

Someone Blew It, Says One Victim Of Sewer Backup

"You can't blame this on the system," said Joseph O'Hare of 71 Birch St. "Somebody blew it," he said. O'Hare and his wife, his landlady and neighbor, Mrs. Anna Deyorio of 69 Birch St., and Al Gioielli of the Lasington Tailor Shop at 73 Birch St. were all victims of a sewer backup Friday morning.

Raw sewage gushed out of their toilets for nearly two hours due to a block in the main sewer line just west of their homes just before 10 a.m. Despite making many phone calls to town departments and town officials, a sewer department crew did not arrive until 11:45 a.m.

Town Manager Robert Weiss and Charles Fuller, assistant to the chief of operations in the sewer department, both said there was not a long delay from the time the sewer person was notified of the block.

Weiss said crews arrived one hour after the sewer treatment plant was informed. "This is normal response time for after hours or holiday problems," he said.

Fuller said that when the proper number was called, the trouble answering did have trouble reaching an off-duty crew. He called Fuller at home who then got a crew together and on its way in five minutes, he said.

O'Hare said Mrs. Deyorio made their first phone call before 10 a.m. She was told someone would be sent out, he said.

When no help arrived, she called the Manchester, Town Fire Department, which recorded her call at 10:28 a.m. They arrived at 10:30 a.m. but were not equipped to clear the blockage.

At this time, the victims of the sewage block began calling around to see if they might get help. Even the fire department made a call.

Mrs. O'Hare said she dialed the sewer department's emergency number four times before the "out of order" tape recording stopped. A man finally answered and told her he had been notified at 10:45 a.m.

O'Hare said he was told by men in the crew which arrived at 11:45 a.m. that they had not been notified at their homes until 11 a.m. O'Hare said 45 minutes seemed like a good time.

The crew cleared the blockage within five minutes and then did a fine job in cleaning up the mess in the homes and helping clear the odor, O'Hare said.

Mrs. Deyorio said she stayed out of her home until Monday after it had been cleaned. The O'Hares were able to stay all weekend in their home as the sewage did not come above the basement floor.

Gioielli lost carpeting and a $75 suit. Mayor John Thompson and Director Vivian Ferguson both expressed their regrets over the delay. Both said they asked Weiss to study the methods used to handle this kind of problem on weekends and holidays.

Weiss said, "The town has an effective emergency procedure for handling backups. These situations develop several times each week. The proper emergency number listed is 649-9697. Employees answer the number 24 hours a day, he said.

Weiss said the town is getting too many sewer backup calls. The new budget calls for a new pipe cleaning program. "The pipe cleaning equipment ordered in the 1973-74 budget has just arrived, he said, and maintenance cleaning is being scheduled. O'Hare said he believes what town leaders have told him about the procedures. But he still suspects someone "blew it" somewhere Friday. How else could the delay have happened, he asked?

Orphans Dead In C5A Crash

SAIGON (UPI) - A U.S. Air Force C5A Galaxy transport plane carrying 306 persons, most of them Vietnamese war orphans bound for the United States on the first flight of President Ford's emergency Operation Babylift, crashed and burned here today while attempting an emergency landing.

At least 178 of those aboard the mercy flight were killed, the U.S. Embassy said. Embassy spokesmen said at least 100 children and 15 to 20 adults survived the first crash of the world's largest plane.

The plane was bound for its first stop at Clark Air Force Base in the Philippines and President Ford had planned to greet personally the orphans when they arrived in California.

The crash sent a wave of shock through the United States where hundreds of families were awaiting to adopt the 2,000 orphans to be brought there on the military airlift. A White House aide, awakened at the presidential quarters at Palm Springs, Calif., described the crash as "unbelievable and shocking."

South Vietnamese troops quickly sealed off the crash site, an area near the Saigon River which is under partial Communist control. The plane was a mile and a half from the airport when it fell.

Many of the dead were children who had been strapped to the floor of the transport, which arrived here earlier today from the Philippines carrying artillery pieces and ammunition for the hard-pressed South Vietnamese troops struggling against Communist forces near the city.

Earlier this week, U.S. AID officials refused to allow the same group of orphans to board a World Airways charter plane because they felt it was unsafe to fly with the youngsters strapped to the floor.

It was the first crash of a passenger plane at Tan Son Nhut, which at the height of the Vietnam War was one of the world's busiest airports.

The area of the crash was partially controlled by the Viet Cong, but there was no indication the C5A had been shot down. Initial reports said the plane had reached an altitude of 37,500 feet when the door blew off - a similar type of incident which caused the crash of a DC-10 near Paris in March 1974.

The C5A immediately lost pressurization, and the pilot tried to return to Saigon. About a mile-and-a-half short of the airport the plane smashed into some muddy rice paddies, and fire apparently broke out in a wing when a fuel tank ruptured. Huge clouds of black smoke could be seen in the air for several miles away.

The first airlift of 52 orphans to the United States arrived Thursday in San Francisco aboard a privately owned World Airways DC-8 to a country touched by the plight of the millions of refugees fleeing a Communist offensive. Adoption agencies throughout the nation were swamped with requests for Vietnamese children.

Thursday, President Ford announced he was earmarking a special $3 million fund to fly out 2,000 orphans by military aircraft. Today's crash - the first involving a C5A - was the first flight of the plan called "Operation Babylift."

U.S. officials in Washington said they were dismayed by news of the crash but there were no plans to discontinue the flights.

Thieu Plans New Cabinet

SAIGON (UPI) - President Nguyen Van Thieu said tonight the South Vietnamese cabinet has resigned and will be replaced by a new administration. He blamed the United States for the loss of more than half of South Vietnam to the Communists.

Prime Minister Tran Thien Khiem is being replaced by Nguyen Ba Can, chairman of the South Vietnamese National Assembly, who will form a new Saigon administration, Thieu told his nation. The four-hour address broke his silence over the massive Communist gains in the past month.

Can, considered one of the most astute politicians in Saigon, has been chairman of the assembly since the latest congressional elections in 1972. He is regarded by politicians as a rightist and supporter of Thieu.

The change of administration came after the Saigon regime claimed to have cracked the second plot in a week for a coup against Thieu and U.S. Army Chief of Staff Gen. Frederick C. Weyand said he is not fully satisfied with military efforts to combat the Communist offensive.

Thieu said: "The American people as well as the American Congress must see now that they have got to do something for the people of South Vietnam to keep from earning the label of traitors."

He said that with reduced U.S. military aid it was clearly impossible for South Vietnam to maintain control of the entire country.

"We might say that the direct battlefield situation which recently occurred came, of course, through weakness," Thieu said. "But you also have to admit that the spirit of the people of South Vietnam has been undermined for more than a year since they saw the United States not only did nothing to help but contributed to it by allowing the Communists to infiltrate here. "The loss of support has caused a loss of morale. The United States has not been replacing military supplies and equipment on a one-for-one basis as agreed in the Paris agreement.

"We saw 500,000 American soldiers go to war with $30 billion a year. We have a million soldiers but much less money. We now need to see whether America will meet its commitments to South Vietnam."

"We did not know what American aid would be coming in the next two or three years. How could we not be influenced by that fact? How could we trust the Americans?"

The American people and the American Congress will see our need and the consequences of the actions over the last two years. Help us more effectively to protect our nation.

He appealed to the people to maintain their self-confidence, retain their calmness, remain alert, avoid panic and insist they obey the government and administration.

Thieu pledged a determined stand to defend the remaining portion of South Vietnam. He swore over and again in the rambling speech that he would never agree to any coalition with the Communists nor any recognition of a second Vietnam existing within South Vietnam.

Before Thieu's speech, senior Communist diplomats told UPI the Viet Cong is willing to stop fighting and begin negotiations immediately, but only if Thieu is replaced.

On the war front, Communist gunners today fired rockets into Can Tho, the Mekong Delta's largest city, 75 miles from Saigon.

College Projects Built Illegally

HARTFORD (UPI) - Nearly a quarter of a million dollars was spent illegally for parking lots, paving and building renovations at Central Connecticut State College, UPI has learned.

Connecticut's watchdog auditors said the man responsible for the violations was Dr. Cletus A. Clow, who had been fiscal officer at Central and then was elevated to the Board of Trustees of State Colleges, which oversees the four state college campuses.

Three projects worth $109,800 for parking lots and paving at the campus, located in New Britain, were awarded to contractor Angelo Tomasso Jr., a close friend of former Republican Gov. Thomas J. Meskill.

Clow was cited last December for spending $100,000 to renovate the board's offices without proper authorization from the Connecticut Department of Public Works.

Auditor Leo V. Donohue said the violations do not reflect on the quality of the work and the projects were properly put out for bid.

Donohue said the state required the Department of Public Works to approve any improvement project costing more than $25,000. And, he said, no purchases may be made, except in emergencies, without purchase orders submitted through the state comptroller and the director of purchases.

Purchase orders for two of the three contracts given Tomasso were not issued until some time after he had completed the work, the auditors said.

The projects, all in excess of $25,000, were carried out without the approval of the Connecticut Public Works Department, as required by law, Auditor Henry Becker said.

In their latest findings, forwarded in a letter to Gov. Ella Grasso, the auditors reported uncovering a total of $139,000 spent in violation of state law for the parking lots, paving and the renovation of a library building at Central.

