in Chicago politics and one of the closest of Daley's political associates to face imprisonment.

Kidnap Victim Tells of Ordeal

SANTO DOMINGO (UPI) — A U.S. woman official freed from a 13-day kidnap ordeal at the hands of leftist guerrillas says she was treated "like a lady and a diplomat" and grew to like her courteous captors.

"We hostages got to know them and even to like them a little under the necessity of sharing food and water" U.S. Embassy public affairs officer Barbara Hutchison said.

The seven guerrillas ended their siege at the Venezuelan Consulate Wednesday night, freeing their seven hostages unharmed and flying off to asylum in Panama.

Ford Satisfied On Rocky Gifts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford says he has found nothing improper in vice presidential nominee Nelson Rockefeller's cash gifts to former aides, including $50,000 to Secretary of State Henry Kissinger.

Rockefeller will make a complete explanation of the gifts — which totaled more than $800,000 — in a statement to be delivered today to the Senate Rules Committee. The statement will eventually be made public.

Ford told a news conference Wednesday he had the Kissinger gift investigated and was assured "every tax that could be applied has been paid and that all legal problems involving that particular case were solved satisfactorily."

Keane Convicted

CHICAGO (UPI) — Alderman Thomas E. Keane, Mayor Richard J. Daley's right-hand man, was convicted of mail fraud and conspiracy Wednesday. U.S. Attorney James R. Thompson said the jury's guilty verdict represented the "conviction of a system."

Gallagher Insists Session Illegal

By DOUG BEVINS

Manchester's town charter clearly prohibits "executive sessions" of the Board of Directors, Director Hillery Gallagher said today, charging that Tuesday night's closed session was apparently illegal.

Gallagher, who along with Director Carl Zinsser walked out of the board meeting after executive session was voted 6-2, said he will continue to oppose and boycott meetings closed to the press and public.

"It's just not proper," Gallagher said. "I don't know of anything that comes before the Board of Directors which can't be discussed before the public."

Gallagher cited a town charter provision requiring that "Any elector of the town may be heard in discussion of any subject within the jurisdiction of the Board of Directors" at any regular board meeting.

Besides regular meetings, the citation continues, "The board may hold other meetings at such times and places as it may determine, provided all meetings of the board shall be open to the public."

"It couldn't be plainer," Gallagher said. Asst. Town Counsel Victor Moses, when questioned on the charter requirements at Tuesday night's meeting, differed with Gallagher's opinion.

After reading the charter, Moses said, "There's no question in my mind. This board can go into executive session."

Gallagher said today that a town council cannot be the final arbiter of the issue. "It (executive session) is a political question," Gallagher said, "and the town council shouldn't be forced to make political decisions."

Gallagher and Zinsser, both Republicans on a Democrat-controlled board, have stood alone in opposition to closed meetings.

The third Republican on the board, Vivian Ferguson, has a different point of view. Mrs. Ferguson contends that executive sessions are only necessary when personnel or land acquisition matters are being discussed.

Tuesday night, when directors excluded the press and public from discussion of police matters involving Case Mountain, Mrs. Ferguson entered the executive session "with reluctance."

"It's extremely important for the minority to attend," Mrs. Ferguson said, explaining that it's the minority's job to insure honest government and that's impossible if the minority walks out of a closed meeting.

Zinsser today disagreed with Mrs. Ferguson's statement, defending his "walk-out" by saying he wouldn't abandon his principles — including strong opposition to executive sessions — for any reason.

"We're elected by the people to do the people's business," Zinsser said. "How can we then refuse to tell the people what we're doing?"

Zinsser said he is asking town counsel for a written opinion, with references, on the issue of executive sessions. Both he and Gallagher, though, acknowledged that a written ruling by town counsel probably wouldn't resolve the matter.

Watkins Bros. To Observe Centennial Sunday

C. Elmore Watkins reflects on the history of Watkins Bros., Inc., which his father and his uncle founded in 1874. (Herald photo by Barlow)

By BETTY RYDER

When Watkins Bros. Inc., on Main St. opens its doors Sunday to welcome its many friends and customers to an open house, it will be observing 100 years of service to the community.

Beginning as a funeral service back in 1874, the firm under the leadership of the Watkins family, has grown steadily through the years, moved to new facilities, and expanded its varied services to fulfill the needs of the community.

Reflecting on the company which was founded by his father, C. Elmore Watkins, 92, and chairman of the board of Watkins Bros., Inc. attributes the success of the firm to the foresight of his father and his uncle.

"When my father (Clarence G. Watkins) and his brother (F. Ernest Watkins) were just young men (19 and 17 respectively) they attended the funeral of Gen. Nathaniel Lyon in Ashford. He was the first general to be killed in the Civil War back in 1862. It was a colorful event with four horses drawing a hearse adorned with plumes and the boys were so impressed that they decided to become undertakers.

"At that time coffins were made to order from measurements," Mr. Watkins said, "and as their stock increased they would take them to Hartford in a horse-drawn cart and sell them to undertakers in that area.

"The boys bought out the Pinney Undertaking Co., set up business in the front room of a small house on Wells St. In 1876 they had a chance to buy the W.H. Cheney Furniture Department which was on the corner of Main and Charter Oak Sts.

"A few years after that, my father and my uncle Ernest outgrew the Cheney building and built their own store on the corner of Main and School Sts.," Mr. Watkins said.

"My father never put his business before the needs of the town and it wasn't long before he was picked by the community to serve as first selectman, which he did for 10 years.

"It wasn't long before he began thinking 'We don't have any bank' so with my uncle and a few prominent townspeople, he formed the Savings Bank of Manchester.

"This was a problem, because then they realized they didn't have a place to conduct business. In 1890 they built the building which the Blau Furniture Co. occupies today, and that was the start of the Savings Bank of Manchester."

Recalling the many years of community service that his father gave to the Town of Manchester, Mr. Watkins said, "My father spent all his leisure time working for the community. We kids didn't see much of him — and it was kind of sad. We loved our father and needed him as much as the townspeople did.

"In the meantime, my uncle Ernest started the fire department here and served as its secretary as long as he lived," Mr. Watkins said.

"They were hardworking, determined men," he said. "They were both elected to the legislature at different times.

"When Ernest was in school he was a great ball player and Connie Mack had him on his first team. He was also an excellent shot and when he was older became an expert golfer. I remember he once played golf in St. Petersburg, Fla., where the Yankee baseball team was training and he'd coach the players how to shoot.

"When my father died and my uncle retired, I became president of the company and built a store in 1920 which Watkins Bros. now occupies."

Diversification was the keynote in the many endeavors undertaken by the Watkins men.

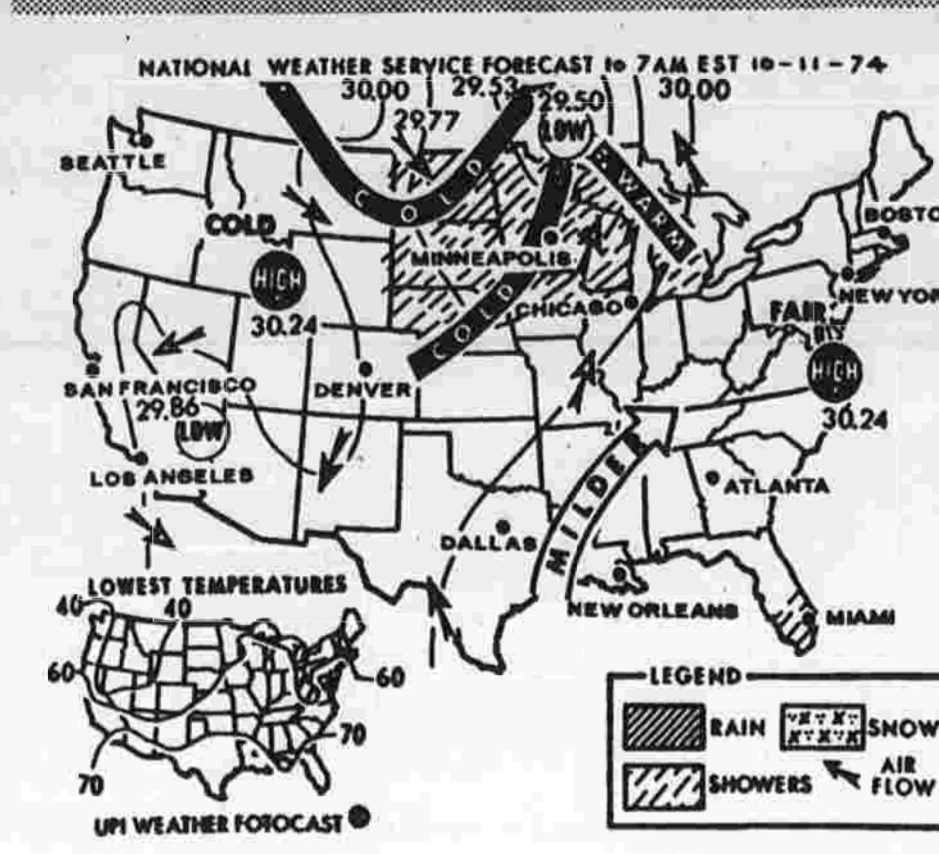

"At the same time we built the store, we had a flu epidemic and I was president of the Red Cross. We didn't have any doctors or nurses and as the illness continued and many people died, we came up with the idea of opening a temporary hospital.

