Coal Negotiators Optimistic

Both sides in the coal talks were optimistic today about a settlement "very, very soon" that would put the nation's 120,000 striking soft-coal miners back on the job in two weeks. The first layoffs in related industries occurred Tuesday and power companies and auto makers prepared to deal with a severe coal shortage if the strike goes beyond the two week minimum. United Mine Workers contract ratification procedures take between 10 days and two weeks, and the all-day bargaining sessions are aimed at getting a new contract this week. Tuesday's 15 1/2 hours of talks and caucuses by both sides included a complete industry package of proposals. It was the first day of the strike at 1,200 mines in 25 states, affecting 70 per cent of the country's coal production.

Talks were to resume at midmorning today. "I'm very, very optimistic that we can wrap this thing up very, very soon," said UMW Secretary-Treasurer Harry Patrick when the Tuesday session ended at 1 a.m. today. Guy Farmer, chief negotiator of the Bituminous Coal Operators of America said: "I think we're now making a super human effort to make this agreement," which he said could come "at almost any time." Many of the miners, long prepared for a strike, went hunting or played golf. But the strike was grim news for 13,700 U.S. Steel company workers who will be laid off because of the banking of 17 furnaces and operations cutbacks at four others. Republic Steel in Cleveland also said there would be layoffs, and strike-related dismissals were announced at Norfolk and Western, Penn Central, and Chesapeake and Ohio railroads, which haul coal. The only report of violence Tuesday came from Norton, Va., where shots were fired at UMW members picketing a non-union mine. There were no injuries. Commerce Secretary Frederick B. Dent ordered a close watch on soft-coal exports to make sure there is no unnoticed shipment of coal abroad. Experts estimate a two-week strike would cost $3 billion nationwide in production losses and that a longer one could eventually put 1 million persons out of work. Unemployment now is at a three-year high of 6 per cent. After the steel and rail industries, auto companies and public utilities would next feel the effects of the strike. The Tennessee Valley Authority ordered Meanwhile...

General Motors announced the temporary closing next week of three compact car plants idling 7,175 more workers.

The Ford administration conceded for the first time Tuesday that the economy was entering a recession.

The stock market, showing jitters over the start of a nationwide coal strike, opened lower today in moderate trading.

Palestine Leader Addresses U.N.

BULLETIN

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Palestine leader Yasser Arafat, addressing the U.N. General Assembly at midday, called for establishment of a Palestinian National Authority and said that "war starts in Palestine and peace starts in Palestine."

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Palestine leader Yasser Arafat flew into New York today and was taken by U.S. Army helicopter to U.N. headquarters under virtual siege to plead before the General Assembly for a Palestinian homeland in the Israeli-occupied West Bank of the Jordan.

Death threats against Arafat by the Jewish Defense League prompted the tightest security precautions in United Nations history. Arafat landed at Kennedy airport before dawn on a flight from Algeria and was airlifted to the lowering glass skyscraper that houses the world organization alongside the East River.

Before leaving Algiers he said he would "try to correct the wrongs committed against the Palestinian people."

Police sealed off the Van Wyck Expressway leading from Kennedy Airport to Manhattan, and a motorcade of 20 cars including three limousines roared into the city with other members of Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization delegation.

Hundreds of New York police were mobilized outside the U.N. headquarters and at least 16 U.N. guards were seen brandishing submachine guns. While two U.S. helicopters, one of them carrying Arafat, hovered overhead, U.S. Coast Guard vessels patrolled the East River alongside the U.N. compound.

Security agents with automatic rifles stepped off the helicopters ahead of Arafat and carefully searched the U.N. area before he landed. Other guards were on patrol across the East River to prevent any long-distance rocket attacks, and police sharpshooters stood guard on nearby skyscrapers.

Arafat was scheduled to address the General Assembly — only the second time in history that a nonmember has spoken to the group — the first was Pope Paul. Before leaving Algeria on the all night flight, Arafat gave an indication of what he would say.

In a departure statement quoted by the Iraqi News Agency, Arafat said:

"I consider the current session of the United Nations as one of the most critical sessions where the Palestinian question is concerned because it will correct the wrongs committed against the Palestinian people."

Arafat called on all nations "to stand by the rights of the Palestinian people who, for the past 26 years, have been living as refugees."

For Israel, Arafat's appearance was a diplomatic defeat. The Jewish state regards Arafat only as leader of the Arab guerrillas who have carried on a bloody campaign against Israel for the past 25 years. Israeli leaders have called the PLO assassins of women and children.

Arafat gained added stature in the Arab world earlier this month when a summit

Schools Have Enough Money

By SOL R. COHEN

"It is not our intent to come back to you for more money (for school purposes in the current fiscal year)," is the pledge given by the Manchester Board of Directors Tuesday night by Allan Thomas, school board chairman.

Thomas and Wilson Deakin, assistant superintendent of schools, were at the directors' meeting to explain the two-year contract agreed to by the Board of Education and the Manchester Education Association.

Thomas was replying to a question by Director Carl Zinsser: "If we don't reject this contract, can we be sure you won't come back to us and ask for more money?"

School board, happy with a new teachers' contract, doesn't intend to seek more money this year.

"I would think — no," replied Thomas. "At this point of time, we don't foresee coming back for more money unless the unknowns — oil and paper prices, for example — eat us out of all our funds." The directors took no action Tuesday night. It will consider action at its Nov. 19 meeting. By state law, all that is required of the board is that it vote to reject or not to reject.

In explaining the two-year contract, Thomas said it's a closed contract, without a reopening clause and without a cost-of-living renegotiating clause, "unlike many teacher contracts throughout the state."

The contract provides an 8.08 per cent salary and fringe benefit increase in the first year (retroactive to July 1, 1974), and about 8.75 per cent in the second (beginning July 1, 1975).

The first year increase consists of 2.4 per cent for increments, 5.22 per cent for salary raises, 0.16 per cent for extracurricular activities (including a $5 per point increase for coaches), and 0.3 per cent for miscellaneous fringe benefits. The second year increase consists of 2.4 per cent for increments, 5 per cent for salary raises, and the rest for fringe benefits — including another $5 per point for coaches, a prescription rider, and coverage for home-office visits by physicians.

An allowable 60 days of accumulated sick leave pay at retirement is part of the agreement.

Director Vivian Ferguson remarked, "When I pick up the papers and see how many people are being laid off and are out of work, I'm disappointed at the 8.08 and 8.75 increases — higher than the 7.75 increases given municipal employees."

"I'm not saying I won't approve the contract, I'm only expressing disappointment. When we appropriated money for the schools, we took into consideration all possible raises and fringe benefits. The 7.75 per cent figure appeared accurate."

First Aide Contract Gets Board Approval

By JUNE TOMPKINS

A new two-year labor contract with the Manchester Federation of Paraprofessionals was ratified Tuesday night by the Town Board of Education.

The labor contract, the first for school paraprofessionals, provides a reopening of salary negotiations in the second year of its duration.

The salary scale in the agreement, which is retroactive to July 1, provides for five steps in three classifications:

- The lowest grade salary covers a range of $3,496 to $4,028.
- The next grade, Library I, covers a salary range of $3,876 to $4,408.
- The top grade, Library II, covers a range of $4,446 to $4,978.

Two-year contract includes wage reopener in second year.

The lowest grade includes newly hired employees and those with less than six months experience. With experience, those employees progress through the five salary steps in the range.

The first salary step in Library I and Library II specifies employment after Sept. 1, 1974. Employees in those two classifications advance in salary steps as their experience accumulates.

A paraprofessional is defined as a non-certified person employed by the school board whose assignment is limited to assisting a professional staff member.

Among the jobs considered paraprofessional are instructional aide, teacher's aide, learning disability aide, audio-visual assistant, tutor of the blind, and library aide.

The new contract recognizes the Manchester Federation of Paraprofessionals, Local 3175, AFT, AFL-CIO, as the exclusive bargaining agent for all paraprofessional employees working at least 20 hours per week.

The new contract, negotiated by the board by Asst. School Supt. Wilson Deakin, also provides:

- Board payment of the full cost of Connecticut Medical Service Century 91 coverage, Blue Cross, $250,000 in major medical insurance, $5,000 in life insurance, and $45 weekly disability insurance.

A prescription rider will be added to the Blue Cross coverage effective July 1, 1975.

Acknowledges Gift

Susag's Departure A Special Event

Rounding out five years of service to the community as a member of the Manchester Board of Education, M. Philip Susag of 46 Adelaide Rd. received gifts of appreciation and adulations from fellow board members at Tuesday night's board meeting.

Silently witnessing the event was Mrs. Susag, who attended at her husband's request. She had also attended her husband's first board meeting.

Susag, a Republican and a forthright board member, said he was proud to be on a board that did not waste time talking about such "shenanigans" of other boards that talked about things like "gimmick hats."

He commended the board for its ability to indulge in "give and take."

"It is difficult to tell who is Democrat and who is Republican," he said, "and this is a credit to the board." Susag considered his board term "the most worthwhile thing I've done."

The two highlights of his board service were his participation in the hiring of Dr. James P. Kennedy, superintendent of schools, and Dr. Alfred Tychsen, assistant superintendent, he said.

Various members of the board said they would miss his insight, his dedication and his forthrightness.

Susag had served as chairman of the board's building and sites committee in 1970. Although he was once strongly in favor of a third junior high school in the southwest section of town, he joined forces with the board on a school renovation program when plans for a new school site authorization did not materialize.

A native of Minneapolis, Minn., Susag is employed as a project manager at Pratt and Whitney Aircraft Division of United Aircraft Corp., East Hartford.

Directors Hear Impounding Proposal

By SOL R. COHEN

When the Board of Directors met Oct. 8 in executive session to review Case Mt. vandalism problems, it instructed Asst. Town Counsel Victor Moses to draft amendments to Manchester's parking ordinance — to provide for towing and impounding vehicles declared parked illegally.

Tuesday night, Moses presented a rough draft of proposed "impounding" amendments — to include parklands and blocked entryways into parklands as areas for illegal parking.

Moses said the directors may take all or any part of the proposed amendments — on the basis of three alternatives:

- To include the entire town.
- To cover specific areas only.

