President Applying Pressure To Secure Freighter's Release

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford, applying both diplomatic and military pressure, today sought the help of China and ordered 1,000 Marines to prepare to enter Thailand in an effort to win release of an unarmed American merchant vessel seized by Cambodia, sources said.

Pentagon sources said 1,000 Marines on Okinawa received the order to "prepare to depart soon" for Thailand in a show of military force against the Cambodian armed forces who seized the ship Mayaguez early Monday in what Ford described as an "act of piracy."

The aircraft carrier USS Coral Sea and several destroyers also were steaming toward the area. And U.S. aircraft were continuing air surveillance of the Mayaguez, which was being held by two Cambodian vessels near a tiny island about 30 miles offshore in the Gulf of Siam.

State Department sources reported the administration was seeking the help of China to convince the Cambodian Khmer Rouge government to release the Mayaguez and its 39-man crew and avoid an international incident. China is one of the few countries which has communications with the new Communist regime.

But White House Press Secretary Ron Nesen declined to discuss the details of Ford's diplomatic and military strategy toward the seizure. "We cannot discuss any possible military movements," he said when asked about the Marine alert. He also said he could not answer the question whether Ford was considering a military response.

Appeals for Calm

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI) — The neutralist premier of Laos broadcast an appeal to the nation for calm in the face of the rapidly deteriorating political situation, after the Communist Pathet Lao ordered non-Communist troops to obey Pathet Lao orders. The communique also demanded that military personnel declare loyalty to the coalition government and the National Political Consultative Council, controlled by the Pathet Lao. The commander of the army quickly fell in line with the orders.

Dress Rehearsal

HOUSTON (UPI) — Three American astronauts and two Soviet cosmonauts will work in their computer-operated spaceship simulators today at the start of practice of launches and first maneuvers that will link the two nations' spacecraft in a joint space mission to start July 15. The Soviet simulated launch began at 8:20 a.m. EDT — the same time and day of the week as the real launch 45 days from today. Seven-and-a-half hours later Thomas P. Stafford, Ronald K. "Deke" Slayton and Vance D. Brand simulate the Apollo launch.

Four Men Trapped

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI) — Officials, who are sure one of four men trapped in a tunnel being built beneath the Fox River by a sewer gas explosion is dead, are holding out hope the three others may be alive. Three rescue attempts have failed to free the three men. Another effort was ordered by rescue leaders today. Officials said all four men may have been killed by the toxic methane gas or the blast itself.

Volkswagen in the Red

WOLFSBURG, West Germany (UPI) — Volkswagen, the largest auto maker in Europe and a symbol of West German economic might, has gone into the red for the first time in its history. Volkswagen President Toni Schmuecker told a news conference today the company lost $343 million last year and would not pay a dividend for the 1974 fiscal year. Schmuecker, a former Ford executive who became head of VW last January in an attempt to bring the ailing auto giant back on its feet, said sales fell 12 per cent last year and production dropped 11.4 per cent.

Town Directors Expect to Reject Health District

The Manchester Board of Directors will tackle a varied agenda tonight and will consider actions on wide-ranging proposals. The board's meeting is at 8 in the Municipal Building Hearing Room.

It appears likely the directors will reject a proposal they have been considering, debating, studying and tabling since February — creation of a Manchester-South Windsor Health District.

Action is due tonight on a motion to reject the proposal. The motion has been tabled since March 4, when it was offered by Vivian Ferguson. Others backing the motion then were Phyllis Jackson, Carl Zinsser and Hillary Gallagher. It appears the four have gained support and now have the necessary votes to reject the health district proposal.

The board is expected to approve a 20 per cent hike in sewer charges — to peg them at 120 per cent of water-use fees. The rate is at 100 per cent now.

The Sewer Fund budget for 1975-76 adopted last week by the board is predicated on the 20 per cent increase in sewer charges.

Other actions to be considered tonight are:

- Exercising the town's option to purchase the Manchester Water Co.
- Starting the procedure toward a November referendum for a $2.5 million renovation project at Washington School, Bentley School and the West Side Rec.
- Proceeding with proposed ordinances for regulating group homes and massage parlors (separate ordinances).
- Approving six additional appropriations to the current budget.
- Approving a transfer of $121,175 from the Contingency Account to 15 other accounts.
- Filling several vacancies on town commissions.

American-backed government of Lon Nol fell to the Communists.

Nessen said flatly that the Mayaguez was not a "spy ship" such as the USS Pueblo which was seized by North Koreans in 1968.

Nessen said the fact that Ford instructed the State Department Monday to demand release of the ship indicated that active diplomatic efforts were underway to reach a peaceful solution of the problem.

Ford meanwhile summoned members of the National Security Council to their second meeting since the incident. Nessen said Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, who was on a speaking trip in Missouri, did not intend to return to Washington for the meeting.

Nessen explained that the Mayaguez, a containerized merchant ship which was carrying cargo from Hong Kong to Thailand when it was seized, has been under constant surveillance by U.S. aircraft.

He reported that the vessel was seized near the island of Poulo Wai, a tiny rock about 60 miles offshore claimed by both the Cambodians and the Vietnamese. Two Cambodian gunboats then escorted the Mayaguez to another island, Koh Tan, about 30 miles north, where it has been held ever since, he said.

Cambodians are aboard the ship, Nessen said. But he declined to say whether the American crew had been taken off the vessel.

"The United States has received no reports of any crewmember being wounded on the merchant ship," Nessen said.

The Mayaguez apparently did not go to the Cambodian port of Kompong Son as first announced.

