MCC Names Top Students

Edna Craft of Gerald Dr., Vernon and Dianne Sydoriak of Old Post Rd., Tolland have been named co-valectorian of the class of 1975 at Manchester Community College (MCC). Karen Furbish of 173 Spruce St. Manchester is the salutatorian. All three women compiled 4.0 grade point averages. However, Ms. Sydoriak and Ms. Craft completed all their course work at MCC while Ms. Furbish completed only 54 credits, having transferred several credits from Colby College in Maine. In cases of a tie, the student who has completed the most credits at MCC is given priority.

Ms. Sydoriak will receive her associate degree in public service, with an option in social service. She plans to continue her education at Eastern Connecticut State College in the fall. Ms. Sydoriak has three sons, aged 14, 13 and 7. Her husband is Peter Sydoriak. Ms. Craft has been a part-time student in the executive secretarial curriculum since 1970. She will receive her associate degree in secretarial science, with an executive secretary option. She is currently employed full time at Pratt and Whitney in East Hartford as a secretary in the Products Support Engineering Department. She is the mother of three sons, aged 18, 16 and 13.

Ms. Furbish began college 10 years ago at Colby College in Maine. She has been attending MCC full time for a year and a half since deciding to continue her education. She will receive her associate degree in liberal arts and transfer to University of Connecticut in the fall, where she plans to major in anthropology. Ms. Furbish has two children, a son, 8, and a daughter, 5. She is married to Lawrence Furbish.

About 650 students will be graduated from MCC June 4. Sheila Tobias, associate provost of Wesleyan University, will be the main speaker.

Central Parks Ruled Out for Band Shell

The first act of the band shell fund raising committee of the Manchester Bicentennial Committee was to stop plans for placing the shell in Center Springs Park.

The fund raisers met Thursday night in the park to look it over.

The risk of vandalism, poor parking, hard terrain for senior citizens and police patrol problems caused the committee action, said Burl Lyons, committee chairman.

The committee then moved to Center Park near Mary Cheney Library and ruled that out also. It is too small. Parking would still be a problem.

Lyons appointed a committee to study placement of the shell in Wickham Park off W. Middle Tpk., on the Manchester High School campus, and at the Manchester Community College campus off Bidwell St.

He noted MCC has acres of parking.

Another committee was appointed to restudy the possible use of a portable band shell.

Finally, a committee was appointed to give the fund raisers a more exact cost of building a permanent band shell. Appointed to this committee are William Thornton, president of Manchester Sand and Gravel Co.; Jay Giles, public works director; and Walter Senkow, town engineer.

The fund raisers asked them to work on it "as if you were bidding the job."

The committee's next full meeting is June 12 at 7:30 p.m. in the Municipal Building.

Coventry Boy Wins $100,000

Danny Stevenson, 10, of Rt. 31, Coventry, is $100,000 richer today because he bought a lottery ticket at his father's Coventry store, Tomm's Five and Ten.

Danny, a fifth grade student at Capt. Nathan Hale School, plans to bank the money he won Thursday in the Connecticut lottery.

Danny has three brothers and a sister.

This week's number was 77 red 263. The bonus number is 223649.

Rhode Island Seizes New Jersey Trawler

PROVIDENCE, R.I. — A 203-foot New Jersey-based trawler was steaming home today after being seized in Narragansett Bay for illegally harvesting menhaden.

The Tideland was seized off Bristol, R.I., Thursday in the first incident since Gov. Philip Noel last June 26 ordered an 1896 law enforced to prevent the harvesting of the fish being taken to other states and processed into fish meal and oil.

The vessel, with 17 men and an estimated 500,000 pounds of fish aboard, was escorted to a Providence pier by state natural resources enforcement officers under direct orders from Noel, whom aides described as "steaming mad."

State attorneys claimed the boat was violating an 1896 state law which prohibits non-residents from transporting their catches to other states by boat.

U.S. District Court Judge Edward W. Day issued a restraining order late Thursday which freed the boat, its catch and crew until a three-judge panel rules on whether the law is valid. He ordered the firm to post $50,000 bond.

There have been a number of seizures of foreign vessels by the U.S. Coast Guard off New England for fishing violations in recent years, but it has been rare for a state to seize the ship of American registry.

"First I thought of the Mayaguez and then I jumped in a plane and came up here," said David H. Clarke, president of Seacoast Products Inc. of Port Monmouth, N.J. The reference was to the U.S. merchant ship captured by the Cambodians earlier this month.

"It would be a serious drawback if the law is upheld. If other states do the same thing, it would put us out of business," Clarke said. Menhaden are usually found within 1-3 miles of saltwater coastlines, he said, necessitating the entering of other states' waters.

Noel, an avid fisherman who worked the bay to finance his college education, said he was told by Seacoast Products officials last year that it would not do any more fishing in Rhode Island waters until the constitutionality was decided.

The firm doing $40 million in annual sales, filed suit here three weeks ago claiming the old law discriminates against out-of-state fishing boats and violates amendments to the U.S. Constitution.

"I've been fishing this area since 1939 and I've never had anything like this happen before. It doesn't make sense," said the trawler captain.

Thursday's return was not made to force the state's hand, said attorney Gerald Harrington. "They're interested in catching fish."

In a telephone conversation with Harrington after the hearing, Noel said he was "especially offended" his office was not notified that menhaden fishing was resuming while the court suit was pending.

"Brother, we're gonna have one helluva battle," Noel said.

NATO Nations Express Concern over Spending

By HELEN THOMAS
UPI White House Reporter
BRUSSELS (UPI) — NATO allies today answered President Ford's call to unity with warnings that economic hardship and

STATE NEWS CAPSULES

Binding Arbitration

HARTFORD (UPI) — A bill ordering binding arbitration when municipalities and their employees cannot agree on labor contracts has been approved by the Connecticut House.

The measure gives employees a bargaining tool that makes up for their inability to strike, its supporters said, and prevents lengthy delays often experienced in contract talks between municipalities and their employees.

