Congress Faces Tough Issues Of Lack of Money and Work

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The 94th Congress convenes Tuesday with chances of a second honeymoon with the Ford administration dimmed by serious threats to any marriage: lack of work and money.

The new Congress faces the worst economic picture since World War II, with unemployment soaring, sales and profits of some major industries shrinking, and inflation continuing. The energy shortage also looms over the economic problems.

economic and energy programs in his State of the Union address. Both Ford and the Democrats are expected to recommend tax cuts, but the sizes are likely to differ.

The new House breaks down to 291 Democrats and 144 Republicans. The new liberal members may mark a shift to the left in the House, displacing the Senate's role as a pioneer of new legislation.

In the Senate, Democrats would hold a commanding 63-37 edge if disputed races in New Hampshire and Oklahoma are ruled in their favor. If they lose both, the margin would be 61-39.

Earthquake Reported By United Press International

A sharp earthquake shook Southern California this morning, the second in as many days. There were no immediate reports of damage or injuries.

Police departments in southern Los Angeles County and northeastern Orange County reported calls from residents throughout the area. The Los Angeles County Sheriff's station at Lakewood described it as "two distinct movements with about 60 seconds of rumbling in between."

The seismological laboratory at Cal Tech said the tremor struck at 3:22 a.m. PST (6:22 EST) with a magnitude of 3.8 on the Richter Scale, a moderate force. The epicenter was calculated to be in northeastern Long Beach, a spokesman said.

Airlift Started

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Government sources said today U.S. planes have begun an airlift to Phnom Penh to resupply the isolated Cambodian capital with military equipment.

Military sources said the Cambodian high command asked for the emergency airlift after pro-Communist rebel forces cut the Mekong River lifeline at the beginning of their current offensive New Year's Eve.

The United States agreed to meet the Phnom Penh request last Saturday, the sources said, and since then U.S. Air Force C-130s, piloted by American civilians, have made eight or nine flights to Phnom Penh daily carrying arms and ammunition.

Gold Price Up

BRUSSELS (UPI) — The price of gold rose today to open at its highest level since Jan. 2. The U.S. dollar declined in Paris and Brussels but advanced marginally on most other exchanges.

Bullion gained $5 over the weekend in Zurich to open at $182 an ounce. In London, dealers marked the metal up $3.50 — from Friday's $177.50 close to $181 at today's opening.

At the morning price fixing, London dealers set the price at $180 an ounce.

This was still well below the $200 an ounce level reached briefly in December before an expected New Year's gold rush with the lifting of a 41-year U.S. ban on private ownership.

Gov. Grasso's Home Burglarized

WINDSOR LOCKS (UPI) — Gov. Ella T. Grasso's house was burglarized over the weekend while she and her husband were in Washington for a national television interview, it was learned today.

Mrs. Grasso, who took office Wednesday as the first woman elected governor on her own merits, left her suburban home Saturday and returned Sunday following a "Meet the Press" interview on NBC.

Details were sketchy and it was not immediately known what was taken. Mrs. Grasso and her husband Thomas plan to move soon to the executive mansion in Hartford.

To Push Tax Cut

The gloom has prompted Democrats, strengthened by 75 predominantly liberal freshmen, to reverse a tradition of slow legislative starts. They plan to ram through emergency relief for the staggering economy in the form of an immediate tax cut.

Chances for a honeymoon such as President Ford proposed shortly after he took office last August will become clearer Wednesday when Ford plans to outline his

Airliners Attacked At Orly Airport

PARIS (UPI) — Two men fired three bazooka shells toward an El Al Israel airliner and a Yugoslav airliner at Orly field today. They missed the Israeli plane but hit the Yugoslav airliner which was filled with passengers.

Police said one shell tore a large hole out of the fuselage of the Yugoslav Air Transport Boeing 707 jet under the left wing, injuring the plane steward and a passenger.

The Israeli Boeing 707 with 140 passengers aboard took off safely as Flight 221 bound for Montreal and New York. An El Al spokesman said there was no damage to the plane.

Sources close to police said Criminal Brigade experts were working on the theory the attackers were politically motivated. But police said they were not sure whether the assailants wanted to hit the Israeli or the Yugoslav plane.

Palestinian guerrilla groups in Beirut refused to comment on the attack.

"We have nothing to say about the incident," a guerrilla source said. "Why should the Palestinian resistance movement be involved in every such incident?"

The attackers opened fire at the planes at 12:30 p.m. (7:30 a.m. EST) from an elevated car ramp which connects two parts of the field, Orly West and Orly North. They fled after what police said was the most daring guerrilla attack yet on a plane in France.

"It's a miracle there hasn't been a large number of killed and wounded," a French security forces officer said.

Block Grant Priority List Public Hearing Tonight

A tentative priority list for spending $1.88 billion worth of federal grants in Manchester over five years is the subject of a public hearing scheduled tonight at Nathan Hale School.

The 29-member Community Development Advisory Committee (CDAC), which developed the priority list after a series of citizen input meetings and proposals by town officials, will start the hearing at 7:30.

Heading the priority list is proposed creation of a revolving, low-interest loan fund to help low and moderate income homeowners rehabilitate their homes. Second priority is stronger housing code enforcement.

Other priority items, in order, are establishment of a neighborhood multi-service center including facilities for the handicapped, land purchase for elderly and handicapped housing, construction of a day care facility pending a feasibility study.

Icy Chill Lingers In Nation's Midwest

By United Press International

An icy chill lingered over the nation's snow-clogged midsection today as a raging winter storm which left more than a score of persons dead in a two-day Midwest rampage moved on to torment the Southland.

Tornadoes raked Georgia and Florida, adding to the death toll. At least 29 persons died in the weekend one-two punch of blizzards and tornadoes.

One twister roared through Panama City, Fla., ripping through a row of house trailers and homes and leaving a 1-week-old girl dead and three other persons injured. The funnel cloud damaged several house trailers and homes, downed power lines and overturned a two-ton truck.

Other tornadoes skipped across nine southwestern Georgia counties, injuring six persons and causing considerable damage.

The snowstorm which battered the Midwest during the weekend, piling up 10-foot snowdrifts swept across the South and the Ohio Valley Sunday and early today, dumping a five-inch blanket of snow from Texas to Mississippi and piling up eight to nine inches of snow in Kentucky and Tennessee.

Snow swirled over the Appalachians early today and heavy snow warnings were posted for a 200-mile-wide area from Tennessee to southern Vermont. Travelers' warnings were posted from southern Indiana through most of Tennessee and for portions of Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana.

Buckland Project Planning Continues Despite Obstacles

Planning for a massive, mixed-use development at Buckland is proceeding despite pending litigation over zoning for the site, and the worsening national economy hasn't forced the developer to change his mind.

Arthur M. Fischer of New York City, head of the MAP Associates investment partnership, says, however, that the economy has changed the timing for the 560-acre, $100 million project.

