

Grasso's First Legislative Session One of Frustration

By ROBERT LAMBERT
HARTFORD (UPI) — Gov. Ella T. Grasso pledged when she took office that she would make a heroic effort to contain state spending in the face of the worst economic decline in a generation.

For Mrs. Grasso and her overwhelming Democratic majority, it took unaccustomed restraint to live within the budget limitations of declining revenues and a faltering economy.

The result was a level of state spending which represents the smallest increase in a decade, trimmed programs, great frustration and little happiness.

It was a year of little or nothing for just about everybody. Despite all the budget-trimming, the state had to increase taxes $202 million just to stay even.

The 1975 session gave Mrs. Grasso her baptism of political fire — for the first time in her 30-year political career she was chief executive and had to catch both the roses and brickbats for her decisions.

And she did it in full view of the nation which watched its only woman governor assume the executive mantle.

Provoking unaccustomed criticism and anger, Mrs. Grasso had to say "no" — or at best, a lukewarm "yes" — to such groups as educators, welfare recipients, local government and state employees.

She tapped state pension funds for a $5.3 million pay hike for state workers, increased welfare spending to cover higher caseloads and backed a first step toward school finance reform.

The governor unraveled many restrictions imposed by environmental statutes to get highway, construction and development projects underway.

Because of the threat of severe job losses, the lawmakers refused to enact a bill imposing a deposit on one-way bottles and beverage cans.

In a moment of levity during the five-month session, the Senate tried to make man the state animal, but later undid its mischief and instead named the whale, which faces extinction.

The legislature moved to reduce the disparities in the ability of rich and poor towns to finance education. But because of a lack of money, the lawmakers and the governor gambled on getting $5 million - $7 million to equalize spending by opening up special state lotteries.

Mrs. Grasso held to her campaign pledge to avoid an income tax but fell down on the question of holding the line on taxes. She restored the sales tax to 7 per cent, making it the nation's highest, increased business taxes, reimposed the dividends tax and hiked motor vehicle and license fees.

Still, there was no assurance that spending could be kept in line.

The governor signed a $1.68 billion state budget representing an increase of about 4 per cent, the smallest in a decade.

Mrs. Grasso kept a campaign promise to replace the Connecticut Public Utilities Commission with the Connecticut Public Utilities Control Authority.

Much attention will be focused on how the new agency performs when the first rate hikes are filed by electric and gas companies. During her campaign, Mrs. Grasso implied that replacing the PUC would lower utility bills.

Other major accomplishments included:

- Repeal of the state's fair trade statute which allowed manufacturers to set retail prices for their products. Under other measures, prices for prescription drugs may be advertised and prices must be posted.

— A revised freedom of information act designed to broaden public access to the business and records of government. Grievance procedures and penalties were set up for violations.

Courting a lawsuit on the question of separation of church and state, Mrs. Grasso backed a measure to mandate a period of silent meditation at the start of each school day.

The governor also supported revisions to the 1974 campaign finance reforms, but Common Cause, a public interest group, said the measure will lead to the same abuses that brought on the Watergate scandals.

In addition to having most of their pay increment restored, state workers also gained the right of collective bargaining. Municipal workers won binding arbitration.

Another measure, described as leaving the way open to municipal bonding scandals, would allow towns and cities to bond development projects without competition or voter referendum.

The lawmakers rejected equal rights for homosexuals, legalization of the private use of marijuana and refused to set up a special committee to investigate a potential scandal in the leasing of community college facilities.

Responding to charges of nursing home abuses, the legislature approved a strict omnibus nursing home measure, including a patient's bill of rights and tighter state controls over the facilities.

Graduates Given Diplomas

Harry S. Godt, dean of student affairs at Manchester Community College, announces from the podium the names of each graduate during the presentation of degrees at the MCC commencement exercises Wednesday night in Clarke Arena. Here Christine M. McKechnie, 19, of Ellington has been given her diploma and is being congratulated by Dr. Ronald H. Denison, new president of MCC, at the right. Presenting the diplomas are Roger B. Bagley and Mrs. Dorothy C. McNulty, center, members of the state Board of Trustees for Regional Community Colleges.

Dr. Lowe Honored at MCC Commencement Exercises

By MAL BARLOW

The 11th commencement exercise of Manchester Community College took place Wednesday night in the Clarke

Arena of Manchester High School with MCC's largest class receiving degrees.

By tradition, the Manchester Pipe Band led the procession of MCC leaders, faculty, and graduates into the arena.

The Rev. Arnold F. Westwood, pastor of the Unitarian Universalist Society of Manchester, gave the invocation.

Dr. Frederick W. Lowe Jr., MCC's president at its first 10 commencements, received the Certificate of Commendation from the MCC Regional Council. James Nakos, council chairman, presented it to Dr. Lowe.

The packed crowd in the arena gave the former dean a long, standing ovation.

Dr. Robert H. Fenn introduced the co-valedictorians and the salutatorian.

All three are women who are married and have children, he said. All three had straight "A" averages.

Edna Craft of Gerald Dr., Vernon and Dianne Sydorak of Old Post Rd., Tolland took all their courses at MCC, he said.

Karen Furbish of 173 Spruce St., Manchester took several courses at another school explaining her status as salutatorian, he said.

Mrs. Sydorak delivered the valedictory.

"Life is a journey, not a destination," she said. "We must try new roads. We should enjoy the journey."

Ms. Sheila Tobias, associate provost of Wesleyan University in Middletown, gave the address. (Parts of her remarks are quoted in another story in today's Herald).

The pipe band returned at this point to play several pieces.

Dr. Ronald H. Denison, MCC's new president and attending his first MCC commencement, said, "The music is unique."

The arena seemed to vibrate for several minutes after the band marched out to loud and repeated applause.

Harry S. Godt, dean of student affairs, presented the class by name.

Roger B. Bagley, a Manchester resident and member of the Board of Trustees for the Regional Community Colleges, gave each graduate his diploma with the aid of Mrs. Dorothy C. McNulty, also a board member.

Dr. Denison congratulated each graduate.

The Rev. Mr. Westwood gave the benediction followed by the recessional.

The class totaled 618 which is as large as the 10th class last year.

Two-year degrees conferred included liberal arts and sciences, general studies, hotel food service management, business administration, law enforcement, legal secretary, respiratory therapy, library technical assistant, medical laboratory technician, data processing, educational associate, accounting, and more.

The list of graduates will appear in Friday's Herald.

MCC Speaker Defines Diplomas' Worth

By MAL BARLOW

Sheila Tobias of Wesleyan University told Manchester Community College graduates Wednesday night of the real worth of a college education today.

The associate provost at the formerly all-male school in Middletown said Americans are no longer enchanted with college.

College had been only for "gilded youth and professors," she said.

Today, 40 per cent of America's college-age people are in schools of higher learning, she said.

This compares to 14 per cent at most in Europe.

The Lottery

The Connecticut Lottery drawing will be at Westfarms Mall in West Hartford at 7 p.m. today.

"This is an immense achievement in a short period. One that no other country has ever successfully done or even conceived of doing before us."

But the number of college graduates grew until the demand for them was largely met in recent years. Their price in the market place began to reflect the supply.

Due to the lowering demand for the increased supply of graduates, higher education is going through a "retrenchment," she said.

Professors must now "account" for their work. They are treated like workers in business and government.

Leaders in schools are being replaced by budget specialists, she said.

"Although I do not pretend you can run a college without money, I firmly believe you can't run one if all you have is money."

The real worth of their diplomas, she told the graduates, may be seen in three ways hard to quantify.

First, the employer sees the graduate as someone who has learned how to learn. He gets the chances for on-the-job training.

Second, the graduate has an "option value" in his diploma. If the graduate changes career plans, he does not have to start from scratch.

Third, college graduates have been found by employers to be more productive on the job, she said.

"Graduates don't just follow orders. They make suggestions, correct systems, invent new techniques. They are more likely to increase the productivity of the firm."

"Also, they increase the productivity of their co-workers."

"Somewhere along the line, they have learned to think for themselves, how to identify problems, even in advance."

House and Senate Tangle Over Railroad Track Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Thousands of veterans are threatened with a delay in their education benefit checks as a result of an increasingly bitter dispute between the Senate and House.

The dispute isn't over veterans. It's over railroads — specifically how much, if any, money for a job-producing program to improve the nation's railroad tracks should be included in a $15 billion supplemental appropriation. As a result the entire bill has been held up.

This already has delayed payment of nearly 50,000 veterans' education checks and could jeopardize 250,000 more by the end of the week.

Sen. Milton Young, R-N.D., said that if the delay continues much beyond that it could also jeopardize the timely arrival of unemployment benefit checks.

The Senate wanted to include in the bill $700 million to create jobs and at the same time rehabilitate the nation's railroad tracks. The House first rejected the idea, then on Monday offered a compromise $5 million in "planning money."

"This is very close to an insult to the United States Senate," responded Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., Wednesday. He urged the Senate to "stand up and demand" that the rail monies be included.