Music Shell Project Explained

Special Committee Formed To Promote Music Shell

By FLOYD LARSON

The idea of a musical shell for Manchester moved another step closer to reality Monday night at a meeting of community group representatives at the Army and Navy Club.

To further plan for the $80,000 to $100,000 structure, a special committee was formed, with Burl L. Lyons, publisher of The Herald, as chairman, to work with the Manchester Bicentennial Committee's study group which did initial planning of the project.

The consensus of those at the meeting was in favor of the shell as a community asset, a fitting and lasting symbol to community participation in the Bicentennial Year, and as a memorial to the town's veterans of all wars and conflicts.

Town Manager Robert Weiss was chairman of the program which involved an explanation of the shell plans to date followed by suggestions and ideas from the more than 50 persons present representing a cross-section of civic, fraternal, patriotic and business interests.

After a welcome by Mayor John Thompson, former Mayor Fran Mahoney, who with former Mayor Nathan Agostinelli is co-chairman of the Manchester Bicentennial Committee, outlined the committee's work to date and some of its plans.

In adopting the band shell project as a major Bicentennial project, Mahoney said, "We feel it offers much not only today but into the future and we are trying to get everyone to participate. We hope we can keep it a local participation project."

Ralph Maccarone, assistant co-chairman of the committee and music shell coordinator, explained the history and physical details of the structure as now envisioned for construction in Center Springs Park.

"What we are looking for," he said, "is your help, your ideas. We want the people of Manchester to feel they are a part of this project either by helping to pay for it or helping to build it. It is a grassroots effort that needs salesmen, needs your talents, your suggestions."

"We believe that it will be a community asset which will attract people to the community as well as performing artists. Up to now we have a proposal; now it's up to the people as it will need money as well as help to build it. We think the people of the town will help us if they are asked," Maccarone said.

Lyons summarized the feeling of many at the session by stating, "I think we want to do this project right from the beginning. We need to know how it is going to be run, who is going to run it, who is going to take care of it, and other things so that when we ask for money we can answer these questions."

Maccarone responded by saying the plans are for a Fine Arts Commission to be created to oversee the program operations while the town would have maintenance responsibility. He stressed his group's feeling the project would be wholesome family fare.

Mike Hirth of Farmers Co-op brought the discussion to a head by suggesting a special committee to look into the practical aspects of the project operations and ways and means to raise funds.

"No one opposes this project but we must be practical," he said. "We must get started and we must raise money. I suggest the present committee plus a few businessmen and others get together to thrash out the many ideas in a practical manner and come back to us with a plan. Otherwise, you'll never get it off the ground. We should decide what we intend to do, how we'll do it, and how we'll get the money."

Weiss said the meeting was to test the water on the shell idea and he felt the response indicated it has community support. The second function of the meeting, he said, was to establish a committee to take the project over from the idea stage into an action stage.

School Board Authorizes Reductions in Staff

By JUNE TOMPKINS

In its first measures to trim the budget, the Board of Education Monday night authorized the elimination of 12 certified positions and 6.5 non-certified positions.

School Superintendent James P. Kennedy said combined cuts including fuel oil, capital improvements, supplies, equipment, transportation, maintenance supplies and staff will be approximately $230,000.

Nine of the certified positions can be taken care of by attrition. At this time, according to Dr. Kennedy, three will result in layoffs, although this may not be necessary considering the possibility of resignations or leaves of absence.

In Dr. Kennedy's recommendation concerning the para-professionals, he noted the current occupants of these positions are not necessarily those who will be subject to layoff.

The board's contract with the Manchester Association of Paraprofessionals requires that the board notify paraprofessionals whose positions are to be eliminated on or before May 15.

The board voted to notify 10 paraprofessionals that the possibility exists of the elimination of their positions so that by June 15, according to their contract, definite information will be given them as to their status.

The seven positions requiring non-certified personnel to be eliminated are: Two aides — classrooms, kindergarten at Keeney; aide — social work at Robertson; aide — social work at Nathan Hale; aide — learning disability kindergarten at Waddell and Nathan Hale; aide — learning disability kindergarten at Bowers and Verplanck; aide — pre-primary at Verplanck.

Coventry Council Role Limited at Pesce Hearing

By MONICA SHEA

Coventry's town attorney, William Hall, would not allow members of the town council to testify during a public hearing last night on the recent firing of Mike Pesce as superintendent of streets.

In defending his action, he asked, "How could the council sit in a judicial manner and be a witness?" Hall was acting as moderator, as well as town attorney.

Some residents at the hearing made several comments to the effect that Hall was not welcome at the hearing, and that he go home. One resident asked that when the hearing continues at 8 p.m. Wednesday, the council provide a more unbiased moderator.

Twice during the hearing, Hall threatened to have the audience removed. The first time was when they were telling him to go home.

The second time the audience protested vocally, as when Hall allowed council members to cross examine witnesses called by Pesce's lawyer. Cromie also protested very strongly.

Cromie told the council that, under the charter, it did not have authority to fire Pesce, that this authority was the town manager's, who had refused to fire him. Cromie also said the council did not follow the charter by waiting 11 days to furnish Pesce and his attorney with a written list of specific reasons for the firing.

Cromie called only two witnesses before the meeting was continued to Wednesday, and both seemed to back up Pesce's contention that he was fired first, then the council came up with reasons.

The first witness, Allen Sandberg, town manager, stated that he believed Pesce to be subordinate to him, and had refused to fire him because he didn't believe the council had sufficient cause.

He testified that he was aware town employees were using town facilities to work on their own vehicles on their own time. He was also aware that town employees were allowed to make purchases from town suppliers, receiving discounts. He also knew that road crew members were paid overtime from portal to portal when called out during a storm.