Approved 95-51 Thursday and sent to the Senate, the bill requires towns and their employees to enter into binding arbitration if they have not agreed to a new contract within 90 days after existing contracts expire.

Contractors Limited

HARTFORD (UPI) — The Connecticut House has approved a measure to make it hard for specialized contractors and laborers from outside the state to work for Connecticut governments, utilities and certain other firms.

The measure, passed Thursday and sent to the Senate, would require the out-of-staters to get Connecticut licenses to ply their trades.

Supporters said the bill would open jobs for Connecticut residents. But Rep. Margaret Morton, D-Bridgeport, said the new licensing requirements would lock out of jobs many minorities who do not qualify for licenses.

Will Record Voices

HARTFORD (UPI) — All seven persons who refused Wednesday to provide recorded samples of their voices for an investigation of crime and corruption, have changed their minds.

U.S. District Court Judge T. Emmet Clarke had told them they risked contempt sentences by not cooperating and ordered them to consult their lawyers and applied for a court hearing before saying they would provide the samples. A federal grand jury is investigating possible law violations related to drugs, stolen goods, loan sharking, and gambling. Although it is the fifth such investigation since 1969, it is the first requiring voice samples.

Waives Extradition

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Memphis psychic David N. Bubar has voluntarily agreed to travel to Connecticut to face conspiracy charges in connection with a $14 million plant fire March 1.

Bubar, charged in connection with an explosion and fire at the Sponge Rubber Products Co. plant in Shelton, Conn., made the agreement during an extradition hearing Thursday before U.S. Magistrate Aaron Brown Jr.

Workers to Rally

HARTFORD (UPI) — Leaders of government employe groups today planned a mass rally for Monday night at the Hartford Civic Center to protest the denial of pay raises to some 30,000 of Connecticut's 40,000 state employees.

After a late-night session, the union leaders spoke of "peace and harmony," saying nothing of a strike which had been threatened.

As union leaders weighed trying to carry out a strike threat, the Connecticut Senate Thursday sent to the governor a bill postponing state employees' pay increases for a year starting July 1.

Hitchhiking Legalized

HARTFORD (UPI) — A traveler's thumb is a legal instrument of transportation on all roads in Connecticut except for limited access highways.

Gov. Ella T. Grasso signed Thursday a bill to legalize hitchhiking, and it became effective immediately. She had expressed reservations about the bill, and State Police Commissioner Edward P. Lonard Jr. actively opposed it. The House passed the measure easily but the Senate approved it by a mere one-vote margin. Until Thursday, hitchhikers in the state thumbed illegally and risked $10 fines.

Senate Against PUC

HARTFORD (UPI) — The Connecticut Senate, has voted 27-8 to abolish the state's Public Utilities Commission.

Finally voting on the bill late Thursday night after four hours of debate and nearly 30 amendments, the upper house approved the creation of a Public Utilities Control Authority.

The new agency, which would have five full-time members appointed for six-year terms, was described as "as different from the old one as night and day" by Sen. Paul S. Amenta, D-New Britain.

other special circumstances will still limit their military commitments to the alliance.

Portugal also declared its intention to stay in NATO in spite of allied suspicions it is leaning toward heavy Communist influence.

Premier Vasco Dos Santos Goncalves said Portugal's NATO membership would not conflict with a growing friendship with East European Communist nations and asked the allies for "more comprehension and less apprehension."

One by one, France, Britain, West Germany and other nations gave Ford the message at the final summit talks in NATO headquarters, where the President Thursday tried to breathe new fire into the faltering alliance.

Ford renewed America's pledge of allegiance to NATO, promised its military forces would remain on station there until the Soviets agree to mutual troop reductions and urged the other 14 NATO allies to back the alliance with "unqualified participation."

In their speeches today, the other government leaders restated the doubts and reservations their nations have long held toward the NATO alliance.

French Foreign Minister Jean Sauvagnargues said his nation has no intention of reintegrating its military forces under overall NATO command despite Ford's implied criticism of part-time allies. France withdrew from NATO's military arm in the 1960s while remaining within its political councils.

Sauvagnargues said France considers itself a full alliance partner, but doubts that NATO in its current form is a proper forum for solving major world problems.

West Germany's Chancellor Helmut Schmidt said it would be difficult for the alliance to pay for its own defense during a period of economic recession and inflation.

Britain's Prime Minister Harold Wilson agreed with that and said it would be "unrealistic" to expect NATO could manage an overall increase in defense spending under current economic conditions. NATO defense ministers agreed last week to just such an increase, but Wilson said better and more specialized arms — not higher budgets — are the answer.

Turkey's Premier Suleyman Demirel said his nation was "willing and determined" to try to solve differences with Greece over Cyprus by peaceful means, as Ford urged Thursday in talks with Demirel and the Greek prime minister.

Demirel also leveled his criticism of the congressional arms embargo in remarks prepared for delivery to the summit session.

Ford, who departs for Madrid Saturday on the second leg of his week-long European tour, began the day at a working breakfast with Wilson at the U.S. embassy residence.

Then he attended the final round of summit consultations at NATO headquarters, where he delivered the keynote address on Thursday.

Norwalk Teachers Reject Contract, Head for Court

NORWALK (UPI) — Striking teachers today voted to reject the latest one year contract worked out after an all-night bargaining session.

The action brings about an afternoon confrontation in Stamford Superior Court where a judge Thursday ordered the teachers, the board and the Common Council to come to an agreement and end the strike that began May 23.

The 2-1 rejection by teachers meeting at The Jewish Community Center came after a series of overnight developments in which the council rejected a two-year contract agreed upon between the teachers and the school board.

Meanwhile, substitute teachers attempted to conduct classes in elementary schools where attendance remained at only about 12 per cent of the 7,400 lower grade population.

Stamford Superior Court Judge William Tierney Jr. Thursday ordered the teachers and the Board of Education to sign the two-year contract, similar to an agreement reached a month ago. That, too, had been rejected by the council.

