

Leaders Seeking Compromise On Oil Price Control Issue

WASHINGTON (UPI) — It was back to the drawing board today for President Ford and congressional leaders seeking a compromise out of the wreckage of differing energy proposals rejected in turn by the White House and then by Democrats.

Efforts at compromise started with a cruise on the Potomac River hosted by Ford Tuesday night only hours after the House disapproved 82-167 his plan to decontrol oil prices.

The efforts resumed today at a breakfast meeting at the White House, called to discuss aid to Turkey.

The best bet for agreement centered on a simple extension of the $5.25 a barrel price lid on 60 per cent of the domestic oil, a control that will expire Aug. 31 while Congress is in recess. Ford and Congress agree some controls must remain to avoid sudden and massive increases in the price of gasoline.

Congress proposed an extension to Dec. 31 coupled with a lid of $11.25 a barrel on the other 40 per cent of the oil not now controlled. Ford vetoed that plan. The House will decide Thursday whether to try to override the veto.

The House Tuesday turned down Ford's proposal to lift current controls over a 30-month period. Later congressional leaders of both parties and their wives joined Ford on the presidential yacht Sequoia for a cruise.

House Democratic Leader Thomas O'Neill said no conclusions were reached during the cruise but that "we all agreed we have to work it out — we have to compromise."

Ford said in a statement issued by the White House that he was "disappointed" by the House rejection of his plan.

Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield Tuesday proposed a compromise that would decontrol oil prices over a four to six-year period, eliminate the current $2 a barrel tariff on imported oil and levy an excess profits tax on all domestic oil.

But one Democrat, Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., a candidate for his party's presidential nomination, said after the vote Tuesday, "There isn't going to be a compromise by Democrats as far as I can see, unless the majority of the American people have their way, and the majority wants oil prices controlled."

The Lazy, Lazy Days of Summer

Development Bill's Fate Described as 'Fluid'

HARTFORD (UPI) — Democratic leaders, trying to patch together an acceptable city and town development bill, today hurried to get on the finishing touches in time for a late morning hearing.

The leadership, angered at doubts raised by Rep. Donald Esposito, D-Danbury, chairman of the State and Urban Development Committee, took control over the drafting of the bill.

Gov. Ella T. Grasso described the status of the bill as "fluid" and said local charter provisions should be protected. She said she believes the bugs can be worked out of the bill in a way acceptable to its critics.

"I have encouraged them to continue their efforts to present a bill to the General Assembly," Mrs. Grasso told newsmen.

The measure, which has gone through more than half a dozen drafts since she vetoed the original bill June 25, would give local communities broad borrowing powers to rebuild blighted residential and industrial areas.

The development bill was sought by Hartford Democrats who say their city's charter is so restrictive on borrowing funds that it is inhibiting revitalization of the state's capital city.

Mrs. Grasso's requirement that local charter provisions on borrowing be protected would blunt the efforts of Nicholas A. Carbone, Hartford Democratic town chairman and City Council majority leader, to bypass the charter.

Democratic leaders worked to overcome rank-and-file criticism that the bill gives municipal officials too much power to spend taxpayers money.

The Connecticut Taxpayers' Association Inc., meantime, called for a grand jury investigation Tuesday night into what it called Mrs. Grasso's "arrogance" in "railroading" the bill through the assembly. The group said it could not obtain a copy of the revised bill and had less than 24 hours notice of the scheduled hearing.

A closure motion to limit further debate on the bill was expected to be easily approved later today. Democratic leaders were hoping final passage could come sometime tonight.

The law, enacted in 1965, covers seven amendments from being attached to the House-passed measure so it could be sent straight to President Ford's desk without having to go to conference with the House.

Sen. Beck Hints Study Group May Recommend Income Tax

HARTFORD (UPI) — The chairman of the legislature's Finance Committee, Sen. Audrey Beck, D-Storrs, has hinted a study group might recommend imposition of an income tax in a report later this year.

Mrs. Beck, an advocate of an income tax, raised the issue during a debate Tuesday on a motion to allow the legislature to consider repealing the 7 per cent sales tax on services and rented and leased equipment.

She did not refer specifically to an income tax, but alluded to a fair tax system and the legislature's rejection of an income tax in 1971, a few weeks after it had passed one.

Gov. Ella T. Grasso said later she has not changed her opposition to an income tax and that the use of the term "fair tax system" has been used as a euphemism for an income tax. During her election campaign last year, she said she would veto an income tax.

She said she was surprised Mrs. Beck had raised the issue in such a fashion.

Minority Leader Lewis B. Rome, R-Bloomfield, called for inclusion of the tax question on the agenda of this week's special session because of inequities in the measure approved during the regular session.

The comments of Rome and other Republicans were applauded by the galleries, prompting Senate Majority Leader Joseph I. Lieberman, D-New Haven, to accuse Rome of "playing to the galleries" with his appeal.

Lieberman and Senate Leader Joseph Fauliso, D-Hartford, said they realize the tax was not ideal but said changing the tax structure at this time would create chaos.

Mrs. Beck also said she realized the tax was a poor one, but it was not the time now to consider changes in the tax structure since a major review is being undertaken by the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston.

"It is long since past the time for patchwork tax reform," Mrs. Beck said.

The Democratic lawmaker said the supporters of reform face a difficult task in educating the public about major alterations to the tax system to bring about a "fairer" system of taxation.

Four years ago, the Democratic majority in the legislature approved a state income tax which former Gov. Thomas J.

Meskill, a Republican, let lapse into law. Public outrage prompted the lawmakers back into session to repeal the levy before it went into effect.

The sales tax on services was criticized as counterproductive since it allegedly would drive many small firms out of business and would stifle the state's already stagnating economy.

Fauliso accused Rome of playing to the emotions of the public by raising false hopes that the tax could be repealed.

"This form of tax is not good," Fauliso said. "No one is insensitive to the anguish and agony of taxation. We do not intend to profit by the sweat and tears of the people."

Barry Voted in Favor Of Tax Review Proposal

By SOL R. COHEN

When the State Senate voted 21 to 13 Tuesday against an amendment to broaden its agenda, Manchester State Sen. David Barry, D-Fourth District, was one of six Democrats who joined with seven Republicans for the expansion. State Sen. George Hannan, D-Third District was another of the six.

The defeated amendment would have permitted bills to repeal or amend the sales tax on business services and leasing of personal property.

Coffee Prices May Rise

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI) — Coffee drinkers around the world may find the price of their morning cup rising sharply because of severe frost damage to Brazil's 1976 coffee crop.

The worst cold wave in 50 years has destroyed between 70 and 80 per cent of Brazil's 1.2 billion coffee trees, which produce one-third of the world's coffee. The United States buys about 60 per cent of Brazil's coffee exports.

The damage could affect the world coffee supply in 1977 as well as next year, causing shortages that would drive prices still higher.

Prices of coffee for future delivery had soared 62 per cent over a two-day period by early Tuesday, and prices were driven higher by bargain-hunters at the end of the session.

Last-Ditch Effort

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Their cause virtually doomed, southern senators today prepared a last-ditch effort to soften provisions in a 10-year extension of the voting rights law as liberals pressed for its immediate passage.

Sen. John Tunney, D-Calif., the bill's floor manager, fought to keep amendments from being attached to the House-passed measure so it could be sent straight to President Ford's desk without having to go to conference with the House.

A closure motion to limit further debate on the bill was expected to be easily approved later today. Democratic leaders were hoping final passage could come sometime tonight.

The disorders in which the demonstrators overturned cars, set up barricades and burned trashcans and litter broke out on the first anniversary of the fall of the military dictatorship which tyrannized Greece for seven years.