The auditors said $30,000 was spent for building materials to renovate Willard Hall, a campus library building which had just before Meskill left office. Donohue and Becker informed him more than $100,000 was spent illegally to renovate Barre Hall, Meskill's home town, work which was not authorized, he said.

The auditors said the parking lot and library projects each involved expenditures in excess of $25,000 and were administered by the college staff rather than the public works commissioner as required by law.

The Tomasso paving contracts included $31,525 for paving parking areas near the new campus library in summer 1972, $33,751 for another paving project in summer 1973, and $34,527 for building parking lots and paving work between September and October of last year.

O'Connor Lumber of Westfield, Mass., Hartford Lumber Co. of Hartford and Builders Hardware of West Hartford were paid more than $30,000 for building materials to renovate Willard Hall without proper authorization, he said.

Purchase orders for four contracts with Colossus Concrete, Inc. of New Britain, Meskill and Tomasso's home town, were issued after the work had been completed. The billing totaled more than nearly $20,000.

Two other late purchase orders were given to Henry Goldsmith and Co. of New Britain for carpeting at $805 and to P and S Door Co. of Meriden at $736.

Top Students Named In MHS Class of '75

By JUNE TOMPKINS

Manchester High School students were informed this morning that Brian Kilpatrick and Hilary Cooper have been named the valedictorian and salutatorian, respectively, of this year's graduating class at the high school.

The announcement was made by Principal George Emmerling over the public address system.

Hilary is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Cooper of 243 Ferguson Rd. Brian is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson D. Kilpatrick of 100 Concord Rd.

Emmerling also announced those, who with Brian and Hilary, make up the 15 highest ranking students in the Class of 1975.

She was also chairman of the 1974 Christmas Project in which the students provided gifts and food for underprivileged children in Manchester. Hilary expects to major in education. Although she isn't sure which college she'll be attending, her first choice is Tufts University in Medford, Mass., with Cornell University, Ithaca, N.Y., as second choice.

Brian was a member of the Round Table Singers for two years and has been piano accompanist for the group.

He is secretary of the Verplanck Chapter, National Honor Society.

In 1972, Brian was a runner up in the Nazarene International Bible Quiz in Miami Beach, Fla. At another Nazarene International Bible Quiz in Feitsch, Switzerland, in 1974, he placed third out of 18,000 contestants. At present, he is the coach of the local Nazarene Bible quiz team, and occasionally fills in as organist at the Nazarene Church in Manchester.

Brian hopes to pursue a pre-med course at Eastern Nazarene College in Quincy, Mass.

The other highest ranking students announced are:

Dorothy Brindomart, Alysa Goldstein, Lori Gottleib, Laura Haines, Cheryl Hyde, Terri Johnston, Michael Lombardo, Valerie Meier, Cynthia Sheldon, Dale Sotherland, George Sweetnam, Wendy Taylor, Kirk Woolpert.

Partly cloudy tonight with a chance of snow flurries. Lows in the mid-20s. Variable cloudiness Saturday, with highs in the upper 30s. National weather map: Page 2.

Wind, Rain & Snow Blasts New England

By United Press International

The worst storm of the winter dumped up to 33 inches of snow on northern New England today. Sixty mile-an-hour winds whipped up five-foot drifts. Flooding in coastal areas and along rivers caused the evacuation of some homes and damage to an 18th Century lighthouse.

At least four fatalities were attributed to the storm, including three college students on a field trip who were killed in a car-truck crash on a rain-slicked road in Sutton, Mass.

There were hundreds of minor accidents. Cars were abandoned on unplowed roads throughout the three-state triad. Thousands of homes were left without electricity. School classes were canceled.

Blizzard warnings were posted as snow continued to fall - and more was forecast.

The wind-whipped seas collapsed the south wall at the 18th Century Portland National Guardmen into rescue work on Michigan highways.

Elsewhere in the nation, a tumultuous spring storm claimed 58 lives in raging snow and rain from Iowa east.

The storm transformed Chicago into a snow-shackled ghost town and forced National Guardsmen into rescue work on Michigan highways.

Most of southern New England was drenched by a torrential rain. But some areas of the three southern states received snow.

The northwest corner of Connecticut got seven inches of snow Thursday night and today, while the rest of the state got a lot of rain - as much as two inches in some places.

Wind gusts produced scattered power outages in Connecticut. Minor flooding covered some roads and disabled some cars, but there were no injuries reported here.

Two inches of rain in southern New Hampshire swelled the narrow Piscataquog River, causing flooding in the

NEW YORK (UPI) - A Liberian tanker laden with fuel oil split in half and was sinking in the Atlantic Ocean today, the Coast Guard reported. The fate of its 36 crewmen was not immediately known.

A spokesman said a Coast Guard helicopter reported at 9:54 a.m. that the 57,400-ton tanker Spartan Lady had split in half and the stern section of the ship was sinking.

The spokesman said the ship sent out a distress signal at 8:10 a.m. that it was "breaking up" in rough waters of the Atlantic Ocean about 150 miles south of New York City.

The 'Un-Open' Meeting

The news report of the manner in which Manchester town directors conducted an "open" meeting on a personnel matter this week indicates the board is sensitive to criticism of its past executive sessions but still insensitive to the full meaning of open meetings.

In reviewing an appeal by an unnamed employee doing an unnamed job for reclassification to another, presumably higher unnamed job; the board made light of what is a serious aspect of its relationship with the public.

We gather from the report the issue at hand involved nothing more controversial than an interpretation of reclassification policy. There was nothing derogatory to the character of the board or the unnamed employee in the dispute and in seeking an arbiter's decision on the merits of the case. The acceptance of the decision in the unnamed employee's favor was no reflection on anyone. So why the "Mickey Mouse" private dialogue among the directors who had the names, dates, etc., on paper before them but in "open" discussion conspired to keep this from the public.

Obviously, we think, someone thought it might be a cute way to let someone else know that "open" meetings are not necessarily "open" meetings.

If this was not the case, then directors obviously do not know what they really meant by an "open" meeting.

However this little exercise of theirs was not entirely in vain.

If the issue at hand is typical of the matters discussed by directors in executive sessions there can be no justification for such sessions in the future.

On the other hand, maybe the directors are planning to raise revenue by selling programs to board meetings so the audience will know what they are talking about.

America's Stake in Black Africa

Editor's Note: Lee Roderick is on a fact-finding tour of Africa and the Middle East. This is the first in a series of reports.

By Lee Roderick (Special to The Herald)
ACRPA, GHANA — "This is a world of men, of men whose likenesses far outweigh their differences, who mutually need each other in labor and thought and dream, but who can successfully have each other only on terms of equality, justice and mutual respect."

That manifesto emerged from a Pan-African Congress held in London in 1924 with key support from America's National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. Since World War II, there has been dramatic progress toward achieving those ideals for blacks in the United States as well as in most of Africa.

The independence movements that have shook and shaped today's Africa during the last two decades, however, largely beyond the direct involvement of the United States. America has never been a colonial power on this huge, diverse continent. The closest it came was in helping to give birth to Liberia, on Africa's west coast, as a haven for returning ex-slaves.

This lack of direct contact has been an important contributing factor in shaping the popular image of Africa in the average American mind. Even today, it is probably safe to say that image is more a product of old Tarzan movies than of the myriad changes here since the winds of independence considerably sifted the political sands of black Africa.

There is no simple way to describe the Africa of the 1970's. It is as diverse as it is immense and rich. Africa is four times larger than the United States. It contains more than 50 countries and has a population of about 360 million.

It is as new as the Portuguese colonial states of Mozambique and Angola which just now are about to gain independence after long and bloody wars of liberation. And it is as old as civilization itself, for one North African area, ancient Egypt, is still there.

With more consumer goods available, farmers might be encouraged to meet outside demands for rice. But then, in Laos, war has disrupted market possibilities.

Despite it all, Baine remains an optimist. "It is hard to believe that man's ingenuity has reached the end of the line. Certainly we have the brains to overcome the problems."

What seems to be lacking in too many countries is the will.

She Makes Sense

WASHINGTON — At a dinner party the other night, a chic and comely matron who is admired in her milieu as possessing "a good mind," announced that those thousands of South Vietnamese families fleeing south "are running away from war, not from the other side."

At certain dining tables, of course, the term "the other side" is a euphemism for Communist. I could never understand why the Communist label has always been so determinedly shunned when the Hanoi regime boasts of its Redness, but there's no profit in going into that.

Anyway, the matron made a kind of sense. There is not much thought of politics among the poor when shells are exploding around them. Their only desire is to escape — to save their lives. They seek personal safety, not ideological asylum.

It is passing strange, however, that so few South Vietnamese opt to stay put, to trust their safety to the compassion of the Communist forces. After all, North Vietnam is a "Peoples Republic," and as such might be presumed to be interested in the welfare of even people who purportedly have conceded Saigon's "fascist" regime.

Moreover, there is no fighting in North Vietnam, nor in the southern territories Communist troops have conquered. Turn it into a Vietnamese of the south, and I would be sorely tempted to run the other way — into the relative safety provided by the Hanoi crowd.

Unless, that is, I had doubts of what kind of life awaited me in a land under Communist "protection." Even after transformation into a Vietnamese, I expect I would retain a natural cynicism. I might decide that living with the devil I knew was preferable to trusting the devil I didn't. I might recall what happened to the Ukrainians who greeted the Nazi troops with open arms during World War II.