Tierney issued an injunction against the strike when it first began May 22, but it was not enforced. He said Thursday if the strike continued into today, the parties were to come back to court, where he would hear arguments on the injunction.

The city wants to have the injunction enforced while teachers want it lifted to allow the strike to go on.

After the 10-4 council vote, with one member abstaining, Mayor Donald Irwin announced he would support a one-year contract proposal and urged the rest of the council to follow. Teachers representatives have insisted on a two-year pact.

Negotiators for the teachers and the Board of Education went into a meeting immediately after the vote to try to reach another agreement to end the week-long strike that has idled 900 teachers.

Irwin said he would call the council back to session if an agreement was reached.

Elementary schools opened for a second day Thursday but officials said attendance remained at only 12 per cent of the 7,400 lower grade students, the same as Wednesday. School officials were unable to use buses after the drivers refused to cross teacher picket lines set up at the bus company.

The strike has affected a total of 16,000 students in 25 schools.

The teachers struck for the second time since March, both times after the Common Council rejected the two agreements.

The Date Has Changed But the Spirit Remains

By SOL R. COHEN

Until only a few years ago — four, to be exact — Memorial Day in Manchester was May 30. The parade was on May 30. Schools, businesses, government and most other activities recognized May 30 as Memorial Day, and so did all calendars.

Almost everyone knew that July 4th would be celebrated exactly five weeks after Memorial Day — on the same day of the week. Only when they fell on Sunday was there a change. Then, and only then, they were observed on Monday.

Today is May 30 and my desk calendar only says it's the 150th day into the year and there are 215 more to go. Four days ago, on Monday the 26th, the page told me in large black letters it was Memorial Day.

Well, so be it. If they tell us, "Forget it. Memorial Day is when we say it is," we accept it, don't we?

But, they (whoever they are) can't stop us from looking back to other years, other parades, other Memorial Day observances.

In The Herald's files is a program from Manchester's 1880 Memorial Day Observance and Parade.

It was only 15 years after the end of the Civil War and the program names Drake Post G.A.R. (Grand Army of the Republic) and Citizens of Manchester as the sponsors.

Rutherford B. Hayes was president of the United States and Charles B. Andrews of Litchfield was governor of Connecticut. Manchester's population was about 6,400. The "Roll of Honor" listed 50 soldiers of Manchester who lost their lives in the Civil War.

The parade, called the procession then, left from Cheney Hall on Hartford Rd. at 4 p.m. and proceeded directly to East Cemetery, where, after the graves of soldiers were decorated, the formal exercises were held.

In the order of march were the parade marshal and his aides, mounted on horses; the Cheney Band; a unit from the Connecticut National Guard; members of Drake Post D.A.R.; a carriage with the orator of the day, the Rev. Alex R. Thompson of Brooklyn, N.Y.; a carriage with the Manchester clergy; town selectmen and other town officials in carriages and "children of the public schools."

After the exercises at East Cemetery, the procession retraced its route, halting at the Soldier's Monument in Center Park. Flowers were placed at the foot of the statue, to honor Manchester soldiers buried in the South. The Cheney Band sounded the Requiem. The services were ended.

The parades are longer, the bands more numerous and the population greater but, the spirit and the meaning of Memorial Day is still the same. Perhaps we should be thankful only the date of the observance has changed.

"It is altogether fitting and proper that we do this....."

Same School Budget Sent To Special Town Meeting

VERNON
BARBARA RICHMOND
 Attempts to further reduce the Vernon Board of Education budget and attempt to restore some of the cut failed at a special town council meeting Thursday. The budget, rejected last week at the annual town meeting, will go back to a special meeting June 5 with the same $8,321,000 figure.

This figure represented a compromise cut. The Town Council first asked the school board to reduce its budget by $450,000. Following a public hearing, the council agreed to change this figure to $338,000. The vote at the annual meeting was almost 2-1 against the education budget but the general government budget passed with little comment.

At last night's meeting, Republican Councilman James McCarthy, who made the original motion for the $450,000 cut, said, "I know this is going to sound repetitive but I would like to amend the motion to call for approval of an $8,459,000 budget." This would be a reduction of the $450,000.

He commended the elimination of the $450,000 to taking $33.80 from someone who had $850 and asking them if they could get along without it.

He said he feels the school board and the administrators are extremely capable and could adjust to the cut without cutting programs.

Councilman Thomas Dooley, one of the four Democrats on the council, said there were two things made clear at the annual meeting. He said the voters had accepted the proposed budget or reduced it, but they elected not to do either. He said they rejected it because they want it increased.

He said, "It's been said that the attendance at the annual meeting was not representative of the people. (At that meeting most of those present were associated with the school system.) Well maybe they were not but they are the ones who cross them off as not counting because they happened to be teachers and to have a vested interest in the budget."

He said he feels it is irresponsible for the council to send the budget back the same as it was with a further cut. He said, "It's a let 'em eat cake attitude. Jam it down their throats again."

Dooley questioned what will happen if the budget is turned down again, saying, "This is not an endurance contest."

Dooley then called for an amendment to McCarthy's amendment and there was some disagreement as to whether this is allowed. It was decided it could be done but Dooley agreed to wait until a vote was taken on McCarthy's amendment.

This amendment was defeated in an 8-2 vote with two council members absent. Dooley then moved to amend the budget to $8,459,000 which would be just $200,000 less than the original request. He cautioned if this happens there will be a sizeable increase in the mill rate.

Thomas Bennett charged the school board with "turning the matter into a political football for yourself." He called on McCarthy to sit down with William Houle, school board chairman, to resolve the matter.

McCarthy said he did talk with Houle and the $338,000 cut he recommended after talking with him.

The mayor said, however, he would not be in favor of cutting the budget further as he fears there may be a couple of areas such as adult education and driver education which the state may not fund and another cut might make it necessary to cut these programs.

A motion was then taken on Dooley's amendment and it was defeated in a 7-3 vote with the three Democrats present voting for it. The original resolution to reduce the budget with the same figure passed 7-3 with the Democrats voting against this time.