The Senate did stand up, voting 78-18 to include $175 million for rail rehabilitation and returning the bill to the House.

Except for the railroad matter, both chambers have agreed on major provisions of the bill. Some said the money bill is too important to be delayed. It also includes funds for food stamps and community action programs.

Supporters of the rail rehabilitation proposal say it will not only re-employ 40,000 railroad maintenance workers who have been laid off but also yield lasting public benefits.

"Everybody knows these roadbeds are in horrible condition," said Bayh. "I can't think of a better way to use this money than to stimulate the economy, provide jobs and rebuild these roadbeds."

"These are private railroads, this is private enterprise," answered Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C. "If they can't survive why don't they sell out to a successful railroad?"

Wholesale Prices Up Slightly During May

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Labor Department today reported a small increase in wholesale prices for May that included sharply higher livestock and lumber prices but a continuing slide in the cost of sugar.

The department's Wholesale Price Index edged up 0.4 per cent, seasonally adjusted, last month.

This was a much slower inflationary pace than the brisk 1.5 per cent April rise. Between December and March, wholesale prices declined each month.

Industrial prices, the sector economists watch closely because of its underlying inflationary potential, rose 0.2 per cent in May following 0.1 per cent increases in the past two months.

Most of May's upward climb in the overall wholesale index resulted from a 3.8 per cent jump in farm products, chiefly livestock but also raw cotton, potatoes, live poultry and eggs. Prices were lower for soybeans, fresh vegetables and wheat.

A 15 per cent drop in sugar prices last month led an overall 0.2 per cent decrease in wholesale prices for processed foods and feeds.

Ford Signs Bill To Boost Highway Construction

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House announced today President Ford has signed legislation to stimulate the sagging highway construction industry by temporarily giving states more flexibility in the use of federal aid.

Ford signed the bill late Wednesday night, shortly before a midnight deadline for action.

Presidential aides said Ford had mixed feelings about the overall measure — strongly supporting only one of two major provisions — but felt he had to sign the "Federal Share of Highway Projects Act" to spur state highway construction programs funded mainly with federal money.

Under the bill: — States will be allowed until Sept. 30 to transfer federal money from one category to another within the overall highway aid program, removing a previous prohibition on such shifts.

— States may temporarily go ahead with federally assisted highway construction without producing "matching funds," normally ranging from 10 per cent to 30 per cent of the overall cost depending on the type of road.

Republicans Jubilant Over Veto Victory

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford and Republican congressional leaders celebrated their latest veto victory over the Democrats today with GOP Senate Leader Hugh Scott predicting more of the same.

"The so-called revolution which was hailed with such fanfare at the beginning of the year is going through a bad winter at Valley Forge," said Scott as he emerged from an hour-long meeting in the White House Cabinet room.

He referred to Tuesday's refusal by a Democrat-heavy House to override Ford's veto of a $5.3 billion bill to put 900,000 jobless Americans to work — and recent refusal to overturn a veto of the farm price support bill.

Ford, who told party leaders today that Wednesday was "a great day," charged earlier that the jobs bill was inflationary.

Scott said the 2-to-1 Democratic majority in Congress is "afraid to act on legislation which would require sacrifices from voters," citing the energy bill in particular.

"I'm not going to say that every veto is going to be sustained," said House Republican Leader John J. Rhodes. But, he added, Ford's "political clout has always been underestimated."

Rhodes forecast an "even chance" to sustain the President's veto of a controversial bill on strip mining.

Democratic House leaders expressed bitterness after the override failure Wednesday.

But Scott said today Eastern and Midwestern senators told him they found during the recent legislative recess "the public finally has become aware it is the Congress that has fallen on its face."

When asked why the administration considered a $5 billion public service bill more inflationary than a $108 billion defense spending bill now before the Senate, Scott said "the greatest social security in the world lies in the right to be secure."

Rhodes ridiculed the public service bill before Wednesday's override failure as the same sort of loose spending that failed to end "the Roosevelt depression" or "the 93rd and 94th Congress recession."

Britons Voting Today On Common Market

LONDON (UPI) — Britons today held their first national referendum to decide whether to remain in the European Common Market and permanently tie their hopes for economic recovery and prosperity to the world's largest trading bloc.

Prime Minister Harold Wilson ordered the vote to resolve once and for all an issue that has divided the country for nearly a generation — whether Britain should stay in the European Community (Common Market) with a "Yes" or "No."

Wilson, who campaigned vigorously for a "Yes" vote, said his Labor government will accept the decision as final and binding.

Leaders of both "Yes" and "No" camps predicted victory.

Opinion polls and newspapers almost unanimously predicted a decisive "Yes" majority. London bookies quoted 1-7 odds on a "Yes" victory and 5-1 against a win by the "No's."

But, because Britons never have voted in a referendum before, leaders of both sides agreed it was impossible to predict with any certainty how the country would actually vote. Neither side ruled out an upset.

The arguments on both sides are so complex and technical it is doubtful how many Britons really understood them.

The referendum, coming amid Britain's worst economic crisis in 30 years, was expected to be decided on the basic bread-and-butter issues of jobs, prices and national independence and sovereignty.

Campaigners for a "Yes" vote argued that remaining in the European Community, the world's largest trading bloc with 250 million people, will boost investment and protect jobs in Britain.

Antimarketees charged that joining the market hiked Britain's jobless total by 500,000 to 750,000, drove up food prices, and deprived the country of freedom to decide its own policies.

Former Conservative Prime Minister Edward Heath took Britain into the Common Market in January, 1973 after nearly two decades of national debate and negotiations with market members. But Wilson said Britons never were given a chance to say if they really wanted to "join Europe."

British Salesmen Really Can Sell

LONDON (UPI) — You've heard about the salesmen who sold refrigerators to Eskimos and sand to the Arabs, but a group of British companies contend that's nothing.

Another company has shipped poppies to Iceland as well as sand to Abu Dhabi (for swimming pool filters) and there is a British company selling petroleum in the form of cigarette lighter fuel to the Middle East.

All these emerged from a contest to find Britain's most unusual export. It was organized by a northern England distillery which says it is hoping to sell British vodka to Poland.

The winner of the contest, The Premier Drum Co. of Wigston, exports tom-toms to Nigeria, sleigh bells to Greenland, whistles to the Canary Islands and maracas to Venezuela.

Common Paint Problems

BLISTERING is usually caused by moisture working its way through the surface creating bubble-like formations which break and peel. Check sources of moisture: Leaks, loose caulking and improper vents. Scrape off blisters; spot prime bare spots before repainting.

PEELING is generally caused by a soft or too glossy undercoat, painting over grease, oil or chalky surfaces or from incorrect priming of the surfaces before painting.

FLAKING is caused by a dirty or greasy surface, improper priming or surface treatment before painting. Paint peels off in an indefinite pattern.

Murder Suspect Arrested

DUNN, N.C. (UPI) — A slim murder suspect who fled a Connecticut jail by sliding his buttocks-covered body through his cell bars, was arrested Wednesday night after a traffic accident on Interstate 95 near here.

North Carolina authorities said Bella Krajcar, 42, of Stratford, Conn., was arrested after a check revealed the car he was driving was reported stolen from Our Lady of Assumption Church in Fairfield, Conn., shortly after his escape May 29 from the Bridgeport Correctional center.

Krajcar was being held on a murder charge in the rape-beating death of Elizabeth Seely, 77, former curator of the F.T. Barnum Museum in Bridgeport.

Police said the woman's body was found Sept. 6 on a bed in her Bridgeport home.

Bridgeport police said Krajcar buttered his 5-foot-6, 130 pound body to wiggle from his cell. He then tried to open a screen with a piece of metal and climbed through before scaling the jail's outer wall, police said.

North Carolina police said Krajcar gave a phony name after the minor accident and was taken to a hospital when he complained of an injured ankle. While in the hospital he attempted to escape but was apprehended, police said.

Difference Noted
CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI) — West Virginia Gov. Arch Moore, back from a tour of the Soviet Union, said he could see a remarkable difference in the Soviet economy since his last visit in 1964.

Moore, who recently completed a two-week tour of Russia with six other governors, told reporters, "I came away with the distinct impression that today instead of being 50 years behind the United States, they're about 20 years behind," he said.

PZC Petitioned Not To Increase Area Density

HEBRON Anne Dallaire The Planning and Zoning Commission has accepted a petition asking it not to change the Rt. 94 West St.-Martin Rd. section of Hebron to high density zone as proposed. The area is now medium density residential with one-acre lots. Chairman Mastrandrea, PZC salivator, said it would be dis-cusssed among the members of the commission. Monty Champagne of West St. read the petition aloud to about 15 residents present at a recent PZC meeting. He said the petitioners disapprove of the high density proposal. He said the proposed change would cause personal hardship on residents of the area for the following reasons:

OPINION

Wait Until Next Year

Before the dust settles on what the legislature should have done and could have done, we will submit our list of what they might do next session.

A should have done list obviously would be endless and full of controversy which is why they were not done. Legislators tend to avoid any issue their constituents are for or against.

