Three Nixon Aides Sentenced To Lengthy Prison Terms

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John N. Mitchell, H.R. Haldeman, and John Ehrlichman, Richard Nixon's most trusted aides, were sentenced today to up to eight years in prison for their part in covering up America's worst political scandal.

Writing perhaps the final major chapter of Watergate, U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica also sentenced Robert C. Mariani to up to three years in prison.

The four defendants made no personal statements after the sentencing, but lawyers for Haldeman and Ehrlichman made determined pleas for their clients.

Low read to the court part of a statement by Ehrlichman which noted he had been earlier convicted of violating the civil rights of Dr. Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

Manchester Evening Herald OPINION

Given 'Em Hell, Barry

That's right. We said Barry, not Harry, though the image of the late president definitely is in mind. Harry S. Truman lambasted the "do-nothing" Republican 80th Congress in the 1948 election campaign. Barry Goldwater has taken on the top-heavily Democratic "do-nothing" 94th Congress in 1975. The present Congress is "probably the most dangerous" the country has ever had, the junior GOP senator from Arizona warned the other day. "They have no concept of what makes the economy run and they have no concept of how money is used to make money. They have the attitude you can spend and spend and elect and elect even though this country is close to bankruptcy." He added, not too hopefully, "If the country can survive this Congress, it can survive anything." Now it goes without saying that Goldwater doesn't come on like a Truman. He's much too polite, for one thing. (Anybody who could listen with a straight face, as Goldwater recently did during a visit to San Clemente, while Richard Nixon discussed the possibility of his serving the Republican party in some capacity, maybe in fund-raising - ye gods, fund-raising! - would have to be the quintessence of politeness.) Nor does the average working stiff identify with Goldwater, although he is closest to the ordinary Joe than a lot of those who claim to be the common man's defender. But Barry Goldwater shares one attribute with the scrappy Truman: Personal integrity. The reason he is the junior senator from Arizona is because he resigned when he ran for president in 1964. He lost four years of valuable seniority while waiting for the next senatorial election. Contrast that with Lyndon B. Johnson, who got a court ruling that he could run simultaneously for vice president and Texas senator in 1960. In 1964, Goldwater told it straight - that the nation might have to go to war in Vietnam to prevent a Communist takeover. Lyndon Johnson was shocked, and elected. It is poetic justice, and not a little sad, that Barry Goldwater is about the only one around to "give 'em hell" now that the chickens of economic chaos incubated during the Roosevelt and Truman New Deal Fair Deals and hatched by LBJ's Great Society are coming home to roost. Nobody will listen to you, Barry. But give 'em hell, anyway.

Whose Interest?

Less than four decades after a simpler generation of Americans was outraged by the bombing of Ethiopian villages by Italian dictator Mussolini's air force, American-made jets are being used to level Ethiopian villages. This time it is Ethiopians bombing Ethiopians - or rather the central government attempting to put down insurgents in the breakaway province of Eritrea. It is essential to our national interest that Ethiopia be armed with American jets. If the Eritreans succeed in becoming independent, it will be in our national interest to arm them, too, to the teeth. If there are Martians, no doubt when we land on their planet we will find it in our national interest to shower them with weapons. To the tentacles.

Hay, Hay!

The phrase, "and that ain't hay," has long been used to indicate the value of something being talked about, with the implication that hay is of little value. Not any more. According to the National Hay Association, hay has joined the lengthening list of items the world is short of today, and prices have gone up accordingly. In 1973, more than 62-million acres were planted in hay crops. Total production was 135-million tons, with a total value of more than $5 billion. That was when hay sold for about $35 a ton; today it's shot over $100. And that - that we say it? - ain't peanuts.

