Was it Irving Berlin Who Redid Weather?

By SOL R. COHEN

If you were a betting-type person Wednesday and if you believed in modern-day miracles, you could have made back all the money you spent on Christmas presents—betting against the weatherman.

The odds were better than 5 to 1 it wouldn't snow Christmas in Manchester and the rest of Central Connecticut.

The miracle of it is that it did snow—as we're all aware by now.

What we don't know is why it snowed. The weatherman blames it on "a rather innocuous-looking disturbance" out of Kentucky, no less.

We have our own theory about the disturbance, and we call it "formidable," rather than "innocuous."

We think the disturbance in the weather pattern was a direct result of air waves spreading over the area, and that the air waves emanated from the tens of thousands of times "I'm Dreaming of a White Christmas" was sung and played.

So, if anyone is to get the credit for the miracle of snow in Manchester Christmas morning, our vote has to go to Irving Berlin, with an assist from Bing Crosby.

Now, if only someone would write a song, "I'm Dreaming of a Deflated and Recession-free New Year."

In Manchester, snow started falling about 4:30 Christmas morning. At times,

Secret Service Knew White House Assailant

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The man who threatened to blow up the White House and himself after driving a car up to the North Portico on Christmas morning had been known to the Secret Service, authorities said.

Marshall Hill Fields, whose late father was a U.S. diplomat, was being held at a mental hospital for observation today after holding federal police at bay for four hours with what looked like explosives tied to his body.

He surrendered peacefully and the bombs turned out to be highway flares. Wires hanging from his black gloves and three packages he set down on the ground were harmless.

Fields, dressed in Arab garb, speaking Arabic and English and claiming he was "wired to dynamite," finally gave up after a black radio station broadcast his demand to meet with the Pakistani ambassador. The demand was not met.

For the preceding two hours, he negotiated face-to-face from 15 feet with Secret Service official George Drescher, who said much of Fields' conversation was about Islam.

Fields' father, Marshall L. Fields, was an official of the Agency for International Development and had served in several Arabic-speaking countries, the Washington Post reported today.

Australia Evacuating Victims of Cyclone

DARWIN, Australia (UPI) — The Australian government today began a massive airborne evacuation of survivors of the cyclone that devastated this northern port city Christmas Day and killed dozens of persons. Thousands of others were homeless and without food and water.

The official death toll remained at 44, Rex Patterson, minister for northern development, said today. Some estimates ran as high as 80 and Patterson said, "the final death toll will not be known until rescuers find out what is under the rubble."

Darwin is without electricity, water, fresh food and sewerage. Authorities estimated that 80 per cent of the city of 40,000 was destroyed or damaged and that at least 20,000 houses were hit when tropical cyclone Tracy struck on Wednesday with 155 mile per hour winds.

Patterson, whose ministry encompasses the vast area of the Northern Territory, announced that at least 10,000 persons would be evacuated from the cyclone-battered city in order to "thin out" the population to cope with medical and food problems.

"Everyone here is a month to feed, we've got to thin out," Patterson said in the first radio broadcast from Darwin since Cyclone Tracy struck. "It would be intolerable for women and children to stay in Darwin for the wet season when thousands of homes will have to be rebuilt," he said.

An Australia-wide airlift of food, clothing, medical supplies and emergency equipment started moving out of three major air bases across Australia, while three naval ships, the aircraft carrier Melbourne, heavy destroyer Hobart and the frigate Stuart, sailed from Sydney for the 2,000-mile trip. They were due here on New Year's Day. Other smaller vessels were en route to help rebuild the demolished port. Medical authorities in Darwin began an extensive inoculation campaign of residents against disease. Volunteers were called for for garbage collection and a giant cleanup of the city.

The U.S. Embassy in Canberra supplied a gigantic U.S. Air Force Starlifter transport plane to assist in rescue and evacuation operations. Defense Minister Lance Barnard said Australia's three airline operators, including the national line QANTAS, would all use available aircraft to help evacuate people from Darwin. Britain sent planes from Singapore to help. In the first flight out, a Hercules transport took 15 injured survivors, including three children in critical condition, to Sydney for emergency operations.

"Darwin is devastated," one of the survivors said. "It's gone. There is nothing but rubble and a few half-demolished buildings."

The Australian navy recalled all sailors from leave.

A fleet of 20 air force transports and dozens of commercial and amateur aircraft carried relief supplies to Darwin and flew out survivors.

Doctors began a mass inoculation in the city of 40,000 to prevent the outbreak of epidemics. Volunteer crews began a giant cleanup campaign.

Patterson called on the city's health

Grasso Names Phillips To Personnel Post

HARTFORD (UPI) — Gov.-elect Ellis T. Grasso today appointed C. Perrie Phillips to be state personnel commissioner at $30,282 a year, a post he held before Gov. Thomas J. Meskill won election as a Republican in 1970.

Phillips helped draft legislation to reform the employe merit system in state government.

Rebel Inmates Reach Accord

LORTON, Va. (UPI) — Rebellious maximum security inmates holding nine Lorton Reformatory guards hostage today reached tentative agreement on terms for ending their 12 hour siege.

The agreement hinged on a guarantee that no reprisals would be directed against the inmates involved in the uprising and that none would be transferred from Lorton to another maximum security institution.

The inmates negotiated with officials unaware that one of the instigators was shot and killed.

Marion Strickland, superintendent of Lorton, said agreement on several issues of contention was reached about 7 a.m. EST and that a courier had been sent with the pact to the suburban Washington home of Norman Carlson, director of the U.S. Bureau of Prisons, for his signature.

In addition to assurances that no inmates would be transferred from Lorton to other maximum security institutions, the agreement called for better visiting hours and restoration of inmate furloughs, canceled recently by Attorney General William B. Saxbe.

Authorities said about 80 to 95 prisoners took 19 guards hostage after the escape attempt about 7 p.m. Christmas night when about a dozen inmates rushed the prison wall. Lorton spokesmen said at least two men and possibly four made it through a guard tower, drawing one shot from a guard.

That shot killed one of the men, whose body was found about six hours later in a stolen getaway several miles from the prison, according to local police and prison spokesmen.

At about the same time the body was found, one of the hostages was released as a "good faith gesture," prison spokesman Bill Plaut said.

The jail, operated by the District of Columbia is in suburban Virginia, about 30 miles south of Washington.

As talks went on through the night in the mess hall, where about 15 inmate negotiators and four prison officials sat around a table, there was no mention of the killing.

Seven reporters and about 15 members of inmates' families watched, including a prisoner's sister who took part in the discussions.

During the negotiations, the hostages were held by the remaining 70 to 75 inmates in a basement.

Demands included longer visiting hours, more visiting days, the removal of the maximum security superintendent accused of racism, better medical care and better facilities at the prison exchange and a promise that the inmates would not be transferred in reprisal to a federal maximum security prison such as Leavenworth.

Furloughs, under which prisoners could go to certain work centers or to family occasions, were recently suspended by Saxbe after Washington police found a furloughed inmate ready to board a train with a sawed-off shotgun under his coat.

Inmate mediator Dexter Haziel, 26, said, "All the demands I've presented to Mr. (Marion) Strickland, he has responded to promptly and has dealt with them in whatever fashion he could." Haziel, chairman of the prisoners' grievance committee, said he was not originally involved in the uprising.

Strickland is head of the reformatory. Also participating in the talks were his assistant, James Freeman; D.C. corrections director Deibert Jackson and Grady Springs, acting assistant head of maximum security.

The talks were held in a calm atmosphere with only occasional shouting and no hostility. There were no threats from the inmates and no indications prison officials were planning to forcibly remove them.

CPTV Bilingual Series Aimed At Puerto Rican Youngsters

The pilot program of a ten-part bilingual television series was taped last week at Connecticut Public Television (CPTV) in Hartford and will be tested next month in five cities.

The Spanish-English series, "Mundo Real," is being developed by CPTV for regional use under a $250,000 grant from the federal Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

The half-hour shows, intended primarily for Puerto Rican youngsters aged nine to 13, is expected to air next fall on CPTV and other Eastern Public TV stations.

The show, whose cast includes many Hartford area actors, is envisioned as a comedy-drama revolving around a Puerto Rican family in an urban, multi-ethnic community. Through the activities of Luis Blanco, the owner of a travel agency, his family and neighbors, "Mundo Real" places heavy stress on the cultural heritage, history, humor, and personal characteristics of the Puerto Rican people.

Its objective is to enhance the self-image of its young Spanish-speaking audience in order to upgrade their performance in school.

