

Esoian Chosen Shrine Leader

Mitchell Esoian of Wethersfield Wednesday night was elected illustrious potentate of Sphinx Temple Shrine. He succeeds Eugene T. Crandall of Middletown. Esoian will lead the 4,150 Shriner from Sphinx Temple's jurisdiction which covers Northern Connecticut. The annual meeting was held at the Hartford Hilton. Elected to serve with Esoian on the Sphinx Temple Divan are Harry G. Shalett of Old Lyme, chief rabban; Harold E. Turkington of Manchester, assistant rabban; Warren J. Blessing of Wethersfield, high priest and prophet; Robert H. Jennings of Durham, oriental judge; Thomas H. Avery of Wethersfield, secretary; and Wallace G. Bailey of West Hartford, re-elected recorder. Appointed divan officers are Frederick W. Davis of Woodbury, first ceremonial master; and William M. Coates, second ceremonial master. Coates had been temple treasurer for 12 years. His father, now deceased, was potentate of Sphinx Temple in 1938. Among his first duties, Esoian will attend the annual installation of Omar Shrine Club Friday night at Willie's Steak House and will lead Omar's officers for 1975. Esoian announced appointive officers for the several units, committees and clubs of the temple. From Manchester, he named Rocco J. Francoline as

COURT CASES

HARTFORD COUNTY SUPERIOR COURT

Henry Coleman, 22, of Manchester has pleaded guilty to assaulting a police officer and he is to be sentenced by Judge Simon Cohen Feb. 14. Coleman entered the guilty plea Tuesday, over the objections of his lawyer, David Golub. Judge Cohen accepted the plea despite Golub's statement that the plea was involuntary and that Coleman was under great emotional pressure. The assault charge stems from a May 11, 1974 incident in Hartford, involving a disturbance on Main St. Asst. State's Atty. Richard Banbury said. Cases of two other men charged in connection with the same incident are pending.

CAP Units Plan Encampment

Sixty members of seven Civil Air Patrol units in Connecticut will participate in a three-day encampment starting Friday at the Manchester Army. The encampment, which is sponsored by the Connecticut Wing of the Civil Air Patrol, will be commanded by Lt. Jeffrey Greenough of Meriden. Participating in the encampment will be cadets and seniors from Willimantic, Niantic, Plainville and Meriden Cadet Squads, Manchester Composite Squadron, the Flying Knights Composite Squadron of New Haven and the Connecticut Yankee Cadet Squadron of Southington. CAP members will attend aerospace classes, leadership laboratories and participate in activities which relate the U.S. Air Force to the Civil Air Patrol, which is the official civilian auxiliary of the Air Force.

Board Backs Eased Parking

Police Chief James Reardon's eased ban against Horace St. parking has the backing of the Manchester Board of Directors. In fact, it has been praised by Director Carl Zinsner, the leading advocate for some relief from Reardon's original plan—banning parking 24 hours a day, 7 days a week on both sides of the street. Said Zinsner Tuesday night, "The compromise plan is acceptable to the people on Horace St. and I thank the police chief on their behalf."

The compromise plan permits parking after 6 p.m. weekdays and all day Sunday and holidays on about half of the south side of Horace St.—from Bidwell St. to utility pole No. 7726. It permits parking for about five vehicles. The plan, intended to go into effect on a citywide basis next fall, would also include redistribution of teachers so that each school has the same ratio of experienced and inexperienced instructors; allow black and white children at integrated schools to remain where they are and provide five other learning options.

School Plan Being Drafted

BOSTON (UPI)—A draft of a complicated voluntary school desegregation plan for city schools will be delivered to U.S. District Judge W. Arthur Garrity Jr., Jan. 27, according to School Committee Chairman John J. McDonough. The plan, intended to go into effect on a citywide basis next fall, would also include redistribution of teachers so that each school has the same ratio of experienced and inexperienced instructors; allow black and white children at integrated schools to remain where they are and provide five other learning options.

Probe Third Fire

WATERBURY (UPI)—Fire officials were investigating Waterbury's third major fire of suspicious origin in 11 days, a two-alarm blaze which seriously damaged a partially vacant four-story building. The fire broke out shortly after 11 a.m. Thursday in the Libra Athletic Club. The fire department was called at about 11:20, and more than 70 firemen took an hour to bring flames under control, fire officials said. The ground floor of the East Main Street building housed a pizza restaurant, a music shop and an amusement center. The public club was on the second floor, and the third and fourth floors were vacant. Damage was heavy, but no injuries were reported.