Council Okays South Windsor Bike Route

Judy Kuehnel
Correspondent

The Town Council has decided to go along with a South Windsor Mass Transit Commission plan to establish a 22-mile bicycle route here.

The plan, not to be confused with a bike path which is separated from a highway, would consist of more than 100 signs bearing the slogan "Bike Route" throughout town.

Also being considered by the Town Council is the proposed lighted softball field.

The local Jaycees have told the council that lights, poles, and fencing around a softball diamond will cost about $2,000, with the Jaycees providing the labor free of charge.

The council is still undecided which field it wishes to convert into the town's first lighted softball field.

Other Matters
 Other matters confronting the council include the Avery Brook spillway project, which is to go out to bid soon. It will go to bid with Phase II of the Avery Brook Improvements Program.

Phase I, which started last year, includes concrete embankments along the frequently flooding brook. Phase II will continue that program.

The spillway will consist of a retention area which controls the amount of flow of the brook, near Peach Tree Lane.

A Year Away
 Town officials estimate a new Firehouse One is about one year away from being constructed.

The council has asked Town Manager Terry Sprinkel to consider two sites for the new facility on Ellington Rd.

One site is directly across from the present firehouse, the second further down Ellington Rd.

Also being looked at as a possible building to convert into a firehouse is a vacant structure on Pleasant Valley Rd., near Rt. 5. The 5,000-square-foot building has two garage bays and once served as an office building.

The council will consider Mayor Robert Smith's request that $4,600 be spent for preliminary architectural plans for the new firehouse.

No Opposition Heard To Zoning Variances

HEBRON

Correspondent
 228-3267

There was no opposition to two applications heard Wednesday night by Hebron's Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA).

Ernest J. Reed of Bolton was seeking variances for three building lots on Rt. 66 and Burrows Hill Rd. The lots have just 50 feet of frontage each, and town zoning regulations call for 150 feet of frontage.

The second application came from Salvatore V. Rinaldi of East Hartford, who was seeking a variance to build on a 1.75-acre lot on Old Stonehouse Rd. The lot is in an R-2 zone.

The ZBA went into executive session to consider the applications; the board will notify applicants of the decisions soon.

Cost Figures Misleading

We get a little uneasy when figures start getting tossed about with abandon.

The other day, U.S. Rep. William Colter of the First District, issued a statement alleging the tariff and other duties imposed by President Ford would cost Connecticut $60 million.

That figure makes good headlines in these days of economic slowdown but is, we are afraid, a bit misleading.

First, we agree the new tariff could cost $60 million if Connecticut doesn't use less petroleum products than it does now.

Second, Nutmeggers could be paying $60 million more because of the tariff and perhaps another $60 million because of a widely anticipated foreign oil price increase.

Third, we could be paying $60 million more if we continue our heavy reliance on petroleum products as we say, opposed to coal, because under either the President's plan for ending domestic price controls or the Democratic congressional plan of a tax to encourage conservation, oil is going up.

What Rep. Colter and some of his brethren seem to want to forget is that the energy program this state and nation needs is not a program to ration Connecticut or the nation's petroleum products for energy, but to encourage conservation, oil is going up.

The consumer has his options. He can continue to use, and waste, as much petroleum products as he wants but he will pay for it either at the fuel pump, in a tax on inefficient uses of energy, or both.

The politician who tries to hold out to his constituents the hope that Connecticut should have petroleum subsidies because we are so dependent on this one fuel is unrealistic. Such subsidies would directly contradict the whole intent of a national energy program.

Rep. Colter is wrong in saying the President's proposals will cost $60 million. The fact of the matter is that the cost will be only what we, individually and collectively, are willing to pay.

If gasoline goes up three cents a gallon and you are now paying 60 cents, this is a five per cent increase. If you cut your gasoline usage five per cent, you don't spend any more. That's the game of conservation.

If gasoline goes up another few cents and you can't cut your gallonage anymore, you start considering the purchase of a car which will give you better mileage. That's the name of the more efficient consumption game.

If gasoline goes up a 38 per cent mile gallon car, your starting cost with transit. That's the name of the alternate modes of the transportation game.

And finally, if neither the administration or Congress can develop an effective national energy policy within the next few months, we should start looking for someone who will. That's the name of the political game.

No, we are not alarmed at the possible $60 million President Ford's energy proposals might cost us in Connecticut. At least it is an attempt to come to grips with the problem.

We are not mathematically inclined but while Congress has been debating an energy plan since last March, gasoline prices have gone up and no one to our knowledge has protested how much this has cost.

Before becoming too cost conscious about energy proposals, we should remember the heavy price we are now paying because we didn't have a national energy policy before the Arab embargo and how much it will cost us if we don't have one by the next one.

The North Koreans, with its torture and imprisonment of Captain Bucher and his crew.

But the primary objective is perhaps overwhelmed by their greater contribution to their nation and to all peace loving countries whose shipping and commerce and people may travel without fear of harassment, or capture or worse by dictatorial powers.

Their decisive action came at a time when the United States had completed withdrawal from Indochina. There was much doubt in Asia, Europe and the Middle East of the ability of the United States to act forcefully. There was great doubt as to the will of the American people to take a stand. Even our system of government was suspected to a basic inability to cope with flare-ups which required immediate action.

That misapprehension has been shown false. It is no small deed and accomplishment to have taken part in an action which has enhanced the stature of your nation to the other countries of the world, both friends and potential adversaries.

No, the men of the military forces of the United States who took part in the recovery of the Mayaguez, upholding the principle of freedom of the seas and demonstrating that their country and countrymen cannot be treated with disrespect, did not act in vain.

LEE RODERICK

A Statesman For All Seasons

BEIRUT, LEBANON — "There is a moral crash throughout the world. This is the greatest problem facing the United States and Western Europe and the whole world. You cannot in your country, and we cannot here, allow this trend to continue without certain moral and spiritual and human catastrophe befalling you and befalling us."

