Mrs. Schaffer Cites Dividends Of Political Party Work

By BETTY RYDER

Secretary of State Gloria Schaffer told members of the Democratic Women's Club of Manchester Monday night to become more involved in politics. She addressed the club's installation banquet at Manchester Country Club. "Democrat women's clubs especially pay a high dividend in experiences for the time and energies invested. Through these clubs, a woman has a great opportunity to refine her leadership skills, to be an educator for herself and her community, to be a publicist, a fund-raiser and a program planner," she said.

"I do hope more women will decide to translate their civic energies into candidacies. For the first time last fall, the win-rate for women running for places in state legislatures nationally was 50 per cent, the same as for male candidates.

"This means, I think, that there are fewer women officeholders than men not because women can't win votes when they run, but because they choose less often to seek public office," Mrs. Schaffer said.

She cited Gov. Ella Grasso's win for the top post in the State of Connecticut and said, "She won it on her own, not because she was a woman, but because she was the best candidate.

The secretary of the state said her interest in the Bicentennial has grown increasingly and she has become very involved in research of the Revolutionary War Period and the role women played in it.

She stressed the need for clubwomen to actively support the political party of their choice by participating in a political club which offers her the chance to broaden her own political horizons while assisting the candidates she believes best represent her views.

Mrs. Nancy Narden, state president of the Connecticut Federation of Democratic Women's Clubs, installed the club's new officers.

Ozzie Nelson, Radio-TV Star, Dies from Cancer at Age 68

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Ozzie Nelson, who starred with his wife Harriet for 22 years on radio and television after he gained fame as an orchestra leader in the big band era, died at his home today of cancer.

Nelson, 68, had undergone a series of tests more than a year ago, then underwent surgery eight months ago when the malignancy was discovered. He took a turn for the worse a month ago and had been confined to his home since that time.

His wife, whom he married while she was a singer in his band 40 years ago, was with him when he died. Their two sons, David and Rick, had visited him daily.

Nelson was born March 20, 1907, in Jersey City. By age 13 he was the nation's youngest Eagle Scout. He was an all-around athlete at Rutgers University, starring in football and boxing and was an honor student.

While in school he organized a band to play for local dances. He maintained his interest in music while attending New Jersey Law School and a few months after graduation organized an orchestra. He soon became a name band and played most of the important hotels and ballrooms across the country.

Nelson was looking for the right girl to sing with his band when he met Harriet Hilliard. They soon branched out from a touring band to making motion pictures. They also acquired a commercial radio program in which they costarred with the late Joe Penner.

By 1941 they had established themselves as radio, movie and orchestra stars and joined Red Skelton's coast-to-coast radio show. They not only furnished the music for the show but became even more popular personalities in Skelton's comedy skits.

They branched out with their own program "The Adventures of Ozzie and Harriet" on radio that later became a successful television program which also featured their sons.

Garbage Pickup, Paving Fund Hearings Tonight

By DOUG BEVINS

Additional appropriations which would allow twice-a-week garbage pickup through September and paving of E. Middle Tpk. and Keeney St. will be considered tonight in public hearings by the Manchester Board of Directors.

The directors are to meet at 8 at the Municipal Building Hearing Room.

The additional appropriations suggested are $9,500 for continuing the twice-a-week garbage pickup and $60,000 for the paving, which would be financed by state grants.

When directors adopted the 1975-1976 budget, they specified once-a-week garbage pickup as of July 1. The extension of twice-a-week pickup through Sept. 30 is being recommended by Mayor John Thompson.

The $9,500 would be financed from unappropriated surplus, although there have been indications there isn't enough in that account.

The paving of E. Middle Tpk. and Keeney St. would be accomplished soon (probably July) using a new paving method said to be less costly than conventional "black top."

E. Middle Tpk. would be paved from Main St. to Manchester Green, and Keeney St. would be paved from Folly Brook to the Glastonbury town line.

