Proclaim Year of Concern

The Rt. Rev. Msgr. Edward J. Reardon and the Rev. Clifford O. Simpson representing the Manchester Council on World Hunger bless a group at St. James Church after sharing a proclamation calling the community

Community Launches Program Of Concern for the Hungry

Recognizing that Ash Wednesday begins a period of prayer and fasting for the Christian community, the Manchester Council on World Hunger has called those concerned with the global food shortage to begin a simplified life style and devote the money saved to feed the hungry both here and abroad.

The plea was made by the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Edward J. Reardon, pastor of St. James Church, and the Rev. Clifford O. Simpson, pastor emeritus of Center Congregational Church, who are serving on the Manchester Council on World Hunger.

Year of Concern

They have joined Mayor John Thompson in issuing a proclamation declaring "1975, beginning the first day of Lent, Ash Wednesday, a year of concern by the Town of Manchester for our brothers and sisters throughout the world who suffer."

During the Year of Concern, the people of Manchester are asked to fast twice weekly in keeping with the recommendation of many national political and religious leaders, to simplify their lives by dispensing with luxuries and things that are culturally necessary but not truly necessary to lead a good, wholesome life; and to give the money thus saved to the hungry and the poor. The Rev. Mr. Simpson said.

To Use Existing Agencies

Money may be channeled to the hungry and starving through local church programs, national relief organizations such as Catholic Relief Services, Church World Services or the United Jewish Appeal, or by sending a check to the Manchester Council on World Hunger, in care of Manchester Conference of Churches, P.O. Box 773, Manchester.

Those wishing their donation to go to Manchester area families in difficulty and hunger should mark their check, "Local Relief," the Rev. Mr. Simpson said.

Technical Education Interest Increasing

By June Tompkins

"The big problem with technical schools today is increased interest."

So says S. John Garofalo, director of one of the top rated technical schools in the state.

The increased interest in technical schools is largely because more students are finding that college isn't always the answer.

Vo-Ed Week

In observation of Vocational Education Week which is this week through Saturday, interviews with the directors of vocational education at both Howell Cheney Technical School and Manchester High School reveal there is a growing recognition of the need to train the youth in careers and vocations.

"So many of our school graduates stay within their community instead of going on to college," says Mrs. Roberta Walnum, career education specialist with the Manchester public school system. "We want to train them to be useful to society if they don't choose to go on to college. We want to give them an opportunity to choose a vocation or career that will please them and be useful to them," she said.

Parallel Courses

At Cheney Tech, the program does not merely prepare the student for a vocation in carpentry, electronics, or automotive mechanics. There is a parallel course in related subjects, offering the required subjects for a complete high school education.

Although the completed course at Cheney Tech is sufficient to qualify any graduate for a good job (many have good part-time jobs during their junior and senior jobs with guarantees of full-time employment upon graduation), the number of students going on to higher education is increasing. Many go on to Hartford Technical College, and some to regular colleges.

"I believe we're in business to prepare the kids for business and industry, not higher education," says Garofalo.

Some Snobbery Remains

Oddly enough, more than half the students at Cheney Tech come from outside Manchester. "Parents still look down their noses at this type of education," he says.

The technical vocational educational program Manchester has come a long way since the program began in 1912 when Howell Cheney established a textile school on Hartford Rd. Even then, vocational

Kissinger In Egypt

CAIRO (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger met President Anwar Sadat today to find out how much Egypt will compromise in exchange for a new Israeli military withdrawal and said he definitely plans to return to the area next month.

"I definitely plan to come back," Kissinger said in answer to a newsman's question whether he would return in March. It was the first time the secretary confirmed he would make a second trip in his current diplomatic efforts.

Early March Speculated

Diplomatic sources said Kissinger would come back to the Middle East the week of March 9.

The secretary said his nearly 10 hours of talks in Israel Monday and Tuesday were exploratory and not conclusive. He called them "very constructive and useful."

Seeking Progress

On arrival in Egypt, Kissinger said, "I am in this area to see what I can do to make progress towards a just and lasting peace and to take the next step on that road as soon as possible."

The secretary and his wife Nancy drove directly from the airport to Sadat's rest house on the Nile, 18 miles north of Cairo, for a working lunch.

Sadat greeted Kissinger with a "Hello, Henry," and the two men embraced and kissed on both cheeks.

Asked whether he expected a second-stage Israeli withdrawal on all fronts, Kissinger said, "I cannot make any predictions now."

"I am here to see what I can do to make progress toward peace," he said. "I am always optimistic."

Before leaving Tel Aviv, Kissinger said he did not "attempt to reach any final conclusion this trip but rather to explore the basic principles."

"I will now go to Egypt and I will have similar discussions with the Egyptian leaders," he said.

Israeli Foreign Minister Yigal Allon saw Kissinger off at Ben Gurion airport near Tel Aviv and said the Kissinger-Israeli talks were "preliminary" but "very constructive."

Different Approaches

"There may be different approaches to how this interim agreement should be achieved and what should be the result of it," Allon said.

"But once we start we must stick to the initiative and until we get positive results with great patience and good will of both sides."

Kissinger planned to talk with Sadat today and Thursday and to bring the Egyptian leader's ideas back to Israel after the discussions and after a brief stop in Damascus, Syria.

The secretary is trying to find room for compromise in Sadat's often-expressed refusal to issue a declaration of non-belligerency unless there is a total solution to the Arab-Israeli conflict.

Israel wants such a declaration in return for giving back at least some of the Sinai territory its troops seized from Egypt during the 1967 Middle East war. The key lands include the Mitla and Giddi passes and the Abu Rodeis oil fields.

At a farewell banquet in Jerusalem, Kissinger said, "Israel, which was built on faith, is being asked to undertake another act of faith. Now the process of peace requires another act of faith — for all of us."

Town Directors Shuffle Block Grant Priorities

By SOL R. COHEN

The Board of Directors shuffled its priorities Tuesday night, to bring recommended community development programs within the limits of a $301,000 annual federal grant set aside for Manchester.

Originally, Manchester had been promised $470,000 annually under the federal Community Development block grant program.

Last Friday, after several weeks of work by town personnel and the 29-member Community Development Advisory Committee in preparing a priority list under the $470,000 expectation, word was received the sum will be $301,000 instead. HUD (the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development) explained it had made an error in the formula it follows for determining the grants.

In shuffling the recommended priorities, the board gave top priority to land purchase for housing for the elderly and handicapped. It accounts for about $175,000 of the available $301,000 grant in 1975-1976. A fixed expense for administration expenses adds $35,000 to $40,000 more. Multi-service facilities for the handicapped were next on the priority list, followed by ramps for the handicapped at various public buildings.

Placed low on the priority list for the first year of the anticipated three-to-five-year grant were revolving loan funds for housing and commercial rehabilitation, day care facilities, a walk-light at Oak and N. School Sts., and sidewalks, sewers and drainage corrections in the core area (downtown).

Removed from the list is a recommended sum for a feasibility study for renovating the old Cheney Hall on Hartford Rd., possibly leading to town acquisition. Cheney Hall has been leased for five years to a fabric outlet.

Because the town has a March 1 deadline for submitting its application to HUD, it will meet again next Tuesday (at 8 p.m. in the Municipal Building Hearing Room) to take action on an amended application.

In the interim, the reshuffled priority list will be reviewed by the Community Development Advisory Committee for its recommendations. The committee will meet sometime this week — possibly Thursday night.

The directors, on a motion by Jack Goldberg, will notify HUD of its displeasure and disappointment at HUD's miscalculation and misinformation in computing the limits of the grant. The board's letter will mention the work done in good faith by town personnel, in preparing an application (now scrapped and to be replaced) based on the $470,000 sum.

In addition, several directors will visit HUD's area office, to express in person the board's displeasure and disappointment.

White House Reporter To Address Chamber

Helen Thomas, White House reporter for United Press International, will address the annual banquet of The Greater Manchester Chamber of Commerce Friday evening, April 11. The banquet will be at The Colony in Talcottville.

Highlighting the banquet will be the presentation of the coveted M award to an outstanding Manchester citizen.

The banquet will also feature Betty Rhodes, singer and comedienne, who played the lead role in "Jacques Brel is Alive and Well and Living in Paris" in New York, Los Angeles and San Francisco. Her appearance is being arranged by Ken Morgester.

Chairman of the 74th annual banquet is Probate Judge William FitzGerald.

Miss Thomas has covered Presidents and First Ladies since 1960. The first woman to head up the Presidential coverage of a major news service, she is the senior staffer of the UPI reporting team regularly assigned to the White House.

She traveled extensively with John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson, accompanied Richard Nixon on his summit trips to China and the Soviet Union in 1972 and covered Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's trip to the Middle East and China in 1973.

The highlight of her 1974 coverage was an exclusive, year-end interview with President Ford at Vail, Colo., during his winter vacation.

Born in Winchester, Ky., Miss Thomas began her career in journalism in 1942 as a reporter for the old Washington, D.C. Daily News following her graduation from Wayne State University in Detroit. She joined the UPI Washington Bureau a year later as a radio writer, transferring to the national staff in 1956.

She covered the Justice Department and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and then was transferred to UPI's White House staff in 1960 following President Kennedy's inauguration.

She is married to Douglas B. Cornell, a retired Washington reporter for the Associated Press.

Why should there not be a patient confidence in the ultimate justice of the people? Is there any better or equal hope in the world?

I desire so to conduct the affairs of this administration that if at the end, when I come to lay down the reins of power, I have lost every other friend on earth, I shall at least have one friend left, and that friend shall be down inside me.

The world has never had a good definition of the world liberty. And the American people just now are much in want of one. We all declare for liberty; but in using the same word we do not mean the same thing. With some, the word liberty may mean for each man to do as he pleases with himself and the product of his labor; while with others the same word may mean for some men to do as they please for other men and the product of other men's labor. Here are two, not only different, but incompatible things, called by the same name, liberty. And it follows that each of the things is by the respective parties called by two different and incompatible names, liberty and tyranny.

The shepherd drives the wolf from the sheep's throat, for which the sheep thanks the shepherd as his liberator, while the wolf denounces him for the same act... Plainly the sheep and the wolf are not agreed upon a definition of liberty.

Some people must really believe that money from the federal government is a gift from heaven. They don't stop to realize that the government gets its money from the people, states, and businesses or corporations.