To provide for snow-emergency towing only.

Moses said the amendments would meet the constitutional test of legality — if reasonableness and need (for the towing and impounding) are proven.

Under existing regulations in Manchester, a car may be towed if it is parked on a public highway during a snowstorm and is obstructing the normal operation of a snowplow.

Police Chief James Raerdon, present at Tuesday's meeting, was asked his opinion of the proposed amendments. He recommended further study and discussion, because the proposed amendments were newly drafted.

Earlier in Tuesday's meeting, when the directors were discussing a petition from 25 residents on Horace St. — requesting review of Raerdon's insistence that the "no parking" signs on both sides of Horace St. are there to stay — Raerdon remarked, "Streets are to move traffic with safety to all concerned. That's our policy."

Because several directors expressed sympathy for the Horace St. residents (the area has multiple-family dwellings with little off-street parking), the board decided it will view the area prior to its Nov. 19 meeting.

The proposed amendments to the parking ordinance spell out creation of vehicle-pounds authorization for impounding the vehicles, notice to the owner of impounded vehicles and their owners' release of impounded vehicles and payment of charges, waiver of damages against the town by operators of the storage garage(s) where vehicles are impounded and by owners of the impounded vehicles, and areas subject to towing and impounding of vehicles found there.

In the only official action taken by the board Tuesday night, Moses was authorized to retain outside legal assistance on a per-diem basis — as needed.

Town Counsel William Broneira is ill and facing surgery and Moses is serving as acting town counsel.

The funds for legal assistance will come out of the existing budget for his department.

Town Manager Robert Weiss said it is his intention to pay Moses the salary designated for the town counsel's post — pro-rated for the time he is acting town counsel.

"The Indian Ocean Republic of Maldives will issue a colorful eight value set which will feature some of the beautiful sea shells and corals found in the water surrounding the islands."

Here are a couple of samples. The smooth one on the left is a cowrie.

As you check your globe of the world you will find the Maldives about a half inch below and to the left of the pointed part of India. There are some hundreds of tiny islands formed from coral reefs. The inhabited area is only 115 square miles; population, 123,000. They have been a member of the U.S. since 1965 and a republic since 1968.

is kept moving to supply a gentle water flow for the health and happiness of her army of kids.

Anyone scanning the coin papers, unless he is completely immune to boredom, will soon find that he has had it up to here with the ads of the silver ingot boys and their "investment opportunities." They tout up to the heartstrings citing wildlife, heritage, patriotism and whatever. Not yet, but next week perhaps, a medallion shaped like an apple pie with the motto "As American as..."

So it's a relief to discover such a thing as the Liberty Seated Coin Club. (U.S. World, Nov. 6). I have written for info to see what goes on there.

The first appearance of the seated figure was on the Gobrecht pattern dollar in 1836. This design had a nice flying eagle on the back. The coin (quarters, halves, and dollars) finally came out with the bird changed to a stationary heraldic eagle having a shield on his chest and wings and arrows clutched in his talons. It is not as stately as the Barber eagle though, as there is considerable liveliness left in the wings and head.

The half-dimes and dimes have only a wreath and lettering on the back.

The seated libs come in many varieties — arrows at date, drapery changes, etc. but it is a good idea to get at least one XF piece to get a good idea of the basic design.

Here are some dates that are surprisingly inexpensive: 1853 half-dime, 1891 dime, 1854 quarter, and 1876 half. The dollar is bound to cost a bit as there were only two years with mintages over a million, 1871 and 1872.

NEWS FOR SENIOR CITIZENS
 By WALLY FORTIN

Hi folks. I guess things here at the center start with our fine turnout for our kitchen social games in the morning, and after a delicious lunch and action moved upstairs for our set-back games, and we had 63 players with the following winners:

Low Weber, 136; John Phelps, 134; Michael Desimone, 129; Oscar Cappuccio, 128; Peter Frey, 126; Helena Gavello, 125; Margorie McLain, 124; Bernadette Schuetz, 123; Eva Post, Bertha Durhing, Amanda De Roberts, and Clara Hemmingsway, 121; Ann Peraz, 119; Martha LaBate, 118; Eva Lutz, Elmer Swanson, Ellen Bronke, and Marvey Lequarre, 116.

Thanks for Help
 I want to thank Tom O'Neill, Robert Daggart, Celi Wandt and Ann Rice for helping with the kitchen social bingo games, and Lyla Steele, Ann Thompson and Esther Gaudette for helping with the set back games. I also want to thank Elizabeth Cone for filling in at the office.

While all this was going on, and with Gloria trying to keep up with over 200 of our members in Spain, yours truly had to pay a visit to the local hospital.

My Operation
 I had to stop by around 8 o'clock in the morning, and after completing a little paperwork, I was hustled down to the emergency room. Once there, a nurse came in and handed me a night shirt and pajamas. I just about had the clothes on when another nurse came in to tell me I didn't need the pants, and that I had the night shirt on backward.

I was somewhat concerned about no pajamas because what the doctor was going to work on was a little north of the border. Next thing I knew I was laid out on a rolling bed, and off through the halls and I was headed for a mini-operating room. It was quite a feeling as they rolled me into one room, but I breathed a little easier to see that others were stretched out waiting their turn.

A couple of minutes later the doctor came out to check me over, to see that everything was working according to Hoyle, and the next minute I was off and rolling toward that "Big Room."

Fifteen minutes later the doctor put the finishing touches on me using some of my old fishing line, and told me it was all over; in fact by 9:30 I was headed home. How about that? Oh yes, I forgot to tell you what was actually happening to me.

Tumor Removed
 Well, I had a little fatty tumor located around the stomach area, for a number of years, and it was decided that it would be best to get it cut out. So that is why I went, and that's just what the doctor did. Now I'm home and will be for the week, as I must take it easy so that I don't pop any of that old fishing line used to sew me up.

I've received a few calls, and guess what? Some of the gentlemen had me in the hospital for prostate operation. Holy mackerel, I may be working with the seniors, but I'm not a quack old yet. Anyway, I guess stories can get started, but now you know the facts, for sure.

Travelers Home
 Let's see, the thing is that our gang in Spain arrived at Bradley around 3 o'clock in the afternoon on Tuesday, but because we had to get this column in by noon Tuesday, you'll have to wait until Gloria tells you about it in Saturday's column.

We received some cards telling us about the grand scenery, and the good time most of them were having.

By the way, remember tomorrow we have our regular crevel embroidery class and square dance class in the morning. Then a big hot meal of baked chicken in sauce, cranberry sauce, baked rice, kernel corn, lemon meringue

NIGHT DRIVERS
 CLEVELAND (UPI) — Vacation time this holiday weekends find more and more drivers on the road at night. The Boron Oil Co. suggests that drivers adjust their style once the sun goes down.

The safe driver will slow down until his eyes become accustomed to darkness and he will concentrate his vision on the right side of the road when he meets approaching cars with bright headlights.

Safe drivers also will make sure their windshields are clear.

Utilities Delay Hikes To Wait for More

HARTFORD (UPI) — Two Northeast Utilities power firms have said they will not put into effect recently approved rate increases until the state Public Utilities Commission hears their request for even larger hikes.

In letters to the PUC released Tuesday, Hartford Electric Light Co. and Connecticut Light and Power said they would not implement hikes totaling $47.7 million until the PUC held the hearings.

The firms originally had requested rate increases totaling nearly $60 million, and the hearings would be for the PUC to reconsider its decision approving only part of the hikes sought.

Sen. Rome Will Lead GOP Solons

HARTFORD (UPI) — Sen. Lewis Rome, R-Bloomfield, has been elected minority leader by the seven Republican Senators who will be working with 29 Democratic Senators after last week's Democratic sweep at the polls.

Rome said Tuesday the GOP would not spend its time "taking pot shots" at the Democrats or be "negative" when the legislature reconvenes in January. "Our votes won't be nearly as significant as the kind of work we do," he said.

Rome said the GOP would prepare its own version of the state budget to counter the Democratic one. Former Republican State Treasurer Alden A. Ives may help draft the GOP-alternate budget, Rome said.

Democrats regained control of both houses of the legislature in last Tuesday's election.

Scientists Mull Germs in Space

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An American spacecraft won't land on Mars until 1976, but space agency scientists already are looking ahead to the benefits and dangers of an unmanned mission that would bring some Martian soil back to earth.

The problem with such a sample return flight is that it conceivably could unleash some form of extraterrestrial germ that could play havoc with earthbound forms of life that have had no opportunity to develop defenses to it.

The same concern 10 years ago led to the stringent quarantine procedures used to protect earthlings against possible bugs from the moon. Extraordinary laboratory tests found no evidence of any life in moon soil and lunar quarantine precautions eventually were lifted.

But many scientists agree that the likelihood of life on Mars, slight though it may be, is considerably higher than it was for the moon. Mars has a thin atmosphere with some water vapor. It has temperatures in some areas that are reasonable for life as we know it and it has evidence that liquid water once flowed on its surface.

The two Viking spacecrafts that will be launched next summer toward Mars will carry biology instruments designed to detect some forms of living organisms if they happen to exist where the probes will land in the summer of 1976.

But if Viking's life search results are negative, that doesn't mean that life is absent from the fourth planet from the sun. It would just mean that soil samples at that specific landing site don't contain biological specimens that Viking's automated instruments can detect.

"This conclusion is far different from one that there is no life on Mars," said Dr. Richard S. Young, chief of NASA's planetary biology program, and Dr. Donald L. DeVincenzi, assistant chief of the planetary biology division at NASA's Ames Research Center.

Education Takes A Welcome Step Back

A funny thing is happening on the way to the gradeless, wall-less and sometimes disciplineless "alternative" school.

school students what they need to learn. Among the features of the program at the school:

MAX LERNER A Passion For Change

The Uncharitable Effects Of Inflation

Inflation is having some curious effects besides those not-so-curious effects we all know about.

Inflation is not only forcing up the cost of living but the cost of dying as well.

According to Francis E. Vanderbur, president of a mortuary company in Denver, the business is being hit by the rising cost of personnel, caskets, urns, burial vaults and even gasoline used in hearses.