The pilot show taped at CPTV last week is "Della Contra Santa Claus," which tells the story of a 12-year-old Puerto Rican girl, Della, who is perplexed about the character of Santa Claus.

Cable Rates Proposed

Greater Hartford CATV, Inc. the cable television franchise holder for Manchester and four other area towns, has applied to the state Public Utilities Commission (PUC) for approval of a new rate schedule.

The PUC has scheduled a public hearing on the application Jan. 3 at 10 a.m. in Room 365A of the State Office Building, 165 Capitol Ave., Hartford.

The proposed rates include a monthly service charge of $8.50, including cable converter, for the first residential set and $3.50 for each additional set.

The charges for multi-unit non-residential service would be $8.50 for the first set and $4 for each additional set.

Vincent King, local manager for Greater Hartford CATV, said the proposed rates for his system are similar to rates charged by other cable TV operators in the country.

King said cable television will become operational in Manchester Feb. 15. A sales campaign is expected to start early in January, and King said the company will offer one-half of the usual $20 installation charge for the first few months.

Once cable TV gets off the ground in Manchester, Greater Hartford CATV will begin construction of its system in the four other towns - Glastonbury, Wethersfield, Rocky Hill and Newtonington - King said.

George D. Aiken

Aiken of Vermont: 'I Think We'll Pull Out'

GEORGE GUDAUSKAS WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., retiring next month as dean of the Senate, says America's leaders must confront the country's economic problems soon or they will "wake up playing chess across the table from the Allies."

He also suggests that Richard M. Nixon might have survived Watergate had he admitted his administration's mistakes instead of trying to cover them up.

Aiken, 82, who still looks like the Yankee farmer he once was, has served 34 years in the Senate, longer than any other present member. He has lived through the Great Depression and the great wars of this century, and has served under seven Presidents.

Interviewed in his spartan-like Senate office, which lacks the usual framed photographs and mementos of other politicians, Aiken left it to history to judge the Presidents he has known since Franklin D. Roosevelt.

He said Dwight D. Eisenhower had the "best years" to serve in the White House. Lyndon B. Johnson was a man of domestic affairs, he said, and got bogged down in Vietnam.

Eisenhower, John F.

Kennedy and others made mistakes but stood taller when they admitted them publicly.

"Kennedy said, 'That Bay of Pigs, oh, I was the blame for that.' He wasn't to blame for that, but when he said he was his stocks went right up."

"When Ike said, 'Oh, that U2 was our plane. We got caught,' that ended the discussion right then and there when he admitted it."

"President Nixon could have probably saved himself a tremendous lot of trouble had he taken those tactics."

Aiken believes Nixon knew nothing in advance of the Watergate break-in that ultimately doomed his presidency.

"But, according to the testimony since, he felt it was part of his job to cover it up, protect the ones that actually performed the deed."

"And, so I say, 'Sometimes it's much worse to protect a sinner than it is to commit the sin—as he's finding out.'"

He sees President Ford as "an ordinary, middle-of-the-road, run-of-the-mill person" whose strength lies partly in his ability to mix easily with people and "still be an ordinary man."

Ford's major failing, he said, is promising to balance the federal budget, "knowing perfectly well he can't do it."

"Perhaps one of his strongest points is his wife," Aiken said. "She's excellent."

With a gleeful wink, he added: "They help. Sometimes they get a little bossy." After his first wife died, Aiken in 1967 married Lola Pierotti, his long-time Senate secretary who is many years his junior.

"It didn't work," he said. "We may have it impressed upon us in the next few months," he added, warning that unless government leaders become aware of the problems they face, "they'll wake up playing chess across the table from the Aztecs."

BOOK REVIEWS

'Too Proud to Fight' by Patrick Devlin. (Oxford, $19.50)

When the world's nations chose up sides before World War I, the United States did not automatically favor Great Britain and the Allies, a fact that grows obscure with the passing of years.

This sharply written, engrossing study traces the events that logically led Woodrow Wilson, the highly principled president of the United States, to reach the decision against Germany.

Lord Devlin, a prominent British jurist with a deep knowledge of the United States, focuses on the tactics used by Britain and Germany to win over this country as they worked upon Wilson.

Wilson was a pious, scholarly man unlike many of his predecessors and successors. He personally was in charge at the White House, and in charge in an oddly parochial fashion. He "might almost have been running a parish with the help of his wife and a curate and a portable typewriter."

The battle, then, was for the mind of Woodrow Wilson and it "was fought with moral and legal forces." With Wilson neither side won morally, and on the legal side the British never captured the mind of Wilson but Germany eventually lost altogether.

Devlin has captured a man in the throes of a decision about a course of action that would alter the state of mankind. Into the skeleton of lawful precedents, he tried to breathe "the spirit of justice."

Manchester Evening Herald OPINION Tax Cut Can Help

President Ford, and congressional leaders are preparing legislation for the upcoming session in January.

House leaders of both parties are being quoted as favoring a revised tax bill next year which would ease the tax burden on lower and middle income people. They regretfully add that it would be probably a move that would require offsetting increases against the wealthy and corporations.

This is political talk of the very worst sort, ignoring some important economic realities.

We are not against tax relief for low and middle income taxpayers. On the contrary we think that they are now overtaxed to pay for a lot more government than we think is needed.

But we hope that both presidential advisors and the leaders in the Congress will give some thought to a substantial tax cut for corporate profits, or at the very least an increase in tax credit for capital expansion.

Inflation has cut into corporate profits and as Leonard Woodcock, UAW president said of the auto industry, has made them "razor thin."

Plant expansion, remodeling, retooling, etc., has to come from either profits or bond issues, borrowing.

With profits cut thin and interest rates prohibitively high, corporations — employers — have found it increasingly difficult, if not impossible, to raise money for capital improvements.

And like it or not, if there is no money for business expansion there are no new jobs in sight. Jobs are created by business and industry, not by government.

A cut in the corporate income tax rate would immediately provide a source of money for expansion plans which have been contemplated but held up for lack of funds.

Labor has come to the realization that no amount of government rulings will produce lasting jobs. That comes only from the private sector of the economy.

And in the medium run, it would probably not be injurious to government revenue. More jobs would result in more income tax to the federal government. And the turnaround in the economy, in which it would be a significant factor, might find corporations paying just as much in tax, even though today's very high rates were lowered.

We hope all those planning for the economy will see the further economic stagnation which could come from the present rate of high taxes on business.

Inflation has cut into corporate profits and as Leonard Woodcock, UAW president said of the auto industry, has made them "razor thin."

Plant expansion, remodeling, retooling, etc., has to come from either profits or bond issues, borrowing.

Why Johnny Won't Read

Dick, Jane and Spot are no longer on the elementary educational scene. But hold your cheers. They have been replaced by their identical twins, Janet and Mark and "Socks" (Socks?).

And they haven't learned a thing, writes famed education psychologist Bruno Bettelheim in "Encounter" magazine. In fact, he charges, the Harper & Row primers are a major reason why so many children not only never learn how to read properly but are permanently turned off from books.

For example, the first two pages show pictures of Janet and Mark. Janet is tending a tomato plant and Mark is raking grass.

Now, no normal first-grade boy enjoys raking or mowing grass, says Bettelheim, and only a few girls of this age are enamored of tending tomato plants. Immediately, the young potential reader's intelligence is insulted.

Elsewhere, the readers powerfully suggest that school is best avoided:

"In the morning you get up. You get dressed. You get breakfast. Even if you get wet you go to school on time. Then you get out of school and you go home again. After a day of getting up and getting dressed and getting breakfast, and getting wet, and getting to school, and getting hot and getting home and getting dinner, you get very tired and get into bed, so that you can get up the next morning and start all over again."

A more depressing view of life can hardly be imagined, says Bettelheim. Nor is there any suggestion that something meaningful may go on in school. In fairness to Janet and Mark, things are not much better in other readers.

Why do our educators do everything they can to prevent children from entering the magic world of reading?

The High Price Of A Clean Environment

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Most progress is a compromise. Medical drugs do harm as well as good. The same applies to agricultural chemicals. It is now suspected that all foods, even the best, may have some bad side effects over the years.

So it is with our anti-pollution drive. It is essential that, as we head toward the cleaner air and water all of us desire, we know the cost in dollars and in side effects.

We have already learned that some of the anti-pollution devices we have ordered installed sometimes reduce one hazard but spew out worse byproducts. In other instances it is found that air and water are dirtied by the manufacture of chemicals designed to lower pollution.

This columnist will only concentrate on estimating a part of the dollar costs. The federal government's anti-pollution laws will cost industry $20 billion over the next 10 years.