Standing Up To The Oil Cartel

This nation has been woefully lacking in innovative ideas for stanching the multibillion-dollar drain on the economy caused by the quadrupling of petroleum prices by the oil nation's cartel, the OPEC. Three experts did suggest one possible approach the other day, however. Economists John Perry of the Brookings Institution and M.A. Adelman of MIT, along with former Federal Energy Administration head John C. Savhail, testified before the Senate subcommittee on multinational corporations. The United States, they said, should adopt a quota on how much oil it will allow to enter from abroad, then seek secret bids from producing nations on the right to supply it. This would introduce competition into the oil import market. Unfortunately - in this connection, that is - the United States is not the OPEC's largest customer. Unless we were prepared to show that we meant business, we were prepared to institute a national belt-tightening the likes of which no one has yet contemplated, the oil producers might very well say, "Sorry, but if you won't pay our price, others will." Still, it might be worth a try, if only to see how solid the front presented by the OPEC really is. As Perry pointed out, "We cannot directly break the cartel, but at least we can molest it." Certainly, the idea has more to recom-

ment it than going to war on the one extreme or just sitting back and taking it on the other. Goodbye DDT, Hello BT In recent years, armies of spruce budworm, gypsy moths and tussock moths - each as formidable as Pharaoh's plague of locusts - have been attacking the nation's forests. Time when the problem could be handled by aerial spraying with DDT. But while it controlled the pests and saved trees, DDT was also harmful to other insects and animals and was banned in 1967. Control of the winged raiders became something of a scramble after that, with different regions using different techniques with uncertain degrees of effectiveness at best. Bacillus Thuringiensis, or "BT," is a bacterium that is deadly only to lepidopterous insects, the order that includes moths, and is not harmful to any other form of life. Moreover, birds and other predators are paid to thrive on larvae that have ingested BTs. In Maine, where five-million acres of forest are infested with spruce budworm, the state's Department of Conservation has asked the legislature for $13 million to spray the trees with BTs. The U.S. Forest Service has approved the use of "Dipel," manufactured by Abbot Laboratories, as a BT for effective spraying. However, any BT, somewhat like any pesticide, is said to be able to do the job. A Calculation Bargain Economics, always a dismal and never an exact science, has gone bananas. For example, you just aren't supposed to have continuing inflation in the middle of a recession, yet that's what we've been having. Don't throw out the textbooks just yet, however. Some of the old laws of economics we used to depend on still seem to be in effect, thank goodness. Nowhere in this better illustrated than in the history of pocket calculators. When these little electronic wonders were introduced a few years ago they ranged from a couple hundred dollars on up for even the simplest ones. Since then, prices have steadily dropped to the point where models capable of performing the four basic mathematical functions are available for around $20, and less than that on sale. Mass production and competition, with a big assist from constant technological improvement, are what did it. Just as we were taught they should back in Economics 100.

HERALD YESTERDAYS

ANDREW TULLY

A National Disease

WASHINGTON - In 1973, the last year for which figures are available, 53 per cent of the 19,510 homicides in the United States were by handguns. Most of the rest were by other types of firearms. Yet the possibility that Congress will enact any meaningful gun control legislation is slim to nonexistent. The reason is simple - and outrageous. There are not enough members of Congress with the guts to stand up to those segments of their constituencies which ferociously oppose any controls at all. "Don't quote me by name," says one senator. "I'm in favor of firearms control, but if I voted for such a bill the people back home would throw me out of office. The people don't want gun control." It would, of course, serve that senator right if his name was published, and his political career be damned. But his comment is frightening relevant in disclosing how well the gun lobbies, notably the National Rifle Association, have done their job of intimidating the national legislature. There probably has never been a more preposterous slogan than "Guns Don't Kill People, People Kill People." The point is not whether an inanimate object is capable of murder. It is that firearms, especially handguns, make it easy, convenient and relatively safe for people to kill people. Murderers can and do kill people with knives, clubs and their bare hands, but a gun is a surer weapon and it eliminates the possibility that the attacker could suffer bodily harm. Then there are those who warn that gun control is a threat to civil liberties. They trot out the second Amendment to the Constitution and interpret it as a license for any American to own a gun. To be sure, the second Amendment concerns itself with that guarantee. But opponents of gun control seldom quote the Amendment in its entirety. It reads: "A well regulated militia being necessary to the security of a free state, the right of the people to keep and bear arms, shall not be infringed."