I would wonder, perhaps more in sorrow than in danger, why those great-hearted Americans and TV commentators of yesterday were so curiously reluctant to spend some of their ringing rhetoric on today's victims of Communist brutality and the millions of children killed and maimed by American bombs and shells.

BOOK REVIEWS

By JOAN HANAUER

United Press International
Thurber, by Burton Bernstein.
(Dodd, Mead, $15)
James Thurber, one of America's great humorists, was such a widely talented man that he seemed to create as automatically as other people talk.

He scribbled many of his fetching drawings on any handy surface, whether barroom wall or tablecloth. The sparseness and agility of his language gave his fiction an effortless quality. Even his casual correspondence was thoughtful and penetrating.

Yet, as his biographer points out, many things were difficult for Thurber, particularly the ability to order his life into a reasonably happy mode.

Among his failings was a weakness for liquor, which he handled badly. He was forever getting into fights. Hangovers were a way of life for him.

For a humorist who drew heavily on his personal life for material, he had singularly not much to say about himself.

Play It to a Bust, by Dave Greenberg. (Hawthorn, $6.95)
Dave Greenberg was one of the two New York police officers known as Batman and Robin whose exploits were detailed first in the book "Raper Cop" and later in a film of the same name. Here Greenberg, the Batman half of the team, elaborates further their continuing war on crime, their experience with the notoriety generated by the first book and their seemingly endless trouble with the police bureaucracy.

The Bermuda Triangle Mystery, by Lawrence Sanders. (Harper & Row, $10)
The author employs his talent as a research librarian to delve deeply into the many tales of disappearance that make up one of the world's hardest legends — the centuries-long disappearance of ships, then planes, in the sea south of Bermuda. By deftly tracking down all possible sources of the stories, he claims to have unraveled the mystery and found it unmythical. This may seem like the last word on the matter, but it won't be.

Political Animal, by Walter Trohan. (Doubleday, $10)
For 38 years Trohan, political columnist for the Chicago Tribune, followed the activities of U.S. presidents. Here he sets down some of the backdoor information and anecdotes that never got into print. For anyone interested in learning how Washington operates, this is a fine, gossipy account of the merry-go-round.

Self Help For Hungry Nations

Before many Americans give up meat and snacks to help feed the starving people of the world, the governments of those people are going to have to do more to help themselves.

One expert claims that enough food is unnecessarily lost in some countries to insects, rodents, plant diseases and wasteful distribution methods to feed half a billion people.

The United Nations Food and Agricultural Organization estimates that even in comparatively developed Latin America, 40 per cent of crop yields are lost.

According to another authority, Melvin B. Randle, up to 50 per cent of the food grown in developing countries is wasted between the time it leaves the farm and the time it reaches the consumer.

With more consumer goods available, farmers might be encouraged to meet outside demands for rice. But then, in Laos, war has disrupted market possibilities.

Despite it all, Baine remains an optimist. "It is hard to believe that man's ingenuity has reached the end of the line. Certainly we have the brains to overcome the problems."

What seems to be lacking in too many countries is the will.

OPEN FORUM

Let Youth Have A Say

Dear Sir:

Some years ago there seemed to be more news items about the youth and groups who were doing good, rather than the ones who are breaking the law and destroying.

I know there is a high school page that appears on a certain day, and senior citizen news has a day set aside, but news about our good youth seems to appear in space left over.

Could it be possible for a day to be set aside for news from youth groups such as CYO, IOH, scouts, both boy and girl, and any other youth that might want to express their views as youth might see them. I am sure that many young people might have something to say if given a chance.

SCENE FROM HERE

By SOL R. COHEN

Chapeau Expert I Am Not

For no reason at all, I've been thinking of a remark a few years ago by the late Amy Vanderbilt.

"Men," said the foremost expert on etiquette, "needn't remove their hats in elevators when ladies are present."

Well, I couldn't care less. I haven't worn a hat since just before the Junior Prom. I ruined the one I owned then by using it to stem the steam from my father's car.

Before I go any further (did I hear some one say, the further the better?), it just came to me why I thought of Ms. Vanderbilt's hat remark.

It has to be because of the hats being worn in the rain and wind we had Thursday - worn by men who never wear hats.

To get back to the hat I ruined. It was the week before the Junior Prom and I had borrowed the car. The radiator froze and, despite my heroics in using my hat, it cracked.

Naturally, I didn't get the car the night of the Junior Prom and, naturally, I didn't get the money to buy a new hat.

I think I was the only boy in the history of my high school to take his date to the Junior Prom on a bus - and, without a hat yet.

Ever since then, with the exception of my Army days, I made it my business not to wear a hat.

And here was Amy Vanderbilt telling me I didn't have to remove my hat in an elevator. She explained it was because a hat held in a man's hand took up too much room in the elevator.

Of course, there aren't that many elevators in Manchester anyway, but I can see the point. Can you imagine a man's chargin if a lady were to back into his hat and accuse him of getting fresh?

For what it's worth, etiquette experts like Amy needn't worry too much about hats being worn in elevators. There aren't that many of them - hats, I mean.

And there are even fewer being worn in elevators in Manchester.

Someday, somewhere, an etiquette expert will comment about a young man who takes his date to the Junior Prom on a bus - and without a hat yet.

They just don't make them that way anymore.

Fuessenich Asks Solons Not to Ban Dum-Dums

HARTFORD (UPI) - State Police Commissioner Cleveland B. Fuessenich has asked lawmakers not to ban the use of internationally outlawed dum-dum bullets.

"Do not restrict policemen from protecting themselves by applying antiquated standards that are not relevant," Fuessenich said Thursday.

He said criminals today were arming themselves with such weapons as grenades and machineguns.

But, Connecticut Civil Liberties Union Director William Olds said the U.S. Army prohibits soldiers on foreign and domestic soil from using the expanding bullets.

"Weapons illegal in warfare should not be used against civilians in peacetime," Olds said before a Judiciary Committee room packed with spectators and witnesses.

Speaking against a proposal that would make it a felony for anyone to possess the controversial bullets, Fuessenich said the 1899 Hague Conference ban on dum-dum was merely a "technical restriction."

Hartford City Councilman Richard Sulsman said the City Council prohibits Hartford police from using dum-dum with Chief Hugo Masini supporting the restriction.

Sulsman said medical experts agreed two Hartford policemen shot with their own weapons this summer by a mental patient would have been killed had their pistols contained dum-dum bullets.

The Connecticut Civil Liberties Union and various church groups said the bullets should be outlawed in Connecticut

Vermont Near First Primary

MONTPELIER, Vt. (UPI) - Vermont's challenge to New Hampshire's first-in-the-nation presidential primary loomed larger Thursday with preliminary approval by the state Senate. Final passage was expected today.

But the move to share the spotlight now reserved for the Granite State by holding Vermont's balloting on the same day could fall short.

Anticipating such a challenge, the New Hampshire legislature has already drafted a bill moving its own primary up a week.

Supporters argued Thursday a Vermont presidential

Panel Told How Homes Can Manipulate Funds

HARTFORD (UPI) - A New Haven nursing home declared an $86,000 loss the same year it paid $38,780 in rent to its parent company, according to a health care expert.

Walter J. Bradley, head of New Haven Health Care Inc., Thursday gave legislators probing nursing home abuses a detailed explanation of how owners can manipulate their finances to hide illegal profits.

A Columbus woman who said her mother lost a leg after developing gangrene at a nursing home and a podiatrist who overcharged the state $5,000 also testified before the public health and safety subcommittee.

Bradley said he had zeroed in on New Fairview Hall as an example of how imprecise fiscal reports required by the state agency regulating nursing homes could be filled out truthfully yet made to hide illegal profits.

New Fairview made rent payments of $38,780 in 1973 to Tri-Vest Associates, which owns the building, he said. New Fairview is owned by Daniel Donovan of Massachusetts who also is an official of Tri-Vest.

Bradley, whose group receives government subsidies to study the health industry, called for a one-year "freeze" on nursing home rates, to give the regulatory agency a chance to re-evaluate their finances and determine whether rate hikes are called for.

While nursing homes in Connecticut got 53 per cent of the $118 million the state paid out in 1973 under Medicaid, they have only 9 per cent of the state's Medicaid recipients, he said.

Bradley also said Connecticut lost $4 million in the past eight years in Medicaid bills that could have been paid for by Medicare. The federal government reimburses Connecticut 100 per cent of Medicare bills and 50 per cent of Medicaid costs.

Since the procedure for filling claims under Medicare is more complicated than Medicaid, it is easier for nursing homes to bill the state under the Medicaid program for services that could be paid for by Medicare, he said.

Gay Rights Backed In Capitol Hearing

HARTFORD (UPI) - Connecticut lawmakers have been asked to extend the state's pioneering effort decriminalizing homosexuality to the field of civil rights.

About two dozen speakers, including clergymen, self-proclaimed gays and feminists, called on the Human Rights and Opportunities Committee Thursday night to include sexual orientation as a basic human right.

The measure would add "sexual orientation" to Connecticut's civil rights statute prohibiting discrimination on the basis of sex, race, creed, color or national origin. No opponents spoke.

Sen. Richard A. Bozzuto, R-Waterbury, the lead-off witness, said gay individuals must have the legal right to live without fear their sexual preference will cost them their jobs and homes.