By 1984, pollution control operation and maintenance costs alone will be running at $20 billion a year and new capital spending at $10 billion. Those costs will be passed on to the consumer.

based on studies at the Environmental Protection Agency. They do not include the cost to manufacturers of complying with state, county and city laws. And they do not include the cost to owners for anti-pollution devices on automobiles. These items will also add billions to the total. We shall pay other prices too.

Anti-pollution regulations reportedly have caused the closing of 60 plants and the loss of 12,000 jobs. Officials say most closings were not due solely to government-imposed anti-pollution costs. Rather, they claim the plants were typically small, old and marginal. But all the same, the producers were largely in primary metals, paper, food products and chemicals, where production shortages contribute heavily to inflation.

Another 81 plants and 44,000 additional jobs are threatened in companies which now calculate they cannot afford to meet the added costs of expensive equipment for holding down pollution. These companies, too, are in the basic industries.

This is but the beginning. Though the federal government's drive for clean air and water has been in operation for some years, it is now moving into high gear so that the worst is yet to come.

TODAY'S THOUGHT

A well-known writer of another day said this: "I sometimes think we expect too much of Christmas Day. We try to crowd into it the long arrears of kindness and humanity of the whole year. As for me, I like to take my Christmas a little at a time, all through the year. And in this way I move along into the holidays, waking up some morning and saying to myself: 'Why this is Christmas Day!'"

As we read this on the day after Christmas, let it move us to open a sort of Christmas Club of thoughtfulness, concern and love, laying up in other lives a little bit of the finer things each day. Jesus, in sending his disciples on their first mission, gave them power to do many great things but ended by saying, "If, as my representatives, you give even a cup of cold water to a little child, you will surely be rewarded."

The Fair Market Argument

NEW YORK — I have heard it — as you have — from every direction. I am talking of the argument that you can't really blame the Arab oil lords for the energy price crisis because what they did is a fair and accepted part of the operation of the demand-and-supply market.

Yesterday I had it expounded to me twice from two very different sources. One was by a bright young man who seemed vaguely on the fringe of the oil business and was just back from a Middle East trip where he had been impressed by the hard-driving realism of the Arab price setters, and who was gung-ho to explain it to me over a drink.

The other, more surprisingly, was by a young and articulate taxi driver who foresaw oil allocation lines in New York City by next month, but who was willing to bear it because he believes in the operation of the price market, however harsh its consequences.

The first is the sheer magnitude of the sudden fourfold price increase last year — a steep and precipitous increase unparalleled in the history of cartels, so great as to change a difference of degree into a difference of kind.

The second is the political motive, which didn't apply to a democratic producing nation like Venezuela but which did apply to the dominant Arab countries. At the time of the steep increase the Arab leaders made it clear that it was a political as well as economic weapon, and it succeeded in changing the policies of a number of the industrial consuming nations toward Israel and in isolating it diplomatically. Such political motivations have had nothing to do, in the history of international economics, with either a free-market economy or a cartel economy. The third, flowing from the others, is the extreme impact that the unilateral cartel price decisions have had on the economic systems not only of every industrial nation but of most of the Third World. It has seriously worsened the worldwide inflation-depression picture, brought several countries (Italy and England notably) to the brink of breakdown, piled up tens of billions of Arab oil dollars moving between the world money markets and adhered in a new rich-poor division between the nations.

Given these facts, it is hard to go along with the argument about a "normal" or "fair" price market. Granted that historically the big oil companies took unfair advantage of the oil-producing nations, the problem is not one of historic retribution but of what to do now. The dependence of the oil consumers on future price and quota decisions of the producer cartel becomes an intolerable one.

The Martineau summit between the French and American presidents was worthwhile in setting a later world meeting of oil consumer and producer nations. Until that time, the action which the Kissinger policy envisages, of collective planning by the 15 consumer nations on conservation, energy research programs, the recycling of petrodollars and a common emergency fund to bolster the weakest economies, is more than the prudent and necessary path. It is the only path.

kickbacks, bribery, and other so-called "white-collar" crime have cost the nation's householders "probably another $10-million" during the past 18 months. Scoppetta uttered this estimate after giving startling testimony at a hearing of Congress' Joint Economic Committee. Based on his investigations of commercial bribery in the food industry, Scoppetta said he believes "a sizable portion of the farm-retail food price spread has been caused by illegal activities."

In New York City, for example, Scoppetta said he had found that kickbacks involving meat buyers of big food chains and processors had added anywhere from four cents to five cents a pound to the retail price of beef. Sen. William Proxmire, chairman of the committee, told the hearing that in at least one case the crime "add-on" to the retail price of meat came to a whopping 15 cents a pound. And Scoppetta hastened to add that the same criminal situation in the meat business also exists in other areas of the food industry.

According to evidence based on actual cases, this is what has happened and it is still happening: Most meat companies in New York and other big cities buy their supplies through brokerage houses. The suppliers either pay bribes to the brokerage firms, or they don't sell their product in the city involved. In one case, a major meat supplier was forced to pay more than $1-million in bribes to do business in New York.

The amount of the bribes is added to the wholesale price of meat, the supplier moved into the city and eventually is tagged onto the retail price paid by the shopper. Meat companies conceal the bribery payments in their corporate records by creating false invoices for meat they never purchased, a gimmick almost as old as Adam.

Everybody seems to be in the act. Scoppetta told of a case involving the A & P in which the meat buyer was found to be pocketing money from various processing companies. In another case, three top executives of the largest meat union local in the country were gouging huge payments from meat processors. Scoppetta estimated that the union officials had extorted "hundreds of thousands of dollars from executives in the meat industry."

Scoppetta was of the opinion that corruption was nationwide. Besides New York, he named only New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin, but he told reporters later he had "no doubt" the kickback racketeering was prevalent "in all 50 states and in Puerto Rico."

Flendering this outrage, one is inclined to agree with both Scoppetta and Proxmire that the Justice Department should get off its hams and set more poises after these racketeers. It does seem that if Justice imposed a few antitrust sanctions and convened a gaggle of grand juries around the country to bear evidence of criminal activity it could at least throw a scare into the huns and maybe toss some of them into the clanger.

All this, of course, takes time. But if Justice sent more of its people out to ask embarrassing questions of individuals suspected of involvement in kickbacks and bribes, the odds are that such corruption would come to a crashing halt. Creeps and other authorities start breathing down their necks. If they got nervous enough, you can be sure the price of hamburger would go down.

ANDREW TULLY

Racketeers In Meat Caper

WASHINGTON — You guessed it, sir and ma'am. The high cost of meat has not always been simply the result of galloping inflation. As they say on the street, the racketeers are into the caper.

Specifically, it is the educated opinion of Nicholas Scoppetta, commissioner of investigations for the city of New York, that kickbacks, bribery, and other so-called "white-collar" crime have cost the nation's householders "probably another $10-million" during the past 18 months. Scoppetta uttered this estimate after giving startling testimony at a hearing of Congress' Joint Economic Committee.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

"Compulsory" Surgery

Suffering from a hyperthyroid condition, Doris began to collect disability payments under the Social Security Act. But after a brief period, the government decided to pay no more.

"She isn't that sick," a government spokesman explained in a court hearing. "All she needs is a minor operation, which she refuses to have. That isn't our fault."

"I just don't like surgery," countered Doris. "They can't make such a thing compulsory."

However, the court agreed with the government that the payments could indeed be terminated. The court said Doris could not be classified as "disabled" when it was within her own power to get well.

The justification for the ruling was that the operation which Doris needed was relatively safe. Why, say the courts, should the government bear the consequences of a person's unusual squeamishness?

The greater the risk, however, the greater the right of the ailing person to refuse surgery without losing his benefits. He may also refuse surgery on the ground that it is not likely to help him. Thus:

A truck driver was disabled by a severe back problem. Here too the government wanted him to undergo corrective surgery rather than collect disability payments.

But this time, the operation was both painful and dangerous—and the chance of success was no more than 50%. Ruling against the government, the judge said:

"This court will not require claimant to submit to such odds."

One case involved a man who was unable to hold a job because he drank too much whiskey. In seeking social security payments, he claimed he could not change his habits. But a court turned him down, concluding that he could control his "disability" if he tried hard enough.

A public service feature of the American Bar Association which Doris could not be classified as "disabled" when it was within her own power to get well.

SOCIAL SECURITY

Q. I'll retire in a few months and start collecting Social Security retirement benefits. Will I have to pay federal income tax on these monthly benefits?