"I wouldn't want to start building tomorrow with the economy being what it is," Fischer said, pointing out that construction isn't starting because of several other reasons.

Besides the economy, the immediate roadblock is a legal challenge of zoning for the tract. A Court of Common Pleas appeal, filed by a neighboring homeowners group last March, is still pending.

Another reason for delays is the uncertainty of reconstruction and widening of Interstate 86 (the Wilbur Cross Highway), which Fischer has said is vital to success of his development.

Fischer said, though, that the various projects holding up Buckland development won't change the plans. "We have a long-term contract for development which provides a great deal of flexibility," he said.

"It's still a very good piece of real estate," Fischer said, "and it (the mixed-use development) is something I'd really like to do."

Fischer's plans for the Buckland tract, which have already received preliminary approval from Manchester's Planning and Zoning Commission, include a huge regional shopping mall, 1,162 units of housing, offices and light industry, and open space-recreation areas.

The homeowners' legal challenge of the zoning seeks to reverse a March 1974 Planning and Zoning Commission decision which rezoned the 256 acres of tract which are in Manchester. Breakdown of zoning is 80 acres of Business 3 Zone, 38 acres of Industrial Zone, and 138 acres of Comprehensive Urban Development Zone.

The other half of the tract proposed for development is in South Windsor. Fischer hasn't yet filed for rezoning in that town, awaiting the outcome of the court case for the Manchester portion.

For only the 10th time since World War II, builders started work on new housing units at an annual rate of less than 1 million a year in November. Housing starts fell to an annual rate of 990,000, lowest in eight years.

Detroit's auto makers built 7.3 million cars in 1974 — 24 per cent fewer than the record year of 1973. In December, output was 31 per cent below December, 1973. The industry's unemployment rate, with 300,000 layoffs, rose to over 20 per cent.

Reflecting unease, consumers bought less on credit. Outstanding borrowing by consumers fell in November by a seasonally adjusted $402 million, the first downturn since November, 1970.

Wiping out October's surplus, the United States showed a trade deficit of $113 million in November. Despite exports running at an annual rate of $97.4 billion — 38 per cent above the 1973 total — the 1974 deficit has reached $2.4 billion.

Economic Conditions Summarized

WASHINGTON (UPI) — As the United States settled into the new year, so did the recession — apparently for an extended stay.

Unemployment rose to a 13-year high. Businessmen trimmed planned expansions. Real pay — earnings measured in buying power — declined.

There was a glimmer of price improvement. As recessions do, this recession was beginning to produce price cuts. Except for food, wholesale prices for unfinished goods were stabilizing.

The gyrations of the economy, told in day-to-day government reports, can show an overall pattern if they are pulled together. The current box score:

Unemployment: The unemployment rate reached 7.1 per cent of a 92-million member civilian work force in December, the highest since May, 1961. The total number of unemployed rose by 560,000 in December, bringing the total of people unable to find work to 6.5 million.

Employment: In a growing population, both unemployment and total employment had been rising. But the pattern broke in October, and in December total employment fell by 550,000. The number of employed civilians was 1.4 million below September's high mark of 86.5 million.

Pay: Those employed were working less and earning less. Average weekly pay for factory workers fell to $181.43 in November from $182.86. Americans' personal income fell by $2.2 billion or two-tenths of 1 per cent in November, the first decline in 10 months.

Prices: December figures aren't in yet, but November's increase in prices was at a lower rate than earlier in the year. Wholesale prices in November rose at an annual rate of 14.4 per cent, less than half of the 30 per cent annual rate for October.

Retail prices: The Consumer Price Index in November, lagging behind the wholesale trend, notched up at an annual rate of 10.8 per cent, below the 12.4 per cent rate recorded through October.

Output: The recession was reflected in the fourth consecutive decline in industrial production in November. The fall in output of 2.3 per cent was one of the sharpest declines in 20 years. It put production 4.3 per cent below the level of a year earlier and at its lowest point since December 1972.

Housing: For only the 10th time since World War II, builders started work on new housing units at an annual rate of less than 1 million a year in November. Housing starts fell to an annual rate of 990,000, lowest in eight years.

Autos: Detroit's auto makers built 7.3 million cars in 1974 — 24 per cent fewer than the record year of 1973. In December, output was 31 per cent below December, 1973. The industry's unemployment rate, with 300,000 layoffs, rose to over 20 per cent.

Consumer credit: Reflecting unease, consumers bought less on credit. Outstanding borrowing by consumers fell in November by a seasonally adjusted $402 million, the first downturn since November, 1970.

Trade: Wiping out October's surplus, the United States showed a trade deficit of $113 million in November. Despite exports running at an annual rate of $97.4 billion — 38 per cent above the 1973 total — the 1974 deficit has reached $2.4 billion.

OPINION

No Real Surprise

Reaction to Secretary of State Kissinger's statement in a Business Week interview that the use of military force in the event of a serious emergency in oil supplies could not be ruled out, should not be a surprise in the United States and Europe, as well as Middle Eastern countries.

Even though the secretary was asked a hypothetical question and he answered with a hypothetical answer. If this statement has done anything it may have created an awareness in the capitals of the oil producing nations of the gravity of damage which they have done to the industrialized countries, first through their oil embargo and secondly in artificial quadrupling of prices.

However, as long ago as last September, President Ford and the secretary warned that repressive oil policies could lead to a breakdown of world order and safety and in disaster for all.

Our course has been moderate and there has been no retaliation against the oil producers who have used their national asset first as a political weapon and then as a means of draining off the wealth of the industrialized nations.

Their embargo of oil as a means of lessening Western support of Israel, particularly that of the United States, has resulted in some softening of positions, perhaps, but not the abandonment which they had hoped for.

We have urged a meeting of oil consuming nations early this year to formulate united policies which might be of some help in alleviating the hardships of the current artificially high prices.

This, it is planned, would be followed by another meeting of both oil consumers and producers with the hope that a policy may live.

We have been hesitant to take any precipitous step which might undo the efforts of Secretary Kissinger towards peace in the Middle East. And we have further been careful to do nothing which would destroy the relationship between this country and Egypt and Saudi Arabia, among others.

There is irony in the way the oil countries, some on this continent, have turned and bitten the hand that helped to find and develop their resources.

American capital and American expertise had a very large part in the growth of the oil industries in the Arab countries, Venezuela and others. And, it must be remembered that oil in the ground is of no value until it is found and wells are drilled and provisions made for its entry into the commercial stream.

The oil bearing countries have become inordinately wealthy in a few short years. The final reward of the developers has too often been expropriation, to use a euphemism.

Secretary Kissinger made it plain that he was talking only of a crisis situation, of the imminent collapse of the Western financial and political institutions.

If his words have the effect of bringing the OPEC countries to a realization of the extreme gravity of the world financial imbalance which has resulted from their artificial pricing policies, the secretaries word's will be of value.