He said he was under the impression that these practices had gone on for some time, and did not order them stopped. The council ordered them stopped last April.

Delmar Potter, a former road foreman and assistant road foreman, told the council, "The position I held is similar to the one that Pesce holds now, and we have allowed town employees these privileges since I first became road foreman in 1945." Potter left town employment in 1965.

Public Employe Coalition To Conduct Strike Poll

HARTFORD (UPI) — A coalition of nine Connecticut public service employes groups says it will start polling its combined 100,000 members this week on the possibility of a statewide strike.

The groups' leaders said Monday night they would recommend a strike if their demands are not met by the legislature and Gov. Ella T. Grasso.

They said such a possibility could be averted if Thomas Lyon, president of the Connecticut State Employees Association, gets some satisfaction at a meeting with Democratic legislative leaders, but they were not optimistic.

Lyon will ask for a pledge of no layoffs, restoration of automatic pay raises and promotions, cost-of-living increases in pay for active and retired employes and continuation of present retirement benefits.

Manchester Evening Herald OPINION

Undeserved Accusation

Many Americans doubtless suffered a deep psychological shock from the accusation of Thai Foreign Minister Chirchai Choonavan, when he said, "Morals?" The United States does not have any morals at this point. They have already pulled out of Cambodia and South Vietnam so we are going to have to depend on ourselves."

The Thai minister's remark was made in comment on an earlier statement by Secretary of Defense James Schlesinger, who when asked if we had an obligation to defend Thailand from attack, said, "I think there is an obligation of a moral nature under these circumstances."

In view of the events which have taken place in Indochina it is understandable that the Thai Foreign Minister spoke with less than usual diplomatic restraint. His country is the last in the area which has a semblance of a democratic government, even though it is a kingdom.

Repercussions of the fall of Cambodia to the Khmer Rouge and of Vietnam to the Viet Cong and forces of Hanoi have spread as far as Manila and Korea. It is therefore not surprising that nearby Thailand is deeply concerned about its future, not only the umbrella of United States power has been precipitously withdrawn from the region.

Secretary Schlesinger, in referring to a "moral" obligation on our part, was no doubt referring to the SEATO organization of 1954, in which he concluded we would have a responsibility in case of a direct Communist attack. While we can understand that the Thai minister reflects the tensions in his country, and his worry over the direction which Communist aggression may take in the future, we must respectfully reject the implication that this is a country without morality, even with his qualification of "at this point."

The basic morality and charity of the American government and people is being dramatically shown in the program of refugee evacuation and resettlement now under way.

A country which has maintained two of the longest boundaries in the world, without military defense, as we have with Canada and Mexico, surely is trustworthy as a national neighbor.

And we might point out to the Thai minister, if his memory needs refreshing, the Marshall Plan which restored Europe after World War II and our aid in building a one time enemy, Japan, into the industrial colossus of the Orient.

Granted, that we have had our difficulties and moments of indecision in pursuit of foreign goals, yet there is no broad series of events which can lead to the conclusion that we are without morality, even "at this point."

At the same time we must acknowledge need for reassessment, within our basic purposes throughout the world, and attainment of unanimity between the Congress and the executive branch on the goals to which we must be devoted and the manner in which we shall attain them.

The United States has not and will not withdraw from the family of free nations throughout the world.

Congress Overreacting

Congress, reacting to years when government was dominated by an overpowered presidency, is now acting in a peyavian fashion which is denigrating the office of the President to the detriment of our whole system of government.

Our relations with foreign nations will suffer as they watch the spectacle of an American chief executive being impeded in his actions by niggling foot-dragging and partisan politics. The House rejected President Ford's $327 million aid bill for South Vietnamese refugees because it still contained some provisions for the use of American military forces, if need be, to protect American lives in South Vietnam.

As everyone realized the bill was written and submitted long before the fall of Saigon, when it was feared that the use of American military force might be needed to insure the safety, and indeed, lives, of Americans in that city.

Hanging on this technicality the House has delayed appropriating the needed money to give humanitarian aid to those refugees who fled their native land in fear of their lives because they had been friends of ours. It was totally inconceivable at this stage of the developments on Vietnam that any military force would be used. There was no reason for it.

But the House, strengthened by its overwhelming Democratic majority has seen fit to humiliate the President again at the expense of taking required action.

It is to be expected that there will be differences between executive and legislative branches. That's built into our form of government.

This, however, is small-minded obstructionism.

Congress Has A Problem Member

WASHINGTON — In one of those relatively rare but embarrassing moments of American legislative history, the Congress has now among its members a criminal who has been convicted as such. And since nobody knows what to do with him, the lawmakers will likely follow precedent and do nothing.

As social indiscretions go, George Hansen of Idaho is a comparative piker. His crime, two violations of federal election regulations, is a political transgression about as rare as sand mica and thus interesting mostly for the fact he was caught.

Still, with the congressional infamy which it is — awful — and the tag of reform being pinned conspicuously to many members' lapsels, there is at least a smidgen of remorse that this black sheep will foul the purity of the House of Representatives with impunity. So for PR reasons at least, some members owe propriety. "I don't want to see George hounded," says a young colleague, "but maybe we should at least throw an egg at him."

If the egg is thrown — unlikely — Hansen will be far more severely punished than most of the other 17 members of Congress who at some time in history sat in the chambers with court convictions on their consciences. Though Congress has, in total, expelled 15 members for actions contrary to accepted conduct (14 of them for supporting the South during the Civil War), none of the expelled was a court-convicted criminal. Of the convicted, none has ever been seriously reprimanded. Thus with exclusion illegal and expulsion reserved, almost, for men who sell secrets to the Russians, the only reprimand (for misuse of donations). While technically meaningless, the censure does carry some psychological weight.

