When electricity came into greater use, there was an increasing demand for mica as an insulator. There is plenty of small pieces of mica for making washers and other small shapes, but the supply of large sheets in natural books could not satisfy the demand.

First the Westinghouse Co. and then others began to make large sheets out of small ones. After the small books were separated into thin pieces, they were dropped in the top of a tower. As they floated down, they were coated by a sprayed fog of a binder similar to

When the sheet at the bottom had build up to a desired thickness it was put between hot plates in a powerful press. The large sheets that resulted could be cut and formed into any shape wanted. Probably the size and quality of mica that can be used now can be produced elsewhere more economically than from the several mines O.C. knew near

SOCIAL SECURITY

Q. I understand that when a person accepts Social Securiy retirement benefits at 62 his benefit is reduced. But, I heard recently that it goes back to the full amount at age 65. Is that

A. No. If a person decides to retire at age 62 and takes the reduced monthly benefit, the benefit amount won't change at age 65 However, some people who retire at 62 later return to work. In that case, the benefit could be higher later. Q. When my children graduated from high school, went back to work. I plan to retire at 62. My husband will be 66 then. Will I get retirement benefits based on my husband's work record or my own?

A. You may be eligible for reduced monthly retirement benefits on your own work record; as well as your husband's. You can't collect both benefits, but you'll always receive the higher of the two

Q. I will be 65 in a few months and ready to retire. I am also going to move out of state shortly after I retire. Should I wait until after I move to apply for Social Security retirement

A. No. You should apply 3 months before you reach 65 For your Social Security retirement benefits and your Medicare coverage. Then as soon as you know your new address, notify any Social Securi-

Q. Even ' -gh I am 66 years old, I am st __vorking full time. My friend: and me that I should find out social Security retirement benefits. Should I do this when I'm still working? A. Yes. For several reasons. Even though you are still working, you might be eligible for more Social Socurity checks. It all depends on your earnings. And, you could be missing out on valuable protection from medicare insurance.

Gandhi Takes Wide Powers

NEW DELHI (UPI) - Prime Minister Indira Gandhi has assumed virtually absolute power in India, jailing hundreds of political opponents and imposing press censorship in the world's largest democracy.

Government spokesmen said 676 per sons were arrested in the lightning-fast crackdown but opposition leaders put the figure as high as 3,500. Mrs. Gandhi, who declared a two-month state of emergency across India Thursday, said the arrests were necessary to combat a "widespread conspiracy" that threatened the nation's internal security. Most of those jailed had led demands for Mrs. Gandhi's resignation following her conviction two weeks ago on charges of corrupt campaign practices. After the crackdown, similar to the mass arrests ordered by Mrs. Gandhi last year to break a nationwide rail strike, the government's chief information officer said the situation was "generally peaceful throughout the country.' But he said there had been some cases of demonstrators taking to the streets to protest the government action. It Ahmedebad, capital of the west coast state of Gujarat, police fired tear gas to disperse stone-throwing mobs. OPEN FORUM

June 21 when I took a house guest to East Cemetery to visit my husband's grave, I was shocked and disappointed to find that the Salvation Army Crest grave marker had been taken from the grave. This crest was designed and made by a former bandsman of our Nashua, N.H., Corps as a memorial to my husband. Ed Flanders, whose name is on the back of the crest, had remembered my husband after 35 years. Because of this the crest is of much sentimental value to me and members of my family. It is approximately 6" by 7" in size with a bronze eagle across the top of it and the worlds "Blood and Fire" across the top and "The Salvation Army" across the bottom. The other symbols on it are of significance to members of The Salvation Army only. Because of the large amount of bronze on it, it is of some monetary value but I cannot conceive of anyone buying an emblem of this kind without questioning the seller. Two weeks previous to this. June 6. when I had taken two of my sisters up to visit the grave, the crest was in place with a yellow red and blue Salvation Army I would greatly appreciate any information anyone might have as to its whereabouts and will gladly give a reward to any "good samaritan" who might find it in his heart to return it to me. Rock Has Ruined The American Saloon did write on a story out of Brooklyn about named Douglas Gilbert, known far and a saloon patron who shot and killed, in wide as a peerless critic of the times and a rapid succession, a woman, the bartender the wilds of Utrecht Avenue, the patron had pleaded with the woman to stop playing the same song on the juke box. She kept telling him to get lost. So he put an illegal hole in her head and when the bartender intervened disposed of that gallant with two bullets in the abdomen before taking himself out of the world. Now then. It must be remembered that this happened in the era of Perry Como, the Andrews Sisters and Frank Sinatra. Their stuff might not have dwarfed Beethoven, but it was mostly soft and low. Often, it was possible to hear an occasional remark by your companion above the juke box's belchings. Although detested juke boxes, I thought the slayer had an extremely low threshold of an-slaughter that impatient beer drinker would wreak in today's gin mills. After five minutes of suffering through the torture of rock, he'd be even money to take every last one of the customers with him and then head for the White House with a bazooka. I would deplore his homicidal reign of terror, but secretly muse that the country had brought it on itself.