Economic Planning In Cloudland

WASHINGTON - The small-scale economic recovery and continued high unemployment projected in President Ford's budget are no accident. It is planned that way. In private talks, Mr. Ford's economic advisers make clear they believe this country cannot solve its energy and inflation problems, which worry them in the long run far more than today's recession, unless they carefully manipulate the price and consumption of energy and other essential products now in short supply as thoroughly as they can without reaching a breaking point in the nation's economy. Anything less, they are convinced, would dangerously prolong our military. The President's experts have made repeated miscalculations in recent economic predictions. But these scholars retain all their belief in themselves. They say there is now new data which gives them confidence they are correct and their detractors wrong. After taking with these men, I am convinced they believe their computer mathematics. But I question their sense of reality. Economics is not a science which can be applied so precisely to real life. Robert S. McNamara, as secretary of Defense, had an almost religious belief in the infallibility of the works, forgetting that answers spewed out by these machines are no better than the assumptions fed in. And in making their precise calculations, the men who counsel the President, start with assumptions that may be very shaky indeed. For they are based on philosophy and interpretation. When major errors in mathematics, professors stressed time and again that there are no theorems had no meaning except as they could be related to and proven in real life. This rule apparently has not reached President Ford's planners. Their background discussions are filled with words - matrices, elasticity, money theory. Attempting to pin these men down on how they reached their conclusions, produces a circumlocutory answer: "We did a lot of studies, considered all possibilities. Took all possible variations and contingencies into account." "Again, a lot of words, but no answer. "What would be the effect of changes in your plans?" "Each change has an effect on something else. We took that into account." As these experts who businessmen say things won't work out as they predict. Your answer comes back sharply: "They're prejudiced. They're afraid that what we plan will cut their share of the markets." "The university research men too?" "Yes, they're concerned with what our programs will do to their tuition rates." Everyone who disagrees is prejudiced, or mistaken. Most prejudiced. It goes to make one nervous about the future.

Regulations Challenged CHICAGO (UPI) - A suit to strike down Health, Education and Welfare regulations on admissions of Medicare and Medicaid patients to hospitals was filed Thursday by the American Medical Association against the federal government. The regulations took effect Feb. 1, and require an evaluation by a "utilization review committee" of a physician's decision to put a Medicare or Medicaid patient in the hospital. The suit charges the regulations violate the constitutional rights of patients and physicians. Heidi Hospitalized HONOLULU (UPI) - Young Heidi Biggs was admitted to a hospital Thursday after her doctor found her coughing deeply and unable to get out of bed. Heidi, 14, is dying of cancer and weighs only 54 pounds. She has been realizing her life's dream of a vacation in Hawaii this week. Her stepfather, who is very close to the child, arrived in Honolulu a few hours after Heidi went to the hospital.

Retirement Rule Debated WASHINGTON (UPI) - The American Medical Association has asked permission of the Supreme Court to express itself on the subject of the government's rule of mandatory retirement of government employees at age 70. The AMA regards the rule as harmful and said the individual's competence rather than age should be the criterion. The association hopes the high court will reverse the rule.

Two Bombings in Belfast BELFAST (UPI) - The bloodiest 24 hours since the Irish Republican Army cease-fire began Feb. 10 saw bombings at two Roman Catholic bars that left one patron dead and injured 26. The police attributed the fatal shooting of a young Catholic construction worker earlier on internal squabbling in the IRA, but blamed the bombings on Protestant extremists trying to wreck the truce.

Ancient Murder? VIENNA (UPI) - A massacre at the Turkish baths in Graz was told by a pensioner, whose hobby is snare drumming, that he had murdered his brother in a previous life. The masseur went into trances over a period of months and told the 82-year-old snare drummer a "Tibetan" monastery was in financial straits and the monks there said he would be absolved of his sin if he sent the monastery his savings. The money was sent. The upshot was that a court sent the masseur to prison for two years for embezzling the snare drummer out of his life savings.

Nixon Party Saturday PALM DESERT, Calif. (UPI) - Celebrities from the political, entertainment and business worlds are expected to turn out Saturday night for Richard Nixon's first appearance at a social event since resigning the presidency more than six months ago. Frank Sinatra, Bob and Dolores Hope and former Gov. Ronald Reagan and his wife Nancy were among those reported on the guest list for a party in Nixon's honor at the lavish, walled estate of millionaire publisher Walter Annenberg, former U.S. ambassador to Great Britain.