Albeit, even the censure vote is used only with great reluctance. Perhaps because no member wants to vote for something he may eventually have to face himself if the standards are really going to be followed. The House of Representatives has now 10 paragraphs in its official code of conduct — members admonished not to misuse public funds, discriminate in hiring practices, or be convicted of felonies, among other things — but the laws carry no enforcement words, and so members are as free as anybody else to make fools or criminals of themselves.

As for George Hansen, forget it. He's a truly small spud against the fact the FBI currently has 85 criminal investigations directed at congressmen. Besides, if the legislators expelled all members who broke campaign laws, neither house could get a quorum.

TODAY'S THOUGHT

The prophets of Ancient Israel brought a word from God to their own people in the context of the society of which they were members.

Certainly there were times when men of such great insight and faith looked beyond the present to a future controlled by the God who gave them their orders. And it was absolute faith in this sovereign, history-controlling Lord whom they knew so well that made them say whatever they said.

But they saw themselves simply as mouthpieces for the One who would do as He wished with all nations. It was their knowledge of His holiness that made them sure He would not wait forever to punish their sins.

Predictors of the future? They would have been amused at the idea. They wanted only to call forth righteousness, justice, compassion, and love from their own people.

TOM TIEDE

Next to Americans, the people most apologetic about their own success have to be the Swedes.

A century ago, or less than that, Sweden was a poor country that people emigrated from in search of a better life elsewhere. Sweden is no richer in natural resources than it ever was — and that is not very rich — but today, thanks to their own industriousness, the Swedes enjoy one of the highest standards of living in the world and in some ways the highest.

Fortunately, there are signs that of freedom is not buying the latest do-gooder theory. President Ford recently urged longer prison sentences for violent criminals. And the chief judge of D.C. Superior Court told a Congressional hearing that lawyers should reduce prosecution of so-called "victimless crimes" and concentrate instead on crimes of violence.

His Honor Harold H. Greene took note of criminal justice's "limited resources," and said his plan would result in more arrests for violent crimes and fewer for minor ones, such as marijuana possession, gambling, prostitution and illegal liquor sales.

This can be done, he said, without legislation legalizing or "decriminalizing" victimless crimes. All prosecutors have to do is tell the police to concentrate on such offenses as murder, rape, robbery and burglary.

This may not be the ideal policy, but in the circumstances it has the virtue of practicality. An Army commander does not waste time with snipers at his flanks when faced with a frontal assault by a couple of divisions. And as Greene said, there are many laws the police make small effort to enforce, such as adultery.

Besides, as in so many other big cities, D.C. Superior Court is clogged with misdemeanor trials, and victimless cases account for a third of the entire misdemeanor workload. Greene made another valid point when he urged that local courts be relieved of responsibility for traffic offenses and such minor disputes as landlord-tenant litigation. A law student could handle most of these cases.

'Experts' Failed To Do Homework

Wouldn't you know! The bleeders who blamed soaring crime rates in the Sixties on society's mishandling of its children and minorities are now explaining in their smooth, orotund tones that recent crime increases are due to the economic recession. The gist of their argument is that there will be more crime when times are hard, and that we should all try to understand that people who are unemployed or who are trying to make do on a smaller income naturally give vent to their frustration and indignation by turning to felony. Again, of course, it's society's fault — this time for letting the economy go sour.

Not surprisingly, these "experts" failed to do their homework. In fact, during the Depression and during subsequent, brief recessions, crime rates dropped. They began to rise dramatically during the affluent Sixties, when a body had to flee to Kenya lest some employer force him into a high-paying job complete with paid vacations, two coffee breaks a day and a long list of fringe benefits.

Despite the bleeders, the offender was not society as a whole but demagogic politicians of the superlativistic stripe who led the citizenry they were entitled to batten off the national treasury; college and school officials who tolerated riots, violent protests and the takeover of campuses, and lunatic or indifferent parents whose kids ruled by anarchy.

Fortunately, there are signs that of freedom is not buying the latest do-gooder theory. President Ford recently urged longer prison sentences for violent criminals. And the chief judge of D.C. Superior Court told a Congressional hearing that lawyers should reduce prosecution of so-called "victimless crimes" and concentrate instead on crimes of violence.

SWEDEN DEBATES A Nuclear Future

Next to Americans, the people most apologetic about their own success have to be the Swedes.

A century ago, or less than that, Sweden was a poor country that people emigrated from in search of a better life elsewhere. Sweden is no richer in natural resources than it ever was — and that is not very rich — but today, thanks to their own industriousness, the Swedes enjoy one of the highest standards of living in the world and in some ways the highest.

Fortunately, there are signs that of freedom is not buying the latest do-gooder theory. President Ford recently urged longer prison sentences for violent criminals. And the chief judge of D.C. Superior Court told a Congressional hearing that lawyers should reduce prosecution of so-called "victimless crimes" and concentrate instead on crimes of violence.

Coventry Revises Rules on Liquor

Ron Dieckerman
The Coventry Planning and Zoning Commission last night voted 3-2 to adopt revisions to ease liquor control regulations.

The two commission members voting no felt it would be possible, under these regulations, for an area in town to become saturated with liquor establishments.

Commission member Rosalind Kornfeld did not feel that the commission had spoken for the people in town, as several residents spoke against the regulations at a recent public hearing. Other commission members, however, felt that the seven or eight people who spoke at that meeting did not totally express the feeling of the town.

The new regulations take effect May 20.

The commission also adopted revisions to the earth product regulations following a short public hearing during which the public was absent.