"Cheney Bros. had a hall which was used to hold concerts and religious meetings. They offered us the use of the main floor for a temporary hospital and I managed to get cots and one nurse.

"We had eight doctors in town but they were all older men and not acquainted with modern hospital methods. When the epidemic subsided, we had in those days what they called the War Bureau in town.

He's (Sol) Up to His Old Tricks

I see by the papers Lisa Minelli was married the other day and I thought back to the night, several years ago, when we were watching an old Judy Garland movie on TV. I mean — the movie was old, Judy was still a young girl in it. Well, anyway, during one of the many commercials my wife asked, "Do you think she'll ever be a great star?" "But she was a great star long ago," I replied, "and even though she's gone, she'll always be a great star." "I don't mean her — Judy," explained my wife. "I mean her daughter — Lisa Minelli." That's how my wife talks. She seldom uses names. She tells me about her and she. For instance, there was the time I came home from work and my wife said, "He's sure all we need is a new washer for the hot water faucet. He said there's nothing wrong with the faucet itself." Naturally I replied, "I didn't know the plumber was here today." And she said, "Of course he wasn't here. Why should he be here? It was the paper boy. One night at supper my wife said to me, "You'll never guess who I saw at the beauty parlor today." I decided to play along. "Julie Eisenhower, Jackie, Phyllis Diller, Lisa Minelli!" "You're not even trying," she replied. "It was Doris." "You're not even trying," she replied. "You're not even trying," she replied. For those of you who have read this far,

Supreme Court To Hear Northeast Rail Case

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court Wednesday agreed to untangle the legal snarl that has held up development of a unified rail network in the northeastern United States. The court will hear arguments Oct. 23 on the ruling by a special three-judge federal panel in Philadelphia last June that part of the 1973 Regional Rail Reorganization Act is unconstitutional. A written opinion will follow later. The panel barred the United States Railway Association, created under the act to devise a "final system plan" for Northeast rail service, from certifying such a plan. The certification would be sent to a special three-judge court established under the act to order transfer of rail properties to the Consolidated Rail Corp. (Conrail). The association is empowered to issue up to $1 billion of its federally guaranteed obligations to Conrail. The opinion held that the law did not provide appropriately for loss to railroads which would be compelled to continue unprofitable service during the planning period. This lapse constituted a "taking" of private property without just compensation in violation of the Constitution, it said. Another flaw was cited in the law's requirement that if a judge finds a bankrupt railroad cannot properly be absorbed into the new system he will dismiss the reorganization proceedings. The panel found this provision runs counter to a constitutional requirement for geographically "uniform" laws on bankruptcies. The carries involved were Penn Central; Reading; Erie Lackawanna; Central of New Jersey; Lehigh Valley; Boston & Maine; Ann Arbor, and Lehigh & Hudson. The ruling of unconstitutionality stemmed from a lawsuit filed by the trustee of the New Haven Railroad and other major Penn Central creditors against the Justice Department, the association and Transportation Secretary Claude S. Brinegar. The New Haven trustee contended that the financial backbone of the new system — payment for rail assets with Conrail securities — is unconstitutional, and appealed to the Supreme Court its loss of this point.

GOP Incumbents Look Strong In New Hampshire

BRENDA W. ROTZOLL

CONCORD, N.H. (UPI) — It looks like a good year for Republican incumbents in New Hampshire, a state which has merrily gone its own way since it snatched the British gunpowder to fight the king's troops at Lexington and Concord in 1775.

Veteran politicians predict re-election wins for Gov. Meldrim Thomson and Rep. James C. Cleveland, and for Rep. Louis Wyman, who wants to move up to the Senate seat held by the retiring Norris Cotton. All are Republicans.

With October one-third gone, the one close fight shapes up for the seat Wyman is vacating. Auto dealer David Banks, a Republican, faces strong competition from Democrat Norman D'Amours, nephew of a former state attorney general. Both are considered conservatives. The turning point may be the fact that D'Amours is a French-Canadian, is a native of Manchester. The state's largest city which is largely Democratic and conservative, likes to vote for home town boys.

Banks is campaigning on the fact that he has had experience in Washington, four years in a high post in the General Services Administration.

Inflation is a dominant theme in most of the New Hampshire campaigns but there is a Watergate angle to the Senate race.

Former Insurance Commissioner John Durkin, the Democratic nominee who is given to "quotable quotes" has hit hard at Wyman's role in introducing Ruth Farkas to Maurice Stans, Richard Nixon's former campaign finance chairman.

Mrs. Farkas named ambassador to Luxembourg soon after Nixon's re-election, donated $200,000 to the former President's campaign. The dates of her meetings with Stans and when the money was promised, have not been firmly established.

Wyman says he is too smart to have been involved in anything illegal. He says Farkas helped engineer the Farkas appointment as a smear.

New Hampshire, population 800,000 is the only state in the nation with neither a general sales nor income tax. Property taxes are high. The fight about where the tax burden should lie is the perennial major issue in state races. Whether a politician is considered a liberal or a conservative depends on whether he is for or against broad-based taxes.

Thomson is running strong on the slogan "He kept his word — no new taxes." Nashua attorney Richard Leonard says he would not approve such a tax, but as a state legislator he voted to put the question of broad-based taxes to the voters in a referendum — and some New Hampshire voters equate that with original sin.

Republicans opposed to Thomson's strongly conservative philosophy and what Leonard calls his "one man rule" are organizing to support Leonard's campaign.

Stewart Lamprey a staunch Republican who three times was speaker of the House and three times Senate president, shifted his support to the Democrat on grounds Thomson had been responsible for a federal audit of his (Leonard's) taxes. Thomson denied it.

Lamprey still simmers from an incident that occurred three weeks after the governor took office in 1972. Lamprey and two other of Thomson's political foes had their confidential state business profits tax files searched by the governor's top aide.

Cleveland is judged a shoo-in for a seventh term in the Second Congressional District, which includes all western New Hampshire and the conservative and scantily developed north country.

Cleveland eschews any thought of using his office to become a national political figure, and campaigns on the platform of personal service for his constituents.

"I'm running on my record of 12 years of service to the people in communities in my district. That is not going to be completely overshadowed by events in Washington," he said, discounting Watergate influence in New Hampshire.

His Democratic opponent, Helen Bliss, maintains Cleveland has lost touch with the people, citing his votes against minimum wage legislation, extended day care funding and most of the costlier social problems.

ENERGY WORLD

By MICHAEL O. WESTER LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI) — The lowest grade of cotton fiber is being studied for use by the U.S. Coast Guard in cleaning up oil slicks. The fiber is called "cotton wastes."

"This grade of cotton, when properly dispersed, can pick up 50 times its own weight in oil and still stay afloat without any apparent loss because of wave action," said Lt. Cmdr. Donald S. Jensen of the Coast Guard's Office of Research and Development.

"That's a better record than anything previously used, including commercial absorbents, straw or even coconut hulls," he said.

Jensen, of the Coast Guard's Pollution Prevention Projects branch, has been named technical monitor for an $89,000 Texas Tech research project which involves building a "sea" on which to test the new concept.

Working together at Texas Tech are three principal researchers. They are Dr. George F. Mennaghan, chairman of the Department of Chemical Engineering; Dr. James E. Halligan of the chemical engineering faculty; and A.A. Ball, head of fabric structures at the university's Textile Research Center.

For the past 12 months the team has been working under the sponsorship of Cotton Inc., the research and marketing arm of America's cotton growers who have an interest in anything which might create a better market for wastes.

"In the move from the laboratory beaker to the tank stage we hope to establish the limits of the concept," Mennaghan said.

The tank being constructed will be approximately 50 feet long, four feet wide and four feet deep. It will be the "sea" and the water running through it will be able to travel at four knots for experimental purposes.

"We will be testing dispersal, retrieval and disposal concepts," Mennaghan said.