Wants Court Action

BRIDGEPORT (UPI)—Mayor Nicholas Panuzio says his city attorney should go to the Superior Court to seek an injunction to end a strike by about 400 street department workers, in its second day today. As the walkout continued following a mass meeting of the city employees union, Panuzio said the city would not negotiate while the men stayed away from their jobs. Half-day sessions were ordered for schools, which will serve no lunches because garbage collectors are on strike.

Cease-Fire Ends

BELFAST (UPI)—An outbreak of shooting and attempted bombings today ended the longest cease-fire in Northern Ireland's five years of religious war. The army reported several incidents that began even before the Irish Republican Army's 25-day truce came to a close at midnight, embroiling Ulster in a new round of violence. No killings were reported.

Outlines Dr. King's Philosophy

Pointing to the five main points of Dr. Martin Luther King's philosophy is Frank J. Smith who spoke to second and third grade students Thursday at Keeney St. School. Smith's son, Frank Jr., was a member of the group.

Keeney School Observes Martin Luther King Day

In celebration of Martin Luther King Day, Frank J. Smith of 93 Ferguson Rd. was invited to speak to a group of students at the Keeney St. School. Smith, who was associated with Dr. King for about seven years in the civil rights movement, described Dr. King's philosophy to the children. He listed five points on a blackboard and suggested that the children discuss their meaning at home and try to remember them. The five points are faith, hope, love, courage, and non-violence. Dr. King always tried to avoid violence, Smith told the young group. If there were followers among his marchers who felt they could not resist attackers, Dr. King would suggest they provide transportation or work to prepare food for the crowds, Smith said. If Dr. King anticipated trouble, he would go off by himself and meditate and pray for courage and knowledge to help him handle the situation, said Smith. Dr. King was an advocate of education and after his regular schooling was completed, he studied to become a minister. Smith, who said he marched with Dr. King many times, told his listeners that had Dr. King been alive, he would gladly have accepted an invitation to speak to them. Smith encouraged the children present to talk out their problems, to avoid violence. Smith's informal visit was punctuated with frequent questions from the young audience. He said he hadn't done as much for Dr. King as Dr. King had done for him. The students were still eager to ask questions when Smith had to return to his job as a management consultant at The Travelers in Hartford.

State Education Equalization Impossible Dream This Year

By ROBERT LAMBERT
HARTFORD (UPI)—For state Education Commissioner Mark R. Sheid, a $100 million school equalization program in this year of economic decline and fiscal pinch is an impossible dream. Even $10 million to get the program started may be little more than fantasy. Gov. Ella T. Grasso has told Sheid he will have to come up with the funds necessary to implement any new education funding program on his own. "We don't have $10 million," she said. The only realistic way to raise the $10 million within the existing education budget, he said, is to revise the present per pupil aid formula, the Average Daily Membership grant. But, Attorney General Carl R. Ajello is currently appealing a Superior Court decision which found the state's existing finance system, based on the ADM grant, unconstitutional. The appeal of the case involving Barnaby Horton, 6, a kindergarten pupil in the Canton elementary schools, is expected to be decided by the state supreme court in the summer, according to some estimates. "My honest assessment is that neither the governor nor the legislature will be able to move affirmatively in this until the Supreme Court rules," Sheid said. "Meanwhile we'll have our thinking caps on. If the court says the way we allocate the monies we have now is unconstitutional, we will have to come up with a scheme using the same money in a different way," he said. The heart of the program is what the Commission to Study School Finance and Equal Educational Opportunity called a "guaranteed tax base," which it says would help level off spending between wealthy and poor communities in Connecticut. Interim Approach One interim approach, Sheid said, would be to put the money into the neediest communities first and then work gradually towards the entire 12 communities covered by the commission's recommendation. But, by prorating the money, he said, all eligible communities would get some funds quickly. "Expenditures must be a function of the wealth of the state as a whole rather than the wealth of the locality," the commission said in its report released earlier this week. Under the plan, the state would guarantee each eligible town a certain amount of money to support each pupil, based on a minimum level of taxable property. If a town falls below the minimum level, the state would make up the difference between what the community could raise from the guaranteed tax base and the actual amount it can raise, the commission said.