A could have done list would be almost as long but we have become accustomed to accepting the fact that legislators could have done more if they had more time, more information, more support, and of course more money.

Thus to avoid controversy and recognizing the tight fiscal restraints in the budget and the state pension fund, we submit the following list for consideration by the next session of the General Assembly.

First, to end anymore quibbling over how an outgoing governor uses the up to $10,000 authorized for transition expenses; why not make it a plain old severance check and save all the expense and time involved in auditing claims drawn against it. While the auditors may not agree, we think former Gov. Tom Meskill's phone calls which may have been connected with his appointment and confirmation as federal judge were legitimate. Job hunting is a universal transitional task in politics.

Second, now that the Sperm Whale is the official state animal is the legislature going to be embroiled in redesigning — no pun intended — the state seal? We think this issue ought to be put to rest as soon as possible.

Third, let's get a AAA rating for the state fiscal reports. What we mean instead of getting the comptroller's, governor's, the House and Senate majority and minority leaders' and almost every other official's estimates of the state surplus or deficit, we should Average All Assays (AAA).

so that we are dealing with only one figure.

This figure won't be anymore correct but for the sake of the taxpayer's fiscal sanity, one wrong figure is easier to cope with than a dozen or so.

Fourth, we suggest compulsory arbitration of disputes between Democrats and Republicans. We think that if such decisions were made binding, neither party would make charges they could not live with if they lost.

Fifth, we should provide combat pay and free psychiatric care for those serving as arbiters between the Democrats and Republicans.

Sixth, since the next session will be in the Bicentennial year, why not limit the total number of bills to be introduced 1776, the number to be passed to 177 and the number to be signed by the governor to 6 — five of which would be proof that we can, despite 200 years of evidence to the contrary, cut taxes with representation.

And seventh, after we have solved the school financial problems with a couple of instant state lotteries; let's set one up to determine the unluckiest person in Connecticut. The way it would work is that you would keep drawing until the last number sold was drawn. This number would be given the grand prize which would be taxed at 101 per cent to establish once and for all the ultimate loser and end once and for all the bickering among a couple hundred thousand taxpayers for this dubious honor.

Because the finalists in the lottery will be representing all the state's hardpressed taxpayers, we suggest the drawing be in the Bradley Field people mover so they can be taken for a ride in style at least once.

And rain date is suggested for this one lottery since the honoree will undoubtedly be hitchhiking — legally — home after the drawing.

Aspirants Take Note

One of the hoary old traditions and assets of American politics was being born in a log cabin. It had a connotation of being a pioneer and coming from self-reliant stock.

After securing his land the builder felled the needed trees, cut them to length and with adze and axe notched the ends to fit. Properly chinked they were deemed sturdy and warm.

But it isn't that easy today. A log cabin builder in Washington state has run afoul of regulations and red tape, even though his cabin is well started. When he went for a building permit he was told that he would need an architect since a log cabin was a unique structure.

He has been summoned to court because he is in technical violation of the building code. What would Abe Lincoln think of that?

General Store In The Good Old Days

Back years ago when I was a boy I lived in a little old country town, Not too far from the general store. Now this little store carried everything for serving the poor and well-to-do, And many times took care of tourists Who happened to be passing through; And many came here for sightseeing, For this was a quaint little town, And seldom, if ever, did they pass our store.

If only to visit and browse around; And at times they'd order special If something urgent and in reason, Now once inside this little store The air was simply grand Of all the different merchandise, Anything that wasn't canned. People like the smell of different cheeses, And fresh ground coffee beans, And the fragrance of molasses, Puerto Rican and New Orleans; They like the smell of candy, Scented soaps and choice fruits, And the odor of horse robe, Buffalo shoes and rubber boots. They like to gaze on the different tools Mostly known to common craft, From a builder's plane and level To a farmer's scythe and snath.

To a farmer's scythe and snath. The smoker's case was always a treat

From a clay T-D to a dime cigar, And many brands of chewing tobacco, From Peiper Heisse to Jolly Tar. They saw the little pot-bellied stove On that not too level floor. About six feet from the counter, Twelve to the outside door. It was here town fathers gathered For swapping politics and jokes, For grand old men sincere and honest, Just good old-fashioned folks. Outside they viewed the modern rigs Of backboards, buggies and surreys, Folks slowly passing to and fro With no apparent sign of worries. So this may perhaps be the reason They were called "the good old days," When the "rank and file" were more relaxed And speed wasn't all the rage. F. P. Pletzer 24 Trotter St. Manchester

Who Should Pay For What?

WASHINGTON — "Every time a person pays 10 cents to mail a first-class letter he is contributing almost two cents to pay the costs of other mail services" such as parcel post and so-called junk mail.

The words are those of Seymour Wenner, administrative law judge of the Postal Rate Commission, who exploded a bomb at U.S. Postal Service headquarters the other day by denouncing postal rate policies. Indeed, Wenner proposed a reduction in first-class rates to eight and one-half cents an ounce for letters and five cents for postcards, instead of the current 10 cents for letters and eight cents for postcards.

That was the cruelest blow to the Postal Service, whose geniuses have been planning a new first-class rate increase to 13 cents for letters and eight cents for postcards. Wenner's point, based on facts, is that "the Postal Service has become a tax-collecting agency, collecting money from first-class mailers to distribute to other favored classes" of mail. As a result, he said, 58 per cent of the cost of the new $1-billion bulk mail system will be charged to first-class mail.

This high-handed practice is not only outrageous but illegal. In his two-volume decision, Wenner noted that the Postal Service has failed to carry out directives of the U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington to allocate cost strictly to each class of mail, including direct operating costs and the proportional share of overhead costs. The directive reflected the intent of the postal reorganization law of 1970, which called for establishment of actual cost standards as a substitute for "discretionary judgments."

In the rate case heard by he appeals court, said Wenner, the Postal Service allocated only 45 per cent of its costs on an actual basis and left the balance in the discretionary category. To put it mildly, such a policy leaves the door wide open for the use of political and business influence on postal rate decisions.

As Wenner figures it, for a first-class letter to be fully covered in actual cost of service plus a proportional share of overall system costs, the rate should be 8.95 cents. Even Wenner's recommendation of eight and one-half cents an ounce adds up to a markup, or "profit," of $1.3-billion a year, he estimated.

Well now, Wenner is not the supreme

Lo, The Poor Legislator

GAINESVILLE, Fla. — The Florida House of Representatives is launching a study commission on the family, to discover (as one report puts it) "what is breaking up American homes and leading young people astray." If they find out, we'd all like to know. Nothing I have seen in the vast sociological literature on the family enables us to answer this question with enough assurance to base a legislative program on it, as the very intelligent Miami Democrat, Rep. Elaine Bloom, wants to do.

Another Democratic member, Rep. Earl Hutto, of Panama City, Fla., seems already to be pretty sure of what the commission's answers will be like. His amendment, also accepted, told the committee to look for: "The incidence of alcohol, infidelity...the impact of sexual and violence-oriented movies...pornographic literature, and lack of discipline in the home."

It's quite an order. The trouble is that when the commission has discovered the incidence of alcohol and infidelity on the opportunity to play in L.L. before some in Farm or Rookie.

The L.L. picks anywhere from 30 to 40 boys per year, give or take a couple for those that want to be pickier than me. If the Farm and Rookie League coaches submit a list of their best players to the L.L., and those boys will have more hope than at present.

Very, very little, can be said for the present system of selecting boys, because a boy can't show much in two weekends when he's half frozen and he has to wait for 200 kids to bat.

FROM YOUR NEIGHBOR'S KITCHEN

By VIVIAN FERGUSON

This is the season for young tender veal. There are so many ways to prepare veal that you could have it every day for a month and not use the same recipe twice.

It is at this season that we find the most desirable veal in the markets. If you are not accustomed to seeing "milk veal," you may think there is something wrong with the meat. It will be partially red, with greyish streaks running throughout. Sometimes, they even have a greenish cast. The knowledgeable consumer will be delighted to see this. It means that the calf is partially on milk — the red portions being caused by feeding upon grass. Eventually, it will all be red meat as the calf is fully weaned from its mother. "Milk veal" is tender and delicious.

Salzburg Veal Chops garnished with lemon slices.

Italian people love veal and their butchers know just how to cut it. The French know how to cook veal as well as the Austrians, Swiss and German people. In the U.S., veal parmigiana is known by almost everyone. Veal cutlets are dipped in lightly beaten egg and bread crumbs, quickly fried and coated with tomato sauce and cheese. For a quick and easy combination of olive oil and butter. Serve immediately. You will be enjoying Veal Milanese, named for the city of Milan, Italy.

I am very fond of Scalloped veal chops. It is veal chops flavored with Marsala wine. Serve it with fettucine Alfredo, some fresh green beans, a platter of fresh tomatoes and scallops and you have a menu fit for company.

Have the butcher pound veal chops. When you get them home, give them another pound. If you have fettucine Alfredo, you may need to pound them only lightly on one side. If the veal is completely red, then pound it on both sides.

