

Museum Funds Will Be Sought

SOUTH WINDSOR
Judy Kuehnel
Correspondent

The South Windsor Historical Society and the Bicentennial Commission are expected soon to approach the Town Council for some financial help regarding the proposed town museum.

The project of moving a 200-year-old home on Main St. to the site of the old community hall has been approved by both organizations and negotiations with the owners are under way.

Town Manager Terry Sprekel has said that it could cost in excess of $8,000 to move the old home.

He said that while the Town Council has not been asked to finance any of this proposal yet, before any commitment is made it would be his recommendation that the building be completely inspected to decide whether it is feasible to move it.

The museum would contain numerous artifacts, antique pieces, written volumes and other pieces pertaining to South Windsor's past.

According to Richard Nicholson, vice-chairman of the Bicentennial Commission, it is possible that many famous people may have visited the home in its past; however, it is not believed to be the birthplace of any particular famous person.

The house has yet to be identified, but is said to be a two-story structure and in fine condition. The project has been chosen as a bicentennial effort by both the Historical Society and the Bicentennial Commission.

Brown Resigns
WASHINGTON (UPI)—Ambassador L. Dean Brown, who organized and ran President Ford's task force to resettle Indochinese refugees, resigned Friday after six weeks with the program.

Mrs. Julia Valada Taft, who has been working on his staff, was selected to succeed him.

Brown, who had retired from the State Department and became president of the Middle East Institute in Washington, told his staff he was forced to leave the task force because the institute urgently needed him back.

He had taken a two-week leave of absence from the institute six weeks ago to get the task force going.

Comedienne Dies
WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (UPI)—Jackie "Moms" Mabley, the comedienne who starred on the black night club circuit for decades and whose earthy humor won its widest acceptance with TV appearances in the late 1960's, died Friday. She was 75.

A spokesman at a White Plains hospital said Miss Mabley died of natural causes at about 7:15 p.m. She had been admitted to the hospital with an undisclosed illness six weeks ago.

Ky May Become Farmer
WASHINGTON (UPI)—Nguyen Cao Ky, the former premier of South Vietnam, landed at Dulles International Airport Friday to rejoin his family for the first time since the fall of Saigon. He said actor John Wayne offered him 17,000 acres of land in Arizona to set up a farming community for South Vietnamese refugees.

Asked if he might accept the offer, Ky said, "Sure." He plans to visit Wayne and discuss it.

Turkish Unrest Noted
WASHINGTON (UPI)—A senior official traveling with Secretary of State Henry Kissinger said the secretary feels a continuation of the American ban on arms shipments to Turkey may trigger a Turkish military assault against Greece.

He said there were no immediate plans to institute censorship or curfew restrictions in Turkey.

Lebanese newspapers said leftist leaders met Friday and would confer again today to formulate their reaction to the new government.

Gov. Grasso Agrees To Pay Compromise

HARTFORD (UPI)—Gov. Ella T. Grasso has agreed to provide wage increases for state employees by deferring payments into the state pension fund, thus averting the threat of a strike by 36,000 state workers.

The annual wage increments will come three months later than under the compromise worked out Friday with union leaders, the governor said.

The compromise involves deferred payment of $5.3 million into the state workers' pension retirement fund.

Mrs. Grasso said she did not expect to be forced to raise state taxes next year to cover the wage increments, which headed a list of 15 contract demands by the state workers.

The governor did not comment on whether an agreement had been reached on the other 12 demands during lengthy meetings with Democratic legislative leaders and union representatives that ended Friday morning.

The increments wage hikes given to state employees on the basis of experience and performance would begin Oct. 1, instead of July 1, and then run on schedule the following year, she said.

State Finance Commissioner, Jay O. Tepper, said the compromise is "acquired sound," and will not have any major adverse effects on the employees' retirement fund. Among the other demands was the right of state workers to collective bargaining and participation in political activity, and the elimination of injunctions against striking teachers.

Federal Grand Jury Probe Announced

HARTFORD (UPI)—A federal grand jury will start investigating large scale gambling, loan sharking, extortion and stolen goods operations and corruption in Hartford next week, it was reported today.

Special U.S. attorneys Paul Coffey and Peter Casey say they have been coordinating their efforts with a two-year probe of gambling in Springfield, Mass., by the FBI and Massachusetts state police, the Hartford Courant said.

The Massachusetts investigation Friday culminated in the arrest of at least 22 out of 31 people indicted by a federal grand jury on gambling charges, including Andrew Fradeletti and Francesco Schibelli, known as "mafia" members.

Coffey and Casey, commenting on the Springfield raids, said they hope to "break beyond repairs the link between the Hartford and Springfield crime organizations."

Norwalk Teachers Discussing Third Offer

NORWALK (UPI)—Striking teachers scheduled a morning meeting today to discuss a third contract offer from the school board to end a two-day-old strike. The 900-member union has defied a court order to return to work.

Donald Kehoe, head of the Norwalk Federation of Teachers, said the offer "is probably close to what we are looking for. To indicate that it is positive would be to indicate what our recommendation is going to be."

The teachers planned to meet this afternoon with the school board to discuss the reaction of the union members to the proposed contract. The strike closed the doors for 16,000 pupils in the city's 25 schools after negotiations were deadlocked Wednesday night.

"It merits careful consideration by the teachers in light of events of the last week or so," Robert Aldrich, head of the board of education, said.

The teachers said they will not return to their classrooms, however, until the common council approves the contract. Two previous contracts approved by the teachers and the board of education were rejected by the council.

The teachers, who have been working without a contract since the beginning of the current school year, are seeking a 6.9 per cent pay increase. The common council rejected contract agreements calling for a two-year settlement and a one year settlement.

Negotiators for the teachers met with the board of education and school Superintendent Richard Briggs Friday night to come up with another contract proposal.

Earlier Friday, a cheering crowd of 600 teachers meeting at the Jewish Community Center rejected the school board offer, described by Kehoe as "totally inadequate."

The offer, drawn up Thursday night by the board, was for one year and contained only a list of wage increases with no contract language, said Kehoe, who recommended its rejection.

Leaving Laos
VIENTIANE (UPI)—The United States has begun evacuating women and children from Laos and burning nonessential American documents in the face of anti-American demonstrations and increasing Communist control of the country.