Other public hearing items tonight are a proposed $13,500 allocation to the Social Services Account for the town's General Assistance Program, and $800 for the 1975-1976 Recreation Account, for umpire fees and summer activities.

Unfinished business on tonight's agenda includes appointments to the Commission on Aging, the Human Relations Commission, and Citizens Advisory Committee; consideration of a new sanitary sewer in Lydall St., and authorization for the town to open five savings accounts in area banks.

New business, which probably won't be discussed tonight, includes proposed allocations for a traffic light at Green School, costs of estimating costs for school construction projects, a fire alarm system for the library; authorization for the town to seek assistance for using cable television, and approval of a land exchange near the entrance of Charter Oak Park.

many of the duties envisioned for a deputy chief.

Concerning the police department budget, Weiss said he agreed with Lannan's request for an additional $23,500. Weiss suggested the money be taken from the town's Contingency Account now, or reserve the money in the same account for transfer later in the fiscal year.

In a memo to Weiss last week, Lannan said he can balance the budget but there would be cuts in filling department vacancies, pay for school crossing guards, purchase of new police cruisers, highway painting, and overtime for special events.

Lannan said he would have to delay hiring of four patrolmen until April 1976, which would result in a five per cent reduction of police personnel. The impact, he said, would be that the foot patrol beats downtown would be manned only 20 to 30 per cent of the time, and it would take longer for police to respond to complaints. Lannan said he could affect some budget reductions in accounts of traffic patrol, clerks, and dispatchers if expected federal-state grants are received. But he (See Page Ten)

Ford Climaxes European Trip With Visit With Pope Paul

ROME (UPI) — President Ford stopped off for talks with Pope Paul and the leaders of NATO partner Italy today enroute home from a European trip his aides called "extremely successful."

Italy's President Giovanni Leone reassured Ford his nation — the anchor of NATO's Mediterranean front — supports a strong and unified Western alliance.

Ford flew to Rome for a 10-hour stopover from Salzburg, Austria, where he held two days of cordial and encouraging talks on Middle East peace prospects with Egypt's President Anwar Sadat.

The President looked refreshed as he arrived with Mrs. Ford aboard Air Force One, but he seemed to favor the trick knee that caused him to tumble down the airplane ramp in Salzburg. He descended slowly from his plane at Rome's Ciampino Airport and clutched the guidrails with both hands.

Ford flew to Leone's Quirinale palace for talks with the chief of state and Prime Minister Aldo Moro by helicopter — thus avoiding the massive traffic jams caused by security precautions laid on for his visit.

Police blocked off the entire Quirinale Hill — one of the seven hills of Rome — to traffic. Drivers caught up in the resulting jams shouted abuse at police, shook their fists and honked their horns.

At a ceremony in the sunny gardens of the Quirinale, former home of Popes and one of Europe's grandest palaces, Ford saluted the "extraordinary ties of friendship and kinship" which link Italy and the United States.

Leone praised Ford for his work in rallying NATO to new unity at the Brussels summit last week.

"The Brussels summit rightly reaffirmed that security for everyone is a vital need for all," Leone said in his greeting to Ford.

"A united and strong Europe would have a role of great importance to play in these essential problems."

On the flight from Salzburg, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger told reporters Ford's European trip yielded rich foreign policy dividends.

"It was an extremely successful trip," Kissinger said. "It gave new sense, vitality and direction to NATO. Uncertainty has been eliminated.

"The talks with Sadat were a new step toward peace."

Ford had 10 hours of talks and ceremonial affairs scheduled in Rome before flying on to Washington in the evening.

Italy's strategic importance within NATO has increased with the political turmoil that clouds the alliance status of NATO's other south-flank nations — Turkey, Greece and Portugal.

The U.S. Sixth Fleet is based in Naples and American warships use various Italian ports frequently.