$136.6 Million Program
The commission recommended a $136.6 million program, of which $113 million would go for equalized funding. The proposal also includes $10 million for urban education, $7 million for disadvantaged children and $8.6 million for special education. Although it did not specifically recommend an income tax, the commission suggested that an income tax would be the most equitable way of raising the equalization funds. The 44 towns which are above the tax base would get no state aid and their schools would be financed entirely through local revenues. Some critics have charged that the commission plan is unconstitutional because it fails to limit what wealthier communities spend for schools. Aid to 75 Per Cent The commission recommended that 75 per cent of the towns, which represent three quarters of the state's 600,000 school children, would get some kind of state aid. In its study, the cut-off point would be a guaranteed tax base of $54,720 per pupil. Its study showed that the taxable property in Connecticut ranges from $16,564 per pupil in Greenwich to $17,441 per pupil in Sterling. Greenwich has nearly 10 times more property wealth per pupil than Sterling, meaning it can raise more money with less tax effort because of the high value of property, the commission said.

DCA To Develop Vernon Drainage Plan

A master drainage plan for Vernon will be prepared with the help of two engineers to be provided by the Department of Community Affairs (DCA). The request for the assistance was made by Mayor Frank McCoy.

The assistance from the DCA is made possible through a grant provided by the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD). The only cost to the town will be an amount not to exceed $300, the fee for publishing and reproducing of the report when it is completed.

In his request for assistance from DCA, Mayor McCoy explained the extensive property damage caused by flooding during heavy rains. He said the town's increased growth caused an increase in pavement areas and changed the topography.

Working with DCA engineers will be Leonard Sweeney, Vernon's engineer and other town personnel. The DCA engineers will provide about two days each week during the year working on the study.

While the actual study will not cost the town money, any recommendations made in the report will, Stanley Roesler, director of administration, said the town will seek outside funding, but added such funding is scarce now.

He said whatever portion of the improvements have to be funded by the town must be financed over a period of several years as part of a capital improvements program.

The council was formed Oct. 27 when 19 candidates were admitted to the first Admissions Degree Order. The Tolland membership elected the following officers: J. David Loftus, grand knight; John J. Smith, deputy grand knight; The Rev. Francis J. O'Keefe, chaplain; Antoine D. Parent, chancellor; Raymond A. Blanchette, warden; Richard J. Routhier, recorder; William F. Layng, treasurer; Roland G. Pelierin, advocate; Arthur A. Anderson, inside guard; John F. Kozak, outside guard; Lloyd Dame, three-year trustee; Bernard W. Kasset, two-year trustee; Richard F. Dwire, one-year trustee; John W. Powell, financial secretary.

The council holds its meetings in St. Matthew's parish hall on the first and third Wednesdays of each month.

Cookie Sale
Tolland area Girl Scouts will begin taking orders for their annual cookie sale on Saturday. The sale will run until Feb. 1, with delivery scheduled for March 7 through 26.

The large boxes will sell for $1.25, with the troop receiving 15 cents and the council 60 cents per box. The annual fund raising event helps the girls earn money for both their own troops and the Connecticut Trails Council.

Anyone who is not contacted and wishes to order cookies may call Joan Marquis at 675-6697.

Manchester Evening Herald OPINION

Coupon Courtesy

In the daily battle of trying to balance one's individual budget, there isn't much to cheer about.

We have reason to believe, though, that our food merchants are trying to do the best they can to hold down food prices for us and help us stretch our food dollars.

Most of the major chains have adopted pricing policies which insure us that prices may be lowered but not raised once an item is placed on the shelf.

We find many markets are providing information in form of newsletters or guides to enable us to make better food and meat buys and anticipate seasonal bargains.

Whether it is competition or just a merchandising technique, it seems to us there is a growing use of coupons not only to introduce new products but to encourage purchases of the old standbys. These offer price reductions on all kinds of items but more and more you see them used to encourage purchases of fresh meat and produce. Perhaps the one most housewives like the best is a $1 rebate if your total purchases exceed a prescribed limit.