Dispersal of the cotton is in itself tricky, said Halligan. "It cannot be dumped on the oil coated water, but must be spread in a very fine gauze like layer seven thousandths of a foot thick," Halligan said. "That's about the same thickness as the width of a gnat's eyebrow."

The short staple, weak, spotted fibers which are a drag on the textile market have a peculiarly superb quality when crisscrossed over the oil slick because they form capillary bridges which pick up the oil and hold it between the fibers.

"The cotton does not absorb the oil into the fiber," Ball said. "But it absorbs by holding the oil in the capillary bridges."

At this stage the concept calls for using a blower to spread the cotton over the oily water, first ringing the slick to contain it and then spreading the entire surface with the cotton.

"The next step will be to sweep up the mass of cotton with the oil clinging to it, and early tests indicate that the layer does not disintegrate but tends to hold together," said Mennaghan.

"In disposing of the mop, the oil could be wrung from the cotton, or the cotton oil mix could be disposed of in combination — possibly by incineration," he said. "Cotton is almost entirely cellulose and so is biodegradable, making disposal easier on the environment than might be possible with synthetic products."

Mennaghan said the cotton has an absorption rate of anywhere from 15 to 250 per cent better than the synthetic materials now used for oil slick cleanups.

"The supply of cotton wastes can be estimated at about 224,000 bales per year," he said, "and this quantity would have the capacity for holding approximately 400 million gallons of oil, on a conservative basis."

The Coast Guard is looking for any improvement in cleanup methods. Its responsibility covers coastal waters, bays, harbors and estuaries. It works cooperatively with the Environmental Protection Agency, which is responsible for navigable inland waters.

OPINION

But Will They Sell Without Rate Increase?

The Democratic candidate for governor, Mrs. Ella Grasso, has proposed the state issue revenue-producing bonds to finance an estimated $5 billion for utility company improvements over the next 11 years.

She presented her plan as a means to save money for Connecticut's electrical consumers. The theory is that since revenue-sharing bonds are tax exempt, the interest saving would be reflected in lower utility rates.

Unanswered, however, is just where Mrs. Grasso would set the rates. Obviously, she feels company requests are too high.

The question is whether revenue-producing bonds would sell, even with their tax-exemption lure, if company income is limited to current rates.

Mrs. Grasso implies with her plan that consumers will save during the next decade and that rates would not increase.

We concede that if the bonds are authorized by the legislature, if the interest rate on revenue bonds is kept relatively lower than taxable bonds, and if there are buyers for the bonds in the quantity she proposes to issue, the interest cost to the utility industry would be reduced and the capital-improvement projects proposed could proceed at lower cost.

Just how the bond scheme would keep rates from increasing to meet rising material costs for maintenance, rising labor costs, and non-productive environmental requirements for the utilities, we do not grasp at this time.

It appears to us that Mrs. Grasso has admitted that the utility industry needs help in meeting its long-term responsibility of reliable and adequate service for the state's needs.

What she is not prepared to admit on the eve of an election is that whether the state issues bonds for capital improvements or not, consumers are going to have to pay more for electricity eventually. The only question really is how much will pay directly and how much will pay indirectly through subsidy.

In view of our current state debt, we question the wisdom of the state getting into the mortgage business with utilities where their rates are subject to political manipulation which could be an adverse factor on the sale of revenue-producing bonds for this purpose.

Formal and Memorized Prayer
Spontaneous Prayer

Praying is our most personal activity. We should therefore be able to pray in words of our own choosing. Written and memorized prayers have their place. They help when we run into an obstacle to talking to God in our own words and they are a convenient way for a number of people praying aloud together simultaneously. But they cannot take the place of prayer from the heart which is a constant changing state of emotions and awareness. Impoverishment of naturalness and freedom can happen to your relationship with the Father, Son and Holy Spirit if you rely solely on printed prayers. Your prayers should be YOUR prayers. They should flow from the heart of YOUR being, couched in the words that say exactly what you mean. (Adapted from Daniel Scully, O.S.B.)

Perceiving Inflation

NEW YORK CITY—The thing to note about President Ford's economic summit is how clearly it shows the kind of transition phase we are in today. We are living in an economic world where we know that the old-time economic religion of cutting budgets, raising interest rates and tightening money flow simply will not do in dealing with inflation. But we have not yet found a latter-day economic religion or even a perceiving inflation—indeed new ways of perceiving the economic system as a whole. The crucial part of any economic policy is how it perceives the reality it is trying to treat.

The traditional views of inflation, whether demand-pull or cost-push, have largely exhausted their usefulness. There is a variant of them, which stresses the global quantum leap in the cost of energy and also stresses the cartel approach which is gaining around the world, not only in oil but over raw materials as well.

The new Ford-Kissinger diplomacy is based on this perception. It holds that the big leap in energy and resource prices has been a political leap, and that whatever goes up politically can come down politically. It seeks collective action through a kind of counter-cartel of the important energy-consuming nations. The trouble with it is the trouble with all collective security proposals. They are let's-hob-together strategies and therefore only as strong as their weakest links.

But there are other ways of perceiving economic reality. One is to understand that available energy in the earth and environment is in decreasing supply and costs relatively an ever greater amount of energy to extract. This points to a policy of consumer self-restraint.

The most useful emerging view is to see the economy and society as an organism of which we are all part. I have been writing about this view recently and was happy to note Marshall McLuhan's picture of inflation as part of the communication web of the whole economic and social organism.

Given this organismic view, we can use a bio-feedback effect, not only in restraining inflation but—in what is just as important—keeping the economy active enough to maximize jobs, housing, services and satisfactions.

If we are an organism, then two things count most. One is the credibility of those shaping economic policies, whether in government or business. If they are confused or changeable, panicky or timid, self-interested or grasping, they will not be credible.

The other is the sense of confidence among the people that flows from this credibility. Franklin Roosevelt's sentence, "The only thing we have to fear is fear itself," applies as strongly now as it did in his day. But it depends not on preaching but on the kind of action that banishes fear.

Bless the Press and Its Critics

On our toes. No "establishment" of society, not the press or politics, not law or business, not education or medicine or the military, should be immune from constant scrutiny and demands for performance.

Anyway, the more the shortcomings of the press are examined, as they should be—and heaven knows there are short-comings—the more obvious become those things that are good about the press.

More power also to those judges who occasionally toss a reporter in the clink because he refuses to reveal his news sources. It takes courage for a reporter to defy judicial and other attacks on the press, and for his editors to back him up—and what good is a timid newspaper?

Next to a totally censored or government-controlled press, such as exists in so many other countries, the most useless press in America would be a

Coventry Seminar

To the editor:
In a letter to the editor of The Herald from Virginia Diehl (Oct. 4, 1974), Mrs. Diehl expresses her astonishment and deep disappointment that Morton Tenzer "abruptly" ended the New Town Seminar in Coventry on Sept. 26, at which Tom Harris, the director of planning in Howard County, Md., was the guest speaker.

What Mrs. Diehl failed to mention in her letter was that Mr. Tenzer made it very clear that those attending the seminar who wished to remain past the "official" end of the session were to be welcome to do so and talk informally with Mr. Harris. Indeed, half of the residents at the seminar did just that,

Ford Economic Plan Questions & Answers

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Ford's economic plan could have far-reaching effects on the average American, ranging from tax increases to more miles per gallon from the family car.

Here are a series of questions and answers prepared by UPI about how Ford's plan would affect the everyday taxpayer:

Q. Which of the President's proposals would hit me the hardest?
A. If you earn more than $7,500 per year or your family income is more than $15,000 a year, you probably would be most affected by a new 5 percent income tax surcharge, which would be effective only for 1975, in other words for the returns you figure out early in 1976.

Q. Does this mean I pay a flat 5 percent extra tax if I make more than that amount of money?
A. No, it gets a little more complicated than that. The Ford proposal first figured the "taxable income" (for most persons this is your wages minus deductions and other exemptions) of a family of four making $15,000 and for a single individual making $7,500, each taking the standard deduction. This worked out to $10,000 for the family of four and $5,450 for the individual. These figures are used as the base figures from which the surtax is calculated.

Q. How then do I figure how much to pay?
A. First, you figure your own taxable income. Then you calculate your tax as you normally do every year. Then you figure how much of that tax liability is caused by the WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford's economic plan would be written off by many as a failure.

It's shortcomings however, have yet to be proved.

It all depends upon what was expected from the exercise in summitry.

Anyone who anticipated that labor and management, right and left wing economists industrialist and welfare recipient, would agree on an economic program for all had expectations which were far too great.

Three realistic goals were set for the summit sessions. They were:

—To put under one tent all the ideas for a new economic policy so that the President could choose from among many.