Witnesses said several persons including police and demonstrators were injured and that police made several arrests.

The demonstrators, demanding higher pay, better working conditions and punishment of collaborators with the military regime, threw stones at police, attacked construction workers who refused to strike and marched towards the Ministry of Labor.

Trains Collide

HAMBURG, West Germany (UPI) — A passenger train jammed with rush-hour commuters collided head-on with a freight train Tuesday, killing nearly a dozen persons and injuring scores more.

Police said at least 11 persons died and 70 were injured when the six-car train and the freight train collided outside the Hamburg station.

Rescue squads used steel cutters and acetylene torches to cut up their way through the twisted wreckage of the two trains.

12 Killed

TOULON, France (UPI) — An excursion boat carrying more than 200 tourists caught fire today, causing many casualties.

Authorities set the toll at 12 killed and 50 hurt after the boat, the Venus des Isles, burst into flames following an engine explosion.

Auto Sales Perk Up

DETROIT (UPI) — The slow recovery from the auto industry's worst sales slump in three decades perked up in mid-July. Deliveries matched — and possibly surpassed — last year's levels, according to industry analysts.

Even a slight improvement over results of last July 11-20 would mark the first time since the opening period of September that domestic auto sales have topped a year-ago reporting period.

Sales reports were expected from the four U.S. companies today.

The sales level would be the best for any mid-month period since last July.

But even with the optimistic report, mid-July deliveries were the lowest for the period since 1970 and 26 per cent below the record level of July 11-20 two years ago, before the Arab oil embargo sent sales skidding.

Analysts credited some of the sales upswing to "buy-ahead" by consumers trying to beat anticipated price hikes on 1976 models — expected to average $300 a car above current models. The 1975 models are priced an average of $1,000 more than the last of the 1973s.

The veteran recovery ship USS New Orleans was on station 322 miles west of Honolulu. Forecasters said weather and sea conditions should be good for the last water landing planned for American spacemen. The space shuttle rocket plane set to fly next — in 1979 — will land on a runway like a jetliner.

The flight plan called for Stafford, Brand and Slayton to start preparing today for the return by jettisoning the docking module that served as the link between the Apollo and Soviet Soyuz spaceships during the 44 hours they flew together as a single assembly.

"Certainly there's a lot of nostalgia seeing the end of Apollo," the veteran space pilot said as he, Vance Brand and Donald "Deke" Slayton spent the last full day in space. Americans will log for four years.

"However, I think we are opening a new era with respect to the shuttle where space can have more utility, bring more benefits to man," Stafford said.

Brand and Slayton said in reply to questions radioed directly from reporters for the first time that both have been having a "super" time in space. Slayton, who had to wait 16 years to get into orbit, said, "We have to come back tomorrow and I'm not sure I'm looking forward to it."

"It's the greatest experience I ever had," Brand said. "Things have just been super."

Asked if the joint flight with two Soviet cosmonauts was worth the $230 million the United States spent, Stafford replied, "Yes... definitely so."

In previous news conferences held by pilots in space, questions were formed by committee and read out by astronauts on the ground.

The news conference lasted 33 minutes and when it ended at 9:03 a.m. EDT, Stafford said, "Maybe next time we can have it up here in space."

STAMPS AND COINS

These stamps are being issued by Grenada in honor of the 14th Scout World Jamboree to be held in Norway, July 29 through Aug. 7. Japan was host to the last one, in 1971, and the USA had it at Farragut State Park, Idaho, in 1967.

"Yes, but what happens at a Jamboree?"

"Oh, I thought everybody knew. Scouts assemble from some 50 countries, thousands of them. They get to work and build an Eiffel tower — sort of, then go on to line up serpents, swap neckerchiefs, enjoy athletic events and displays of skill, eat around a campfire and, inevitably, sit and listen to speeches — at which a good scout tries not to squirm and fidget."

The set as above will be on seven stamps and a souvenir sheet. Note that at the upper left corner they have the official emblem and beneath it: "NORDJAMB 75."

Grenada has had several other similar issues, but they are certainly not the only country to take philatelic notice of scouting. A fellow member of our local club, who also belongs to Scouts on Stamps International (SOSSI), has a collection housed in three albums containing over a thousand items.

Many of them are from the sand dune countries that have been so brutal to anyone aspiring to complete coverage. Ajman alone, in two years, put out 153 collectible pieces on the topic. (They weren't all bad, though, as 20 of these show a survey of worldwide uniform styles.)

The most cherished part of the collection, one which came seven years before the inception of scouting, is the set of three Cape of Good Hope, Making Siege issues of April, 1900.

Limits Urged on Vernon Highway Widening

BARBARA RICHMOND (Herald Reporter) — A suggestion to reduce the widening of the highway through Vernon to six lanes rather than the proposed 10 lanes, was made in a letter to the Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) by Brian Will, chairman of the Vernon Conservation Commission.

The commission also administers the Inland-Wetlands regulations and is concerned about the environmental impact the proposed widening would have, especially on the Vernon Circle area.

In the letter to E. Zell Steever, director of the Water and Related Resources Unit of DEP, Will said he feels highway construction plans are still flexible.

Originally the changes were to have been started two years ago but environmental requirements have been responsible for much of the delay.

Noting that the wetlands and watercourses in Vernon which will be affected by the proposed changes, are not extensive, Will said they "are part of the very significant natural areas in Vernon."

He further said the town is attempting to obtain an open spaces grant to purchase this property to use as a park and the commission believes the impact of the proposed project, on this area, is too severe.

Will also told Steever people in Vernon have expressed concern that the proposed revisions to the highway will have a serious adverse effect on the appearance of Vernon Circle.

"In our opinion the present landscaping at the circle provides an attractive front door to the town. We believe revision plans should include provisions to maintain this aesthetic quality," Will said.

In stating his concern, Will said that the proposed project, in the area of Vernon Circle, is one of the most significant natural areas in Vernon.

He said commuter bus lanes are needed in only one direction at a given time of day and the use of the median strip for bus lanes, or even reverse direction bus lanes, should be considered.

"At a time when fuel costs are rising rapidly and speed limits have been reduced to 55 mph it is difficult to believe that six traveling lanes are not sufficient," Will told Steever.

Will also cautioned the state that the location of the stop limit at the edge of the Tankerhoosen Gorge property should be closely watched during construction. "Past experience indicates that this is a design feature which is normally allowed a wide tolerance," Will said.

He further cautioned that the utmost care be taken to prevent damage to the unique pine grove on the floor of the gorge, noting that sitation during construction could irreversibly damage this area.

Will also suggested that plans for the Vernon Circle area be coordinated with the town and offered the assistance of his commission in this area.

At last night's meeting of the commission, Will noted that the commission was not asked its opinion concerning the highway construction when it was discussed originally and that is why it is offering its opinion, to the state, now.

Stream Rerouting Plans Changed

VERNON — A wetlands permit, granted to U & R builders, was amended by the Vernon Conservation Commission Tuesday night to reflect a slight change in rerouting a stream that passes through the Winding Brook Homes development.

John Loranger, Vernon's town engineer, said the change was proposed to avert the possibility of adding water to the Brook Circle lots.

He said the stream passing through the U & R property will not be rerouted to the old channel as originally proposed, but rather only a slight rerouting will occur near the intersection of Center Rd. and Winding Brook Trail.

"The stream will then continue to flow along its present channel. I see no reason not to amend the wetlands permit to reflect this change," Loranger said.

Kenneth Peterson, a surveyor, speaking for U & R, said the original application was for wetland drainage and retention basin and relocation of the channel.

He said, however, since the Planning Commission conducted its public hearing on the application it was found that one property owner in the area has a septic tank system in the low area that could become a problem if the stream is rerouted as proposed.