Two chartered planes flew 160 women and children from Vientiane to Bangkok Friday in the first step of the planned evacuation of most of the American community.

They were allowed to leave only after lengthy negotiations among U.S. officials, leftist student leaders and Communist Pathet Lao representatives. Communist troops had earlier barred the Americans from leaving their residential compound.

Millions Hit Open Road For Holiday Weekend

United Press International
Millions of Americans took to the roadways today to enjoy the long Memorial Day weekend, the first holiday fling of the warm-weather months.

Police put on extra patrols and the National Guard patrolled and beelined 500 persons could die in traffic accidents during the holiday period, which began at 6 p.m. local time Friday and ends at midnight Monday.

The Council said as many as 24,000 persons could suffer disabling injuries in traffic mishaps during the holiday weekend.

The San Fernando Valley Alert set up free coffee, lemonade and pastry stands at rest stops midway between Barstow, Calif., and Baker, Calif., offering motorists a leg-stretching respite on the long drive.

State police Commissioner Edward P. Leonard Friday ordered all divisions to use radar equipment to the maximum to enforce the limit. He said he has the full backing of Gov. Ella T. Grasso in the anti-speeder drive.

Leonard said drivers have reverted to higher speeds, after a period of slow driving brought on by high gasoline prices and severe shortages also would be a quarter of a million cars on city streets.

Eighty per cent of Chicago businesses closed today to mark the holiday Monday.

Fatalities in 1974 were 24 per cent lower than in the year before, he said. But statistics this year show that speeds and fatalities are rising back to old levels.

Tough Crackdown Planned by Police

WISCONSIN GOV. Patrick Lucey said Wisconsin National Guard patrols and beelined-up police patrols would keep an eye on state roadways. He said helicopters carrying medical equipment also would be in the air during the weekend in an effort to cut down on accidents and traffic fatalities.

LOS ANGELES—Police will be on high alert during Memorial Day weekend, with a tough crackdown on speeding designed to enforce the 55 mile per hour limit through the year.

Troopers made at least 100 arrests Friday and many more were expected throughout the three-day holiday weekend.

The Mason-Dixon Line, probably the most widely known boundary line in the United States, was named after two famous mathematicians, Charles Mason and Jeremiah Dixon. The two were called in from England in 1763 to help resolve a long dispute over the measurements of boundary lines separating Pennsylvania, Delaware and Maryland. The World Almanac notes that resurveyors made 200 years later proved that Mason and Dixon had determined alignments with an amazing degree of accuracy using available 18th century instruments.

Attentive Husband Driving Her Nuts

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1975 Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I must have the most attentive husband in the world. He retired last year at 64, and has been with me seven days a week, 24 hours a day ever since. He drives me to the beauty parlor—and waits to drive me home. He drives me to the doctor's and dentist's when necessary. He drives me to my bridge club and comes back to drive me home.

Yes, I know how to drive, but his excuse is, "Something may happen to the car."
DRIVEN IN DAYTONA BEACH

DEAR DRIVEN: Your man needs a hobby. Has he ever tried driving a golf ball?

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I disagree on the following: We have six children ranging in age from 8 to 18, and our method of punishment is to "ground" them for a certain length of time. This means that they are not permitted to participate in any outside activity, which includes scout meetings, babysitting jobs, parties—everything except going to school and church.

I feel that if they have already given their word either to participate in some group activity or to babysit, they should be allowed to do so. My husband feels that if they are grounded, they should forego ALL commitments and activities, and phone to say that they cannot participate because they are being punished.

How do you feel about this, and why?
DISAGREEING PARENTS

DEAR PARENTS: Children who are being "grounded" should not be allowed to go to parties just because they accepted the invitation.

However, I would not insist that a baby-sitting job be cancelled. For the scout meeting, I'd flip a coin because while it builds character, it's also fun.

DEAR ABBY: Tell "Decent in D.C." I know exactly how she feels. I, too, am 23, and have been on my own since I was 18.

I was a secretary until about a year ago. I then discovered I could make more money being a cocktail waitress.

I hadn't given much thought to people's attitudes toward cocktail waitresses, but I soon discovered that most men seemed to assume that because I was a cocktail waitress, I was automatically on the make.

My mother would like to think that my job is just temporary, something to tide me over until I find a nice, "decent" job in an office.

It's true that some cocktail waitresses aren't exactly of the best moral fiber, but that can be the case in any occupation. I know quite a few cocktail waitresses, and I can tell you that most of them are decent, working girls—some of whom have husbands and children—who are simply trying to make the best living they can.

In spite of these attitudes, I don't plan to give up my job. I make good money, have pleasant working conditions and none of the pressures of the "business world." And you're right, Abby, a person lends dignity to the job, not vice versa, as my customers have found out.
HAPPY IN HOUSTON

DEAR HAPPY: I'd drink to that. (And make mine a Shirley Temple.)

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY, Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lady Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212, for Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20¢) envelope.

The Meaning Of Memorial Day

Memorial Day has always been a bittersweet holiday in America. But it is especially sad when the occasion for special remembrance of those who have fallen in the nation's wars becomes a matter of what is convenient—or profitable—for the commercial community.

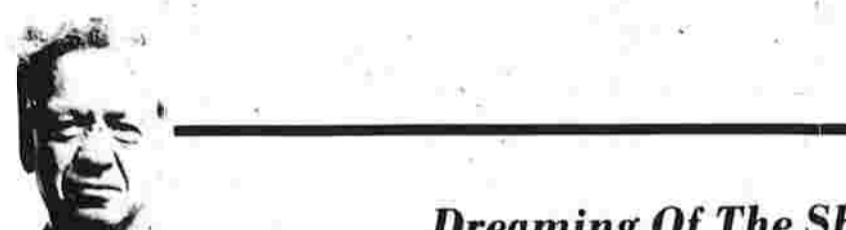

Persuaded by those who said that it made more sense to have a three-day weekend every year rather than have a holiday fall in the middle of the week, as it sometimes did, Congress several years ago changed Memorial Day from May 30 to the last Monday in the month. It also moved Veterans or Armistice Day from Nov. 11 to the last Monday in October for the same reason, as well as to put more distance between it and Thanksgiving.