—To convince the people that there was no easy solution to inflation.

—To convince the world that the American government is determined to bring inflation under control.

There is no question that the summitry succeeded on point one. So many ideas were advanced at times it seemed as though it was a Tower of Babel.

But one point was common to most of the arguments: that the old time religion was not quite enough. Old time religion meant that the poor, who had nothing to do with causing inflation, would carry the greatest burden in bringing it under control as the economy slackened, jobs became scarce and prices continued to rise. Special aid to the poor to carry them over the economic crisis was a common theme which apparently impressed Ford.

The second point was what has been labeled the Madison Avenue aspect of the summit meetings: to educate the people on the difficulty of fighting inflation.

There's no question that that was accomplished. Anyone who still expects a quick halt to the rise in prices just wasn't paying attention.

The third point, to convince the world of the will to fight inflation, remains to be demonstrated. That means political decisions which could be tough. Decisions by Congress as well as the administration.

The economists could offer very little advice on those points. The economists suggested a variety of methods by which inflation could be controlled. However, it's up to the politicians to decide which will be adopted, and to demonstrate the stomach for the most effective.

But point three has yet to be fulfilled. Whether the nation's political leaders have the will as well as the words to fight inflation has yet to be seen.

Fire Prevention Week

Legend has it that a carelessly placed lantern was kicked over by Mrs. O'Leary's cow and that started the great Chicago fire.

Now each year we observe Fire Prevention Week approximately on the anniversary of that disaster.

Just as carelessness was blamed for the Chicago fire, the same is true of most of today's fires in the home.

We, Americans, hate to throw things away. This habit wouldn't be bad but we are lousy housekeepers when it comes to storing things.

Old papers are piled near heat sources. Rags used for cleaning, often with flammable materials, are kept in airless places. We profusely add the 20th Century domestic slaves, home appliances, with little or no regard to our home's wiring capacity.

The list is almost endless of the little things we do without thinking that can and do result in fires.

The town's two fire departments are busy bringing Fire Prevention Week messages to the schools. We hope the message will get two results. First, the children will learn fire prevention habits and second, and most important, parents will get the message also.

The fact of the matter is that most fires could be prevented. All that is needed is a little common sense, a little time, and a willingness to discard those materials you cannot store properly or safely.

Hey, What About Us?

The few campaign issues that have emerged in the state election to date seem to indicate a pattern of appeals to special interest groups in the hope that each candidate will be attractive to almost everyone for some special reason to win in November.

Now this is not new in politics but it disturbs us because, once elected, we find the winners all of a sudden pledging their efforts to "serve all of the people."

This apparently is merely a way of saying to the elderly, the working man, the consumer, the ill, the jobless, the unemployed, the teachers, the baker, the housewife, and maybe before the campaign is over, the butcher and the candlestick maker, that all these special promises made before the election now must be subordinate to "serving all the people."

It is probably too late to do anything about it in this campaign but wouldn't it be refreshing to hear a candidate tell the special interest group that maybe the only way he could do what they want is to tax them instead of someone else? Or even turn them down outright because what they want is really not justified.

Wouldn't it be nice to hear a candidate say he won't promise to change this or that because he really can't and wouldn't if he could?

Wouldn't it be a change if the candidates spent more time telling us how they intend to do what they can rather than rehashing what might have been done in the past?

Yes, it would be nice but then this editorial is really sour grapes.

In assessing the long list of wonderful things the candidates will do, if elected, we find that we are too old to be educated, too young for elderly benefits, too rich to be low-income folk, too poor for capital gains tax benefits, too healthy to be seriously sick, and too willing to pay more and more taxes. As a result, the politicians are only too willing to ignore us and we would be only too willing to ignore them too, if we could.

Ah, well, like the man said, "It only hurts when we laugh."

We took up the matter of a hospital and they authorized me to raise the money. I did and we began the 50-bed hospital. The hospital, which now accommodates 350 beds, is the Manchester Memorial Hospital.

"It was in our small hospital that the terminology intensive care came into being. Intensive care is more than just caring for a patient. It's a separate unit where capable nurses are in attendance night and day and where the necessary equipment to care for a very sick person is right at hand," Mr. Watkins explained.

"We had visits from delegations from hospitals from all over the world including Japan, Australia and Europe who came to see an intensive care unit at work."

He also credits Dr. E.J. Thoms and Hans Malingren, a licensed nurse and formerly superintendent of Fordham Hospital in New York City, for their contributions on behalf of the hospital.

"It was Dr. Thomas MacEachern, who died in 1956, who was responsible for hospital accreditation. I remember writing to him once when he was busy going from hospital to hospital throughout the world. I asked him to visit our hospital and receive an answer from him by return mail, announcing that he would be visiting us soon."

A man active in community service as his father and uncle were before him, C. Elmore Watkins, served as the first president of the board of trustees of Manchester Memorial Hospital stepping down as an active trustee in 1971, but still serving as its president emeritus.

He was a director of the Savings Bank of Manchester for 50 years and chairman of its board when he retired in 1967. He also served as chairman of the board of Watkins Bros., Inc. and is an incorporator of the Manchester Historical Society.

The continuity of the Watkins' family services to the community has not been broken.

Today, the third and fourth generation of Watkins men are active in the firm bearing the family name.

R. Bruce Watkins, C. Elmore's son, is president of the company of which the funeral home is a division. He has a Connecticut funeral directors license. He is also president of Mutual Heating Co., a director of the Manchester Savings and Loan Association, vice president of Camp Bethel Association in Haddam, a coporator of Manchester Memorial Hospital, and a member of the Manchester Advisory Board of Hartford National Bank, the C-DAP Agency, Kiwanis Club, and the executive committee of the Chamber of Commerce Drug Advisory Council.

William J. Lennon is director and manager of the Watkins Funeral Home at 142 E. Center St. and is treasurer of Watkins Bros., Inc.

He joined the company in 1954 and assumed his present position in 1970 when Ormand West retired. He is a member of Manchester Lodge of Masons and South United Methodist Church. He serves as second vice president of the Kiwanis Club of Manchester and is a member of the Greater Manchester Chamber of Commerce.

Associated with him at the funeral home is Roy Thompson who has been with the company since 1970. Thompson is secretary of the Connecticut State Board of examiners of Embalmers and Funeral Directors, a member of the Exchange Club, the Army & Navy Club, Knights of Columbus, and is a communicant of St. Bridget Church.

The funeral home moved to its present location in 1934.

Lennon, Thompson, R. Bruce Watkins and his son R. Lee Watkins are all licensed funeral directors.

"Bruce was in the South Pacific during World War II," his father said proudly, "and was awarded the Silver Star Medal, the Gold Star in lieu of the second Silver Star, and the Purple Heart."

R. Lee Watkins, Bruce's son, is also carrying on the long family tradition of Watkins Bros., Inc.

A graduate of Manchester High School, Class of 1965, and Babson Institute in 1968, he received a BS degree in business administration at Babson and lettered in soccer, swimming and lacrosse.

He served three years in the U.S. Navy, saw action in Vietnam and holds the rank of lieutenant (jg) in the Navy Reserves.

The elder Mr. Watkins speaks highly of his co-workers and especially cites Herbert Swanson who served at Watkins Bros., Inc. as advertising director and now, retired, he is secretary of the corporation.

Could a family business really get off the ground these days? Well, Mr. Watkins isn't so sure.

"With the high interest rates now in effect," he said, "starting a business is costly. But everybody working together just might make it go."

The open house, which will be conducted from 2 to 5 p.m. will feature Watkins Bros. personnel attired in costumes of yesterday, as well as area craftsmen who will demonstrate such arts as jewelry making, woodworking, silversmithing, coppersmithing, candlemaking, leaded stain glass, pottery, weaving, and many more. Hundreds of dollars in prizes will be awarded, as well as anniversary chairs.

Visitors will be presented with a lithograph of "The Charles Morgan Under Sail" while the supply lasts.

Refreshments will be served and the "Illusions," a female barbershop prize-winning quartet, members of the Mountain Laurel Chapter Chorus, will offer several musical renditions.

Sam Kotsch refinishes a Boston rocker in the workshop at Watkins Bros., Inc.

Sadzozinski Heads GOP

VERNON
Donald Sadzozinski, a member of the Vernon Town Council, was unanimously elected chairman of the Republican Town Committee Wednesday night.

Sadzozinski replaces John Daigle who resigned as chairman due to pressures of his work.

The newly-elected chairman pledged to devote all of his efforts to the fiscal responsibility policies as demonstrated over the last four years, the new chairman said.

Turning to the present Democratic platform, he said it is, "no different than it was under John Dempsey — spend, spend, spend. This policy, of course, can lead only to tax, tax, tax," he said.