There will be a flood of speculative writing about the new political faces emerging, halved with success, the emblems of burgeoning hope in a people still addicted to the cult of youth and the new Jerry Brown, John Glenn, Hugh Carey, Dale Bumpers - Americans treat politics much as they treat golf champions, movie stars, new actors or novelists.

Cheney Tech is growing faster than other state schools. Director John Garofalo reports the Oct. 1 enrollment was up an increase of 10 per cent over a year ago, while the overall state increase was 6 per cent.

Our congratulations to the Manchester Jaycees and their wives who will be noting their anniversaries at a special Alumni Banquet Saturday evening. Jaycees will be celebrating their 21st anniversary, Manchester Jaycee Wives their 20th.

Effective Sunday, make certain your letters have the required amount of postage or they will be returned to you without any attempt at delivery.

Our best wishes to the Jaycees and their wives for many more years of continued success.

And if you, Mr. Employer, have a dynamic young man in your office, you owe it to him and yourself to take a look at membership in the Jaycees.

'As Maine Goes...'

While there were a few Republicans who withstood the Democratic tide, an interesting upset was the one scored by Jim Longley, who got elected governor of Maine by out-polling both the Democratic and Republican contenders.

dependent contenders on the ballot no doubt helped Longley come out on top. In the light of the recent announcement of our own Sen. Lowell Weicker, a Republican, that he might run as an independent for the senate in 1976, would it be premature to state, "As Maine goes, so goes the nation?"

TODAY'S THOUGHT

There was a man who dwelt in the east centuries ago. Now I cannot look at a sheep or a sparrow, a lily or a cornfield, a raven or a sunset, a vineyard or a mountain, without thinking of him.

Students Design School Flag

SOUTH WINDSOR

Students of South Windsor Orchard Hill School have been designing flags by the hundreds.

The project, which was the idea of fifth grade teacher Mrs. Chris Bailey, was undertaken to provide the school with a unique flag of its own. Over 400 flag designs were received with hopefuls ranging from first grade to sixth grade.

The winning design, which will be made up into a full size flag to be flown outside the school, belongs to Melissa Miller.

Melissa's flag depicts a little red schoolhouse with neat blue letters identifying the school.

Runner-up in the contest was Teresa James. Her design which includes a tree laden with bright red apples significant of the apple orchard near the school, will be made up into a school seal.

The school PTO contributed prizes and will be responsible for having the design made up into the flag.

All entries were judged by Al Koromannian, Tom Aray and Tim Bailey.

Other winners include Kim Lansk, second place; Laura Fasano, third place; Bobby Kowopkin, fourth place.

Grade level winners are Tim Wasik, first grade; Steve Refell, second grade; Mike Sabatella, third grade; Bill Rossetto, fourth grade; Lynn Pane, fifth grade; Laura Kiene, sixth grade.

Young Wives
The regular meeting of the South Windsor Young Wives will be held Wednesday, Nov. 20, at 7:30 p.m. at Society for Savings, 176 Ellington Rd.

Following the business meeting, a special program will be given on skin care and makeup application.

The Young Wives Club is an affiliate of the YWCA in Hartford. Newcomers to the South Windsor area are cordially invited to attend the meeting. Anyone interested in further information may call Claire Kennedy, 644-1050.

PTO Bingo
The Pleasant Valley PTO will hold a Thanksgiving bingo Friday, Nov. 22 at 7:30 p.m. at the school. A crafts booth and refreshments will be available. Both cash and turkey prizes will be awarded. Admission is $1.

DevCo Review Limited To Zone Change Request

COVENTRY
Monica Shea
Correspondent
742-9495

The Planning and Zoning Commission refused last night to "bite the bullet" as recommended by Town Planner Frank Connolly and considered both parts of the DevCo application, Part A, the zone change, and Part B, the establishment of the boundaries for a new community which would include the DevCo land and consideration of the General Development Plan and the Detailed Plan of Phase I of the proposed new community.

The commission voted 3 to 1, with chairman Sandra Stave abstaining, to hear only Part A of the application, this is the amendment to the zoning regulations to allow a new community. Voting in favor of the amendment were Craig Wallace, Anthony Walsh and Roger Barrette. Opposed to hearing only the first part was Paul Goodin.

Goodin had originally made a motion to hear both parts of the application which was defeated 3 to 2, with Goodin and Stave voting in favor and Walsh, Wallace and Barrette voting against.

Connolly had recommended to the commission in a memo that the commission "bite the bullet" and hear both parts, because the commission must come to grips with the ultimate question - Does Coventry want this new community proposal?

In his memo Connolly gave five advantages of accepting only Part A. They included the ease of conducting a public hearing on just one part of the application, the complexities of the proposed regulations, the commission could concentrate on whether the regulations adequately protect the town, if the regulations it would have more time to become familiar with them and be better able to make an evaluation of the zone change request.

The memo listed nine disadvantages of accepting only Part A and the first one was that by accepting only Part A would cut down on the available agencies to review the DevCo application, the wording for a pending referendum would be much easier if it were based on a specific proposal rather than a set of zoning regulations, the extended time necessary to review both parts separately which could run to over a year, the considerable expense particularly legal ones, in a long drawn out affair, and the fact that a vote on the regulations itself only would require a simple majority for passage rather than the 4/1 vote which would be required on the zone change if a petition were filed.

This question will now have to be resolved by the attorneys representing the DevCo application and even if they would be needed to review just the first part of the application. This and other questions such as a project coordinator and the setting of a date for a public hearing will be decided on Monday.

Those commission members who voted in favor of accepting only Part A expressed the concern that DevCo had two years to draw up the plan and they didn't think the commission should rush into both parts of the application when they didn't have to.

Ellington Forming Historic Train Band

ELLINGTON
Judy Kuehnel
Correspondent
644-1364

An organizational meeting to form a Train Band is scheduled for Nov. 15 at 7:30 p.m. at Ellington High School.

The formation of the band is one of the programs of the Ellington Bicentennial Commission.

The idea of a Train Band is not new to Ellington. Such a group existed in the 1770s time period and also answered the Lexington alarm in 1775.

Although it was called a Train

Band, it was not a musical band in the true sense but rather a band of men that trained together on the Ellington green.

Pipers and drummers headed the marching unit but the rest of the unit was made up of musket carriers.

Thomas Greaser, a music teacher at Ellington High School, and the Rev. Sheldon Smith, pastor of the Ellington Congregational Church, have agreed to lead the reorganized band. Mrs. Robert Dawson III, with the help of Mrs. Kitty Keilner, has done extensive research into the costumes of the period.

Mrs. Dawson has completed the first prototype of the uniforms that the band will wear.

Men interested in learning to play the life or snare or bass drum, or in participating as a musket-carrying militiamen, are invited to attend Friday's meeting.

Elks Seeking Gifts For Vet's Hospital

VERNON

The Rockville Lodge of Elks will be participating in a special project, this month, collecting small gifts and books to be delivered to the Newington Veterans' Hospital, during the Christmas holidays.

William K. Pease, exalted ruler of Rockville Lodge, said the project is in keeping with the observance of Elks' Veterans' Remembrance Month proclaimed by Gerald Stroh, grand exalted ruler.

It was the Elks Lodges throughout the country that presented the first veterans hospital in the nation to the government, in 1918. The Elks also presented the first two "Held Hospitals" in France during World War I and also established the base for the G. I. Loan Program.

In connection with the gift project, the Elks are asking all members of the lodge and any Vernon area residents to bring small gifts or books to the Elks Home, N. Park St., Rockville, as soon as possible.

The club has had a luncheon at the Capland's Herb Farm, a cocktail party and a potluck supper, and there will be many more socials to come.

Random Thoughts On Having A Baby

The best part of having a baby used to be the five day vacation in the hospital.

There were cards, flowers and backrubs from nurses.

And next to the joy of eating your breakfast, lunch and dinner in bed; was the joy of filling out the menu order.

I always checked two desserts and sometimes, if my husband wasn't around, would underline the words "large portion."

When the doctor finally sent you and the baby home, it was with the understanding that you were to be treated like a fragile piece of porcelain. The doctor emphasized that you were to go up and down the stairs just once a day, and intimated that he would prefer it if your husband carried you in his arms. I enjoyed the experience of being a new mother so much that I repeated it four times.

Now, just last week my cousin Sue had her first baby and she was in and out of the hospital so fast that I never had a chance to get over to see her.

The baby was born on Monday. On Wednesday Sue went home, and when I went to visit her on Friday she was outside planting tulip bulbs in the backyard.

"Why aren't you in bed?" I cried. "I've come to help you!"

Susan smiled, a sort of satisfied Mona Lisa smile. "Why should I be in bed?" she said. "I'm not sick. Childbirth is a beautiful natural function. "With that she put down her tulip bulbs and invited me inside to see the baby.

"They must have brainwashed her," I said to my husband that night. "Can you imagine? Planting tulips! I'm all for being natural, but I think its natural to lie in bed in a pink peignoir for at least one week after delivery."

"I remember," said my husband. "And you know what," I continued. "Susan won't let anyone help her with the baby. She says she wants to savor every precious moment. I was always happy to let someone else savor the 11 to 7 shift."

"I remember that, too," said my husband.

"Well, one thing's sure," I said emphatically. "I'm not having any more babies. Not the way things are today."

"I'll buy that," said my husband raising his coffee up in agreement.

Sheridan-Wallert

Ellen Wallert and Thomas M. Sheridan, both of Manchester, exchanged wedding vows Aug. 17 at St. James Church, Manchester.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jan Wallert of 76 Conway Rd. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin J. Sheridan of 17 Alice Dr.

The Rev. Louis Ceromone of St. James Church celebrated the double-ring ceremony. The church was decorated with yellow daisies, white and orange carnations. Dennis Plot of Manchester was organist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an imported organza over taffeta gown designed with fitted bodice, cape sleeves of French imported Chantilly lace, panel skirt with lace applique extending into a chapel-length train. She wore a picture hat with attached veil and carried a cascade of yellow daisies, orange carnations and white starburst baby's breath.