There was a time when a philosophical man could seek out the companionship o serious fellows over a dram of spirits in a quiet neighborhood bar. That time is dead. The combination of the juke box and rock has ruined the intellectual life of the American saloon. It goes without saying that the juke box, a vulgar and glittering mechanical monster, is civilization's greatest scourge since the enactment of income taxes. could tolerate this Frankenstein when it spewed forth pop music that had a tune, but the boniface who permits a salesman to install in his juke box records that sound like a fireworks display interspersed with frequent bursts of whining shrieks emitted by juvenile delinquents can strike me off his charge list. I was lured into one of those living hells on a recent evening by a friend who promised the joint had no juke box and that the only sounds I would hear would be the gurgle of good whiskey transferring itself from bottle to glass. The friend was wrong. The proprietor greeted us with the news he had just installed one of the monsters "by popular demand." We fled. Violence against persons, no; although had I been four inches taller and 50 pound heavier I might have thrown a left hook into the grinning face of that saloonkeeper. But surely a civilized government would avert its official face if certain decent lovers of quiet declared war on a piece of machinery whose only function is to disturb the peace.

DEAR ABBY: Please give us your opinion of this very important family matter. My mother-in-law passed away, and about two hours after the funeral services, her youngest son went to play golf. (He

My husband, an older brother, said he was so hurt that his brother showed so little respect for their mother's memory that he will never forgive him. What do you think?

CALIFORNIAN

DEAR CALIFORNIAN: How much respect the younger brother showed his mother while she was alive is more important than how long after her funeral he waited to play golf. Everyone handles his grief in his own way.

DEAR ABBY: About four months ago, my boyfriend asked me to marry him. He is in the service and is stationed in another state. I have not seen him since he popped the question, so I haven't received an engagement ring yet, although we did set a date for our wedding. A friend of mine says that a girl is not really engaged unless she has a ring. She has never had a boyfriend and seldom gets asked out, so maybe she said that out of

Still, I would like to know for sure. Does a girl have to have a ring in order to be officially engaged? ALMOST MARRIED

DEAR ALMOST: A girl doesn't need a ring to be officially engaged. Although you haven't seen him for four months, I presume that you are in touch with one another. Has he estioned the pop since he popped the question?

DEAR ABBY: Let me say first that I am the mother of three and happily married, and have not the slightest desire to attract any man other than my husband. I always wear pantsuits to work because I think they are more modest than dresses. I would stop wearing makeup and shave my head if it insured keeping my male co-worker's minds off my femininity and on my ability to do my job. In other words, I do not want to be viewed as a sex object. My friends and I have adopted a poem as our slogan. It was written by a 12-year-old girl: "Please don't walk in front of me.

I may not want to follow. Don't walk behind me. I may not want to lead.

Please, walk beside me and be my friend." Any man who demands that a woman display her body for him to ogle, and that she be young and have a good figure or suffer his scorn, can never be a friend. COLEEN IN CALGARY

Doubles Team Breaking Up

From time to time, Bill Knight stops at the desk with informative news on activities at the Neipsic Tennis Club. One of the organizers and charter members, Knight reports a change in working conditions indicates that the perennial Men's Seniors Double championship team will be broken up this year.