Not all of the states fell in line with the change; a few have continued to observe the traditional dates. Some Southern states have always observed Confederate Memorial Day on different days in April and May.

If a lobbying campaign being conducted chiefly by former servicemen is successful, Veterans Day will once again be redesignated as Nov. 11. The U.S. Senate has already so acted. Other bills have been introduced in Congress to move Memorial Day back to its original spot on the calendar.

Dreaming Of The Shah

NEW YORK CITY — There was an invitation last week from Secretary of State Henry Kissinger to a luncheon party for the Shah of Iran. A cold came along and I had to cancel. But it gave an imaginative push to my dreams.

Floating through them, for several days, was the figure of the Shah, successor to the storied Persian emperors, who had inherited a shaky kingdom and made a go of it, and had banished a beautiful young wife because she couldn't give him a son. He tried to modernize his kingdom without retaining his total rule over it, and when the market value of the oil deposited under the desert — through no fault of his own — had quadrupled he became rich beyond all imagining.

So there he is, with his throne on a cloud, very sure of himself, with the world at his feet, with everyone groveling before him because his new money has flung a halo around the rickety grandeur of his ancient kinship. Those who know him speak of his ability, but whether or not he became rich because he was wise, certainly he is now wise because he is rich. Overnight he became a magus.

In dreams being not only responsibilities but projects, I wasn't talking with him in one of those stilted interviews where the correspondent, on his best behavior, puts carefully measured questions and gets back carefully tailored answers. Since I had set the scene myself the Shah was at the mercy not only of my questions but my proposals and unsolicited advice.

My first thought was of Abe Beame and his financial adventures in New York City. I must have been reading Russell Baker's delicious scheme, because that was my first proposal to the Shah. Why shouldn't His Exalted Majesty buy New York City? Anyone could buy an airline like Pan-Am, but it takes a towering imagination to buy Megalopolis. Besides, a bankers had opted out, and so had Treasury Secretary William Simon and President Ford, and so had the state Republicans. It was a hollow, undefended city — unwept, unknown, unbid-for. It was his for the asking.

But no, he wasn't buying. I couldn't quite make out why, although I thought I heard him mutter something about "too many dogs." So I shifted my ground and broadened my sights.

This time not a city, but a whole state. How about taking the California off our hands? It has everything — mountains, valleys, vineyards, airplane factories, whole technological systems, earthquakes, Hollywood theatres, Sandstone and a relatively uncommitted Elizabeth Taylor — when she gets back from Leningrad. We would even throw in

Points For Ford

WASHINGTON — Criticism of President Ford's use of force to rescue the merchant ship Mayaguez and its crew is reminiscent of the lecture delivered by a Washington judge to a householder who had slugged a creep he caught burglarizing his home. The judge said sternly that the householder should have called the cops.

In the Mayaguez case, Ford is lambasted because he took unilateral action instead of seeking to resolve the grievance through patient diplomacy or adjudication by the United Nations. The U.S. is held up as a bully, picking on a small and allegedly defenseless Communist Cambodia.

Perhaps the best answer to this argument was offered by a French diplomat on Embassy Row. "But what would you do," he asked. "In such cases, diplomacy is nonexistent. The Khmer Rouge was simply flaunting its right to violate international law. Had America hesitated, it would have taken months, perhaps years, to get the ship and crew back. You'd have had another Pueblo case. It is not to live in a world of our dreams. Every line in the record tells us that Communist regimes will always press every advantage, hoping to get away with the banditry they have long and drawn-out diplomatic negotiations.

Yes, the critics are correct in charging that the U.S. violated its pledge to the United Nations Charter. Unfortunately, however, the UN Charter is a piece of paper violated almost daily by UN members. In any event, the U.S. has learned that when swift action is imperative, the UN is a helpless bureaucracy. Nobody should have been surprised when the Khmer Rouge ignored Secretary General Kurt Waldheim's offer to mediate.

Ford tried diplomacy. Both Communist China and the Soviet Union were asked to intercede with the Khmer Rouge. Both refused to do so, meanwhile dispatching encouraging messages to Phnom Penh. From Phnom Penh, from its embassy in Peking, and from Prince Shinouk, Cambodia's "de facto" ex-ile in Peking, the Khmer Rouge was not only silent.

We should have been more patient, cry the critics. Well, patience is a relative term. The danger of too much patience in the Mayaguez case was that history had taken months, perhaps years, to get the ship and crew back. You'd have had another Pueblo case. It is not to live in a world of our dreams. Every line in the record tells us that Communist regimes will always press every advantage, hoping to get away with the banditry they have long and drawn-out diplomatic negotiations.

Indulging themselves in a naive naivete in today's world, those who championed patience keep saying that there was no evidence that the Mayaguez's crew had been harmed or that the vessel would not be returned. But the record also shows that the crew would not be returned. But the record also shows that the crew would not be harmed or that the vessel would not be returned. But the record also shows that the crew would not be harmed or that the vessel would not be returned.

High School

Proposal Killed

At a special meeting last Friday, the Student Assembly voted down an amendment to the Constitution which would have altered the amending process itself. The original procedure involves both members of the Student Assembly and the entire student body. A two-thirds majority by the Assembly and only the Assembly's vote would be necessary to pass an amendment.

Had the amendment passed, it would have eliminated the vote by the student body and only the Assembly's vote would be necessary. It would also have required that all amendments be presented to the membership two meetings prior to the meeting at which they will be voted on.

Several weeks before April vacation, senior Steve Girelli initiated the amendment when he proposed that the Student Assembly revise the six-year-old Constitution. He recommended to the Assembly that they clarify ambiguous clauses and revise certain portions of the Constitution. One of these sections concerned the amending process.

Advocates of the proposal felt that the standing procedure, which is parallel to the democratic procedure used in the U.S., is too lengthy and inefficient. More could be accomplished if only Student Assembly members were involved in amending the Constitution, one of the supporters said. Another supporter commented that anyone may join Student Assembly and this amendment might have consolidated the Assembly into "only those who are really interested." It is interesting to note that these arguments have been used by totalitarian governments in their initial rise to power.

People who oppose the amendment point out that it is not widespread enough to insure that decisions made by the members alone would reflect the rest of the students' opinions. They saw this proposal as a threat to students' rights.