Miss H. Susan Sheridan of Manchester, the bridegroom's sister, was maid of honor. She wore a Nile green halter gown of polyester with matching jacket and a picture hat. She carried a bouquet of yellow daisies, white and orange carnations.

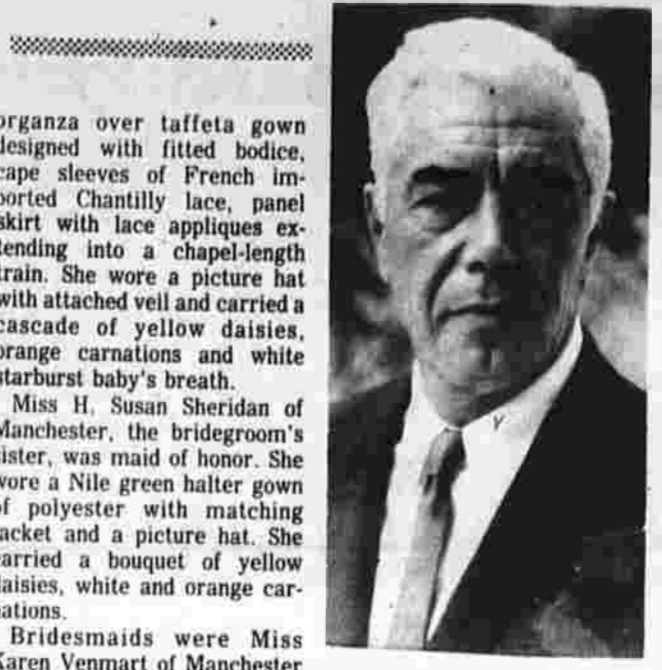

Bridesmaids were Miss Karen Vennart of Manchester and Miss Jane Mather, also of Manchester. They wore gowns similar to that worn by the honor attendant except in yellow.

David Sheridan of Manchester was his brother's best man. Ushers were Martin Sheridan of Manchester, the bridegroom's brother; and Ronald Wallert of Manchester, the bride's brother.

Eric Wallert, the bride's brother, was ring bearer.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, after which the couple left on a trip to Miami Beach and the Bahamas. The couple will reside in Manchester.

Mrs. Sheridan is a student at the University of Connecticut. Mr. Sheridan is employed by Pratt & Whitney Division of United Aircraft Corp. in Middletown and attends night classes at Manchester Community College.

Studying the List

Too Much

TULSA, Okla. (UPI) — A self-service gasoline station did a lot of business Sunday and Monday — but mostly it was robbers helping themselves to the cash drawer. Police said a total of seven robbers held up Otis Porter's Pacer-Pina service station three times. One robber beat up an attendant.

$3 Million in Leases Said Questionable

HARTFORD (UPI) — A legislative subcommittee investigating Connecticut leasing practices is questioning 32 leases worth about $3 million a year. The committee has been investigating a total of 54 leases of the nearly 400 approved by the state, worth $8 million a year. One spokesman said the committee found reason to question 32 leases. But in some cases, another committee representative said, the questions have already been cleared up. The committee said it will hold a series of 10 hearings starting Nov. 25 to study at least five leases. A final report will refer each of the leases studied, according to the spokesman. Richard P. Altschuler, deputy counsel for the committee, said 32 leases were classified as "Code 1," meaning they should be investigated for irregularities, including excessive payments and questionable political connections. H. William Shure, counsel for the committee, said, however, some of the questions had been answered. In one instance, the son of a prominent political figure had an interest in a state lease being examined, Shure said. But, upon investigation, there was nothing irregular since the family had had long-term real estate investments. He did not identify the person involved. The original list of 54 leases the committee is studying represented 46 per cent of the state's annual rental bill, Shure said. On a related matter, Sen. Nicholas A. Lenge, R-West Hartford, said he made public a

Even the Mayor Was Cited

STAMFORD (UPI) — Police say they are ticketing just about every traffic violator they spot, including the mayor, to bring public pressure to bear on contract talks with the city. Ten to 20 tickets are issued in a normal week, but police spokesmen Tuesday said some 300 violators have been ticketed since last Wednesday, when members of the Police Association voted to go "by the book." Mayor Frederick P. Lenz's car was ticketed when he neglected to feed a parking meter, and Public Works Commissioner John O'Brien was cited for improper lane change and failure to flash a directional signal. Police Union President

Robert Glander said members want an 11 per cent salary increase, automatic cost of living adjustments and a cut in work hours from 40 to 35. Lenz has said the city simply can't afford those increases and offered a 5 per cent raise, rejecting the two other demands for the contract, which expired June 30. He also criticized the union for seeking "other goodies, like $2 a day for carrying a gun off duty. When they assume the job of policemen that is one of the things they are supposed to do."

Two Indicted for Murder

NEW LONDON (UPI) — A Superior Court grand jury has indicted two Rhode Island men in the murder of a man and a woman found buried in a swampy section of Ledyard last May. The indictment, handed down Tuesday, charges Richard DeFretas, 35, and Donald R. Brant, 42, both of Providence, with two counts of first degree murder each. Both are now being held at a prison in Cranston, R.I., DeFretas serving a 10-year sentence for armed robbery and Brant under a Rhode Island indictment charging him with another murder. The Connecticut indictment charged them with the 1970 murder of Gustavus Lee Carmichael, 38, of Boston, and a woman as yet unidentified. The Superior Court grand jury deliberated for more than six hours after listening to eight witnesses, including an unidentified informant who state police said had tipped them off about the burial sites. State's Attorney Edmund W. O'Brien is expected to ask Gov.

Thomas J. Meskill to seek the extradition of DeFretas and Brant from Rhode Island to stand trial in Connecticut. Lenz said the average Stamford policeman now makes $15,000 a year plus $3,000 in fringe benefits such as education subsidies, hospitalization and unlimited sick leave. Glander said police refuse to be made a "scapegoat" for Lenz's political career. Union representatives stalked out of contract negotiations Oct. 25 and no further talks have been held.

Citizen Group Backs Fines for Polluters

HARTFORD (UPI) — The Connecticut Citizen Action Group is backing new fines against polluters by the state Department of Environmental Protection. In testimony prepared for delivery before the DEP today, CCAAG attorney Brian Sullivan backed regulations to allow for better enforcement of existing laws by the DEP. Sullivan said the new regulations would permit the DEP to impose penalties directly, instead of going through the attorney general or local authorities as it must now do. The fines are calculated on the basis of the cost a business would have incurred in complying with the air standards in the first place, Sullivan said. Thus, the fine for a polluting factory would be what the business would have spent if it had installed antipollution equipment.

BOOK REVIEWS

A Time for Truth, by Hans Hellmut Kirtz. (Coward, McCann & Geoghegan, $7.95)

The scene is set in Munich and the form is that of a murder mystery but Kirtz is only using the whodunit as window dressing for his outrage against a decadent society and the journalism it both deserves and gets.

Those who read Kirtz's best known novel, The Night of the Generals, know that he can use the mystery mold to shape a novel of considerable power.

The plot deals with the death of a Munich reporter, and it is the second of what apparently is planned as a Kirtz Munich trilogy. The reader never really gets to know the dead man, since he is seen only through the eyes of those who despised and feared him, which includes his wife, his boss and a good part of what passes for society in Kirtz's Munich.

If Munich really is as Kirtz depicts it, you might want to visit but you surely wouldn't want to live there. The author portrays his fellow Germans as dull, smug and drearily self-indulgent. What is unforgivable about them is not so much that they indulge their appetites, sexual and otherwise, without rein, but that they don't even seem to enjoy it.

In this case, the dead newspaperman has uncovered a good deal of scandal, personal and financial, about a lot of powerful people. Those who control his own paper don't want to print the material, not when it means offending some of the richest men in Germany.

The murder is tied to another crime, the beating of a semi-prostitute, which in turn might be connected to the killing of two other women. And then there is the shady connections of the policeman's son.

If all this sounds complicated, it is. The only men to come off halfway well are the policemen who, if not nature's noblemen, at least sincerely seek the truth without tinge of corruption. If they are a little lacking in humanity, well, you can't have everything.

The ending of the mystery is weak, almost an afterthought, but Kirtz has written another biting and bitter critique of his fellow men. The reader may be confused by the deliberately choppy style and disappointed by the ending, but he won't be bored.

Law Requires Licensing To Install Septic Tanks

A new state law which went into effect Oct. 14 requires that all persons professionally engaged in the installation or repair of septic tanks must be licensed. Previously, only a plumber's license was required.

Homeowners who install or repair their own septic tank systems are exempt and may continue to install or repair - provided they follow specific state standards.

In addition to requiring licensing of professional installers, the law establishes a State Board of Examiners, for issuing the licenses.

The Manchester Health Department will inspect all new and repaired septic installations, prior to covering. If problems are identified, corrections must be made by the installer. At the time of inspection, department personnel will request to see the installer's license. If one can't be shown, a permit for an approved system won't be issued.

Applications for licenses are available at the Manchester Health Department, 153 Spruce St., or by calling 649-5231, Ext. 211.

Permits in Manchester for septic tank installations have averaged about 15 a year. Estimates vary on the number of septic systems failing each year in Manchester. The estimates range from 20 to 100 a year.

Jaycees Sponsor Drug Education

COVENTRY

The Coventry Jaycees are sponsoring two assembly programs on drug abuse and crime prevention for the school system.

Ron Gagne and a group of prisoners from the Osborn Prison Farm in Somers will speak to students at the Capt. Nathan Hale School at 12:30 p.m. Thursday. A similar assembly program will be presented to the students at the high school at 9:30 a.m. on Tuesday, Nov. 19.

Gagne, who is himself an ex-convict, is presently an active member of the East Hartford Jaycees and is chairman of the Connecticut State Jaycee Drug and Crime Prevention Unit.

While serving a prison sentence, Gagne made a commitment to devote his free time upon his release to working with Jaycees and youth groups to make them aware of the dangers of drug abuse and the problems convicts have to face because of their criminal records.

The one- and one-half hour assembly program at the schools will consist of short talks by Gagne and the prisoners followed by a question and answer session with the students.