Jack Davis, a construction superintendent with Green Manor, will be at a Greenville, S.C., address for the next year and this is good news for the perennial runner-up entry of Harvey Pastel and Dave Warren.

Davis will have a major hand in overseeing work on the Pirates was shattered construction of 600 apartments. He left yesterday to take up residence in the South Carolina area, Knight said. This year's Men's Doubles, slated in July, should be wide-open unless Davis decides to take a weekend off and fly back to Manchester for a short vacation. "I wouldn't put it past Jack to arrange his schedule so he W.Va., farm club in the Intercould defend his title," chuckled Knight.

NEW YORK (UPI) - Nothing hurts more than ingratitude. It's killing Billie Jean King right now. She's finding out first hand what Shakespeare meant when he said how sharper than a serpent's tooth it is to have a thankless To her way of thinking, Billie Jean King suddenly is being attacked by a group of ungrateful, thankless children, all hers. Certainly, no one has done any more to help women obtain equality with men in sports than she has. Above anybody else, she has been responsible for the tremendous increase in women's purses in both professional tennis and

If you want some idea how far women athletes have progressed in the past few years, primarily due to Billie Jean King's continuous efforts, look at these figures: Jimmy Connors led the men in tennis money winnings last year with $285,000 while Chris Evert finished first among the women with $201,000. Billie Jean didn't do so badly herself, winding up with $150,000, and that was only the money she picked up in tennis tournaments.

But now she suddenly has a problem, one big enough so that she threatens she'll never play in another major tournament again. Where there were nothing but sunny skies before, suddenly dark clouds loom on the horizon in the form of a collection of resentful women tennis players. An angry woman can be a problem, but when you get an entire group of angry women tennis players, that's real trouble, the kind nobody wants, least of all Billie Jean

This group suddenly got together Thursday at Wimbledon, where Billie Jean is playing, held a news conference and announced they were getting the short end of a rotten deal. Chiefly responsible, they said, was Billie Jean King in her capacity as President of the Women's Tennis Association. The protestors claim their president has become something of a one-woman dictator by limiting membership in the WTA to players earning at least $10,000 a year. They're sizzling over this policy and contend it amounts to a closed shop for only the top stars. Lesley Hunt of Australia, a member of the WTA board and one of those who signed a petition of protest, said the King proposal would force more players out of the game and onto the welfare rolls.

"On the top circuit we have 32 girls playing for $75,000 a week, but on the satellite circuit there is only $6,500 a week for 100 girls to play for," she said. "Many are on the breadline and others are forced to give up. The discrepancy is ludicrous. We want Billie Jean to get back to the original concept which was to benefit all women professionals, not the top ones."

Need Bigger Prizes

Patty Ann Reese of St. Petersburg, Fla., said the biggest need now that the prize money has been increased is for larger draws at all major tournaments like Wimbledon and Forest Hills. "If we do not get the draws," she added, ominously, "then we do not play."

Billie Jean's immediate reaction was cold anger. How could they forget all she had done for women's tennis? How could they have such short memories? She had walked out of two other protest meetings earlier in the week, and the more she thought about this latest development, the angrier she became. If the protestors were going to go around making announcements, she'd make a few of her own as well. proclaimed this one would be "my last major singles tournament ever." She said she will not play at Forest Hills, nor at Wimbledon again even if she wins the title again this That statement goes into the same category as Muhammad Ali's retirement announcement. For all her agitation over equal rights, Billie Jean King still is a woman. Sooner or later she's bound to exercise her female prerogrative and change her mind. She's only

31, nowhere near being through as a tennis player, and nobody knows that better than she does. She says she's achieved her goals in tennis and wishes to concentrate more now on what she's doing with the WTA, her magazine and tv. This is all well and good, but she'll find out soon enough that Billie Jean King, tennis cham-

nis commentator. In that connection, it could be her present problem with the group of protestors stems largely from over-extending herself and becoming involved in too many different conflicting interests. Inevitably something has to give and in this case it seems to be Billie Jean's patience. She can argue all she likes about what she has done for women's tennis; and she has done plenty, but she should know there

To help her understand those giving her such a hard time said: An ungrateful person is sometimes less to blame for it than his benefactor.

Billie Jean King ought to think that over awhile.