Town planner Frank Connolly told the commission he had received a letter from the Windham Regional Planning Agency, and it had no objections to the proposed regulations. The WRPA said the regulations would have no significant impact upon the region. The regulations also take effect May 20.

The commission also met informally with representatives of the Arrowhead Ridge Corporation at the request of Arrowhead to aid the developers in planning a 300-unit apartment complex in the southeast corner of Coventry, off Rt. 6 near the Bolton-Coventry town line.

Attorney Leonard Jacobs, speaking for the corporation, spoke at that meeting and development was completed. 75% of the 101 acres would be virtually undisturbed. They will study the proposal to determine its impact upon the region and economy of the region.

A public hearing on the application of Mark Sanderson for gravel operation on Brigham Tavern Rd. and Brigham Tavern Rd. Ext. has been scheduled for May 27, at 9 p.m. At 9:15 of the same evening, the commission will also hold a public hearing on the application of J. Burns for five lot subdivisions on Nathan Hale Rd.

Sewer Priority Topic Tonight

SOUTH WINDSOR
Judy Kuehnel Correspondent 646-1364

The South Windsor Town Council and Sewer Commission will meet at a work session tonight at 8 to discuss the advantages of presenting a sewer referendum question to the voters in November.

The referendum question would cover an extension of the sanitary sewer system now in town.

The meeting will consider the matter of scheduling and the question of what areas to be considered for extensions.

Mayor Robert Smith said the town has received an indication that the proposed Main St. interceptor line is an eligible project for 90 per cent grant funding.

Town officials are preparing data to set priorities and potential funding dates. This phase of the sanitary sewer system would cost about $2 million and is the only phase of the remaining sewer parts of the town eligible for grant funds.

Bolton Sets 58-Mill Tax Rate

Silverstein, board chairman, explained that four items on the call totaling $13,954 were part of the Board of Education's original budget request. He said the finance board took the items out of the budget to ask for separate approval at the Town Meeting.

The board had anticipated a 58-mill tax rate. Unanticipated revenues of about $14,000 and the Board of Education budget cuts of about $14,000 reduced the rate.

It is 2.5 mills more than the present rate.

The rate was set by a 5 to 1 vote. Morris Silverstein voting no. He felt it could be lower.

The Town Meeting was attended by over 100 residents, many of whom hadn't been seen at town meetings before or in a long time.

Immediately following the reading of the legal call H. Virginia Butterfield requested the Town Meeting vote on the general government and the Board of Education budget separately. She also requested all votes taken be by ballot.

The separate vote for the budgets was approved, but the ballot vote was defeated.

Frustrated School Board Head Hopes for Rejection of Budget

VERNON BARBARA RICHMOND A hope for rejection of the Board of Education budget at the annual town meeting next Tuesday, was expressed by William Houle, board chairman, at the meeting last night.

The Town Council first asked the board to reduce its budget by $450,000 but when finalizing the budgets Friday night the council settled for a $338,000 cut which was still more than $100,000 higher than the school board hoped.

The board's budget problems became more complicated over the weekend when the Permanent Building Committee informed school officials that the new addition to the high school will be completed much sooner than expected.

The board had not allowed anything in its budget for equipping the school, and the building committee, in keeping within its construction budget, had had $150,000 to release for equipment.

Houle charged, "I think the Board of Education and its employees have been taken political hostage by the Town Council and I'm appalled."

The building committee had originally said the high school addition would be ready for occupancy probably in January 1976. The schedule released over the weekend said the Industrial Arts wing and the library will be completed in August; the science wing in October; and the classroom wing in November.

Dr. Raymond Ramsdell, superintendent, told the board that the schedule would not allow occupancy of the school in September as the complexities involved would be totally prohibitive.

Public TV Gets Back On Air In Time

HARTFORD (UPI) — Connecticut Public Television, also known as CPTV, has overcome a problem it may have had with Mother Nature.

The five-station non-profit network had scheduled the first night of its fourth annual fundraising auction for Monday night, but at about 2 p.m. its transmitter atop Avon Mountain was apparently struck by lightning.

Engineer Wayne Estabrooks worked away at repairing the damage, and he had CPTV back on the air with 20 minutes to spare. The repairs were made by 5:40 p.m., and the auction began promptly at 6.

Crash Victim Dies

Charles J. Titus, 63, of Enfield died today at Hartford Hospital of injuries suffered in a March 10 accident in South Windsor.

Barry Hogan, 44, also of Enfield, died shortly after the accident after being taken to Hartford Hospital. Hogan was a passenger in a pickup truck driven by Titus.

Police said Titus has been listed in critical condition ever since the accident. The truck hit the rear of another car and then struck a utility pole. The driver of the other car was not injured, police said.

Coventry Council Role

Pease has been charged with incompetence and instituting questionable practices. The incompetence stems from a reaping project on Ripley Hill Rd. in 1972 that was budgeted for $20,000. The actual cost of the project was $24,000.

One of the questionable practices Pease is accused of is making deals with a vendor who provided sand to the town. The sand is for use during snowstorms.

Sandberg testified that Pease had a verbal agreement with Robert Upton for the town to give Upton one-and-a-half yards of a salt and sand mixture in return for ten yards of plain sand. The cost of the salt and sand mixture to the town was between $3.50 and $4.50. The plain sand would have cost $18 to $20.

The other practice charge was Pease's acceptance of a trip to Denver, Col. from the Delta Wire and Steel Co. in September of 1973.

Sandberg reported that Pease had submitted a one-and-a-half page report to the council following the trip. Prior to the trip, the town conducted 7,966 worth of business with the company in 1972-73. In 1973-74, following the trip, the town only did $1,520 in business with them.