It is time that it is realistically acknowledged that the Western world cannot apathetically accept his own destruction as the result of OPEC dictation.

But, this does not mean any abandonment of our stated goals of negotiation and conference as a road towards solution of the oil problem. Sanity should lead both OPEC countries and the industrialized world to peaceful conclusions.

MAX LERNER

The Kissinger Storm

NEW YORK — Is Secretary of State Henry Kissinger guilty? Yes, he is guilty of one of the worst sins conceivable in a diplomat — the sin of saying outright what is on his mind, of uttering in public the thoughts that every foreign minister in the West has for months been thrashing out in private.

He is also guilty of not living up to his billing. He is presumably the greatest case history of Machiavellianism of our time; yet here he is, acting out the role of an honest, blundering simpleton of a secretary of state, a William Jennings Bryan perhaps, or a Parson Weems version of the George Washington story, "I can't tell a lie, Father. Yes, we may well have to chop down that oil cartel tree."

Kissinger's remark in an interview — that, while the United States doesn't propose intervention in the oil fields, it doesn't rule out the possibility of a collective military takeover — has brought a storm of outraged anguish at his "immorality" and "Machiavellianism." It may well be the start of the great debate of 1975.

For my sins, not as a decision-maker or a power-wielder but as a sidelines commentator, I am on record as saying that such intervention might be more costly than it is worth, but that it cannot be ruled out. But thanks to a protective Providence, I am not Henry Kissinger.

If a student were to call Kissinger a Machiavellian for talking in this way, I would fall him for never having read "The Prince." What is Machiavellian is not the advice to rulers to use force in extreme situations, but the advice to seem one thing while intending another, to seem all better and innocence while planning an attack.

It was probably neither prudent nor wise for Kissinger to say so openly what he said. But distinguish between the question of the utterance itself — too little diplomatic facade, too great candor — and the question of policy involved in the use of power.

It is a means-end problem, on which considerable nonsense has been uttered and written over the years. The way we usually put the question is whether the ends justify the means but it is a futile way of putting it. Everything depends on what the ends are and what the means are, and the relation between the two.

Shabby ends don't justify shabby and inhuman means, all the way from spying on one's fellow citizens to murder, terrorism and genocide. In fact, no ends justify such means. But in extreme situations the leaders of nation states, with the Arab states and Israel today, talk of war and even plan war, and everyone seems to regard it as their natural language in the circumstances.

The Arab oil cartel has used something close to economic strangulation, which is not a very human means, yet many who now attack Kissinger were silent on that

There has to be something better than a double standard operating in international affairs.

My own view, put in the simplest terms, is that a healthy organism has the right to defend itself in order to survive, but that the means it employs should be as little destructive and self-destructive as humanly possible. It is a fragile world we live in, trembling on the edge of self-destruction at any moment. The nation state is still with us, but it is a poor instrument for policy in such a world. The economic cartel, with its methods of charging what the traffic will bear, at the risk of strangulation, is even worse as a substitute.

Unless the Arab cartel and the West can reach an agreement on oil and oil prices which will give each of them a sense of security, the dynamic will blow up, one way or another. That is the reality as an observer must see it. Everything else is illusion. And given this reality, there should be as little naive liberal innocence as possible, as little double-standard thinking as possible, and — this goes for Kissinger, too — as little loose talk as possible.

In the end we will need a world resources agency well outside the United Nations to preside over the tangled question of how the world's resources get sold and distributed. But until then we need a combination of coolness and realism, which is very different from the prevailing fanaticism in the Middle East and the moralism in the West.

More Research

To the editor:
Your current series dealing with the Youth Services Center is indeed admirable in intent. The staff of the center gives of itself unstintingly in the help of troubled youth.

I must, however, take exception to a statement made by your reporter during his article on "Bob" (fictitious name) — Jan. 7, 1975. "Bob" is a young man with whom many departments of the school have worked and planned during the past year and a half that he has been in our system. Having personally done an educational evaluation of him in April of 1974, I couldn't believe my eyes when I read "but he has an, as yet, undiagnosed learning disability."

Not only was his learning disability identified and classified but also an educational prescription written for its amelioration. All of the evaluative data leading to this diagnosis and programming are on file within the school system and therefore accessible to those school personnel charged with the responsibility of providing appropriate special help and programs. Certainly your reporter did not call me when he researched this particular subject and I find it hard to believe that other school departments were unaware of the diagnostic work done by both learning disabilities and psychology.

Again, I applaud your intent in bringing the public's attention to this school system, but I urge that scrupulous research be done before comments such as those discussed above are made. It might make more interesting copy in the way it is written but the real tragedy was missed, the fact that his disability was undiscovered for all those years before he came to us, denying him the learning and enjoyment gained through reading.

Exception

To the editor:
I take marked exception to the editorial opinion expressed in the Jan. 7 edition of your paper. The article dealt with Commissioner of Education Bell's speech to school book publishers decrying materials that face young minds with the world's evils.

In these days a child is very young when he makes head-on contact with our world. Once that happens it is impossible to protect him from the realities of life with only parental vigilance. While I do not advocate overwhelming a child with worldly wisdom or ignoring beauty, he must be prepared to deal with the evils he will encounter.

Children are cruel to each other. Drug abuse is in the elementary schools. Recession touches everyone, youth are shoplifting at record rates. Venereal disease is rampant among high school students. Children in the world are starving to death. How is a child educated only to expect a yellow brick road and a rainbow to cope with these problems?

I would rather my children come to terms with these realities in a controlled situation via good literature, than alone and vulnerable on the streets. Mr. Bell has suggested the Bible as a suitable reading, but even this book acknowledges the existence of 1000 whores, stealing and cruelty. We are not able to escape these realities, nor will our children be able to. Don't make them face them alone.

We Goofed

To the editor:
I think that our local paper goofed on its reporting of the first baby born in Manchester in 1975 to Mr. and Mrs. William Johnson of Enfield. It neglected to say that Mrs. Johnson was the former Susan Beckwith, a Manchester native. The reason I am writing this is that so many folks I've met who know Susan or her family said they only knew the happy news by reading it in a Hartford newspaper. Others said they didn't know it was Sue — so for all of the Beckwith friends in town, look back at your Jan. 2 Herald and look at that beautiful picture and be happy for Sue and Bill along with me.

Please accept this letter as being more of an informative than of a critical nature — like the expression made famous on TV this past year, "I didn't know that..."

Curb Your Dog

To the editor:
School playgrounds are not the place to walk or curb your dog. School playgrounds are for youngsters to use and enjoy. Many people use the playgrounds as an area to exercise their dogs. Dogs do mess and children do have their problems when they use the playgrounds. Maintenance men who cut the lawn in the spring and summer complain loudly about the dogs and their leavings.

Common sense and consideration should indicate that the school playground is no place to walk your dog.