In his talk with the Pope, Ford was also expected to resume his exploration of Middle East policy with a review of the Roman Catholic church's position on the holy places which have been occupied by Israel since the 1967 war.

Ford's European trip, the first he has made to the continent as President, included a two-day NATO summit meeting in Brussels and a one-day visit to Madrid in addition to the Salzburg meeting with Sadat.

Tonight the President flies to Washington to begin preparing for the next stage in his peace effort, a meeting with Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin June 11-12.

Sadat headed for Athens and talks with Greek Premier Constantine Caramanlis en route home to Cairo.

Ford's meetings with Sadat produced promises of American economic aid for Egypt, strong indications of an upcoming effort to obtain a second Egyptian-Israeli disengagement and an invitation to Ford to visit Cairo.

Secret Senate Session Asked on Missile Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Thomas J. McIntyre, D-N.H., called today for a rare secret session of the Senate to discuss what he called a Pentagon policy shift that would give the Soviets a motive to attack U.S. missiles.

"We are faced with a dramatic move from a nationally agreed-upon consensus that would put the weight of our policy behind stopping nuclear war, to doctrines and technologies designed to fight limited nuclear wars," he said. "This dramatic shift in policy has gone virtually unnoticed."

McIntyre said he wanted the Senate to hear for itself secret testimony which he said will show there is "no military justification" to spend billions of dollars to create a nuclear counterforce that could penetrate the toughest silos protecting other nations' missiles.

McIntyre said the Senate military research and development subcommittee he chairs has been examining the "counterforce" proposal of Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger for months.

"The record is clear that the Pentagon has offered no military justification for these dangerous nuclear war fighting technologies and the Senate should have the benefit of this secret testimony," he said.

"The facts are these nuclear war fighting technologies would actually diminish our national security. In time of crisis the Soviets would have a positive motive to attack our own missiles because they would be seen as a threat to their own missile force," McIntyre said.

"For years we've understood the key to nuclear peace has been that both sides would feel secure that their own retaliatory force could survive any possible attack from the other side," he said.

McIntyre said Schlesinger was proposing "fighting technologies which are distracting us from our real national security needs, which are to secure the survivability of our own deterrent force no matter what the Russians might do."

Use of CATV Channel To Hinge on Funding

By DOUG BEVINS

It appears that Manchester's town government doesn't want to spend any money to take advantage of its access to cable television, but officials are going to seek funding from the state government to use the new medium.

That was the message Monday night from Town Manager Robert Weiss and Asst. Town Manager Charles McCarthy at a local seminar on the potential of cable television, which came to Manchester earlier this year.

The seminar—involving three experts on cable TV—was for the benefit of the town Board of Directors, which is being asked to consider using a governmental access channel provided to the town free by Greater Hartford CATV, the local cable franchiser.

Indications are that the Board of Directors will go along with the idea—sooner or later. They were told Monday night that "sooner" is better, because funding sources may dry up in a couple of years and the free access channel may be discontinued when the Federal Communications Commission reconsiders cable TV policy in 1977.

The seminar, attended by four town directors, dealt mainly with the resources and potential of cable television, which is expected to reach half of the people in Manchester in five years.

But the recurring question at the meeting was the cost of using the government channel, and who'll pay for it.

Vincent King, general manager of Greater Hartford CATV, told directors he'll give the town free access to a cable channel. He said he'll offer advice on how to use it, but he won't produce the programming for the town. He urged officials to use cable TV.

The other two speakers Monday night—Hal Houston of the state Department of Community Affairs and Myron Weiner of the Institute of Public Service—referred to cable television as a tremendous medium to reach townspeople and urged its use.

Both Houston's and Weiner's agencies offer consulting services on how to use cable. Houston also announced the availability of help from a four-college consortium on video, and he said his department is seeking federal grants to pass on to municipalities using cable.

Houston said the Department of Community Affairs has applied for equipment and consulting grants under the federal Community Development Act of 1974. A decision on the application is expected by July 1.