Maloney's Second Home Run Trips Conard 5-4 And Indians Remain in Thick of CCIL Scramble

By Len Auster

Two opposite field home runs by Jack Maloney and the brilliant 1 1/3 innings of relief work by John Koepsel powered Manchester High to a 5-4 verdict over league-leading Conard High yesterday at Kelley Field.

The Silk Towners are now 9-3 in the CCIL while the Chiefs still maintain a one-game lead at 10-2. Each has four league contests remaining.

Maloney, a 5-5 compact catcher but possessor of a powerful batting stroke, drilled a two-run homer over the right centerfield fence in the home half of the first inning to make it a 3-2 deficit. The senior tri-captain snapped a 4-4 tie in the seventh, belting a solo shot over the batter's shoulder 315 feet away from what proved to be the game winner.

Wrong Night, Tie Prices High

There was a lapse of nearly two decades in Manchester between professional boxing shows. Last Saturday night the Manchester Police Union tried its hand in the promotional field and wound up in red ink.

The five-bout card, arranged by Matchmaker Vito Tallarita, was big league from the opening bell to the time Referee Sam Maltempo tolled 10 over a bewildered Arnie Brower.

The attendance was poor, less than 500 showing up at the Clarke Arena. The Police Union spokesmen admitted they were novices in the sports promoting field.

Manchester High Second Catholic Golfers Eastern Champs

Crosstown rivals East Catholic and Manchester High finished in the third annual Eastern Connecticut Golf Invitational yesterday placing one-two. The Eagles took the championship trophy with a team total of 327, edging out the Indians by three strokes.

The event, hosted by Norwich Free Academy, was staged at the 6,800-yard, par-72 Pautpaug Country Club in Baltic.

Manchester's Duffy Leone tied for first with Killington's Tony Gerardi, each with 78, but lost on matching cards. Indian linksman Jim Wigen fired an 80 to place fifth in the individual standings.

The Eagle linksman are undefeated in 16 starts this season so far while Manchester has a 9-4-1 record.

Best Show in Town

DETROIT (UPI) — The best show in Detroit currently is playing a limited engagement at Tiger Stadium, where the "bleacher bums" gather several times a week to dispense a little Motor City maelco, cheap, a few beers and climb a flagpole or two.

"I came down every weekend the Tigers are in town because the bleachers are the mellowest spot in town," said Dan Brown, a 20-year-old college student from Detroit.

Maloney's homer in the first followed Ray Sullivan's dump single to left and the Indians took a 4-3 edge with a two-run second frame. Rick Nicola walked and Bob Healy delivered the marker with a double up the alley in left, the latter going to third as leftfielder Gosselin had trouble finding the mound. After Sullivan flied out to shallow left, Bob Odell punched a full count offering from losing hurler Dave Busch, 5-1, up the middle chasing home Healy.

The visitors knotted it in the top of the third on a round-tripper by McGahie, who rounded the bases before leftfielder Tony Barrett could chase down his blast.

Dodgers Bench Strong, As Opponents Find Out

The Los Angeles Dodgers aren't the only team which is strong in the National League pennant race. The Dodgers have great respect for Cincinnati's Bench but they like their own, too, even if it is spelled with a small "B" and made up of fellows like Tom Paciorek, Lacy and Rick Auerbach. All three have been pressed into the starting lineup because of injuries and have delivered in clutch situations.

Auerbach drove in three runs and Paciorek and Lacy one each Monday night when the Dodgers scored a 4-1, 10-inning victory over the St. Louis Cardinals. Jim Brewer picked up the victory for four innings of relief work after Andy Messersmith became ill with the flu.

The Cardinals tied the score at 3-3 against Brewer with a run in the bottom of the ninth but the Dodgers scored three in the top of the 10th to hand Mike Garman the loss.

Paciorek's run-scoring single broke the 3-3 tie and Auerbach followed with a two-run single which enabled the Dodgers to offset a Cardinal run scored in the bottom of the 10th. Auerbach had previously singled home a run and Lacy drove in a run with a grand slam in the third inning.

Petrocelli Finally Homers

OAKLAND (UPI) — For a guy who never threw a pitch in the game, Oakland fireman Jim Todd came in for a lot of praise following the A's latest victory. Rolie Fingers made his longest relief stint in nearly two years, hurling one-hit ball over 6 1/3 innings Monday night as Oakland beat Boston 5-3.

After the game, Manager Alvin Dark indicated the relief ace might see longer duty on the mound this season.

"Because (owner) Charlie Fince picked up good, right-handed relief pitcher in Jim Todd, I'm able to use Rolie earlier than I used to. He's finally starting to look like his old self," said Dark of Fingers, who was called around early in the game by Dwight Evans. Boston Manager Darrell Johnson noted that, "I was not surprised to see Fingers come in the game in the third inning because I hear that this other Guy (Todd) has been doing a good job for them."

Torre's hit accounted for all the Mets' runs as they slipped by the San Francisco Giants 3-2 Monday night, and that's why Torre decided his eyes were okay.

Celtics Searching For Final Collapse

BOSTON (UPI) — Was No. 13 unlucky? Did the law of averages finally catch up? Or were the Washington Bullets simply hungrier than the defending NBA champions?

In the Boston Celtics' case the reason for their playoff swoon, maybe they'd be preparing for the seventh game of the Eastern Conference championship.

Boston, winner of an unparalleled eight straight championships between 1959 and 1966, was knocked out of the playoffs Sunday by former Celtic K.C. Jones and his Washington Bullets, a year to the day after winning a 12th championship from the Milwaukee Bucks.