Now coupons can save all of us money if we use them but we often forget them. We think it is really to the credit of Manchester area food stores that the people at the check stands are, for the most part, very conscientious in asking customers if they have any coupons to accompany their purchases.

This reminder, coupled with some of the stores specially marking or displaying coupon items, convinces us that our local food marketing industry wants to keep customers happy. It knows it can best do this by helping stretch those food dollars by offering coupons whenever it can and by urging their customers to use them whenever possible.

Like we said, we don't know whether it is because of competition or just good merchandising, but we like it. It is a bright spot in these times of rising prices to have a checker ask for coupons because it saves us money and it is nice to know someone else really does care.

TODAY'S THOUGHT

ANDREW TULLY

Take! Make! Break!

Lord take me,
Me, with all my selfishness, with
All my pride and jealousy,
All my willful disobedience,
All my lack of love to Thee,
Me, with all my faults and frailties,
All my secret, hidden sins.

And Break me
Break my stiff and stubborn will, Lord,
Break myself with all its pride;
All its dearest dreams, ambitions—
Break my heart, its idols smash—
Till in splintered, shattered fragments
I lie helpless at Thy feet.

And Make me
With Thy tender, skillful hands, Lord,
Make me like Thyself to be,
Moulded in Thy glorious image,
Sweet and loving, humble, kind,
Faithful, gentle, finding pleasure
Only in my Father's will. — Selected

Rev. Robert L. Baker
United Pentecostal Church

This country is not only in the midst of an energy crisis, it has a "people crisis"—a growing shortage of professional manpower in critical areas of the energy business.

So warns Wayne E. Glenn, president of the 50,000-member American Institute of Mining, Metallurgical and Petroleum Engineers. Glenn is also president of the Western Hemisphere Petroleum and Chemical Division of one of the nation's largest oil companies, Continental Oil.

When the Russians put Soutnik into orbit in 1957, there was a tremendous call for engineers in this country, he recalls. Getting an American on the moon and back safely became our foremost national goal.

Young people responded to the challenge by literally standing in line to enroll in engineering schools and to claim the thousands of engineering jobs opening up in the space program and in supporting industries.

Only a little over a decade later, however, the space program was greatly curtailed and these same thousands of engineers and technicians were losing their jobs and finding themselves unable to locate comparable employment.

As a result, the profession as a whole received very bad publicity, even though unemployment among engineers was never more than half the national average.

Engineering enrollments in our colleges declined steadily. The entering class of 1971 was the smallest in 20 years, and while there has been enrollment increases in each of the last three years, the gap between demand for new engineers and the number of engineering graduates has continued to widen.

The nation loses about 75,000 professional engineers a year by retirement, death or job-changing, but only 59,000 engineers graduate each year, a gap of 16,000.

"Now, with national commitment forming to return this country to a greater degree of energy self-sufficiency, we find ourselves short of the technological manpower to achieve this goal," says Glenn.

Unfortunately, the supply of engineers is not something you can turn on and off like a spigot. Employment stability in the engineering profession must be demonstrated, not just promised. There must also be some shifting of technical manpower from other less-important areas, where there is an abundance of engineers, to the more critical areas.

Glenn is not suggesting that every other industry deplete its engineering manpower. Tactfully at a Federal Energy Administration hearing, Glenn recommended that a task force be created to measure the probable manpower requirements for each energy source considered in Project Independence so that the available supply can be used most effectively.

Beyond that, he says, "The most effective way to marshal the nation's manpower resources in this effort is to make it attractive enough, rewarding enough and more socially desirable for people to want to pursue careers in the fields."

Attention Glider Pilots

To the editor:
A search is on to locate all former military glider pilots of World War II by our national organization. These were the pilots who flew the Army Air Force's CG-4A combat glider and had a "G" on their silver wings.

So far we have located about 1,100 of the original 5,000 men.

I am asking former pilots among your readers to contact me as Wing Commander for the New England area at 23 Woodland Drive, Greenfield, Mass. 01301. Tel. 413-774-2292.

Our association was formed about four years ago. We have been holding annual reunions and publishing a quarterly newsletter called "Silent Wings."

Our next reunion will be Sept. 25-27, 1975 at Milwaukee, Wis.

We are a non-profit veterans organization and would deeply appreciate your assistance in locating any of the above glider pilots.