Peterson said some pipe or bridge effect will be installed.

The Conservation Commission agreed to the change with the provision that Loranger agrees that the plan is acceptable.

The commission also discussed the matter of stream encroachment lines and Loranger said he had no argument against the commission defining water courses to include flood prone land.

He added, "However, at this time we only have two studies, the Corps of Engineers' Hockanum River Flood Plain Study (1966) and the Housing and Urban Development (HUD) Flood prone Map, which covers only certain water courses."

Loranger said these maps may be inaccurate as a result of the passage of time. He said, "Consequently, in order to let a private property owner know that he may have flood prone areas on his land, a more precise line is necessary, in my opinion."

The sole criteria is that this determination should be easy to make. Stream encroachment lines seem to be the best way to do this. They would serve as a trigger to let the property owner know that he should come before the commission to determine the extent of floodplain on his property."

He said in any way should the land area bounded by stream encroachment lines be automatically considered as regulated areas, except perhaps for storm water runoff purposes.

Loranger said the stream encroachment lines on the map are "just the flags" to make a developer come in and question it.

Brian Will, chairman of the commission, said the commission has had some complaints that the wetland regulations don't take care of the person who builds on top of a hill and paves a big area causing a lot of runoff to result.

Commission member John Samaras said he feels specifying a certain number of feet for stream encroachment, as previously suggested, is very arbitrary in that it doesn't consider terrain.

No formal action was taken on the discussion. The commission will meet again on Aug. 4.

Cholesterol Lowering Too Late after Attack

Gets Doctor's

Jack H. Katz of 56 Crosby Rd. was recently awarded his doctor of medicine degree from the Albert Einstein College of Medicine, Bronx, N.Y.

Dr. Katz will intern at Lincoln Hospital in New York City. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Katz.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

"I Refuse To Testify"

Growdy neighbor Jones, sitting on his front porch, sees a reckless driver plough into your parked car. Later, trying to collect damages, you need Jones to be a witness for you in court. But he balks. "I refuse to testify," he says. "The whole thing is none of my business."

Can you force him to take the stand? Indeed you can. Testifying in court is not a matter of choice but a matter of civic duty. The citizen who has useful information in a lawsuit must tell what he knows, willingly or not, because justice is entitled to his assistance.

One "persuader" is the court's power to hold him in contempt. But beyond that, if Jones' refusal should ruin your claim, he may even have to pay you the damages himself. Most states now have statutes allowing damages against the unwilling witness.

Thus, one court imposed damages on a businessman who was "too busy" to testify at a shopper's lawsuit against a supermarket. Conceding that the duty to testify is "rarely pleasant or desired by the witnesses themselves," the court added:

"Public authority has preference over private interests."

On the other hand, a witness need not submit to embarrassment or hardship beyond the legitimate needs of justice. For example:

A woman witness in a homicide case was asked whether the man had been quarrelling with her husband—a question that had no connection at all with the trial. The court threw the question out as improper.

As one judge put it: "Witnesses have a right to be protected from abuse by improper questioning and gratuitous attacks on (their) character."

Mrs. Gandhi Decree Ratified

NEW DELHI (UPI) — The Indian Senate Tuesday ratified Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's decree of a state of national emergency in a stormy session. All opposition parties except the Moscow-oriented Communist party of India walked out.

Mrs. Gandhi, in identical speeches to both houses of parliament, said she imposed the emergency decree June 26 because, she said, the opposition parties and a "section of the press" were trying to "paralyze the government."

She said the decision was a painful one to make.

Opposition parties attacked Mrs. Gandhi for imposing what some of them branded as an act of "personal dictatorship."

Shamim Ahmed Shamim, an independent member said, "telling lies is a feature of dictatorship. I am sorry to say the Prime Minister's statement is full of lies."

HANOVER, N.H. (UPI) — Dr. Louis B. Matthews, a heart specialist at Mary Hitchcock hospital, said Tuesday a national study shows that once a person has had a heart attack it is too late to do much good by lowering his cholesterol levels.

Matthews commented on the results of an eight-year test which involved 8,000 men across the nation, 100 of them taking part through Mary Hitchcock.

The study was to discover whether any of four medications known to lower blood cholesterol levels also would reduce the risk of death due to subsequent heart attacks in men who previously had suffered heart attacks. Men were studied because one of the drugs used was estrogen, a sex hormone found naturally in women.

Each volunteer was placed on one of the four medications, or on a sugar pill, used as a control. All pills looked the same, and the participants were not told what they were taking.

Two drugs, estrogen and a thyroid medication, were discontinued because they were found to have harmful side effects. Of the other two, neither was found to be better than the sugar pill in reducing deaths.

"The most obvious question then becomes whether cholesterol reduction is still an important consideration in preventing heart attacks," Matthews said.

"What the study suggests is that once atherosclerosis has advanced sufficiently to cause a heart attack, cholesterol lowering measures are not very effective. Present evidence still suggests that reducing cholesterol levels may help prevent a first heart attack and this is where our prevention efforts should be concentrated in the future," he said.

BICENTENNIAL FACTS

Johann Kalb, son of Bavarian peasants, was to be known in America as "Baron de Kalb." The soldier of fortune contracted to join the American Army in early November and sailed on April 20, 1777 from France with Lafayette. Congress voted Kalb a commission as Maj. Gen. on Sept. 15. He joined Washington in early November and spent the winter at Valley Forge. In April, 1780, Kalb was ordered to Charleston. He relinquished command to American Gen. Gates July 25 but remained with the army. Ignoring Kalb's professional sound advice, Gates made decisions which led to the annihilation of the army in the Camden Campaign, where Kalb was mortally wounded in the battle and died Aug. 19, 1780. The World Almanac recalls.

Consumer Price Index Up in June

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government reported Tuesday consumer prices in June jumped 0.8 per cent, the largest increase this year, and an indication that inflation once again has become a major economic problem.

The White House expressed surprise at the relatively large increase in the Consumer Price Index and investors on Wall Street reacted by pushing stock prices into a steep decline.

The Labor Department's report on consumer prices showed that sharp increases in the cost of fuel oil, gasoline and some foods rose at an annual rate of 8.6 per cent. The 0.8 per cent for the month was double the May figure and the largest increase since it rose 0.8 per cent last December.

The department also said the for the three months ending in June, prices rose at an annual rate of 7.1 per cent.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen acknowledged the increase was "higher than expected."

"Inflation has by no means been defeated," Nessen said. "Vigilance is needed against more deficits and spending programs that would rekindle inflation."

After reviewing the June price report, Treasury Secretary William E. Simon said: "While the figures will bounce around a good deal in the coming months, the up trend shows that inflationary pressures remain a serious and continuing problem."

The Consumer Price Index registered 190.6 last month, which means that a selection of goods and services that cost $100 in 1967 cost $190.60 last month. The CPI is based on prices of about 400 items sampled in 18,000 shops and stores throughout the United States.

In a separate report, the Labor Department said the bite of higher prices, although partially cushioned by federal tax reductions, left a typical married worker with three dependents with less money to spend last month.

Manchester Evening Herald OPINION

Who Will Pay For It?

The litany is basically the same. Unless the cities or the states get more money from somewhere, preferably the federal government, we are doomed.

Elsewhere on this page, Dan Lufkin, former state commissioner of the Department of Environmental Protection, offers an interesting challenge to state and local government.

His thesis quite correctly says and local government, if it will, can respond more quickly, more wisely and more efficiently to human needs than a vast federal bureaucracy which seeks to be all-knowing and all-prevailing in our lives.

From an idealist point of view, we think few would quarrel with Lufkin's accent on state and local except where do we get the money?