The Celtics, a blend of young and seasoned veterans, had lost the eighth straight championship in the six-game series, their assistant general manager questioned the "law of averages" theory, and their most consistent player felt the team wasn't psychologically prepared to sacrifice everything to win.

"We did not play as well as we could have," said veteran forward Paul Silas, who kept Boston in the six-game series with his rebounding talent. "If we played as well as we could have, it would have been no contest, I believe."

Silas, speaking Monday after a night's rest, had put Boston's semifinal road loss into perspective. He said the Celtics were "psychologically prepared to sacrifice everything to win."

"I think we were hungry enough. We couldn't get caught up in the pattern of play. Last year (when Boston beat Milwaukee in seven games) we got caught up in the pattern that was successful. We wanted to win but probably they wanted it more."

Jeff Cohen, the club's assistant general manager, figured the Celtics were due to lose a playoff series. "Maybe the real answer's the law of averages," said Cohen. "But if the law of averages were involved, then the Lakers (whom Boston defeated in six championships in the 60s) should have beaten us. But if we had to lose to anybody, I'm glad it was (former Celtic) K.C. Jones and his Washington Bullets."

Don Nelson, who played on three championship Boston teams, including one with Jones, said poor shooting had more to do with Boston's downfall than any jinx or bad luck.

"You can't shoot 40 per cent (as Boston did against Washington) and expect to win," he said. "I don't think we were a worthy opponent because we were better than we showed. I don't think we had one shot in the game that we didn't make. I'm not saying they weren't good but we missed a lot of wide-open shots."

The Celtics would have more problems beating Chicago than Golden State for the title. (The Warriors and Bulls play Wednesday night in the Eastern Conference semifinals.)

Watson's potential has now boosted his 1975 earnings to $84,000.

His win Monday in the rain-delayed Nelson event came thanks to a 299 round 65, which vaulted him out of the pack to a 15-under par finish which tied the tournament record and gave him a two-stroke victory over Bob E. Smith and a three-stroke edge over third place finisher Jack Ewing.

And if Watson was delighted with his win, Smith and Ewing seemed delighted with their finishes as well. It was the biggest payday ever for Smith and Ewing — Smith collecting $19,950 and second and last year's winner, Watson, $17,425.

"I was only $20,000 last year and I won $20,000 this week," Smith said.

Tom Watson Watches Put Ball Rimmed Cup on Seventh Hole

DALLAS (UPI) — Tom Watson is so far in debt to Byron Nelson it is possible he may never be able to pay off.

It was Nelson's tournament that Watson won Monday, collecting his second tour triumph and the $35,000 that went with it.

But it was also Nelson who took Watson aside at a critical point in the youngster's career last year and pointed him in the proper direction.

"I admire Byron so much," Watson said Monday following his two-stroke victory in the Byron Nelson Golf Classic. "I think he is one of the top three golfers in the world."

"He was very kind to me after the U.S. Open last year. I had just blown the tournament. I shot a 79 on the last day (after leading) and he said, 'You're going to have to be better than that.'"

Lyle to Think Past Ali's Fists

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Ron Lyle says he is going to think his way past Muhammad Ali's fists to heavyweight champion of the world. His picture has come and never mind what it says under Lyle's picture on the poster promoting the fight Friday night.

It just says "worthy contender," which classifies the eighth-ranked Lyle as a contender, not a pretender to Ali's crown.

But Lyle says he isn't concerned. He is supremely confident his title assault will succeed through "knives and thinking." "I know exactly where he's been and feels certain he sees the end of a long and rocky road and he's already looking in his mind, the fruits of victory."

"It's gonna take a lot of things," Lyle explained. "Mainly, by thinking I'm going to have to think about the fight as it goes. I'll be telling myself 'Don't tire yourself out. Don't punch yourself out. Do everything your way.'"

Kennedy Suggests Buckland House Head Start Program

By JUNE TOMPKINS
School Superintendent James P. Kennedy asked the Board of Education Monday night to consider making Buckland School the center for the Head Start Program in a scheduled phaseout plan for Buckland.
The move would eliminate the need for the Orford Village school building presently being used. It would also mean a cost savings of about $15,000, he said.
In explaining the move, Dr. Kennedy said there are presently three classes of resident students at Buckland, and next year there will be two classes. In the phaseout of regular classes, the students at Buckland would be redistributed to Waddell, Verplanck and Robertson.
Dr. Kennedy did not know the number of Robertson kindergartners transferring to Waddell and Verplanck, and won't know until later this spring. However, he said there should be no space problem at this grade level at any of the three schools.
Currently Robertson has five teachers team-teaching in Grades 3 and 4, and three teachers in Grade 5. Dr.

Kennedy said it is expected next year that one Grade 5 teacher will move into Grades 3 and 4.
He also said if the three sixth graders scheduled to transfer to Verplanck wish to remain at Robertson, this can be arranged.
The only contemplated staff change would be in the special education area. It is expected the enrollment in the two classes will decline enough to warrant the elimination of one of these classes, said Dr. Kennedy.
The students transferring to Verplanck live on New State Rd. and Adams St., north of Hilliard St.
The children transferring to Waddell live on Adams St., south of Hilliard St.
It is important to retain Buckland School in the district, said Dr. Kennedy, and important to have as a "safety valve" for future expansion.
The board has had one workshop on the budget and other school problems and will have two more. Dr. Kennedy has asked for a decision on the Buckland move so that the recommendation may be finalized at the first board meeting in June.