Charles Habib Malik, seated in an arm chair in his comfortable house on the subject "on which I spend practically all my time." The world renowned Lebanese philosopher and statesman had arrived one hour late for our interview, having come directly from conferring with President Salim Frangieh about a growing national crisis.

"Secondly, the churches should rise to heights of leadership and challenge and conviction and suffering completely unprecedented probably in the whole history of the church to be able to stem this moral rot."

"Thirdly, and in a sense as important as the other two, is the university. The problem starts in a home and in the university. Universities, so far as Christian values are concerned, so far as real moral standards are concerned, are in total decay."

Malik explained that, "I can take as examples the very best textbooks that are being used in America today. In the great disciplines which form the character — philosophy, sociology, history, literature, art — I can show that the greatest men in the American tradition, the greatest men in the Western tradition, would not agree with the points of view that are being presented in these character forming, fundamental, intellectual and spiritual disciplines in the university."

"Christ, values, truth, honesty, nobility, to the university and how to defeat the socialism and relativism and a myriad other 'isms' which are gnawing at the very heart of the human soul in the Western university is to me probably the greatest single problem facing the world today."

Reflections On Oil

NEW YORK CITY — Musing on the news, which is the occupational disease of a commentator, the wonder is not that the nation and the world are in a mess but that they survive at all.

Take the energy problem as a case history. It seems all but certain that the OPEC oil cartel will stick the rest of the world with another price increase probably in the early fall. The Shah of Iran, whom the Arab instigators of the cartel use as their economic emissary to the West, says it is because of the price inflation in Western countries. Given the role of the energy crisis in producing and sustaining the inflation, that argument has to be one of the cruelest — and crudest — jests of history.

There was a fancy theory kicking around the past year that the conditions were at hand for price stability in oil, and that we could tuck ourselves in, lapped in sweet dreams of safety. If the price were to rise too sharply it would bring new oil fields into operation, and thus undercut the value of the Arab oil reserves. If it were to fall too sharply it would knock some of the marginal new oil fields out of exploration and exploitation. Hence Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's reported policy of favoring not only a price ceiling for oil but also a price floor. Presumably you had that wonder of wonders, a self-correcting oil-price mechanism.

Alas, the whole business has proved to be only an illusory security blanket. The Arab oil producers evidently don't take very seriously the vaunted Project Independence. While they don't exactly have a cash-flow problem, as Mayor Abraham Beame does in New York City, they certainly prefer to have the sweet bird of cash in their own hands rather than two such birds in a distant bush. Doubtless also, the Geneva conference looming ahead, they were not averse to having us know that they can still put on the oil pressure.

President Ford has some sort of energy policy. To slap on an extra import fee on oil coming in from abroad, and to ease the flow of oil at home by decontrolling it. Alas, it is only the faintest echo of what was once the roar of a noisy — if not very brilliant — policy for energy crisis survival.

The fact is that the pressure groups in the United States are against having an energy policy at all. Both business and labor fear a tough policy toward the oil cartel, which would mean higher gas prices — dollar-a-gallon gas by next year or the year after — would jolt the economy back into the depression from which it seems to be emerging. The labor movement as a whole favors a punitive tax on big gas-guzzling cars, while the autoworkers union gets panicky at the very thought of it.

If anyone thinks — as some political commentators seem to — that the two-party system is the salvation of the American democracy, he might consider the attitudes of both parties toward the energy crisis. The Ford Administration has to do its assigned role-playing, of seeming to push a hard line, but if you ask any of the Republican Party leaders, their heart just isn't in it. They know they won't win any votes by being tough on energy.

Nor is there a single Democratic candidate for President — not even Sen. Henry Jackson (D-Wash.) — who thinks there is any advantage in it for him. So the congressional Democratic majority takes the easier way, and goes home for a holiday, and I doubt whether a single congressman from either party will lose any sleep because he hasn't heard of a notion what to do about energy.

Is the State Department better off on this score? A little, but not much. Secretary Kissinger has been over the lot in his oil policy. At one point he talked darkly of the survival imperative — the right of a sovereign nation to take any necessary steps to keep from being strangled by the denial of oil. He even said that a forcible takeover of the oil fields was not excluded. At the same time the two Mideast powers — aside from Israel — who are closest to the United States are Iran and Saudi Arabia, and they are also the beneficiaries of the same military force against the oil fields. And while most of them pay at least lip service to the proposition that America cannot allow its foreign policy to be shaped by the Mideast oil powers, the fact is that they have neither the plan for opposing it nor the will to carry out the plan. The best oil nations know it. And knowing it, they raise the price of oil with impunity.

WASHINGTON — Just before Congress took one of its frequent vacations, the House offered an example of the kind of personal legislation that causes plain folks across the land to pepper columnists with bitter attacks on politicians — especially those in Washington.

After more than an hour of floor debate, the House defeated, 292 to 148, a Republican attempt to kill the Administration Committee's approval of a $10-million increase in members' staff and other personal allowances. That $10-million boosted to a neat $668-million the budget for House operating expenses and funds for the government Printing Office and General Accounting Office.

On the same day, the Labor Department released two morsels of news which came as no surprise to working stiffs in private industry. The pace of inflation, it seemed, had quickened in April. And the purchasing power of the average worker's paycheck fell one-tenth of 1 per cent and was 4.1 per cent below a year ago, despite increases in the work week and average hourly earnings.

So what else is new? So the U.S. Bureau of Economic Analysis announced that the average person in the Washington metropolitan area — where the principal industry is government — is paid at least $6,491 a year, a per capita income 29 per cent higher than the national average. Clearly, the Federal bureaucracy is still taking care of its own.

Although the debate in the House on the money grab was led by Republicans, it was a Democrat who made the most trenchant point in trying to stem the spending spree. He is Phil Landrum of Georgia, who has been a member of Congress for 22 years and who just might have a sharper insight into the thinking of the non-governmental taxpayer.