Weiss and McCarthy said they hope the town will go after some of the grant money, but other funding sources will also be attacked.

McCarthy mentioned possible legal ac-

Retirement a Phase of Life, Says Joy, Who is Facing It

By JUNE TOMPKINS
 "Retirement is just another phase of life one has to meet." The gentle spoken man was Nathan S. Joy, who talked leisurely about his experiences as a teacher, a principal, and his thoughts on retirement. Serving as a principal in the Manchester school system since 1952, he will retire at the end of this year.

He called the administration a group of "wonderful teachers." He compared the general knowledge of teaching technique of today with when he began during his teacher training in a small rural school in Maine. There were about 40 students including two pre-primary students in an eight-grade school.

"In those days," he said, "discipline was of a conservative type. We were strict and the parents expected us to maintain that discipline." Joy told of an experience he had with a little boy who misbehaved, and he spanked the child. An experienced co-worker asked if the little boy cried. "No," he said, "he just went back to his desk."

Beginning his reminiscences, he said, "I began with a superb superintendent of schools, Arthur H. Illing, and I am finishing with excellent people in the central office." He called the administration a group of "wonderful teachers." He compared the general knowledge of teaching technique of today with when he began during his teacher training in a small rural school in Maine. There were about 40 students including two pre-primary students in an eight-grade school.

"Today," he said, "we try to look for reasons for misbehavior. We are blessed with a school psychologist and pupil consultants who help us understand and handle disciplinary and emotional situations." The moral and tone fibre of our youth today have created the need for more understanding, said Joy.

Beware of Camel

Mailmen in the United States have difficulty with dogs but things could be worse. Egyptian mailmen complain of being nipped by camels, mailmen in Brazil have been bitten by jaguars, a Tongan island mailman was killed by a shark and Afghanistan had to suspend rural deliveries a few years ago because leopards ate letter carriers.

Council Delays Decision On Teacher Contract

COVENTRY
Town Council members Monday night, first rejected, then tabled action on the teacher salary contract.

The resolution proposed by Steven Marchant puts the board on record as having every intent to take this action even though at this time funds are not available to equip the new building.

The board has been in dispute reconsidered and then the council voted to table the issue until its June 16 meeting.

However, members of the audience questioned the council procedure, saying it hadn't brought up the original motion and couldn't table action already voted upon. The council then voted again to reconsider, after the original motion on rejection and voted to table the issue.

Confusion began Monday night when a motion to reject the contract was offered, the wording necessary for action according to town action option.

Councilman Jesse Brainard favored tabling any action pending a thorough review of the document. Brainard said he wasn't opposed to the contract in general, but seriously concerned about the wording in certain parts of it, particularly sections dealing with conditions for staff reduction and increasing the system's obligations for adult elementary and secondary programs. Without careful review of the implications of the contract, the council would be taking irresponsible action, Brainard said.

When Chairwoman Rose Fowler called for action on the issue, a majority of the council voted to reject the contract and then said they really wanted only to delay action on its acceptance. The action was

Municipal Development Bond Plan Called "Political Cronies Bill"

HARTFORD (UPI) - A bill to let municipalities bond development projects without consulting the public or competitive bidding has been attacked as a "political cronies bonus bill."

Gov. Ella T. Grasso, however, supports the measure, which would help municipalities to acquire, develop, sell, lease and operate real and personal property.

"I think it would help with industrial planning and the stimulation of job opportunities," Mrs. Grasso said. "It is a salutary step."

The governor said public pressure on local government would act as a check to unwarranted bonding projects.

The measure apparently would allow for privately financed development projects, such as a controversial proposal to rebuild Hartford's North End, without consultation of those affected by the decision.

Greater Hartford Process, a private consortium, has proposed a rebuilding of the predominantly black North End in Hartford but it has been opposed on grounds the developers could override the wishes of the black community.