A report on the Head Start program was presented to the board by Mrs. Nesbie Dupuy, teacher/director of Head Start in Manchester.
The program has been in Manchester eight years. The program accommodates a full capacity of 72, and sometimes 75 children of low income families who are given a "head start" in education — social and academic.
Besides certified teachers, there are volunteers, parents and student teachers who assist in the program.
Ramizi To Retire
The Board of Education approved the resignation Monday night of Vincent Ramizi, principal at Buckley School for the past 21 years and four years prior to that at Washington School. He plans to retire.
Other resignations approved were Mrs. Nesbie Dupuy, teacher/director of the Head Start Program, as her family is moving to New Jersey, and Miss Noreen Reidy, a project reading teacher at Nathan Hale School.
The board also approved a leave of absence for Mrs. Sheila Holcomb, a fifth grade teacher at Buckley School, for child-rearing purposes.

School Board

suggested as a cost cut, Dr. Kennedy replied it was not feasible, administrative, to close South.
Listing his reasons, he said, first, in order to accommodate the children at South, it would be necessary to move the children out of the South-Martin School area to another school out of the district, and then move them back a year later.
Second, in order to find any more room at Martin School, the pre-primary class there would have to be moved out and there is no solution as to where to put them.
Moving children out of the district would mean extra transportation costs, he said.

John Yavis, chairman of the finance committee, said the board is looking in all areas of the budget for possible trimming. He said there may be capital items they will have to defer.
The board is also studying the area of transportation for further cuts.
"The over-all philosophy we're trying to follow is to preserve, as far as possible, the essential daytime school program," said Yavis. He said it is the board's hope to continue a high quality of education within the funds allotted.
The Board of Directors awarded the Board of Education a $13 million budget. The Board of Education requested $13,320,903. The budget for the current year is $12,100,000.

Special Committee

volunteered to serve on the committee and Lyons agreed to serve as chairman of the group which will meet to set up operating guidelines as well as fund-raising plans.
Among those supporting the shell in the discussion period were:
•Mike Dworkin, president of the Parkade Merchants Association, who cited the success of the Chamber of Commerce concerts last summer and the quality of many music groups in the community such as the Manchester Civic Orchestra. He said his association is willing to offer financial support to the projects.

•Agostinelli, who cited the shell's cultural value as well as its being a reminder to future generations of the Bicentennial.
•A citizen who suggested an annual spring concert might be used to raise funds for operations and to pay off construction loans.
•Former Mayor Harold A. Turkington who suggested the group might use the current Parks and Recreation Commission as a nucleus for an operating agency for the shell since it is important the facility be under some legally recognized town agency. He said the charter might be changed to increase the membership if necessary.

School-Police Liaison Considered by Vernon

BARBARA RICHMOND

The Vernon Board of Education plans to move cautiously in creating an educational liaison program between the Vernon Police Department and the Vernon public school system. The proposal was presented by Police Chief Herman Fritz to the board meeting Monday night.
Dr. Robert Linstone, assistant superintendent of schools, explained that the proposal is not a crisis-type one but rather would involve preventive programs such as drug education and to create an atmosphere of understanding between the students and the police.
He explained that the program would not be just for the high school but for the entire system. If the program is instituted, Officer Harold DeLisle would be the police department's liaison. He has been active in youth work in other areas. Chief Fritz said he would become familiar with the names and faces of the students.
He said he would like space available, even if only a boiler room, to allow students to talk with the officer. He said he cannot guarantee how many hours the officer could be spared, but he would like to see a pilot program started.
Officer DeLisle said, "The students only see one side of a police officer, the one riding in a cruiser. And I would like to explain to them why we have to do some of the things we have to do."
William Houle, school board chairman, explained that the program would be preventive rather than punitive to cultivate better communications between the police and the students.
Chief Fritz said, "We are not going into the schools to drum up arrests." He said DeLisle would be a resource person, not an informer.
Board member Robert

Dubeau termed the decision on the program a difficult one to make. "To say we are not checking on the students would be less than candid. It would be the officer's duty to report any criminal activity and this would put the officer in a difficult position. I feel positive aspects do exist but let's be honest, a policeman, is a policeman," Dubeau said.
He said the fact that space was asked for in the schools bothers him. "I think we could ease into the program by establishing a liaison to make occasional visits to the schools. I think we have to be extremely careful how we move," he said.
Fritz emphasized that the basic function of the officer will be to "rap" with the kids if they wish to. He said, "As far as criminal activity is concerned, he would not and could not turn his back on it. At that point he would become a policeman."
Dubeau suggested that perhaps the program should start in kindergarten through Grade 6 and move on up, "then they won't have the aura of coming in at the high school."
He added, "There is no question that we do have problems at the high school but I feel if we start at the lower level and move up, the program will be accepted better at the high school."
Board member Devra Baum, said, "I think the success of the program would be acceptance by the students so they would understand the position that Officer DeLisle would be assuming."
Martin Fagan, principal at the high school, said he believes the school system needs someone from the police department, designated as a school officer, to work with the school in coordinating programs.
He said officers have been brought to the school in the past for special programs but it could become negative to have one suddenly appear. He said he feels the program should be worked out in more detail.

David Parker, principal of Middle School said the idea of a school officer is not new. He said it is happening all over the country and it does help establish rapport with the police and the students.
Claire Albon, director of girls' athletics and coordinator of the health program in the schools, said she thinks the proposed program is a good one and agreed with board member Betsy Steele who said it might help to change the impression the students have of the police, especially in the lower grades.
Houle suggested that Chief Fritz and Officer DeLisle work out a program to present to the board.
Dubeau then moved to have the school administration and the police develop a policy to implement the development of the program to create a liaison between the police and the school system and to have the police submit a program for approval of the board. The motion was approved.
Houle then appointed a sub-committee of three to work with the police in preparing the program. Those appointed were: Mrs. Baum, Mrs. Steele and Dubeau.