Connecticut pioneered in removing some of the burden faced by homosexuals and decriminalizing homosexual acts between consenting adults four years ago when a revised criminal code took effect. A half dozen persons, both men and women, described acts of discrimination they or their friends had experienced.

Leonard Simons of Hartford told the committee a personal investigation proved a New Hampshire insurance company canceled his partner's auto policy simply because "they were gay and lived together."

When Simons introduced his mother, Mrs. Rita Simons, to the committee, she was warmly applauded. She described the anguish she felt when her son revealed six years ago he was gay and said passage of the measure would help ease the burden homosexuals face in society.

Among the groups supporting the measure were the Connecticut Civil Liberties Union, the Connecticut Education Association, the Planned Parenthood League of Connecticut, the Connecticut Women's Political Caucus, the Kalos Society and the Connecticut Council of Churches.

The five candidates were narrowed down from a field of 30 applicants who had already taken the written exams for the position which has been vacant for about a year.

Dieter Brings Scale to Dine

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N. W. Reed, Inc.

DEAR ABBY: So you say hoarse for the dieting daughter-in-law who carries her own scale with her when she's a guest, in order to weigh her food before eating it? (Her mother-in-law was insulted.)

Well, I'd be insulted too. In the first place, if she's weighed her food a couple of times, she can surely judge by the quantity how much it weighs. And if she drags a scale along to someone else's home, she's trying to make a big deal out of the fact that she's dieting.

I really am annoyed with dieters who expect everyone to give them a standing ovation just because they're watching their weight.

And while I'm on the subject, you do people who are on diets bore everybody else with talk of nothing else! It gets very tiresome.

I've been on diets, too, but I don't mention it. I just eat what's allowed on my diet, skip the rest, and talk about something more interesting.

BORED WITH DIETERS
DEAR BORED: There is so much conversation about diets and dieting. It's estimated that 75 per cent of the population of the U.S.A. (and Canada) would dearly love to lose weight. And I think those who manage to pull it off deserve a standing ovation. However, for another complaint on my "hoarse" read on.....

DEAR ABBY: You advised a mother-in-law to try to be more understanding of a daughter-in-law who logged her scale and weighed everything she ate, and then you said, "...or would you rather have a fat daughter-in-law?" I am slowly burning! And what is wrong with a fat daughter-in-law? I have one who treats me a whole lot better than my skinny daughter-in-law.

I happen to weigh 225 myself, but I took complete care of my mother-in-law until she passed away. (She had two daughters and another daughter-in-law—all skinny, who didn't do a thing for her.)

A fat girl may never get to be a Playboy Bunny, or a Miss America, but she can be beautiful. Looks are only skin deep! MRS. L.

DEAR MRS. L.: Wait. Another reader would like equal time. But this one is for the scale-totin' weight watcher.

DEAR ABBY: This is to INSULTED, who was upset because her daughter-in-law carried her scale around and weighed her food in the kitchen before she ate it.

Lady, get off your high horse. Evidently you've never had to fight a weight problem. I can tell you, it's pure hell! My husband and I are both weight watchers, and we go to his mother's for dinner, and you can bet we always take our scale with us and we weigh every last crumb that goes into our mouths. His parents both respect and admire us for our determination to lose weight so we will not only look better, but feel better.

Furthermore, you should be glad your daughter-in-law weighs her food in the kitchen. I keep my scale right next to my plate.

If I were your daughter-in-law and had learned that you had written to Dear Abby complaining about my dragging a food scale with me when I ate at your house, you would never find me at your table again unless you apologized! INSULTED IN BINGHAMTON

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY, Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lake Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20¢) envelope.

super athletes," Martin said in an interview.

The MU doctors employed a variety of sophisticated tests, many made available only in the past few years, to come up with complete pictures of the athletes' hearts.

"Their hearts are slightly larger, slightly more muscular and they contract with more force than normal — so they're super hearts in other words," Martin said.

"I frequently have found things about the EKG in athletes which were questionable," he said. "The physician tends to make his decision on the conservative side. This might keep a guy out of a sport which he could have made a career out of."

Willie Sibb, a guard on the Tigers' basketball squad who has scored better than 20 points before a recent game. An elbow rammed him in the chest, and Smith had a bruise but no broken ribs.

When Smith still was feeling pain the day of the game, the team trainer sent him to a doctor who found abnormalities in Smith's EKG that could have been caused by a bruise directly on the heart muscle. There was also a loud extra sound that could have been another sign of a heart muscle bruise. Only five hours before tipoff, Smith was sent to Martin for further evaluation.

"There was a loud third heart sound, as well as a heart murmur and those unusual findings on the EKG," Martin said. "A year ago I would have had to conclude that these findings were sufficiently suggestive of heart damage to keep Willie out of the game and require observation for at least a few more days."

"But the research of my colleagues here demonstrated that all of these findings, which are not usually present in healthy normal individuals, are typical of the highly conditioned athlete and not 'abnormal' at all.

Willie would up playing the entire game and led all scorers with 20 points.

Awareness Day - May 1

The so-called "shut-ins," people with physical handicaps and are not so much shut in as shut out in Connecticut. Architectural and attitudinal barriers prevent the physically disabled from working, shopping, voting and entering government buildings, according to spokesmen from a variety of agencies planning Connecticut's second annual statewide Awareness Day for Thursday, May 1.

Agencies working with the handicapped and community groups dedicated to making public places accessible to all the public met in New Haven this week to coordinate community efforts across the state toward spotlighting the barriers issue.

Representatives from Associations for Retarded Citizens, town governments, Junior Women's Clubs, United General Palsy of Connecticut, Society of Architects, the State Office of Mental Retardation, the Connecticut Developmental Disabilities Program and private individuals concerned with restrictions limiting the vocational and social mobility of disabled people discussed varied approaches to Awareness Day.

"Much of the problem is caused by simple lack of information," said Eliot J. Doherty, executive director of United General Palsy of Connecticut, Inc. (UGP). "Never having tried to navigate the world in a wheelchair or on crutches, the average citizen simply doesn't realize that a heavy door or steep steps screams 'no to handicapped people.'"

Individual projects varied from having significant community leaders spend the day in wheelchairs and on crutches to experience the frustrations these physical aids create in poorly planned buildings and on city streets to providing handicapped speakers to elementary school classrooms.

"As many as 25,000 people in Connecticut may suffer limited mobility on a permanent or temporary basis," according to Ms. Zoltak, spokesmen from UCP and herself confined to a wheelchair. "We see Awareness Day as an educational function which will provide an excellent 'consciousness-raising' experience for Connecticut citizens. We're hoping to make May 1 Awareness Day a nationwide effort by next year."

Miss Karen-Marie Cronin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Cronin of E. Middle Tpk. will appear as one of the school girls in Bay Path Junior College's production of the comedy-drama, "The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie," scheduled for April 24-26 on the Longmeadow, Mass. campus.

The committee may increase the $500 tax exemption or exempt some age groups entirely, Mr. Beck said Thursday.

More than 70 percent of the proposed tax's anticipated revenue will come from persons with annual incomes of more than $15,000, she said.

PHONM PENH (UPI) - Government forces gave up three positions near Phnom Penh after heavy attack today and moved in reinforcements by helicopter to plug holes in the besieged city's defense line.

The parents, family and friends of the scout retreatants usually attend this mass with the retreat committee.

All scout retreatants in the district decided to cut off aid.

Mr. Dro said he would return to Phnom Penh in a few days to head the government.

Radio Peking today said Prince Norodom Sihanouk, Communist-led insurgents, has rejected all negotiations with any government in Phnom Penh.

"In no case, under no circumstances, either in the near or distant future, will the Cambodian resistance force negotiate with the traitors," the radio stated Sihanouk was saying.

Military sources in Phnom Penh said at least 27 men were reported killed, 38 wounded and 45 missing in the retreat north and northwest of Phnom Penh.

The troops left behind a substantial amount of arms and ammunition at the abandoned posts, one of them six miles north of the city and the others five miles to the northwest.

New defense lines were established closer to the capital, the sources said.

The American Embassy scheduled a charter flight to take out U.S. personnel under its policy of reducing the number of government employees by 15 percent.

Thirty-seven U.S. employees and workers for voluntary relief organizations left Thursday by charter flight.

Another 50 persons, mainly Koreans and Filipinos who kept military aid records for the U.S. military, flew to Thailand at a U.S. air Force C-130 transport.

Two Restless Nights Left Before Cutdown

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. (UPI) - There are only two more restless nights facing several men wanting to play baseball for the Boston Red Sox this season.
That's the length of time Manager Darrell Johnson said Thursday night he'll need before announcing the cuts necessary to get his roster down to the 25-man limit he's allowed for Tuesday American League opener.
Johnson thought in mid-week he'd need until Monday, when an off-day workout is scheduled at Fenway Park, to trim the squad.
"Now," he said following a 2-1 exhibition loss to the Minnesota Twins. "I believe between Dick (O'Connell) and me we can do it Sunday. That way, those who are being cut can be left in Winter Haven if they're going to be reassigned to a minor league team."
The manager has a lot to think about in the next two days because Tony Conigliaro's bat has suddenly come to life, perhaps enough so that the 30-year-old former slugger may realize his dream immediately of returning to baseball after a 3 1/2 year retirement.
Conigliaro has lifted his batting average from .186 to .246 in two games with five hits, including a home run and three doubles. Two of the doubles came in the loss to the Twins, both off right-handed Bert Blyleven and one driving in Boston's run in the first inning following a single by Rick Miller and a walk to Bernie Carbo.
"I'm relaxed now," Conigliaro said in explaining his good hitting. "It started in Lakeland (Tuesday night) and I can't explain why the tension suddenly left me."
Johnson's other major problem is trimming his pitching staff. He has 11 pitchers in camp and wants to bring only nine north.
Rick Wise cemented his claim to the third starting spot by holding the Twins to five hits and a run in five innings. He has an earned run average of 2.86 for 22 innings. Minnesota scored its winning run off Dick Drego on two walks and a single by Glenn Borgmann.