He does not get into this realm but it is the nuts and bolts issue in local government today.

Our cities and towns rail at the state for "mandating" programs and not funding them meaning the local governments must take another hike in local property taxes or trim back on some other service which local citizens want.

The states under such pressures from the local levels as well as from state agencies seek a free hand in handling revenue sharing, larger federal grants, etc., because it, too, has been saddled to a large degree with mandated federal programs but not given adequate revenue to fund them.

The federal government, unlike state and local government, does not have to nor apparently desires to balance its budget and depends instead on deficit financing.

Thus the irony is that state and local governments do get a lot of heat from overburdened taxpayers for doing things the federal government has invented and implemented and taken credit for but doesn't fully pay the bill.

The disturbing thing, though, is that if we totaled up the bill for all the things all levels of government are doing and matched that against what all levels of government are raising by taxes, we would still be in a deficit situation.

Federal aid to the states could help the states balance their budgets and in turn give aid to local governments to balance their budgets; but what would it add to the federal deficit? The forecast $60 billion for this year is considered by many conservative economists to be the outer limits we can go without triggering more problems than we solve.

Thus we get back to the Lufkin thesis that state and local governments have a unique role in that they can resolve dilemmas better than the federal government.

But to do so, the states and local governments must first recognize the biggest lesson in the federal attempts to do the job. That lesson is simply that you don't solve every problem by throwing more money at it.

Until state and local governments seek ways and means to keep services within the taxpayer's ability and willingness to pay, it would merely be changing who is adding to the deficit spending.

Until we learn the limits of government at all levels, we cannot fully utilize the potentials of each. Before we decide who should do what, a hard look must be taken to decide whether certain things need be done at all.

There is no place to hide when it comes to making these decisions.

Nixon Testimony Not Unique

By WESLEY C. PIPPERT

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Richard M. Nixon's testimony before two Watergate grand jurors was only one of several instances in which a former or sitting president has given sworn testimony, according to a former Senate Watergate lawyer.

"Any legal argument asserting that compelled testimony from a president or former president will cause the downfall of the body politics is groundless," the lawyer said. "The weight of history supports Lord Hardwicke's dictum that the public has a right to every man's evidence."

Ronald D. Rutunda, who was assistant counsel for the Senate Watergate committee, made an analysis of past presidents who testified in an article published by the University of Illinois where he teaches law.

According to Rutunda: Thomas Jefferson — Chief Justice John Marshall ruled that President Jefferson could be subpoenaed to testify at the treason trial of Aaron Burr, although he noted the president's official schedule and obligations must be taken into account.

James Monroe — While President, Monroe was subpoenaed to testify for the defense in the court-martial of Dr. William C. Barton, and Attorney General Wirt ruled the subpoena was proper.

Monroe pleaded that his duties would keep him from testifying but he eventually submitted answers to written interrogatories, as Nixon did in the 1974 White House "plumbers" trial.

John Quincy Adams and John Tyler — After they left office, they were subpoenaed by congressional committees investigating charges that Daniel Webster had made improper disclosures from a secret service fund as secretary of state.

Tyler was questioned by the committee and Adams filed a deposition.

Abraham Lincoln — While President, Lincoln testified before the House Judiciary Committee about allegations his wife was a Southern sympathizer.

Ulysses S. Grant — While President, Grant gave a criminal deposition in defense of his confidential secretary, Gen. Orville E. Babcock, under indictment for fraud.

Theodore Roosevelt — After leaving the presidency, Roosevelt testified before congressional committees twice about events during his administration, an acquisition by U.S. Steel and corporate contributions to his 1902 campaign.

Harry S. Truman — After leaving office, Truman refused a subpoena to testify before the House Committee on Un-American Activities investigating a charge by Attorney General Herbert Brownell that Truman had named Harry Dexter White as a Russian spy.

"Truman's refusal to testify is troublesome and not entirely defensible," Rutunda said. "He was apparently not concerned about executive privilege or national security; after all, he spoke about the White appointment and defense himself in a nationwide speech," Rutunda said. "Truman's desire to choose a favorable forum for his defense hardly rises to the level of an evidentiary privilege."

ANDREW TULLY Good Night, May

WASHINGTON — Nobody who knew May Craig will consider for a moment the New York Times' caddish depiction that she was 86 years old when she died in a Silver Spring, Md., nursing home the other day. May always said she'd be 50 until she died, and she was the kind of woman one took at her word.

It seems almost as boorish to note that May was a Washington correspondent and covered every President from Franklin D. Roosevelt to Lyndon B. Johnson for the Portland, Me., Press Herald. Good night, if a body never heard of May Craig the country's in worse shape than feared.

May was a petite, peppery woman who was quiet, Edwardian-like. I always thought she was pretty, only partly because I adored her from the moment in the fall of 1948 when she lent me a pencil at a Senate hearing. But mostly she was an authentic professional, an ever-questioning reporter who took nothing for granted and made politicians sit up and pay attention to business.

"One thing you'd better learn in this town," she told this impressionable young man on one of his first assignments, "and that is that a politician doesn't have to lie to mislead you."

At a news conference, or as a fixture on NBC's "Meet the Press," May Craig asked tough, important questions in a voice that could cut through a brick wall. She was never impressed by celebrity, but took the commonsense position that celebrity was not in the habit of saying things that might tarnish its image. She liked all the Presidents she covered and understood their peculiar problems, but she never let them get away with suggesting that their public utterances were fresh from Sinal.

If May had a favorite in the White House, I suspect it was Harry Truman. They were two of a kind — plain-speaking country types — and May liked politicians who could make of their replies to her questions nice, simple declarative sentences.

But she gave Truman her own particular, ladylike brand of hell at press conferences because it wasn't in her to dilute her professionalism.

"That Craig woman drives me out behind the barn," Truman once told a gaggle of newsmen gathered to enjoy some sippin' whiskey. "She gets on me and won't let up." He paused. Then, with a wink: "I wish she worked for me."

May used to say that she worked hard to make her questions "dodge-proof." When FDR told her tartly, "May, you must have stayed up all night thinking up that question," she replied, tartly, "Yes, sir, I did." John Kennedy used to complain to his staff that "You guys never seem able to prepare me for May Craig's questions. I'd be a lot better off if you did your homework as well as she."

May was a feminist. The files carry the reminder that during President Wilson's inauguration she marched in a suffragette parade, and she never ceased her campaign for equal rights for women in journalism. Naturally, she was the first woman correspondent on a battiship at sea during maneuvers in 1949, and the first woman to fly over the North Pole — on a flight with 35 male reporters set up by the Military Air Transport Service.

She was a feminist, but a ladylike one. I never heard May utter a cussword stronger than damn. Unlike some of today's crop of femlibbers, she did not discuss the sex act in company, mixed or unmixed, nor indulge in bathroom talk. Sometimes her asperity grated on her victims, but she was always fair and never vulgar.

Eighty-six indeed! Go 'way back and sit down, New York Times. May Craig could not have been that old. It was against her principles. Good night, May — and lights of angels sing you to your rest.

Solons Request Investigation Of Arms Sale

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two Connecticut congressmen have called for an investigation into State Department approval of the sale of about 1,400 handguns by the Colt Firearms Division of Hartford, Conn., to an arms dealer in Lebanon. Democratic Reps. William R. Cotter and Toby Moffett said they were troubled by the sales and want a re-evaluation and overhaul of American arms sales procedures.

Moffett, of Lebanon, described the sale as a "small, normal transaction," and "irresponsible." Cotter said he was concerned the weapons could be in the hands of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

The State Department reported Monday that the Colt Co. sold 1,400 revolvers and pistols and ammunition valued at $183,600 last May to a Beirut arms dealer.