Put the sliced meat in flour. I like the quick-mixing flour, which is very fine in texture, for this purpose. This flour is good for making gravy without lumps, for use on the pastry board and the like. Any time you don't want a heavy coating, some cooks salt and pepper the meat before cooking. I prefer to do so after it has been browned.

North Italian cooks saute the meat in a mixture of butter (preferably sweet butter) and olive oil. Get the fats good and hot, then drop the meat in pieces at a time, in a single layer until the frying pan is full. Rather than use a big chicken fryer if you're doing more than a pound, use two regular sized skillets.

Veal should be cooked quickly at high heat. The younger the veal, the more moisture will come out of it resulting in some shrinkage.

As you saute the pieces until slightly browned, transfer them to the big chicken fryer. You shouldn't be deep-frying. Have just enough fat so the meat doesn't stick. When all the pieces have been browned, discard most of the fat if there is a good deal left. If you have burned the drippings, don't attempt the next step. You'll have to throw it out.

Four Marsala wine into the pan in which you have sauteed the veal. Be generous. Use 1/2 to 3/4 cup. Bring to a boil as you scrape the bottom of the pan. Let the alcohol burn off. You can stop right there and pour this over the veal and serve it. I go a step further.

Take a can of mushrooms, add the liquid to the pan, add some consommé, salt and pepper to taste. Pour over the veal that is now in the chicken fryer, add the drained mushrooms, cover the pan and simmer slowly while you get the rest of the meal ready. Check occasionally and make sure the meat isn't sticking in the bottom. You only want to simmer this for added tenderness and flavor. The older the veal, the longer you may wish to simmer. Serve in a warm dish.

While the veal is simmering, cook your green beans whole to avoid serving simply with butter, salt and pepper. Take a package of bow ties (farfalle, in Italian). Cook according to package directions. Have ready a large heatproof serving dish. Melt a stick of butter in it but do not brown, add a generous amount of freshly chopped parsley. Use dry white vermouth instead of the lemon.

Wednesday: All beef hot dogs, hot potato salad, stewed tomatoes, hot dog roll, fresh fruit, butter or margarine, milk or coffee.

Thursday: Stuffed cabbage with ground beef, tomato sauce, tossed salad, rice, white bread, fruit cocktail with a cookie, salad dressing, milk or coffee.

Friday: Baked fish, lemon wedge, potato au gratin, collard greens, dark bread, sponge cake with fruit topping, tartar sauce, butter or margarine, milk or coffee.

Tuesday: Tuna noodle casserole, cottage cheese with fruit, peas and carrots, roll, chocolate pudding with topping, butter or margarine, milk or coffee.

Monday: Oven fried chicken, cranberry sauce, broccoli, meat sauce, tossed salad, yams in orange juice, white bread, pineapple cake, butter or margarine, milk or coffee.

Friday: Tuna noodle casserole, cottage cheese with fruit, peas and carrots, roll, chocolate pudding with topping, butter or margarine, milk or coffee.

Dear Abby

Blood Pressure Checkup Is Good

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR READERS: If you have no interest in your health or the health of those you love, skip Dear Abby today. Do you know what your blood pressure is? If you do, you are one in about 10,000. If you don't, the most important thing you can do today is to call your doctor and make an appointment to have it checked.

You may not realize it, but high blood pressure kills about 250,000 people a year. And hundreds and thousands more are crippled by strokes, suffer from kidney disease, or are the victims of a long list of other ailments due to high blood pressure.

Tragic! Yes, but all the more tragic because our very able secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, Caspar Weinberger, tells us that high blood pressure can be minimized or controlled by medication and diet. Also, high blood pressure is hereditary, so if your mother or father have it, that's all the more reason to check your blood pressure regularly. And have your children checked, too. It takes less than five minutes, it's absolutely painless, and if you can't afford a private physician, your local public health department will check it without charge. Now, get going!

DEAR ABBY: A close relative of mine recently announced his engagement to a girl he had been going with for a long time. They set their wedding date, and the bride proceeded to make plans for a lovely, big church wedding. The groom's mother told them if her daughter (who is married, living in another state and expecting a baby) around the wedding date) delivers before the wedding, she will not attend the wedding.

In other words, the groom's mother feels that being with her daughter when she has a baby is more important than being with her son on his wedding day.

It was astonishing! However, when I told my mother about this, she agreed with the groom's mother. I was speechless. What do YOU say?

SPEECHLESS

DEAR SPEECHLESS: I'm not speechless. I could make a long speech about why some mothers feel that it's more important to be with their daughters when they have babies than it is to be with their sons when they get married.

DEAR ABBY: You blew it! The lady with the kids who refused to eat anything but peanut butter and jelly sandwiches and chocolate ice cream doesn't need a doctor's help. All it takes is this:

Don't buy any more peanut butter or ice cream, and when the kid gets hungry enough to eat anything, including liver and spinach.

Havlik-Yarko

Maureen Ann Yarko of St. Louis, Mo., formerly of Manchester, and Mark D. Havlik of Tama, Iowa, were married May 17 at Our Lady of Lourdes Catholic Church in St. Louis.

The bride is daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Yarko of Orlando, Fla., formerly of Manchester. The bridegroom is son of Dr. and Mrs. A. J. Havlik of Tama.

Abbot Thomas Havlik, O.S.B. of Chicago, uncle of the bridegroom, celebrated the nuptial Mass and performed the double-ring ceremony. Susan Walsh of St. Louis, Mo. was soloist and was accompanied by the church organist Leroy Seiz.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white organza over white taffeta fashioned with high neckline, long sleeves and bodice and full skirt applied with daisies. Her layered fingertip veil was bound in satin and attached to a pleated Gatsby cap. She carried a nosegay of gardenias, stephanotis and baby's breath.

Miss Marianne Overmann of Cincinnati, Ohio was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Prudence C. Willett, Bardonia, Ky.; Miss Susan M. Kell of St. Louis, Mo.; Miss Ellen A. Havlik of Chicago and Miss Deborah Havlik of Iowa City, sisters of the bridegroom. They wore sleeveless gowns of royal blue organza over white taffeta and carried nosegays of white daisies and baby's breath.

Michael D. Havlik of Omaha, Neb., was brother's best man. Ushers were Kevin L. Havlik of Northfield, Minn., the bridegroom's brother; John C. Yarko of West Willington and George A. Yarko of Orlando, Fla., the bride's brothers; and Gregory O. Cummins of Memphis, Tenn.

Following the ceremony the bride's parents were hosts at a reception at the Bath and Tennis Club in St. Louis.

Mrs. Havlik is employed at the St. Louis (Mo.) County Government Center. Mr. Havlik was awarded a JD degree in May by the St. Louis University School of Law and will take the Iowa Bar examination this summer.

The couple will reside in Tama where Mr. Havlik will engage in the practice of law.

Teenage American girls spent well over half a billion dollars on cosmetics, beauty products and toiletries last year, according to an article in The National Enquirer.

Dustin C. Wood Jr. of Manchester was his brother's best man. Ushers were Charles Brane Jr., Robert Gordon, and Alan Wood, all of Manchester.

A reception was held at the Elks Lodge in Bennington, Vt., after which the couple left on a trip to Montreal, Canada. They will reside in Manchester.

Mr. Wood is a 1975 graduate of the University of Connecticut.

Wood-Tomm

Gretchen Jane Tomm of Bennington, Vt. and Jonathan B. Wood of Manchester were married May 24 at First United Methodist Church in Bennington, Vt.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor H. Tomm of Bennington, Vt. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dustin C. Wood Sr. of 29 Morse Rd.

The Rev. Richard Campbell of First United Methodist Church officiated. Herbert Millington was organist. The church was decorated with white gladioli and ivy.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white crepe gown trimmed with venetian lace and seed pearls with the skirt terminating into a chapel train. Her fingertip veil of white silk organza was bordered with matching lace. The veil was made by her mother. She carried a bouquet of gamelias, stephanotis and ivy.

Mrs. Janice Bickford of Manchester was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were The Beverly Zematis of Manchester, Miss Barbara Akraig of Lindenwood, N.J., and Marjorie Hewitt of Rockville.

They wore matching gowns of yellow flowered organza with chiffon jackets and yellow wide-brimmed hats. The matron of honor carried white daisies and baby's breath. The other attendants carried yellow daisies and baby's breath.