Nolan and Osteen Sharp on Mound

NEW YORK (UPI) - At this stage of the game, winning—and losing—is measured by more important yardsticks than mere scores for such question mark pitchers as Gary Nolan and Claude Osteen.
Both hurlers suffered through the misery last year of not knowing if their careers were sliding to an unspectacular end. Nolan underwent shoulder surgery last May and his total output for Cincinnati amounted to six innings in two games.
Osteen's situation was a little more mysterious as he claimed to be feeling fine but still turned in his worst campaign, 6-11 with a 3.00 earned run average. At the age of 38, the game lefthander is fighting for survival in the St. Louis camp this spring.
Both pitchers won exhibition games Thursday, with Nolan being far the more impressive. The tall, 26-year-old righthander yielded only one run on five hits in seven innings as the Reds beat the Detroit Tigers, 3-1, at Tampa, Fla.
Nolan, who has been penciled in by Manager Sparky Anderson to start next Saturday's game at San Diego, struck out five batters and walked two. The only run off him came in the sixth inning when Nate Colbert doubled home Art James.
Nolan is reluctant to discuss his troubles of last year, explaining, "Everyone knows how much uncertainty I went through in the past. The only thing I want to think about is the future."
Mickey Lolich, another veteran who has had a rough spring, went the distance for Detroit and allowed eight hits, including a pair of singles to Johnny Bench.
Osteen, who lost his only two decisions when St. Louis after being traded from Houston, yielded seven hits and three runs in five innings Thursday when the Cardinals beat the Astros, 10-5, at St. Petersburg, Fla. In club.

Lou Piniella's two-run homer off Jerry Kosman capped a four-run eighth inning that enabled the New York Yankees to beat the New York Mets, 7-5, in a rubber game of their spring rivalry. The Yankees struck out 10 batters in seven innings in his tune-up for opening day while pitching Minnesota to a 2-1 win over the Boston Red Sox.
In Arizona, Jerry Morales capped a three-run rally with a two-run homer in the eighth inning to lift the Chicago Cubs to a 6-4 triumph over Milwaukee. Campy Campaneris hit a pair of home runs for Oakland and Claude Washington drove in the winning run with a two-out infield hit in the ninth as Oakland beat Los Angeles, 10-9.
The scheduled game between California and San Francisco at Modesto, Calif., was canceled because of rain.

Cavalier Playoff Shot Alive Following Win

NEW YORK (UPI) - "You've come a long way baby."
Those were the words of many of the 20,239 fans that jammed the Coliseum Thursday night to watch the Cleveland Cavaliers keep their playoff hopes alive by defeating the New York Knicks, 100-85. A victory over the Kansas City-Omaha Kings at Omaha Sunday afternoon will cement the Cavs' first playoff berth in the National Basketball Association since the joining the league as an expansion club in 1970.
With Jimmy Clemons pouring in 17 of his 19 points in the second half of the only NBA game played, including a pair of clutch foul shots in the final 30 seconds, the Cavs wiped out a 53-49 New York halftime lead and tied the game when Clemons stole the ball from Earl Monroe with 12 seconds left. Ten seconds later Jim Brewer stuffed one to the delight of the cheering fans.
"And I even forgot my handkerchief," said Cleveland Coach Bill Fitch, who had to wipe the tears away from his eyes with his hand as the largest crowd ever to witness a single NBA game gave the Cavs their first of nine standing ovations. "I sure is a lot different from five years ago when 1,800 fans kept telling me to go back to Minnesota."
The Cavs worked hard and they deserve it. They opened the game with a lot of noise and didn't lose it. Clemons took charge and the players are starting to think positive."
Clemons, who hit on only one basket in seven shots in the first half, connected on 6-of-9 in the final 24 minutes and Dick Snyder hit 8-of-10, with five straight coming in the final period that helped the Cavs to a 92-84 bulge over the Knicks.
"I was just trying to do a job and the team did what it had to do," said Clemons, who also picked up six assists.
The Knicks had cut the Cavs' lead to 96-95 with 1:18 left in the game before Clemons hit his key foul shot.
"It was just like playing in the Garden on the road," said New York star guard Walt Frazier, who finished with 20 points.
In ABA action on the final night of the regular season, the New York Nets downed Virginia, 116-111. Kentucky erased Memphis, 103-83. San Antonio upended Indiana, 137-122. Utah drubbed St. Louis, 128-88, and Denver walked San Diego, 146-121.
Nets 116, Spurs 111
Jules Erving scored 38 points to give New York an overtime victory and a tie pumped in 30 points in spearheading Utah's victory over St. Louis. Boone, who hasn't missed a game in seven years, finished with 20 points behind only McGinnis and Erving.

Businessmen Hoop League Champions

BOSTON (UPI) - The confusion field is mounting as fast as the pile of entry forms. Marathon madness has begun.
In two weeks, approximately 2,000 persons will answer the nighttime gun at Hopkinton Center, romping 26 miles, 385 yards through the streets of eight Eastern Massachusetts communities in the 79th running of the Boston Marathon.
But then, no concrete information on the annual event of running in the annual number of entries is available concerning the April 21 Patriots' Day jaunt.
But then, for most of the past year, the annual event is to gain personal achievement and display good fellowship rather than get records.
"With 2,000 persons entered, keeping control of the event is such a logistics problem that's maribarrassing," said Marathon Director Wil Cloney. "But it's really like a breath of fresh air in an era when athletes get $3.7 million for a five-year contract like Cathie Hunter did. We have people come from all over the country and around the world at their own expense just to run in the marathon."

Nassau County Coliseum Lost Half Million

MINNEOLA, N.Y. (UPI) - The Nassau County Coliseum lost more than a half-million dollars in 1974, although cutting its deficit by 50 per cent from the previous year.
An audit by the Nassau County Comptroller's Office released Thursday showed the county's losses to be $515,747. The comparable figure for 1973 was $1,032,838.
Reacting to the audit, County Executive Ralph G. Caso said that before the 16,000-seat arena and exhibition hall in Uniondale, N.Y., opened in April, 1972, consultants predicted it would not reach the break-even point for five years.
"At the three-year mark, we appear to be well on our way toward that point," Caso said.
Much of the additional revenues came from an 8 to 20 per cent increase in the number of events for which the public paid admissions. Revenues rose from $2.36 million in 1973 to $2.76 million last year while attendance rose from 1.8 million to 2.1 million.
Caso predicted the debut later this year of the Long Island Tomahawks of the National Lacrosse League and the return of the New York Jets' pro tennis team, headed by star Billie Jean King, would enhance financial prospects for the Coliseum.
The American Basketball Association New York Nets and the National Hockey League New York Islanders make the Coliseum their home.

Deans to Chargers

SAN DIEGO (UPI) - The San Diego Chargers have signed "Mean" Fred Dean, a No. 2 draft choice from Louisiana Tech, the National Football League team announced Thursday.
Dean, 6-3 and 228 pounds, will be tried as middle linebacker for San Diego when he joins the team at its summer camp in July, the spokesman said.

Two More Rookies

BALTIMORE (UPI) - The Baltimore Colts signed two more rookies to contracts Thursday, bringing the number of signed draft choices to six.
The newest Colts are Derral Lince, a 6-3, 220-pound linebacker from Baylor, and Mike Eravold, a 6-5, 270-pound defensive tackle from Macalester.

Unsung Hero

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) - Rookie defenseman Bill Hajt was given the Tim Horton Award Thursday night as the Buffalo Sabres' "unsung hero" for the 1974-75 season.
Hajt, 23, who was drafted by Buffalo in 1971, had played for Buffalo's Ontario farm club in the 1972-73 and 1973-74 seasons, and appeared in six games for the Sabres last season. He was a regular in Buffalo this season before being sidelined two weeks ago with an injury.

Tom Weiskopf In 'Recession'

GREENSBORO, N.C. (UPI) - Tom Weiskopf says he's been "kind of like the country ... in a recession."
But if the nation's economy starts going like Weiskopf's golf game at the Greater Greensboro Open, unemployment lines may soon be a thing of the past.

Weiskopf, the sensation of the tour in 1973 when he won four U.S. titles and the British Open, has been winless since. But Thursday he fired a seven-under-par 64 on the 6,700-yard Sedgfield Country Club course for a three-stroke lead over Dave Hill going into today's second round of the $225,000 GGO.
Coming off a second-place finish last week in the Heritage Classic and two days of practice at Augusta, Ga., on next week's Masters, Weiskopf birdied seven holes and had pars on the rest.
"This is one of the finest rounds of golf I've ever had," he said. "There's no doubt in my mind."
Weiskopf has had lower rounds, but not under the conditions that greeted the GGO field Thursday—winds gusting to 50 miles per hour and temperatures in the upper 40s.
Hill, an 11-time winner on the PGA tour in 16 years, shot what he called his best round of the year in carding an 87 for sole possession of the GGO course. Perry Leslie, an obscure tour sophomore from Springfield, Mo., was in third place with a three-under 69 after the first round.