Human nature will not change. In any future great national trial, compared with the men of this, we shall have as weak and as strong, as silly and wise, as bad and as good.

We always felt there was a lot of waste connected with grant money and that point was driven home to us the other day.

We got a call from a fellow at Boston University who was conducting a survey on science reporting and how better to relate what is going on in science to the general public. The survey is being done with a grant.

His phone call was paid for with the grant. It took 25 minutes for us to answer all his survey questions. We didn't even bother to ask why the survey questionnaire couldn't have been mailed. That would be an economy move.

We can also assume that when the school received the grant, it went out and hired at least one person to determine just how the money ought to be spent.

We were contemplating saying something bad about the town water department while making out a check the other evening. The department's return card wouldn't fit the envelope. We trimmed the card and it still wouldn't fit. Then we discovered the fault actually was with the envelope. About one inch of one corner was completely shut. The blame rests with a pressman, not the water department, who was probably taking a coffee break while the press was grinding out the envelopes.

Just wondering if Sen. Jackson, the latest presidential aspirant, ever communicates with Sen. Mansfield.

We recall a chat with Mansfield about four years ago when he commented: I doubt if we will ever see the time when this nation will elect a president from the Far West.

A sign posted near gasoline pumps at a service station in Barre, Vt., asks: "What happened to America?"

Raymond Audet says this has been the worst year of the past eight that he has owned the station. Gasoline sales are down 50 per cent from last winter. He used to hire four men; now he's down to one helper.

Audet equates the gasoline problem with Watergate, economic recession and "a lack of things to take pride in."

New England is suffering from energy problems again, for different reasons than last year.

Timothy Wilson, director of Civil Emergency Preparedness in Maine, best sums up the problem with typical Yankee directness:

"The energy problem today is more of price than of availability."

"The problem in Maine is no longer fuel availability. It's price. People have stretched their budgets as far as they will go."

That, simply put, was the consensus of a UPI survey of the six New England states during the "Winter of '75."

One year ago, drivers formed long lines in the crisp, dark mornings hoping to get a few gallons of gasoline. Others made appointments. Service stations were closed nights and Sundays.

Ski weekends and all unnecessary trips were curtailed. Resorters suffered.

Homeowners, not sure if that next tankful of heating oil would ever be delivered, bought wood and coal burning stoves to ward off freezing temperatures.

Those old-fashioned, black, wrought iron stoves were back in vogue. Fireplaces and Franklin stoves were installed if found. Overnight, stores with stoves were sold out.

New Englanders bundled up against the chill, wearing a sweater or flannel shirt around the house because the thermostat was lowered to 65 degrees to conserve fuel.

That was the "Winter of '74."

Bruce Haskell, Vermont's deputy energy director, put his finger on the problem as it exists today: "Prices seem to be the major problem, especially for low and moderate income Vermonters. For those who can afford it, the supply appears to be adequate."

This feeling was echoed by Santa J. Amato, deputy fuel allocation officer in Rhode Island, who said, "The price factor is the big problem right now. Economic conservation has caused a reduction in consumption."

"Our consumption is roughly 20 per cent below what it was at this time in 1972. People are at the point where they are conserving as much as they can. There is a question of how much farther they can go," he added.

No one would venture a guess at what level the price of fuel would stop. "It's really just a question of how high and how fast it's going to move," said David J. Harrigan, chief counsel for the Connecticut Energy Agency.

"I don't think we've got a problem of quantity. What we're faced with now is the economic impact - that's really got us by the throat," Mrs. Lola Dickerman, consumer affairs secretary in Massachusetts, added, grasping her neck.

Marshall Cobligh, energy aide of New Hampshire's Governor Meldrum Thomson, said, "The supply is adequate on both gas

New Town Creates Heat Island

By AL ROSSITER JR., UPI Science Editor

COLUMBIA, Md. (UPI) - The new town of Columbia has confirmed what meteorologists had long suspected - that urban areas influence their own weather.

The weather in this planned community between Washington and Baltimore is warmer, drier and less windy than it was 10 years ago when the area was mostly farm land and woods.

Observers for at least 150 years were aware of differences between the weather of cities and that of surrounding areas. Evidence accumulated rapidly during the past decade showing that urbanization affected the weather. But some nagging doubts remained because it was impossible to prove that weather differences were not the result of the specific location of the city.

The development of this planned community in the past eight years provided the opportunity H.E. Landsberg of the University of Maryland had been looking for.

He reported at a recent meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science that he took weather observations in 1967 when the rural population here was only 200 and then saw what happened when bulldozers moved in, cleared most wooded areas and sculptured the land.

"We followed the process in detail," he said. "First the vegetation - grass, weeds, shrubs, and trees - is removed. This natural cover is essentially an insulating blanket." He said it reflected 15 to 25 per cent of the incoming radiation from the sun.

"As the construction process proceeds, the soil is compacted. New surfaces of building material, mostly stone and brick, concrete and asphalt, appear. Most of these have low reflectivity so that less solar energy is reflected.

"The compacted ground and the structural materials are good heat conductors. They transport the incoming energy downward and toward where it is stored for future release.

"The new surfaces are nearly impervious to water. All rain is rapidly drained away in contrast to the situation in the old spongy vegetated surface which soaks it up and re-evaporates much of it."

The result, Landsberg said, is that a substantial heat island has developed. It is most noticeable in calm, clear evenings a few hours after sunset when the center of

Good Old Election Days

"Way back in the early 19th century, when America was a nation of farmers, legislation directed that national elections take place during the first week of November because 'harvesting is over then, and winter has not yet made the roads impassable.'"

Tuesday was designated instead of Monday, says the National Geographic Society's historical odyssey division, because many voters lived a day's journey from a polling place and objected to traveling on Sunday.

Despite the vast changes that have overtaken America since then, there seems no particular reason to abandon the custom. At least one state, however, is going to consider doing away with another relic of the old days.

Ohio State Rep. John A. Galbraith plans to introduce legislation to allow liquor stores and bars in the state to operate normally on election day. At present, bars may open for business but can sell only low-powered beer.

The law was apparently passed to try to keep unscrupulous politicians from buying votes with drinks. "I think we have now advanced beyond that," says Galbraith.

Cynics would agree. These days the problem is not politicians buying votes but the other way around.

One year ago, drivers formed long lines in the crisp, dark mornings hoping to get a few gallons of gasoline. Others made appointments. Service stations were closed nights and Sundays.

Ski weekends and all unnecessary trips were curtailed. Resorters suffered.

Homeowners, not sure if that next tankful of heating oil would ever be delivered, bought wood and coal burning stoves to ward off freezing temperatures.

Those old-fashioned, black, wrought iron stoves were back in vogue. Fireplaces and Franklin stoves were installed if found. Overnight, stores with stoves were sold out.

New Englanders bundled up against the chill, wearing a sweater or flannel shirt around the house because the thermostat was lowered to 65 degrees to conserve fuel.

That was the "Winter of '74."

Bruce Haskell, Vermont's deputy energy director, put his finger on the problem as it exists today: "Prices seem to be the major problem, especially for low and moderate income Vermonters. For those who can afford it, the supply appears to be adequate."

This feeling was echoed by Santa J. Amato, deputy fuel allocation officer in Rhode Island, who said, "The price factor is the big problem right now. Economic conservation has caused a reduction in consumption."

"Our consumption is roughly 20 per cent below what it was at this time in 1972. People are at the point where they are conserving as much as they can. There is a question of how much farther they can go," he added.

No one would venture a guess at what level the price of fuel would stop. "It's really just a question of how high and how fast it's going to move," said David J. Harrigan, chief counsel for the Connecticut Energy Agency.

"I don't think we've got a problem of quantity. What we're faced with now is the economic impact - that's really got us by the throat," Mrs. Lola Dickerman, consumer affairs secretary in Massachusetts, added, grasping her neck.

Marshall Cobligh, energy aide of New Hampshire's Governor Meldrum Thomson, said, "The supply is adequate on both gas

Adult Credit High School Proposed to Vernon Board

A program which would cost some $1700 to institute and which would provide for a credit adult high school completion program in Vernon, was reviewed by the Board of Education Monday night but no action will be taken on the proposal until the next board meeting.

Daniel Woolwich, chairman of the board's Curriculum Committee, outlined the program proposed by Ronald Kozach, head of the Adult Education Department.

The program, which would be a three-year pilot one, if approved, will provide the opportunity for high school drop-outs, both youth and adult, to receive a second chance to complete a high school education and to acquire marketable skills.

Kozach said the proposed program would be in no way change the philosophy of the Continuing Education Office. He explained that the importance of teaching basic academic skills to adults is a necessity.

Kozach suggested that the subject areas within the curriculum be structured so that two major goals can be realized by anyone enrolled in the program, regardless of academic ability.

He cited as the two goals:

toward completing work for an adult school diploma, include those from any accredited high school, approved trade or business school, armed forces school or program, whenever a student gives evidence, by examination of having mastered the subject matter prescribed, or from work experience, provided such experience has educational value.

Kozach suggests that the program be administered by an administrator who will have complete charge and when he or she is satisfied that the individual has successfully completed all requirements for graduation, will recommend to the proper authorities that a diploma be issued.

The diploma, which would be issued by the Board of Education, would be called a Vernon Adult High School Diploma, Kozach suggests.

If approved, the program would go into effect this year and would be reviewed at the end of each year for the proposed three-year period.

The board will also consider the manner in which the program would be funded, if approved.

to the subject areas within the curriculum, and fine arts, plus six elective units of credit.

Post Office Surveying Residents of Tolland

Tolland residents who are presently served by postal delivery offices other than Tolland have been sent a survey form to indicate whether they desire a change to the Tolland post office.

The form, sent by Paul Donovan, sectional carrier manager in Hartford, must be returned in the postage-free envelope provided no later than Feb. 21 in order to be counted in the survey.

Donovan noted that the postal delivery service will not be changed unless a sizable majority of customers request the change. A form not returned is regarded as a desire to retain present delivery.

The survey points out that no rural carrier will lose his job due to delivery changes, but also notes that a change would mean a change in address and may require a box location change from one side of a street to another.

A survey was held in 1971 and many residents failed to return the form.

Tricarico Issues Reminder On Refuse Disposal Rules

VERNON

A reminder to new residents of Vernon and to other residents who may have forgotten has been issued by Andrew Tricarico, director of public works, concerning rules and regulations governing refuse collection.