Deficit Swells HARFORD (UPI) - Lower-than-expected tax revenues and money needed to pay the Connecticut Workers' Department's back bills are now expected to swell the state deficit to $85 million, an estimate $20 million gloomier than before. Acting Finance Commissioner George J. Conkling said Thursday lower tax revenues, mostly from the state sales tax, account for most of the difference. The welfare deficit alone may reach $21.5 million because the administration of Gov. Ella T. Grasso is committed to paying a heavy backlog of unpaid bills to doctors, druggists, hospitals and other providers of health care, Conkling said.

Rep. Dodd Seeks Probe Of Patent Suppression WASHINGTON (UPI) - A freshman congressman has requested the General Accounting Office to make a study of U.S. patent records to find if oil companies have suppressed commercial use of fuel saving devices. Rep. Christopher J. Dodd, D-Conn., said today constituents have written him claiming that oil companies are buying up the rights to inventions to save fuel and thus reduce oil company casualties. "The results of this investigation should clarify whether there is any basis to these charges, which are extremely serious ones in light of the nation's energy crisis," Dodd said.

O'Brien of 116 Charter Oak St. - was reported in satisfactory condition today at Manchester Memorial Hospital, where he was admitted Thursday after being struck by a car on Spruce St. The driver of the car in the 12:15 p.m. accident, was charged with speeding, Eric M. Lindahl, 20, of 34 Hill St. is scheduled to appear in Court of Common Pleas at East Hartford March 4. Lindahl applied his brakes but couldn't avoid the boy, police said.

Counsel Sees No Basis For Perjury Charges In State Lease Probe

By ED HUTLER HARFORD (UPI) - Despite apparent conflicts in sworn testimony, the chief counsel of Connecticut's leasing scandal investigation says no one should be prosecuted for perjury. H. William Shure said in a letter to leasing subcommittee members that "nothing would be gained" by pressing perjury charges against former witnesses. The recommendation must be approved by lawmakers on the leasing subcommittee. Shure said he regretted the investigation coincided with consideration by the Senate of former Republican Gov. Thomas J. Meskill in 1972 about a "ripoff" lease in the works for an uncle of former GOP State Chairman J. Brian Gaffney. Meskill denied Gunther's testimony but he was not put under oath or interviewed in public. Shure wrote, Shure said later he was referring to members of the Senate Judiciary Committee who have announced their opposition to Meskill. Shure, explaining his position on perjury, said the subcommittee's purpose was to examine leasing practices and not "to determine the validity of the story as against another." Among conflicts in sworn testimony was the claim of former Sen. William Pawanda, R-Seymour, that Norwalk developer Frank DiNardo "tampered" before him in exchange for Pawanda's help in securing a lease. DiNardo had testified before Pawanda that he never discussed leasing with state officials. Another conflict came in the sworn testimony of Sen. George L. Gumbert, R-Hartford, who said he had warned then Republican Gov. Thomas J. Meskill in 1972 about a "ripoff" lease in the works for an uncle of former GOP State Chairman J. Brian Gaffney. Meskill denied Gunther's testimony but he was not put under oath or interviewed in public. Shure said that because the subcommittee was concerned primarily with overall leasing practices, questioning of witnesses was "not sufficiently precise to substantiate" that anyone lied to the subcommittee.

Development Grant May Aid Vernon Park, Camp Newhoca

Valley Falls Park and Camp Newhoca in Vernon may undergo some improvements through the use of Community Development Act (CDA) funds to come to the town.

The Town Council will conduct a public hearing on the matter Monday at 7:30 p.m. at the Administration Building. The council, and Mayor Frank McCoy, want to hear the opinion of Vernon residents on community development and housing needs, before preparing an application for the grant.

The town will receive a total of $100,000 spread over a five-year period. It will receive $25,000 each year for the first three years. In the fourth year it will receive $17,000 and the fifth year, $8,000.

In a letter to council members the mayor said, "Obviously this money will not allow the town to embark on any large project and in order to insure our receiving these funds it would be most advantageous to apply the money to a single, clearly identifiable program."

The recommendations that the application indicate a desire to use the funds for the development and improvement of town recreational facilities at Valley

Falls Park and Camp Newhoca during the coming fiscal year.

He said under the Park Study Committee and the Vernon Recreation Commission will be making recommendations as to both areas "and the use of the CDA funds would contribute immensely towards satisfying their requests."