Very truly yours,

Tolland Constables Agree to Continue Serving

Vivian Kenneson, Tolland's part-time constables have withdrawn their proposal to begin refusing duty early next month, as a result of a meeting Thursday with the Board of Selectmen, Town Manager John Harkins, Resident State Trooper Harry Tomasek, Civil Preparedness Director Ron Littell, and Capt. Stecko and Lt. Scholz of the State Police.

John Burkas, chairman of the Board of Selectmen, said this morning that the constables charge that internal problems concerning the jeopardy of public safety was really unfounded. Residents should be aware that "The town has more police protection now than before the town manager was hired," Burkas said. Harkins budgeted for a full-time permanent constable in the present budget, allowing for full-time police protection, along with the resident state trooper.

One of the constables' main complaints was that the town manager had removed some radios from their private automobiles, an action which prompted them to remove all the remaining radios. The men claim that without radios they are fearful to go out on calls.

Harkins will arrange a meeting, suggested by Littell, requesting all local organizations that use radios to discuss the entire communication system in town. A possibility was discussed that the constables might use a citizen band portable walkie-talkie type system. Burkas said the constables are willing to wait and see what results of this proposed meeting.

Another complaint in the constables' proposal was the lack of publicity on weekly activities. Burkas said this will be initiated.

As a result of a recommendation by State Police Capt. Stecko, Bud Goetz, the full-time constable, will take the 400-hour State Police course in Meriden. In addition, Tomasek will provide more police training to make the part-time constables more effective.

Burkas said he wants it made very clear that the Board of Selectmen are pleased with Harry Tomasek, resident state trooper. "He's doing a good job," Burkas said. Tomasek was also in the line of fire at the selectmen's meeting last week when the constables issued their ultimatum.

Although the meeting resolved problems, Burkas said that the situation actually could have been resolved with Tomasek and Harkins. He likened the situation to one similar to the recent Board of

The Herald Area Profile Firm Expecting Many Questions Over Assessment

SOUTH WINDSOR
By Judy Kuehnel

The United Appraisal Co. has been holding hearings on incidental assessments after the release of revaluation notices in South Windsor.

Officials of United, with an office in East Hartford, received about 250 phone calls by Tuesday morning this week.

Making appointments 15 minutes apart, the officials said they expected at least 1000 phone calls before the job was done.

About 5,500 residents had their real and personal property reassessed last year, as required by law once every ten years.

Virtually all property went up at least 50 per cent since 1965 and for the most part properties were reassessed closer to 80 per cent higher.

In some cases, properties were assessed at 200 and 300 per cent beyond their last appraisal.

Properties with exorbitant increases generally involved many acres of land that is now seen as prospective building lots.

Without giving the name of the owner, one official cited a case in which a property was valued at $22,000 ten years ago and is now assessed at more than $80,000.

Coventry Residents Vote Land Purchase

By STEPHEN FISCHER

Coventry residents last night voted 36 to 8 to approve the purchase of the 18.5 acre Cummer property on Rt. 31 for $70,000.

Allen Sandburg, town manager, said that five acres of the property will be used for a cemetery, and the expansive wooded area bordering the Willimantic River was "an excellent area for outdoor recreation."

The property will be purchased with $30,000 from revenue sharing, $15,000 from unappropriated cash surplus and $25,000 to be borrowed in short term notes from the cemetery would provide 4,000 new burial lots, which from the sale will produce a future revenue of $400,000.

The house bordering Rt. 31 will be sold for an additional $25,000.

Many residents were concerned with the cemetery's possible contamination of the Willimantic River aquifer, Sandburg said, however, that the land posed no threat to the underground waterbed.

Glenn is not suggesting that every other industry deplete its engineering manpower. Tactfully at a Federal Energy Administration hearing, Glenn recommended that a task force be created to measure the probable manpower requirements for each energy source considered in Project Independence so that the available supply can be used most effectively.