Social Security in Deep Trouble

Warnings that the Social Security System was unsound have been numerous over the past several years. Further indication that the system is in deep trouble is seen in the agreement of the Social Security Advisory Council to recommend to the Congress heavy new tax support to be paid by middle and upper income workers.

The council is afraid that old age and retirement benefits will outstrip the ability of Social Security to make payment.

Analysis of the system have been saying for some time that it was actually unsound and would not be able to meet its long term future obligations.

Administrators of the fund gambled on an expanding economy and a greater proportion of young workers coming into the work force and hence being able to contribute to the fund. That hasn't worked out and has been aggravated by the unemployment of the current recession.

It is proposed that the ceiling for SS taxes be raised from the present $14,000 per year to $24,000 per year worker income. That would mean that only about 7 per cent of American wage earners would have any income untaxed for SS purposes.

Even worse it is proposed that retirement age be raised from 65 years to 68 years. It is now possible to take early retirement at age 62 under the system. And the trend in private industry has been to retirement earlier than 65.

Congressional increase in payments to older people has further jeopardized the promised benefits of millions of retired workers.

If workers of retirement age are to look to their future with any sense of security it is time that Social Security gets a hard-nosed revision. As it now exists it could be a disastrous governmental failure.

Sweet-Smelling Men

WASHINGTON — This opinionated wretch has been called to order by — who else? — a woman. Her name is Nancy Brower; she writes a column for the Asheville, N.C. Times, and her picture says she is pretty enough to send any male to Tiffany's for a diamond necklace.

Nancy took me to task for using this space to complain that women don't smell as good as they used to, that they have eschewed the perfumes that formerly drove men mad in favor of the well-scrubbed look and Estee-type noggins I publicly yearned for the bad old days when a male dared not venture outdoors lest he encounter a female dripping with My Sin who would forthwith whisk him away to Tahiti for a life of delightful shame.

"Well, Andy," wrote Nancy, "maybe one reason women aren't wearing scents that hint at seduction is because men are." She cited television commercials for such male fragrances as Hai Karate, English Leather and Men Triomphe, and explained that women had been "betrayed" by their performers.

"Some of the best houses renamed their sophisticated scents, put them in chunky bottles and sold them as men's colognes," Nancy wrote. "How can a girl with a dab of Fig Leaf behind her ears compete with a man who has splashed ounces of the same scent on his jawls as an after shave?"

You named me, Nancy. Over the past year or so I have encountered males, noted for their proficiency in galon, braids and who are perfect only for girls, smelling like a broad-minded lady with whom I once dallied in Trieste. Sipping a Formosa Oolong at Harry's place, I look up to locate the bearer of a breathtakingly seductive perfume and discover it is not Gina Lollopalosa but a dolled-up stevedore.

Spring: Clothes Costs and Shapes

By GAY PAULEY. UPI Women's Editor. NEW YORK (UPI) - The downward trend in the economy means upbeat news for women clothes shopping in 1975.

Manufacturers will work to hold the line on prices, offer more quality and better design, and won't try to push a radical new silhouette for the coming fashion season.

The silhouette will be modified from the voluminous look of last year's "Big Drop" so that it flatters more figures with soft shaping, feminine touches of shirring and gathers, and with a length "stabilized" at just covering the knee.

Monte-Sano, who's been in the apparel business for more than three decades, said the state of today's economy had made apparel manufacture "fiercely competitive at all levels. More than ever the designer and manufacturer have to do an honest job."

Monte-Sano spoke of the future of women's fashions in an interview preceding the 64th semi-annual "national fashion week" of the council, a trade and promotion organization.

Front Four Outstanding in Steeler Triumph Each Member of Winners to Receive $15,000

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — "Whatever it takes," has been Pittsburgh Steeler coach Chuck Noll's season-long reply when asked how his team won Tulane Stadium.

Sunday, at chilly and wind-blown Tulane Stadium, it took a stifling defense combined with just enough offense to give the Steelers their first Super Bowl championship with a 16-6 victory over the Minnesota Vikings.

"I'm really proud of this football team," Noll said. "We came in with the idea of getting the job done and let nothing stand in our way. It's especially fitting that in a championship game our defense shut out the champions of the National Football Conference. I can't think of anything more fitting."

"I think that our front four won the game, they were just outstanding," said Pittsburgh linebacker Jack Ham, who along with each of his teammates earned $15,000 for the win while the Vikings got $7,500 each.

The front four of Joe Greene, Ernie Holmes, L. C. Greenwood and Dwight White, which averages just 26 years of age, in addition to stopping the Vikings' running attack, also harassed quarterback Fran Tarkenton. They blocked four of his passes, intercepted another and pounced on him in the end zone for a safety after a fumbled handoff for the only scoring in a defense-dominated first half.

White was hospitalized for most of last week with a viral infection and missed all six Pittsburgh workouts here but was determined to not only play but also to start.

"White is a good indication of the attitude of this team," Noll said. "The doctor told me there was no way he could play after releasing him from the hospital Saturday but Dwight just said, 'I'm gonna play.'"

"They are very aggressive and got good penetration," said the 14-year veteran Tarkenton of the Steeler front four. "I don't think I've had two passes blocked on me since I've been in the league. They were the best team, they deserved to win, we didn't."

Almost overshadowed by the Steeler defense was the performance of running back Franco Harris who rushed for a Super Bowl record 158 yards and also scored the club's first touchdown on a nine-yard run. The TD came only four plays after special team member Mark Kellum recovered Bill Brown's fumble of the second half kickoff on the Minnesota 30-yard line.

After Rocky Bleier was stopped for no gain, Harris scored the left side for 24 yards. He was thrown for a three-yard loss on the next play but then got the ball again and rambled around the left side for the touchdown.

"I had a head cold, but you know, you can't let a cold stop you," said Harris who was voted the game's most valuable player and will receive an automobile for his efforts. "They say there's no cure for a cold, so I wasn't looking for one."

Harris' touchdown increased the Steelers' lead to 9-0 but the Vikings, who entered the game as 3 1/2-point underdogs, kept their fans' betting hopes alive when Terry Brown recovered a blocked Pittsburgh punt in the end zone to account for Minnesota's only points. Fred Cox missed on the extra point attempt when his kick struck the left upright and bounced back.

There was still a little over 10 minutes left to play but the Steelers came right back and marched 66 yards in 12 plays for the deciding touchdown that came on a four-yard pass from Terry Bradshaw to Larry Brown. The big play of the drive was a 30-yard pass from Bradshaw to Brown on which the Steeler tight end apparently fumbled the ball away to a Viking after getting hit. However, the officials ruled the play was dead before the fumble.