Interested parents are invited to attend the assemblies.

coached by Art Boyle of Bolton.

The Northern Division team will be composed of boys from Tolland, South Windsor, Ellington, East Windsor, Somers and Stafford Springs. It will be coached by Dick Gunn of Ellington.

Marshall Taylor, Eastern Conference football league commissioner, said the purpose of the senior bowl game is to foster a cooperative as well as competitive spirit between the boys of the participating towns.

TVs Burned In Protest Of Violence

BATTLE CREEK, Mich. (UPI) — A group of strict fundamentalist church members have burned their television sets to protest televised violence and sex that they said poisoned their children's minds.

"Now we'll all do more reading and take part in family devotions," said Mrs. Hank Dodson.

She and fourteen members of the Church of the Nazarene in suburban Pennfield Township tossed their sets into a roaring bonfire Sunday night in the church parking lot.

Mrs. Dodson said her eight-year-old Jimmy would "stand in front of the mirror and fight with himself and act crazy" after watching his favorite television show, "The Six Million Dollar Man."

She said Jimmy was upset that he will no longer be able to watch the show, "but he obeys his parents."

The protest burning was organized by evangelist Paul Wilde, who spoke at the church last week on the evils of television.

"The programs were poisoning our children's minds," said Mary Lou Bax, who checked her $600 color television set into the flames.

"I had to censor everything my sons watched," she said. "The last show I heard the word 'damn'."

One church member didn't wait for the bonfire. He blew out the picture tube of his set with a shotgun.

The 'Wrong Man' Sues TV Station

CHICAGO (UPI) — Peter Joseph Gushi of Colonia, Ill., has filed a $2 million lawsuit charging Chicago Police gave a television station his picture for a broadcast about the largest cash burglary in U.S. history.

Gushi said the police apparently confused him with another Peter Gushi — a prime suspect in the $4.3 million burglary of an Armored Express Co. vault.

Attorneys for Peter Joseph Gushi filed the suit Friday in Cook County Circuit Court against Columbia Broadcasting System Inc. and the Chicago Police Department.

It charged the police department gave WBBM-TV, a CBS affiliate, a picture of Peter Gushi, of Colonia, rather than Peter Gushi, 47, of Oak Lawn, a suspect in the record $4.3 million burglary.

The suit charged the television station broadcast the photograph Oct. 28, exposing the plaintiff, whom the suit described as a law-abiding citizen, to "public hatred and contempt."

The two men do not look alike, the suit said.

Killian will represent Gov.-elect Ella T. Grasso, one of the governors and governors-elect from the 25 coastal states invited to the session.

GOOD CORRECTIONS The KEY TO Reduced Crime

Inhouse Activity (PART VIII)

"Doing time." In correctional facilities in the past that phrase usually meant idleness, monotony, boredom — and malcontent behavior on the part of those confined. All too often, it also meant a lack of personal growth, change and the ensuing failure of adjustment upon return to the outside world.

Today's corrections has changed the phrase to "Doing" — while serving sentences, inmates are encouraged to participate in any number of activities which can foster the development of personal skills, create a sense of personal worth and contribute to the good of society, whether that society be within institutional boundaries or without.

One such program is inhouse Jaycees. In 1965, the Connecticut Jaycees established the first institutional Jaycee Chapter at Somers Community Correctional Institution. In cooperation with departmental officials, local Jaycees and inmate members coordinate efforts to carry out the civic work for which the Jaycee organization is known.

Since 1965, chapters have been organized in eight of the state's correctional facilities — at Cheshire, Somers, Enfield, Brooklyn, Montville, Portland, Bridgeport, and Naugatuck where female inmates recently formed a Jaycees Chapter.

Presently, a ninth inhouse group is being organized at Hartford Community Correctional Center.

Projects undertaken by inmate Jaycees have been noteworthy. Brooklyn Correctional Center Jaycees, for example, recently sponsored a picnic for emotionally disturbed children of the Waterford School. Inmates not only raised money for food, supplies and prizes, but also supervised the games and races during the event.

A few weeks prior to this, the same inhouse Chapter sponsored an Olympics for the handicapped children in the New London area, again providing refreshments, prizes and supportive help for the athletic contests.

Such altruistic gestures are not confined to organized groups.

Operation Santa Claus involves large numbers of inmates from throughout the correctional system who voluntarily contribute time, funds and part of themselves to help make Christmas brighter for needy children. Although Operation Santa Claus began as a seasonal project several years ago, at most correctional facilities it has become a year-round endeavor involving the staff/inmate team.

Broken and discarded toys donated by citizens are refurbished for Christmas giving to poor children all over the state.

Ex-Cop Explains Burglar Payoffs WASHINGTON (UPI) — telephone contacts on pay phones. "At the outset, I carried the coins around in a small box, but all of that change would wear out your pocket," he said. "Later on, I got myself one of those bus driver coin changers. I could very quick then feed them into the phone." The coin changer was introduced as evidence in the trial of five associates of former President Richard M. Nixon charged with conspiring to cover-up the Watergate scandal. Ulasiewicz said he was contacted for the job on June 28 or 29, 1972, less than two weeks after the Watergate bugging arrests, by Nixon's personal lawyer Herbert W. Kalmbach, who had testified Tuesday. Kalmbach, Ulasiewicz and Frederick LaRue, who was expected to testify later today, have been named an unindicted co-conspirators in the case.

Former New York policeman Anthony P. Ulasiewicz testified today that he made a total of $217,000 in "cash" payments for the original Watergate defendants in bags deposited in airport lockers and telephone booths. Ulasiewicz, 55, testified fast in a Bronx accent, repeated for the Watergate cover-up jury the same colorful story he had given to the Senate Watergate hearings in 1973. Describing his job as that of a "messenger" or "delivery boy," he said he used fictitious names, dealt only in cash and made all of his Arafat at U.N....

Continued from Page 1 meeting of Arab kings, presidents and sheikhs recognized him and his PLO as the sole representatives of the Palestinians and decided he should rule the West Bank of the Jordan — now occupied by Israel. King Hussein of Jordan formerly had nominal control of the area. Security precautions already had been severe and U.S. government, New York City and U.N. security forces increased it even more when Russel Kelner, chief of operations of the militant Jewish Defense League, brandished a revolver at a press conference and vowed that Arafat would never leave New York alive. Kelner was taken into custody Tuesday by agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation when he renewed the assassination threat. At the United Nations, Arab diplomats Tuesday drafted a preliminary resolution calling on the assembly to help the refugees set up a homeland in the war-torn region. Diplomatic sources said Egyptian Ambassador Ahmed El-Sadat Abdel Meguid would introduce the joint Arab resolution Thursday or Friday at the assembly session. Members of the pool said they had a 60-day coal reserve, but plans were made for power cutbacks to large energy users if conditions warrant.

Bennet Buildings Students May Soon Exchange Places

Main Building and Franklin Building students at Bennet Junior High School will soon exchange places. Renovation work at the Main Building will be inspected soon — the third and fourth floors on Monday and the first and second floors Nov. 25 — the Board of Education was told Tuesday night. Ray Adler, Inc., the contractor, gave that inspection schedule to Dr. James P. Kennedy, superintendent of schools. If the inspections are favorable, Kennedy said plans are to move the Main Building students back to the building Nov. 29 and 30; they have been attending classes at the old trade school on School St. Students in the Franklin Building will then be transferred to the trade school at the projected rate. He said the students would be redistributed to several surrounding schools. His report suggested the school maintenance program should continue to have a high priority in the operating budget. While the resident population at Buckland School may be handled at the Robertson School over the short range, Kennedy recommended the building should be retained as a school, both as a hedge against possible population expansion in the area and as housing for special education or special program classes.

Youth Service Office To Locate at Lincoln

Approval of educational specifications for the Youth Services offices at Lincoln Center was given Tuesday night by the Manchester Board of Education. Superintendent of Schools James P. Kennedy is now authorized to take the necessary steps to request a state building grant for this project. The building next to St. James Church where the Youth Services offices were housed was razed recently as part of a downtown parking lot development. The Youth Services offices have been relocated in the basement at Lincoln Center. Robert Digan, Manchester's coordinator of youth services, told the board he favors a central downtown location because of the number of walk-in cases. He said the location is convenient to the junior high schools and the high school. Kennedy said the estimated cost of renovating the basement area would not exceed $5,500. Digan strongly recommended the board supply security work at the offices, such as some kind of window bars. Kennedy said the town had offered to provide the labor if the school administration would provide the materials.

Board Told New Firehouse Could Cost Up to $300,000

By SOL R. COHEN The Town of Manchester firehouse being proposed for the Buckland area would cost an estimated $200,000 to $300,000 and would be about half the size of the existing firehouses. Rivos said equipment already is available for a new firehouse and new fire trucks would be required only to replace obsolete equipment. Garvey Proves 'Big Steal' Better Than 'Quick Steal'

NEW YORK (UPI) — Steve Garvey, the Los Angeles Dodgers' "nice guy" first baseman and the only major leaguer this year to collect at least 200 hits and 100 runs-batted-in, today proved the "big steal" is more valuable than the "quick steal" by winning the 1974 National League Most Valuable Player Award in a runaway over Lou Brock. Garvey, who drove in 111 runs for the pennant winning Dodgers, accumulated 270 total points from the Baseball Writers of America — including 13 first-place votes — to outdistance Brock, baseball's all-time stolen base king, by 37 points.

East Gridders Rebounded

East Catholic High's gridders have rebounded nicely after a cold start and need to split even in their last two outings for a Saturday. The Eagles, 4-4, play St. Paul of Bristol here Saturday and wind up Thanksgiving morning against South Catholic, both games at Mt. Neo. On the other side of the local schoolboy grid picture, Manchester High will wind up with a losing record regardless of what happens in its two remaining starts, at East Saturday and home Thanksgiving with Windham. How can you now justify giving those increased tax receipts for a new firehouse?" She criticized the choice of location — Weiss said the funds for purchasing the parcel are available in the Fire District Fund and that, under a 1959 state statute, the Board of Directors is permitted to authorize a bond issue for a new firehouse — without a referendum.