RESTAURANT GUIDE

Country Squire Restaurant and Lounge, Ellington

You'll find a pearl in the middle of the quaint town of Ellington—The Country Squire—a total food and entertainment center. The plush blend of Mediterranean and Colonial decor create an inviting atmosphere. The restaurant offers business' lunches at noon. The chef takes pride in preparing a variety of culinary delights. A few of his favorites, which might be yours, include Baked Stuffed Shrimp with a special house dressing, Boneless Chicken Breast Kiev, and Roast Stuffed Sirloin of Beef (his own creation). You have a choice of over 20 delicious entrees plus an elaborate Salad Bar. Each entree includes salad bar and potato or vegetable. Enhance your meal with an imported or domestic wine from the wine cellar. Top entertainers, prudently chosen on a rotating basis, provide fun and appeal for all ages in the lounge on Friday and Saturday evenings. Another superb feature of The Country Squire is their management of group functions such as weddings, anniversaries, retirement or testimonial dinners. The banquet rooms are elegant and accommodate from 15 to 250 people. Open Tuesday through Sunday. Telephone 672-7327.

Vacation & Travel Ideas

Ireland Features Holy Year Tours

In religion - as in most matters - the Irish have their own particular sense of priorities. For instance, an advertisement promoting Aer Lingus, the Irish Airline's Holy Year tours, suggests that visitors "drop into St. Kevin's on their way to St. Peter's." The St. Kevin's in question (not that well known Irish pub off the Via Veneto), is, of course, a sixth century monastic establishment set in most beautiful mountain and lake scenery at Glendalough, in County Wicklow. In planning Holy Year tours the airline has put the emphasis for the most part on sightseeing for one cannot travel across Ireland without being aware of its religious history.

Round Towers dotted here and there are a reminder of the early monastic Christianity which sent out monks to Christianize Europe and which produced one of the greatest periods of religious art in Europe. The Book of Kells, which can be seen in the Library at Trinity College in Dublin, is perhaps the most famous book of the period. It was produced in the ninth century. As well as the Celtic Round Towers, Ireland has excellent examples of Romanesque and Gothic church architecture, in-

Aer Lingus Offers Equestrian Tours

Whether you are a first-class horse rider with a few ribbons to your name or just an aspiring equestrian, Aer Lingus, Irish Airlines, has a special tour available through April which combines training at leading equestrian schools with an opportunity of seeing some of the great attractions of Ireland. Arranged in co-operation with Hamilton Travel Inc. of 630 Fifth Ave., New York City, specialist in equestrian tours, the week-long vacation includes first-class accommodations, breakfast and dinner every day; 18 hours of training by leading instructors; visits to Ireland's National Stud and the Training center for the Irish Olympic equestrian team. All-inclusive cost with round trip air fare from New York to Shannon is $570. Visitors arriving at Shannon and transfer to their hotels in Limerick. That evening they attend a medieval banquet at either Bunratty or Knappogue

Travel

By MURRAY J. BROWN UPI Travel Editor

Increasing numbers of American vacationists are discovering a different way to tour the U.S.A. these days - by recreational vehicles. They range from luxurious motor homes complete with sunbaths and bathtubs to modified pickup trucks and homemade campers.

An estimated five million recreational vehicles - or RVs as they have become known - are in use nationwide, according to manufacturer and dealer sales records. No one knows the actual total because numerous trucks, vans and buses originally built for other purposes have been converted to recreational use by inventive backyard mechanics and others.

Production estimates for 1974 included 129,000 motor homes, 90,000 truck campers, 194,000 enclosed pick-up truck campers, 98,000 camper trailers and 215,000 collapsible trailers.

The growing number and variety of these vehicles have added a new element to the overall motoring scene. They require RV drivers and other motorists to adjust to the situation and make allowances for wide variations in vehicle sizes and operating characteristics. Weather and road conditions also become even more important.

So here are some suggestions from The Road Information Program, a nonprofit research and information agency based in Washington, D.C. New RV owners should make several test runs before starting out on the first long trip. They probably will find their rig is not quite what they are accustomed to driving. Recreational vans, trailers, trucks and buses are likely to be bigger and heavier than the family car. The differences in required clearances, acceleration rates and braking distances could call for important changes in driving techniques.

Mild Winter Cuts Snow Removal Cost

Considerable savings in the Manchester Highway Department's snow and ice control work this year have been attributed by Highway Supt. John Burchill to a mild winter and a change in town policy.

Burchill said Thursday that the town has spent $42,000 so far this year on snow and ice control work. The comparable total a year ago was $56,000, he said.

The main reason for this relatively low figure, Burchill said, "is that we are again experiencing a mild winter."