Tricarico said legal containers must be used. These are defined as being metal, having handles and not in excess of 22-gallon capacity. Plastic bags are also acceptable. If plastic cans are used the town is not responsible for them and will not replace them if damaged.

Cardboard boxes or packing cases to be disposed of must be broken down and left flat. Paper bags containing trash will not be picked up nor will sticks, stones or dirt.

Newspapers can be tied in bundles and left at curbside for pickup by the American Legion. Pickup in the Rockville section is the second Sunday of each month and the third Sunday in other areas.

Glass may be brought to the recycling glass center on West Rd. with the metal rings removed. Wood to be collected must be cut into four-foot lengths and tied in bundles.

Tires originating as residential waste can be brought to the Public Works Department, Rt. 21, and placed to the rear of the garage. Disposal of tires in the landfill area is not permitted. No automobile parts will be accepted.

Leaves may be put into plastic bags and the collectors will take up to five bags at a time.

Bulky items such as stoves, refrigerators, and dishwashers, will be picked up during the spring and fall months only. A call must be made to the public works office so that pickup may be scheduled.

Brush must also be cut into four-foot lengths and bundled. It should not be jammed into metal containers because of the difficulty of emptying them, Tricarico said.

When containers are in the lower Naugatuck Valley, Lloyd said despite the increase, there have been no widespread absences in schools and industries because of the flu.

Friday, Saturday Busiest Police Days

VERNON

Of the calls made this past fiscal year by the Vernon Police Department, 42 per cent involved service calls such as vacant house checks, noise and disturbance.

That was revealed in a report issued by the Criminal Justice Planning Division of the Capitol Region Council of Governments.

The study was made with a grant of $20,000 from the Connecticut Planning Committee on Criminal Administration and was directed by Barbara Steinfield for the council.

Of the remaining number of calls, the report states, 14 per cent pertained to motor vehicle incidents; 10 per cent involved criminal activity of a less serious nature and the violent crimes accounted for less than one per cent of the calls.

The report notes that Fridays are the busiest days of the week for Vernon Police but most of the more serious crimes occur on Saturdays.

This phase of the study concerned an analysis of the workload. The town will apply for an additional $20,000 grant for the next fiscal year to implement changes to be recommended next month, Ms. Steinfield said.

She said figures showing 29.4 per cent of all violent crimes occur on Saturdays and 17.3 per cent of the entire week's workload for police services occur on Fridays.

Ms. Steinfield added that these figures will help determine how to design a police force which best can respond to town needs.

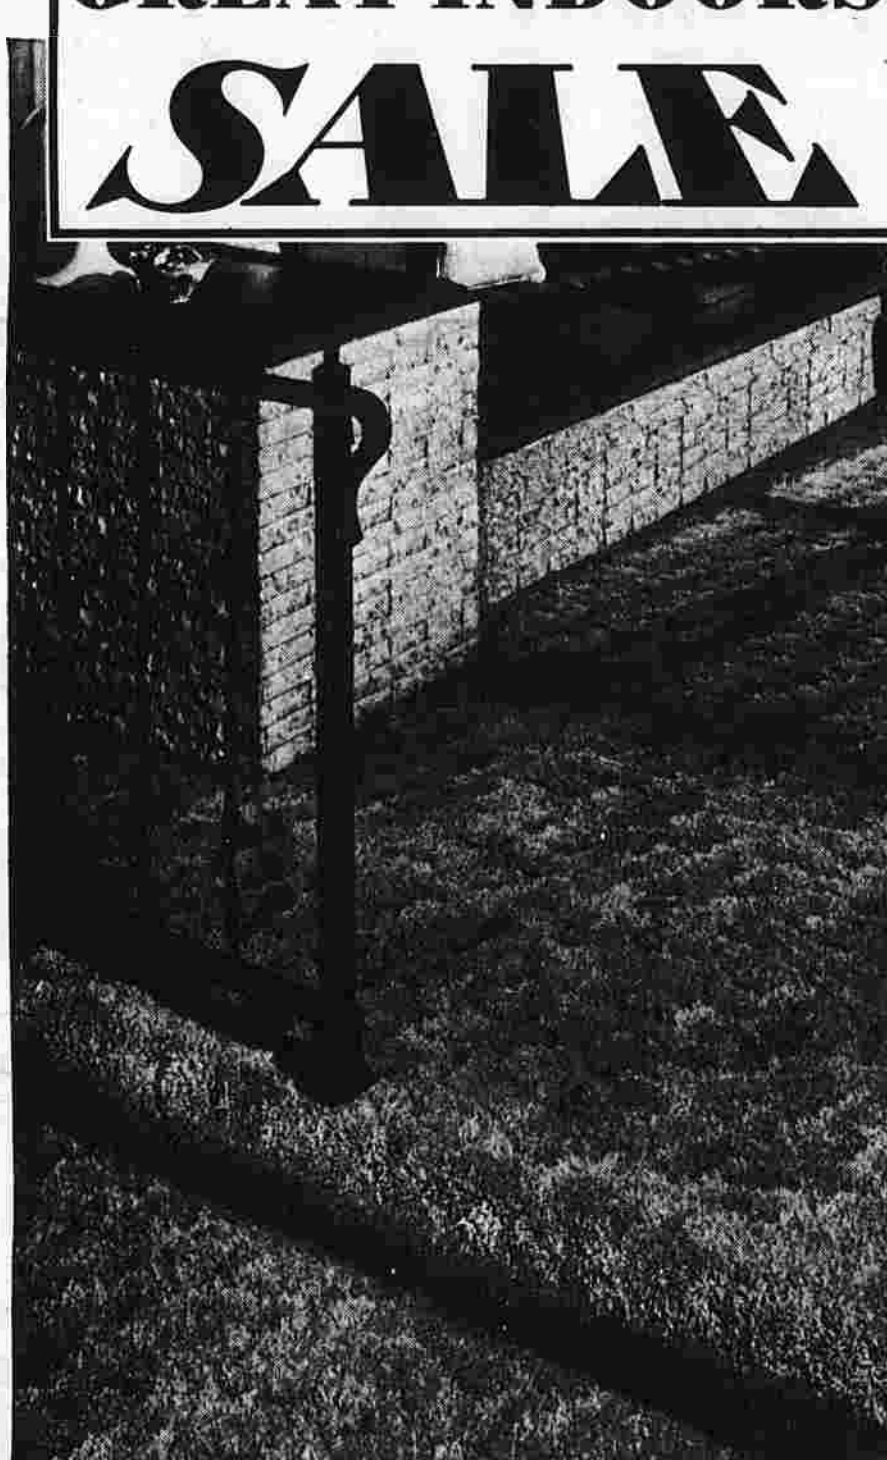

The recommendations will involve those to be made by the council, and town and police officials on the basis of the report.

Ms. Steinfield explained that the answer to problems is not just more manpower on the police force which is now made up of 37 persons. She said the purpose of the report, considering budget limitations, is to increase the effectiveness of the existing force.

In addition to the other percentages of workload already listed, the report states that less than seven per cent of the calls involved vandalism complaints and breaking and

Rham Board Seeks Advice For Future

Nancy Foote, architect for the Regional District Board of Education, has planned a letter which will be sent with a questionnaire to residents of the three towns in the district.

The letter reads in part: "As you are most likely aware, the results of the referendum on the middle school were: Marlborough 708 in favor, 229 opposed, Hebron 222 in favor, 800 opposed, Andover 83 in favor, 472 opposed.

"We still face problems of overcrowding and double sessions at Hebron. Our attorneys have advised us that, until a recent court decision is clarified, the regional school board should not present the middle school proposal again or make any decision to take any action which affects drastically the present district organization.

"The judge's decision, as you may know, said that regional boards of education should be made up with representation from member towns according to the towns' population. The legislature has been given until March 1 to determine a plan for carrying out the court's decision.

The questionnaire, which will be mailed with the letter deals with all aspects of the middle school architecture, site, cost, etc. Citizens are urged to return the questionnaires which will serve as the basis for discussion and possible action following the change in the makeup of the board.

Chris Dryer, board member from Andover, suggested that the board set up an informal committee to gather information on possible solutions to overcrowding and double sessions, since the board is restrained from taking drastic action until after the legislature acts.

Board members discussed some of the information they had gotten from voters who were opposed to the building of the new school. People were critical of the cost of the site and the fact that the building was not planned as a two-story school. Others criticized the flat roof on the proposed building.

The overall state of the economy was also mentioned as a possible reason for the rejection of the plan.

Woman Wins New Trial

HARTFORD (UPI) — A woman who had to undergo radical surgery after her doctor twice failed to properly diagnose a malignant lump in her breast Tuesday won a new trial against the doctor.

The Connecticut Supreme Court ruled that the Fairfield County Superior Court incorrectly rejected the testimony of a medical expert because he did not reside or practice in the municipality where the treatment was given.

Patricia A. Fitzmaurice, the plaintiff, is seeking to recover damages for personal injuries, alleged to have been caused by medical malpractice of Dr. Edward J. Flynn, her gynecologist in 1969.

Dr. Ira S. Goldenberg, a New Haven practicing surgeon specializing in breast cancer surgery and a professor of clinical surgery at Yale-New Haven Hospital, sought to testify on behalf of Ms. Fitzmaurice.

Dr. Goldenberg, in the absence of the jury, had testified in Superior Court that he dealt with obstetrician-gynecologists almost daily concerning breast lumps and was familiar with standards on the subject in most Connecticut communities.

In a unanimous opinion, the Supreme Court ordered a new trial because Judge James F. McGrath did not allow Dr. Goldenberg to answer a number of questions and other medical experts testified they were unfamiliar with the case.

around Mono Pond, with the first phase to consist of 35 to 40 houses, would be a "self-contained community," according to Jump.

Currently, the 450 acres that make up Mono Lake and the surrounding acreage is owned by Mono Lake Estates Inc. There are about 330 acres of land involved in the property.

The PZC informed Jump the first steps for any such proposal for the area would be an impact study on the ecology of the lake. According to Jump, he would want the lake dredged to make it four feet deeper at the shallowest point.

The Board of Education will hire an engineer to study renovation and design of the fire alarm system at Porter School at a cost not to exceed $2,000.