A. No. You do not have to pay federal income tax on Social Security benefits.

Q. My mother is 86 years old. Lately she can't remember whether or not she got her monthly Social Security check. Usually she misplaces it. Is it possible for me to receive her Social Security checks for her?

A. Yes. If your mother cannot manage her own money, the Social Security administration can select someone to receive the check for her. For more information you should contact any Social Security office.

Q. I'm retired. I read starting January 1975 I can earn $2,500 a year and still get full Social Security payments. Is there any chance that this amount will be increased in the future?

A. Yes. Changes in the Social Security law provide that, as future earnings level rise, the amount people can earn and still get Social Security benefits will also rise. The first automatic increase in the Social Security retirement test will be for 1975.

Q. I'm 68 and getting monthly Social Security retirement checks. I work part time and I understand that I can earn $2,400 and still get all my monthly checks. What happens if I have earned over $2,400?

A. You will lose $1 in Social Security benefits for every $2 you earn over $2,400 in 1974. But no matter how much you earn in 1974 you could still collect for any month in which you neither earn over $200 in wages nor perform substantial services in self employment.

Q. I will retire next year. When I was looking over my birth certificate, I found that it does not show my first name. What should I do?

A. If you have a baptism record established before age five, you should submit it. If not, submit any other documents you have showing your name and date of birth. Chances are this will be sufficient but, if not, the Social Security office will advise you.

FROM YOUR NEIGHBOR'S KITCHEN

By VIVIAN FERGUSON

Recently, I requested the recipe for a sugarcake made during World War II. The mail has been profuse with responses. I gather you are looking for the cake made with corn syrup. Mary Warren of 127 Princeton St. sent me a clipping from The Manchester Evening Herald dated July 7, 1942.

Sugarless Two-Egg Cake
 2 1/2 cups sifted cake flour
 1 teaspoon baking powder
 1/4 cup shortening
 1 teaspoon grated orange rind
 1 cup white corn syrup
 2 eggs, unbeat
 1/2 cup milk
 1 1/4 teaspoons vanilla
 Sift dry ingredients together. Cream shortening and orange rind, add syrup gradually, cream thoroughly. Add eggs one at a time and beat well after each addition. Add flour alternately with the milk, mix thoroughly and add vanilla. Bake in 8x8x2 pan at 350 for 40 minutes, or in two 8" greased layer cake pans at 375 for 25-30 minutes. If desired, ice with jelly or jam and sprinkle with coconut.

Variations: Use 1 teaspoon vanilla and 1/4 teaspoon almond extract, omitting orange rind. For spice cake: sift 1 1/4 teaspoons cinnamon, 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg and 1/4 teaspoon cloves with flour. Substitute one teaspoon grated lemon rind for orange rind and use one teaspoon vanilla. For orange cake: Substitute 1/2 cup orange juice for milk. Omit vanilla. Josephine Newton of 188 Benton St., sent two good-sized booklets. One was published to help make the food ration points, which were issued during wartime, go farther. Published in 1943 by the Culinary Arts Institute, it was suggested that one look into the keeping of bees in the backyard to provide honey, as a source of sugar.

The second book suggests the use of dates and figs as a natural source of sugar. Recipes were developed using maple sugar, honey or corn syrup. It was suggested that recipes using honey be baked at a moderate temperature as they brown very easily. The following recipes were suggested for mailing to the bulletin:

Honey Date Bars
 1 cup sifted flour
 1/4 teaspoon salt
 1 cup shortening
 1 cup honey
 1/4 to 1 cup chopped nuts
 1 lb. dates, stoned and cut
 2 eggs, well beaten
 Sift flour, salt and baking powder together. Combine with honey, nuts, dates and eggs. Mix thoroughly. Spread 1/2-inch thick in two greased 8x8 baking pans. Bake in slow oven at 225 about 45 minutes. When cold, cut into strips. Store in covered jar or tin box at least one week.

Marion Hannay, 145 St. John St., submitted a sugarless apple cake made with molasses. It was used long before World War II. Most recently, she made it for her grandchildren who, she says, "loved it and said it tasted like molasses cookies."

Sugarless Apple Cake
 1/4 cup shortening
 1 cup molasses
 1 egg
 2 1/4 cups flour
 1 teaspoon baking soda
 1 teaspoon cinnamon
 1/4 teaspoon cloves
 1 teaspoon salt
 1 cup unsweetened apple sauce
 1 cup raisins
 Cream shortening, add molasses and beat well. Beat egg into mixture. Add dry ingredients with apple sauce. Add raisins. Bake 45 minutes at 350. Note: Can be frosted or served plain. Marion uses a tube pan. Lee Cibronski of 44 Lyndale St., makes crisp, sugarless chocolate chip cookies from a 1947 recipe taken from Better Homes and Gardens.

SCRAP RUMOR
 NEW YORK (UPI) - A mysterious rumor that aluminum scrap can be exchanged directly for hospital equipment has caused many misconceived scrap collection campaigns according to the Aluminum Association. The fact is scrap aluminum can be sold to the 1,200 aluminum collection centers only for cash, the association said. It said it has not been able to run down the source of this rumor, but communities could obtain bargains in hospital equipment directly in exchange for scrap aluminum.

Sugar and its substitutes. (Herald photo by Pinto)

Chocolate Chippers
 1/2 cup shortening
 1/4 teaspoon vanilla
 1/4 cup light corn syrup
 1 1/4 cups flour
 1/4 teaspoon salt
 1/2 teaspoon baking soda
 7 oz. semi-sweet chocolate bits
 1/4 cup chopped walnut meats
 Combine shortening, vanilla and syrup. Blend well. Add sifted dry ingredients. Mix thoroughly. Stir in chocolate and nuts. Drop from teaspoon onto greased cookie sheet. Bake at 350 for 15-20 minutes. Makes four dozen cookies.

Several callers have inquired as to proper measurement when using sugar substitutes. The following information comes from a book called "Any One Can Bake" published by the Royal Baking Powder Co. in 1926.

"Molasses...to neutralize the acid 1/4 to 1/2 teaspoon soda should be added for each cup of molasses. It may be substituted for sugar in the same proportion, using a little less liquid."

"Honey...may replace all the sweetening in cakes and cookies if 1/3 teaspoon soda is added for each cup of honey to neutralize the acid; less liquid is also required."

"Reduce liquid in the recipe by 1/4 cup for each of honey, molasses, maple or corn syrup used in place of sugar because all of these ingredients contain water. If no other liquid is called for in the recipe, use 2 1/2 tablespoons flour."

"In making these substitutions you must adjust the baking powder and/or the baking soda proportions."

"For molasses: Use 1/4 teaspoon soda for each cup of molasses. Reduce baking powder by two tablespoons."

"For honey: Use 1/4 teaspoon soda for each cup of honey. For maple: Use 1/4 teaspoon soda for each cup of syrup."

"There is good old-fashioned gingerbread recipe whose main ingredient is molasses with a little brown sugar. A steamed pudding was heavily favored and could be made with molasses. Southerners made Sweet Potato Delight, a dark pudding supposedly very delicious."

"Molasses Nut Cake
 1 package applesauce cake mix
 2/3 cup water
 4 eggs
 1/4 cup molasses
 1 cup chopped nuts
 Preheat oven to 350. Grease and flour 13x9 pan. In large bowl, combine all ingredients; beat as directed on package. Pour into prepared pan. Bake 35-40 minutes. Cool and frost."

Frosting for Molasses Nut Cake
 1 package vanilla frosting mix
 2 tablespoons molasses
 Prepare frosting as directed on package, adding molasses. Frost cake.
 Cooking without sugar was done long before World War II. The early New Englanders made Indian pudding, a common Saturday night dessert because it could be baked in the same oven as the traditional jar or tin box at least one week.

For honey: Use 1/4 teaspoon soda for each cup of honey. For maple: Use 1/4 teaspoon soda for each cup of syrup.

There is good old-fashioned gingerbread recipe whose main ingredient is molasses with a little brown sugar. A steamed pudding was heavily favored and could be made with molasses. Southerners made Sweet Potato Delight, a dark pudding supposedly very delicious."

CUB SCOUT NEWS

Pack 47

Cub Scout Pack 47 recently held a pack meeting at South United Methodist Church. The Webelos Den conducted the opening and closing ceremonies.

Following a skit by Den 4, William Greene, cubmaster, welcomed new members and their families.

Boys joining the Webelos Den were John Boehm, David Miller, Lance Bouchard and Michael Ray. New members of Den 4 are Laurence Smith, Charles Hendessi, George Chambers, Eric Martin, Daren Sears, and Sean Downey.