The mayor also noted that both suggested projects would be eligible. He said he has attempted to secure additional CDA funds over and above the basic $25,000 allocation. He said that if the town is unable to obtain the first hearing, he also asks residents to express preferences for community development needs and objectives and recommendations on the selections of priorities for funding by submitting them in writing to his office.

Members of the Planning Commission have also been invited to attend the hearing "so that they may be aware of reconstruction or installation of public works or neighborhood facilities, senior citizen centers, historic properties, utilities, streets, lights, water programs, and, on a current year basis. An end to state-mandated programs that require local government expenditures. His resolution states the board recognizes the fiscal problems facing the state but cites the fact the cities and towns are faced with equally grim fiscal problems.

"In the past ten years," the resolution reads, "the cost of providing local public services has more than doubled. Each year local governments have had to increase an overburdened property tax. Connecticut ranks second among the 50 states in its dependence on the property tax to support local governmental services. At the same time our state government ranks among the lowest five states in contributing financial aid to local governments."

Partnership "...we seek a partnership of state and local government so too we accept shared responsibility for raising revenue. At present, local governments carry too heavy a burden in providing essential services as required by state government. We urge a dialogue between all levels of government. We believe in the sincerity and reasonableness of our elected state officials. It is time for us to explore our mutual concerns and interests together. We serve the same people. Our tax burdens should be shared equally."

Record Set for 400 Pin Scores

Twelve 400 or better triples were rolled in the Y Duckpin Bowling League at the Holiday Lanes this week. The total set a new all-time, one-night high for the oldest active pin circuit in Manchester.

The pace-setter was Tony Marinelli with 447. Don Simmons compiled a 435, Fred McCurry and town champion Ken Seaton each rolled 419, Dick Kroll and Bert Davis came up with 417 totals. Hounding out the dozen 400 Club members were Ed Bujanczuk 415, Bob Krajewski 411, Joe Pagano 407, Al Pirkey 405, Ed Kovis 404 and Andy Lamoureux 400.

Just missing the magic number was Mike Balesano, falling one pin shy. The installation of all-plastic pins at Holiday has resulted in the increased three-string totals.

McAuliffe Made Friends

Dick McAuliffe, former Detroit and Boston infielder, made a lot of new friends in Manchester when he appeared to headline the Elks Club Sports Night. The new manager of the Bristol Red Sox, the No. 2 farm club of Boston, may stage a baseball camp in Manchester this summer. McAuliffe has caught the paddle tennis bug and has managed to maintain his best playing level, 175 pounds, during the off-season. If the situation arises he may fill in or do a little pinch hitting with Bristol.

Lee Shows Way In Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Happy-go-lucky Lee Trevino would like the golfing public to know there's more to the PGA golf tour than Johnny Miller and Jack Nicklaus. While Nicklaus shot a 69 and Miller carded a 72 Thursday, the 35-year-old from El Paso, Tex., showed why he's won $200,000 in each of the past four seasons.

He fired a flossy 66, five under par on the demanding Riviera Country Club layout, for a one-shot first-round lead in the $150,000 Glen Campbell Los Angeles Open.

One of eight pros who have made $1 million on the tour, the two-time U.S. Open champion downplayed the much-publicized Miller-Nicklaus confrontation of 1973.

"You're the ones who are building it up," he told reporters. "I don't have anything to do with it. But so many players on the tour are capable of winning. Really, there are a lot of guys who beat out here."

Although he's never won in California and didn't plan to at Riviera, Trevino changed his mind last week and entered the $150,000 tournament.

Of Miller, who has won three events and $110,795 already this year, the smiling hombre from Texas offered, "It's a matter of confidence in his shot. The town would be in professional baseball, no question about that."

World Football League Supported in Memphis

MEMPHIS (UPI) — John Bassett steps short of saying so but the Memphis Southern owner talks like there definitely will be a World Football League next year.

The Canadian millionaire Thursday listed six teams — Hawaii, Southern California, Portland, Birmingham and Philadelphia — as already financially able to compete in the WFL season. He also said Chicago probably will firm up in the near future.

"It's not set right now, although I can't imagine Chicago not being in the league," he said. "It's such a great spot for a franchise."

And Bassett said he expects additional franchises to take firm financial shape by March 15, the date set by league officials for a New York announcement of future WFL plans.