Although the issue of reforming the amending process is dead for this year, one of the candidates for president of the Student Assembly mentioned that if he was elected, he would revive and support the proposal next year. — Wendy Horwitz

Rock Review

Randy Newman's "Good Old Boys" album is fantastic. The album is his, to my knowledge, Randy Newman's latest offering, released in late '74.

After listening, Newman has once again supported his reputation as a real individual in the rock field. Randy Newman has a beautiful blues voice, a real tear-jerker; he also writes and arranges all his own music and is a keyboard whiz. All this talent, however, is overshadowed by his controversial lyrics.

The opening song, "Rednecks" Newman sets the trend for the entire album by justifying the South's behavior and treatment of the blacks.

In the lyrics he exhibits the Southern paranoia that the rest of the country, the President, New York Jews and everyone else is against. In these lyrics he defends Lester Maddox and praises Huey P. Long and calls Birmingham the best city in the land.

Aside from the lyrics which at points are so redneck they're laughable (maybe he meant them to be) the music is great. "Naked Man" by Chuck Bringham and "Rednecks" are good music. — Michael M. Darby

Mama Called Successful

The Sock 'n Buskin gang at MHS has done it again. Thanks to the dedication of the cast and crew members, Manchester High's version of "I Remember Mama" comes out sparkling.

This accent is also handled well by Barbara, Kent, and Sue Martney, cast as Aunt Jenny, Mrs. Mamma, and Mrs. Mamma's friend. Sue uses her acting talents to take on the character of a very stern woman, and she does it well. Also cast as Mamma's sister are Eva Emmerling and Aunt Sylvia.

The acting talents of Gerry Perrell and Paul Palmer must not be overlooked. Gerry has the role of Mr. Hyde, an Englishman who boards with the family and fascinates them with his nightly storytelling. His acting is excellent, and he brings a touch of British accent which enhances the sophistication of his character. Paul has an extremely good role — that of an underdog, meek man named Peter Thelwell who happens to be in love with Aunt Trina. His deliberately nervous appearance and meekness are very comical. They are a delight to watch.

Everyone else in the supporting cast deserves credit for helping to make "I Remember Mama" a success through their individual efforts. The entire cast did some fine acting that really kept the play moving.

Credit must go also to the stage crew who have created a very imaginative setting typical of the early 1900's. The set must go to the credit crew who have created a very imaginative setting typical of the early 1900's. IOH Has Festivities To Conclude Season

The instructors of the Handicapped (IOH) closed out its 74-75 season with its annual open house. The event, which was held last Sunday, culminated this past year's IOH activities with a public. Three, 20-minute sessions, consisting of local students were held. Before each session, one or two students and their instructors told of the progress they had made and what they hoped to accomplish during the next year. During the ten-minute break between classes, Red Cross certificates were awarded by the outgoing president, Grace Bellmore. She also presented a plaque to John Dornier, president of the IOH for his year's service. Unable to attend, but also receiving a plaque, was James Brackner, vice president of the corporation.

After the classes, refreshments were served outside. The guests then filed back into the pool to attend the concluding activities. David Moyer, advisor to IOH, addressed the public and the members. He thanked everyone for their dedication in working with the handicapped. Following his speech, the graduating seniors formed an IOH in the water at Round Table sang during the ceremony.

Concluding words were spoken by Grace Bellmore. She then passed the torch, the symbol of IOH, to the new president Janet Nesteruk. Other officers inducted were Susan Tucker, vice president; Russ Wilson, treasurer; Claire Downing, business secretary; Jane Stanton, corresponding secretary; Becky Timbrell and Jim Duval, both sergeant-at-arms; and Alice Bellmore, public relations. Kicking off IOH weekend on Thursday, May 15, was a seminar dealing with the problems of the handicapped and related in the community. Representatives from the Mantfield State Training School, the State and Local Labor Department, and the Harford County Board of Education were present. The seminar was held at the Harford County Board of Education. Best of luck is extended to the new officers and the organization for the coming year.

Marcia Spano is a plus in her family, but she has spent the last 16 years of her life as a child living on Ferguson Rd. in Manchester. She is the middle child of her family, between younger brother Brian and older brother Sam. She'll be graduating 16th in the MHS class of '75 this June 19.

She mentions a few changes she's gone through since elementary school, starting with being "mehwah" "stuckup" at Highland Park School where she was a very good athlete and basketball player. Her opinion of herself was very high until she started losing friends and realized she had to change.

At Bennet Junior High she was more withdrawn. Her activities there included band and girls' basketball. She missed the whole fourth quarter of eighth grade because she was very sick. Although she admits it sounds corny, she thinks the experience has made her "appreciate life more."

At MHS she has been in the math team, the National Honor Society and AFS, but by far her largest involvements have been in the music departments, as Round Table accompanist, and in the yearbook, co-edited. She feels that being Round Table accompanist has given her a lot of confidence. Her main school involvements reflect her chief interests outside of school: Piano and photography.

Discriminating Juries

Juries seem to be much more reluctant to vote large awards when the government is the defendant in a damage suit than when private insurance company money is involved.

This is one of the findings of an analysis of personal injury cases involving government agencies just completed by the staff of Jury Verdict Research, Inc.

One reason, suggest the researchers, is that juries (who are taxpayers in everyday life) realize the money they are awarding comes from them in the long run. Or it may be a way of telling governments — local, state and federal — to slow down on their spending.

The majority of suits analyzed involved local and state governments, and it was found that larger awards were granted against state governments than local ones. The smallest awards were those involving faulty maintenance of public property. Other categories included negligent acts by government employees and suits against school districts. In all of these situations, awards were below national averages in suits between private parties.

In a number of states and municipalities, juries are not allowed to decide the outcome of a suit when the government is the defendant. This seems to be changing, however, says Jury Verdict Research, and more areas are providing for jury trials in these cases.

POET'S NOOK

Memorial Day
"Heavenly Father! This Memorial Day With sadness of heart — we pray For those of soldiers — who died — Our sons — daughters — America's pride!

My rest in distant — foreign earth — They died to give freedom new rebirth — You — with faith — now call to us — Placing freedom's torch in our trust.

For great America — our holy pride!