Mr. and Mrs. Jonathan Wood

Outdoor Crafts Show Set June 15

The second annual outdoor arts and crafts show, sale and exhibit will be June 15 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. in Center Park next to Mary Cheney Library. The rain date will be June 22. Judges for the show will be Robert Manning, chairman of the fine arts department at Manchester Community College, and Ken Morgan, a Coventry art teacher. Manning is an undergraduate of Pratt Institute, Brooklyn, N.Y., and received his master's degree from the University of Hartford. He is a member of the Council of the Connecticut Academy of Fine Arts. Manning taught art at Glastonbury High School from 1961 to 1968 and since then has been chairman of the fine arts department at MCC. He is also director of the Stairwell Gallery at MCC. In 1974, Manning received honorable mention at the Greater Hartford Civic and Arts Festival. He has had 3 one-man shows, has been a juror for numerous shows, and has addressed many art leagues in this area. Morgan received his B.A. degree from the University of New Haven and his master's degree from the University of Bridgeport. He is a graduate of Vesper George School of Art, Boston, and he received an award for best oil painting from Boston area art schools. In 1974, he had a two-man show at Vehicule Art Inc. in Montreal, Canada. Morgan recently had a showing at Foot Prints Gallery on Main St. He will have his first New York showing of new talent at Artadine Gallery in New York City June 14. Morgan taught art recently at an adult education class at Coventry High School. For a work to be eligible for judging at the show and sale, it must be original, recent, and

Instructor Arrested At MCC Exercises

A Manchester Community College instructor was arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct Wednesday night at the college's graduation ceremony at Manchester High School, police reported today. Eric Gordon, 30, of Hartford, a history instructor at MCC, was taken into custody by police just as the MCC faculty members prepared to enter the high school gymnasium. Police said Gordon's cap and gown had paper streamers attached to it and he was wearing clown makeup. Before he was arrested, police said they had informed Gordon he wouldn't be allowed to take part in the ceremonies because it was obvious he intended to disrupt the event. Police said they were on special duty at the high school because MCC administrators feared faculty and students might disrupt the ceremonies in protest of the recent dismissal of a faculty member. The arrest was made at 8:10 and Gordon was taken to Police Headquarters for processing. He was released on his written promise to appear in court June 23, and he returned to the ceremonies, minus the makeup, and caused no problems, police said. In a written statement to police, Gordon said, "I wish to state only that I was not conducting myself in a disorderly fashion nor had I any intention to do so."

Pastor Found Guilty In Communion Controversy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An ecclesiastical court today found the Rev. William A. Wendt guilty of disobeying his bishop by allowing an irregularly ordained woman priest to preside at holy communion. In the first church trial resulting from the issue of women priests, the five-member court split on the finding three to two.

The court recommended that Wendt's bishop, the Right Rev. William Creighton, admonish the priest and "forbid him to permit any person whose ordination is not in conformity with the canon of the church to exercise his or her ministry in his parish."

Round Table To Perform At Hartford

The Round Table Singers of Manchester High School will perform for their fifth year Friday at 1 p.m. at the Greater Hartford Civic & Arts Festival at Constitution Plaza. Last year, the group received the Outstanding Performer Award for the high school contributing the most to the week's civic events. The young musicians will perform later at 6:30 p.m. in the pops concert in the Manchester High School quadrangle as part of the school's arts and crafts show and exhibit. The program is entitled "Bicentennial Salute to America" and will feature the school band and choirs performing patriotic numbers and show tunes. People are invited to bring their picnic suppers. Beverages will be supplied by the American Field Service Club.

ANDES RUINS
LIMA (UPI) — The Chavin ruins, 10,000 feet high in the Andes mountains of Peru, are the remains of a complex civilization that flourished 2,500 years ago. A masonry castle, at least three stories high, is honeycombed with underground passages. Tourists, who must lodge at two small hotels in the remote mountain town, are led by local guides through chambers believed to have been used for human sacrifice.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS
Thousands of migrating swallows recently became too cold and hungry to fly over the Alps. Bird lovers started a program which transported some birds to warmer climates by airliner and train. The French Bird Protection League has reported that the birds have reacted badly to this act of mercy and were dying in "increasing numbers." The World Almanac notes the league suggests that cold birds be warmed, fed and then set free.

Signups Scheduled For Tennis

SOUTH WINDSOR
Judy Kuchel
Correspondent
644-1364

The South Windsor Recreation Department will have a registration period June 16 and 17 for summer tennis classes.

Participants, 12 years and older, may register for a Monday and Tuesday class or a Tuesday and Thursday class in either of the two sessions.

The fee this year is $4 for adults and $2 for children, payable at registration.

Class schedule is as follows: 9 to 10:30 a.m., adults; 10:30 a.m. to noon, adults; 1 to 2:30 p.m., children and teens; 6:30 to 8 p.m., adults and working teens.

The registration period is: June 16, 6 to 7:30 p.m., session 1 (July 1 to 24); Timothy Edwards School cafeteria; June 17, 6 to 7:30 p.m., session 2 (July 3 to Aug. 25); Timothy Edwards School cafeteria.

Late registration will be taken at the Recreation Department between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m., daily until June 24, providing openings are still available.

Karen Fellows is in charge of arrangements.

Senior Citizen cards are now available to eligible South Windsor residents meeting the qualifications.

Persons desiring a card must be 62 years or older and must be residents of the town.

Cards may be obtained at the town manager's office or the town clerk's office at Town Hall.

Park Guide The National Park Service Guide to the historic places of the American Revolution is among the current vacation and travel information available at the South Windsor Library.

The guidebook is published by the U.S. Department of the Interior and summarizes the course of the war.

It describes and locates battlefields, monuments, historic houses and buildings, as well as objects and historical paintings, both obscure and well known.

These listings are compiled by the Connecticut Department of Commerce and also include lists of sources of information on shore property, antiques dealers and lake cottages.

Jim Bridger, the legendary mountain man, may have been the first outsider to see the Great Salt Lake, in 1824 or 1825. It is said he scooped a handful of its briny water into his mouth, spat it out and cried, "Hell, we are on the shores of the Pacific!"

World Council Sends $500 to India

Manchester Council on World Hunger is sending $500 to a self-help project in Marianad, India. The gift was announced by the Rev. Ronald J. Fournier, council president. Marianad is a small fishing village in Kerala State on the southwestern coast of India. It is an experiment in self-help to eradicate poverty, ignorance and ill health.

Dr. and Mrs. Abraham Kurien, who recently visited India, reported to the Hunger Council about the work at Marianad, where Dr. Kurien's brother is a worker. "About 15 years ago, the village was started on the initiative of the Roman Catholic bishop of Trivandrum, who recognized that the poverty of the fishing villages in his diocese could only be eradicated by altering the way in which the community worked and lived. But the change had to be brought about by the people themselves," Dr. Kurien said.

OBITUARIES

Edward L. Bliss, 90, of 33 Trout Stream Dr. died Wednesday at a Rockville convalescent home.

Mrs. Joseph Sartor Sr., 82, of 296 Corna St. died Wednesday at a Rockville convalescent home.

Born in Amherst, Mass., Mr. Bliss lived in Newton, Mass., before coming to Vernon 14 years ago.

Mrs. Sartor was born June 1, 1893 in Mercersburg, Torino, Italy, and had lived in Manchester for more than 60 years.

Survivors are a daughter, Mrs. Ralph B. Hallwood of Vernon, with whom he made his home; a sister, Mrs. Mildred Pickering of Manchester; a grandson and two great-granddaughters.

The funeral is Saturday at 8:15 a.m. from Holmes Funeral Home, 400 Main St., with a Mass at St. James Church at 9 a.m.

There are no calling hours. The family suggests that any memorial contributions may be made to the National Arthritis Foundation, 964 Asylum St., Hartford.

Wardour Street in London, once an antique buyers' paradise, is now the home of the country's film industry.

Bloodmobile Will Visit Friday On 25th Anniversary of Program

By JUNE TOMPKINS The Bloodmobile will visit Manchester Friday on the 25th anniversary of the Connecticut Red Cross Blood Program.

The Bloodmobile will be at Manchester Memorial Hospital in the conference rooms from 11:45 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Last minute appointments may still be made by calling the local Red Cross office at 643-5111.

Manchester was the location of the first operation of the Connecticut Red Cross Blood Program in the Greater Hartford Chapter area June 6, 1950.

The commemorative program replaces the visit normally held during the month of May, and will be in addition to the regular June operation scheduled June 30.

Monday, the Manchester Chapter of the Red Cross and Manchester Memorial Hospital co-hosted a luncheon at the hospital to honor local residents who were involved in the first Bloodmobile visit and are still committed.

In 1950, Jacob F. Miller, immediate past president of the MMH board of trustees, was the chapter chairman; John D. LaBelle, a MMH trustee, was the blood program chairman; Miss Anna C. Sampson, an honorary trustee of MMH, was chairman of the volunteer nurse aides. Also recognized were the eight blood donors who took part in the first Bloodmobile visit and who are still active donors. They are Charles Luce, Mrs. Alfie Johansson, Alfred Venard, Mrs. Elsie Hance, William Martens, Truman Cowles, Mrs. Roseanna Provencal and Edward Werner.

There are 15 volunteer workers in the blood program since 1950 who still assist. They are Mrs. Nevin Decker, Mrs. Ermanno Garaventa, Mrs. Margaret Brown, Mrs. Brennan, Mrs. Edward Mack, Mrs. George Walker, Mrs. Dorner, Mrs. Frank Moroso, Mrs. Margaret Brown, Mrs. Charles S. Burr, Mrs. James Elliott, Mrs. Allan Hotchkiss, Mrs. Robert W. Russell, Mrs. Raymond A. St. Laurent and Mrs. Erwin Whitham.