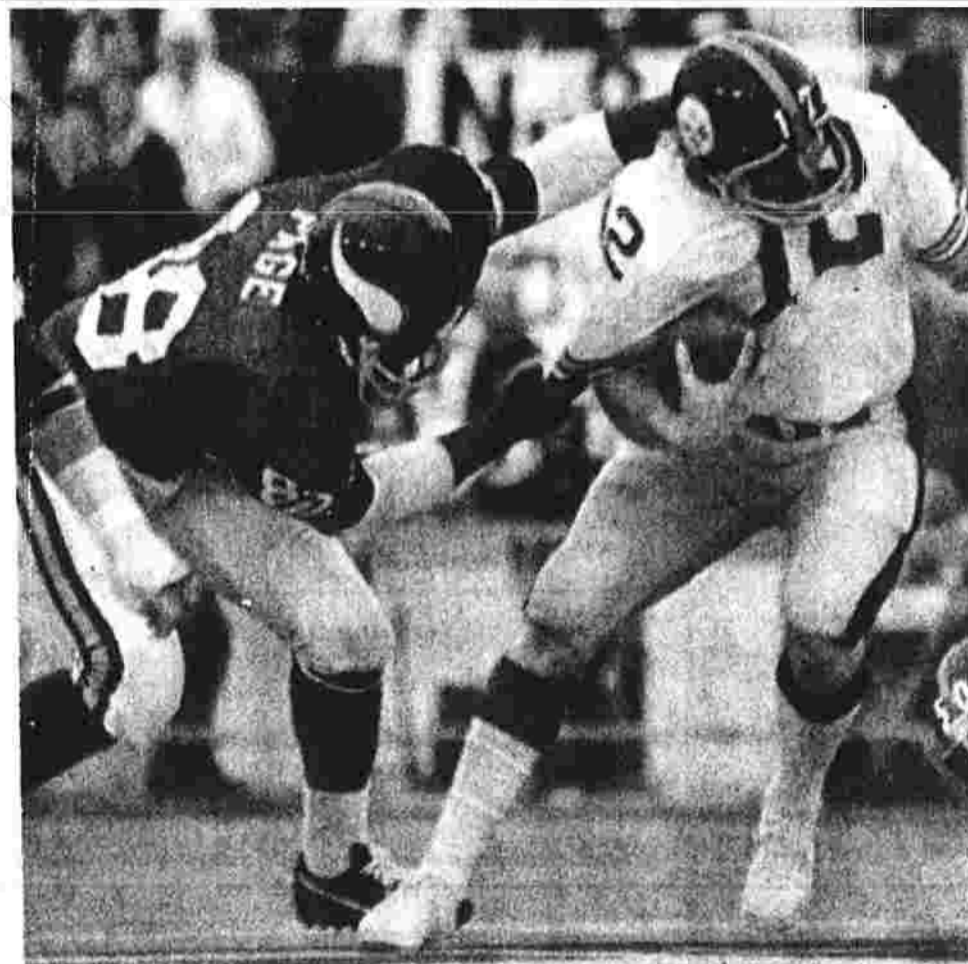

"From our vantage point, Brown had not reached the ground when the ball came loose," said Viking Coach Bud Grant who became the first coach to lose three Super Bowl games. "Our bench reacted immediately — there wasn't any question in their mind it was a fumble."

"The official who called it was across the field and behind him and the official who ruled it our ball was in front of the play. When they didn't give it to us, it became a very big play — bigger than any we could make."

"It wasn't a very good football game," Grant continued. "There were enough chances for both teams to win a number of times with all the penalties, interceptions and official fumbles."

The victory represented the supreme moment in the career of Steeler Art Rooney who never before in the 42-year history of the club had won a National Football League championship.

"Today's win made all the other years worth it," said Rooney who will celebrate his 74th birthday Jan. 27. "I felt before the season started we could win it. The players felt that way and they made me feel that way, too. I'm so happy for the ballplayers, coaches and fans."

Errors Costly With Vikings

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — The Minnesota Vikings and Pittsburgh Steelers each made errors in Super Bowl IX, but Viking coach Bud Grant said the ones the officials made may have cost his team the ball game.

"There were enough chances for both teams to win a number of times with all the penalties, interceptions and officials' fumbles," said Grant. "It wasn't a very good football game. Neither team got here playing that type of football."

The Vikings, who fell 16-6 Sunday to the Steelers, had three Fran Tarkenton passes picked off and lost two fumbles.

But it was a call on an apparent Steeler fumble that Grant feels was the crucial point in the contest at cold, damp and windy Tulane Stadium.

The controversial play came in the Steelers' final seven-minute TD drive that covered 66 yards in 11 plays, with Larry Brown taking a four-yard pass from Terry Bradshaw to give Pittsburgh its final margin on Roy Gerula's PAT.

On the third play of the drive, Bradshaw hit Brown with a 30-yard completion that moved the ball to the Minnesota 28. Brown fumbled and the Vikings recovered, but the play was ruled dead before the fumble.

"From our vantage point, Brown had not reached the ground when the ball came loose," Grant said. "Our bench reacted immediately. There wasn't any question in their mind it was a fumble, but the officials ruled the ball dead."

"But that's the way the game went. It was just a succession of errors by all three teams."

The officials had no comment on Grant's remark after the game.

"Our feeling was there was no question that he (Brown) was not down," Grant said. "The official who called it was across the field behind him and the official who ruled it our ball was in front of the play. When they didn't give it to us, it became a very big play — bigger than any we could make."

Minnesota cornerback Jackie Wallace, who made the hit on Brown that caused the apparent fumble, agreed with Grant that the play was the turning point in the game.

"That was definitely the turning point in the game," said Wallace, who knocked down two passes in the first half, one of which saved an apparent touchdown pass to Jon Stallworth at the goal line.

Wallace, who often stopped Steelers running back Franco Harris over even bigger gains, said the bruising 230-pounder runs as hard as any back he's faced.

"He's big, strong and fast and, to me, he likes to be hit for some reason," said Wallace of Harris, who now holds the Super Bowl rushing record of 158 yards.

Vikings quarterback Fran Tarkenton, said to have a sore arm during practice prior to the title showdown, didn't look for excuses.

"My arm is okay...no better or no worse than it has been most of the season," said Tarkenton, who completed 11 of 27 passes for 102 yards. "And no one gave me a hit that bothered my arm at all."

He said he was not downcast at seeing the Vikings fall in the Super Bowl for the second straight year. Miami beat the Vikings in Super Bowl VIII.

"I'm very happy, very satisfied," he said. "We had a great season and much to be proud of. We have done better than 24 other teams in pro football. It's been a great year."

He said it didn't bother him to hear people say the Vikings haven't been able to win the "big one."

"It's good to get in the position where you can knock you," Tarkenton said. "If I had my choice of getting here and losing and not getting here, I would choose to get here and lose."

Bradshaw Greatest?, Just Not His Style

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Terry Bradshaw is not about to jump up on a crate and proclaim, "I am the greatest." That is not his style.

But the team Bradshaw quarterbacked won the Super Bowl Sunday and the Louisiana native figures that it is worth something.