She added she is in favor of another town meeting because she feels those few at the recent town meeting — about 40 per-

STAMPS AND COINS

By RUSS MacKENDRICK

Here is one of the ancestors of the Civil War trader's token known as "store cards." This coin, which is in brass, doesn't look anything like what we'd call a card, but the inscription says "METALLIC BUSINESS CARDS 200 SO. FIFTH ST. PHILADELPHIA." Actually this is the store card of a maker of store cards: "R. LOVETT, JR. ENGRAVER & DIE-SINKER 1860."

While other die sinkers have used their products to advertise their own business, Robert Lovett has still another claim to fame. He is shown in the Red Book as the manufacturer of the Confederate cent of 1861. He prepared the dies, but struck only 12 of the coins before he became keenly aware of the danger of a treason rap and hid the whole works. They are now listed at $3,000 in proof condition.

Interestingly, the Liberty Head on the Confederate cent appears to be identical with the one on the store card above.

There are 2,823 varieties of these merchants' advertising pieces listed in Fuld's booklet "A Guide To Civil War Store Card Tokens." Some 400 cities or towns in 22 states were using the things in the years 1861 to 1864 when small change was scarce — mostly due to hoarding. The end came in June, 1864, when a law was passed making all private coinage illegal.

They are often spoken of as replacing 1-cent pieces, but actually they covered a wide range of values.

One merchant put out two kinds: "1 Glas Lager Beer" and "A Kentucky Baker-and-confectioner issued four, all the same size, saying "Half Pin," "One Quart," "Half Gall," or "One Gall" on one side and on the other "Milk."

They appeared with various money values designated: "Good for 5 Cts.," "One Dime," "Half Dime," and "25 Cents." Also, "Redeemable in sums of 5 Cts or more in postage currency."

A punster put out a coin with a dog's head, inscribed "Good for One Cent."

The titles of the establishments they fostered were marvelous in their scope: Dry Goods, Bread, Grain Dealer, Leather Merchant, Hardware and Stoves, Shoe Store, Stockings, Lumber Lath & Shingles, Spectacles, Telescope, Harp, Plow, Restaurant, Groceries, Ladies' Wear, Books Toys & Notions, Sandwich Bank — Deposit, Exchange Loan, Drover's Hotel, Magnolia Hotel.

There were many cards for druggists showing a mortar and pestle.

Stamp buffs will recognize another name — "Hussey's Special Messenger."

New York and Ohio were the source of the great bulk of these, with Cincinnati the real hotbed — 1,789 varieties representing 207 issues.

Connecticut was away behind with only four cities and 15 varieties (Bridgeport, Norwich, Waterbury, and Willimantic). Nothing from Manchester or even Hartford.

The booklet gives rarity ratings and indicates that the Willimantic tokens are worth a real scavenger hunt. There were just two kinds: "Dr. O.G. Ketteridge in copper, and "Arch Saloon, O. Hudd" in brass. The authors state that only 2 to 4 of these are still in existence.

There must be some attic in Willimantic, way under the eaves, having a beanopt full of Indian Heats pennies, salted with an occasional piece from Dr. Ketteridge and Rudd's Saloon. Let's go."

The Society of Polar Philatelists might take umbrage if I don't make a correction.

Washington Window: Fighting Discrimination

CHARLES E. FLINNER
WASHINGTON (UPI) —

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Labor Department enforcers have been following a policy of a hiring age ceiling of age 55. Other agencies in the state began looking at their hiring practices.

In Ohio, one company, which operated a plant with a large turnover, hired only one worker over 40 in the year before government scrutiny. In the following year, the plant hired 24 applicants over 40 and found out that the older workers tended to remain.

Sometimes job applications expose illegal age discrimination. One state in the Southwest got a letter from the federal government because a job announcement for park rangers indicated applicants had to be between 23 and 36.

In a Southern city where a hospital was being organized, a pool of potential nurses was being worked up through a questionnaire to local registered nurses. The questionnaire provided age brackets of up to 20 to 25, 25 to 30 and so on up to, but not beyond 40 to 45. The firm was contacted by the government.

Age discrimination can cost employers money, just as sex discrimination. In the Midwest a 55-year-old worker was reinstated and given $1,765 in lost wages because he had not been called back after a seasonal layoff although his work had been rated above average. Government probers investigators opened 340 jobs to older workers in state liquor stores which had been following a policy of a hiring age ceiling of age 55. Other agencies in the state began looking at their hiring practices.

found that younger employees with less service had been recalled, though.

Under other standards government enforcers helped win $4,928 in back pay for a mentally handicapped patient in a Missouri nursing home where she had worked for 17 years in the kitchen in return for her room and board. Otherwise, she was not on the payroll and not compensated in any amount in cash for services. The money was turned over to a guardian to use in the employer's behalf.

In a sex discrimination case, a firm providing airport passenger and baggage screening services agreed to pay back wages to 29 female guards who were paid from 15 cents to 50 cents an hour less than the established $3 an hour rate for male guards in the same kind of work.

In a more unusual case, a Puerto Rico grocery chain had to pay about $10,000 to male cashiers in an equal pay case. These men were not given overtime pay to a guardian to use in the employer's behalf.

The Pleasure Bond, by William H. Masters and Virginia E. Johnson. Little, Brown, $12.50
In some ways this is a debunking of the "sexual revolution" of which so much has been written in recent years. In this, their first book directed at the general public, the authors of Human Sexual Response talk about the importance of a couple's commitment to each other, of the need for mutual satisfaction. They downgrade the much-touted joys of promiscuity and knock elements of the "sexual revolution" over-all, a sensible, helpful book that rates a wide audience.

BOOK REVIEWS

lawyers and a district attorney's office. Under the system, a defendant pleads guilty to a lesser charge than the one for which he was arrested and is rewarded with a light sentence. No one likes its constant use, except the criminals who manipulate the practice to win easy freedom.

In this novel, a lawyer for the Legal Aid Society in New York City - the "one just man" of the title - concludes plea bargaining has ruined the American system of justice beyond repair. He decides to wreck the system in the hope that its replacement will be stronger, more efficient and just. His method is simplicity itself; he persuades his numerous Legal Aid clients to demand their right to a trial. Prisoners stream into city jails, overtaxing already crowded facilities. The system topples quickly, almost too quickly for the reader's credulity.

The result is chaos. A riot breaks out in the city's major prison. The police and firemen calm strikes. Armed vigilantes roam the streets. Then, the city's people begin to flee.

The calamities pile one on another with rising tempo but rarely seem irreparable. The author, who wrote Report to the Commission, has set the scene well in descriptions of the courts and of the people who work and are judged there.

One Just Man has the power of a pile driver and the pace of a racing police car. Its comment on the state of justice in America is enlightening and important to the future of our cities.

Election Laws Termed Confusing, Misleading

HARTFORD (UPI) - Connecticut election laws, approved last year in the heat of Watergate, are confusing and unworkable in some instances and unwelcome in others, says the state Elections Commission.

Chairman Lester Snyder told the legislature the major problem was a ban on political activity and contributions by "other than a natural person," but the laws could stand some tinkering in other areas.

minor violators will not have to face the full penalties. "The severest punishment in many of these cases is the public exposure, the headline," he said. He said another section that needs clarification is who should be credited with having made political contributions when they are paid through a corporation.

A University of Connecticut law professor, Snyder said the penalties for election law violations, $1,000 or a year in jail, should be flexible, so that checks drawn out of joint bank accounts. Other areas that need "tuning up," is whether campaign treasurers must approve all expenditures on behalf of their candidates. If they don't, he said, anyone could publish pamphlets on behalf of candidates which may prove embarrassing to the candidates.

Snyder also recommended the allowance for filing campaign financial reports should be lengthened to at least a week. Right now, he said, candidates must file their reports three days after the last day to be reported.

He called for the extension of the statute of limitations from the present one year to about

Gill Gets Committee Approval For Environmental Commissioner

HARTFORD (UPI) - Joseph N. Gill, pledging to keep Connecticut "moving in the direction of a clean and healthy environment," Tuesday won unanimous legislative committee approval as state environmental commissioner.

Some environmentalists, however, told legislators that Gill was insensitive to certain ecological issues when he served as agriculture commissioner under former Democratic Gov. John N. Dempsey, who left office in 1971.

ment of Environmental Protection was created by her predecessor, Republican Gov. Thomas J. Meskill. The House of Representatives now must vote on whether to approve Gill, and his acceptance is virtually assured in the Democratic-controlled chamber.

A number of persons spoke against Gill, including two Norwich city councilwoman who objected to his alleged lack of interest in promoting legislation to protect coastal wetlands. Councilwoman Elizabeth Gibbs said "coastal wetlands legislation was passed over his dead body rather than with his cooperation. His concern then was agriculture, not environment."

"Under Gill, the firm line of the Department of Environmental Protection will be abandoned. Industry will be allowed to pollute in the name of economy," she said. Councilwoman Sally Bolster, the unsuccessful 1974 Republican candidate for secretary of the state, opposed Gill because she wants "an advocate for the environment, not mass transit or agriculture."

She pointed to Gill's wish to extend 1.84 east to Providence as an example of his lack of concern for the environment. Gill, for his part, contended

The Lighter Side Down Memory Lane With Old Amnesia

By DICK WEST WASHINGTON (UPI) - Here's a little memory test for you: Drag out your old high school year book and get the names of your classmates you can identify without peeking at the names beneath the pictures.

Researchers who established these averages in a series of tests published by Psychology Today professed surprise over the outcome. "We were totally unprepared for our subjects' ability to retain the names and faces of their old classmates," they wrote.

Surprise was not my reaction, however. Having recently read a series of articles on how the brain functions, I could easily understand how the tests turned out the way they did.

Scientists are now convinced that the hemispheres of the brain operate separately and independently, each tending to its own knitting, so to speak. Within that concept, one can readily surmise what happens in the brain with respect to remembrance.

Material reaching the brain's "in" basket is instantly sorted out, some data going to the right hemisphere, some to the left. I'm not sure which hemisphere does what, but for illustration purposes the process can be described thusly: Information you will no longer need after you finish high school (names of classmates, e.g.) goes into the left hemisphere where it remains available for immediate recall. Often, it suddenly pops into your memory even when you aren't trying to recall it. And occasionally it pops into your

Can A Politician Find Happiness?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — presidential commission had concluded that more announced on a recent television talk show that after dabbling in politics from left to right since the 1960s, he had given it up as a waste of time.

Bean said he had discovered that there was no relationship between politics and the achievement of human happiness.