Burchill said another factor in the reduced cost this year was a change in town policy of having two men operate each snowplow truck. He said highway crews have demonstrated the ability to get a job done and be praised them for "A-plus" efforts.

Nichols was taken by police to Manchester Memorial Hospital where he was treated for a facial laceration and released, a hospital spokesman said.

Nichols failed to post a $500 surety bond for release from police custody. He was to appear today in Common Pleas Court 12 in East Hartford.

David J. Embser, 18, of 39 Judith Dr. and Debra Jane Ackerman, 19, of 4 Avon St. were both arrested Thursday on Common Pleas Court 12 warrants charging them each with third-degree larceny.

The charges are in connection with the recent theft of oil from the Silver Lane Shell service station, police said.

They were each released on written promises to appear in court, Embser on Jan. 27 and Ackerman on Feb. 3, in East Hartford.

Michael Parizeau, 19, of 12 Juniper Ave., and Robert Carabino, 19, and Susan Carabino, 17, both of 12 Glenwood St. were arrested Thursday at 9:28 p.m. in Charter Oak Park and charged with possession of alcohol on town property, police said.

The two young men were also charged with delivery of liquor to a minor.

Men Carabino was released on $50 cash bonds, all for court Jan. 27 in East Hartford.

Other arrests included: John R. Verr, 31, of Avon was arrested Thursday morning on a Common Pleas Court 12 warrant charging him with non-support. He was released on a written promise to appear in court Feb. 3 in East Hartford.

GARDENING

"Terrariums are all the rage," the Manchester Garden Club heard this week from one of the club's members, Miss Emily Smith. Miss Smith made more than 40 small terrariums before Christmas, sold a few and gave most of them away as Christmas gifts.

Using wild plants entirely, with partridge berries providing bright red color against a green background, Miss Smith made one more terrarium while she talked. She started with a clear glass bowl, purchased at a variety store and sprinkled some "fish gravel" on the bottom. The gravel is sold to be used on the bottom of a fish tank and is made up of screened pebbles not much bigger than the head of a pin.

On the gravel she scattered a small amount of ground charcoal and then arranged clumps of sphagnum moss across the bottom and around the sides of the container. She had gathered the moss in a swampy area last fall, but it can also be purchased at garden centers.

Now she had completed the base for other plants, all small and all growing naturally in this area. Wintergreen, small ferns, rattlesnake plant and pipsissewa are among those often used, usually just one of a kind in a small terrarium.

Finally come the partridge berries, which "make the bowl," Miss Smith said. She remembers her mother making such terrariums every year and that they were then called "berry bowls."

Some of the little plants may have a few roots, but, even without roots, their stems will pick up enough moisture from the damp moss to keep them alive.

Little Water Needed
Finally, the bowl is fitted with a glass cover to keep the moisture from evaporating. In the house it needs light, but should be kept out of direct sunlight. It may need to be lightly sprinkled with water in six weeks or two months, but is only expected to last until spring, anyway. Too much water will cause the moss to rot.

The plants that have survived, and indeed may have grown new roots, can be transplanted in the spring in a shady spot as part of a wild garden. Miss Smith has partridge berries growing in such a spot in her backyard, and fortunately she has a brother, Richard Smith, who owns a dairy farm in Lebanon where she can find new wild plants without violating the restrictions of taking plants from the wild.

Anyone who does not have a farm in the family may perhaps get permission from a landowner to take a few plants from his woods, or may find what he wants in a garden center.

College prepared to teach Latin and history, but it was in Depression times and she found no demand for a teacher of these subjects.

Season Starts For Stokers

After many hours of hard work and practice, the MHS swim team has begun its dual-meet season. Opening on Dec. 27, the Indians demolished Enfield High, 106-62. The following two Fridays absorbed two tough losses to Enloe (free, 59-79) and Conard High, 95-79 and 101-89 respectively.

Returning veterans include tri-captains Adamy (butterfly, freestyle), Naktens (free, individual medley), and Mrosek (distance free). Other seniors are Kirk Woodport (breaststroke), Bob Edwards (backstroke), Dave Brown (free), Tom Parker (diving), and Marty Hahn (fly, free).