Addressing his remarks to freshmen Congressmen who have been demanding more expensive money, Landrum put it bluntly: "You knew what the salary and allowances were when you ran for office. Then he added a reminder seldom heard on Capitol Hill. 'It is time,' Landrum said, 'that members ought to recognize that they are as representatives of the people and we're not here to get what we can out of it in the way of financial gain.'"

When in 1819 the Crown-appointed governor of the Jamestown, Virginia colony admitted incompetence, he was instructed to select two men from each borough to form a government. The men named themselves the House of Burgess and came to be the first self-governing body in America. Burgess was to be elected "by the inhabitants." Because an inhabitant was never properly defined, it came to mean he was a taxpayer or an able-bodied male over 16, and servants, free and indentured. The colony got used to popular franchise — unheard of in voting England where property had to be owned. The World Almanac reports:

Canned Tuna and Vegetables Plentiful

By JEANNE LEMM, UPI Food Editor. Tuna fish sandwiches and vegetable salads may be among the few bargains around in coming weeks, according to UPI's regular survey of basic foods.

Canned tuna inventories are more than twice as large as normal, says the National Marine Fisheries Service. As a result, many markets are featuring a two for $1 special on the standard 6 1/2-ounce can, which usually retails for about 69 cents. A spokesman said canned tuna will continue to be an exceptionally good buy all summer.

Canners' stocks of green and peas are about double their levels of a year ago, says the U.S. Department of Agriculture in its monthly food marketing alert for June. Beets are up 200 per cent, sweet potatoes, 171 per cent, spinach, 126 per cent and sauerkraut, 50 per cent.

The retail price of eggs was declining in a few cities, but with June production expected to be only adequate, and a per cent below that of last June.

Meat prices in Buffalo, Cheyenne, Cincinnati and Pittsburgh featured specials this week of 49 cents a dozen for grade-A large eggs, 10 cents below the base price of March 19. The high of 88 cents in Boston was 15 cents less than the $1.03 base price in Honolulu.

News for meat eaters was less good, especially in New York City, where the cost of feeding a family of four jumped 1.3 per cent last week. The meat category, especially beef and pork, rose 3.1 per cent in the 36-item market basket compiled weekly by the city's consumer affairs department.

The price reached almost their high levels of August, 1973. Ground chuck ranged from 59 cents a pound in Cheyenne and Los Angeles to $1.39 in Boston. The Boston price, however, was 20 cents below last week's high in New York, but 40 cents more than the base price of last March 19.

Wicks Retiring as Scoutmaster

Ruel Wicks of 87 Glenwood St., scoutmaster of Boy Scout Troop 47 since 1969, has retired as scoutmaster but will remain with the troop as senior advisor.

He will go to Lake of Isles Scout Reservation with the troop this summer as he has done every year for the past 10 years.

Troop 47 honored Wicks Tuesday night at its Court of Honor. He was presented with a director's chair with his name on it to replace a rather broken one he used on camping trips.

He had to leave that troop as his job required him to work nights. He then became involved in girl scouting with his daughter, Diane, became a Brownie and his wife, Kitty, became a leader.

Wicks joined the Boy Scouts as a boy in 1929 in New Haven and attained the rank of Life Scout in 1964. He moved to Manchester and joined Troop 47 at St. Mary's Episcopal Church as an assistant explorer advisor and then as explorer advisor.

Rachel Rd. Parents Plan Children's Day

Rachel Rd. parents have planned a children's day on their street for Saturday beginning at 9 a.m. A bicycle decoration contest will also be held for children aged 5 to 5. Other events include road races, a bike obstacle course, bean bag toss, three-legged race, wheelbarrow race, and more. There are prizes for everyone, said the leaders of the plans, Mrs. Barbara Washington and Mrs. Peggy Hampson. They expect a large turnout for the day based on responses to their requests for help. Eagles Bow To Bulkeley

By Doug Oviatt. Ending its baseball season on a sour note yesterday was Hartford. Five Eagle errors in the eighth inning opened the door for four Bulldog runs. "By far, that was the most embarrassing and most lackluster display of baseball that I have ever witnessed here," Eagle Coach Jim Penders angrily noted. "It's an awful way to end the season and most discouraging simply because of total lack of effort and pride on our part. A team that is 15-2 and shooting for a state championship should never lose to a team with a losing record that is playing its last game comprised of primarily jayvee events as we did and the season and most discouraging simply because of total lack of effort and pride on our part. Yesterday's loss ends the Eagles' four-game winning streak and pegs their final mark at 15-3. The setback however, is not counted towards tournament qualification, the deadline Wednesday. East wasted no time scoring in the first inning. Dan Socha singled up the middle, Mark McMahon walked and Tom Miles singled down the leftfield line bringing home Socha. The Eagles held on to the one-run lead until the seventh inning when Bulkeley came through with two markers. With one out, Paul Ciotto was hit by a pitch by losing pitcher Steve Pierson. After Ciotto stole second, Mike Walton walked and Dave Gradante singled to left playing Ciotto and moving Walton to second. After Bill Manzi singled moving Walton, Penders lifted Pierson, bringing in Keith Lamb, who struck out Bob Gerena to end the frame. Bulkeley went through, however, adding four runs in the eighth. Tim Canuso reached safely on an error by shortstop Socha, and took second on a passed ball. Marty Crane bunted back to the mound but Lamb's peg to first went wild with Canuso scoring and Crane going to second. Ciotto singled to right advancing Crane to third and the latter scored as catcher Tim Charlebois attempted pickoff of Crane sailed into left, Ciotto taking second on the lay. Pete Poliski reached safely on a fielder's choice and Walton singled driving in Ciotto. Manzi singled to shallow right bringing in the final marker. Miles collected two of East's five hits with Mike Furlong's 14-game hitting streak ended, going hitless four times. East now awaits word of pairings and rankings in the State Tournament, which will be announced Tuesday. East is in the Class B Division.