"Serious" politicians might dismiss Bean's pronouncement as the banality of a comedian who was taking himself too seriously. But his statement just happens to mesh with some new evidence of citizen disaffection that has at least one group of political professionals deeply concerned.

Pat Cadell, the young public opinion analyst who gained a reputation as a prodigy with the 1972 McGovern campaign, presented data to the winter conference of the American Association of Political Consultants that showed that politics was becoming a mere "spectator sport" instead of a means by which citizens feel they can influence government.

Cadell said recent surveys showed a "breakdown in the linkage" voters traditionally believed to exist between their choice of public officials and the making of government policies.

Americans, he said, were increasingly coming to the conclusion that the outcome of elections "have no bearing on my life."

Lance Tarrance, a pollster associated with Republican campaigns, had somewhat parallel findings to report. He said clients who were registered to vote but did not go to the polls were interviewed in 1972 and again in 1974.

The first time, pollsters found 15 per cent of the registered voters did not cast ballots because they were not interested in the election. The same reply in 1974 came from 25 per cent of the group, which Tarrance called "an alarming increase."

Tarrance recalled that a 1963

Solon Uges Assembly To Set Nursing Home Fee Schedules

ANSONIA (UPI) — Sen. Larry DeNardis, R-Hartford, said Tuesday the legislature should adopt a fee schedule for nursing home patients based on actual costs.

DeNardis, a deputy minority leader, told the Ansonia Rotary Club the present fee system has guaranteed high profits for nursing home operators.

"The present flat rate reimbursement system encourages high profits and patient abuse, with the government as a silent accomplice," DeNardis said.

Congress made what DeNardis called a fatal compromise ten years ago when it authorized the spending of billions of dollars for nursing homes with little or no regulation.

The Nursing Home Study Subcommittee should examine how nursing homes are financed to determine whether they are using questionable methods for boosting the expenses for which they bill the government, DeNardis said.

Nursing home operators can boost the cost of nursing homes, he said, by manipulating ownership, owning related services which figure in the costs,

Nation's Educators Face Tough Year

NEW YORK (UPI) — Educators will be struggling as usual with painful financial problems in 1975, but most have learned from past money crises, and they'll be coping like veterans with new ones.

The Education Commission of the States, in a report concluded in the fall of 1974, predicted "an extended period of curtailed services in the public schools."

Education accounts for about 40 per cent of all state expenditures in the United States and austerity will be a way of life for a long time.

"New and experimental programs will be especially hard hit and educators, who have long searched for innovative ways to improve schools, will be looking more now for ways to save money," the commission said.

Widespread cutbacks occurred during the past year in the purchase of instructional materials, construction projects, maintenance and repair. Although this retrenchment will continue in 1975, the commission noted:

"Nearly half of the states say their school districts are better prepared this school year than last to cope with the effects of inflation, if only because they already have behind them the bitter experience of 1973, when fuel shortages and price increases struck with unexpected severity."

College tuition, room and board fees will probably increase because of bigger bills for fuel and materials, cost of living increases for faculty and staff, according to the American Association of State Colleges and Universities.

Tuition, room and board costs for an undergraduate student attending school in one's home state averaged $1,286 in 1974. For a student from out of state, the average was $2,407.

Seventy-seven per cent of the public colleges and universities that raised fees reported to the association that the increases were due to inflation.

At private universities the need for more money is no less acute. But at Harvard, Yale and Princeton, where a student's tuition, book, room and board is incidental fees amount to about $6,000 a year, the belief is that those costs have gone as high as the traffic will bear.

For years, some educators have complained that institutions built academic programs without regard to whether the student's education would help get him or her a job after leaving school.

A national blueprint for career education in public schools from kindergarten through grade 12 was put together by Dr. Sidney Marland when he was assistant U.S. secretary of education. Marland, formerly superintendent of schools in Darien, Conn., and in Pittsburgh, now is president of the College Entrance Examination Board Corp. in New York.

This concept of learning theory and practice changes the emphasis from "learning learning's sake to preparing students in practical as well as economic ways for a useful, productive, and self-motivated life-style of their choice," Marland said.

It is the vocational school concept exploding in many more job directions. It has introduced a new word in pedagogy — skilling, or teaching students how to perform gainful work such as plumbing, selling, mechanics, and clerical.

Working Conditions Becoming Concern Of Nation's Churches

DAVID E. ANDERSON UPI Religion Writer

Job safety and working conditions seem an unlikely issue for the nation's churches.

But for a growing number of church people, the health and safety of the American people are becoming a No. 1 priority.

The Rev. Howard E. Spragg, executive vice president of the United Church of Christ's Board for Homeland Ministries, recently called on that 2-million-member denomination to "carry its healing ministry into the mines, factories, and other workplaces."

"In mines and in factories, on farms and in fields, millions of Americans work in a poisoned environment of noise, dust, chemicals, radiation and heat stress," according to Spragg.

As a first step, some 40 church and union people gathered at Airline House in Warren, Va., to work out a joint program to attack the issue and raise the awareness of the problem within their various constituencies.

Coming out of the conference was a resolution promising that the participants would "develop and intensify interreligious body cooperation on this issue through all appropriate means, including the organization of unorganized workers, to the end that the health and safety of the American people will be enhanced."

The resolution called occupational diseases "a national crisis" from which "at least 100,000 of America's workers are dying and thousands more are being disabled each year."

Jacob Clayman, secretary treasurer of the Industrial Union Department of the AFL-CIO, said the 100,000 represents only "the tip of the iceberg" because many occupational diseases are latent.

The Airline conference was designed as a beginning in what the church leaders hope will be a national movement "to acquaint church members with the urgency and extent of the problem of occupational disease," according to Spragg.

In the resolution, the participants called "the mobilizing of moral, spiritual and political concern and action" on behalf of workers.

According to Spragg, it would take OSHA's current inspection staff some 30 years to visit every work site covered by current safety and health law.

High priority work-related diseases that will be attacked in the campaign include black lung, brown lung, coke oven poisoning, chemical poisoning and radiation exposure.

One of the first political targets in the campaign is likely to be increased funding for the Occupational Safety and Health Agency of the Labor Department.

Spragg said the campaign would be "a new thrust for Protestants."

"For too long the Protestant churches, along with government and voluntary health agencies, have virtually ignored the human suffering caused by preventable disease and accidents in mines, factories and other work places," he said.

The armistice that ended the Korean conflict was signed at Panmunjom July 27, 1953, almost three years to the day after North Korean troops invaded South Korea.

A relief expedition of 18,000 American, British, French, Japanese and Russian troops lifted the siege on August 14. ON SECOND THOUGHT

By JAN WARREN
My Funny Valentine

Every year on Feb. 14, my husband stops at the drugstore on his way home from work, and buys me a Valentine. His heart is definitely in the right place, but his split-second timing makes me nervous. You see, I was in the drugstore this afternoon, and despite the fact that Valentine's Day is still a few days off, the cards were all picked over. "Don't you realize that some men get their Valentines at the last minute?" I cried to the clerk. "Oh, there were Valentines left, but they were in the wrong categories. There were plenty for teachers, dentists, godmothers, grandparents and great-aunts-uncles-removed. There were also lots of those mean, nasty studio cards. One had a picture on the cover of a man with his arms open in a wide embrace. 'Guess who wants you?' was the tantalizing question. Inside was the kicker, 'Nobody!'

Wildlife Threatened By Souvenir Hunters

Because of the indiscriminate hunting that has taken place in recent times, many species have been reduced in number, resulting in a ban on their killing until they recover," said Victor Casneri, director of the National Wildlife Office of the agriculture ministry. "But in no case can we allow the spectacle of thousands of four-day-old alligators being killed to be sold later to tourists," he said. Casneri said that the species threatened with extinction or which are low in number include jaguars, wild pigs, wild hares, alligators and various tropical birds. "This extermination is the result of sporting and commercial activities and requires strong protective measures," he said.

Salon Patrons List Problems

ST. LOUIS (UPI) - Women who go to beauty salons think inflation and corruption in government are the most pressing problems in American society today. The National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association released the results of a poll of beauty shop patrons taken from Oct. 27 to Nov. 2 last year. More than 15,000 American women took part in the poll, listing in order of importance 10 issues and answering yes or no to 11 questions. Following inflation and corruption in government in order of their importance to the beauty shop customers were: crime, taxes, shortages of needed items, protection of privacy, protection of the environment, disarmament and general easing of international confrontations, national health insurance and conditional amnesty for Vietnam draft evaders. Majorities of the respondents answered yes to such questions as favoring a national consumer protection agency, passage of the Equal Rights Amendment, tougher campaign spending laws and more tax breaks for persons on fixed incomes. The customers answered no to amnesty for draft evaders, mandatory national health insurance, basing to achieve racial balance in schools, raising taxes to cure inflation, restoring diplomatic relations with Cuba, increasing the food stamp program and paying higher prices for products to solve pollution. The results of the poll are being sent to President Ford and members of Congress.

Health District Talks Continue

By SOL R. COHEN
If Manchester is to form a Health District, as spelled out in legislation which provides state grants to health districts, it will be the Town of South Windsor only, at least in the foreseeable future. The Board of Directors Tuesday night authorized Health Director Dr. Alice Turek and the Advisory Board of Health to continue their dialogue and negotiations with South Windsor, and to postpone, for at least a year, inclusion of Tolland and Bolton in the district.

technical schools in general attitudes to the increasing attention to and interest in vocational training. The additional programs and curriculum provided not only make the choice of a technical education more attractive, but also provide a need. Enrollment Up
This year the enrollment at Cheney Tech increased more than 10 per cent over last year, says Garofalo. There are 435 students presently enrolled. Student capacity is 540. Garofalo's concern is "How much longer can we turn away kids?"

Health District Talks Continue

She remarked it might be more advantageous for Tolland to be in a health district with Enfield. The center would operate from Sept. 1 to May 30, Herbert Bandes, for MCC, distributed copies of the proposal — with all terms spelled out. He urged early action by the directors, noting that after an agreement is signed by the town, it must have the approval of the commissioner of Finance and Control, the state attorney general and the federal department of the Interior. The old Nike Site was purchased in 199 for $200,000 by the Manchester Health Department, especially services by the town's health director, yet doesn't want to lose the advantages a health district might offer. The advisory board recommended entering into a contract with South Windsor, noting many problems must be worked out — including answers to questions concerning costs, grants from the state, services by comparable agencies, etc. Dr. Turek said the proposed Manchester-South Windsor Health District is acceptable to the state health

Remember the Old Gyms?

