Avon Firm Apparent Low Bidder On Buckland Firehouse Project

By SOL R. COHEN
Herald Reporter

Fred Brunoli & Sons Inc. of Avon, at $233,000, is the apparent low bidder for constructing the firehouse for the Town of Manchester proposes for 1039 Tolland Tpk., at N. Main St.

Brunoli's price is the apparent low of seven submitted today, at bid openings in the Municipal Building Hearing Room.

Fre-Designed Structures Inc. of Bloomfield is the apparent second low, at $244,500. Next in order are H.C. Tourtellote Construction of Tolland (the company which built the Layton Rd. Firehouse), $249,254; C.S. Margison Inc. of Hartford, $274,000; R.J. Alexander Inc. of East Hartford, $274,500; Camera Construction Co. Inc. of West Hartford, $276,500; and Alma Construction Co. Inc. of Vernon, $313,982. Five other companies were invited to bid but didn't.

Brunoli promised substantial completion in eight months. Three bidders stipulated six months, one other said eight months, another nine months and another eleven months.

The bids were opened by Mayor John Thompson. On hand were Arnold and Richard Lawrence, architects for the proposed structure; Paul Phillips, chairman of the Town Building Committee, and Chief John Rivosca; and Town Manager Robert Weiss. About 10 other persons were present, most representing the bidders.

Rivosca said he was looking for a low bid closer to $200,000. He said about $8,500 additional would be needed for furnishings.

Arnold Lawrence said he had estimated the construction cost at about $211,000.

In addition to the construction cost and the $8,500 for furnishings, an estimated $46,100 already committed must be added. It is for purchase of the property, removal of the structure on it and architects' fees.

The proposed structure would be one-story, of brick and block construction, and would occupy 5,700 square feet. The plans call for two bays for vehicles, a bunk room, an officers' room, a kitchen, a lounge and a watch-room. The parking area would be to the west, adjoining the Buckland School area.

Weiss said the next step would be an approved bond issue for the construction, even prior to awarding a contract. He said the Board of Director's Aug. 5 meeting agenda will include an item for the bond issue.

Should the board authorize the bond issue, said Weiss, the next step would be to award a contract, and the next step actual construction. The town charter permits the directors to authorize bond issues for fire district needs — without a referendum.

Weiss said he's still hoping for completion of the Buckland firehouse by the end of this year, depending on the completion dates spelled out in the bids.

In the meantime and even before the town Board of Directors meets Aug. 5, Eighth Utilities District voters will meet to approve or reject a petition for extension of district fire service. The extension request is for the same Buckland area which the town's proposed Buckland firehouse would service.

Development Bill Action Postponed

HARTFORD (UPI) — The legislature's Democratic leadership, concerned about acting on a controversial city and town development bill too hastily, today postponed consideration of the measure until next Wednesday.

"It would have been unseemly and premature," House Speaker James J. Kennelly, D-Hartford, told newsmen half an hour before the measure was due for action in the Senate.

"We woke up this morning and felt it was a good bill so why not wait a couple of days to be comfortable with it," Senate Majority Leader Joseph Lieberman, D-New Haven, said.

"We've come this far, let's give ourselves and everybody else a chance to go over the bill," Lieberman said.

When asked whether the leadership had enough votes to pass the bill, they said they did. But opposition to the proposal, which already has felt the bite of a gubernatorial veto, was expected from rural and suburban towns.

The Democratic leadership has put heavy pressure on the rank and file to approve the measure which grants broad development powers to local government.

Copies of the final draft of the bill, drawn up by the State and Urban Development Committee Wednesday, were made available publicly one hour before the Senate had been scheduled to meet for a noon session.

Still on the special session agenda were Gov. Ella T. Grasso's nominations to her new five-member Public Utilities Control Authority and a technical amendment to the bill creating the new agency.

Although the development bill would set up a statewide standard for municipal redevelopment programs, Hartford Democrats sought the measure to circumvent stringency requirements in their city charter.

Meantime, the Connecticut Conference of Municipalities said it supports the revised bill as it did the original version.

The measure, the mayors said, will help Connecticut compete effectively with other states to keep and attract industry.

Human Relations Commission May Monitor Anti-Bias Plan

By ALICE EVANS
Herald Reporter

Manchester's Human Relations Commission may act as a continuous monitor of the town's affirmative action plan.

Commission Chairman Robert Blochman said Wednesday after a meeting with Assistant Town Manager Thomas McCarthy that the commission may act as a "continuous monitoring body looking at the performance of the town's affirmative action plan."

Space Pioneering Era Coming To A Close

HOUSTON (UPI) — America's three astronauts readied the last of the Apollo for a Pacific Ocean splashdown today to end a pioneering era of spaceflight that sent 24 men to the moon and kept others in orbit up to 12 weeks.

The landing from the nine-day, 307-orbit mission was set for 5:20 p.m. EDT.