"If you own quarterback a team to a championship," Bradshaw said in the cramped Pittsburgh Steeler dressing room following their club's 16-6 win over Minnesota. "I think it means a lot."

"I guess I should be screaming and hollering. But that's not me. I'm pretty happy, though."

During the week preceding Super Bowl IX, Bradshaw had been the consistent target of questions concerning his mental ability. He did not like it, but he put up with it until last Thursday, when he said he had had enough and was not answering any more questions along those lines.

And, after Sunday's victory, Bradshaw said he hoped his performance through the playoffs would at last remove that stigma.

"I don't know too many guys who know the game like myself and like Joe Gilliam and Terry Hanratty," said Bradshaw. "We work our tails off each week to learn this game."

"Chuck Noll knows what we can do and as long as he is behind me, and my teammates are behind me, everything will take care of itself."

Throughout the first three quarters of Super Bowl IX, it was Pittsburgh's defense that dominated play. But after Minnesota converted a blocked punt into a touchdown early in the final period the Vikings were in position to rally.

It was the Pittsburgh offense, however, which put the game out of reach.

"I was very glad we scored that last touchdown," said Bradshaw, "because I felt then our offense made a contribution to the win."

Pittsburgh drove 66 yards for the clinching score with the big play a 30-yard, third-down throw from Bradshaw to Larry Brown which carried to the Vikings' 28.

"Larry was the primary receiver," said Bradshaw. "He took a little time to uncover, but he did it."

Then, looking at a third-and-goal situation from the Minnesota four, Bradshaw rolled right and hit Brown in the end zone.

"It was a simple run-pass option," said Bradshaw. "It puts the pressure on (Viking linebacker) Jeff Siemon. I knew that if I had to run the ball I could not score. But Jeff reached me and I threw it."

Bradshaw has pointed several times this year to the fact that he believes he has matured properly to be an outstanding NFL quarterback. And he said Sunday that maturity should allow him to keep Sunday's victory in perspective.

Preparing for Worse

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — In the wake of Sunday night's sometimes violent celebration of the Pittsburgh Steeler Super Bowl triumph, police prepared to close off the city's downtown section today in anticipation of a victory parade expected to draw more than 300,000 fans.

"We're preparing for the worst," a police spokesman said. "We had no idea how big it could get," he said, referring to Sunday's riotous celebration, which began peacefully, but turned ugly when police bore down on a crowd which stopped a transit bus.

About 60 persons were injured, including two police officers, and 250 more were arrested, police said. Most of the charges were for disorderly conduct and intoxication. None of the injuries were serious.

A National Weather Service forecast of from six to 12 inches of snow by mid-morning promised to keep many celebrants indoors.

But many businesses are dismissing employees at 1 p. m., the courts have cancelled sessions and public school students will be permitted to leave class early if they have written parental permission.

Harris Earned MVP Tag

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Like most Super Bowl winners of past years, the Pittsburgh Steelers did not go berserk with joy.

The new NFL champions were matter of fact about Sunday's victory.

"Winning is very important to all of us because it means you're No. 1," said defensive end L.C. Greenwood. "I think we played as well as we could. We concentrated on stopping the run, then the pass. Basically, we played the same as we have all year."

Harris gained a Super Bowl record 158 yards on the ground, but it was the applause from his fellow defensive teammates. Greenwood was assigned the chore of containing Minnesota quarterback Fran Tarkenton when the Viking scambling rolled out to his right — which he did all day.

"That job of containment by L.C. Greenwood was fantastic," said cornerback Mel Blount. "We believed that our defense could win the game for us and we were confident we could contain Tarkenton."

Played to Largest Audience

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Sandra Sexton, who calls herself the "International Queen of Burlesque," played to her largest audience ever Sunday and loved every second of it.

"I feel great. Everybody is stand up when I run," she said in her thick Spanish accent after being hailed of the field at the Super Bowl wearing just a beige bikini and bra set following her unsuccessful attempt to storm the Pittsburgh bench and get near quarterback Terry Bradshaw.

"I'm a fanatic about Terry Bradshaw. He's from New Orleans."

Actually, Bradshaw, who guided the Steelers to a 16-6 win over the Minnesota Vikings, is from Shreveport, La., 300 miles northwest of New Orleans.

Steelers Happy for Rooney

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — "That's the greatest man who ever walked," said Terry Bradshaw of Rooney moments after Pittsburgh's 16-6 win over Minnesota.

Winning this for him was the big thing. He's the kind of man who'll get all of his together for a part now and he'll let them take that beautiful trophy out to the back alley and admire it.

"I try never to get too excited and I try not to get depressed," Rooney said.

dad told Mr. Rooney when in the five years we'd be in the Super Bowl. I didn't believe in stuff like that myself, but here we are.

Rooney himself was almost unbelievably calm after his team finally presented him with a league championship, two weeks short of his 74th birthday.

"I try never to get too excited and I try not to get depressed," Rooney said.

UConn Classic Champ

David (Joey Whelton), Goliath (John Thomas) and Green Arrow (Lee Otis Wilson) played vital roles last Saturday at UConn subduing East Carolina, 79-77, to capture its own UConn Basketball Classic at the Field House in Storrs before a capacity crowd of 4,480.

Whelton, Thomas and Wilson were named to the All-Tournament team along with East Carolina's John Geter and Eastern Michigan's Bob Riddle. Thomas, 6-8 junior center, was named the tourney MVP.

Thomas and Wilson each scored 18 points for the Huskies while Whelton, the East Catholic grad, with some deft ballhandling dribbled away the final moments as UConn went into a stall.

"It scares you to do it (go into a stall) but sometimes you have to do it when you feel you're playing a superior team," UConn Coach Dee Rowe commented.

In the see-saw battle which saw 15 lead changes in the second half alone, UConn took the final advantage with

Garry Swain (on ice) Battled Mike Rouleau (27) Whalers' Fred O'Donnell (right) Comes to Aid

Crowd Home Happy

"Swain deserves the glory. He's a great penalty killer," an exalted Ron Ryan, coach of the New England Whalers noted minutes after his center had stolen the puck and blasted a shot into the San Diego net. The shorthanded goal with 4:13 remaining in the 10-minute overtime provided the Whalers with a 4-3 edge to mark getting off on the right foot in the spanking new Hartford Civic Center.

A sellout was predicted and 10,507 tickets were sold, although several hundred bright red covered seats were unoccupied.

Fantastic Facilities
The majority of the fans were viewing hockey for the first time. The feeling was that they liked what they saw and will be back.

Once Free Agent
A loss would have ruined the opening evening but Swain, a one-time free agent who impressed Whaler officials and was rewarded with a contract, was the man of the hour with his goal that created a scene duplicated the next day with the same reaction when Pittsburgh downed Minnesota to win the Super Bowl.

"The fans here are even more fantastic than the facilities," Ryan noted and he would have only a few doubters on the subject.