The suspension followed news reports Monday that the Colt Co. sold 1,400 revolvers and pistols and ammunition valued at $183,600 last May to a Beirut arms dealer.

Taming Speed Demons

The National Highway Traffic Administration and other official and unofficial voices have been trying to persuade the automobile manufacturers to lower the top speeds shown on their speedometers.

Not only do some drivers seem to take it as a personal challenge to see if their cars can really do 110 or 120, even many normally cautious people may be lulled into the belief that any car capable of such speeds must merely be cruising at 75 or 85.

The biggest of the automakers, General Motors, is finally moving in the desired direction. Beginning next year, the top speed shown on smaller GM cars will be 85 miles per hour, and eventually the change will be extended to larger models. Other manufacturers should take note.

Those drivers who get a thrill out of speed, or just the potential thereof, need not be dismayed. When the nation goes metric, we can all safely hit 100 on the open road — in kilometers per hour, that is. This is approximately equal to 62 m.p.h. (Actually, to stay within the nationwide 55-m.p.h. limit, you'd have to hold it down to around 80 k.p.h.)

Some foreign imports already have speedometers marked off in both miles per hour and kilometers per hour, a preview of the metric transition which will someday take place.

TODAY'S THOUGHT

"On the Signal to the Bull Pen" In this baseball season it's fascinating to see what nine men on a field can do as they strive to create a championship team. But what intrigues me most is watching the manager during the game to anticipate the decisions he will quickly make. Will he lift that hitter and put in a substitute? Will he signal to the bullpen and try to rescue a score that looks hopeless? How does he know where he's going? What is his game plan?

One thing is certain: that manager, in spite of those in the stands who try to second-guess him, knows where he's going. He has a game plan. In a real sense God is our manager. He has a game plan strategy. We never know when he'll signal from the bullpen, but we'd better be sensitive and ready. The Rev. Dr. Orlando L. Tibbets, American Baptist Churches of Connecticut

Decision-making in the state house

Biskupiak Gets Hebron GOP Nod

In Escort

Thomas N. Oliver, son of Mr. and Mrs. Neil E. Oliver of Bangor Rd., Anston, a 1975 graduate of Rham High School, left recently to start a four-year term in the Third United States Infantry, the army's official ceremonial unit and escort to the president.

Anne Dallaire

The Republican Town Committee voted to recommend Michael Biskupiak of Hebron Center to the July 31 caucus for endorsement to run in the November election for first selectman.

The action followed a decision by the town committee to recommend candidates to the caucus for as many offices as possible. The decision was made with the provision that all interested persons be named at the caucus whether or not they are on the recommended slate and that the caucus be advised that the action does not preclude any number of nominations from the floor.

Other state recommendations are Arthur Finney of London Rd. for selectman; Mrs. Marion Celio, incumbent, of Hebron Center, town clerk; Mrs. Marion Foote, incumbent, of Hebron Center, town clerk.

Cruiser Rules Are Adopted

The constables must be in full uniform while on duty and equipped to meet any and all situations. The main use of the cruiser is to patrol the town, including checking empty buildings, businesses, homes of people on vacation and maintaining law and order within the legal boundaries of the town. The constables agreed to wash and clean the cruiser inside and out once a week. Included in the rules adopted by the constables is the operation of the cruiser before starting patrol, after ending patrol, and fueling the cruiser.

Glady's T. Miner and Mrs. Judy Weiner, who had been nominated last month for consideration in filling the town committee, slots asked that their names be withdrawn. There is one vacancy on the town committee and one empty slot in the recommended slate going before the caucus, the office of tax collector. Anyone interested should contact a member of the nominating committee, Mrs. Sandra Kalom, Mrs. Anne Luke, Mrs. Marion Foote, Emery Taylor or Andrew Johnson.

A vacancy also exists in the office of vice-chairman. Mrs. Kalom, who had been nominated for the position last month, announced Thursday night that she would not accept. Tickets are still available for the Dinner Theater fund raiser Aug. 26 at the Coachlight Theatre.

The Recreation Commission announced that the movie of the week to be shown at 8:30 p.m. at the Gilead Hill Elementary School tonight is entitled "The Littlest Outlaw," a Walt Disney production.

at the golf course. He was particularly interested in the value of season passes, but feels the committee needs more information before considering such a decision. Councilwoman Esther B. Clarke continued questioning, pursuing the problems of league and tournament play at the local course. DeGregorio assured Mrs. Clarke that leagues and tournaments do not restrict the entire course and that such activities are the life of a course. Mrs. Clarke also questioned the picnic permit, park ordinances and regulations, and procedures for hiring and training park constables. It was agreed that constables should take advantage of training courses when offered by the local police department. In regard to the rules and regulations, DeGregorio showed the council copies of these enclosed in protective plastic. He recently ordered these posted in many areas of all parks. The council approved the appointment of Austin McKee for a five-year term on the Housing Authority. Republican Councilman Hans DePaul questioned the mayor on the progress of appointments to the Human Rights Commission. The mayor stated he was occupied with press coverage on formation of the commission and because of this had great response from the citizenry. ON SECOND THOUGHT

By JAN WARREN

A Whale of a Shark

The shark was a fake. I knew that when we stood in the long line at the movie theater. I knew that when I squeezed my husband's hand I'll be said, "Ouch." I knew that when I jumped out of my seat and screamed, "Stop it, stop it, STOP IT!"

The shark in "Jaws" was a million dollar Hollywood creation, assembled on a set in California by the industries' top electronic engineers and designers. It was made of plastic and metal and heaven knows what else and its famous "Jaws" were opened and closed by a special electric motor.

Hollywood made no attempt to keep any of this a secret. In fact a picture of the huge immobile shark, sprawled helplessly on a barge en route to the film site on Martha's Vineyard, was circulated in newspapers all over the country.

So everyone knew that the shark was a fake but somehow that didn't make him one bit less terrifying.

After the film when the lights went on I smiled self-consciously at my neighbors in the theater and they smiled back. There was a feeling of instant comradeship between us. We'd done something together.

"Whew!" I said to my husband as we walked to the parking lot. "I'll never feel safe about swimming in the ocean again, never!"

A few days later my husband came running into the kitchen carrying a newspaper in the air. "Listen!" he said. "Here's a statement from a shark expert that will solve all your problems."

He then read me a how-to article that presented a well documented three-point system for handling a shark attack. It went something like this:

1. When you see a shark, stop swimming, remain motionless and above all relax. (Maybe the shark will think you're a giant sponge.)
2. If the shark starts to swim toward you, launch a counter-attack and swim directly toward him. (Apparently, like most bulls, sharks are really very timid.)
3. If, after you've tried steps one and two, the shark fails to retreat, punch him in the nose and gouge his eyes out with your fingernails! (Now what could be simpler? I can't tell you how much safer I feel armed with this kind of knowledge.)

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow, past 65, but I still enjoy dining out, and going to movies and the theater. My hairdresser is a wonderful company, and we frequently go places together. (He's gay!) Of course, I pick up the checks, which, I suppose, makes my friend feel uncomfortable. But I can't see myself letting him pay and then trying to settle up with him afterward. (He may not have that much cash on him.)

Is there some way to handle the money matters without embarrassing him?

ANONYMOUS, PLEASE

DEAR ANON: If you frequent the same restaurants often, arrange with the management to bill you by the month, including a percentage for the tips. Or before the evening's outing, give your escort enough cash to cover everything, and at the end of the evening he can return the change.

DEAR ABBY: I read in the paper that the Catholic church claims 48,701,835 members. Although I am now an atheist, I was baptized and confirmed a Catholic, so today I am still counted as a member of their census.