Bassett also responded to reported comments by League President Chris Hemminger that Miami Dolphins star Jim Kiick, Larry Storka and Paul Warfield will not play in Memphis next year.

"Goonka, Kiick and Warfield are not under contract to Chris Hemminger," Bassett said. "They are under contract to John Bassett and I can say flatly and emphatically that I do not know where they will play."

"I would have to say, at this point, it would be a real chance it will be elsewhere," he said.

There had been reports circulating earlier this year that Bassett was considering moving his team to New Haven, Conn., and the Yale Bowl. The three Dolphins signed personal services contracts with Memphis and he has said he is also considering building another WFL franchise around them.

More than just help will be provided from the current members of the Manchester High Juvies basketball team next year.

The Indians, who qualified for the State Tournament for the first time in four years, will graduate seven seniors, including three starters, thus leaving a big hole to plug.

Flanagan views... Coach Dave Flanagan's javayee contingent compiled a 6-13 record but the rookie mentee feels everybody has progressed during the season.

"There's been vast improvement in such areas as poise, not making the same fundamental mistake over and over again, and working together as a unit."

Sophomores Brian Moran, Jeff Backofen and Jason Tompkins are among the leading candidates for varsity positions. Moran is a 5-8 man who averaged close to 10 points per game. Moran, an excellent outside shooter, has improved his defense greatly this year according to Flanagan. Like all players, Moran has room for improvement in other aspects. "He has to work on his poise and become more confident as a leader. He was doing that at the end of the season but it should get better. He also has to work on his quickness," Flanagan noted.

Backofen, 5-11 forward, is the most improved player on the squad according to Flanagan. Backofen was not considered in the running for a starting berth prior to the campaign but through hard work did start all 19 games. He averaged close to 12 points and seven or eight rebounds each outing.

"He is a good defensive player who works very hard at the game. Once you point out a mistake to him, he works to prevent it from happening again. The one weakness he has is that he has to gain confidence in his shot. And he has a good shot but he has to learn when to take it. I feel he's going to be a definite help to the varsity next year," Flanagan voiced.

Tompkins is a 6-4 forward who was hampered at different times by injuries. A late start also didn't help Tompkins. One asset is a good shot which he isn't afraid to take according to Flanagan. "He can be good as a junior and very good as a senior. But he has to decide if he wants to dedicate himself or not to basketball. If he does, he'll be an asset," Flanagan views.

Two other performers who could be of service next season are sophomores Mike Sherman and Jeff Kiernan. Sherman injured his left knee in the first minute of the second game and never did get back. Evaluation is difficult, but Flanagan commented that Sherman could help if he gets back into shape. "From what I say, he is an excellent rebounder who goes to the offensive board very well. He knows how to get position. He's a 'garbage player' who can score in double figures because of his rebounding prowess. He has to work on his outside shooting."

Kiernan, 6-3 center, was averaging 12 points and eight to nine rebounds before being forced out of the team in the season because of grades. "He has to improve his grades—that's the first priority," Flanagan cited. "But if he returns he'll definitely help the varsity. We're looking to him next year for the center slot. He could really take the pressure off Quesnel who is better suited for forward."

Finley 'Batting' .600 In Pre-Season Duels

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Charlie Finley, batting a solid .600 in pre-season arbitration with his Oakland A's, takes on star rightfielder Reggie Jackson in a final round of salary talks today. Jackson, who won a $35,000 raise in arbitration with the intractable A's owner last year, reportedly is demanding a $165,000 salary, up from an estimated $130,000 he received last season. Finley is reportedly offering $140,000. Finley won three of five arbitration cases in San Francisco this week. He won decisions with catcher Ray Fosse, pitcher Ken Holtzman and third-baseman Sal Bando, saving $62,500 in raises demanded by the players. Finley dropped $39,000 in arbitration to infielder Ted Kubiak and ace reliever Rollie Fingers.

'Baltimore Nine' Attorney Not Guilty to Conspiracy

BALTIMORE (UPI) — The attorney for the "Baltimore Nine" has pleaded not guilty to conspiracy. Jerry Kapstein, lawyer for nine unsigned Orioles' players, said Thursday there was absolutely no truth to the accusation that he had instructed his clients to hold out on a mass in their contractual negotiations with Baltimore General Manager Frank Cashen. Kapstein, who represents about 30 players overall, has thus far failed to negotiate successfully with Cashen on the contracts of Bobby Grich, Doyle Alexander, Don Baylor, Mike Torrez, Andy Etchebarren, Bob Reynolds, Don Hood, Wayne Garland and Ross Grimsley.