That we vow to keep it ever aflame — Never let foe defile it with shame! For freedom they lived — for freedom died.

For great America — our holy pride!

In fiery blaze — banner unfurled Proclaiming God's freedom to the world The Stars — Stripes against blue sky Flame blessings from on high!

Dear God! May they who gave their best This Memorial Day — be especially blessed That we — faith in Thee — never cease To pray this world Thy heavenly peace!"

TODAY'S THOUGHT

The Best Thing to Give....
The best thing to give your enemy is forgiveness:
— to an opponent, tolerance;
— to a friend, your ear;
— to your child, good example;
— to a father, reverence;
— to your mother, conduct that will make her proud of you;
— to yourself, charity;
— to all men, respect.

Manchester Week in Review

Town Struggled Through Heat Wave

Manchester struggled through an unusual heat wave this week that saw thermometers skyrocketing to temperatures near 100 at least twice. It was a relatively quiet week, but several Manchester people made news: Capt. George P. McCaughey, 53, resigned his post with the Manchester Police Department after 29 years of service, 12 of them at his present rank. McCaughey, who often served as acting chief, said he has no definite plans. He'll spend the summer on Cape Cod.

Other People

William R. Johnson, executive vice president of the Savings Bank of Manchester since 1971, was named to succeed retiring Everett J. Livesey as president of the bank. Johnson, 52, lives in Glastonbury. Peter Vitols, a town engineering assistant since 1968, was named Manchester's Outstanding Public Works Employee for 1975. He was nominated for the honor by Town Engineer Walter Senkow and chosen by Public Works Director Jay Giles. Greg Kane of 103 Spruce St. was elected the first chairman of the committee responsible for this year's garden plot program on the town-owned Lewie Farm. Mrs. Florence Levine, a Manchester

High School biology teacher since 1961, was selected Outstanding Biology Teacher of Connecticut by the National Association of Biology Teachers. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sterling were named co-presidents of the Gilbert and Sullivan Workshop. Robert H. Smith was re-elected chairman of the Manchester Memorial Hospital Board of Trustees at the board's annual meeting this week. The board named four honorary trustees and three new incorporators. Government

This week's town government news was led by Monday's decision by the Manchester Planning and Zoning Commission to ease restrictions on liquor outlets in the Central Business District. The zoning amendment, effective June 1, will allow a new full-service restaurant downtown. The Town Building Committee decided to award a contract to the J.S. Nasin Co. of Willimantic for construction of the Regional Occupational Training Center approved by voters last November. Groundbreaking is scheduled June 25. The Manchester Housing Authority suffered a setback in its planning for a 40-unit elderly housing project on Spencer St. when state officials rejected preliminary plans. Authority members agreed to modify the plans, although the changes may put the project beyond their financial resources. In the North End, directors of the Eighth Utilities District recommended a four-mill tax rate for 1975-1976, up from 2.5 mills this year. District voters will consider the budget, tax rate, and election of directors June 25.

Hartford Arena schedules 'Summer of Entertainment'

Mario Manzini, billed as the world's greatest escape artist, will headline the opening day show of "That Summer of Entertainment" June 1 at the Hartford Arena in South Windsor.

The all-day show, free to the public, will also include a craft show, flea market, parachuting exhibition, and clowns for the children.

The event, produced by Arena Entertainment and Jabberock Management, will kick off a series of lectures, concerts, and special attractions at the converted ice skating rink.

The Arena is at 585 John Fitch Blvd. (Rt. 5) in South Windsor.

The Arena, being promoted as an alternative entertainment center this summer, will feature a series of lectures, starting June 5 with Mark Lane, author of "Who Killed JFK?"

The evening lecture will include a screening of the controversial film, "Rush to Judgment," about the Warren Commission's investigation of the assassination of President Kennedy.

After school closes for the summer, the Arena will begin a series of kiddie cartoon shows on Saturday mornings.

Other special events planned include a June 8 country-western show featuring Donna Fargo and a June 15 presentation of "Superstars of Kung Fu."

The 4,000-seat Arena will also be the site of several rock concerts and dances throughout the summer.

Further information is available from the producers at the Arena, tel. 289-3401.

Ella Fitzgerald stars with Hartford Pops

"It's Wonderful"... "It's Delovely"... It's Ella Fitzgerald.

Ella Fitzgerald stars at the Bushnell Memorial Hall as soloist with the Hartford Symphony "Pops" Orchestra Saturday at 8:15 p.m.

Although her legions of fans well know the famous Fitzgerald song interpretations, her Hartford arrangements are brand new.

Among other works in her repertoire are "Manhattan," "Every Time We Say Good-bye," a Duke Ellington medley, and the very popular "Anything Goes" and "Our Love is Here to Stay."

Also appearing will be the Tommy Flanagan Trio (piano, bass and drums).

A short time ago, one fan questioned Ella about her "new image." Her reply was, "I don't quite understand you, dear. Songs have changed, music has changed, but I haven't changed my style."

She has, however, lightened her performance schedule since 1971, after two cataract operations, and she's often seen wearing glasses, but that's about the extent of the "new image."

Tickets for the Ella Fitzgerald appearance with the Hartford Symphony are on sale now at the box office. For reservations, call 246-6807.

award-winning Manchester Pipe Band.

Photographs, sculpture, paintings, and crafts will be displayed on the Green both days, with musical and theatrical events scheduled continuously until 6 p.m. Saturday and from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday.

Following Saturday's daytime events, Fanfare '75 will move to Glastonbury High School, Hubbard St., for a spaghetti dinner at 5:30. A presentation of "The Sound of Music" is scheduled for 7:30 at the high school auditorium.

The events conclude Sunday night on the Green with a performance by the Glastonbury High School Symphonic and Concert Band.

Story and photos
 By STEVE FISHER

In the children's film classic "The Wizard of Oz," the yellow brick road led to the land of enchantment and dreams come true.

In the heart of Manchester, at 466 Main Street, a path marked by the turquoise footprints of an unknown sojourner leads one into the equally enchanting and dreams granting world of the arts. One needn't click his heels twice or brave the dark forest wherein dwells the Wicked Witch of the West. One only has to open the door and enter into the world of Foot Prints Art Gallery.