How can I make that number 48,701,834? I would like to ex-communicate myself — or sign out of the Catholic church.

If you know of any way I can do this, please let me know. C.J.F.

DEAR C.J.F.: I am informed that there is no way to "unbaptize" yourself. You can drop out of the church, of course, but you can't have your name removed from the baptismal records because it is a legal document.

DEAR ABBY: I feel sorry for "MCP in Newport Beach" whose father badly needed a kidney transplant. The problem is not really a scarcity of willing donors but, rather, specialization. The individual societies (kidney, bone, eye, etc.) make it so difficult to donate because they require you to donate their part individually. Each society has its own empire, and you simply cannot donate your entire body to one organization to split it up for whoever needs it.

A few years ago, my wife and I made strenuous efforts all over this city (the second largest in the country) to find any organization (medical schools, hospitals, kidney and other societies) that would accept our bodies after death, take over the entire responsibility for distributing needed parts, then bury what was left. There is simply no such central group.

If these various organizations really wanted donors, all they would have to do is get together and form a cooperative group that would take full responsibility for distribution and disposal (without cost to the donor). If they did that, they would all have more donors than they could handle.

Sign me: "ALL OR NOTHING AT ALL" IN LOS ANGELES (or perhaps: "WHY NOT TAKE ALL OF ME")

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please. Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212, for Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20¢) envelope.

Greenspan Optimistic... WASHINGTON (UPI) — Presidential economic aide Greenspan said today that his expected increase in oil prices is not likely to have the devastating impact on the economy that many others have predicted.

Even with the energy price increase, Greenspan said, the administration now expects "a somewhat stronger pickup in production and employment in the second half of the year than we had generally been anticipating."

Greenspan, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, gave the administration's updated economic outlook in an appearance before the Congress' Joint Economic Committee.

He disputed a study by the Congressional Budget Office which said this fall's anticipated oil price increase by foreign producers and the gradual removal of domestic price controls could cripple the economy's recovery and, give inflation renewed impetus.

It said a similar loss in purchasing power from the first round of world oil price increases was a chief factor in starting the recession.

There were even a few good buys around in commercially grown fresh produce, despite earlier forecasts of high prices. The United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Association weekly market report, prepared exclusively for UPI, showed these specials in a Boston market: sweet corn, nine ears for 99 cents; cantaloupe, 49 cents apiece; and lettuce, three heads for 39 cents for romaine, red leaf or green leaf.

Frozen french fries were five pounds for $1 in Washington, compared with the 43 cents a pound average in March. But the high in Buffalo, was six cents above the average.

Meat prices reached a record high last week in New York City, said consumer affairs commissioner Elmer Guggenheimer. But she is optimistic about the future.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture reports an increase in feed lot activity, which means that prices should start to go down by the fall," she said. The added prices for fresh potatoes still are rising because the new crop won't be harvested until the end of summer.

They Tried and Failed

Mrs. Doris McKinney, an owner of the 70-unit pet hotel at 200 Sheldon Rd., looks over the blanket apparently used by would-be mailbox thieves Monday night. She and her husband, Bill, figure someone admitted the mailbox and kept the key for the cats and dogs they opened Aug. 14, 1974. The thieves must have backed a car up to it and tied the car to the keg. They could not have realized the mailbox post was imbedded in over 1,000 pounds of cement. They knocked the post over but could not take it away. (Herald photo by Barlow)

Moses Quoted Charter In Boundaries Ruling... When Manchester's Assistant Town Counsel Victor Moses ruled June 18 that "The Eighth Utilities District (notwithstanding Special Act 200 of the 1963 General Assembly) cannot extend its boundaries in such an area (Backland) without first obtaining the approval and consent of the Town of Manchester," he based his ruling on Section 20-9 of the town charter.

It states, "In case of any conflict of authority between the Town of Manchester and any District incorporated within the limits of said town, the authority of said town shall prevail."

Manchester's town charter is also a state law. It is Special Act 230 P.M. of the January 1947 session of the General Assembly and accepted by Manchester voters at a June 30, 1947 Special Election.

The House Rules Committee, by a vote of 10-5, Tuesday cleared for action on the House floor a bill which would allow Turkey to receive $185 million in weapons it purchased before Congress adopted the ban beginning Feb. 5.

The bill may be called up today but more likely on Thursday, congressional spokesman Rep. Clement Zablocki, D-Wis., leading member of the House International Relations Committee said. "It's going to be an uphill fight" to get the House to modify the ban despite President Ford's efforts to persuade congressmen to do so.

Rep. Benjamin Rosenthal, D-N.Y., a leading critic of lifting the embargo, said in an interview, "The vote is going to be very close. I think at the moment we have a slight edge."

Ford hosted a breakfast for House members today to impress on them how important the administration feels it is to partially lift the embargo.

The bill, they said, was not a compromise in that it did not require Turkey to move toward a negotiated settlement of the Cyprus problem.

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger has argued the arms ban is disastrous for U.S. Turkish relations and is likely to force the Ankara government to review its relationship with NATO.

The Senate voted 41-40 earlier this year to lift the ban. U.S. negotiators in Ankara have begun discussing with U.S.-supplied weapons in its armed intervention in Cyprus last year on violation of U.S. aid provisions.

The sponsors of the arms ban - Rosenthal, Paul Sarbanes, D-Md., and John Brademas, D-Ind. - circulated a "Dear Colleague" letter among the 45 members of the House urging a vote against lifting the embargo.

She has published and consulted in the fields of child development and abuse, cross-cultural psychology, race relations and futuristics.

She is consulting editor of the Journal of Consulting and Clinical Psychology and vice-president of the board of Denver Mental Health Association. Her professional affiliations also include the American Psychological Association and the Society for the Psychological Study of Social Issues.

Chamber Plans Lyons Farewell... Burl Lyons, former publisher of The Herald, will be honored by the Manchester Chamber of Commerce at a recognition dinner Wednesday, July 23.

The event will be at The Colony in Talcoville, with a social hour at 6:30 and dinner (cash bar) beginning at 7:30. Tickets are $12.50 per person. Reservations are now being taken at the Chamber office, 646-2223.

World Series Dates... The World Series this fall starts Saturday, Oct. 11 in the p.m. of the American League winner. Game No. 2 will be played Sunday, Oct. 12 in the A.L. park. Just in case the Red Sox don't flop on their faces and lose out in the American League's Eastern Division there would be 50-50 chance Boston would be in the fall classic.

All the East winner will have to do is beat the Western Division Oakland A's for the right. Pat Schacker and Gene Gallagher teamed to top Kathy Doan and Bruce Lane to win the Brentwood Swim and Racquet Club's Mixed Doubles Tennis Tournament. Gloria Darling, club pro, supervised play.

Koopel and Ray Gilha each had two hits for Manchester with Gilha and Bruce Ballard driving in runs.

Braves' Attendance Off... Atlanta's Hank Aaron-less Braves are averaging just over 8,000 fans per home game and there is already talk of the club picking up stakes and settling elsewhere. Would pro basketball, ABA version, go in Hartford if the Memphis franchise is transferred here? The guess here is that it would be a big struggle unless the club was a winner and unless there would be a 5,000 guaranteed attendance for every home start. Thanks to Cashif Hunter, the New York Yankees are running far ahead of last year's attendance at Shea Stadium. The guess here is that the New York Mets are running far ahead of the Yankees in pulling in teevee viewers for their games, holding a three to one margin. The Mets, however, are lagging far behind last year's attendance at their home park.