In 25 years, the Connecticut Red Cross Blood Program has progressed from 65,000 pints collected in 1950 to 126,000 pints in 1975, from glass bottle containers to plastic bags, and from one pint to help one patient to help up to six patients.

At the first Bloodmobile visit to Manchester in 1950, 120 persons appeared and 96 pints were taken. Prior to 1955, all transfusions in Connecticut were accomplished by the direct transfusion method. A patient undergoing surgery was connected directly by tubing to a donor lying on a bed next to him, and the donor's blood was pumped directly into the patient's veins.

In 1955, physicians recognized the need for hospital blood banks. These blood banks obtained their donors through appeals to the patient's family and friends who would donate blood for the patient's use.

With the influx of a labor force without relatives at the outbreak of World War II who came to Connecticut to work in factories such as Pratt & Whitney Aircraft Division of United Aircraft Corp. in East Hartford, and the need for hospitalization and blood transfusions, it became apparent to some people that a transfusion system depending upon donations made by one's relatives and friends could no longer be depended upon as a reliable means of assuring an adequate supply of blood.

Manchester began a community blood program which would guarantee the replacement of blood used by its residents. This system still depended upon providing donors to be bled at hospital blood banks. This was to provide the foundation for what was to become the Connecticut Red Cross Blood Program.

This program was advanced to a statewide blood program and became the model for the Connecticut Regional Blood Program. Throughout the entire history of the program, blood and blood products have been available to any individual hospitalized in a Connecticut hospital.

There is no need for replacement by the patient or the patient's family, and no fee for non-replacement is ever charged. No blood insurance/assurance or any other prepaid credit system exists in this state.

Further, there are no supplemental or commercial blood suppliers in the state. For these reasons, in 1974, the Connecticut State Medical Society voted to recommend to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare that the Connecticut Red Cross Program be designated as the model regional blood program.

Liberals Have Little Luck in Cutting Defense Budget

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., a retired major general and a pilot, has told the Air Force he wants to be first to fly a production model of the proposed B1 bomber. He may come closer to getting his wish today.

Liberals had little luck Wednesday in cutting a $25 billion measure to provide weapons, research and troop levels for the Department of Defense. Amendments to reduce spending by $1.2 billion and to discard research on increased accuracy and power of nuclear missiles were rejected after major debates.

The Armed Services Committee has proposed spending roughly $600 million in B1 research in the next year. B1 nuclear research is a $7 million Air Force request for the first actual procurement of the plane. An attempt to eliminate all funds for the B1 is led by Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D.

Another key amendment up for debate is an AWACS, a modified Boeing 707 to be used as a sophisticated airborne warning system that can detect

Green School Grounds Take On New Look

They are planting and landscaping with materials purchased with PTA funds. The completed project will feature jumpers and pachysandra. The area around the flagpole will be fenced in, and a slate walk will be laid across areas in front of the school. (Herald photo by Dunn)

Dr. Lowe Attends Education Parley

Dr. Frederick W. Lowe Jr., consultant to the Commission for Higher Education and former president of Manchester Community College, represented Connecticut recently at a national conference on extension and continuing education programs in Denver, Colo.

Delegates included the services colleges and universities provide to communities need to be strengthened and expanded without unnecessary government restriction.

Delegates recommended continued federal assistance to the colleges and universities in conducting programs to help community groups solve local problems.

They stressed that college faculty members can provide information and training that help community groups and local governments take action needed in their communities.

The delegates noted that today the number of adults studying part time at colleges and universities exceeds the number of full-time college students. They also noted that practices of many institutions discriminate against this "new majority" and called for an end to these discriminatory practices.

The conference was sponsored by the National Advisory Council on Extension and Continuing Education whose members are appointed by the President.

The conference was convened by the National Advisory Council to review with state delegates the council's evaluation of community service programs conducted under Title I of the Higher Education Act. The act is scheduled to be reauthorized during the coming year.

Newington and Tribe In Tournament Today

By Len Auster

No peace pipe will be lit when Manchester High and Newington High meet in the playdown round of the State Baseball Tournament in the Class AA Division today at 4 at Kelley Field.

The 10th-ranked 12-4 Silk Towners and 23rd-ranked 10-7 Newington Indians met twice before in the last four years in the tournament. Both decisions went to the locals, 2-1 in 1971 and 4-1 in 1973.

Newington, under 11-year Coach Bob Davis, finished third in the Central Valley Conference at 8-6. The Indians midway through the season went into five-game tailspin but rebounded nicely to finish up with five wins in six decisions.

Newington is led offensively by senior rightfielder Bill Conticello with a .323 batting average and six home runs. Senior leftfielder Bill Roberts hit a 318 clip and centerfielder Bruce Urso slugged eight run-trippers.

"We hit 19 home runs during the season and I don't know many high school teams who hit as many. We hit the ball a long way and noon in the first round. Friday's tilt will either be in West Haven or Westport, the highest ranking team getting the home field in the first round. A coin flip, however, will determine the 'home' team.

Friday afternoon, 15-2 East Catholic, second-ranked in the Class B Division, takes on the Avon-S. Paul winner at the Eagles' field in first round action. The locals drew a bye for the playdowns.

East topped HCC foe St. Paul twice during the season, but as Eagle Coach Jim Penders states, it's a difficult proposition the third time around. Twice vanquished, no team wants to be stung three straight outings to one team in the same season.

Elsewhere in the area today, 29th-ranked 7-7 Rockville High visits fourth-ranked 14-2 Conard High, the CCLL champ, in an AA Division playdown. Tenth-ranked 13-5 Coventry High hosts 24th-ranked St. Joseph Trumbull in a Class C Division playdown and 12th-ranked 11-7 Ellington High entertains 21st-ranked 9-9 North Branford High in a B Division playdown.

The Manchester-Newington winner battles the seventh-ranked West Haven 26th-ranked Staples High winner Friday after beginning Monday plus a few Sunday dates. Teams from Windham, Columbia, Colchester, Franklin, Manchester, Coventry, Willimantic and Tolland are in the league. The league is for boys 15-17 years of age.

Crispino's will be coached by Charlie Graf, Bob Ferron, Ray Campose and Tom Tasilio. The Merchants are coached by John Newcomb, Jack Nash and Bob Boland.

The Rec Department's two seniors, Manchester Crispino's and Manchester Merchants will be the Inter-town Alumni Baseball League open their season Sunday.

Crispino's open home against Windham at 2 at East Catholic while the Merchants travel to Franklin.

All home games will be played at East Catholic Monday and Wednesday nights at 6 o'clock.

The Alumni Junior Baseball League (ages 12-14) opens Monday night at the West Side Oval and Cheney Tech.

League play will be Monday through Thursday from June 9 to July 24 at the Oval and Cheney.

Undeclared in seven starts, Brown's Tires will entertain Newington tonight at 9 in a Northern ASA League game at Fitzgerald Field.

Wait, 33, was released from Philadelphia April 7 and signed April 25 by the Aeros. He had a 1-1 win-loss record and seven saves with a 1.23 earned run average at Wichita.

The National Basketball Association has added a third official — on the courts for all 1975 exhibition games.

"The third man will take some pressure off the other two officials and let them do their job better," said an enthusiastic John Nucato, supervisor of NBA officials.

NBA's Board of Governors Wednesday approved the third official on a trial basis and voted for two other rule changes, one of which could mean the elimination of the center jump ball at the beginning of each quarter.

Larry O'Brien, commissioner of the NBA, announced the measures, which were then detailed at a news conference by members of the competition committee. "This is not possible with the jump ball. I don't feel this is changing the game. It's going to help it."

Large Salmon Caught

HADLYME (UPI) — Environmentalists are rejoicing today over a large Atlantic salmon from Greenland caught live in the Connecticut River 10 miles from Long Island Sound.

The 36-inch salmon, on its way to do some upstream spawning when caught Wednesday, was the first caught live in the river in years and signaled that a $40 million salmon restoration program may be succeeding.

Federal biologists are planning to conduct a post-mortem on the fish, which is frozen in storage at a Department of Environmental Protection office in Waterford.

Russell Staples, the fisherman who caught the salmon in a net with hundreds of other fish off Brockway Island, thought he would receive $250 from the DEP for the fish but was given only $55 because it was not kept alive.

Robert Jones, director of the DEP marine region office, said the salmon was marked to show it was one of 10,000 released from Tar Park Brook in Agawam, Mass., in March 1973. The salmon run to Greenland and return as adults.

Reacting to pollution and industrial dams blocking the way to upstream spawning areas, salmon have avoided the Connecticut since around 1900. The program of releasing marked salmon has been in effect since 1969. The decomposed remains of a salmon were found washed ashore last year near Middletown, about 14 miles further up the Connecticut.

"Me, Wheehee—That's what it feels to be great like me," Muhammad Ali told a packed auditorium at Harvard University Wednesday night.