He also referred to Morgan Campbell, Republican candidate for representative from the 56th District, and John Gialletti, candidate for judge of probate of the Ellington-Rockville District.

Dismissing from comments on the Republican candidates, Sadzozinski addressed himself to the Democratic candidate for state senator from the 5th District (Robert Hooley).

"This gentleman was once a state senator and seeks the office again. Well, let me tell you he also voted not once, but three times, for a state income tax, and this message must be forwarded to the voting public."

The town committee also unanimously voted to open all future town committee meetings to the public. Up to now only committee members were allowed to attend.

Hellier Says Big Labor Tries To Buy Second District Vote

VERNON

"The big labor bosses in Washington are attempting to perpetuate old-line Democratic policies in Congress that have brought our country to the brink of disaster," Sen. Sam Hellier, Republican candidate for the Second District Congressional seat, said in Vernon Wednesday night.

Hellier was speaking at the opening of his Vernon headquarters, to a group of other Republican candidates and townspeople.

Hellier charged big labor with trying to purchase the election for the Democrats in the Second Congressional District.

Citing an Oct. 1 article in the New York Times, he said it pinpointed Eastern Connecticut as a target area for big labor support of Democrats.

"The New York Times said the AFL-CIO's Committee on Political Education (COPE) had decided it should pour $15,000 to $20,000 into my opponent's campaign," Hellier said.

He continued, "They believe they can go over the heads of the people to elect what the Democrats are calling a veto-proof congress. What this country needs, and what I am seeking, is an inflation-proof Congress."

He reflected that it might be different if the AFL-CIO $20,000 donation reflected a ground swell of support by working people, but claimed that it doesn't.

He added, "The money for this donation has been extracted from union dues, without the consent of union members."

Union members tell me they are tired of high prices, inflation, food and fuel shortages, and escalating government spending. I've been a shipyard worker and I know many union members won't support a contribution aimed at taking over Congress that way," he said.

"The 'Hellier for Congress' headquarters is located at Union and Ward Sts. in Rockville.

Also speaking briefly were Howard Vollinger, candidate for state senator from the 5th District; Daniel McKeever, candidate for high sheriff of Tolland County; Dorothy

18 Workers Killed

MANILA (UPI) — Scaffolding around a skyscraper in suburban Makati collapsed today and at least 18 construction workers plunged to their deaths, the official Philippine News Agency reported.

Thirteen of the workers were dead at the scene. The other five died on arrival at the nearby Makati Medical Center, PNA said.

The accident occurred on the 15th floor of the U.S. First National City Bank project.

A bank spokesman said there were more than 20 construction workers on the floor.

The 15-story building was scheduled for completion next January. It was billed as the tallest structure in Makati, a boom town in Manila's outskirts which has become a major financial and commercial center in the Philippines.

POLICE REPORT

MANCHESTER
Galen C. Skidgel, Lawrence R. Uppidge and Charlene N. Skidgel, all age 20 and all from 58 Mountain St., Rockville, were arrested Wednesday at 9:30 p.m. and charged with fourth-degree larceny.

A purse was stolen from a home on Woodbridge St. Tuesday afternoon. A shopper at the Parkade Tuesday found credit cards from the purse on the pavement and turned them over to an employee of Kolsky's Shoes. The employee contacted the woman who contacted police.

A pellet gun was used to break a 6 by 10 foot plate glass window recently at Dillon Ford's display room on Main St.

Other arrests included:
• Alan R. Muldoon, 18, of 507 Main St. was arrested today at 2 a.m. and charged with evading responsibility after his car allegedly collided at 1:45 a.m. with a parked car on Rachel Rd. and Muldoon left the scene, police said.

A youth stole a 25-cent pie from the Highland Park Market at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday and ran away. An employee chased him but the youth escaped on a bike. The youth is described as tall, 14, five foot four inches, 100 to 120 pounds, medium build, black hair in a pony tail, with a blue wind breaker and a green bike with 26 inch wheels.

The Arkansas Democrat, who did not appear on Capitol Hill Wednesday could not be reached directly for comment, but his office said it had no further statement on the incident.

Police Say Rep. Mills in Fracas

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Wilbur Mills appeared intoxicated and had blood and scratches on his face when his car was stopped for speeding with its lights out near the Jefferson Memorial early Monday according to U.S. Park Police.

An occupant who got out of the car identified himself as Congressman Mills, a police report said. "He also appeared intoxicated and there was blood coming from his nose and several other facial wounds."

After the car stopped, Arthur said Anabella Battistella whose address was given as the same Arlington, Va., apartment building in which Mills lives, jumped out and lay on the ground.

He said Brent could recognize Mills by sight, adding "I think the officers on the scene could identify Congressman Mills."

THE CANDIDATES ARE SAYING

Mahoney: Utility Overcharges
Democrat Francis Mahoney, candidate in Manchester's 13th Assembly District, has reminded voters he has twice petitioned for a special legislative session to take action on alleged overcharges by utility firms. Mahoney said he predicts the Republican majority of the state House of Representatives will not call a special session, particularly before the Nov. 5 election. Mahoney charged that the Republican-controlled state Public Utilities Commission "has proven complacent and indifferent to the overcharges being made against the general public."

Haslett: Mahoney Vote Record
Harriet Haslett, Republican candidate in Manchester's 13th Assembly District, has called attention to the voting record of her opponent, Francis Mahoney—on matters concerning the state Commission on Hospital and Health Care. "Connecticut's Commission on Hospital and Health Care is recognized as a major force in keeping hospital costs in check," Mrs. Haslett said. "In existence one year, it has recently completed its first budget review that resulted in the shaving of about $4.2 million from requested price hikes by 35 general hospitals," she said. "The General Assembly vote creating this commission in April 1973 was 119 in favor and only 27 against. My incumbent opponent's vote was among the 27 negative votes."

Barry: Fair Campaign Practices
The decision of the state Elections Commission to require all candidates to publicly adopt a voluntary fair campaign practices code is a welcome addition to the Connecticut political scene, David Barry of Manchester said.

Barry is Democratic candidate for state senator in the Fourth District, which includes part of Manchester and all of the towns of Andover, Bolton, Coventry, East Windsor, Glastonbury, Hebron, and South Windsor.

"As state senator in the 1969 legislative session, I introduced a bill calling for a fair campaign practices code and requiring identification of all campaign literature," Barry said. "I look forward to sponsoring similar legislation in the 1975 session," he said.

"In the past two years," Barry said, "the people of this country have learned to their dismay about the so-called 'dirty tricks' of the last presidential election. The time has come to insist that this type of campaigning will not happen again," he said.

Insurance Industry Jobs Set at 115,100

HARTFORD (UPI) — The insurance industry is supporting 115,100 jobs in Connecticut, or about 10 per cent of the labor force, according to a survey conducted by the Insurance Association of Connecticut.

The IAC reports insurance companies directly employ some 25,000 persons in Connecticut, who live in 158 of its 169 towns. They support the jobs of about 12,500 independent agents and brokers and their employees IAC said.

The insurance industry also generates indirect employment in other Connecticut industries accounting for an additional 67,600 jobs, IAC representative Roger Dove, IAC executive director, said that employment pattern "proves beyond a doubt that the insurance industry is providing the Connecticut economy with a sound basis for future growth and development."

PZC Work Session Draws Protest

HEBRON
Nancy Foote
Correspondent
228-3970

After a short public meeting Tuesday night, members of the Planning and Zoning Commission voted to go into executive session to work on proposals for five new subdivisions.

At the close of the public segment of the meeting, Chairman Sal Mastandrea asked members of the audience if they had any comments or questions for the PZC. There being no response to the question, Mastandrea accepted the motion of PZC member Roy Wirth to hold the remainder of the meeting in closed session. Atty. William Borst rose to protest the action saying that he was present at the meeting to present information for a client. Borst further requested that the PZC make public its plans to hold work meetings in executive session.

Mastandrea told the members of the audience that they had been invited to participate earlier and since no one had responded he saw no reason to withdraw the motion. The room was cleared and the PZC members worked on the subdivision requests.

Decisions
Concerning the five requests the following decisions were made:
The Watz application for re-subdivision was approved.
Concerning Millstream II, the PZC members stated that the land appears to be in an area affected by the new inland wetlands regulations and a wetlands application is necessary. No soils data was shown on the subdivision map and they also suggested that the owner contract the Recreation Commission and the Conservation Commission concerning open spaces in the 9.3 acre tract.

Members of the PZC voted to communicate with the owners of the Elmsan property and tell them that if they wish to proceed with their subdivision request they may need to remove three marginal lots from the request because of questionable drainage. The developer must show the wetlands and center with the Recreation and Conservation Commissions concerning the open areas of the proposed subdivisions, they said.