Next an Award Ceremony was held with Lawrence Smith, Charles Hendessi, George Chambers, Eric Martin, Daren Sears, and Sean Downey, receiving Bobcat badges; William Taylor, Sean Haggerty, David Gahagan, Lance Bouchard, Douglas Blodau, one year service pins; John Boehm, Mark Eagleton, Steven Farley, Michael Memory, David Miller, Robert Pilbey, Michael Ray, and Douglas Whitaker, two year service pins.

After the Webelos ceremony, all eight dens of the pack exhibited the various crafts made at den meetings.

During the past month, 77 cubs and parents attended the UConn-Rhode Island football game. The pack recently concluded its annual paper drive.

The pack meeting concluded with a Chinese wrestling bout. Eddie Howard of Den 8 was the winner. Den 4 again won the best attendance award.

Lurate-DeSimone
 Diane DeSimone of Manchester and John Lurate of Hartford, exchanged wedding vows Nov. 9 at the Church of the Assumption, Manchester. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rocco DeSimone of 46 Fulton Rd. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Lurate of Hartford.

The Rev. Paul Tringone of the Church of the Assumption officiated at the double-ring ceremony. The church was decorated with sprays of chrysanthemums.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a silk organza gown enhanced with Chantilly lace and designed with Empire waist, high ruffled Victorian collar, long full sleeves with fitted ruffled cuffs, lace and seed pearl trimmed bodice, and A-line skirt with lace panels to hemline terminating in a chapel-length train. Her chapel-length train of silk illusion was attached to a lace Camellot cap. She carried a bouquet of white tea roses and baby's breath.

Miss Debbie DeSimone of Manchester was her sister's maid of honor. She wore a royal blue velvet A-line gown with a matching jacket with V-neck eggshell collar. She carried a bouquet of strawflowers.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Susan McGaw of Glastonbury, Mrs. Nancy Barone of East Hartford, Miss Carol Disenza of Rocky Hill, the bride's cousin; Miss Mary-Elize Lurate of Hartford, the bridegroom's sister. They wore gowns and carried flowers similar to those of the honor attendant.

Miss Kelly Alice Lurate of Hartford, the bridegroom's sister, was flower girl. She wore a blue velvet gown and carried a basket of dry flowers.

Joseph Walsh of Hartford was best man. Ushers were Jimmy Lurate of Hartford, the bridegroom's brother; Danny DeSimone of Manchester, the bride's brother; Kevin Lanza and Edward Garrity, both of Hartford.

Rocky DeSimone of Manchester, the bride's brother, was ring bearer. A reception was held at the Elms Club in Manchester after which the couple left on a trip to the Bahamas. For traveling, Mrs. Lurate wore a black velvet pantsuit with a white blouse and a corsage of red roses.

The couple will reside in Hartford. Mrs. Lurate is employed at Hartford Insurance. Mr. Lurate is employed by Baldwin-Stewart.

The Effects of a Cyclone men to stay behind and rebuild Darwin with the supplies being shipped in on naval vessels.

The government reported hundreds of persons injured and about 20,000 homes destroyed by the erratic cyclone, which changed course suddenly and smashed into the city before officials could make preparations.

Acting Prime Minister James Cairns flew to Darwin today to direct rescue operations for the survivors of the worst storm in Australian history.

"I have been informed that almost the whole of the city has been devastated," he said before leaving Sydney.

"Practically every house has been damaged, seriously or otherwise."

"The hospital has been damaged," he said. "The water supply has been damaged. Power is almost completely cut off from the city."

The 165-mile-an-hour cyclone blew down trees and power lines, ripped roofs off homes and demolished entire buildings. Ships in the harbor were blown around or capsized.

A spokesman for the Sydney weather bureau said the storm had been expected to pass about 100 miles north of Darwin, but changed course at the last moment and veered south into the city.

Hesketh Pleaded Nolo To Reckless Driving

A report in the Court Cases column of Tuesday's Herald concerning Circuit Court 12's disposition of the case of James P. Hesketh - was in error.

Hesketh pleaded nolo contendere (no contest) to a charge of reckless driving and was fined $75. The Herald incorrectly reported that Hesketh, 18, of 141 W. Center St., had pleaded guilty.

The reckless driving charge was substituted for a more serious charge of negligent homicide. The case stemmed from the case of James P. Hesketh, 18, of 141 W. Center St., who was charged with negligent homicide.

The Herald also erred Tuesday when it reported that Hartford County Coroner Irving Aronson concluded, after an inquiry, that the accident which resulted in Lesard's death was a high-speed collision.

Aronson actually concluded that Hesketh "was probably operating at an excessive rate of speed."

Planting machines are considered the most critical for proper operation in the field if the farmer is to get the most out of his crop, agriculture experts say.

If Oakland does have a deficiency on defense it's against the run. Miami fullback Larry Csonka in his usual fashion ran roughshod around and through the Raiders. Harris will have to do likewise for Pittsburgh if the Steelers are to have a chance.

Minnesota was most impressive in ousting St. Louis, but in the Cardinals' behalf, it must be said they lacked one key ingredient - playoff experience. It makes a world of difference, star Viking running back Chuck Foreman stated. Los Angeles has that exposure so this factor shouldn't play a major role.

The Rams' defensive secondary has been much maligned but it did a superlative job in shutting down the Redskins. The front seven is the key for Los Angeles on defense and there is no reason to believe it will fall down against the Vikings.

There is no question Minnesota has a better offense. Fran Tarkenton is more consistent than the Rams' signal-caller, James Harris, but, he, too, has been known for his off-days.

An old axiom - "Win one for the Gipper" - might decide the Minnesota-Los Angeles clash. The Vikings have the home field advantage but the Rams have the emotional edge. Carroll Rosenbloom, the beloved Ram owner, is recuperating from a mild heart attack and the Rams would like nothing better than a victory to speed his recovery.

Super Bowl IX

Four teams remain in the running for the two berths in Super Bowl IX in New Orleans after last weekend's action. The Oakland Raiders and Pittsburgh Steelers meet in Oakland for the AFC title and the Minnesota Vikings and Los Angeles Rams combat in frigid Minnesota for the NFC crown.

Off season and last week's performances, Oakland must be labeled the favorite to go all the way. The Raiders, behind the "Snake" southern quarterback Kenny Stabler, possess one of the most explosive offenses around. They proved it against Miami, moving when they had to eliminate the two-time defending Super Bowl champ Dolphins.

Pittsburgh, however, does have some weapons of its own. The Steelers' quarterback, Terry Bradshaw, had his finest outing in a pro uniform in directing his club over Buffalo. It is said Bradshaw has gained the all-important maturity to take Owner Art Rooney's team to the summit. He along with Franco Harris and the rest of the "Mean" Joe Greene will have to be at their best to topple Oakland.

If Oakland does have a deficiency on defense it's against the run. Miami fullback Larry Csonka in his usual fashion ran roughshod around and through the Raiders. Harris will have to do likewise for Pittsburgh if the Steelers are to have a chance.

Giants' Bright Spot John Hicks Selected NFC Rookie-of-the-Year

NEW YORK (UPI) - Offensive guard John Hicks, whose crunching blocking and pass protecting provided some of the few bright spots in an otherwise dismal season for the New York Giants, today was named the United Press International's 1974 National Football Conference Rookie-of-the-Year.

Hicks, a No. 1 draft choice out of Ohio State who proved to be a real "blue chipper," became the first offensive lineman to gain the honor in the 20-year history of the award. He won by a slim one vote over running back Wilbur Jackson of the San Francisco 49ers in the national balloting of 39 sportswriters, three from each NFC city.

Hicks received 13 votes compared to 12 for Jackson who, after a brilliant collegiate career at Alabama, ranked eighth in rushing in the NFC with 705 yards on the ground despite missing a couple of games because of injuries. He along with Franco Harris and the rest of the "Mean" Joe Greene will have to be at their best to topple Oakland.

If Oakland does have a deficiency on defense it's against the run. Miami fullback Larry Csonka in his usual fashion ran roughshod around and through the Raiders. Harris will have to do likewise for Pittsburgh if the Steelers are to have a chance.

Minnesota was most impressive in ousting St. Louis, but in the Cardinals' behalf, it must be said they lacked one key ingredient - playoff experience. linebacker Raymond Bryant of the Chicago Bears who was named on four ballots.

The Giants finished the 1973 season with a 2-12 record, tied with Baltimore for the worst mark in the National Football League, but it was hardly the fault of the 6-foot-2, 200-pound Hicks who, along with fellow rookie guard Tom Mullen of Southwest Missouri State, gave the Giants one of the better offensive lines in the league.