Housed in an ivy-covered church, Foot Prints provides the talented as well as the curious, the young, and the aging student with instruction in dance, drama, art, music, and acrobatics, while displaying the creative achievements of artists on both an international and local scale in a spacious two-story gallery.

While instruction is the crux of any learning experience, the enchantment behind Foot Prints is that instruction is only the beginning of the learning process that ends, as gallery co-owners Katie Sakol and Jill Garfunkel say, "in a total involvement in the arts and the life of the community."

Susan Mainzer, Foot Prints' art instructor, not only teaches her students the rudiments of composition, line and form, but involves her students in experiences that will enrich their lives and develop their personalities.

What Ms. Mainzer hopes to do is to have class tours to convalescent homes, prisons, and similar locations where the arts rarely set foot. By doing this Ms. Mainzer hopes that her students will gain insight into a segment of their society that they would normally be unaware of and also to allow people confined to such institutions to share the beauty of the arts.

For those of who find the graceful movements of dancing a tedious and often almost impossible task, Foot Prints has designed a special course.

"Our course in movement is for students who would normally shy away from a regular course in dancing," says Ms. Garfunkel.

The course in movement is primarily for those who feel too awkward to attempt a regular dance class. Foot Prints also offers classes in modern, folk and belly dancing, and traditional ballet.

The creative approach to instruction in the arts seems to permeate the core of this institution.

"In music we don't believe in giving recitals where the boys dressed in shirt and ties and the girls wear their Easter dresses," says Ms. Garfunkel. "What we hope to do is to augment our regular classroom instruction with concerts around town together with found objects such as spoons, bottles, and tin pans."

This approach not only teaches the student to play music but shows him that music isn't confined to traditional instruments. It can be found in the most unlikely objects.

The drama curriculum at Foot Prints is no less innovative than the other courses. The junior dramatic workshop encourages children to use their natural creativity, extend their basic imagination, and play into a more formal structure while still maintaining a free environment.

situations, music, characterization of animals, expression of feelings, and all the things of a child's world as a jumping-off place to develop dramatic abilities.

The myth that all children want to run away to the circus is no myth at Foot Prints. Every Monday night and Saturday afternoon Al Morgan of Coventry instructs students in acrobatic stunts that would satisfy the wants of any would-be runaway.

Morgan's opening act features daring young acrobats balancing on the outstretched hands of the instructor. The show progresses to the next act, where Morgan balances another student on his shoulders. The show climaxes with another student displaying his acquired ability to ride a three-foot-high unicycle.

As society grows more technically oriented, we are prone to forget the intellectual and emotional stimulation which only the arts can grant. But as long as institutions such as Foot Prints exist, the arts will always have a home.

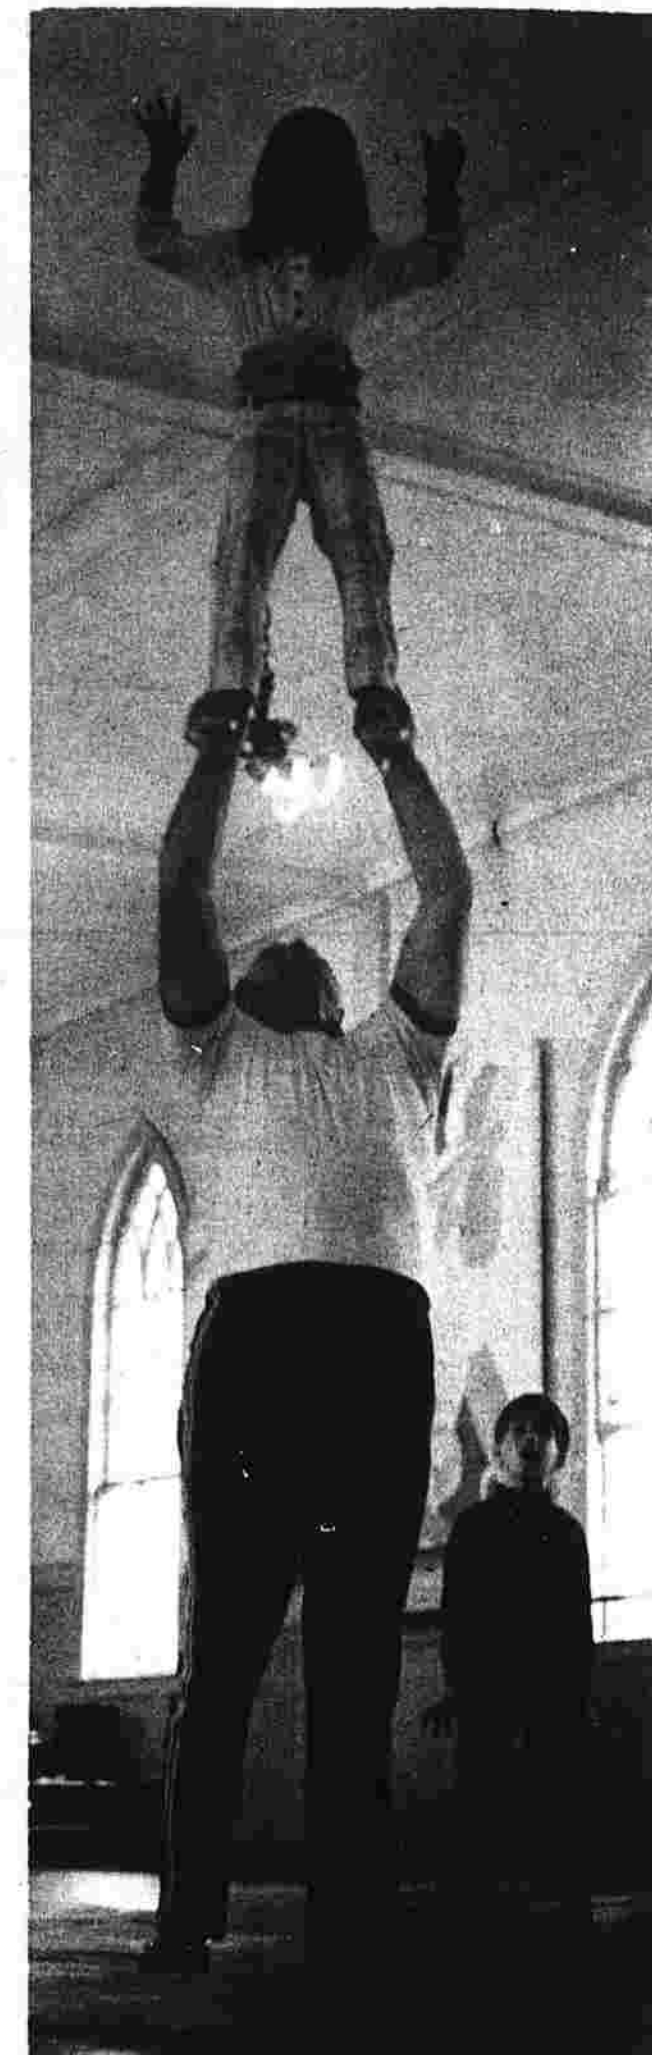

Susan Mainzer teaches art to Stephen Bayer and Todd Kornfeld.