Also on the Elmsan matter, the PZC members questioned the location of the wetlands areas of the subdivision, that he relocate the proposed ballfield in cooperation with the desires of the Recreation Commission. The preliminary plan must indicate the total acres of the subdivision, that a traffic flow study concerning the effect of the subdivision on the Old Colchester Rd. be undertaken, and that Mr. Sessa assure the town of 50 foot width on the Old Colchester Rd.

The fifth application, Northam Hills, was returned to the developer. Both state and local sanitarians do not recommend approval of the subdivision because of possible high ground water conditions.

Hearings Postponed On Rates for CMS

HARTFORD (UPI) — The state insurance Department has postponed until Nov. 16 hearings on Connecticut Medical Service's request for rate increases ranging from 36 to 77 per cent.

Commissioner Thomas C. White opened the hearing Wednesday at the State Capitol but then postponed them to allow the insurer time to modify its proposal.

The city of Hartford asked to intervene against the proposed increases, calling them inflationary, and the Connecticut Commission on Human Rights and Opportunities likewise asked to intervene on the grounds the increases would discriminate against pregnant women.

CMS wants rate increases for its Century contracts ranging from 36 to 77 per cent. The proposal would raise the monthly cost of the family group plan from the present $13.40 to $18.25.

The price of direct family payments would rise from a present $49.95 to $71.10 on a quarterly basis if the new rates are approved.

White said he granted the delay to let the company reestimate its proposal because returned expenses would not be met under the current proposal.

The Human Rights Commission said the proposed new contract would raise child delivery payments from the present $175 to $250, which the commission says is inadequate.

Ford, Weicker To Discuss Tax

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr., R-Conn., says he is going to meet with President Ford Friday to try to iron out their differences on a bill restricting White House access to federal income tax forms.

Weicker got an amendment approved by the Senate which had strong curbs on political use of Internal Revenue Service data but it is being held up by a House-Senate conference committee.

Ford has issued a strongly worded executive order banning improper use of the information but Weicker later announced and has supported a bill other than Weicker's institutionalizing the curbs.

At a news conference Wednesday, Ford said, however that if anyone can show him that the bill he favors is too weak, he will support a stronger measure, such as Weicker's.

Weicker offered his bill July 18 as an amendment to a White House personnel authorization and it was passed by a surprising margin. The amendment was knocked out by the House-Senate conference committee.

Weicker said he is going to meet with President Ford Friday to try to iron out their differences on a bill restricting White House access to federal income tax forms.

School Board Adopts Procedures Handbook

TOLLAND
Vivian Kennesson
The Board of Education has accepted a Handbook of Procedures regarding Pupil Personnel Services as prepared by Cam Vautour, special education director.

The in-depth handbook provided guidelines including special education services, policy on pupil records, and policy on referral procedures.

The board tabled a request by Vautour and Tolland High School Principal Roy Nierendorf to adopt a policy on the graduation of high school exceptional children. Many board members wanted to investigate further before taking action, no later than the first board meeting in January.

Mary Palewski
MIDDLETOWN (UPI) — Funeral services will be conducted Friday in Utica, N.Y., for Mary Louise Palewski, a founder and editor of "Alert," a statewide publication for women.

Miss Palewski died Tuesday at Hartford hospital at the age of 52. She was a senior copywriter at American Education Publications Corp., a subsidiary of the Xerox Corp. She also was director of the Middlesex chapter of the American Cancer Society. She was a native of Utica.

Shoots Wife, Self —
HARTFORD (UPI) — A Hartford man killed himself after shooting his wife three times while she worked at the Colt firearms factory in Hartford, police said.

Authorities said Moses Copeland, 36, was talking to his wife, Mary, 35, at the Colt factory Wednesday about 7 p.m. when he fired at a handgun and hit her about 10 shots, three of which hit her.

He then shot himself in the head, police said.

Mrs. Copeland was taken to Hartford hospital, where she was in stable condition suffering from gunshot wounds in the head, shoulder and torso. Police said they have not been able to determine a motive for the shooting.

Bidding System Change Delays Bid Opening

VERNON
A system of bidding that could possibly save costs on general contractor bids for the expansion project at Rockville High School has made it necessary to change the bid opening date.

Originally scheduled to be opened Tuesday, the bid dates have been changed to Oct. 17 for the major mechanical contractors and Oct. 24 for the general contractor bids.

The project, to cost $5 million, is expected to start shortly after the contract is awarded, and it is hoped the classroom wing will be ready for use by September to eliminate double sessions.

The change of bid procedure was made by the Permanent Building Committee headed by Robert Wehrli. Wehrli said the one bid opening would mean the mechanical contractors would make their bid to the general contractor who would make a choice and then incorporate those costs into the overall bid.

With the prefiling system to be used, the mechanical bids will be opened by the building committee which will then choose the low bidder in various categories and inform the general contractors, submitting bids, of the committee's choice.

Both general and mechanical contractors, interested in bidding, had asked for a postponement on a larger project and the mechanical contractors because some are interested in bids that were to be opened today on a larger project and the mechanical contractors because the project is so complex.

The building committee has been authorized to hire a clerk of the works for the project. A subcommittee is screening applicants and several will be recommended to the entire committee which will make the final decision.

Council Will Explain Position On Social Service Department

SOUTH WINDSOR
Judy Kuehnel
Some members of the South Windsor Town Council are expected to attend tonight's meeting of the Community Services Council to explain the town's position regarding the establishment of a social service department.

Members of the volunteer-run Community Services Council last week expressed deep concern over the outcome of a meeting between Peter Santarpia, social service coordinator, and Town Council members.

Members of the service council said that the Town Council is doing an apparent turnaround regarding what they considered a commitment to establish a social services department.

Last year the Town Council approved a report by Councilman Robert Horish recommending the establishment of the social services department. Santarpia was then hired by the town as social service coordinator.

Members of the Community Services Council said they are without the full establishment of the proposed social services department, which would include many programs now run on a volunteer basis, they "will have to seriously consider the value of uncovering problem areas."

The goal of the Community Services Council is presently to identify areas of community needs and to develop pilot programs to fill such needs.

Councilman Horish, who plans to attend tonight's meeting, said that while he expects that eventually a full social services department will be developed the council feels that they should work into it slowly.

It is expected that Santarpia, who is presently working in an advisory capacity as well as doing casework, will fulfill town needs by concentrating more on casework.

Tonight's meeting of the Community Services Council will be held at Our Savior Lutheran Church, Graham Rd. at 7:30. Members urge any interested residents to attend.

Ella's Flag
COLUMBIA (UPI) — Mrs. Iva Pescetello says she will keep flying her Italian flag until Nov. 3 when she expects Rep. Ella T. Grasso, D-Conn., to be elected governor. Mrs. Pescetello, who lived three blocks from Mrs. Grasso in Windsor Locks years ago, said "It is wonderful that a woman whose parents came over here from Italy has worked so hard and given so much of herself to now gain the height of running for governor. She said the family has had the flag since the 1920s, when it was flown on special occasions.

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE PERSON WHO BROKE INTO LYNCH TOYOTA, SUNDAY SEPT. 15th.

Let's pretend, for a moment, that you were not involved in the break, but that you were one of the dozens of people who were wronged. First, an example, far fetched as it may be, of one of the possible consequences of your act. Your mother or father is in the way home from work one day and they are in a collision with a stolen car, and killed. How would you feel? Did you consider this possibility when you stole our car? Fortunately you did not get into an accident.

Let's assume you left your car at our garage Sunday evening so that we could work on it Monday. At 9:30 A.M. Monday you get a call at work from us telling you that the keys to your car, as well as the keys to five other customers' cars, were stolen the night before. Your car can't be worked on nor can you have it back until we get all new locks for it. You hit the red book because now you have to make arrangements for a ride to work tomorrow, and possibly Wednesday.

Or your car is in a body shop being repaired, but Lynch can't deliver the parts to fix it because their parts delivery man is on his way to Greenwich to pick up a new ignition lock for a customer's car whose keys were stolen.

Or you've shopped all around for your first car, and finally you find just what you want, at a price you can afford, at our place. You buy the car, and arrange to take delivery of it at 6:00 P.M. Monday, Sept. 16th. All weekend you have imagined yourself driving your first car, thinking all the while that at 6:00 P.M. Monday you never come. Time won't pass fast enough. Late Monday morning you get a call telling you that you can't pick up your car tonight, and maybe not till Wednesday night, because someone stole the keys to YOUR car.