Rolling through memoriam. Sitting courtside at the recent regular season NBA basketball game at the Hartford Civic Center featuring the Boston Celtics and Houston Rockets and later in press row for the first all-Catholic high school doubleheader which featured East Catholic thoughts of another era passed through my mind. Remember the days of the old gyms in the area? Today, most high schools and communities boast first class athletic facilities for the round ball game. The Manchester High and Cheney Tech didn't have a gym of its own for nearly a half century.

Hollister, St. James Courts

Beautiful, large playing courts are now sprinkled around town, mainly at schools but one can recall when the top playing surfaces were at the Hollister Street School gym...and the old St. James' School gym...the basement at South Methodist Church. Popular years ago for young adults was the West Side Rec. now used by youngsters, and getting into the East Side Rec. to play was a real treat. Saturday mornings, the late Joe Benson, custodian at the State Army, would open the doors to boys and this was a big thrill to play on the same floor as the adult teams of that era like the Guards, Rec Five and Rangers.

Road Floors, Too

On the 'road', there were some gyms that would be ruled out today as fire hazards. How many can go back to the gym over the general store in Broad Brook, or the Maple Street School in Rockville, the old Rockville High gym with the low ceiling at one end or the Polish-American Club gym in Rockville, the gym on the then Vernon County Home property, with stores in the corners, which were always red hot and someone always came away with burns, and they were not foot burns. The old Osborn Prison Farm in Enfield was another gym that is now only a memory. The inmates, under Coach Tony Rand, had a fine club with players answering to the name of Batty, Doc, Red and others. Players and officials were always treated to egg sandwiches and milk after the games. This was one gym where every fan, and there were about 100 a game, rooted for the outside team. Foot Guard Hall in Hartford was another 'buzzy' as well as the old Trinity College gym. This is only scratching the surface, recalling gyms of another day.

Fun in Old Days

Looking back now, it was just as much fun at the time, playing in the little gyms as later in life when one stepped out onto the surface at the old Madison Square Garden in New York, Boston Garden, the Madison Square Palace, the Uline Arena in Washington or the Broadmore Hotel in Philadelphia. Fortunately, with the changing times, and progress, not only are the hardwood courts bigger and better today, but the players are, too. Old timers can brag all they want about the good old days and how they would handle today's teams, but they cannot deny 'buz' these boasts. Today's players are better in every facet of the game.

Bulls' Hot Streak Doom for Knicks

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Chicago Bulls' hot streak is one of the good reasons why the New York Knicks apparently are doomed to be left out in the cold during the National Basketball Association's playoffs. The Bulls, recording their sixth victory in their last seven games, downed the Knicks, 101-84, Tuesday night and now lead the Midwest Division of the NBA by two games. At the same time, they knocked the Knicks 12 1/2 games out of first place in the Atlantic Division, leaving them only an outside chance at a wild card playoff berth. Bob Love scored a season-high 39 points, including 28 in the second half, to lead the Bulls to their victory. Chicago took advantage of a cold second period in which the Knicks made only 4 of 21 shots and went scoreless for spans of 4:08 and 4:46. Chicago Coach Dick Motta saw his club nearly blow a 20-point halftime lead and admitted he was concerned. "Our defense did a great job in the first half," Motta said, "and I don't think we let up in the second half. But New York played much more aggressively and came after us."

Indians Clinch Tournament Berth

Capture Thriller Against Enfield

By Earl Yost

Safely tucked away today is a berth in the 1975 CIAC Double A Basketball Tournament for Manchester High. Later this month for the first time in four years the Indians will be in the post-season scramble. Enfield, paced by rugged Hayden and diminutive Conte, managed to knot the count at 46-all in the dying seconds of the third canto. Manchester had led from Ray Sullivan's twin-point shortly after the opening tip. Enfield led twice, 53 and 55-54, with 5:44 remaining before Sullivan countered twice, first on a drive and next on a slide jumper. The remaining time found play cautious with Bob Ostberg of Manchester making his presence felt on the backboards. Sullivan took scoring laurels with 27 markers in a fine display of inside and outside shooting. Plus aggressive play, Quessel canned 12 points. Hayden paced the visitors with 25, Conte added 13 and Don Whittle a dozen points. Outscored from the floor by one hoop, 29-28, the locals tallied 12 of 16 tries from the four stripe and Enfield hit on six of 10. No one was happier than Pearson at the final buzzer. The Tribe has come on fast, now boasting seven wins in its last nine outings.

Nissalke Returns As Coach

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — In January, 1973, Tom Nissalke was fired as head coach of the NBA's Seattle SuperSonics and succeeded, by his assistant, Bucky Buckwalter. The Red Sox also announced that Gene Kirby, executive assistant to general manager, has been named vice president of administration. He will assume many duties formerly handled by John Alevizos, who recently resigned. The club also announced that five more players had signed 1975 contracts, leaving 13 unsigned including Carbo. UConns Better Home Record

The University of Connecticut trailed until midway in the second half but took and kept the lead in the final five minutes to defeat Rutgers, 69-59 and snap the Scarlet Knights' five game win streak. The Huskies' win was their 15th in 18 starts, and stretched their unbeaten streak to 11. Highly regarded Rutgers dropped only their fifth game in 21. In their Tuesday night game at the Connecticut Coliseum, Connecticut moved to a 30-22 halftime lead and led Rutgers by 18 points, leading to a 75-54 victory over Stonehill, and Hartford smothered Lowell Tech 11-7. The Huskies trailed from the outset until Tony Hanson, who scored 15 points, dropped in two free throws to make it 47-37 and managed to ward off a pressing attack by Rutgers. The visitors were led by Phil Sellers, who had 24 points, but only eight came in the tight second half. Rutgers' Mike Dabney had 22 points and teammate Hollis Copeland had 19. A well balanced attack was led by UConn freshman substitute guard Joey Whelton, who connected on seven of 10 shots and had four of five free throws in an 18 point performance, his best so far. Also hitting double figures for Connecticut were Al Weston with 12 points, Les Oles with 12 and John Thomas with 11. Connecticut shot 49 per cent from the floor, hitting 37 of 75 shots and Rutgers had a 44.7 percentage on 34 of 76. Central held off visiting Stonehill which edged to within one point after Virginia. Under Buckwalter, the Stars compiled a 24-32 record. Nissalke was to join the team in Memphis today for a game against the Sounds.

Mayor Says Lincoln Issue Is Politically Motivated

By SOL R. COHEN
An 1,100-signature petition asking for restoration of the area in front of Lincoln Center to its original grass and lawn was presented Tuesday night to the Manchester Board of Directors. It produced a charge from Mayor John Thompson the petitions were politically motivated. The petitions were presented by Mrs. Verna Hubbard of 6 Adelaide Rd., a former Manchester resident who moved from town and returned here eight months ago, she said she was dismayed to find how much of Manchester's aesthetics and beauty has been lost or disturbed. She urged, "Wait and see how it looks when completed, before you complain." "What you are doing and what Mr. Zinsner is doing is unfair to the board," said Thompson. Director Carl Zinsner, a former member of the Conservation Committee, joined those protesting the Lincoln Center changes and encouraged circulation of the petitions. "I question your last-minute concern," said Thompson to Zinsner, "especially since it was you who criticized the Conservation Commission for criticizing the board." Thompson added, "It's unfair to accuse this board of being against what's best for Manchester." Zinsner denied that any political motivation in heading the opposition to the Lincoln Center project. He acknowledged the Conservation Commission was late in its

East Virtually Ousted In HCC Tourney Play

By Len Auster

There were many ifs going into last night's HCC clash between East Catholic and Hartford. The Hartford Civic Center, if the Eagles were to get into the HCC tournament, would've been greatly enhanced.

There were many ifs in the fiercely fought physical battle. If East Catholic had won and if the rebounds could've been latched onto.

Marquette won its fifth straight game to lift its record to 16-3, taking an early lead and coasting past Western Carolina, 63-53.

For 49, including a bushel of offensive taps, but couldn't get the shots to drop. As Ogrodnik sadly commented, "When you don't put the ball in the hoop, you don't win."

With the decision, Northwest raised its overall mark to 9-8, assuring itself a place in the State Tournament in the Class B Division.

The Indians judiciously used their shots. They were 18 for 35 in field goal attempts, nine for 18 from the charity stripe.

Panel Queries Colson

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Recently freed Watergate figure Charles W. Colson was interviewed by the staff of the Rockefeller Commission Tuesday about his knowledge of CIA activities.

Since being released from jail last month, Colson has made several allegations about the CIA's involvement in the Watergate scandal. Commission spokesmen would not confirm Colson was being interviewed, but his lawyer, Kenneth L. Adams, said, "We'll be there answering whatever questions they have."

In a recent interview, Colson said it was "inconceivable" the CIA did not have advance knowledge of the Watergate break-in. He said that Watergate burglar E. Howard Hunt, a former CIA agent, forwarded details of the burglary to CIA director Richard Helms.

Predicting Endangered Coronary Patients

By TOM UHLENBROCK ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Nearly half of the 600,000 Americans suffering heart attacks each year die without warning months after their first attack.

Using a computer and portable tape recorders, a team of researchers has pinpointed clues believed to help predict which of the heart patients will be among the survivors. The problem now is to see what can be done to help those with that risk.

"Our focus was to see whether we could identify in advance people who were prone to sudden death," said Dr. Charles Oliver, chief of cardiology at Jewish Hospital and an associate professor of medicine at the Washington University School of Medicine.

Oliver and his colleagues studied nearly 300 persons over a three-year period, using patients under 71 years old who were released from cardiac care units after suffering proven heart attacks. Twenty-five of those studied have died since their initial heart attack.

"We knew a certain number of these people were going to die so we looked for clues by collecting information in advance so we could go back and compare those who didn't die with those who did," he said.

With portable tape recorders wired to the patients' chest for up to 24 hours, the researchers took readings of heartbeats at intervals over six months after the patients were released from hospitals. The tapes then were analyzed by a special IBM computer which detected irregularities.

"We knew sudden deaths were caused by an electrical event," Oliver said. "The heart normally is caused to beat in a regular fashion by an electrical wave that causes it to contract. When you have sudden death the heart does not contract but sits there quivering. This is called ventricular fibrillation. If a shock is not sent through the heart within four minutes you have sudden death."