South African Bobby Cole shot a 69, two-under, and held down fourth place. Veteran Jerry Heard and Brian "Buddy" Allen, both with one-under 70s, were the only other golfers to break par.
Lee Trevino led a cluster of players at even-par 71. Others were Bert Yancey, Al Grier, 1972 GGO winner Sam Snead. Defending champion Bob Charles, a lefthander from New Zealand, managed a 75. J. C. Sned had a 78 and Lanny Wadkins a 79.

Arnold Palmer turned in a 67 for sole possession of the GGO course. Perry Leslie, an obscure tour sophomore from Springfield, Mo., was in third place with a three-under 69 after the first round. paid for the rights. Lyle's previous biggest pay day was $46,000 when Jerry Quarry decided him in New York in February, 1973.
"I'm not going to be just an opponent," said Lyle, 30-2 with 21 knockouts to his credit. "I'm not looking for just a payday. I feel I have the style that can beat him because of my ability to punch inside. That charge being filed against him, Lyle has never been knocked out or down, for that matter. Lyle originally said he wanted to wait another couple of weeks before meeting Ali but ABC refused to delay the bout, saying it wanted to make sure the fight was held during its upcoming rating period.
After Lyle talked with trainer Chickie Ferrara and Bobby Lewis, he decided six weeks was plenty of time for him to get ready. He hasn't worked out for seven weeks but he weighed in Thursday at 215 pounds, his fighting weight.

'My Fair Lady' Musical Begins Run Tonight

Tonight, in Bailey Auditorium at 8 o'clock, the curtain will rise for the opening of "My Fair Lady" being presented by the MHS Music Department under the direction of Miss Martha White.

The cast will include a total of 300 choir and Round Table members appearing in various scenes, who will sing, dance, and act, as everything from cockney street-sweepers to European royalty.

"My Fair Lady" was written by Lerner and Loewe as a musical play of two acts, from an adaptation of Bernard Shaw's "Pygmalion".

The story concerns an English phoneticist, or professor of language structure, named Henry Higgins, who, on a bet with his colleague Colonel Hugh Pickering, agrees to take in a common English flower girl and make a lady of her in six months.

The flower girl, named Eliza Doolittle, proves more than another experiment to Higgins, and along with much fun is had with Eliza's father, Alfred P. Doolittle. "My Fair Lady" is one of the most successful and popular musicals ever performed.

The part of Henry Higgins will be played by Jon Adams, senior. Eliza will be played by senior Shirley Giraltis, and Bill "Bubba" Matthews will play Freddy Snyford-Hill. Gladys Tucker plays Higgins' delightful mother, and Eric Mann and Stuart Flavell, who play Doolittle's sisters, should also be mentioned.

Pulling the show together is the head of the music department, Miss Martha White, whose tireless, along with the diligent aid of Miss Charlotte White, Gloria Tripp, and Jennifer Davis, is the force behind the show.

To be commended also is Cindy Tucker, who along with Miss White and a group of excellent dancers, has worked hard to make the choreography as beautiful as possible, of course, without Marcia Spano, the Round Table accompanist, invaluable at rehearsal or show.

Like all shows of such magnitude, "My Fair Lady" has had its share of problems. Along with a good dosage of sickness, the male lead, Jon Adams was out of rehearsal 2 1/2 weeks with a broken nose. Fortunately, his acting and singing faculties are unimpaired. Costumes also proved to be a "hang up," in that the costume costs for "Lucky" are tremendous. Mrs. Deo Krascoala, who has worked very hard on costumes, deserves a great deal of credit.

"My Fair Lady" includes such well-known numbers as "I Could Have Danced All Night," "Wouldn't It Be Lovely," "A Little Bit of Luck," "The Rain in Spain," and "I've Grown Accustomed to Her Face."

The fine voices of the MHS choir and Round Table Singers, along with the excellent members of the MHS band and the Manchester Civic Orchestra, who volunteer their time every year, will combine for beautiful music.

Every year, the musical is a sellout. Come early, tickets will be April 9, 10 and 11. Doors will open at 7:15. With so much going for it, it can be assured that a good time will be had by all. — T. Mrazus

Editorial Evaluation of Teachers Urged

Many teachers at MHS distribute teacher evaluation forms to their students at the end of their courses. They are to be commended for their open-mindedness and ability to take criticism.

However, many teachers at MHS are still either too insecure, or too unconcerned about students' feelings about their courses to take the small effort required to either obtain or prepare evaluation forms and have students fill them out. This editorial is as much a plea to the teachers themselves as anything else. Simply to keep your teaching and the students' learning at the optimum, avenues of interaction or teaching must be kept open.

Recent efforts by student representatives on the Advisory Board to make student evaluation of teachers mandatory have failed. The only result of this push is that some teachers in the English department will volunteer to have their students evaluate them at the end of the year and the outcome of this seems to be a comfortable way to shelve the problem.

Simply because some English teachers will volunteer to try a student evaluation this year does not mean that teacher evaluation is a revolutionary concept. Teachers have done it at least two years, that this writer knows of, previous to this one. They were not forced, or bribed, or cajoled to do it. They merely wanted to discover how the students felt about the way the course was conducted.

After all, the school was constructed for students to learn, and if they feel they don't learn enough, or that they are learning the wrong things, this is something which should be brought to the attention of their teachers.

Since the students' proposal to make this kind of evaluation mandatory has already been rejected, the purpose of this editorial is not to pressure the administration or to arouse opinion in favor of the proposal, but to try to get teachers to give students a chance to offer criticisms or praise of their teaching, as the students see it.

No one outside of the individual teachers being evaluated need ever see the students' opinions. Giving the students such an opportunity does not mean leaving your job on the line.

Each teacher took the opportunity of giving his students a chance to vent their feelings on the course. It would go a long way towards promoting understanding between him and them, and, to some extent, between the generations.

Opening a channel of dialogue is an important first step in reducing student-teacher tensions and creating a more harmonious educational environment. Any teacher who feels he has no need of such things should step back and re-examine his relations with his students.

At any rate, it can't hurt the teacher who independently administers and collects evaluation forms on himself. No one is going to place the criticisms in the teacher's file, as any teacher can do on a student.

The objectivity, analysis, and reaction to such an evaluation is left purely up to the conscience of the teacher. The evaluation sheets, as would also have been the case under mandatory evaluation, could simply end up in a wastebasket, unread.

However, if a teacher has enough interest in how students feel about the course to give out the evaluations, chances are, he will have enough interest to read them.

To sum up, it is to be strongly urged that teachers have their student give evaluation of them, not only because it can do no harm to them (except for the evaluation sheets, as would also be the case under mandatory evaluation), but also because it can increase the harmony between the student and the teacher, and raise the level of education at MHS. — George Sweetnam

Rock Review

Todd Rundgren: "Utopia" There were plenty of new albums released this past week, including "Blueways" by two former members of the Moody Blues, a new Steely Dan, a third effort by Jessie Colin Young, and another by David Bowie. Unfortunately, I haven't had a chance to listen to any of these critically. This forces me to go back to late November, when Todd Rundgren's "Utopia" came out.

The album contains only four cuts, "Utopia," "Freak Parade," "Freedom Fighters," and "The Boy," with both sides measuring better than thirty minutes. The music is mostly electric, diverse and bizarre, but it's good. Besides that, the album is a letdown because Rundgren doesn't employ all of his talents as he did in his last two efforts, "Something/Anything," and "Todd."

On these two previous albums, he wrote and played almost all instruments, sang all vocals, and produced the album. On "Utopia" he only plays guitar, sings, co-writes the material, and produces the album.

Possibly this LP is just an appetizer for the listeners to digest as they wait for another master creation to unfold. If that is the case, "Utopia" has achieved its purpose.

It's been more than a year since Steely Dan cut a new album, but it was worth the wait. Steely Dan has released its fourth album, "Katy Lied," and despite a couple of personal changes, this is the same Steely Dan that let us up a year ago. Gone are Skunk Baxter on guitar and drummer Jim Hodder.

They pick up Mike McDonald for vocals and Jeff Porciano on drums. The two men who write all of Steely Dan's material still here. They are guitarist Walter Becker and Donald "Pagan" Henkes, whose keyboards and vocals are a Steely Dan trademark. The remaining redneck is the bearded Denny Dias on guitar. Also lending a hand, or rather a guitar, is Rick Damo.

You know that you're finally passing out of your childhood when your jeans start wearing out in the seat before they wear out in the knees.

Trackmen Open Season

The MHS trackmen under coach Dick Williams are ready to begin what looks to be a promising season.

Practice began on March 10 and is now in full swing. Despite the often frigid temperatures and biting winds, the runners have been diligent in trotting the home course in preparation for the April 11 opener against a tough Farmington team.

The Indians haven't had a losing season in eight years and last year they ended up with an outstanding 107 record — the best in 16 years.

With much of last year's return returning this spring, and with the addition of several sophomores, Williams is looking forward to another terrific season. A small but potent squad, the Tribe trackmen have an excellent chance of capturing the CCIL championship.