"The greatness or smallness of a man does not depend on his education or his wealth. It is the heart that makes one great or small," said Ali.

"I'm thankful to be here in such a high seat of learning," he said. "I'm just a boxer and boxers can't even talk. I graduated from high school with a 'D-minus.' They gave me the minus cause I won the Olympics in 1960."

"But," he challenged, "All I think after this little meeting, any one of you, I don't care how great you are at this college, you'd be a little scared to come up here and match wits with me."

"I didn't go to college and Jesus never went to school and Moses was so dumb he couldn't even talk," but they're great because God manifests himself through what you might consider to be nothing."

The champ said God "don't want you up here preaching and opening oceans and have science teacher saying—I taught him how to do that." "I wish I were a dog and he was a lion."

"I like to ask his wife if he was the same man he was two years ago," he continued.

"Black people just love Howard Cosell. They love to see him talk," he said. "Sometimes, I wish I were a dog and he was a lion."

McBride Returns

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Bake McBride, out for three weeks with a shoulder injury, was returned Wednesday to the St. Louis Cardinals' active roster.

The Cardinals had been a man short on the active roster since last Wednesday's trade that sent Ray Sadock and Elias Sosa to Atlanta for Ron Reed.

However, the Cards may have to drop a player at the end of this week when pitcher Roy Bryant becomes eligible to return from the retired list.

"I didn't go to college and Jesus never went to school and Moses was so dumb he couldn't even talk," but they're great because God manifests himself through what you might consider to be nothing."

The champ said God "don't want you up here preaching and opening oceans and have science teacher saying—I taught him how to do that." "I wish I were a dog and he was a lion."

"I like to ask his wife if he was the same man he was two years ago," he continued.

"Black people just love Howard Cosell. They love to see him talk," he said. "Sometimes, I wish I were a dog and he was a lion."

NBA Adds Umpire For Exhibitions

The National Basketball Association has added a third official — on the courts for all 1975 exhibition games.

"The third man will take some pressure off the other two officials and let them do their job better," said an enthusiastic John Nucato, supervisor of NBA officials.

NBA's Board of Governors Wednesday approved the third official on a trial basis and voted for two other rule changes, one of which could mean the elimination of the center jump ball at the beginning of each quarter.

THE COMMUNITY SPIRIT OF '76

By JOHN SIBUN

The creak of the wagon wheel will be heard across the rolling hills of Connecticut during 1976. All because of the generosity of the state of Pennsylvania which is giving each state in the Union its own Conestoga Wagon, thus ensuring the success of the National Bicentennial Wagon Train Pilgrimage.

Connecticut's wagon is expected this month and shortly thereafter will be available for appearances throughout the state.

Before I go any further, I feel strongly that we owe Pennsylvania a heart-felt vote of thanks. I dislike to bring in the commercial aspect of the project, but these wagons are going to cost that state $5,000 a piece.

What an example! When so many large towns and states bemoan the status of the economy, and would have you believe that they are the only ones to be suffering, this gesture is even more commendable.

Connecticut's own wagon will join the National Bicentennial Wagon Train Pilgrimage when it travels through the state in June of 1976. When the train reaches our borders, the North American Trail Riders Council will provide a four-horse hitch to pull it while the wagon is on the National Train Route.

In order to cover the necessary ground in the time, there are to be several National Trains. The New England Train will originate in Maine and as far as possible follow historic trails and wagon routes. Once through our state, it will travel via New York, New Jersey and then to Valley Forge Park in Pennsylvania, where it is expected to arrive on July Fourth for a two-month stay.

It is hoped that Connecticut citizens will avail themselves of many of the activities the event will generate. Before the train arrives in the state, parchment scrolls will be distributed to each community to provide everyone the opportunity to sign a "Pledge of Rededication." The signed scrolls will be taken to the Wagon Train by outsiders designated by the horse chairman and delivered to the wagon master. The scrolls will ulimately be enshrined at Valley Forge.

Of interest to local citizens, at the end of each day's ride, spectators will be welcome to view the ritual of encamping, watering and the grooming of the teams of horses. Also each evening, weather permitting, there will be entertainment around the campfire with music especially composed for the pilgrimage. Local groups will also be invited to perform.

The actual trail route has yet to be confirmed, but in the meantime there are few things you can do to ensure your participation. Contact the American Revolution Bicentennial Commission of Connecticut if you would like to have a preview of the state wagon this year in your community.

For those of you who wish information pertaining to all horse activities, trails and encampment areas, contact Elmer Gladding, Buck Hill Road, Southbury, Connecticut horse chairman for the Bicentennial Wagon Train Pilgrimage.

Dynamite Found in Bakery

NORWICH (UPI) — A large amount of dynamite, apparently set to be detonated later, was found late Wednesday night in a Norwich bakery by two men who reported to work early.

Norwich police said dynamite, blasting caps and wires were found throughout the Vocatura Bakery, inside and outside of ovens and wired to a telephone. The two bakers discovered the explosives at about 11:30 p.m.

Firemen found a fuse leading from a packet of dynamite up a hill several hundred feet away. No detonator was found.

Patrons of the Wonder Bar, located next door to the Bakery, and residents of nearby homes were evacuated and traffic was detoured from the area while a state police bomb disposal unit worked at the bakery until early today.

Following the seminar, all participants were invited by their host, the Ramada Inn of East Hartford to the grand opening of the hotel which has as its motif a Bicentennial theme. One aspect of particular note was the inn's swimming pool decked out in Bicentennial finery. Clusters of flowers floated on the water surface with miniature Bicentennial and American '76 flags protruding from the center of each display.

"Washington spent here," That is right. I meant to write spent and not sleep. A new, but accurate twist to the old statement.

In doing research for its forthcoming activities, the Bolton Bicentennial Commission came up with some interesting facts on Washington's stay in the area. It appears that the general was in town in March 1781 and on the fourth spent $40 and the following sixteenth a further $46.

Dates Set for Eighth Interfaith Day Camp

The eighth annual MACC Interfaith Day Camp will be conducted from July 14 to July 23 at Concordia Lutheran Church for 60 disadvantaged children from Manchester and Hartford.

The youngsters, ranging in age from 6 to 10, will include 30 Manchester children referred by school social workers, and an equal number of Hartford children from the Inner City Exchange.

The program will include arts and crafts, sports, games, a hot lunch daily, and swimming. Day trips are being planned to Gay City and Rocky Neck State Parks if funding permits.

Money is primarily needed to pay for a bus to transport the children and to provide hot lunches and two snacks a day. There is no charge to any camper, and all personnel including the director, counselors, cooks, nurses and doctor volunteer their time.

It costs $25 to sponsor a child, and any person or group wishing to send a child to camp may send a contribution to Interfaith Day Camp, Manchester Area Conference of Churches, PO Box 773.

Adult and teen-age volunteers are needed to staff the camp and to work with the children in a one-to-one relationship. Donations of home-baked goods are also needed. Those wishing to volunteer either time or baked goods may call the conference office, 649-2093.

The Interfaith Day Camp is being sponsored by the social action division of Manchester Area Conference of Churches. Jim Powers, chairman, is in charge of transportation planning. Nan VonHollen is responsible for securing church funding.

South Congregational Church, 1301 Forbes St., East Hartford, will have its annual Strawberry Festival and Fair Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on the church grounds. An auction will be conducted at 2 p.m.

BICENTENNIAL FACTS
Rev. John Witherspoon, the only active clergyman among the signers of the Declaration of Independence, achieved a greater reputation as a religious leader and educator than as a politician. Emigrating from Scotland to America in the midst of the controversy between the Colonies and the Crown, Witherspoon took part in the Revolution and signed the Articles of Confederation as well as the Declaration. He is better known as the World Almanac notes, for his distinguished presidency of the College of New Jersey (later Princeton University).

GOP Group Wants Open Convention

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A group of conservative Republicans wants an open GOP national convention next year and says potential GOP candidates should not shrink from challenging President Ford.

The group of about 20 conservatives believe Ford and Vice President Nelson Rockefeller should be judged by convention delegates on the basis of party principles and not nominated just because they are already in office.

Headed by Sen. James Buckley, CR-N.Y., the group issued the statement after an eight-hour meeting. It was organized this year to exert conservative influence within the party and in government policy.

"We have agreed that as neither the president nor the vice president was elected to office, it would be in the best interests of the Republican party and of the country for the 1976 Republican presidential and vice presidential nominations to be sought and won in an open convention," Buckley said.

Sen. John Tower of Texas, a leading Senate conservative who was not part of the Buckley group, said that as of now Ford probably will not be challenged for the nomination.

"Ford is trending steadily upward in popular support and within the party," Tower said. "If that continues it is highly unlikely he will be challenged."

But a Buckley spokesman said Republicans should not hesitate to challenge Ford in the primaries or at the convention.

Buckley's statement said a ticket chosen at an open convention "will represent the free choice of the delegates and it will therefore be in the best position to lead a united Republican party to victory in November of 1976."