Pro Football Scouting Chart

Here's what pro football scouts look for in the college ranks today. Quarterbacks who stand 6-4, running backs who weigh 225 and linebackers at 240 pounds. Mini Mack Herron of the New England Patriots is an exception at 5-5. However, of late, Herron has been slowed down, no doubt from the weekly pounding he takes... in three seasons with the New York Yankees, relief specialist Sparky Lyle has compiled a brilliant 1.98 earned run average. His lowest mark was 1.66 set last year... Yankee pin stripes worked wonders for three players. Elliott Maddux kept his batting average .65 points to .303. Lou Piniella's mark jumped .55 points to a club leading .306 and Jim Mason was 44 points better than a year ago at .250.

Unger Enjoyed Night on Ice

NEW YORK (UPI) — While St. Louis Coach Garry Young was suffering on the sidelines Tuesday night, the Blues' Garry Unger was having a great time on the ice. "I died that last few minutes," Young said after the Blues' 4-3 win over the Boston Bruins. "I was really sweating out there."

Yale Continues At Head of Class

BOSTON (UPI) — Only a crowbar — or a loss — will dislodge Yale from the spotlight in the UPI New England coaches' poll. Since none of the Eli's first seven opponents have had the iron to budget them, they continue to hold first place in the weekly major college ratings. Yale, a 37-12 victor at Penn, received 107 first-place votes en route to 72 points in the latest ratings. Yale, the only undefeated team in the region, hosts Princeton this week with win No. 8 easily attainable. Boston College, which crushed Tulane, 27-3 last weekend for its third straight win, climbed back into second. The Eagles collected the other six first-place votes and a total of 83 points. Harvard, whose only loss was to Rutgers early in the season, finished third with 57 points. The Crimson have the best shot at dethroning Yale when the two teams meet Nov. 23 at the Stadium for the Ivy title.

Garvey Proves 'Big Steal' Better Than 'Quick Steal'

NEW YORK (UPI) — Steve Garvey, the Los Angeles Dodgers' "nice guy" first baseman and the only major leaguer this year to collect at least 200 hits and 100 runs-batted-in, today proved the "big steal" is more valuable than the "quick steal" by winning the 1974 National League Most Valuable Player Award in a runaway over Lou Brock. Garvey, who drove in 111 runs for the pennant winning Dodgers, accumulated 270 total points from the Baseball Writers of America — including 13 first-place votes — to outdistance Brock, baseball's all-time stolen base king, by 37 points.

Bow in Soccer Semifinals

Rolling in the Eastern Girls' League at the Holiday Lanes, Kris Kelley of Manchester compiled a 198 single game effort... Mrs. Peter Sedloski, also an MPOA official, remarked, "It doesn't appear ethically right to proceed without a referendum. You just raised the fire tax in the town fire district. How can you now justify giving those increased tax receipts for a new firehouse?" She criticized the choice of location — Weiss said the funds for purchasing the parcel are available in the Fire District Fund and that, under a 1959 state statute, the Board of Directors is permitted to authorize a bond issue for a new firehouse — without a referendum.

MCC Homecoming

Manchester Community College's (MCC) first annual Homecoming Weekend was a great success, according to Andy Paterna, student activities director at the college. Cumulatively, over 1,000 alumni, students, faculty, staff and townspeople attended the more than 10 events held Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Paterna says that "as a result of the successful attendance we have already had a Manchester civic group approach us about holding a winter weekend for students and the community sometime in February, and the Student Senate is now considering a week-long festival of activities in May."

Events of the weekend included a live radio broadcast, a tag sale, an art exhibit opening, a soccer game and cross-country meet, a free barbeque, a dance and coffeehouse, free movies, and a poetry reading.

Vernon FISH Plans Reorganization

BARBARA RICHMOND

Five members of FISH, three voting "yes" and two abstaining, decided Tuesday night to keep the organization alive but to suspend operations until Feb. 1 to give the officers time to reorganize.

It was decided to revamp the entire organization which has been functioning as the Rockville Chapter of FISH since 1968. Its corporate status ran out about two months ago. The chapter has been in danger of having to completely dissolve due to the need of volunteers.

Of the 70 persons who have been on the volunteer list, 50 indicated a willingness to continue. This number includes a few new volunteers. Of this number, 23 persons said they will serve as drivers for emergency calls and the others will man the telephone.

In voting to try and keep the organization alive, the five members did so with the hope that more volunteer drivers will come forth before Feb. 1. A total of at least 35 are really needed to function efficiently.

Because incorporation papers have to be filed again, it was decided to change the name to the Tri-Town FISH, Inc. as the chapter does serve Vernon, Tolland, and Ellington.

It was also agreed that the sketchy existing bylaws need revamping to more clearly define the function of the organization. The original purpose of FISH was to perform "emergency" services on a very temporary basis. It is felt that the bylaws should more clearly define what constitutes an emergency.

Mrs. Ruth Salb, chairman, said she wants the organization to have its members solicit volunteer drivers from their congregations. It was Rockville Area Church Women United which started FISH functioning in this area.

Mrs. Salb said people who drive for FISH are covered by insurance during the time they are serving. She also said teenagers are urged to volunteer and they will also be covered by insurance while driving for FISH.

Persons under 18 wishing to help must have written permission from a parent or guardian. Tuesday's meeting also elected a slate of officers, including Mrs. Salb who has been acting chairman, Mrs. Alyce Tesi was elected secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Dorothy Blythe, transportation chairman; and Mrs. Marcy McDonald, telephone chairman. A finance officer will be appointed later.

The newly elected officers will meet Nov. 26 to start preparations for the reorganization.

Red Cross Must Change, Aide Says

HARTFORD (UPI) — A high Red Cross official has warned the organization faces an uncertain future if it does not change to adapt itself to social and economic changes.

Dr. Jerome H. Holland, a member of the National Red Cross Board of Governors and former U.S. ambassador to Sweden, said Tuesday the organization has kept up with the times pretty well so far, but more complicated shifts lie ahead.

Holland, speaking at a meeting of the Hartford Red Cross, said some challenges will be the decline in voluntary aid in an era of inflation and the trend toward government takeover of services previously provided by voluntary groups. He said another change could be the development of the United Nations as a major provider of international relief, a traditional Red Cross function.

Holland said he believes the Red Cross ultimately will always survive because it has shown it can grow from its original purpose of caring for military wounded to helping persons left homeless by the civil disturbances of the 1960's.

Repair Of Bridge To Begin, Suit Asked Against Mahiliak

TOLLAND

Vivian Keneson
Correspondent
Tel. 875-4704

Harold Garrity, town counsel and John Harkins, town manager, joined Tuesday in asking the Board of Selectmen to authorize construction of the bridge to Willington which collapsed in January, and to bring suit against Mahiliak Gravel Co., whose truck caused the collapse.

The town, under pressure from state to remove the collapsed bridge, has been unable to settle with either town of Willington or Mahiliak's insurer Aetna Casualty.

Renegotiations will be settled with Olender Corporation, which was the low bidder by $23,000, at $101,713, several months ago. John Olender appeared at the selectmen's meeting to say that although he would have held his original bid for 30 days, he had been notified of material price increase only two weeks after the bid went out. He was recently notified of a ten per cent rise in steel and expects costs to continue rising.

Olender and Harkins also want to start construction before the winter high water table covers the makeshift bridge that Mahiliak built. It will be used by Olender's crew to cross the river during construction, saving a considerable amount of traveling through a detour route.

Also to be considered, because of the rising costs of materials, is to rebuild the bridge as a one-lane rather than the two-lane originally proposed for construction. Olender estimated that the cost might be reduced by 25 per cent, but noted it would produce only 50 per cent of the "goods." The weight allowance would be the same for either one or two lanes.

Although it is an important route to Willington, used by residents and school buses, Selectman Stuart Joslin, who lives in the area, said it was never "heavily" traveled.

Garrity said that under state statutes Willington must pay one third to Tolland's two-thirds the cost of replacing the bridge. The percentage is based on average tax receipts.

The town had sent Griswold & Fuss to make an estimate of the value of the bridge in January. The engineer's reported a $38,200 value, compared with Aetna's offer of about $10,000.

Loser Asks For Monitors In Recount

MANCHESTER, N.H. (UPI) — Defeated Senate candidate John Durkin Tuesday asked the U.S. Senate to send monitors to oversee a recount of contested ballots in a race he lost by 355 votes.

The former state insurance commissioner asked for the monitors in a telegram to Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., chairman of the Senate subcommittee on privileges and elections.

"In as much as the U.S. Senate is the final arbiter of election disputes involving U.S. Senate seats and may well have to decide the instant case, I respectfully request that you send observers to monitor the entire recount process," Durkin said.

He lost to five-term Rep. Louis Wyman, R-N.H., Nov. 5 by 365 votes out of more than 21,000 votes cast. The race was to fill the seat of Sen. Norris Cotton, R-N.H., 74, retiring after 28 years in Congress.

NEWS CAPSULES

Food Prices

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Council on Wage and Price Stability, concerned with the high price of food, is holding a hearing today on the supermarket practice of sticking one price tag on top of another as prices rise. But the director of the Consumers Union said the council should focus on the causes of price increases rather than the symbols.

The Agriculture Department and the officials of the National Association of Food Chains agreed that if the weather is good next year shoppers will see a "real easing" of food prices.

Hazing Death

LONG BRANCH, N.J. (UPI) — William Flowers, 19, the first black member of the Mowmouth College chapter of Zeta Beta Tau, a college fraternity, died during initiation hazing Tuesday.

He suffocated when the walls of the "grave" he was ordered to dig, collapsed while he was lying in it. Seven of the fraternity members have been charged with manslaughter.

Bad Publicity

CHICAGO (UPI) — National Farm Organization President Oren Lee Staley said Tuesday the protest slaughter of excess calves in Wisconsin and Minnesota has brought bad publicity to farmers.

He asked farmers to stop the practice until Congress acts on a $2 billion program to feed the world's hungry with surplus American food. Several congressmen indicated they may introduce legislation for the food surplus purchases when Congress reconvenes next week.