Instruction is only the beginning of the learning process that ends in a total involvement in the arts and the life of the community.

Dance instructor Wendy Horwitz teaches ballet to Cynthia Barlow and Cathy Campenelli.

Preparing publicity plans

Martial music days resume

Martial Music Days, a familiar note in the summer at Old Sturbridge Village, resume today with the appearance of Capt. Samuel Nicholas' Battalion, Continental Marines, a revival music and marching unit.

The Continental Marines will perform camp and march music as it was played some 200 years ago. Also scheduled to perform today is the Sturbridge Martial Band, which recreates a fife and drum unit of post-Revolution days.

Martial Music Days, to be scheduled throughout the summer at Old Sturbridge Village, are designed to interpret the role of music in the military and social life of the young nation. The events began at the Village about 30 years ago.

Old Sturbridge Village is a living museum of the everyday world of rural New Englanders after the Revolution. The work, family, and community activities of that era are recreated year-round.

The Village is open daily from 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. It can be reached from Exit 3 off Interstate 86.

What's happening? summer theatre!

"I'd like to have an event at the college every night of the summer," says Andy Paterna, Manchester Community College's director of student activities. "I'd like the townspeople to say, 'Let's go down to the college tonight and see what's happening!'"

Summer Theatre 3 will be a major part of what's happening, according to plans.

Opening June 12, "Stop the World, I Want to Get Off" will set the pace for the summer schedule. This fast-paced musical will star John Spalla of Manchester as the ambitious Littlechap, and Phyllis Lehmann of Windsor as his long-suffering Evie.

Spalla recently appeared as the Deputy-Governor in "The Crucible" presented by the Little Theatre of Manchester. He also composed the electronic musical background.

A seven-person chorus will provide a singing and dancing background for "Stop the World." Directors Jim Quinn and Bob Richardson plan to update and compress this 1950s play through the use of electronic music and other devices.

Groups of outdoor musicians are one of Paterna's ideas to attract the public.

On Thursdays, instrumental and vocal ensembles will entertain strollers during the hour before play time. The music will range from Renaissance brass to folk and rock.

After the play, theater goers will find tables set up in the mall with refreshments available. In this cabaret atmosphere, the music and entertainment will continue 'til midnight.

"Stop the World" will be followed by "6 Rms Riv Vu" which opens June 28; two plays by Harold Pinter beginning July 10, and "Butterflies Are Free" starting July 24.

Summer Theatre 3 is a semi-professional, independent company based at Manchester Community College. Its actors and technicians come from all over Connecticut and, in some instances, even beyond.

For reservations, call 646-4900, ext. 371.

What's It Like to Be the Super Speller?

Julie Ann Junkin: Bee Queen

The National Spelling Bee is buzzing again. The 1975 contest will be held on June 2 through June 6 at the Mayflower Hotel in Washington, D.C.

Julie Ann Junkin, a 12-year-old sixth grader from Gordo, Alabama, spelled the word "hydrophyte" and was the 1974 champion.

"I guessed at it," said Julie Ann. "I hadn't ever seen it before. It had not been on any of the lists I had studied."

The Mini Page asked Julie Ann what effect winning had had on her life.

"I was on the Mike Douglas Show. I was also on radio shows in Birmingham. A bank gave me a $4,000 college scholarship, and I received a freshman tuition grant from the University of Alabama."

"I have a trophy, and my elementary school got a plaque. All the kids at school congratulated me."

"My home town put a streamer across the main street that said: 'Welcome to Gordo, Home of the National Spelling Bee Champion, Julie Ann Junkin!'"

"There have been several 'Julie Ann Junkin Days' here in Alabama. There have been luncheons, and stores have given me gifts."

"Everything has just about worn off now," Julie told us recently.

But she's really too busy to miss all the excitement. Spelling is not the only interest for this "A" student. She is also a cheerleader, and that takes up a lot of her time.

Julie Ann Junkin spells the word "hydrophyte," waits to see if she got it correct, and cries the happy tears of a champion.

A hydrophyte (hide-row-fight) is a plant that grows in water or a plant that needs a lot of water.

The National Bee is sponsored by the Scripps-Howard Newspapers and other daily newspapers throughout the country. Here are some words that stumped the contestants in the early rounds of the 1974 National Spelling Bee!

Classroom spelling bees are still popular.

The National Spelling Bee List

With the help of the sponsoring newspapers, the National Spelling Bee issues a list of words for contestants to study. However, the words in the final contest are not necessarily on this list. Below are some words chosen from the first round, intermediate and final word list. How well would you do?

First Round	Intermediate	Final
angel	elegy	abdominal
bore	galaxy	ancillary
cantor	gloss	beatnick
forlorn	nutrition	ecstasize
haywire	panicky	neurotic
junior	quash	poliomyelitis
pigeon	proclivity	protocol
snooze	rebuke	safari

How the National Bee Works

The only way a contestant can take part in the National Spelling Bee is through the sponsorship of a daily or Sunday newspaper. Over seven million children each year take part in the local contests sponsored by around 80 participating newspapers.

Students who have not reached their 16th birthday and who have not passed beyond the eighth grade can enter. Spelling Bee Week consists of two days of spelling, with the rest of the time devoted to Washington sightseeing and "mixers." All the contestants, their families and the papers' escorts stay at the same hotel. They visit the White House and other places of interest.