Next time you think about breaking into a business or someone's home, put yourself in the other fellow's shoes and imagine how you would feel.

Maybe you needed the $170.00 you stole, maybe not. But suppose you got a job for yourself and scrimped and saved that much money for something you really wanted. You'll be proud of yourself and your purchase, and all your friends would envy you. You probably would be stolen money and have nothing to show for it. Easy come, easy go! And you've got no purchase to be proud of either.

You and I live in the greatest country in the world. Everyone who wants to get ahead has the opportunity to if he works, and works hard. You have shown great talent by successfully breaking into our place, and not getting caught so far. If you get caught there's a very little opportunity in jail. So why don't you stand up like a man and try right? Get yourself straightened out and give yourself something to be proud about, not something to be ashamed of. When you do, let me know because I'll be proud of you.

Three Female Coaches File Charges of Discrimination

COVENTRY
Monica Shea
Correspondent
642-9495

Three of the women teachers at the high school have filed a lawsuit with the state Human Rights and Opportunities Commission charging the Board of Education with sex discrimination.

The three teachers, all coaches for the girls athletic sports at the high school — Catherine Talano, Susan Lachinger and Jean Mitnik — have charged that the board discriminated against them by not paying equal stipends for both girls and boys coaches.

The board has offered the girls coaches an increase in stipends last March which the girls turned down because it was not compatible with what the male coaches were getting.

The board had offered the girls coaches between two and one per cent less than the male coaches were receiving.

The Board of Administrators of electors will meet all day Saturday to review the applications of those residents found eligible to apply for election.

Park Lights Issue Settled, Says Shaw

BOLTON
Donna Holland
Correspondent
646-0375

Larry Shaw, park commissioner, reported the controversy over the lights for Herrick Memorial Park has finally been settled.

At a town meeting in May residents approved the appropriation of $1,200 from the capital and non-recurring budget for lights for the football field at the park.

The selectmen waived bidding for the lights in the best interest of the town.

Shaw said he had agreed James Howard of Bolton Electric would provide the lights. Howard's original quotation for the lights provided a 40 per cent discount of which he said he would give the town 20 per cent and himself 20 per cent.

When the bill recently arrived at $1,200, the amount approved by townsmen, Shaw said Howard retained the 20 per cent mark up although he finally agreed to split the 25 per cent with the town. Shaw said Howard agreed to give the town a 10 per cent discount and would take a 15 per cent profit margin himself.

The cost to the town will remain at $1,200, the amount approved by townsmen, the Bolton Football Association will pay a $84 difference.

Shaw said the lights are now in town and as soon as the poles are erected the lights will be connected by Johnny Haugh, vice president of the football association.

Dance Friday
The Entertainment Committee will sponsor a Columbus Day Dance Friday from 7:30 until 11:30 p.m. at Bolton High School.

The dance is being held to raise funds for the 200th anniversary celebration of the country.

"Music will be provided by 'Amazing Firegod.'" Tickets will be sold at the door at $1.25 per person. Refreshments will be available. The event is open to the public, there is no age limit.

Voter Session
The Board of Admissions of Bolton will hold a voter making session Saturday at the Town Hall from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Catherine Leiner, town clerk, said it will be the last regular voter making session for those who want to vote in the Nov. 5 election.

Anyone living in Bolton prior to Oct. 12 who is eligible to become a voter must do so by Saturday.

Anyone having his eighteenth birthday on Oct. 13 must be made a voter at the Saturday session.

Meet Monday
St. Maurice Council of Catholic Women will meet Monday at the church parish center.

A mass at 7 p.m. will be followed by a Christmas decoration workshop given by Bud Leiber.

MPHNA Can Offer Health District Lead: Dr. Barrett

By ALICE EVANS
Manchester Public Health Nursing Association (MPHNA) as a senior health agency among the surrounding towns in a position of leadership in the formation of a region health district according to Dr. Harold Barrett, deputy commissioner of public health in Connecticut.
Speaking to the MPHNA board of directors at its annual meeting and luncheon Wednesday at Manchester Country Club, Dr. Barrett said the agency has sufficient employees to lead and expand its services to provide help to smaller agencies in other towns. He reminded the group that all patients at Manchester Memorial Hospital don't live in Manchester as a large percentage comes from towns in the area.
He said that the State Department of Health concerns with long-term care is not concerned with adding more hospital beds but with increasing the care of people in their own homes.
"Funds have been available since 1954 from the State Department of Health for the expansion of home health care and the development of health districts," he said.
"Towns will benefit from health districts as they will receive $1 per capita additional

By JUNE TOMPKINS
Adult basic education has found a permanent home on Main St.
Tuesday marked the occasion of an open house for the Adult Basic Education Center at 739 Main St.
The program has been in Manchester five years, but this is the first time the center has had a location it can consider permanent. The past two years, the center rented space in the Salvation Army building.
The courses which are taught in the morning are offered free and prepare the student for a high school equivalency diploma. Subjects taught are English, literature, mathematics, science and social studies. The program lasts 12 weeks.
Attending the informal ceremonies were John Ryan and Paul Taylor, representatives from the State Department of Adult Education; George Keenan, regional director of adult basic education in Connecticut; Joel Chaixon, director of adult basic education in Manchester; Alfred Tycheen, assistant school superintendent; and Allan Thomas, chairman of the Board of Education.
The program is for anyone over age 19.
The present age range of the 28 class members covers the minimum age to middle age.

The program offers an opportunity for those who have dropped out of school to complete their education.
The younger ones at the center said they realize the need for a diploma in getting a good job. One teen student plans to continue his education at Manchester Community College. A girl, who has no definite plans, wants only to take advantage of the opportunity to learn as much as she can.
Older members have different reasons for joining the basic education program. Some, whose families are now grown, find they have the time, the opportunity and the desire to complete their high school education.
Adult basic education program alumnae have gone on to Manchester Community College. Some have taken up computer programming and data processing.
Whatever the program does, it does reward the students with self satisfaction, says Mrs. Ruth Kukulka and Mrs. Elizabeth Seipel, teachers at the center.
Anyone interested in the program may call Joel Chaixon at 646-5854, ext. 252, or visit the center on Main St. any Monday through Thursday from 9 to 11 a.m.

Speakers Bureau Formed By Center Committee

Mrs. Marci Negro, chairman of the Regional Occupational Training Center advisory committee, has announced the formation of a Speakers Bureau. Members will attend various group meetings during the month to inform them on the referendum question coming up in this year's Nov. 5 election.
The center, as proposed, will be the first of its kind in the country and will be utilized to train the mentally, physically and multi handicapped students ages 14-21. If approved, the facility will be built on the campus of Manchester Community College.

Carini Proposes Recycling Plant

WALLINGFORD (UPI)—Mayor Joseph Carini has unveiled a proposal for a $10 million complex for recycling raw materials from solid waste refuse that would be sold to industries.
Carini said he was to meet today with a number of industrialists whose concerns could be interested in buying the estimated 1,400 tons of valuable materials a day the complex could produce.
Carini said the plant, on a 150-acre tract off the Merritt Parkway, would receive 1,500 tons a day of solid waste from four collection sites to be established statewide by the Connecticut Resource Recovery Authority.
One such site already is under way in Bridgeport, and others are planned in New Haven, Berlin and Newtown, he said.
He said the complex could take in nearly all of the state's solid wastes, and separate them into aluminum, glass, steel, and other metals as well as heavy organic materials such as rubber and wood.
Carini estimated the plant could produce as much as half a ton of pure tin daily which at the present price of $4.25 a ton could mean $1.25 million worth of tin annually.

Control of Main St. Changes in November

Town acquisition of Manchester's downtown Main St., voted by town directors in August, still hasn't been completed, Town Manager Robert Weiss said this morning.
Weiss told the Downtown Action Committee that the town and state are now in a 60-day waiting period in which the legal aspects of the transfer are being worked out.

Citations List Grows by Five

Five names were added to the list of people receiving citations for their "outstanding service to the town during the power blackout last December." By error, the names were not included in a list run in The Herald Oct. 1.
They are: Wilfred Dion, Theodore L. Fairbanks, Mrs. Anna Louise Gallagher, Mrs. Pauline M. Sheeham and Mrs. Mary Upping.
They are all employees of the Board of Education in the building maintenance operation and in the high school cafeteria.
"They performed in such a manner as to greatly relieve the problems of the town during this trying week," a town spokesman said.