Bows To Pressure

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Andrew E. Gibson, evidently bowing to White House pressure, asked Tuesday for withdrawal of his nomination to head the Federal Energy Administration and President Ford said he would do so "with the deepest regret."

The moves came after the disclosure that Gibson resigned last May as president of an oil transporting company with a severance contract paying him $20,000 annually for the next ten years.

Cuba Isolation

QUITO, Ecuador (UPI) — The five-day conference of the Organization of American States ended Tuesday, but the member states failed to lift the decade-old political and economic blockade of Cuba.

Some Latin American diplomats said the question could be raised again when they meet next March.

Rights Denied

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — The U.N. General Assembly Tuesday voted to deprive South Africa of its rights and privileges for the current assembly session that ends Dec. 17.

The action was without precedent in the United Nations' 29-year history. The assembly vote bars South Africa from taking its seat, speaking or voting in the assembly, but does not oust it from the world body.

Scientists Developing Model Cell

HANOVER, N.H. (UPI) — Dartmouth College researchers are trying to build a circuit that will duplicate the way electric currents are transmitted in a heart cell.

Dr. Frances McCann, who heads the project, said that with such an electrical model, a computer could be used to tell what part of the heart cell is being affected when different medicinal substances are placed on the heart.

The idea behind a counterpart to the heart cell's electrical system is to show how the current acts, where it comes from, how it's generated, how it's transmitted from one cell to another," Dr. McCann said.

"Heart cells in different animals do have different structural characteristics. Goldfish and bat hearts, which are known to have different electrical circuits, can serve as further models to tell us where we're going," she said.

Dr. McCann and her graduate students now are working on the theory that electrical impulses are passed along over the outer membrane of the heart cell, just as the power which lights a lamp is passed along metal wires.

Somehow that current must penetrate into the middle of the heart cell to make the muscle fibers contract and relax.

A single cell in a human heart has several projections at each end, which lace together with adjoining cells as fingers might interlace. Those projections are called intercalated discs. On top and bottom, the cell is penetrated by some deep, finger-like indentations or invaginations called the T-tubules. The penetrations are called the transverse tubular system.

"Nobody really knows what the transverse tubular system is for. They think in order for a signal to get to muscle filaments, it comes down the cell membrane in the invaginations to trigger contractions," she said.

Along its route, the electrical impulse in the heart cell encounters resistance. As in a mechanical system, this resistance can be measured with an instrument that draws lines on graph paper.

The idea is to set up a mechanical electrical circuit which will show the same impedance curve as the heart cell. When the same current doesn't come from the electrical circuit model, "we look to see what's different."

Researchers have found glycerol (anti-freeze) blocks the indentations in the cell. Now, working with heart cells which lack indentations, researchers are trying to see if they can get an electrical impedance curve similar to one on a constructed model. This would indicate where there are indentations, that's where the current passes.

Scotch Whisky Makers Observe Milestone

By GREGORY JENSEN
GLENLIVET, Scotland (UPI) - Up from the Highland glen toward the moonshiners, a little parade of hard-hatted Scots farmers in ragged kilts and false whiskers riding shotgun on two horses carrying four small kigs.

They appeared by careful arrangement at a 150th anniversary celebration which commemorated the start of the legal Scotch whisky industry -- the birthday of The Glenlivet, the first distillery in Scotland to operate openly with a legal license.

Before then, all Scotch was moonshine. "Smugglers" like these, transporting the illicit product of their illegal stills, would have been ready to defend their whisky against raiding tax men to the death, if necessary. It often was. Whisky grew from misty obscurity, but almost from the moment it moved into recorded history it was the center of a battle. Government after government fought to control it, to license it, above all to tax it.

In the long run governments always lost. Highland Scotsmen knew their glens too well. They found too many crannies in these wild upland valleys where they could hide small stills, too many routes over the high mountains where heather-covered glen, the valley of the River Livet in far northeast Scotland which even now is remote and unpeopled.

Smith licensed his distillery in 1824. Glenlivet's remaining 199 "smugglers" did not take kindly to the idea.

"I was warned before I began, by my civil neighbors, that they meant to burn the new distillery to the ground, and in the heart of it," Smith once wrote.

"The Laird of Aberlour presented me with a pair of hairtrigger pistols, and they were never out of my belt for years."

The Laird of Aberlour's pistols lay on a table during The Glenlivet's 150th birthday party. The celebrations drew 350 guests from all over the world, for the industry Smith started has grown to enormous proportions.

Scotch whisky is now one of Britain's three biggest exports -- with the United States as the biggest single customer. Products of The Glenlivet alone go to 115 countries, either undiluted as a "single malt" whisky or in the blends which make up most Scotch.

Every year Scotland produces 10 per cent more whisky than the year before. This distillery is by no means Scotland's biggest, but it turns out 1.3 million gallons a year. Outside the birthday party's tent was steel framework for a new distillery which will almost double that capacity. The whisky it makes will have to mature at least five years, more often 12 years, before it is drunk.

Many other Scotch distillers are also expanding. Is this not a foolish risk in a world of inflation and uncertainty?

"We believe," said company chairman Capt. Iain M. Tennant at the anniversary party, "that quality products will always be in demand in any country that maintains its freedom -- the freedom that gives man the right to earn, save and spend according to his wants and wishes."

Jane Ace, Radio Star Dies at 74

NEW YORK (UPI) - Jane Ace, who starred for years with her husband, Goodman, on the "Easy Aces" radio show, died Monday at Doctor's Hospital. She was 74.

Mrs. Ace delighted audiences in the 1930s and 40s with such malapropism as "a thumbnose description." "Congress is still in session" and "you could have knocked me down with a fender."

Mrs. Ace, the former Jane Sherwood who grew up in Kansas City, began her radio career in 1928 by accident.

In those days Ace, a newspaper columnist and theater and film reviewer, supplemented her income with a radio film commentary.

One day when the performers following his spot failed to show up, Ace was told to keep on talking. He and his wife, who was in the studio at the time, ad-libbed a conversation. It brought them an invitation to do two shows a week, and "Easy Aces" was born.

In 1931 the couple went on the CBS network and moved to NBC the next year for a 17-year run.

In 1948, the couple tried another show "Mr. Ace and Jane," but it did not get the ratings and lasted only a year.

In addition to her husband, Mrs. Ace is survived by two brothers in Kansas City, where services will be held.

SOCIAL SECURITY

Q. I have a private health insurance plan now, but I'll be eligible for Medicare next year. Should I cancel my private insurance?

A. You should first talk to an agent of the insurance company to find out what regulations are for people covered by Medicare. Most companies automatically cancel a policyholder's insurance when he becomes eligible for Medicare, but many also have special insurance plans which you can purchase to help pay expenses that Medicare doesn't cover.

Q. My father died recently after a long illness, and I had to pay his doctor's bills. He had Medicare, so can I get reimbursed for the bills I paid?

A. Yes, if the bills were for services covered by Medicare. You will need to file a "Request for Medicare Payment" and a "Statement Regarding Medicare Payment for Medicare Services for a Deceased Patient." You can get both forms at any Social Security office.

Q. My doctor gave me a Request for Medicare Payment form to use for filling out my medical insurance claim. As I was looking over the form, I noticed a space for my claim number. What is my claim number?

A. Your claim number is shown on your Medicare health insurance card. It consists of nine digits and a symbol, such as "A," "B," "F," etc. When you send in a Medicare payment form and your physician bill you send with the form just as it is shown on your card. A form submitted without a claim number or with the wrong number can cause a delay in payment.

Q. I want to send a medical insurance claim to Medicare. I have filled out the Request for Medicare payment form. Where do I send it?

A. Send it to the Medicare carrier for the state where you received the services. You can find the carrier's name and address in your Medicare Handbook.

Q. How many people in the United States now have Medicare coverage?

A. About 23 million people have Medicare health insurance, including 21.5 million people 65 and over and 1.5 million disabled people who have Medicare medical insurance.

Abandoned Railroad Station Becomes a Thriving Art Center

BRATTLEBORO, Vt. (UPI) - For 50 years the stone railroad station in this southeastern Vermont town served as a center of commerce and passenger service.

It was a vital link with the outside world and a place where homecomings and departures were part of daily life.

Then, in 1926, passenger train service was discontinued and the station, built in 1916 with granite from nearby mountains, was left as a solid reminder of a bygone era.

The automobile age had almost completely relegated passenger trains to museums for railroad buffs.

For a while after the railroad station was closed, town officials considered razing it to make way for a municipal parking lot.

However, in the spring and summer of 1972, a group of area residents convinced town authorities to lease the station to them for $1 a year so they could establish an art center and museum.

Foreign Aid Program Benefits Connecticut

Connecticut manufacturers and suppliers received $10,028,391 during the 18 months ended June 30, 1974 for U.S. commodities shipped to less developed countries under foreign aid programs of the Agency for International Development (AID). The figure brings to $50,757,003 the total value of AID-financed products purchased in Connecticut in the past six years (fiscal years 1969 through 1974). The commodities, produced by U.S. workers in private enterprise, support economic development programs in poor countries. For the most part, AID-financed goods are exported through commercial channels.

Estimated $290,000 for grain and other agricultural commodities distributed to people in developing countries. In all, more than 5,000 manufacturers and suppliers in the 50 states and the District of Columbia received AID-financed commodity orders amounting to more than $5 billion in the past six fiscal years. Besides financing exports of various products, AID also has contracted with universities, research institutions and qualified technical services. The contracts enable the U.S. to apply American skills and experience to help people in developing countries in their struggle against disease, hunger, illiteracy and overpopulation. In Connecticut, such AID service contracts in effect as of June 30, 1974 had a total value of $2,539,770.

P&W Engine Near Record

A record for engine flight time has been set by Pratt & Whitney Aircraft JT3D engine that is nearing 20,000 hours of operation aboard a Boeing 707 without removal for maintenance. The engine, a JT3D-3B, went into service aboard an American Airlines 707-323B in September, 1969, and as of October 21, 1974, had accumulated 18,471 hours of operation, equivalent to more than 9.25 million miles. It has undergone periodic maintenance while on the wing, but is not scheduled to be removed from the plane until 20,000 hours of operation are attained. This level is expected to be reached next spring. American Airlines had operated the plane about 63 hours a week both on South Pacific routes linking Hawaii, Australia and the island of Fiji, and on domestic routes. The previous world record for continued on-the-wing service by a P&W engine had been held by Trans World Airlines for two of its JT3D-3B turboprops, each of which had logged 17,261 hours on a Boeing 707 before removal July 31, 1973, for routine, scheduled maintenance. The JT3D, which was the first turbofan engine to pass the 100-million-hour milestone, entered commercial service in March, 1961.