In a letter to the governor, two Republican representatives said the measure would lead to "municipal land development scandals the likes of which have never been known to our citizens or this state."

"You will be giving a favored few the right to take over the role of land financiers and developers with the use of public monies, but without public control," Reps. Alan J. Marzola, R-Willimantic, and Russell L. Post, R-Canton, said.

A project by DevCo, the development arm of Greater

Hartford Process, to build a new community in Coventry was blocked because of local opposition and declining economic conditions.

"It looks as if local municipalities could delegate authority to nonpublic developers and ignore local zoning, wetland and other controls," Post said.

The measure, they said, would give municipalities the power to:

- Acquire, develop, sell, lease and operate real and personal property.
- Determine the selling price of the property regardless of its assessed, real market value.
- Decide who may purchase the land, all by a simple resolution adopted by the local legislative body or its designated representatives without any provision for a public petition for a referendum.
- The proposal allows a town to sell the revenue bonds to provide the purchaser with the price and the money to develop the land.
- "These bonds can be issued, the purchase price determined and the land sold all without public or competitive bidding," the representatives said.
- The measure ignores safeguards instituted to insulate Connecticut's state leasing program from political cronyism, they said.
- "This bill allows for total and complete disregard for local zoning and other statutes designed to protect our towns, its residents and their environment from the abuses of developers," they said.
- The measure also allows towns to exempt the developers as well as lease holders from local property taxes, they said.
- "You will place Connecticut in the unhappy state of corrupt municipal land development scandals the likes of which have never been known to our citizens or this state," the two legislators told the governor.

RECORD TALKERS
NEW YORK (UPI) - Americans are the gabbier people in the world on the telephone, reports an article in a recent issue of the National Enquirer.

In 1973, according to the latest AT&T statistics, an incredible 178.2 billion local phone calls were made in the U.S. The nearest rival was Japan with 45 billion, followed by France (22.6 billion), Canada (18.3 billion), Sweden (15.8 billion), Great Britain (12.7 billion) and West Germany (8.7 billion).

At the bottom of the list was the African nation of Botswana, with only 22,000 local calls.

Family members involved in assisting with the care of diabetics are also encouraged to attend the meetings. There will be no charge. Classes will be Tuesdays and Thursdays through June 24.

Information will be given on diet, medication and hygiene. Each session will include discussion and a question and answer period.

Those planning to attend must register by calling 872-6661, extension 321, weekdays between 9 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

PTO Fair
The Lake Street School PTO will sponsor a fair Saturday on the school grounds from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Students will participate in a bicycle parade starting at 10:30 a.m. at Lake St. and Russell Rd. and ride to the school parking lot where the decorated bikes will be judged and prizes awarded.

An arts and crafts booth will feature many articles suitable for Father's Day gifts. A "Country Store" will sell penny candy as well as home baked goods.

There will be a tag sale and a plant booth, and for the children there will be pony rides, movies, a fun house, games and prizes.

All proceeds will go to the general fund of the PTO.

League Booklet
A booklet, "Who's Who in National, State and Local Politics," will be distributed by the Vernon League of Women Voters at its booth at the Town Charity Jamboree scheduled for June 6 and 7 at the Tri-City Shopping Plaza, Vernon Circle.

This updated booklet offers a complete listing of national, state and local politicians, their mailing addresses and phone numbers.

Early American Crafts Fair Planned

BOLTON
Donna Holland
The Bolton Bicentennial Committee will sponsor an Early American Crafts Fair June 14 in the Bolton High School gymnasium from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m.

Among the craftsmen participating will be Ray Osterland, blacksmith, Agatha Walter, jeweler; Betty Johnson, Joan Dimerski, theorem painters; George Johnson, pewtersmith; Walter Godwin, leather craftsman; Mary Ann Luzzi, woodworker; and leather. Bicentennial crafts by El-Ger-May.