Help the team in their quest for first place honors by showing your support at the meets. — Ron Sisson

Education Today

By PATRICIA MCCORMACK, UPI Editor

NORWALK (UPI) — A new lesson plan for the fourth grade is titled "Gardening."

At the end of one lesson unit, "Planting Seeds," boys and girls will be able to:

- set up a garden line to mark a row.
- Space seeds uniformly in a furrow.
- Cover sown seeds in the manner prescribed by teacher.
- In the process, children will use math and learn something about science. They also, if successful, will help put budget-saving, nutritious vegetables on the family table.

The lesson plan and a manual for school administrators and teachers have just been put out by Gardens for All in Norwalk. That is a nonprofit educational organization helping to coordinate and guide the current national frenzy to garden in community, school and backyard. To fight inflation.

Jim Baker, head of Gardens for All, in an interview said the materials for schools were developed with the aid of Pete Wolowicz, supervisor of gar-

Close Look at David Monahan

Gray-haired, bearded, clubby, wearing bifocals and a great disposition (even likes kids!) Sound familiar?

Santa Claus...well maybe, but believe it or not, such a person teaches English right here within the confines of MHS — David Monahan.

Monahan has taught classes at the high school for 19 years, meaning he's been here ever since the opening of this building.

Previous to this, he had begun his teaching career in Bell Plain, Iowa. There he taught about 200 trees per year during classes for two years before moving on in search of greener pastures to Pomfret, Conn. (about 25 miles from Manchester) where he now resides with his wife, an associate professor of chemistry at the University of Connecticut.

Wakefield, R.I. is Mr. Monahan's birthplace. He lived there until he attended school at Upper Iowa College. He did not become interested in English until his sophomore year up to which time he had been a business major. In fact, he jokingly claims that "the only thing I was really interested in upon entering college was keeping myself warm."

Monahan is today heading courses in American literature and American folklore and folk music. He is fascinated by dening and horticulture for the Cleveland Board of Education.

'G' Is for Gardening

The Cleveland schools have operated a gardening and horticulture program for 75 years — ranging from track gardens on school property to vocational programs training students for jobs on the horticulture front.

In between are programs teaching kids how to manage home gardens — a plan that calls for an on-site inspection by a teacher who grades the backyard garden.

Lesley Beams, coordinator of the Home Garden Program in Cleveland schools, said parochial students also participate.

"In August," he said, "there is a fair and more vegetables are entered than in the Ohio State Fair."

"We have fourth-generation gardeners in the school program."

"The Cleveland Plain Dealer helps sponsor the fair and other community groups join in. Some 20,000 students are involved in the home and track garden projects. We call them volunteers."

For the backyard garden students get a kit of seeds and plants that cost from 75 cents to $1.50.

An environment Action section of the gardening student helps to spruce up eyesores on school and community property by planting flowers and greens.

Wolowicz, agriculture education and horticulture graduate from Ohio State University, said fourth graders are just about the right age to get turned out gardening in a big way.

"They can handle the tools and they are super interested," he said.

"We start with quick crops. They like immediate results. The crops are radishes, onion sets and leaf lettuce."

Wolowicz said the approach to gardening is far from casual. There is one teacher for every 300 involved.

The manual produced with Wolowicz's assistance is school primer #4 of several programs — plus those outside organizations which might work with the student system in developing a garden program such groups as Kiwanis and Lions.

Education Today

Monahan thinks that too many people regard school as a place where society is shaped. The school is certainly something we could use a lot more of.

Throughout the years he has seen many changes occur in education. As far as hobbies are concerned, nature has always played a great part in Mr. Monahan's life. At his home in Pomfret, he owns and tends to about 60 acres of wooded area.

He enjoys reforesting the land and says that he plants about 200 trees per year during his spare time. Walking through the woods or doing things that involve the wilderness are simple pleasures that Monahan finds very pleasant.

He's very concerned about the fate of all our natural resources. "People just don't take ecology or the energy crisis seriously enough," he says sadly. As a matter of fact, he fears that the outlook for mankind's future is quite pessimistic unless we can really get our heads back together soon, before it's too late to care.

Monahan is quick to express his satisfaction about working with teen-agers. He feels that all teachers should have (friendly) relationships with students. They should not be looked upon as being superior to the kids. "This type of thinking has earned him respect from many of his students who think of him not only as a good teacher, but also as a friend. This type of student-teacher relationship is certainly something we could use a lot more of."

More Job Losses Forecast

The Ford administration says that while the nation is moving toward economic recovery, thousands of workers are going to lose their jobs before the recession ends.

In an apparent reference to the government's report today on March unemployment, President Ford told news executives in San Diego there would be "discouraging" news about unemployment.

The nation's unemployment rate in February matched January's rate of 8.2 per cent mainly because half a million workers gave up looking for new jobs and were not counted in the government's survey.

In testimony before a congressional committee, Treasury Secretary William Simon acknowledged for the first time that the nation's unemployment rate could rise to 9 per cent — or more than 8 million persons — by summer.

But Simon and Ford, in a later news conference, noted that the nation was on the way to economic recovery this year. Ford said an upturn should begin after July.

Signaling a slower rate of layoffs, the Labor Department said 52,100 persons were dropped from state unemployment rolls in mid-March, as some industries particularly autos and textiles, recalled idled persons.

In further evidence of the trend toward a slower rate of inflation, the Labor Department reported that wholesale prices fell 0.6 per cent in March. It was the fourth monthly decline in a row, the first time this has happened since 1968.

At the March rate, Ford told the news conference, inflation this year could average 7.5 per cent compared to last year's rate of about 12 per cent. Simon said inflation was slowing faster than the administration had expected.

Prices declined for food, textiles, apparel, household fixtures, appliances, plastic and metal furniture paced the decline at the wholesale level, giving consumers expectations of lower — or at least stable — prices on these items in future weeks.

But prices are going up on gasoline, agricultural and industrial chemicals, electric power, and on rubber, iron and steel products.

In another development, the Federal Reserve said the nation's money supply grew 3 per cent in the past four weeks to an average of $26.9 billion. It was the biggest gain in months and provided the first solid evidence that the Fed's efforts to fight the recession are beginning to work.

There were conflicting reports about the level of retail sales — a key barometer of consumer confidence.

The Commerce Department said total retail sales declined 4 per cent on an adjusted basis last week, totaling $10.9 billion compared with $11.9 billion in the week ending March 22.

Pillsbury Buys Diet Firm

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (UPI) — Pillsbury Co., which makes mixes for cakes and other high calorie goodies, has bought Weight Watchers, a diet program designed to trim down people who are overweight.

"I wonder if dieters could eat any of the things Pillsbury makes?" said Ellen Holmgren, 30, of Champlin, Minn., who lost 12 pounds after being things Weight Watchers.

A person desiring to melt away extra pounds pays $3 a week to attend classes held in 50 states and 16 foreign countries. Weight Watchers also offers a line of low-calorie foods.

Nuisance bids thwart best lead

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Today's hand taken from the qualifying rounds of the World's championship, North and South reached a spade slam after East and West had each put in a nuisance bid. West opened his partner's suit and South went at all happy with the dummy. Still, bidders can't be choosers - to after winning the club he led three rounds of diamonds in order to get rid of his losing club. West ruffed in with the jack of trumps and club trick.

They looked up ever better after South ruffed a club, dropped West's king of spades, picked up trumps and spread his hand.

At another table North arrived at six diamonds. East opened his partner's heart suit and North had no trouble with that slam.

The hand has a most unusual feature. If West had opened his own heart suit against the spade slam he would have gotten in with the king of spades and given his partner a heart ruff. Then against the diamond slam, East had opened his own club suit, there would have been no way for declarer to avoid the loss of a spade and a club trick.

TODAY'S QUESTION: This is passed around to East who bids four clubs. What do you do now?

Answer: Tomorrow

Collins Praises Plea Bargaining In Court System

Assistant Prosecutor William B. Collins spoke to the Rotary Club of South Windsor Wednesday night and praised plea bargaining, explained the process, and warned the men not to drive fast in Manchester at night.

Collins, 46, of Glastonbury has a law practice in Manchester and is an assistant prosecutor in the Common Pleas Court 12 now holding all its criminal and motor vehicle cases in East Hartford.

His court takes cases from the five towns of South Windsor, Manchester, Marlborough, Glastonbury and East Hartford. Collins began his talk to the packed meeting Wednesday with a few facts about the court he has served since his appointment in 1968.

His court is "the people's court," he said. It handles 85 to 90 per cent of all criminal matters arising in the five towns. And it takes 100 per cent of all motor vehicle cases.

He told them they were all likely to have some contact with the court some day. "You may have a drink now and get arrested driving home," he said. "Maybe your child will get in trouble."

The groundwork for all cases Collins handles are done by the police of the five towns. He may give his say on an arrest warrant before it goes to the judge for signing.

About bonds, he said, "Most people here are released on their promise to appear." He then praised plea bargaining.

"If you get an attorney, he'll come in and talk to me, probably on the day of your court appearance," Collins said. "This is often the beginning of plea bargaining, a very important part of our justice system today."

Collins said few cases are tried to conclusion. Most often when a person is convicted of a crime, he first pleads guilty to it.

The bargaining comes as the prosecutor and the accused's attorney argue as to what he will plead guilty.