The local entry topped Bristol, 5-4 at St. Thomas. Fire-balling John Seratine was cruising along with a shutout until the Bell Touters exploded for four runs in the seventh inning. Seratine needed relief help in the final inning from veteran Pete Sala. The latter got out the only man he faced to preserve the win. Mike McDonald led the runs in the seventh inning. Seven different Bristol players collected one hit each. Five of the blows came in the last at bats. Kevin Kellner took the loss, allowing just six hits. FRIDAY, MAY 31, 1975

50's Hop Tonight

Tonight, at 7:30 o'clock in the Clarke Arena, the Nitty-Fifties Band returns. Last March, the group played at Manchester High's most successful dance in years. More than 1,000 people flocked to see the greatest-up group singing and dancing. Hundreds managed to dance the night away and have a thoroughly good time themselves, rocking to the great music of the 50's, which is especially suited to dancing.

The group, composed of eight Manchester High School students and two MHS grads, have enjoyed a rapidly-growing career, beginning with the November Talent Show, and blossoming into the March Dance, which was sponsored by the Round Table Singers, of which many of the boys are members. Since then, they have been playing at high school dances and nightclubs. But tonight, they return to MHS in all their greasy splendor.

Dave Romano Elected SA President

Thursday, May 22, the student body of MHS elected Dave Romano as president of the Student Assembly for the 1975-76 school year. The five candidates were allowed to present their platform at an all-school assembly the previous Tuesday. They were Keith Costa, Tom Ferguson, Tom Grakowsky, Mike Granato, and Dave Romano.

The vocalists are Eric Mann, Jon Adams, Brian Beggs, Neil Snuffer and Bill Matthews. The group, which was sponsored by the Round Table Singers, of which many of the boys are members. Since then, they have been playing at high school dances and nightclubs. But tonight, they return to MHS in all their greasy splendor.

Debaters Second

The MHS Debating Team closed out its season with an impressive showing in the State Championships at Southern Connecticut State College. Held May 17, the activities revolved around all-day debating between Connecticut schools. Nine other teams from around the state competed. The question debated centered around the method of selection of presidential and vice presidential candidates. They have been arguing this topic throughout the year.

Back in Town

The young rowdies who go by the name of the "Nitty Fifty Boys" have been reported in the press. They are expected to appear at the MHS gym tonight, from 7:30 to 10:30. The alleged rowdies in the car are (left to right), Jon "Jonny Vaseline" Adams, Terry "The Tiger" Sullivan, Brian "Beggie" Beggs, Charlie "Speedo" Uzanas, Mitch "Youngster" Dul, Mike "The Spike" Armentano, and Eric "Rocco" Mann. Steve "Greas'd Lightning" Armentano and Bill "Bubba" Matthews are shown leaning on the hood. "Squealin' Neal" Snuffer is leaning on the door. (Photo by Sweetnam)

Rock Review

Jon Mitchell. Court and Spark. Since this year is coming to a close and I've neglected the weaker sex a year, I think it's time to recognize the most consistent and successful women, and I came up with Carol King, Jon Mitchell, Roberta Flack, and Aretha Franklin. The decision was tough but when I considered the word, "artist" I immediately picked Jon Mitchell. My favorite (and probably the most popular) of her albums is "Court and Spark."

Students Feted At Banquet

Thursday night, May 22, was the date for the Merit Awards Banquet. The ceremony was held in the MHS cafeteria. The program is designed to honor those students who have distinguished themselves in various school clubs, and whose advisors have designated them as award winners. The Student Assembly sponsors this event. It includes a banquet dinner and the presentation of awards.

Head For Tourney

One of MHS's sports teams which has been doing extremely well, although lacking recognition, is the girl's softball team. The maidens presently boast a 7-3 record in the CCIL and are in a three-way tie for second place, with two games left to play.

Crafts For Sale

Several art classes at MHS will be sponsoring a crafts show on June 6, from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. Both pottery and metalworking classes will be exhibiting their work on sale. The sale will take place by the exits near the teachers' parking lot. There's sure to be some fine work on sale, so check out the crafts sale on June 6.

Profile: Michael Lombardo

Michael Lombardo was born on March 1, 1957. He attended Keeney Street School, Bennett High, and then came to Manchester High. He will attend Brown University this fall. Lombardo was co-captain of the soccer team and is presently a co-captain of the track team. He is vice president of the soccer team, and is presently a co-captain of the track team.

Berry's World

"Help him in college shortly." His favorite activity in school has been playing on the soccer team, and his favorite hobbies at home include camping and making bike trips. In spare time, Mike says he tries his best to stay away from school. It fits its good points, like being closed on weekends and holidays. He then adds, "Seriously, it ranks among the best in the state, but one of the main weaknesses in the school is that there are too many Bozos who don't care."

The bidding has been: 30
Diamonds: South's best friend
We could save a lot of energy at the bridge table if players would just think about the right things instead of the wrong ones.
South won the heart lead in dummy and promptly lost a spade finesse. West led a second heart. South, played dummy's jack of spades and then thought about the club suit. How could he play it to avoid the loss of two tricks?
The answer is that with clubs breaking 4-3 and the honors split there was no way for South to play clubs and avoid letting the defense score two club tricks against him. Actually South led dummy's jack. East covered with the king and West was sure of tricks with his queen and nine.
If South had just thought about ways to avoid having to play clubs he would have won both energy and his contract. All he had to do was lead a...

GARDENING

By FRANK ATWOOD

The lilac I chose to photograph was about seven feet high, not fully grown, but covered with full bunches of fragrant pale lavender florets. The park department of Monroe County, New York, which includes the city of Rochester, had developed the new variety but not yet chosen a name for it.

They should label it soon because it could get lost in a hillside planting of 1,600 lilacs of 550 varieties, all the way from old-timers 20 feet tall and 50 years old to tiny newcomers putting out their blossoms for the first time.

The parks of Rochester were a goal for members of the Connecticut Horticultural Society on their annual out-of-state bus tour, this time in New York State, with 24 people on the bus. There is perhaps no show of lilacs on the Eastern Seaboard that rivals Rochester's.

The park system was started, we learned, in 1888. Much later, the city parks ran short of funds, somebody persuaded the authorities of Monroe County, which includes the city, to take them over.