"You really can't measure an individual performance such as mine in view of the team's poor record," said Hicks, who, along

Looking Back, Mayor Says Vernon Had a Good Year

BARBARA RICHMOND
I had a good year, making progress in many areas and without having to raise taxes," Mayor Vernon Frank McCoy said reflecting on the year of 1974 in Vernon.

Mayor McCoy cited the signing of the contract for the addition to Rockville High School as one of the major accomplishments. He blamed the inflationary spiral for the delay in getting the project started.

He also mentioned the signing of the contract for major improvements on the Memorial Building; the expansion of programs for Senior Citizens; and the expansion of the recreation program under Donald Berger, hired as the town's first full-time director of recreation.

All-in-all the mayor feels Vernon had a good year without any major disasters such as the ice storm of last year and the tornado of the year before. The town also got through the year without any major fires which is a credit to the town's fire departments made up of volunteers.

People in the News
During the year good things happened to many of the town's residents. While the town was saddened at the resignation of Police Chief Edmund Dwyer, it was pleased with the appointment of his replacement, Herman Fritz, who was a lieutenant in the department.

Other local people and the honors they received were: Lawrence Halpern, named to receive the Jaycee Distinguished Service Award; Elementary School Teacher Albert Kerkin, assistant for superintendent of schools,

Outstanding Educator by the Academy of American Educators; Judith Shablon, installed as worthy member of Rockville Order Rainbow for Girls; Joseph Willis, a 17-year employee of the Rockville Post Office, named "Carrier of the Year"; Joyce Oliphant, twice honored, was named "Miss Colonel," and Vernon's "Junior Miss"; Mayor McCoy, elected vice president of the Connecticut Conference of Mayors and Municipalities; John Gill, named Rotary Citizen of the Year.

David Engelson, selected as principal of the Lake Street School; William K. Pease, elected exalted ruler of Rockville Lodge of Elks; Robert Boardman named administrator for Rockville General Hospital; Jim Laluppe chosen as the top fisherman of the annual Children's Derby.

Several Vernon youths were raised to the highest rank in scouting, that of Eagle Scout, during the year. They were: John Hayes, Stephen Blaw, Steven Fisher and George Gray.

James Young, town youth counselor, was presented with the Liberty Bell Award by the Tolland County Bar Association; Mrs. Alice Edwards, chosen as "Senior Citizen of the Year"; Mrs. Louise Farrands celebrated her 100th birthday; Joseph Powers, long-time member of the Board of Education, did not seek reelection and were honored by the board at a dinner party.

The board also honored three teachers who retired at the end of the last school year. They were Louise Flood, Bernice Nagy, and Norman Young.

Controversy
One of the dissent notes to mark the town's good year was the recent announcement of Rockville theater owners of a plan to bring "live sex" shows to the three theaters.

Challenging the plan, the Town Council, passed an ordinance which is designed to prohibit any shows of this type. The theater owner is planning the show for Jan. 2. The ordinance becomes effective Jan. 1.

The November election in Vernon, as well as most of the other towns and states, turned out on a sour note for the Republicans with Democrats winning most of the posts.

While there were no major increases in any category, the Grand List reflected an over-all increase of $6,673,165 bringing it to $182.1 million.

During the month of January it was determined that the December ice storm cost the town $58,504. This money was reimbursed by the state.

During the year Rockville General Hospital made some major changes with the institution of a Development Program, for the first time the hospital has had to ask for public funds; hired a consulting firm to do a community needs study and analysis of internal affairs; honored 50 volunteers; and moved the maternity unit into its new modern wing of the recent addition to the hospital.

Last spring a group of local people formed Vernon Rabbit Run, Inc., and the organization sponsored the town's first annual five-mile road race.

The town purchased the privately-owned Vernon Water Company for $175,000 and is now in the process of setting rates to go to a public hearing next month.

An announcement that the Hockanum Valley Day Care Center celebrated its second birthday in June; a "Dial-a-Ride" program was instituted for senior citizens; Dr. Francis Burke, medical examiner for Tolland County, retired from that position; and Cora Webb, Tolland County Home Economist, announced she will retire as of Jan. 1, after 30 years of service.

Mayor McCoy is looking ahead to completion of the Memorial Building Project, improvements to Fox Hill Tower, completion of the People's Bank Building as a senior citizen center, and the start and completion of work at Camp Newboice at Bolton Lake.

All-in-all it was a good year for the people of Vernon and may be the coming year be even better as the residents look toward an improved economy and a happy, healthy 1975.

'Merry Christmas To All, and To All A Goodnight'

Santa was forced to stay airborne for a good part of Tuesday night when he reached Manchester, because the snowfall didn't come until he had started his rounds here. Dancer and Prancer, and Comet and Vixen respond here to his command to dash away, dash away, all, and they head for the housestop next door, directed by the wire runner. They had just stopped at the William Haberman home at 456 Spring St. Take a look at the Page One photo and you get an idea how pooped was Santa when his night's work was over.

There is a Hungry World in Our Backyard

By Elena Vira
East Catholic High School

(Ed. Note: East Catholic High School students and faculty recently observed a Day of Awareness to show their concern for world hunger. This is a student report of the event, and a commentary on the subject.)

Bangladesh is a young country. In winning its independence, it had also secured aid from other countries. Aid which has been squandered in corruption and unable to develop for Bangladesh a governmental structure or a coherent agricultural policy. The average income there is $67 a year.

Floods ravaged the already damaged land; inflation made the price of rice jump 300 percent in just one year. Thousands of farmers sold their land, their cattle, to obtain food. Now they sit on city streets, dirty, hungry. The streets of Dhacca are filled with beggars, women crying with their babies dying in their arms, children holding brothers, sisters who look literally like skin-wrapped bones.

Seven babies are born each minute there, and the situation concerning food becomes grimmer with every new mouth to feed. In Bangladesh alone, there are 80 million mouths.

Conditions Critical

In the world, in Africa, Asia and Latin America, exist nearly one half of a billion starving people. Climate changes, the increase in oil prices, drought, lack of technology and unstable governments in the so-called third world have all led to the conditions that now exist there, and the conditions are critical. It is an acute worldwide crisis.

"World hunger can be surmounted" - if more people can become aware of the problems that exist. Publicity is needed via the media and direct information to the most affluent, by people such as Sister Margaret Mary Geary, Jay April, John Wilkins, Dave Kelley and Gerald Weiner, all teachers at East Catholic High School, who planned out a program on world hunger to enlighten the students there.

The program consisted of a slide show, a lecture and a dramatization. The slide show and the lecture by the Rev. Reginald Heifrich were themselves dramatizations. To watch pictures float across the screen of children with bloated bellies, literally being consumed by their own bodies for lack of nourishment, next to scenes of cattle raisers shooting and discarding calves or scenes of obese Americans is a most ironic type of visualization.

In it lies a paradox of man; one man is fat and dieting while his fellow member of the human race is dying for need of what the fat man is willfully throwing away.

In New York City, 20 percent of the food is wasted, or enough food to feed the country of Chad.

One point the organizers of the East Catholic program were trying to put across was that people should donate the money people spend on food, which would be thrown out, on charity instead.

April puts the situation into these terms:

"This earth is a spaceship. If you could detach yourself and look at it from the moon, you could see how limited the resources are. Maybe if we can visualize how compressed together on this earth we really are, maybe we could work better on an international level."

Five-Point Plan

At the World Food Conference in Rome, 1,200 delegates from over 130 countries gathered to work out solutions for the crisis. Dr. Henry Kissinger put out a five-point plan based on distribution by need and an immediate supply of grain with internationally guarded reserves. Also, he suggested food exporting nations increase production, aid programs to help underdeveloped countries increase the capacity of production, improvement on international food distribution and finance, and enhancement of nutritional value in food to be exported.

As Kissinger said, "The contemporary agenda of energy, food and inflation exceeds the capacity of any single government, or even of a few governments together, to resolve."

The U.S. was willing to triple its research grants up to $100 million per year by 1980, but the burden of the world food crisis is just too great a burden for only one nation to bear.

But how seriously can a person take the situation to be when the delegates seemed little inclined to sacrifice anything, eating in expensive restaurants to discuss hunger?

The conference did little.

Suggestion

A teacher at East Catholic made the suggestion that the United States could help out the situation by cutting the defense budget. To compensate for lost jobs, a policy of conversion could change a war-based industry into a peacetime one. As it stands now, places such as North American Rockwell and Lockheed are subsidized by the government in order to stay in their feet. Wouldn't it be more feasible to just change a war-based industry into a peacetime one, one that would be able to help people get work as well as make it possible to aid the needy?