Commentary: Polish Coal for Sale

Polish Communist party leader Edward Gierek comes to the United States as a man with something to sell.
The visit also establishes a number of firsts.
Gierek is well acquainted with the West, having spent a large part of his youth in France and Belgium, but it is his first visit to the United States. He is also the highest ranking member of the Polish hierarchy to visit the United States since the Communist takeover of Poland after World War II.
Since he also is the first Communist leader to meet with President Ford since the latter's ascent to the presidency he becomes a spearhead of other Communist contacts to follow. As a close friend of Soviet party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev his reaction to the American president may be expected to be considered carefully by the Russian leader. Both Ford and Gierek are avowed proponents of détente and Ford himself made clear the propitious timing of Gierek's visit in his welcoming remarks.

"Portland," he said, "has a role to play in seeking a resolution to the world energy problem." He added that Gierek, a former coal miner, can make a special contribution because of his "lifetime of expertise."
Poland accounts for 20 per cent of the world's coal exports. New England states this year are importing 600,000 tons of Polish coal which is especially desirable for its low sulphur content.
The United States also is interested in Polish coal-mining technology which is said to be considerably advanced over American methods.

For Gierek the visit also has important significance. He came to power after the riots of December, 1970—in Gdansk—Gdynia and other Baltic sea towns. The riots were touched off by workers unhappy over inadequate housing, the scarcity of food and consumer goods and rising prices. They led to the overthrow of party leader Wladyslaw Gomulka who had himself achieved power by the same route in 1956.
Polish shipbuilding workers and coal miners have demonstrated they can paralyze the country. So far they have gone along with Gierek but his future could depend on how well he carries out his promises vastly to increase production of consumer goods and housing.
For this he needs American technology and dollars.
In an interview on Oct. 7 with UPI Correspondent Nicholas Daniloff, Gierek expressed confidence two-way trade would surpass $2 billion in 1980.
In order to keep its workers happy Poland has launched an

Bridgeport Population Slips; Hartford Now Largest City

HARTFORD (UPI)—The population of Bridgeport declined by 3,000 persons in the past year, returning to Hartford the title of "largest city in Connecticut," according to figures showed.
The number of residents in Bridgeport went down from 156,000 in June, 1973, to 152,900 last June, the department said. Hartford had 156,500 residents as of July 1974, the department figures showed.
New Haven was third with 132,500 inhabitants Waterbury fourth with 112,400 followed by Stamford with 108,000. They were the only cities with populations of more than 100,000.

Motha Deceived
NEW HAVEN (UPI) - Connecticut agricultural scientists have used a synthetic sex lure to treat up the gypsy moth's love life.
Jeffrey Granet and Charles Doane, researchers at the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment Station, experimented with disparture, a chemical copy of the natural perfume used by female gypsy moths to attract a mate.
The researchers say two-acre plots were treated with the substance, after which virgin female moths were placed in the area. They failed to attract mates even after many hours. During the same period, the researchers said, up to 80 percent of females on untreated plots were mated.
The experiment was believed to have been the first successful use of disparture in a large population. Disparture was first synthesized by U.S. Agriculture Department scientists.

Change Unlikely In Band Policy

Manchester's Board of Directors was told Tuesday night it should consider allowing the high school band to perform at commercial functions, but it appears school policy prohibiting such ventures isn't likely to change. Bandleader Ken Morgester Tuesday night advocated a new policy which would allow the Manchester High School band to play for profit because student musicians need more exposure and the band costs always use financial assistance. Morgester told directors that high school administration had recently denied a request from King's Department Store, which sought a band performance in conjunction with the store's anniversary celebration. King's was willing to donate $200 to the band fund, Morgester said. "I was quite disappointed that the hierarchy at the school wouldn't permit them to go out and play," Morgester said. "Manchester School Superintendent James Kennedy said an unwritten, eight-year-old school policy, based on guidelines of the state Music Educators Association, prohibits school musical group participation in commercial or political enterprises. Kennedy noted that the policy grew out of a number of incidents several years ago which prompted complaints to the school board. Because it's an old policy it should be re-examined, Kennedy admitted, adding, "I think that the policy probably wouldn't change much. There have to be some limits," Kennedy said Thursday, "because there are real pitfalls with involvement in commercial functions."

In Machine Gun Mishap Kissinger Narrowly Escapes Injury

DAMASCUS (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger narrowly escaped injury today when an Israeli-made Uzi machine gun fell from a rack inside his plane and discharged shots that wounded a Secret Service agent. Kissinger was only 20 feet away when the incident occurred as his plane was taxiing for takeoff from Cairo to Damascus. He was not hurt, but was rushed to his forward cabin by agents. Agent Grazed by Bullet The Secret Service agent, Walter Bothe, fell to the floor in the galley of the plane. Bothe was able to continue the trip to Damascus and told newsmen he hoped to stay with the party for the remainder of the Middle East tour. Bothe was permitted to speak to his family in Arlington, Va., over the radio to assure them he was only slightly hurt. "You are all lucky," Kissinger told newsmen aboard the plane. The submachine gun, a rapid-fire weapon that security officials said they keep on hand in case large crowds get out of control. Newsmen aboard the plane believed at least two shots were discharged in the accident. Kissinger told newsmen later: "I learned about the accident only one minute before I was taken back to my cabin. They pulled all the shades in my cabin shut, because at first they thought it might have come from the outside. It is certain now it came from the inside of the plane." A U.S. Embassy security official in Cairo describing the incident had told newsmen originally that an American security agent accidentally shot himself.

Campaign Reform Bill Sent to the President

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress has passed a far-reaching campaign reform bill and sent it to President Ford. The measure passed by a 364-24 vote in the House of Representatives Thursday would be in the financing of political campaigns for federal office, especially the 1976 presidential campaign. Under current practices, candidates raise privately all the money they can and spend it all they get. Spending Limit But the campaign reform bill would allow the Democratic and Republican presidential candidates to receive no more than $20 million each and spend no more than $10 million each. It would also limit the financing of political campaigns for federal office, especially the 1976 presidential campaign. Under current practices, candidates raise privately all the money they can and spend it all they get. NEWS CAPSULES

Want Nixon Testimony NEW YORK (UPI) — The Louis Harris poll has found that a majority of Americans surveyed believe former President Richard Nixon should be asked about the Watergate cover-up even if it is too ill to travel to Washington for the trial of his former secretary. The survey also said a majority believes the cover-up trial should go ahead despite the pardon granted Nixon by President Ford. Tornado Hits Village CANONCITO, N.M. (UPI) — A rare autumn tornado cut a 200-yard swath through a small Indian village Thursday, killing an infant girl, demolishing houses and trampling a school bus. Eight persons were injured.

Inflation Rate Drop Forecast

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford's chief economist says the country will look for a rate of inflation — now 6.2 per cent — to decline 2 or 3 percentage points by springtime. Alan Greenspan, chairman of Ford's Council of Economic Advisors, volunteered that figure when asked to supply a number for the President's Tuesday prediction of "a meaningful reduction" in the rate of inflation by early 1975. Meantime, much of the economic news pointed toward higher — not lower — prices. The Agriculture Department said the early frost would yield a corn crop 18 per cent below last year's, pointing to still higher meat prices in 1975 and 1976. The soybean crop was disappointing too. The Labor Department said wholesale prices, which recently had been rising at an annual rate of 3.5 per cent, had virtually leveled off in September. The rise reported Thursday was one-tenth of 1 per cent.

Little Farm Likely Site For Housing for Elderly

By DOUG BEVINS In June, however, MHA members admitted that the cost of the Little property — estimated at more than $200,000 — was much too high. The MHA has only a $60,000 state grant to work with, and just $25,000 of that figure is allocated to site acquisition. The MHA may have more funds to work with, though. This year's town budget includes a $50,000 item for elderly housing, and MHA Chairman Pascal Mastrangelo said the MHA hopes to receive some of the money expected to be given Manchester under recently enacted federal legislation (the Better Communities Act). Mastrangelo said the MHA has been negotiating with Little for some time in an effort to arrive at an agreeable price for the site. Mastrangelo emphasized, though, that several other sites are still under consideration. He said the zoning application is merely an attempt to take care of some red tape in case the Little property is purchased. Favorable approval of a zoning variance now would save time in the future, he said. Mastrangelo said, mentioning that the MHA has 171 eligible applicants on its waiting list for housing. The MHA now operates three low-cost elderly housing projects with a combined total of 276 apartment units.

Woman Jumps into Pool A woman — who Mills called a family friend and was reported to be a former stripper at a Washington nightclub — left a car and jumped into a body of water near the Jefferson Memorial. Mills said they were taking the woman home after she became ill at a party held by friends. Mills has not been in his office all week although the Ways and Means Committee which he chairs has been preparing tax legislation. He said in his statement Thursday he would be back today but his staff passed the word that he was ill. There was no indication when he would be seen in public again or when he would return to Arkansas to campaign for re-