"We know that this electrical disturbance doesn't just come out of the blue but is preceded by an irregular heartbeat called a premature ventricular contraction or pvc," he explained.

"What we found from the small number of people we studied is that both those who died and those who survived have a high level of pvc's during heart attacks and in the hospital," he said. "But in the next two months the survivors had very few pvc's while in contrast those who died suddenly continued to have a high level."

"We are convinced there is little doubt that pvc's are associated with subsequent sudden death."

After identifying those likely to experience a sudden death, Oliver said there are three possible preventions.

The patients can be placed on medication which suppresses the irregular beats. "All the drugs currently being used, unfortunately, have serious side effects," Oliver said. "There are some new drugs on the horizon which haven't been approved yet, though."

The second solution involves vein bypass surgery on the heart which is used for persons suffering severe pain of the chest, called angina, but has not been proven to prolong life.

The third alternative, which Oliver described as "even wilder," is implanting a small instrument, similar to a pacemaker, in the patients. "It can detect quivering and send out a shock to defibrillate the heart and warn a person to get to a hospital. It is not yet available but may be something for the future," he said.

Amish Help Establish Biggest Cheese Plant

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa. (UPI) — When Jack Marti began expanding his Swiss cheese plant into the biggest in the world, he didn't dare touch the horse barn which stands next to a new milk processor.

About 25 of his employees use the barn for the horses that bring them to work in wooden buggies. The men are Amish. Their religion doesn't permit them to own or drive automobiles.

Marti admits the contrast is great between the horse and buggy parked next to modern diesel trucks depositing milk from nearby farms. But he owes his business and part of his success to the Amish.

As Marti tells it, Amish farmers set up a milk cooperative here about 20 years ago to sell the products from their dairy farms. But in 1955 Pennsylvania established guidelines for refrigerating milk.

The requirements meant electric cooling and the Amish — a religious sect descendant from the Mennonite Church — are not permitted to use electricity or many other conveniences of modern American life because it does not conform to their beliefs of remaining close to nature.

So a group of Amish farmers led Marti enough money to build a milk distributing plant so they would not have to travel to deposit their products or hire trucks to transport their milk.

"Well, I guess you could say I needed them and they needed me," Marti said in the waiting room of his newly completed offices.

A few years later, Marti began making cheese from the milk. Today, his plant produces from 80,000 to 90,000 pounds of cheese a day which is distributed across the nation to wholesalers.

He employs 70 workers and 25 of them are Amish, many the sons of his original financial backers.

The Amish dress in the same blue jeans and white aprons as the other workers in the plant, but their beards and wide-brimmed dark hats set them apart.

The Amish workers are more aware of current events than their brothers who work on Amish farms or their sisters who spend much of their time baking over kerosene ovens. No Amish own radios or televisions.

State School Board Backs Vernon Bus Route Decision

In a 43 vote, Tuesday, the State Board of Education backed the decision of the Vernon school board to cease providing bus transportation for students from the Boulder Ridge area (off Tunnel Rd.) who attend the Lake Street School. The students were allowed to ride as long as there was room on the buses going through that area. They are within the walking limits set by the state and local boards. Parents of the some 50 students involved were notified early in September that the children would no longer be transported by bus. The decision was made due to the fact there were 64 students to be bused and the bus capacity was 60. The parents came to the next Board of Education meeting and presented the argument that the hilly terrain and poor walking conditions warranted transporting the children even if they are within walking distance. It was at that meeting that the board voted to continue transportation until the matter was resolved. At another board meeting a petition was presented by 152 residents of the Boulder Ridge area and the board was asked to conduct a public hearing on the matter before the board and following this the request was turned down. The parents then petitioned the state board for a hearing and this was conducted early in December. Yesterday's action was the result of this hearing. Bruce Wilson who has been the spokesman for the Boulder Ridge parents, said the group is considering court action to overturn the state board's vote. He suggested as another route, seeking action by the PTO Council members demanding the installation of safe sidewalks. The state and local boards agreed that the conditions along Tunnel Rd. leading to the school do not constitute a hazard. The parents contend the terrain within the development is not conducive to safe walking. They said, "there is no margin for safety," noting that the increased traffic and congestion cause an overflow of the young students onto the highway, which they termed an extremely dangerous roadway. The votes by both the state and local boards were halting votes, both being 4-3.

Vernon to Rebid Bank Building Job

Bids for the electrical and plumbing contracts for the People's Bank Building owned by the town of Vernon, will go out for a second time, Mayor Frank McCoy said Tuesday. Until the town offices are moved from the Administration Building, to the Memorial Building which is now being renovated, the offices of Common Pleas Court 19 will be housed in the bank building. Future plans for that building call for making it into a Senior Citizen Center but meanwhile some of the space will be used by the court. Before signing the contract the court required certain improvements to make the building suitable for its purposes. Bids went out for changes in plumbing and electrical improvements but the mayor said an assortment of bids came in and there was a question as to whether or not they all pertained to the same thing. It was then decided that it would be more feasible, in the long run, to rebid the project and go to complete new systems rather than repair the old systems. Under Judge Newman's ruling, no attorney may discuss anything about a case, including the court record. Houston is the third largest port in the United States in terms of tonnage handled, behind New York and New Orleans.

Vernon Issues Fact Sheet on School System

The town of Vernon has one high school, one Middle School, one sixth-grade school, and six elementary schools serving more than 7,000 children, a fact sheet put out by the Board of Education states. In addition, a Regional Vocational Agriculture Center and a Regional Center for trainable retarded children are located in Vernon and are administered by the board. When schools opened in September the enrollment was as follows: 1,961 at the high school; 1,119, Middle School; 570, sixth grade; and 3,332 at the elementary schools. At Talcottville School for the trainable retarded children, the enrollment is 94. These are children from other area towns as well as Vernon. The staff consists of 564 full-time professional and non-professional employees plus about 100 part-time staff members. The system is operating this year on an $8 million budget. Curriculum offerings range from basic programs of study to readiness in pre-school programs, to the introduction of mini-courses at the high school level and Adult Education programs. Students from the middle and high schools are offered field

Parallel Parking On Main Street

Main Street shoppers looking for a parking spot have many off-street lots to choose from, many angle spots still on the street in the shopping district, and, in some of the most convenient places, parallel spots. At the suggestion of Mayor John Thompson, Scott Vinci of 90 Clinton St. demonstrates an easy way for shoppers to master those spots. In photo No. 1, Scott pulls past the spot he has picked to sit parallel with the car in front of it. In No. 2, he has shifted in reverse, checked cars behind him, turned his front wheels to the right and is backing slowly. In No. 3, Scott's front bumper has come even to the back bumper of the car in front of him, and he is turning his front wheels sharply to the left as he continues to back up. No. 4, he has backed up to the bumper of the car in back of him and is straightening out his front wheels. No. 5, Scott has pulled forward to the middle of his parallel spot. Scott, winner of driver safety contests and a student at Manchester Community College, insists that anyone can do the same every time if they just follow these five steps. There is no excuse for shoppers to avoid these choice spots, or put their cars on the sidewalk (a frequent occurrence), or leave one end of their car stuck out in the roadway, he says. The very wide, long convertible used in these photos was loaned to The Herald by Ted Trudon Pontiac of Main Street. The photos were taken from the top of the Economy Electric Supply building at 824 Main St. (Herald photo by Barlow)

Days of Cheap Roast Gone Forever

NEW YORK (UPI) — The prices of other products have gone up at the same rate. Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz says he is over-optimistic that food prices generally will level off in the next few months. At a news conference here, Butz said food prices will level off, "but we are not going to get back to the 49-cent-a-pound beef roast unless we get back to the $1.50 minimum age." Butz said the farmer is only getting 40 percent of the money consumers spend on food, with food processors and distributors getting the largest cut. "In 1974, food prices went up 14 percent and 80 percent of that increase came after I left the farm," he said. According to Butz, in the last 20 years—with the exception of 1974—food price increases have not outstripped wage hikes and boycotts are probably backing because they "send signals to farmers to cut production because demand will be down. What we need in America is to produce more, and giving this kind of signal to the producers is no way to get it."

Feeding the World's Hungry

By PEGGY POLK
ROME (UPI) — It was a milestone in man's history: 120 nations agreeing to work together toward finally eradicating the age-old scourge of hunger.

Experts are preparing to meet in February to discuss technical aspects of setting up stockpiles. A first test is whether the nations will keep their promise of $1 billion worth of food aid starting this year. So far, little has materialized.

But, in the judgment of experts, what is crucial is establishment of the proposed fund to increase the agricultural output of the hungry nations. The poor nations must be helped to help themselves.

There had never been an attempt to this scale to attack hunger and malnutrition. The conference was unprecedented and so was its expression of will.

Hungry Are Waiting
That was in November. Now the world's hungry are waiting for the will to be translated into action.

Boston FDA Office Cleared In Privacy Invasion Case

BOSTON (UPI) — A Presidential drug abuse agency has cleared the Boston office of the Food and Drug Administration of any wrongdoing in the questionable publication last month of the names of eight addicts at a Lowell drug treatment center.

An audit of a federal privacy statute was a technicality, said Dr. Robert L. DuPont, director of the President's Special Action Office for Drug Abuse Prevention.

DuPont also noted that while no violation had occurred, the FDA had unofficially changed its inspection policy and was requiring only code numbers, and not names, in audit of agency records.

Former addicts receiving methadone treatment at SHARE, Inc., a drug rehabilitation center in Lowell, SHARE said it had indicated a willingness to file suit.

Audit said he will pursue the matter "through administrative channels. I'm going to ask (the FDA) that they go into their Confidential Patient Files and return to me everything bearing the identity of any of my clients."

Oil-Rich Venezuela Faces Unrest Ahead

By JOHN VIRTUE
CARACAS (UPI) — When elected president 14 months ago, Carlos Andres Perez said oil-rich Venezuela might be facing its last chance at democratic government.

Perez, a left-of-center Social Democrat, meant the nation's poor would have to benefit visibly from the wealth from quadrupled oil prices or else there could be social upheaval.

Armed fighting is the only way for the implementation of socialism in Venezuela, said the organization, whose leader, Carlos Betancourt, was one of 23 political prisoners who tunneled their way out of the San Carlos military prison last month.