Edison's Helper: Lewis Latimer

Lewis Howard Latimer was the black inventor who worked with Edison. The son of a run-away slave, Latimer was born on September 4, 1848. He went to work at the age of 10. Later, he got a job as an office boy for a Boston lawyer. Latimer was an expert electrical engineer and draftsman (person who makes drawings). He knew a lot about patents (the exclusive rights of inventors), and he worked with Edison's lawyers. He was also a poet, author and musician. Latimer died on December 11, 1928.

CORRECTION: The Mini Page story about Latimer ran in our February 8-14 issue. We published the incorrect address for additional information and understand that no such list is available. The information should have said: "A booklet, 'Lewis Howard Latimer, a Black Inventor,' can be obtained by writing the Thomas Alva Edison Foundation, 18280 West Ten Mile Road, Suite 143, Southfield, Michigan, 48075 and enclosing 30 cents in coin. The book contains a brief biography and some experiments suitable for older readers."

Supersport: Joanne Carner

In 1974, Joanne Carner was the "queen" of women's golf. She won six tournaments and led the money list, earning more than $87,000. It was her best season by far since joining the pro tour in 1970. Joanne and her husband, Don, travel the tour in a plush trailer.

She was born in Kirkland, Wash., and started playing golf at age 10. She won many amateur titles prior to turning pro. Joanne, a friendly, outgoing person, graduated from Arizona State University in 1961 with a degree in Physical Education.

Coming up on public TV

Connecticut Public Television (CPTV), the state's five-station noncommercial network, ended its daytime in-school broadcast schedule Friday.

Starting Monday, CPTV will sign on at 4 p.m. weekdays with "Sesame Street."

Saturday daytime programming, which begins at 9 a.m., will continue throughout the summer on CPTV.

Gov. Ella T. Grasso will accept the "Fourth Estate Citizen-of-the-Year Award" for 1974 in a special edition of "The Fourth Estate," Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. on CPTV.

Seven of Connecticut's newspaper editors and journalists voted earlier to honor Mrs. Grasso with the award.

Joseph Stalin, one of the most feared personalities of the 20th Century, will be profiled in film Wednesday (9 p.m.) on a public television special.

The program attempts to find the real Stalin behind the many contradictory images history has given us. Straight documentary evidence is combined with more subjective material in the filmed portrait.

Ask Kleiner

By DICK KLEINER

DEAR DICK: Whatever happened to good, wholesome, funny cartoons like Road Runner, Huckleberry Hound, etc.? It seems all the cartoons today are adventure series from TV shows or super people cartoons. Why aren't there any cartoons kids can laugh at any more? No wonder kids are so confused today. Americans have forgotten how to laugh. — DONNA RIGGS, Mobile, Ala.

Times and tastes change and today's made-for-Saturday-morning-TV cartoon series are, as you say, mostly in the adventure mold. But it is a cyclical thing. All it will take is for one funny cartoon show to be a hit and then there will be more. Anyhow, it's easier to make adventure shows than funny shows. A sense of humor is a rare quality.

DEAR DICK: Please tell me if it was my imagination or not but when I saw "The Trial of Billy Jack" I thought I saw something strange. In the fight scene at the dance hall, Billy Jack dislocates a man's left shoulder, doesn't he? After the fight, he puts the man's right shoulder back in place. Right or wrong? — MARTA ROMERO, Pueblo West, Colo.

I didn't see the picture but I asked the vice-president in charge of shoulders at Billy Jack Productions about the problem. His reply: "We weren't making 'Young Frankenstein.'" (In "Young Frankenstein," Igor's hump moves back and forth between his left and right side.) I guess he was saying the shoulder was always on the same side.

DEAR DICK: Could you please tell me if Kojak is really bald or not? Could you also tell me if the show Rhoda is true or not? — L. Zarzyczy, Williamsport, Pa.

Kojak, alias Telly Savalas, has long shaved his head. Nobody outside the Savalas family mirror knows what he'd look like if he let it grow. As for Rhoda, that's a fictional show completely.

DEAR DICK: Are the Pointer Sisters really sisters and how many records have they made? — SABRENA VICK, Ponca City, Okla.

Ruth, Anita, Bonnie and June Pointer are really sisters. June, the youngest, has been ill for some time and doesn't appear with the group in person but she does record with them. They have made three albums for ABC-Dunhill. The latest, "Live at the Opera House," is just out.

Atheneum features the blues

Much of the brilliance, excitement and romance associated with the city of New Orleans originated with the black people — their music and traditions. American artist Romare Bearden has captured the flavor of New Orleans and its people in a new series of collages, "Of The Blues," and five of those works are now on view in the Wadsworth Atheneum's MATRIX Gallery of contemporary art.

It is a not uncommon impression that black artists only emerged along with the general rise of black people towards equality in this country over the past ten or twenty years. But black artists have existed, and flourished, for well over a century in an America which presented formidable barriers to them. Romare Bearden is such an artist.

Born in Charlotte, N.C., in 1914, he studied under George Grosz at New York City's Art Students League, supporting himself by working as a cartoonist. For 30 years he was a New York City social worker, continuing his development as a painter.

Bearden's work has progressed through several stages, from an early Southern series on brown paper, through abstract and non-objective periods. In 1961 he began to re-introduce realistic elements into his paintings and his current group of collages are mostly scenes from the New Orleans life of the early twentieth century. Funeral processions, jazz bands and blues singers are his subjects, portrayed in vibrant colors and infused with energetic life.

Selections from Bearden's "Of The Blues" series will be on view in the MATRIX Gallery through mid-June, together with single works by sculptor Eva Hesse and conceptual artist Sol LeWitt.

Museum hours are Tuesday through Saturday from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Sunday from 1 to 5 p.m. Suggested museum admission fees are $1 for adults and 50 cents for 12 to 18 years. Children under 12, museum members, and scheduled tour groups are admitted free.

Art auction set tonight

The Sphinx Temple Motor Patrol Association is sponsor of an International Art Exhibit and Auction tonight at the Sphinx Temple Mosque on the Berlin Turnpike in Newington.

The art exhibit opens at 7 and bidding on the auction items starts at 8 p.m. Admission is free; refreshments will be served and door prizes will be awarded.