Right now we are in an economic tight squeeze. A bit of sense is needed in defense matters in the amount of defense really needed. Eisenhower warned that the military might get out of hand if not checked. It is true that in military affairs only a handful of contractors have exclusive rights to their management. Meanwhile, a child in Bangladesh dies.

UPI White House Reporter

WASHINGTON (UPI) - "Now take care of that inflation, ya hear?" Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., called out to a news conference. "If you give Nixon for president, he could not separate himself from LBJ's war policies."

Nixon, too, knew what it was to serve as vice president. He spent eight years in that post under Dwight D. Eisenhower. During the 1960 presidential race Eisenhower asked what contributions Nixon had made, devastated Nixon by telling a news conference: "If you give Rockefeller part of the inner circle in domestic planning. There is no question the President can use some new voices. Even though a major shakeup of Ford's cabinet is expected in January, the President now gets much advice from Nixon holdovers - most of whom believe in minimum government interference in the dynamics of supply and demand."

Rockefeller brings into the highest level of government a rich background as a former undersecretary of Health, Education and Welfare who helped set up that cabinet-level department in the Eisenhower era.

As a man who served three times as governor of New York, the new vice president has a keen awareness of state and local problems.

Rockefeller also heads the Commission on Critical Choices for America, which has been studying national goals for the end of the century and afterwards.

Ford and Rockefeller come from entirely different backgrounds and their life-long interests have been different. But in recent years Rockefeller has moved closer to the moderate conservative point of view Ford always has held. Because of his national prominence and his years in the political limelight, Rockefeller is not expected to be the ordinary run-of-the-mill vice president. He is a household name. No one has asked, "Nelson who?"

It is expected that Ford will permit Rockefeller to inject new ideas sorely needed to give the administration a lift until 1976.

Rocky: Softly With a Big Stick?

He will add a new dynamic to the situation," said one political observer.

But there is no doubt that Rockefeller will tread softly - at least at first - and move cautiously in a realm where he will be watched for a power play.

Already there is some apprehension among President Ford's top aides that the Rockefeller organization may overshadow their White House operation.

Rockefeller seems aware of that.

"I want to be as quiet and as helpful (as possible) and only do that which is appropriate and useful to the President and to the people of the country," he told reporters.

The Mad And the Bad

By AL ROSSITER JR.
WASHINGTON (UPI) - A noted psychiatrist-lawyer believes the time has come to abandon the insanity defense in the courtroom.

Dr. Richard C. Allen says the division which the law has tried to maintain between the mad and the bad is absurd. In his loss, he says, would be missed only by professional tentacles and "psychiatrist-baiting cross examiners."

"Perhaps the most telling objection to continuation of the quest for separation of the 'sane' from the 'insane' is that humanity cannot be divided into such discrete categories," Allen said in the current issue of the magazine Mental Health.

He said the sickest persons in the most remote back ward of a primitive state hospital may have some capacity to respond to rules while the "wellst" as may have areas of ego in which our range of behavioral choices is narrowed by our hereditary equipment and our experiences.

"In any event, how can a lay jury be expected to make a diagnosis and prescription of treatment on the basis of a few days or weeks of trial, especially where the facts are filtered through the mechanisms of adversary inquiry and the principal focus is moral blameworthiness?"

Allen, chairman of forensic sciences at George Washington University, said it has been suggested that legislatures amend the law so the question of insanity be determined by an expert tribunal after conviction.

Allen said trained mental health personnel are scarce and it seems more sensible to devote their services to assistance in treatment than assigning them to make judgments of responsibility.

Summing up some of the other arguments for abolition of the insanity defense, Allen said all of the prevailing insanity tests are vague, they fail to recognize the influences of social factors in restricting behavioral choices, and none offers much of a guide as to whether an offender should be placed in an institution.

Allen said it is argued that abolishing the insanity defense would weaken the deterrent impact of criminal law. But he said the reverse is true.

By MICHAEL J. CONLON... people who make Christmas lights hope Americans will begin lighting up again this holiday season.

Last year Americans bought only about one-fourth as many Christmas lights as usual, in a voluntary cutback industry officials frankly concede was "disastrous" in terms of sales.

This year both the light bulb makers and the government seem agreed on several ways that permit both decoration and conservation.

Use night bulbs indoors and out. General Electric claims a string of 250 night bulbs uses less electricity than one 100-watt light bulb.

Twinkle lights use less energy than those that burn constantly. Both the bulb makers and the Federal Energy Administration say the switching mechanism in the bulb itself does not use energy, and the bulbs use less altogether because they are "on" only half the time. Although it appears the total reduction in energy use may be only fractional, it is there.

The FEA further suggests consumers try to compensate for added holiday lighting by turning off regular lights in rooms where decorative lighting is in use.

The Environmental Defense Fund has released a report aimed at Christmas shoppers who also are energy-conscious. Prepared by Lee Schipper of the University of California at Berkeley and Dr. Bruce Hanson of the University of Illinois, the study makes these suggestions:

Select gifts that keep people home, so they don't have to use their car. Suggestions include craft items, plastic hobby kits and musical instruments.

Choose items that save energy in themselves, such as wool clothes, light books or bicycle transit systems, candles or bicycles.

Avoid energy-using gifts such as appliances or pick sets that do the most efficient job. A frost-free freezer, for instance, uses up to 50 per cent more energy, while side-by-side refrigerator-freezer combinations use more energy than the ones with the freezer compartment inside the refrigerator. Solid state TV sets use about half the power of tube sets.

There are an estimated 22 million fireplaces in the United States, many of which get more of a workout during Christmas time. According to the Consumer Product Safety Commission, 6,000 adults and children were injured seriously enough to require emergency room treatment because of fireplaces.

Most of the injuries - 66 per cent - involved children under the age of five. And most injuries did not involve burns, but cuts, caused when children fell into a fireplace.

The commission offers the usual and obvious safety tips for people using fireplaces but adds one warning that may not be so apparent. That involves ready-made, built-in metal fireplaces.

There were a number of home fires associated with that type of fireplace last year, the commission said. In more than half the cases the owners built big blazes, causing them to overheat and set nearby materials on fire. A small fire, it suggests, is better for that type of fireplace.

A reader from Santa Barbara, Calif., passes on this complaint: "When you buy a frozen turkey dinner and after baking it for one hour discover that instead of two pounds of turkey meat as advertised on the outside of the box, it contains only a few ounces of meat and all the rest is gravy - well, that too is stealing, pure and simple."

"Another source of milking the buyer is in the 'take home' food item, particularly the fried chicken dispensary. It's not until you get home and open the box to discover that the contents in no way resemble what you see on television as to size, quantity or quality."

Pass on your consumer questions to Buyer's Billboard, UPI, 215 National Press Building, Washington, D.C. 20045.

POLICE REPORT

MANCHESTER Susanne M. Klatt, 18, of 558 Adams St., was taken into custody Christmas Eve on charges of disorderly conduct, breach of peace, and interfering with an officer, Manchester Police report. Police said the charges stem from a disturbance at Miss Klatt's home. The arresting officers reported they had trouble subduing Miss Klatt when they tried to make the arrest. Miss Klatt was held for about three hours before being released on a $150 surety bond. When Miss Klatt returned home after her release, she reported the theft of $50 from her home, police said. Five Hurt in Christmas Day Accident

Five persons hurt in a two-car crash at 3 p.m. Christmas Day were treated and released from Manchester Memorial Hospital. The five were George Smith, 63, of East Hartford; Charles O. Lambert, 44, of Hemlock Dr., Vernon; Denis B. Lambert, 15, of the same Vernon address; and Ruth Didiyman, 70, and Bessie Lambert, 83, both of East Hartford. All except Denis Lambert were taken to MHH by ambulance. Denis Lambert was taken to the hospital in a police cruiser. Manchester Police said drivers of the cars involved in the head-on crash were Charles Lambert and Smith. Police said Smith's vehicle, headed west near the East Hartford boundary, went out of control in heavy slush, attempting to regain control, Smith turned his car left and skidded into the opposite lane, police said. The Smith car and the Lambert vehicle (headed east) then collided head-on, police said. Both cars were towed. Other Christmas Day accidents, attributed to hazardous road conditions, included missing a car, reported by police, on Hartford Rd. No injuries were reported in the other accidents. Anna Maria Williams, 33, of East Hartford was charged Tuesday morning with reckless driving when her car went off W. Center St. and stopped in a stream bed. Minor injuries were reported after the early morning accident. Court date is Jan. 13. Police said Beebe's car struck the rear of a stopped car driven by Paul Paquette of Wetherfield. Beebe allegedly left the accident scene when Paquette went to call police. Court date for Beebe is Jan. 13. Rescue Tool Sought For Use by Firemen