"The President has himself said that he will seek the nomination on the basis of his record since assuming office," the statement said.

"The merits of the current administration must be judged in 1976 by delegates pledged only to support the principles of their party. The President can ask for no more — and he deserves no less."

Takes New Job
SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Devan L. Shumway, former public affairs director of the Committee for the Re-Election of the President, has been named head of public affairs for the new Commodity Futures Trading Commission.

Shumway has resigned as director of research for the San Diego Union-Tribune. Shumway worked for UPI for 19 years before resigning as Sacramento, Calif., bureau manager to handle press relations for the re-election campaign of Former Sen. George Murphy, R-Calif.

China Unleashes Wide-Ranging Attacks

HONG KONG (UPI) — In free-swinging, wide-ranging attacks, China Wednesday denounced the United States, the Soviet Union, the International Olympic Committee, the nuclear nonproliferation treaty and multinational corporations.

An NCNA article said the sharpest criticism in articles transmitted by the official New China News Agency and Peking Radio was aimed at the Soviet Union.

China accused the Soviets of trying to take advantage of the economic crisis in the capitalist world to divide Western Europe and squeeze out U.S. influence there for its own ends.

An NCNA article said the Kremlin wanted to use the economic crisis "to get more capital and know-how to save the Soviet Union from the economic difficulties arising from its frenzied armaments expansion and war preparations."

Commenting on last month's Geneva conference reviewing the nuclear nonproliferation treaty, the Chinese said the treaty was only a cover-up for nuclear arms expansion by both the United States and the Soviet Union.

An article in the Chinese Communist Party newspaper, People's Daily, said the two superpowers were "the only two countries that are going all out in a nuclear arms race" despite the treaty.

"Yet, they are the very ones crying the loudest for nuclear disarmament and nuclear non-proliferation," the article said.

The parade will be four specialty booths which include: have-a-happy-face painted, plant booth, bake booth and chance booth.

Refreshments will be available. There will be a band

Waitress Loses Leg-Shaving Case

BLOOMFIELD (UPI)—The right of a restaurant owner to fire a waitress who refused to shave her legs has been upheld by the Connecticut Commission on Human Rights and Opportunities.

The commission ruled against Judith Quist, 27, who said she had not shaved her legs for five years.

Examiner Neil Atlas said Wednesday in his decision, based on a hearing March 5, he found no violation of the state's fair employment act by Jerome Young, owner of the Plaza Restaurant in Somers.

Young said he dismissed the woman in February 1974 after complaints from customers shave her legs has been upheld by the Connecticut Commission on Human Rights and Opportunities.

Mrs. Quist, who worked at the restaurant four months, claimed she was being discriminated against because of her sex since men employees did not have to shave their legs.

But Atlas ruled that Young had the right to impose grooming habits on his workers. Atlas said neither state nor federal laws could support her claim to "freedom of expression by the elimination of a stereotype (shaven legs) that is typically female."

"Leg hair, and its length, is not to this tribunal a legally protected right under these statutes," he ruled.

Mrs. Quist's husband, Donald, who said his wife is not seeking back pay but only her job back, indicated they will appeal within the required 14 days.

For further information, call Carol French, 643-2280.

AREA POLICE REPORT

ELLINGTON
Three youths from the Crystal Lake section of Ellington, were charged yesterday with being fugitives from justice in connection with the robbery of the Wales Country Store, Wales, Mass., about 1 p.m. They were apprehended at 2 p.m. and were to be presented in Common Pleas Court 19, Rockville, today.

Those charged were: David Auclair, 18, and Donald Auclair, 17, both of West Shore Rd.; and Jeffrey Sulham, 16, of White Rd.

State Police said the three were apprehended in connection with the armed robbery of Doreen Robbins, a clerk in the store. The amount of money taken is unknown at this time but police said $196 was recovered.

Arnold J. Soucie of Hartford, was charged Tuesday with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquor or drugs. He was stopped by State Trooper Robert Peterson on South Rd. Court date is June 24 at Rockville.

Pardons Underclassmen
WEST POINT (UPI) — President Ford, speaking at the U.S. Military Academy's commencement Wednesday, went along with the opening ceremony, War Minister Gen. Mohammed Gammassy handed Sadat a document to sign that turned the canal from military to civilian authority. Sadat then boarded an Egyptian destroyer that broke a chain stretched 120 yards across the canal.

Near Capacity
WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. industry may be operating close to its real capacity, leaving little room for expansion when business improves, Treasury Secretary William E. Simon has told Congress' Joint Economic Committee.

If that is true, Simon suggested Wednesday, a return to full capacity would still leave millions of people without jobs "for a matter of years."

In addition, he said lack of capacity could result in bottlenecks and shortages — especially in steel, metals, paper, cement, fertilizer and chemical industries. These occurred in 1973 and were a major cause of double-digit inflation.

CINCINNATI (UPI) — The nation's largest producer of playing cards, the U.S. Playing Card Co., has been shut down by a strike of 850 employees.

The firm markets decks of cards under the brand names "Bicycle," "Aviator" and "Congress."

The strike which began Wednesday — over the first 37 years of the company — is over whether a new contract shall allow employees of one union to honor picket lines of other unions at the plant.

McCoy Says School Budget Key to Tax

VERNON
In response to the Vernon Education Association's (VEA) plea to again reject the education budget at tonight's special town meeting, Mayor Frank McCoy today urged taxpayers to come to the meeting and support the budget containing the $388,000 cut supported by the Town Council.

At the annual budget meeting May 20 the education portion of the budget was rejected and the general government budget was passed. The council had originally reduced the $8.5 million education budget by $46,000 but later offered a compromise cut of the $38,000. The Board of Education and VEA said this cut will mean curtailment of programs.

Also brought into the picture was the matter of equipment for the high school addition which is to be completed earlier than expected. The education budget did not allow any money in the proposed budget for this.

In urging approval of the budget Mayor McCoy said, "Unless the budget is passed it will be impossible to limit a tax increase to one mill. Unless the education budget is passed as presented it would appear that a tax increase of at least four mills will be necessary."

He charged the Board of Education with confining the situation by concurrently discussing both the proposed operating budget, "which is the real question," and the nature of the equipment for the Rockville High School addition, "which is not the question."

He added that the Permanent Building Committee (PBC) has already allocated $150,000 of the equipment account and has indicated another $100,000 is definitely available. He said recent work of a school board subcommittee, chaired by Harold Cummings, revealed that only $25,000 is necessary to go off double sessions and open the new addition Feb. 1 when it is supposed to be ready. He said the question of equipping the high school should be severed from the discussion of the proposed budget.

The mayor emphasized that "The passage of the education budget will not impair or curtail any programs such as music, art, baseball etc. That there will be a reasonable amount remaining for increase in salaries as contrasted with other towns; that there will be no layoff of personnel; and assuming the education surplus is returned to the general fund, the tax increase can be held at one mill."

"The Town of Vernon stands at the crossroads as to whether it will continue a sound fiscal policy as in the last five years or whether it will turn the corner into a never-never land of irresponsible spending and speculation," the mayor said.

Tonight's special meeting will be at the Vernon Center Middle School at 8 p.m.

DuBeau Insists Schools Face Program Cuts

VERNON
Referring to a statement on the school budget made by Mayor Frank McCoy, Robert DuBeau of the Vernon Board of Education questioned what the mayor based his information on and stated "it is all wrong."

DuBeau said the mayor did not check with Dr. Raymond Ramsdell, superintendent of schools, nor William Houle, chairman of the school board.

He said if the education budget is approved tonight with the $388,000 cut it will definitely mean curtailment programs and many other things.

He said the cut will mean a $31,000 reduction in the athletic program and curtailment of all varsity athletics, except for league games; curtailment of transportation for athletics and perhaps some curtailment in the coaching staff.

He said the cut will also necessitate action by the town to charge back to the board, on a pro rata basis, for use of town buildings by the recreation department. This would mean charging back some $11,000, DuBeau said.

He said the board also envisions a curtailment of custodial overtime pay which means the school buildings can't be used by outside groups.

In terms of curriculum development, DuBeau said, some programs would have to be eliminated including the adult education programs at the high school. He said the reduced budget would also mean elimination of the school staff.

He said there would be a $15,000 reduction in the maintenance and repairs budget and this would mean, for one thing, that some leaking roofs will have to leak another year.

The reduced budget would also necessitate cutting the block in the area of teaching supplies and a $47,000 cut in the regular equipment budget, or just about half of that proposed budget.

DuBeau said that this equipment budget has nothing to do with the controversial question of equipping the new high school addition.

He further said that the biggest portion of the cut would come in the area of staff elimination which the mayor contends will not happen.

In summation, there has to be, with this amount of a cut, curtailment of programs and serious curtailment in athletics as well as even more serious curtailment of equipment and supplies," DuBeau said.

"In summation, there has to be, with this amount of a cut, curtailment of programs and serious curtailment in athletics as well as even more serious curtailment of equipment and supplies," DuBeau said.