The Herald Angle

By Earl Yost Sports Editor

Just Wondering... Just Wondering Department: If the intent of Manchester's Board of Directors was to name only the baseball diamond at Mt. Nebo in Matt Moriarty's honor and not the entire complex?

MI. Nebo consists of a football field, a softball diamond and a baseball field. Moriarty has sponsored teams in baseball, football and softball, as well as numerous others, over the years. It was for his interest and support of sports in Manchester that a suggestion made by George Maloney to give the baseball field at Mt. Nebo a name.

Great Team Bat Mark... Moriarty's entered last night's Twi League game with a team batting average of .329. This is his 33rd straight official at bats. On the other hand, Secretary Jim Gallagher reports Manchester Community College is hitting just .177 with Tom Kearney the only .300 or better swinger with a .412 average. The MB's have seven over .300 and three over the .400 mark with Paul Barone's .481 the league's best. Manchester Honda has been dropped from the Candlelight Softball League after falling to show for two games. Under Rec Department softball rule, two forfeits and a team is dropped from further play. Tickets for New England Patriot football games will be available at Sears in the Parkade via Ticketcon.

State Golf Title Won by Cooney

With a two-day total of 145, Mike Cooney won the Insurance Youth Classic State Golf Finals at the New Haven Country Club yesterday.

The victory advances the East Catholic High senior to the Nationals Aug. 8-12 at Colorado Springs, Colo.

Cooney fired a 72 in the first round and carded a 73 the second day to assure himself a trip to the Nationals for the second straight year.

Bill Hadden of Hamden, Conn., was runner-up with a 146.

Four-Run Inning Sinks Legion, 5-3... Darkness ended last night's contest in the bottom of the fifth inning but it wasn't early enough as Windsor topped Manchester, 5-3, in American Legion Zone Eight softball action at Wilson Junior High in Windsor.

Windsor was leading 11-3 in the bottom of the fifth but the inning wasn't completed so the score reverts back to 4 1/2 innings completed.

Manchester, now 7-7 in zone action, visits Enfield tonight at 6 with John Koopel expected to drop the starting mound assignment for the locals.

Windsor took a 1-0 advantage after the first frame but Manchester came back with single runs in the second and third innings to take a one-run edge. That lead didn't remain long, however, as Windsor came up with four runs in the fourth and were building on that advantage when darkness forced termination of play.

Koopel and Ray Gilha each had two hits for Manchester with Gilha and Bruce Ballard driving in runs.

No-Fault Divorce Costs Woman $60

HARTFORD (UPI) — Under Connecticut's new no fault divorce law, persons seeking amicable dissolution of their marriage can save hundreds of dollars as do it yourself lawyers. Since the more lenient divorce laws came into effect in 1973, there has been only a fraction of applicants who have filed for divorce on their own. This is because of a number of conditions that should be present before you become your own lawyer. One who did so was Linda Pennington, who said it cost her a total of 100 instead of the usual attorney's fees that range from between $500 and $800. Prior to the new law, one spouse had to be found at fault, requiring expert legal advice in complicated procedures. There were about 11,000 divorce actions in Connecticut last year. Ms. Pennington, the acting executive director of the state's permanent commission on the status of women, said it cost $45 to file her petition in court, $10 to have a sheriff serve papers on her husband, $1 for legal size paper and $4 for a copyrighted booklet with instructions and sample forms. She said the booklet, prepared last year by a New Haven feminist group, shows how persons in uncomplicated, amicable divorce situations can easily represent themselves and overcome a legal system "that makes it kind of forbidding to a lay person." The booklet stresses that it recommends do-it-yourself divorce only when: there are no children involved, no alimony is being sought by either party, there are no major joint assets such as realty or large investments, and both spouses agree to divide their property.

More Ansonia Policemen Arrested

ANSONIA (UPI) — State police investigating alleged corruption in the Ansonia police department have made their fifth and sixth arrests of patrolmen. Officers Walter J. Hartsburg, 46, and Eugene Seelye, 32, both of Ansonia, are charged with state police officers who had bench warrants for their arrests in connection with thefts and burglaries of town merchants. Hartsburg was charged with third degree burglary and fourth degree larceny in connection with a theft from the Virginia Bakery at the Ansonia Mall in February or March of 1974, state police said. Hartsburg also was charged along with Seelye with a theft from the B and B Appliance store on Main Street last April 4.

They also visited the fireboats in the city's port. They returned to Manchester later in the day. The tugboat belongs to the Army Reserve and is manned by its members. In addition to its normal training duties, it is available for use by groups such as Boy Scouts and Explorers. Explorers participating in the excursion were: David Schroeder, Explorer Post President; Gary Powles, Bill Puda, David Nuttall, Kenneth Bain, Kenny Moravec.

Zoo Part Of Plans For Fair

TOLLAND COUNTY A "petting zoo" will be one of the new features of the Tolland County 4-H Fair schedule for Aug. 22, 23, and 24 at the Tolland County Agricultural Center, Rt. 30. Police Press Drive Against MV Violators

COVENTRY
Monica Shea 742-9495
The police department is continuing its intensive attack on motor vehicle law violators. Robert Kjelquist, chief of police, said, "88 persons to date have been summoned to court for speeding violations since our stepped-up campaign began July 2. Our data indicates that a person is injured in Coventry in a traffic accident every 34 days, with an accident taking place every day and a half."
About $150,000 worth of property damage was attributed to the 236 traffic accidents which occurred during the 1974-75 fiscal period. The 236 accidents were an increase of 17 per cent over the previous year. Four persons were killed in the three accidents that occurred during that period.
The chief said, "We had hoped to attack this threat with the receipt of federal funding through the state's Office of Highway Safety which would have provided for an additional traffic patrolman and a vehicle for the special assignment of traffic enforcement. This office submitted the project for funding in November 1974 and received notification on July 8 that the funds would not be provided this year, but the application would remain on file."
"Our only alternative at this point is to continue to pressure the motorists with strict enforcement, hoping we can receive some sort of voluntary compliance of the traffic laws. Speed has been a definite factor in the accidents and I urge all to slow down to conserve lives, property and energy."
"A reduction in traffic accidents will also release our limited number of personnel from performing the time-consuming tasks of accident investigation and perhaps we can work on the mounting crime rate and provide a better level of service in other areas."
Other avenues of traffic accident prevention and reduction through the use of traffic control devices and roadway redesign are being studied by the chief's office and the town manager, Allen Sandberg.

Tax Paid At 98.1%
VERNON
The total amount of taxes collected during the fiscal year just ended in Vernon was $7,817,275 or 98.1 per cent, Mrs. Sylvia Wilson, tax collector, has reported.
There is still $147,854 to be collected. Mrs. Wilson said at the close of the year she had placed 157 liens on real estate property on which taxes had not been paid.
The first installment for the 1975-76 fiscal year is now being collected and is payable during the month of July. Taxes totaling more than $100 may be paid in two installments, one this month and one in January.
Mrs. Wilson said more than the usual number of taxpayers are paying their bills in full this month and she is receiving 400 to 500 payments per day.
In addition to the regular tax payments Mrs. Wilson is also collecting special sewer assessment payments and water bill assessments for customers of the Vernon Water Co., now owned by the town.

Alleged Vote Fraud Probe Progress Slow

NEW HAVEN (UPI) — New Haven County State's Attorney Arnold Markle says his 20-month investigation into alleged vote fraud in the 1973 local elections may be slow but it is moving ahead.

In his first statement since the probe began, Markle said Tuesday: "Judicial proceedings do not always move with the dispatch that certain persons might like, but the tortoise nevertheless won the race."

Markle said a key factor in the investigation will be testimony from New Haven Town Clerk Peter Lynch, who was ordered by a Superior Court judge to testify before a grand jury investigating the scandal. Lynch had balked at testifying.