Brown U Faces Cuts In Staff
PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — Brown University, one of the nation's leading institutions of higher learning, may be forced to make drastic cuts in its faculty staff and increase its tuition charge by 10 per cent next year.

Dr. Donald F. Hornig, president of the Ivy League school, has distributed a "white paper" to faculty members saying 75 faculty positions may have to be eliminated over the next "few years" and that the proposed tuition increase will be presented to the university's corporation this weekend.

Hornig said the fee for one academic year at the school would be increased by $350 to $3,850. Hornig said the school has become increasingly dependent on its endowment fund to make ends meet, and that it is fast diminishing. He said if withdrawal from the university's capital funds continue at the present rate, the unrestricted endowment reserves would be gone in five years.

Despite reductions in the use of oil and electricity, Hornig said the school's energy bill has doubled and will exceed $2-million next year. It is hoped that the tuition hike will raise $2 million in additional income.

AMC Layoffs Announced
DETROIT (UPI) - A layoff Monday involving 8,500 workers was announced by American Motors Corp. The company said it will concentrate on the production of a single model, the small Pacer. In the auto industry there is a total of 252,900 auto workers idled this week, compared with 275,130 on short and long-term layoffs last week. Industrywide, there was a 95-day supply of unsold cars at the start of February. A 50 to 60-day supply is considered normal.

Mardi Gras
NEW ORLEANS (UPI) - Police Tuesday shot and killed a man in the French Quarter and a 13-year-old boy was crushed to death beneath a heavy flatbed truck used as a float. In addition a seven-story riverfront landmark scheduled for renovation was destroyed by fire, possibly the work of arsonists. In spite of all this, thousands of Mardi Gras revelers sang, danced, drank and shouted themselves to exhaustion. And police estimated the crowd this year was smaller and more behaved than normal.

Shor Named Consultant
NEW YORK (UPI) - "Toots" Shor, in his words "a creepy saloonkeeper" for more than 40 years will serve as a $150-a-day consultant to New York City's Off-Track Betting Corp. The OTB announced the hiring of Shor Tuesday as the corporation moves into the general sports betting field. Details of how OTB would operate in the field of all-sports betting had not yet been worked out.

Policeman Killed
WESTWOOD, Mass. (UPI) - A veteran police officer and a young U.S. Army officer were shot to death Tuesday night in a gun battle which left another policeman seriously wounded and a suspect in critical condition.
Spokesmen said Patrolman William E. Sheehan, 57, the senior officer of the Westwood Police Department, was killed when he was struck by three bullets allegedly fired by Armand Therrien, 44, a former New Hampshire state trooper.
Sheehan's partner, Richard O'Donnell, 28, was wounded but managed to return fire, critically wounding his assailant.

Favors Rationing
BOSTON (UPI) - U.S. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., has proposed gasoline rationing and government control of offshore oil exploration as part of a program to meet the nation's energy needs.
During a wide ranging news briefing Tuesday, Kennedy said President Ford's energy program, which includes a tax of up to $3 a barrel on imported oil is "arbitrary and ill-advised."
He said he is "increasingly hopeful" Congress will pass a resolution to block the President's program but conceded that votes are not present to override an executive veto. He said the Senate is short "three or four" votes.

Host Families Sought For European Teachers

Manchester area families are needed to entertain English-speaking European teachers as guests in their homes for a 10-day period next summer. The program is sponsored by the American Host Program.
American Host is one of the few non-governmental programs designed to show the American way of life to foreign teachers by pairing them with American families.
Being a host family is open to anyone who has the desire to increase understanding and friendship between Americans and Europeans.
Host families are required to provide a private room, meals for their guests, the opportunity to meet their friends, neighbors and perhaps fellow teachers and to see places of interest in the area.
American Host arranges all transportation. Host families are asked to meet their guest upon arrival in their area.
The deadline for information is March 15.

Love is losing yourself in consideration and care for someone else. Love is a language which the blind can see and the deaf can hear. And love, the kind of love that Christians are to manifest, doesn't depend on the other person earning it.

Social Security System Termed Strong, Healthy

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The Social Security system is strong and healthy despite a long range need for additional financing, eight former government officials said in a partisan white paper.
"Attacks on the system designed to create doubts of its soundness and durability are a disservice to the nation," said the unprecedented defense of the program that provides monthly benefits to more than 30 million retired and disabled persons and survivors of workers.
It said there would be enough money to continue payments through the rest of the century and it was a credit of Social Security critics to claim otherwise.

The 4,500-word white paper, entitled "Social Security: A Sound and Durable Institution of Great Value," was signed by five former secretaries of Health, Education and Welfare and three former Social Security commissioners.
The former HEW secretaries were Elliot Richardson and Robert Finch, who both served in the Nixon administration; John Gardner, former HEW secretary, chairman, and Wilbur Cohen, instrumental in the development of Medicare, both under President Johnson, and Arthur Flemming, an Eisenhower appointee who is now President Ford's commissioner on aging.
The former commissioners who participated were Charles Scottland, William Mitchell and Robert Ball.
Through the paper takes to task those critics who accuse of making "destructive," "irresponsible" and sometimes "vicious" attacks on the nearly 40-year-old social insurance system, it never names the critics.

SOCIAL SECURITY

Q. My uncle was in the Army in World War II, but since then he has worked in low paying jobs. He was recently fired from a night-waiter job and has just turned 65. Can he get Supplemental Security Income payments?
A. Your uncle should call or write Social Security office for information about applying for Supplemental Security Income payments. He may also be eligible for Social Security retirement checks and he can get help in applying for them at the Social Security office.
Q. My 23-year-old sister was severely injured in an accident a few weeks ago, but I know she cannot get Social Security disability because she has never worked. Can she get Supplemental Security Income payments?
A. Possibly. Severely disabled people who are not expected to be able to work for a year or more may be eligible for Supplemental Security Income payments if they have little or no income and limited resources. Your sister should call or write a Social Security office for information about applying for Supplemental Security Income.

Q. My parents get monthly Supplemental Security Income payments. What do they have to report to Social Security?
A. They should report any change or an expected change in wages, resources, self-employment earnings, pension payments, or other income. A change of address, separation, or any other change of living arrangements should also be reported.
Q. I just applied for Supplemental Security Income payments, and now I have to move out of the state to live near my brother. What about my payments? Are the requirements and payments different from state to state under the Supplemental Security Income program?
A. Federal Supplemental Security Income payments are uniform all over the country. Some states add to the federal payments, however, so moving could affect your Supplemental Security Income. Before you move, report your new address to your Social Security office.

Q. I am 60 and want to apply for Supplemental Security Income payments. What papers will I need when I go to the Social Security office to apply?
A. You will need proof of your age, something that shows what income, if any, you have, records of bonds and savings accounts, a tax assessment notice or other documents showing the value of any property you own, and any life insurance policies you may have.

Firm Gets SavEnergy Award

Manchester's Pressure Blast Manufacturing Co. of 41 Chapel St. has received a national citation for its efforts to conserve energy in the U.S. Commerce Department's SavEnergy Campaign.

Bernard, vice president; and John Cabitor, trade specialist with the Commerce Department.

Pressure Blast's four-point energy management program started a year ago.

Pressure Blast, which came to Manchester in 1958, makes wet and dry blasting equipment used for cleaning, de-burring, de-scaling, and improving surface finish of metal parts.

Railroad Delays Shutdown Plans

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Trustees of the bankrupt Penn Central Railroad said Tuesday "new and favorable developments" have enabled them to postpone a planned shutdown of the rail line's operations.

The trustees, in a Feb. 5 appearance before the House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, announced the railroad would have to begin a gradual cessation of operations at the end of this week because of an inability to meet its payroll.

"Since then," the trustees said in a statement Tuesday, "several new and favorable developments have enabled us to postpone that announcement. These developments should permit the railroad to continue operating while the Congress acts to grant such relief as will be necessary to avoid such a shutdown."

The trustees said one of the factors was the House Commerce Committee's approval of legislation which would make needed cash available to the line. The subcommittee on transportation of the House Appropriations Committee also gave its approval of the funds to meet the line's short-range needs, the trustees said.

The decision to postpone the shutdown was made, the trustees said, after they received a letter from John J. McFall, D-Calif., chairman of the subcommittee, who urged them to delay the postponement "in view of his confidence that Congress would be able to act in adequate time."

Newport Gets Grant To Aid Lobstermen

WASHINGTON (UPI) The city of Newport, R.I. will get a $250,000 outright U.S. grant to make loans to lobstermen whose gear was wiped out by foreign trawlers last month, according to Sen. John O. Pastore, D-R.I.

The U.S. Economic Development Administration has agreed to provide the money but the actual grant is being held, pending receipt of the city's application. The city will negotiate low interest and payback terms with the fishermen and use the money as a revolving fund for future emergency economic assistance, a Pastore aide said Monday.

"I'm very pleased to say the least," Newport Mayor Humphrey J. Donnelly III, said. "This should help these lobstermen a lot."

The fishermen lost an estimated $150,000 worth of pots on Jan. 19 when a fleet of foreign trawlers, allegedly Soviet, tore through their fishing area. The U.S.-U.S.S.R. Fisheries Claims Board is currently considering their claims for damages.

Big Investment

BOSTON (UPI) — John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Co. says that its investments in New England's economy totaled $870.9 million in 1974.

That figure, an increase of $34.4 million over 1973, represented about 8 1/2 per cent of the firm's holdings, the company said.

Gerhard D. Bleicken, the firm's chairman and chief executive officer, said mortgage loans accounted for more than half the New England total, $439.5 million.

J. Edwin Matz, president and chief operations officer, said that total insurance sales in the region were almost $14.8 billion.

HOW TO SAVE $195.00

Every bank tells you that you ought to save. The bank that listens tells you how.

Get organized.

Don't make two trips anywhere when one will do. It costs about 15¢ a mile to drive a car these days, so concentrate on cutting back at least 25 miles a week.

Typical Annual Savings: $195.00

Where you save matters too:

To begin with, you should do all your banking in one place. (Just driving another mile to and from another bank will cost you about 30¢ each time you do it.)

And, because we offer our savings customers absolutely free personal checking, plus high interest rates, plus every banking service you'll ever need . . . well, it just makes savings sense to save at the bank that listens.

In 1974 more people saved at CBT than in any other year. There must be a reason.