There will be etchings by Emile Brand, corn husk dolls by Kerry Carey and dried arrangements by Pat Rody and Linda Johnston. Colonial furniture will be exhibited by Bolton High School students.

Portraits will be done by artist Ruth Bezanter.

The Bolton Junior Woman's Club will sell homebaked breads, senior citizens will sell cakes, aprons and fresh strawberries.

The Bicentennial Committee will host a refreshment booth and a booth featuring T-shirts. The T-shirts will bear the prize winning design drawn by Martin Ferguson in a contest conducted at Bolton Elementary and Bolton Center School or the inscription "Washington Spent Here" depicting the fact mentioned in some historical accounts that George Washington spent $50 on March 4, 1781 and $346 on March 15, 1781 in Bolton.

Go to Museum
All students in Grade 8 will leave Bolton Center School Wednesday at 8 a.m. for a trip to the Bolton Museum of Science.

The trip is being sponsored by the Bolton Parent Teacher Organization and Bolton Center School. It will be an educational experience for the students as a group.

Included in the day's agenda is a tour of the museum, participation in the planetarium show, and attending a Red Sox baseball game.

The students are expected to return to Bolton Center School about 8 p.m.

Merrifield To Direct Hebron Recreation

Anne Dallaire
Correspondent
228-3267

The Hebron Recreation Commission has appointed Robert Merrifield of Wall St. as summer recreation director for the eight-week program.

Merrifield is a Grade 6 teacher at Gilead Hill Elementary School and been teaching in the system for the past six years.

The commission made its decision after interviewing seven applicants.

The program will run from June 30 through Aug. 22 and will rotate between the Hebron and Gilead Hill Elementary schools.

It will be in session Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Children may bring lunch and eat on the grounds.

More information about the program will be released at a later date.

Colonial Menus
Students at Hebron and Gilead Hill schools will be served a special Colonial menu this week, in keeping with the Colonial Crafts Days.

Monday: Indian baked beans, sliced ham, carrots, corn bread, butter and roll and apple crisp.

Tuesday: Yankee Doodle macaroni, tossed salad, rye bread and butter, pumpkin pie (pumpkin pie).

Wednesday: Cape Cod turkey (baked fish cakes), mashed potato, cole slaw, raisin bread and butter, and ice cream.

Thursday: Turkey (roast turkey), mashed potato, Misticquash (Delaware succotash), and strawberry short cake.

Friday: Salami grinder, carrot and celery sticks, Saratoga chips (potato chips), Joe Froggers (cookies) and an apple.

Dear Abby Cow Breeding Is Off limits

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: This is a question that has bugged me for years. Is it improper for the wife of a dairy farmer to be a breeder of farm animals?

DEAR WIFE: As a grown woman and a partner in the family farming business, you have as much right as your husband to witness any and all aspects of farm life.

DEAR GAZER: Believe me, I understand your problem. Multiply it by a thousand, and you'll have a fairly accurate picture of mine.

DEAR ABBY: Regarding the lady who did not like dirty, four-letter words and signed herself "HUNG UP":

CONFIDENTIAL TO T.S.R. IN MILWAUKEE: You would have about as much success "turning on" a buddhidist or mohammedan to the message of Christ as THEY would have turning YOU on to the message of Buddha or Mohammed.

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 68700, L.A., Calif. 90069.

Members of Oxford Parish Chapter, DAR, will attend the annual DAR day at the Hillside School, Marlborough, Mass., Thursday.

A Parent Effectiveness Training session will be conducted tonight from 7 to 10 in Woodruff Hall of Center Congregational Church.

BETTY'S NOTEBOOK

I always knew I was from the old school—but day by day I'm beginning to realize just how old that old school is.

It's the teen-age jargon that is throwing me off. Last week, my daughter announced (much to my delight) that it was "dress-up" day at school.

Waiting for her to pop down the stairs for breakfast my mind wandered and I thought "Let's see maybe she'll wear the red one it shows off her dark hair so well."