A hydraulic-type rescue tool for removal of automobile accident victims will be acquired by the Manchester, Town Fire Department, if the Board of Directors approves a $5,000 appropriation for its cost. A public hearing on the proposed appropriation will be held Jan. 7 at 8 p.m. in the Municipal Building Hearing Room. It would be financed from unappropriated 1973-74 Fire Fund surplus. The tool has the capability of actually pulling a car apart. It eliminates the use of saws or abrasives, thus eliminating all the danger of sparks. Other proposed appropriations to be aired Jan. 7 are: $10,586 to the school board's Work Incentive Program, to be financed by a grant from the State Labor Department; $1,200 to the school board's Vocational Education-Distributive Education Program, to be financed by a state grant; $10,000 to the Police Department's Special Services Account, to be financed by equivalent payments from those receiving the special services; $4,056 for engineering services in the TOPICS Project (Traffic Operations Program to Increase Capacity and Safety), to be financed by a state reimbursement of $3,486 and a town allocation of $570 (from the contingency fund); $5,000 for Child Health and Development Services (a new program), to be financed by a state grant.

Frates Says Dean Urged Others to Lie

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The lawyer for John D. Ehrlichman today described John W. Dean III, the prosecution star witness in the Watergate cover-up trial, as an articulate but pitiful young man who urged others to lie about the scandal. "That's the man the government is putting their whole case against. John Ehrlichman on the witness stand said he was trapped. He was trapped trying to help the President of the United States. That's what makes this case so sad." Frates continued his final arguments on the 60th day of the trial. It was expected that all the arguments would be completed by Friday, thus allowing the jury to begin deliberations. Speaking in a loud, firm voice and frequently striding in front of the lectern, Frates charged that Dean had urged former White House aide Egli Krogh, Herbert L. Porter and John Stuart Magruder to lie about Watergate. During his wide-ranging arguments, Frates praised Ehrlichman's World War II record as a lead navigator on 26 bombing missions, said that although chief trial prosecutor James F. Neal had a "golden tongue" in the jury's eyes, his investigation all exonerated Ehrlichman from obstruction of justice. "That's the most important evidence in this case involving John Ehrlichman," Frates said. Frates, speaking directly to the jury, urged them not to let their feelings about the Nixon administration interfere with their deliberations.

Supernatural growth The scientific name of mistletoe, "Phoradendron flavescens" is from the Greek and the first phrase literally means "tree thief." Growing on the tree, mistletoe makes its own sugar and starch from its host for water and certain minerals. Mistletoe seeds are carried from tree to tree by birds. In ancient times, the Druids saw something supernatural in a plant growing and flourishing without roots in the earth.

Rutgers researchers selected their samples from that batch, and one of the varieties, called the "Jersey Knight," has gained a reputation among gardeners as a dense, glossy, ornamental house tree. There is only one problem - the Jersey Knight is a male, and therefore has no red berries. It has taken 14 years for Orton and his colleagues to successfully make the Jersey Knight with enough female holly trees to produce a dense, glossy-leaf tree which does have berries. The new bush lacks a formal name. The largest producer of American holly is Daniel D. Fenton, who grows the wild variety in an orchard in Millville, N.J. He says he will have no problem selling the variety in a plant growing and flourishing without roots in the earth. He says he would have no problem selling the variety in a plant growing and flourishing without roots in the earth.

Orton's strain, with its bright red berries, grows in a densely capped conical shape. He says, "It has the deepest, greenest gloss leaves that I have ever seen." Although it took Orton 14 years to breed the strain, its history goes back to the 1947, when a small number of holly enthusiasts in New Jersey, Delaware and Maryland were combing the woods looking for the glossiest leaves. Law Does Not Force Lobbyists to Tell Expenses

In Driver's Seat

Rep. Al Ullman (D-Ore.) is serving as acting chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, a post long held by Rep. Wilbur Mills (D-Ark.), until relinquished earlier this month. Ullman is expected to be elected chairman of the committee when the new Congress convenes next month.

Give Blood On Monday

An appeal is being made by Red Cross blood program officials to the public for support of the Bloodmobile when it visits the Knights of Columbus home, 138 Main St., Monday from 12:45 to 5:30 p.m.

During the holidays a pint of blood is used every five minutes in Connecticut hospitals. It is imperative that this blood be available for patients when they need it. Their lives could be at stake.

Donors are urged to continue the holiday spirit of giving by giving the gift of life. Because of fewer scheduled drawings due to the holidays, the need to meet the quota at each Bloodmobile is essential.

Also, due to the holidays, appointments for the Bloodmobile have been less than expected. In order that Manchester can do its part in supporting the blood program, many more donors will be needed.

Donors who have made appointments are reminded to keep them. Walk-in donors will be welcome throughout the day. Give life, give hope, give blood.

Non-Smokers Meet Monday

An organization meeting of ASH (Action on Smoking and Health) will be held Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the Federation Room at Center Congregational Church, 11 Center St.

Dr. Doris Nason of 29 Agnes Dr. is coordinating the meeting which is geared to secure the now-denied right of non-smokers to breathe air which is not polluted by the health-damaging ingredients of tobacco smoke.

Those unable to attend this organizational meeting may write to Dr. Nason for further information and additional ways to contribute to ASH.

Workers are needed to sell ASH buttons and bumper stickers to benefit the state chapter; procure from the Connecticut Lung Association signs with the Connecticut Anti-Smoking Statute imprinted and work to get them posted wherever public meetings are held; work with other organizations or individuals to get non-smoking sections in restaurants; work with others to get schools, colleges, stores, banks, etc. to prohibit smoking in all areas where non-smokers must be; use the ASH bumper stickers and buttons and work to get others to buy and use them; and contribute money so that the members who form the active organization can carry out activities such as those listed.

By MARK MILLER
HARTFORD (UPI) — There is no way Connecticut citizens can tell how much money labor unions, banks, businesses, utilities and other interests spend each year lobbying to influence state government.

What limited information there is available deals only with lobbyists at the legislature, and not with those less visible, often the same persons who seek to influence state commissions and regulatory agencies.

Secretary of the State Gloria Schaffer says she plans to introduce a bill requiring lobbyists to report who hires them, for how much money, how much they spend lobbying and how the money is spent.

Two lobbying reform bills were submitted unsuccessfully in the 1974 session of the legislature. One died in committee. The other, which some advocates of reform opposed as sloppily drafted, was defeated in the Senate.

The first, proposed in large part by the Connecticut Citizen Action Group, died in the Judiciary Committee.

The second bill, reported out favorably by the Governmental Administration and Policy Committee, was attacked as full of loopholes, unwieldy, ambiguous, and lacking ethical provisions.

Current law governing lobbying activity requires only legislative lobbyists to register at the beginning of the session and list their employers, and report at the end of the session "compensation paid by employer."

When the final list was compiled this year, however, 43 lobbyists had simply filled in the word "salary" without listing any amount. Twelve others wrote the word "retainer," equally as uninformative. And nearly half of the 88 lobbyists who wrote "none" in the compensations category represented commercial interests and were obviously not at the legislature on their own time.

Deputy Secretary of the State Harry Hammer says the words of the law permits lobbyists to skirt its intent. Lawyers and other promoters working as lobbyists claim they cannot accurately say how much money their time spent lobbying legislators is worth out of the annual fee they charge their clients.

"There is nothing to require lawyers to itemize what they've been paid," said Hammer, a lawyer himself.

Massachusetts citizens may find out how much outside interests spend at their capitol. In the last six months alone, hundreds of thousands of dollars was spent trying to influence government in the Bay State.

The Massachusetts State Labor Council AFL-CIO reported the highest expenditure for six months, $28,822.

Telephone, electric power, banking and nursing home interests were among the other high spenders.

Some of the hundreds of thousands of dollars spent during the six months involved campaign contributions and money spent on dinners and outings for legislators. Such expenses need not be reported under current Connecticut law.

In Connecticut, the Democratic Party's 1974 platform is vague in its lobbying declaration, a single sentence under the category "Honest Public Officials and Honest Government."

"The Democratic Party supports complete disclosure of all lobbying before all branches of government on a year-round basis," it reads.

The platform plank does not say, however, that compensation should be spelled out or that other expenses should be listed.