Wade Tells How Off-Track Betting Works

By SOL R. COHEN

"I'm not here to defend the morality of off-track betting. I'm only here to explain the state operation. That's what William J. Wade Sr. told the Manchester Board of Directors Tuesday night. Wade is the executive director of the Off-Track Betting Division of the Connecticut Commission on Special Revenue (the gaming commission).

"The program was mandated by the legislature and my job is to set up the off-track betting system," Wade said.

He explained the three phases of off-track betting — mini-tracks (possibly to be called tele-tracks), branch offices, and the state-wide telephone wagering system.

"This is a fun and game thing," he said of the state system. "When bets are placed illegally in the larger towns, it's my way into the wrong channels — drugs and the like."

In the spring of 1972, it was the informal consensus of the Manchester Board of Directors it was opposed to town participation in the program.

Local participation requires approval by the board — but only after a public hearing.

To date, eight Connecticut towns have voted participation, four have rejected it and two are considering it.

Wade indicated Manchester is being considered for one of the 20 to 25 branch offices planned for the state. He said the annual return locally could reach about $15,000, based on a return of one-quarter of one per cent of the annual "take" (the money bet in Manchester). He based his estimate on a prediction of $6 million bet annually in Manchester. He said the board probably will discuss Manchester residents employed in the branch office.

He said five or six mini-tracks will be established in the larger towns, with the return to each about $70,000 a year — based on the same one-quarter of one per cent return and based also on an annual "handle" (betting total) in each town of $28 million in this instance.

Wade said the state "handle" is estimated at about $200 million a year from off-track betting and could mean a $50 to $85 million annual net profit for the state, when the program is in full operation.

He predicted, also, about 500 to 600 new state jobs would be created.

Wade's explanation of the off-track betting system was of the precision-type and computer-type presentation and, except for Vivian Ferguson, the directors listened quietly and asked few questions. Mayor John Thompson said the board probably will discuss the proposal at a subsequent meeting and will decide then whether to consider it further or drop it.

Said Mrs. Ferguson, "I will never, never back this proposal. I find several things about it absolutely appalling. I find it very difficult to sit on this meeting and find state government pressing for something I've felt all my life is wrong.

"Legalizing betting is absolutely and totally immoral," she said. "I think it's disgusting. The state might just as well legalize prostitution. And I don't think legalizing gambling is right just because 'everyone does it.'"

Taken aback by Mrs. Ferguson's outburst, Wade completed his presentation and left — well within the time allotted him.

Prior to Mrs. Ferguson's remarks, he held of the statewide Telephone and Wagering (bookie) System to be placed in operation. He said it will be placed in all state residents — provided they can establish credit — and will operate from a central office and switchboard.

"The bettors must be Connecticut residents, otherwise it's illegal," he said.

Participants will be given "gasoline-type charge cards," he explained, adding that each participant will be given a code name to give to the operator, "in case the card is lost or at home."

Returning to off-track betting offices, Wade said "it's been proven that in New York City prior to off-track betting, many people took time off from work to go to the tracks to place bets. Now they can do it on their lunch hours. And illegal betting in New York City has been cut back 50 per cent since off-track betting was legalized.

"In addition, protective measures are in force for minors in New York City, as it is here in Connecticut. Minors under 18 can't enter the facilities unless accompanied by a parent."

Police Car Ambushed In Kanawha County

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI) — A State Police car was ambushed by gunfire today in the ten-ton-packed Campbell's Creek section of Kanawha County, scene of continued violence in a crusade against textbooks ordered back into schools despite objections from protesting parents.

State Police first reported that two cars had been struck, but a spokesman later corrected that. "The report came into headquarters that two different cars had been hit, but just one was actually hit," he said.

The car was part of a beefed-up patrol established to guard against violence in the area. They were fired at three school buses late Monday and early Tuesday.

There were no injuries in today's shooting, which occurred in a rural area known as Five Mile, scene of previous violence in the county's annual textbook dispute.

Sgt. D. L. Lemon said two troopers riding in the car could not tell if they were targets of rifle fire or shotgun blasts.

The incident broke hopes for a return to calm after school and police officials met and decided to place police patrols in potential trouble spots around the county.

Deputy School Superintendent John Hughes said the patrols were watching for "strategic" attacks. He said there was not enough manpower to escort each of the county's school buses.

Lemon also reported there had been a shooting-match between pickets at Russell Elementary School and rocks were thrown at buses on U.S. 21 near Sistersville.

Three shots hit a school bus driven by James Jacob Tuesday morning while he traveled his route in the Sissonville area. Jacob was not hit.

McGovern Urges Priority Switch

ROME (UPI) — Sen. McGovern today urged the governments throughout the world to cut their military spending 10 per cent and use the proceeds to end hunger on this planet.

The South Dakota Democrat, an unsuccessful presidential candidate in 1972, also asked oil-producing countries to set aside an additional 10 per cent of their billion-dollar income to avert mass global starvation.

"There is no question that we can and must end hunger and malnutrition or humanity," McGovern told newsmen at the U.N. World Food Conference. "But this will not be done if the major military powers continue to waste their substance in military overkill. Nor will it be done if those who have oil benefit their life continue to use it to accumulate riches beyond any reasonable use," he said.

McGovern, a member of the U.S. delegation, said he is sure the conference to act on it.

"What I now propose is that the nations of the world all reduce their military budgets by 10 per cent, which would produce a worldwide set-aside of $20 billion annually," McGovern said.

Mrs. Decker Re-elected To Head School Board

SOUTH WINDSOR — Judy Kuchel, Correspondent 646-1364

The South Windsor Board of Education Tuesday night re-elected Mrs. Cle Decker to her second one-year term as chairman, in a move that saw four members nominated for three different offices.

Robert Eversole, a Democrat, who holds office on the board, was nominated for chairman, vice chairman and secretary.

Donald Bergalis, also a Democrat, was nominated for board member. Unsuccessful following Democrat Cohen for the position of vice chairman, who has served as vice chairman since November 1973, was also nominated for secretary last night.

In other matters, Supt. Robert Goldman presented his preliminary report regarding facilities and space problems in both the high school and elementary schools.

The report, the purpose of which is to "try to outline problems as seen," indicates that the greatest projected enrollment increase is taking place during the 1977-78 school year. The present enrollment is 1,105 students, with 1,188 students expected next year.

According to Dr. Goldman, the facility problems that exist have been created by numerous changes in South Windsor's educational policies. The shift from year-long courses to semester courses has enabled students to take, for example, two courses of English one semester and one course the next, or an increase of 50 per cent. Also students are now permitted to take four courses per semester instead of three, which has increased critical enrollments considerably.

Another factor is that, with the emphasis on career education, or vocational training, instead of only college preparation, more students are taking vocational courses which require special rooms and equipment.

"Interchangeable classrooms" at the high school, in which such subjects as math, social studies, English and so forth may be taught, and 27 single-purpose rooms are being taken for purpose rooms and space and equipment.

"The program and space problems at the Timothy Edwards School closely parallel the problems at the high school," said Dr. Goldman, president of the South Windsor Education Association (SWEA). He wrote that the "benefits of taping would be greatly outweighed by the disadvantages." He stated that while the teachers would welcome the presence of board members and administrators they ask the board to "seriously reconsider" the taping proposal.

A representative of the South Windsor Administrators Association wrote that taping would allow "a wide latitude for misunderstanding."

The "in-service programs" are presented to enable teachers to learn new teaching techniques and share and develop creativity to be used in the classroom.

The "in-service programs" have been approved by teachers and administrators as "the best ever." To allow the shifting effect of taping would "lessen the success of the workshops," according to a spokesman for the faculty senate.

Citizens To Help Pick Block Grant Projects

Manchester officials are seeking townspeople's help in determining priorities for use of funds expected to be granted under a three-year federal program for community development.

Alan Mason, town director of human services, has scheduled public meetings on the program Nov. 25 and 26, at Nathan Hale School and Robertson School, respectively. Both meetings are to start at 7:30 p.m.

In an open letter to citizens of Manchester, Mason said the town needs the public's help in applying for the federal grants, which are expected to total $1.4 million for Manchester over three years.

The purpose of the grant, Mason said, is to aid low and moderate income families and prevent slums or blighted housing conditions.

Eligible activities that could be undertaken by the town, Mason said, include:

- Purchase of property which is in poor condition or hampers community development or property which is for municipal works and facilities.

- Acquisition, construction, reconstruction, or installation of public works facilities, such as social facilities, day care centers, street improvements, recreation areas, flood and drainage controls.

- Code enforcement.

- Clearance, demolition, removal, and rehabilitation of buildings.

- Removal of barriers which restrict movement of the elderly and the handicapped.

- A loan program for housing rehabilitation.

In his open letter, Mason asked, "What are the needs in your neighborhood? What types of activities should get top priority?"

Once the plan is developed, Mason said, public hearings on the proposal — which would outline how Manchester would spend the federal money — are scheduled for January.

The funds are being made available to municipalities under the recently enacted Housing and Community Development Act of 1974.

The act, signed by President Ford in August, is valued at about $11.2 billion nationwide over the three-year period. The act consolidates eight previous federal programs, including Model Cities and urban renewal, into one block grant.

The block grants don't require local matching funds and municipalities are given more control over how the money is spent.

Further information is available at the Manchester Municipal Building and the Mary Cheney Library, Mason said.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI) — Harvard University is removing confidential documents from files to which students will have access next week.

Daniel Steiner, general counsel to Harvard, confirmed certain documents are being removed because of a federal law which becomes effective next Tuesday. That amendment to the 1974 Elementary and Secondary Education Act allows students to see all their own records.