In the popped in a pair of white slacks and a colored tee shirt top. Obviously noticing the surprised look on my face, she said, "What's wrong mom?"

Well it just goes to show you how wrong a mom can be. She quickly informed me that DRESS UP—doesn't mean you DRESS UP—you just don't wear jeans.

Isn't it amazing how the English language changes as the years go by? One of the members let me use his gun, and when they filled the pouch with shells, I really began to feel like Annie Oakley.

With the gun in my hand, 25 shells in the pouch, a vest skimming my knees, I didn't think I could carry the weight through the clubhouse door.

Meanwhile, it was raining out on the range. Undaunted, we lined up and in turn (thank heavens I wasn't first) the riflemen (and this woman) would call "pull!"

So exciting! It'll make up for 20 years of neckties, cufflinks, and golf balls. Pulsar Date/Command, very modestly priced from $285 to $2500.

Everything was fine till this morning and I noticed I have a blue bruise on the shoulder from the slight jolt you get when you discharge the gun. But it was worth it.

Later On "In a thousand years we shall all forget the things that trouble us now."

Blue Monday You've no doubt heard of people who chase fire engines, well Sunday a friend and I followed the sounds of trap shooting and ended up at the Andover Sportsman's Club.

We just stood around and watched and the members invited us to tour the clubhouse—and finally asked if I'd like to try shooting.

I hesitated, but they assured me that they'd show me how to load the gun, the proper stance, safety measures, etc. So I agreed.

Well they came out with a vest with suede on the shoulders (so the gun doesn't give you too much of a jolt). It was beige and nice, but by the time I got my arms into it it was down to my knees.

Well I didn't care—after all it wasn't a fashion show. Next came the leather pouch to carry the shells in and that was strapped around my waist.

Everett Hewitt of Ocala, Fla., received a prize for having traveled the farthest distance to the reunion. Former classmates also attended from Michigan, Kentucky, Georgia, New Jersey, New York and Massachusetts. Loretta Shea Lupachino was awarded a prize for having the most children, 12. Prizes were also awarded to Eva Gollmitzer Bilow and Al Fish for the most grandchildren, 5, and to Harold Hodge for having the youngest child, 1 1/2 years old. Souvenir booklets were arranged by

POLICE REPORT

MANCHESTER
Work by an undercover agent of the Capitol Region Crime Squad this spring resulted in the arrest this morning of a Manchester youth on drug charges.
Richard R. Fuller, 20, of 56 Birch St. walked up to Patrolman Jonathan Schneider on Center St. today at 1:36 a.m. and turned himself in.
Schneider took Fuller to headquarters where he pleaded him with a Common Pleas Court 12 warrant charging him with possession of a controlled substance, possession of a controlled substance, and possession of marijuana.
The charges stem from an alleged sale of speed and an alleged gift of marijuana to an undercover agent in Manchester this spring, police said. Fuller was released on $2,500 surety bond for court June 16.
These breaks and thefts have been reported:
• A Porter St. home Monday morning. Missing is a color TV valued at $300.
• A break into the Washington School on Cedar St. sometime Sunday night. The break was discovered by the school janitor about 7 a.m. today. Entry was gained through a second floor window.
The office was broken into and the safe pried open. The amount missing had not been reported this morning.
• The Jon-Ly Califfers beauty salon at 101 Center St. Missing is $40 in cash from a desk.
• The Redfield Rental firm at 11 Tolland Tpk. Friday. A towable crane was stolen from in front of the firm. It is valued at $350.
• A Cushman Dr. home Saturday night. Missing are a cigarette lighter, some cash and a watch.
• A Downey Dr. apartment Saturday. Missing are two TV sets valued at a total of $472.
• Lloyd's Auto Parts at 191 Center St. Saturday night. Missing are two drive socket sets valued at $66. An attempt was made to open the cash register.
• A Spencer St. apartment Saturday. Missing is a stereo valued at $170.
• A Bush Hill Rd. home and