Lynch may provide information on how an undetermined number of absentee ballots got from his office to the campaign headquarters of the Democratic party in the 1973 elections.

Markle said the delay in the investigation were caused in part by "particular statutes which have never been tested before."

"The defense attorneys, as is their duty, are challenging the prosecutors at every step," he said.

NEWS FOR SENIOR CITIZENS

By WALLY FORTIN

Hill It's that time again, and it sure felt strange coming to work Monday morning at the regular time. Last night we were registering for one trip or another, which means I must get up before breakfast.

Good things only last a little while because next Monday we'll be registering for the Connecticut River cruise. This shouldn't be too bad, because we'll take as many buses as we can fill, and being a short ride it shouldn't matter where you sit on the bus.

Once again, the package consists of your busfare, boat ride (which is a little more expensive this year), and a box lunch. While we're in Greenport for a couple of hours, you can browse around and pick up a nice lunch at any of the many restaurants, on your own, of course.

The trip is $12.50 and must be paid when registering. We would ask you folks to try to have the exact amount or at least the change to make it easy on us to keep things moving.

Setback Games Happenings here at the Center start with Friday, and after a nice turnout for our kitchen social bingo games and a tasty lunch, the action moved upstairs where we had 11 tables for setback with the following lucky winners:

Mabel Wilson, 143; Marge Reed, 141; Helena Gavello, 137; Roy Durey, 135; Mina Reuther, 133; Oscar Cappuccio and Audrey Durey, 127; Joseph Windsor, 125; Thomas Murphy, 123; Peter Frey, 121; Robert Schubert, 120, and Dorothy Andrew, 119.

At this time I want to sincerely thank our good friend and member, Alfred Christenson, who did a super job of driving our bus while Jim was on vacation. All the passengers were very pleased, and expressed their gratitude for doing a good job. It is great to know that Al not only was a big help to us, but that we know where to go for a good bus driver whenever we need one.

Volunteer Driver Speaking of driving, our hat is off to Bob Duggart who has been doing a great job driving our mini-bus. Bob has volunteered to pick up members with the mini-bus during the months of July and August. After that we hope some other member might want to take over for two months.

Remember now, all our volunteers are on a two-month basis. Come September, we'll be putting in our new group. If you would like to help us, just give us a ring.

By the way, the important thing to remember is that even though we set things up for two months, you are in no way obligated or expected to be present all the time. After all, you are retired, and if something more important comes up we want you to go. But please let us know you are going. We are glad for your help. Don't want you to let yourself us.

Pinchle On Monday we had 81 members for our kitchen social bingo games, and after lunch we had 14 tables for pinchle with these winners:

Cara Hemmingsway, 731; John Phelps, 700; Felix Jesanis, 693; Bertha Duhring, 689; Beth Mahoney, 677; Esther Anderson, 675; Alfred Chellman and Lee Steinmeyer, 661; Violet Dion and Audrey Durey, 660; Grace Windsor, 656; Fritz Wilbison and Joseph Windsor, 652; Lyla Steele, 645, and Betty Jesanis, 632.

Now tomorrow in the morning we will have outdoor shuffleboard games, and also card games under the trees in the park. For lunch, we added a little something to the meal to go along with our grinders. We will be serving potato salad and iced tea or hot coffee.

Lingard Lists Officer Lineup Eighth District Fire Chief Granville Lingard Monday announced the lineup of officers of his department for 1975-76.

Continuing as assistant chiefs are Frank Mordavsky, John Christensen and Harold Topfitt. Officers of Co. 1 are Tom Tomkunas, captain; Don Davis, first lieutenant; and William Stanek, second lieutenant.

Officers of Co. 2 are Paul Gwozdek, captain; Wally Irish Jr., first lieutenant; and Chris Marvin, second lieutenant.

Lingard said his department answered 18 alarms in June with no serious fire losses reported. He reported 3 minor fires in structures, 3 car fires, 5 dumpster fires, 1 miscellaneous calls, 2 emergency calls other than fires and 1 false alarm.

Hot Dog Vendors Upset

By WALLY FORTIN

NEW YORK (UPI) — "I have the sales tax," said Vassili Matorias, selling hot dogs beneath a blue and yellow umbrella over his sidewalk cart. "I pay the income tax. I have the license. They don't bother me."

Hot dog vendors' union chief Morris Horn said police were harassing his members — issuing 20 summonses a day to some.

Horn, of the Frankfurter Vendors Union, called the crackdown "Moscow tactics."

"It's true," said Michael Grosso, the association's executive vice president. But he said they want to be rid of "all street hawkers," not just hot dog sellers.

"If it were just one little pushcart, we would say nothing," Grosso said. "But I counted eight in three blocks the other day. The umbrella peddlers, the ones with cheap jewelry and all the different food hawkers — they are littering."

"They've been handcuffed. They've been put in a paddy wagon. They've been jailed."

The Fifth Avenue Association, which represents a number of push midtown shops, takes credit for the crackdown.

He Won Roving Chess Game

Greg Kelley of 104 Delmont St. admires the trophy he received for winning the chess tournament sponsored by the Main St. Betterment Association during Downtown Manchester Sidewalk Days. On the left is Al Cashman of J. Garman Clothiers who arranged the tournament. At the right is Roger Asselin, head of the Manchester Chess Club and tournament director. Because of the unsettled weather the days of the sale, the tournament was held on St. James parking lot during fair weather and at Manchester Community College during the rain. POLICE REPORT

MANCHESTER

Peter J. Avery, 18, of 28 Litchfield St. was arrested Tuesday at 11:13 p.m. at Broad and Lockwood Sts. and charged with operating a motor vehicle (motorcycle) without a license. Patrolman Gary Benson first stopped Avery because of a faulty taillight on the motorcycle. Further investigation revealed the youth did not have a driver's license, police said. And even further investigation revealed the motorcycle's owner, Robert E. Jarvis of 46 Niles Dr., did not know Avery had it, police said. At that point Avery was also charged with third-degree burglary and second-degree larceny. He was released to his father on a $500 non-surety bond for appearance in Common Pleas Court 12 in East Hartford Aug. 4.

John J. Mullin, 42, of 95 Hartl Dr., Vernon was arrested Tuesday in connection with a two-car accident at 9:57 p.m. on Oakland St. at N. Main St. He was charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor or drugs. Mullin drove his car into the rear of the car driven by Mark Turkington, 31, of East Hartford, who was southbound on Oakland St. and waiting for the traffic light to change. No one was injured and damage was moderate. Court is Aug. 5.

A young man on a 10-speed bike failed to see ruts on the south side of Hop Brook Tuesday and he plunged into the brook injuring his head. Robert Heneghan, 21, of 132 Bolton St. was riding his bike down the path from Mt. Nebo to Charter Oak Park at 3:50 p.m. Rain had made deep ruts in the dirt in front of the wooden bridge over Hop Brook. He hit a rut, lost control, and went off the bank into the brook. The bike struck a boulder and flipped over, propelling Heneghan head first against another rock. A passerby found him there semi-conscious and called police who called an ambulance. At Manchester Memorial Hospital, he was treated for a deep head laceration and released.

Two Students Win PWP Scholarships

Two scholarships were awarded Tuesday night at the annual awards ceremony of Parents Without Partners in Manchester.

Recipients of the $100 scholarships were Deborah Brooks of 218 Oak St., East Hartford and Cynthia Kurth of 72 Hillcrest Dr., Vernon.

Miss Brooks will attend Barnard College, New York City, in the fall. Miss Kurth will enter her second year at Manchester Community College in the fall. Scholarship recipients must have a parent who is a member of the organization.