The nature of the charges, the strength of the case prepared by the police, the accused's record and other factors are playing cards in plea bargaining.

When a prosecutor notes a case, he merely tells the judge he does not want to prosecute it.

And a nolled case can be reopened if the prosecutor gets new and damaging facts within a limited time.

Collins said he often uses the note and explained why. "If I look at a case and suspect the person may not be guilty, I'll nolle it," he said.

"If a man is not 18, is a first offender, and the charges aren't serious, I can offer him the youth offender status. This means that his conviction and his penalty do not go on his record. He can legally say he never was convicted, when he tries to get a job in later years."

"He gets a chance still at a bite of the big apple," Collins said. In a new court program, a young offender may be diverted from the court process and placed on probation for a time. He will not be put to plea. If he completes the probation period well, his case may be nolle.

TODAY'S THOUGHT

On the Resurrection day, Jesus Christ lifted up His wounded hands in blessing upon His disciples. He bled and died that He might bless.

On the following Sunday He held out His wounded hands to Thomas in proof that He was the Christ. With wounded hands He broke bread for His disciples and then they recognized the token "and their eyes were opened to the price Jesus paid for the remission and forgiveness of our sins."

'Operation Babylift' Resumes from Saigon

SAIGON (UPI) — Almost 900 mixed-blood Vietnamese war orphans left for the United States today as "Operation Babylift" resumed by President Gerald Ford swung into high gear.

A Pan American World Airways 747 jumbo jet, chartered by the Holt Children's Agency of Eugene, Ore., took off in late afternoon, carrying 409 children in the biggest single movement ever of orphans fathered by American servicemen in Vietnam over the past 10 years.

In the early evening, another Pan Am 747 left with 321 orphans, some of them survivors of the crash of the huge U.S. Air Force plane Friday in the first of the "Operation Babylift" flights ordered by President Ford.

The plane, a C-5 Galaxy transport, the world's largest aircraft, crashed about 30 minutes after taking off from Saigon's Tan Son Nhut Air Base with 243 children. A total of 319 persons were aboard the plane and 170 of them were killed. More than half of the orphans survived and were in good condition despite the ordeal.

U.S. officials today said there was no indication of sabotage in the crash of a giant cargo plane.

"I'm trying to knock down this sabotage story," a U.S. Embassy spokesman said. "We have absolutely no indication of any sabotage whatsoever."

A Pentagon spokesman said every possibility would be looked into, but added, "At this time it is inappropriate to speculate on the cause" of the crash.

Along with the two Pan American jets, three U.S. Air Force C-141 Starliner transports flew a total of 167 orphans to Clark Air Base in the Philippines, en route to the United States.

A spokesman for the U.S. Agency for International Development said the Pan Am flight is the largest scheduled babylift flight "to the best of our knowledge."

Volunteer nurses and diaper changers are preparing a warm welcome for 400 Vietnamese orphans when they arrive late tonight in Seattle.

The 747 jets scheduled to arrive at 11:10 p.m. PDT.

New Canaan Businessman Charters 747 for Orphans

By BRUNO V. RANIELLO
NEW CANAAN (UPI) — Businessman Robert C. Macaulay never heard of Friends of All Children, a Colorado adoption agency until Friday when a military plane crashed near Saigon killing more than 100 Vietnamese babies.

By late Friday, Macaulay, 51, the father of two children, committed himself to pay $50,000 to charter a Boeing 747 and rush the survivors to the United States and eventually to the Colorado group.

Macaulay who said, "It had to be done." He said he will travel to Oakland, Calif. today to await the arrival of the Pan American jet.

Why did Macaulay do it? "I guess for humanitarian concern. I'm a great believer in Albert Schweitzer. Somebody had to do it. It was only money against saving the lives of 300 or 400 children. There wasn't any time to wait," he said.

President and Advisers Confer on Vietnam Crisis

By HELEN THOMAS
PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — President Ford climaxed his Easter vacation today with a policy meeting with top advisers on a problem that has bedeviled America for more than a decade — Vietnam.

He summoned to his vacation villa Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and Army Chief of Staff Gen. Frederick Weyand, who spent the past week in South Vietnam conferring with South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu and American officials on the ability of Saigon to survive the most devastating Communist offensive of the war.

White Weyand was on his fact-finding mission, Thieu ordered a pull-back of South Vietnamese troops, a decision that cost the government three-quarters of the country and a $1 billion in abandoned American equipment.

Ford has termed the retreat "poorly planned and unnecessary" and reportedly berated Thieu and his aides in private.

But Weyand, who arrived here Friday, told reporters in Saigon the withdrawal was a "sound strategic action."

White House press secretary Ron Nessen said there was no conflict between Ford and Weyand's assessments. He said the general, who also expressed a view that the North Vietnamese can be defeated on the battlefield, was discussing a strategic decision, while the president feels that "practically, it is impossibly carried out."

Nessen said it was possible Weyand may discuss with Ford South Vietnam's increasing military demands and its ability to make a stand.

Ford said he may have to up the ante in his request to Congress for military assistance. So far, the lawmakers have refused to budge on Ford's appeal for $800 million in additional aid for Saigon.

Ford remained silent when he was informed by Nessen of a statement by Thieu that Americans would earn the label "traitors" if they failed to provide more military aid to Saigon, according to the press secretary.

The president was holding two meetings with his advisers early this morning and in mid-afternoon — with a round of golf in between. Following the first session, Kissinger was scheduled to brief reporters on the highlights of Weyand's report.

NEWS CAPSULES

Backs CIA
SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Americans cannot afford to "cripple our vital intelligence agency," President Ford said Friday night in an off-the-cuff endorsement of the CIA.

Ford's remarks on the Central Intelligence Agency drew a round of strong applause from his audience at a civic dinner.

The CIA's role in domestic intelligence gathering in recent years is being investigated both by Congress and a presidential commission.

Saigon Uneasy
SAIGON (UPI) — The military commander of Saigon threatened today to arrest any resident spreading rumors or attempting to leave Vietnam illegally.

U.S. officials warned of possible anti-American outbreaks.

L. Gen. Nguyen Van Minh, who has vowed to defend Saigon and keep the city calm, banned both evacuation of the capital and the entrance of war refugees into Saigon, government spokesmen said.

Attack Hathaway
SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Conservationists have launched their attack against President Ford's nomination of former Wyoming Gov. Stanley Hathaway as secretary of interior in alleging he will "sell off every oil and coal field in sight."

But Hathaway said some "very hard decisions have to be made" to achieve energy self-sufficiency.

Benefit Extension Asked
SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — President Ford says he will ask Congress to extend unemployment benefits from 23 weeks to 65.

Ford told the San Francisco Bay Area Council Friday night the recession is showing "tentative signs that the worst may be behind us."

He said "encouraging indications" include a slowdown in price increases, lowering of interest rates, retail sales holding up as inventories are reduced, and automakers planning increased production.

'M' Award Presentation To Highlight CofC Fete

The highlight of the 74th annual banquet of the Greater Manchester Chamber of Commerce will be the presentation of the coveted "M" award to a Manchester resident for distinguished service to the community.

The selection of the "M" award recipient is achieved following a thorough research of each proposed individual by a Chamber committee. Actually the selection process began in late January.

The Chamber banquet will be at the Colony, Friday, April 11. A social hour is to begin at 6:30; dinner is at 7:30. Admission is $12.50 per person. The Chamber would appreciate reservations through the Chamber office at 645-2223 no later than Wednesday.

Featured speaker will be Helen Thomas, White House correspondent for United Press International.

Miss Thomas was the first woman assigned to the White House by a news wire service in a full-time basis, the first woman White House bureau chief, and the first woman officer of the White House Correspondents Association.

In addition, she was recently elected the first woman member of the 90-year-old Washington Gridiron Club. Her election came just three months after the club changed its constitution to admit women.

Established Jan. 24, 1885, by a group of Washington newspapermen, the Gridiron Club is best known for its annual spring dinner lampooning the high and mighty in national politics.

Plans Advance for Irish Children's Visit

By ALICE EVANS
A Catholic priest and an Episcopal rector and his wife have been selected to accompany a group of 28 teen-agers from Northern Ireland who will be guests of St. James Church and St. Mary's Episcopal Church this summer.

The Rev. Stephen Jacobson, rector of St. Mary's Church, recently returned from Ireland, where he arranged the formation of committees to select the children who will participate in the ecumenical Irish Children's Project.

The rector said, "Cardinal Conway, archbishop of Armagh and primate of all Ireland, is sending the Rev. Patrick O'Donnell, a youth worker in Armagh and Belfast, to work with me and other members of the program committee in the educational dimension of the project." He will live with the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Edward J. Reardon in St. James Rectory, Father Jacobson said.

The Rev. and Mrs. A.T. Waterstone of Tullamore in the Republic of Ireland will also accompany the group, which is scheduled to arrive in Manchester about July 5. The Rev. Mr. Jacobson said.

The Rev. Mr. Waterstone is rector of St. Catherine's Church in Tullamore. He and his wife spent the summer of 1973 in Connecticut, when he exchanged duties with Father Jacobson, then Vicar of St. George's Episcopal Church in Middletown.

Coming to Manchester, Father Jacobson said, will be 8 teen-agers from the City of Armagh, 12 from Portadown and 8 from Belfast.