Litigation Blamed for Joblessness

HARTFORD (UPI) — A study by a highway construction group says 50,000 jobs in Connecticut are unfilled due to lawsuits holding up government funds.
The study released Monday was done by the Road Information Program (TRIP) in Washington, D.C., which is sponsored by the highway building industry. It was requested by the Connecticut Construction Industries Association.
The association has been conducting an intense lobbying drive for the release of federal and state road construction funds, endangered by legal challenges to environmental impact statements required for the projects.
"Progress on $1.3 billion worth of road work in the state is stopped by court orders and administrative delays," TRIP's survey said, including $244 million earmarked for fiscal 1975.
But D.J. Altobelli, division engineer for the Federal Highway Administration's Westernfield bureau, said the court challenges in fact have blocked only two construction projects in the state worth $160 million. The other projects are "in question but not blocked."
TRIP's survey showed the $1.3 billion would fund "58,000 jobs for construction workers and others in Connecticut," and the $244 million would open up nearly 11,000 jobs in the state.
Altobelli said the difference between the $160 million figure he quoted and the $244 million figure in the study was not significant because the study included state highway funds which his figure did not.
He said federal highway funds totaling $900 million over the next five years are in question because of the legal questions over the environmental impact statements.
A spokesman for the Connecticut Construction Industries Association said the $1.3 billion figure was for federal and state grants up to 1982.
He also said some of the 58,000 jobs could be filled by the same workers, moving from finished projects to new ones. He said he could not determine how many actual construction workers would be affected.
The legal questions over the environmental impact statements revolve around which agency draws up the plans. To date, they have been written by state agencies and adopted as their own by federal agencies, but a federal judge recently ruled the federal agencies must conduct their own studies.
The Connecticut Department of Transportation is being unnecessarily drawn-out court cases and an inordinate amount of paperwork required to prove that planned road improvement projects are not detrimental to the environment, said association President K. J. Now.
The highway projects endangered by the court challenges of environmentalists include:
— Request variance to erect billboard sign of 60 square feet — north side Spencer Street, approximately 60 feet west of Tolland.

East School Refurbishing Favored

BARBARA RICHMOND
The Vernon Board of Education, in essence, voted last night to pursue refurbishing the East School building for use as administrative offices and to decide to let the board's committee direct its efforts to complete the preliminary plans to bring the building into compliance with the state fire safety code. The schedule also called for starting construction by Jan. 1, 1976 and completing by June 15, 1976.

The board has had plans drawn up to refurbish the building which now houses administrative offices. Architect Richard Lawrence determined that it would cost about $500,000 to bring the building to conform with the code. Over the past several months the school board has also considered leasing or renting various buildings in town including the Rockville Post Office soon to be vacant.

One of the larger expenses in refurbishing the building would be the installation of an elevator. The building is more than two stories and this would be to especially accommodate the Board of Education and its staff.

Since the original alternative order was issued, Dr. Robert Lintone, assistant superintendent, has met with Robert Langer of the State Department of Education. He told the board that this is a more efficient system and it also has the side benefit of financial savings in mileage for supervisors.

It now appears that a ramp to the main floor of the building may satisfy the requirements concerning the handicapped and have those whom the handicapped visitors wish to see, meet them on the first floor.

Supervisor Albert Kerwin said that the school buildings to house these supervisors. While the state has the final say on the fire safety codes, it is still up to the local fire marshal to determine if the building complies with local fire safety codes.

It was agreed to have Dr. Ramsdell meet with Johnson to review the list of violations and ask him to extend the June 15 date listed on the abatement order.

Many of the violations dealt with replacement of antiquated wiring, installation of fire resistant materials in some areas, proper storage areas for materials, installation of schoolhouse-type hardware on doors and such.

The list submitted by Johnson will be the basis of plans to be drawn up to comply with the abatement order.