Olympic Head Certain Montreal to Play Host

LAUSANN Switzerland (UPI) — Lord Killanin, president of the International Olympic Committee, said Thursday he is convinced the 1976 Olympic games will take place in Montreal as scheduled. Killanin made his statement after the IOC Executive Commission heard a report from Canadian organizers led by Roger Rousseau, president of the organizing committee and Montreal Mayor Jean Drapeau. "I think I can say on behalf of the entire executive committee that we are unanimously convinced that barring some major force, the Olympic games will open on July 17, 1976, as scheduled," Killanin said following a seven-hour meeting with the Canadians. Killanin said some building schedules are very tight and the IOC was especially worried about the stadium and Olympic Village. "Without these the games cannot take place," he said. Celt Running Game Stalled

OAKLAND (UPI) — It is a momentary touch of humanity or what is called your basic slump that has the Boston Celtics down. The Celtics, winners of 11 straight games through early February, are merely 4-3 since and 2-2 on their current road trip. "We don't ever expect to lose a game the way we're playing," said forward Paul Silas before Boston left home Feb. 9. Since then, they have been edged by Kansas City-Omaha, scrambled to get wins against Phoenix and Portland and have been embarrassed by Seattle. One of the reasons for their poor play, the Celtics admit, has been the absence of the devastating running game that has been the Celtics' trademark since they were coached by Red Auerbach. Chairman Not Convinced Legal Team Gambling Bad

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Testimony in opposition to legalizing betting on their sports. Without exception, the pro sports commissioners and the sports organizations asserted that legal gambling would lead to possible player bribery scandals and other corruption which has been virtually non-existent under the present burgeoning illegal betting growth. Of their thesis, Morin commented: "Are they offering convincing arguments? No, they are absolutely not. They are saying that they can live with gambling if it's illegal but not if it's legal." James E. Ritchie, executive director of the 15-member commission which is studying national policy on gambling, told newsmen that there was a "strong air of defeatism" among the commissioners who heard Rozelle, Kuhn and representatives of pro basketball and hockey, the National Collegiate Athletic Association and the Amateur Athletic Union.

Walton Misses Game

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Bill Walton missed Thursday night's Portland Trail Blazers-New Orleans Jazz basketball game because of a recurring ankle injury. Bud Johnson, Jazz spokesman, said Portland informed the Jazz just before game time Walton would stay on the bench. "He's been bothered by a bone spur and I assume that's it," Johnson said.

Wright Out

STORRS (UPI) — University of Connecticut basketball coach Dee Rowe said Thursday as far as he's concerned, starter Ken Wright is no longer on the team. The 6-6 senior failed to travel with the team to Boston Wednesday and did not show up for practice. Wright played in UConn's first 20 games but after two straight losses, Rowe replaced him with freshman Joey Wetton Wednesday. Wright averaged 6.4 points and 8.9 rebounds per game. The Huskies, 1-6, host Maine Saturday in a Yankee Conference game.

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

1. I N T Pass 2. Pass Pass 2. 7. You South hold: A Q 7 6 2 ♠ K J 5 4 ♠ A Q 8 2 ♠ A - Bid two spades. You want to compete a trifle further with your 10 points and three values. TODAY'S QUESTION You do bid two spades. West bids three hearts and your partner doubts. What do you do now? Answer Tomorrow

Time to try diamonds first

If West could have seen all the cards, he would have opened his singleton club and South would have had no play for the spade slam. Fortunately for South, West led the queen of hearts.

South won, looked over dummy and saw that he had 11 top tricks. Use simple way to play the hand would be to draw trumps, cash dummy's ace of clubs, come back to his hand by ruffing a diamond and lead a second club. That would bring home the contract, unless East had started with the guarded king-jack of clubs, which is just what he did happen to hold.

A little bit of sound thinking showed South that there was no hurry about trying clubs; he could go after diamonds first and make a 12th trick if that suit broke 4-3.