With a year of experience under their belts, the returning juniors are: Bill Bouley (backstroke), free; Bob Butler (distance free), back; Peter Slaby (fly), and Durward Miller (free).

Also, to be counted on now, as well as in the future, are sophomores: Sherrie Hopper (backstroke), free; Loretta Letoux (breaststroke, I.M.), Mike Wasyluk (breaststroke, I.M.), Dave it as the rival gain points with second, third, and fourth places. On the other hand, the team's main strength is its usual ability and its varsity, also, the relay races are a definite Indian asset.

Student Opinions - The Mess

To the editor: When reading the past few articles that have discussed the problem we students have at the high school, one has to think again of the real problem at hand. Manchester High is not as bad as has been implied. Not all kids tear the boys' rooms apart, nor do they smash doors down daily.

Most people have come to the conclusion that it is a minorly due to these things. I go a step further and say it's less than a minor; it's a handful. This vandalism is a rare occurrence during school hours. The High school is open to many different groups, including other schools. I reiterate what was said by Dave Jacobs: "MHS has a closed campus. This forced kids to stay inside and resulted in

Exam Grapplers Sweep Two Matches

The Manchester High Wrestling Team closed out a successful week by sweeping two impressive matches at Clarke Arena.

The first victory occurred Jan. 8 when the matmen defeated Glastonbury High by a score of 29-15. Ed Machuga, Les Snuffer, Neil Snuffer and Jeff Jones all registered pins for Manchester, while Tom Mumford, Dave Derowinski and Tom Jones won by decision.

Manchester then stretched its winning streak to two straight by whipping Ethan High Jan. 11 by a score of 43-0. One of Manchester's many bright spots was Senior Co-Captain Ed Machuga who overhelmed his opponent for the fifth consecutive time in his 11-round weight division. Tom Mumford, Neil Snuffer, Jim Breen and Tom Jones were also outstanding as they won their matches. The Manchester team was also helped by the lack of depth of the Rham team who were forced to forfeit four of their matches.

The Grapplers, who now sport a 3-2 record, clashed again in Clarke Arena. A Robert Weiss

World Affairs Delegates Picked

At the last meeting of Manchester High's Current Affairs Club, plans were set for the group's upcoming trip to New York.

Mr. Zarsky, the club's advisor, announced the names of the meeting, the names of 12 members who will be making the trip.

While in New York, these

Debaters Triumph

On Dec. 14, the Manchester High Debate Team traveled to Gilford to compete in a debate attended by members of the Connecticut Valley League. Manchester High is an active member in the league.

Gilford was the team's second major tournament of the year. On the affirmative team were Keith Costa and Mark Quitadamo, on the negative team were Sue Lantz and Mary Stack. The affirmative team debated in the varsity division while the negative team made a line showing in the novice division.

In the varsity division Keith Costa took first place speaker award and Mark Quitadamo took second place speaker award. Both were awarded certificates. Also the varsity team took first place in the varsity division, winning a handsome silver plated plaque. Sue Lantz and Mary Stack were named as the best debaters in the novice division.

S'n B Moves On

On Jan. 9, Sock 'n Buskin held its first general meeting of the New Year. Among the items discussed were two policy changes that were to be voted on.

The first was a proposal to extend the point system to cover productions other than those produced by Sock 'n Buskin. This proposal was almost unanimously voted down.

The second proposal was that complimentary tickets not be given out to members for these productions. This resolution was necessary as members are welcomed at any dress rehearsal. There is a very limited number of seats available on nights of performance. This was unanimously supported.

An election was held for the traditional post of sophomore representative to the Executive Board. The board had nominated Jennifer Krascella, Suzanne Thomas, and Owen Ford. Nominations from the floor were Miss Bev Byam and Bill Thomas. After a run-off vote, Beverly Byam was elected representative.

'Enterprise' Returns

What are you doing this February vacation? Why not take a convention.

This coming year will mark yet another of the annual International Art Treks Convention conventions to be held in New York City. The 1975 convention will be Feb. 14 to the 17th in the Commodore Hotel. The invitation is open to all who wish to participate in a German Book series of motion picture, comic, and guest jobs who just can't make it.

The event list will be, as usual, a long one. It includes panels and speeches by the speakers, with questions and answers, sessions, films, art shows, contests, and last but not least, a Federation Masquerade judging contest. — Matt Levine