Vandalism Deplored
The parks do very nicely under county management but on the way home I read an editorial in a Rochester paper deploring littering and vandalism in the parks and calling on the courts to make an example of some miscreant by a stiff fine.

The Highland Park lilacs escape damage perhaps because they are on a slope facing a main travelled way where there are street lights and offering an unobstructed view to any patrolman in a police car.

One of the names associated with the street of the park system through a gift of land is George Eastman, founder of the Eastman Kodak Co., one of the mainstays of Rochester industry. Through another family, but for different reasons, the parks acquired a fine and spacious residence which has become a Garden Center, where classes are held, there is a good horticultural library, and volunteers are recruited to do much of the hoeing and weed-pulling that would have to be paid for, otherwise, with public funds.

The house, whose owners had developed their own nice gardens, sold the property to a doctor who used it as a sanatorium but lost it to the city, which let the park department have it as a headquarters.

Volunteer Workers
We found three men, all retired, members of the Rochester Men's Garden Club, and one lady who told us she belongs to no garden club but just likes to work with plants, all industriously digging without pay. There would be another crew the next day. They told us there is no paid help at the Garden Center. The librarians and clerks are also volunteers. Anyone who wants all the privileges of the Garden Center pays $3 a year in dues. A secret of all this enthusiasm could be the personality of the superintendent of parks, Alvan R. Grant. On his own time and at his own suggestion, he met our group at the Garden Center the evening we arrived in Rochester. He sat on the lecture table and told us about the parks. Then he showed slides, including some of litter and the results of vandalism.

Hybrid lilac, now unnamed, is one of 1600 lilac bushes in remarkable planting at Highland Park in Rochester, N.Y. There are 550 varieties. The park was one of the beauty spots on a recent bus tour by members of the Connecticut Horticultural Society. (Atwood photo)

Nearby we visited Miss Helen Ellwanger, now in her nineties, whose grandfather was a pioneer nurseryman and gave the land for Highland Park. She pointed through the window at a towering blue spruce which she said was the first brought to the East from the Rocky Mountains.

The home of George Eastman has flowers around the outside, but is of more interest to photographers. It is a museum of cameras and methods of developing pictures, from the old tintypes to modern movie making. Mr. Eastman made his first million dollars on the old Brownie box camera. He was 51 when he built the mansion which is now the museum and which he gave to the University of Rochester.

It was a five-day trip, with four nights in motels. Our first two-night stop was in Ithaca, at Cornell University. Of interest to me at Cornell was a greenhouse display of several hundred large coleus plants with red leaves, the Cornell color, grown to decorate the stage at commencement exercises to be held in a few days.

In a genetics laboratory we saw plants being grown from tiny bits of tissue, sometimes as small as a single cell. The tissue may come from a root, a leaf or even a flower petal, and under proper conditions of light, temperature, humidity and available food elements can reproduce an entire plant. A practical application that may develop some day, a scientist said, is to grow beans under this controlled environment which would be completely free of virus disease. Beans, he reminded us, are one of the staple food crops of the world but are often damaged by disease.

Plant breeders looking for improved strains can in the laboratory get billions of new plants and compared to the thousands that can be reproduced by conventional methods.

Gardner Summer Job Case Goes to Court Wednesday

The state attorney general and the head of the Connecticut community college system have been summoned to court to show why James W. Gardner, an English lecturer at Manchester Community College, shouldn't retain his job.

Gardner, who has taught at MCC since 1969, was notified

April 16 by college administrators that his annual contract wouldn't be renewed. MCC President Ronald Denison didn't give Gardner a reason for his dismissal, and Denison rejected Gardner's grievance.

Gardner's attorney, Robert Hirtle of Hartford, sought an injunction in the Court of Common Pleas, and Judge Thomas Corrigan agreed to sign a "show cause order" Wednesday.

The order was delivered today to state Atty. Gen. Carl Ajello and Dr. Searle Charles, chairman of the Board of Trustees of Regional Community Colleges. The papers set a court hearing next Wednesday, at 10 a.m. in Hartford, asking Ajello and Charles to show cause why they shouldn't be enjoined from dismissing Gardner from his summer session job at MCC.

The only issue before the court is the summer session post, although Gardner is also seeking to retain his position for MCC's fall semester. The state Board of Trustees separated the two matters, and the fall semester issue is expected to result in a hearing before the board this summer.

Gardner maintains that he should have been given reasons for his dismissal and more time to find another job. Denison has stated that Gardner, as a lecturer, doesn't have to be given reasons nor is there any deadline for dismissal notice.

Gardner also claims that although he is a lecturer, he has been accorded special status at MCC because of his six years of service and because he's been paid at a level higher than lecturer.

Concerning next Wednesday's court hearing, Gardner said today his dismissal from the summer session, which starts in three weeks, is a breach of contract. Gardner's name appears in MCC's summer session catalog, and he had started preliminary work for the session before the dismissal notice.

Gardner has received student and faculty support in the campaign to retain his job. His colleagues have petitioned college officials to rehire Gardner, and students rallied to support him before the spring semester ended.

Correction

The one-way entrance into Lincoln Center's driveway and parking area will be from Main St. at the north side of the building, and NOT the south side, as stated incorrectly yesterday.

Rebekahs Host State Officers

Rebekah State Assembly officers will be guests of Sunset Rebekah Lodge Monday evening at Odd Fellows Hall.

A receiving line for the visiting officers and guests will be at 7:30, and the lodge's regular session will begin at 8.

Among the guests will be Mrs. Mary Carter of Winsted, president of Rebekah Assembly; Miss Kate Roberts of Middletown, vice-president; Mrs. Virginia Firgeleaki of Mystic, Assembly warden; Spencer Collin, grand master of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows of Connecticut, and members of his staff.

Mrs. Ruth Beckwith is in charge of the refreshments. Members of the reception committee are Mrs. Virginia Keeney and Mrs. Ethel Aspinwall. Officers will wear colored gowns.