Season ticket holders, an estimated 5,000, automatically assure the club will draw much better than in Springfield where turnouts averaged 4,000 per game.

The majority of the fans were viewing hockey for the first time. The feeling was that they liked what they saw and will be back.

There wasn't the hitting that National Hockey League features, but there was no doubt the action picked up, as well as the crowd, in the third period and carried over into the overtime.

McAdoo's 41 Points Too Much for Celts

NEW YORK (UPI) — Buffalo's Bob McAdoo said he wasn't playing any differently because a national television audience was watching, but the opponents' green jerseys did bring about a little extra effort.

That extra effort saw McAdoo score 41 points, pull down 13 rebounds and knock seven shots as the Braves beat Boston, 114-101, Sunday, to cut the Celtics' lead over Buffalo in the National Basketball Association's Atlantic Division to one game.

"It's not playing on TV," explained McAdoo, who often this season has wondered aloud about the lack of respect and recognition accorded his team, compared to that given Boston.

Miller's Golf Score Lowest Since 1955
PHOENIX (UPI) — There are a growing number of pros who think Johnny Miller, the tall, blond Californian with the big drive and fine putting touch, is the world's best golfer today and maybe they are right.

Miller shot rounds of 67-61-68-64 in the Phoenix Open for a 72-hole score of 260. That was the best winning total since Mike Souchak took the 1955 Texas Open with a 257, but that is only part of the story.

The other part has to do with how easily he outstripped a field that started out with U.S. Open champ Hale Irwin, PGA king Lee Trevino and every one of the top 15 money winners of 1974 except Jack Nicklaus.

Miller won by 14 strokes over childhood friend Jerry Heard and when it was all over he had played the Phoenix Country Club course 24 shots under par. His total included 25 birdies and two eagles, which has to rate as one of the most powerful performances in PGA history.

When Arnold Palmer was the king of the fairways, the way Miller is now, he won the 1962 Phoenix Open by 12 shots and everyone said that was a mark that probably would never be beaten.

How wrong they were. Miller not only beat it, but he also shattered the hopes of most of his fellow pros who now have to face him this week in the Tucson Open, second stop on the 1975 PGA Tour.

Boosters Say Communications Between Town Boards Missing

TOLLAND
Vivian Keneson
 More than a dozen residents, mostly members of the Tolland High School Booster Club, had occasion to observe both Board of Selectmen and Board of Education meetings last week, many for the first time. Most expressed frustration at lack of communication between the two boards, especially in connection with the controversial refund of $30,916 which Blue Cross has notified the Board of Education it is due.

The Board of Selectmen turned down - by a tie vote - the appropriation Tuesday night, saying the money had not yet been received. People did point out, however, that other appropriations, both before and after that particular item, were approved although they were not actually received either.

The negative vote was obviously upsetting to athletic fans who were at the meeting, but one resident told the Board of Education Wednesday that he found even more upsetting than a negative vote was the choice of abstaining by one selectman. Thomas Gray said of Selectman Charles Luce, "Abstention is the most disgusting thing I have seen. At least those who voted against it had guts." Luce chose to abstain because he felt that by not asking the insurance company to send a check, the education board was holding something over the selectmen's heads.

Director Commended
 Accompanying a report of an internal audit of the Tolland High School Athletic Account, which comes out of the Student Activity Accounts, Dr. Kenneth MacKenzie, superintendent of schools, said that "Athletic Director August Link has done nothing dishonest, illegal or improper. I believe that the judgment made to spend $2,500 for uniforms this year, when so cramped for money, was poor judgment. I also use poor judgment at times, as we all make mistakes."

The money spent for uniforms came from a surplus in the athletic account at the end of the 1973-74 school year. The $2,500 must be added to the athletic program budget, according to Dr. MacKenzie, to bring the budget total to $8,800.

Dr. MacKenzie added that the athletic budget, cut before going to the Board of Selectmen last spring, was cut again in half after the entire education budget was chopped by $147,000 by the selectmen. He recalled a statement at the annual budget meeting that surplus money was available and once found would be restored to the education budget. "We knew at that time we would keep athletics going for a time, as all other departments."

Ron Dextrauder, Tolland Education Association president, told the board that "teachers are upset about the way this has been handled. Link should be commended for the job he has done. He is also a teacher with the athletic director job only a part-time one with a stipend paid $300 for this work. He has stretched money as far as possible."

and doesn't want to lose programs he worked hard to establish at Tolland Middle School. Principal Roy Nierendorf also commended Link's work.

Procedure Changes
 Changes which will be initiated in the athletic program procedures are these: Tickets sold at games should be taken at a following station by a disinterested party, with half the tickets returned to the spectator to use as a pass during the game; the color of the ticket rolls should be changed from blue to green so that tickets not taken up can be used at the following game; the hiring list for people needed to work at the games should be opened and expanded to all interested personnel; purchasing procedures should be changed to use the athletic director's principal, business manager and superintendent approval; another procedure change suggested by David Howell, business manager, who completed the audit, is that the athletic director should not be paid for his service rendered as an official. Dr. MacKenzie explained that this is "not slapping Link's wrist. I believe it is a conflict of interest, one shouldn't hire oneself. Link has officiated this year to save money, spending $5.50 less per game than hiring other officials."

Robert Dean, chairman of the education board, asked why representatives of the board did not attend the selectmen's meeting, said it was a financial matter and, therefore, the business manager was sent. Also, the Board of Education said that a previously scheduled meeting which conflicted.

The two boards have a meeting scheduled for Tuesday at 7:30 at the Education Administration Building. The meeting was requested by Dean several weeks ago to improve communications.

Tolland schools will close early on Wednesday to allow teachers an opportunity to review present and future curricula programs, according to Dr. Kenneth MacKenzie, superintendent of schools.

The Parker School in-service plans center around the metric system. A basic introduction to the system will be given to the staffs of both Parker and Hicks schools. A film entitled "The Metrication of America" will be followed by a presentation of tips for teaching the metric system to themselves and to their pupils.

During the second half of the program the Hicks staff will work on another phase of the Individually Guided Education (IGE) program. IGE math, which the staff plans to introduce during the last quarter of this school year. In the meantime, the Parker staff will continue its study of the metric system, using metric rulers and tapes to measure distances and areas.

The Tolland Middle School teachers will meet with high school teachers to exchange ideas on how to help in the classroom. The groups will be divided according to areas of preparation and assignment.

Goals set for these meetings are to develop a keener awareness of the total program in a particular area, Grades 5 through 12; to review programs within those areas with a view toward eliminating unnecessary duplications as well as insuring that critical concepts are covered adequately; to give teachers an opportunity to make specific suggestions to the social studies and math Curriculum Committees in preparation for the curriculum writing by those committees.

School hours for Wednesday are: Parker, 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.; kindergarten, 9 to 10:30 a.m.; 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Hicks; Tolland High School, 8:10 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. to 11:35 a.m.

Lunch will be served at Parker School only on Wednesday. At Hicks School the PTO will sponsor a snack sale for students. Mothers of Unit D will provide baked goods which will be sold during the school day. Proceeds will be used for future school projects.

Breaking the Banco
 Originally meaning "bench" or "shelf" in Italian, the word banco was applied specially to a tradesman's counter, and hence to a money-changer's bench or table, from which the modern word bank is derived. In Italy, when a moneylender was unable to continue his business, his bench or counter was broken up, and he was spoken of as bancorotto - bankrupt.

MACC NEWS
 MANCHESTER AREA CONFERENCE OF CHURCHES

Nancy Carr
 Executive Director

Once again we find ourselves on the threshold of the Week of Prayer for Christian Unity (Jan. 18-25), that octave in the year's beginning in which Christians gather to pray as Christ Himself prays "that all might be one."

The theme for 1975 is "Reconciled by the Christ who renews, frees, and unites" (Ephesians 1:7-10). For Christians, 1975 will see both the Fifth General Assembly of the World Council of Churches and the observance of the first Holy Year celebrated by the Roman Catholic Church in 25 years.

Pope Paul VI says, "We wish to proclaim and preach that the reconciliation of Christians is one of the principle aims of the Holy Year. The year of grace provides an opportunity for doing special penance for the divisions which exist among Christians; it offers an occasion for renewal in the sense of heightened experience of holiness of life in Christ; it allows progress toward that hoped-for reconciliation by intensified dialogue and concrete Christian collaboration in the salvation of the world; that they also may be one in us, so that the world may believe."

In Christ's name, people around the world have been offering this prayer for the delegates to the First General Assembly:

"Lord God, as men and women from your Church all over the world prepare to meet in one place to take counsel together, we pray for each and all of them, that they may with courage and vision commit themselves to freedom and unity by surrendering themselves in servanthood to your Son, Jesus Christ.

"We pray that the one will undertake the journey with a mind already made up, but that open to the promptings of your spirit all who will meet will be ready for any adventure to which you may call them, and they may never forget that in your name they owe the world a living.

Ribicoff Lists Priorities For Bills He'll Introduce

Connecticut Sen. Abraham Ribicoff has listed four priorities for major bills he will introduce in the 1975 Congress:

- * Catastrophic Health Insurance - To guarantee that no American family would be bankrupt by medical bills.
- * Tax Reform - To close tax loopholes.
- * Medicare Reform - To broaden present Medicare services to cover virtually all health costs for those over 65.
- * Tuition Tax Credits - To provide relief for families burdened with the rising costs of education.

In explaining the bills, Ribicoff said, "The Ribicoff-Long Catastrophic Health Insurance Act would protect families from the high cost of long-term illness, covering all medical costs over $2,000 and all hospital costs incurred beyond 60 days. The bill assures that private insurance will be available to everyone to pick up the first $2,000 and 60 days.

"The Tax Reform Bill would close $7 billion in tax loopholes, including all depletion allowance, and would put billions of dollars in those extra revenues toward tax relief for low- and middle-income families.

"The Ribicoff Comprehensive Medicare Reform Act of 1975 would cover nearly all in-patient hospital care, outpatient care in a doctor's office, and nursing home and mental health care.

"The Tuition Tax Credit Bill attempts to open college doors to more middle class children - caught in the squeeze of higher tuition and lower income.

Sen. Ribicoff will succeed Sen. Sam Erwin as chairman of the Government Operations Committee. Ribicoff said some of the issues expected to come before the committee for hearings and legislation this year are creation of a new consumer protection agency.

Sick Pay Exclusion
 By RAY DE CRANE

If you were absent from work last year because of sickness or injury and were paid by your employer during this period of enforced absence you may have an important tax saver known as sick pay exclusion.

Since it is an exclusion, meaning exempt from tax, it has a double-remainder effect. After the sick pay exclusion has been claimed, the remainder of the income can still be subject to the 15 per cent standard deduction, up to the maximum of $2,000.

The amount of the exclusion depends upon the length of your absence of work and the percentage of your normal pay that you received.

If you received full pay, or anything in excess of 75 per cent of your normal pay, the exclusion becomes effective after a 30-day waiting period. After that, the amount excluded is the lesser of the pay received or $100 a week for each full week of absence.

Different rules apply to those who received less than 75 per cent of regular pay during the period of absence.

The waiting period is shortened to seven calendar days after that they get an exclusion of the lesser of the pay received or $75 a week. If the employee at the reduced pay scale spent at least one day in the hospital during any part of his absence, there is no waiting period. The exclusion starts operating on the first day of absence.

Peeler Won't Take Planner Job

VERNON
BARBARA RICHMOND
 Gerald Peeler has decided he doesn't want to come to Vernon as its town planner.

His appointment was approved last Monday by the Town Council. Thursday, Peeler called Stanley Roessler, director of administration, to inform he had decided not to assume the position.

Mayor Frank McCoy, in making the announcement this morning, said he spoke with Peeler Friday but "Despite my attempts to persuade him to at least give the matter additional consideration, he was adamant about deciding not to come."

Mayor McCoy said Peeler cited as his prime reason for changing his mind the "manner in which his appointment was handled by the Journal-Inquirer."

He felt that the article and headline was completely unjust and had indicated a climate which would not be conducive to formulating any plans which would necessarily have to be published in the media, the mayor explained.

Peeler's resume presented at the council meeting Monday did not include work he has been doing during the past year or so and Peeler took issue with the manner in which the information was sought.

Mayor McCoy said, "I am in total agreement with the Journal-Inquirer as a leader in presenting criticism of the administration's ability to fill the position of planner and has not succeeded in destroying the accomplishments of the committee working on the filling of the position.

"The whole matter of filling the position of planner will have to be given additional consideration by the council, my office, and the commission involved," the mayor said.

Peeler is presently a resident of Narragansett, R.I. He was originally scheduled to start work in Vernon today.

He added, "The Journal-Inquirer was a leader in presenting criticism of the administration's ability to fill the position of planner and has not succeeded in destroying the accomplishments of the committee working on the filling of the position.

Water Rate Hearing Scheduled in Vernon

A hearing on a request for rate increases filed by the town of Vernon will be held at the town office in Hartford, to be moved to Vernon.

A Public Utilities Commission official today notified town officials, by phone, that the hearing will be held in the Administration Building, Jan. 28 at 10:30 a.m.

This information came before Mayor Frank McCoy this morning that despite the fact the proposed increase would not apply to fire protection (town hydrants), the town is a commercial user for public buildings and would be affected by the increase.

The water company proposes to decrease the rates for the users of smaller amounts of water and to increase it for the larger users.

The mayor said he is in accord with the reduction for the smaller users but feels the town and other users would be formally opposed to rate increases. He said he has received many calls in opposition to the increase.