Thomas Stafford, Vance Brand and Donald "Deke" Slayton began their final day in space after their two Russian comrades said at a Moscow news conference that the historic joint flight went "as smooth as peeled eggs."

The three astronauts were awakened by the tune "Redneck Mother" radioed up from Houston control at 8:27 a.m. EDT. "The party's over and it's time to come home," said ground communicator Robert Crippen.

The return of Stafford, Brand and Slayton marked the last planned ocean landing by U.S. spacemen, last parachute descent, last flight of the Apollo and the last time Americans got in space before 1978.

The astronauts also met men of another nation in space for the first time, flew together for 44 hours of joint experiments and ceremonies, and opened what world leaders hailed as a new epoch of international cooperation in exploring space and solving scientific problems closer to home.

"It's a mission of firsts and lasts and still a beginning all in one," said flight director Frank Lattin.

The return also came on the 25th anniversary of the first rocket launch from Cape Canaveral, Fla.

The veteran recovery ship USS New Orleans cruised 322 miles west of Honolulu, ready to pick up the pilots' cone-shaped command module. The weather was good — partly cloudy skies, good visibility and four-foot seas.

Stafford, Brand and Slayton were bringing back six Russian flags, a large United Nations flag and medals and plaques carried into orbit by cosmonauts Alexei Leonov and Valeri Kubasov when they opened the international mission nine days ago.

At a Moscow news conference today, the two cosmonauts thanked the American spacemen for their "big job" in space and wished them a safe return to earth.

"I want to say to the American crew good luck and a soft landing tonight," Kubasov said in English.

"Good luck Tom, good luck Deke, Vance," said Leonov. "Soft landing and best wishes to our American colleagues' families and to all the American people."

Bow and Arrow Used In Murder Attempt

By MAL BARLOW
Herald Reporter

Police are seeking the person who attempted to kill a Horace St. man Wednesday night with a bow and arrow.

Details of the attempt as revealed by Det. Lt. John Krnjak this morning are these:

Russell LeBlanc, 23, of Horace St. was sitting alone in his kitchen about 10:45 p.m. when he was struck in the cheek area of his head with the four-pronged tip of an arrow.

The steel tip lodged deep in his cheek bone area and the shaft broke away and fell to the floor.

Residents of the house in other rooms heard LeBlanc cry out that he had been shot. But they had not heard a shot.

They called police. Police came and found that LeBlanc had staggered outside the house and collapsed. He was able to say a few words to a patrolman at the scene before he was taken to Manchester Memorial Hospital by ambulance. He was bleeding profusely.

Police then found the arrow shaft on the kitchen floor. They determined it had been shot from a point about 17 feet from the house. It had gone through a metal window screen before striking LeBlanc.

At the hospital, doctors removed the arrow tip. LeBlanc was placed in the intensive care unit where he was reported in satisfactory condition late this morning.

"There doesn't seem to be any question at this time it was a deliberate attempt to commit murder," Krnjak said.

Community Hit By Tornadoes

CANTON, Ill. (UPI) — Tornadoes ripped through this west central Illinois community Wednesday night and some 200 National Guardsmen arrived early today to curb looting among the shattered buildings and treeless streets.

Authorities reported various fatality figures during the night but finally settled on two dead and 65 injured.

About one-third of Canton, a town of 15,000, including a portion of the downtown area and the big International Harvester plant, were badly battered.

Guardians were assigned to the rubble-strewn business district to stop the looting reported throughout the night.

Portions of the downtown area looked as if they had undergone a World War II bombing. A car in front of the fire station displayed a big chunk of wood through its engine block, javelin-style.

Energy Compromise

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House has indicated through a series of votes on an energy bill that any new White House compromise on oil pricing must include controls.

In return, Congress might accept a much higher figure than the present $5.25 a barrel ceiling.

President Ford had these possibilities before him today as he worked on a compromise measure he hopes to send Congress by Friday. That would give lawmakers the five working days they are allowed to disapprove the offer before starting a scheduled month-long recess Aug. 1.

White House spokesmen said Ford had a new plan ready, but they would not discuss it. Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield said he expected it might be a three-year phase-out of present controls that now cover 60 per cent of domestic oil and which will expire Aug. 31.

'Don't Load' Plan Okayed

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — The International Longshoremen's Association says it will refuse to load grain for Russia until its 132,000 dockworkers are assured the price of bread and beer won't go up as a result.

Almost 800 delegates to the ILA (AFL-CIO) convention stomped, whistled, cheered and clapped after voicing unanimous approval of a "don't load" resolution Wednesday.

The statement leaves up to ILA President Thomas Gleason the final decision on whether to load the wheat, corn and barley Russia bought from the United States in a multi-million dollar deal recently.

Isolation May End

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (UPI) — The Organization of American States has tentatively authorized a resolution to end the Western Hemisphere's economic isolation of Cuba.

Fourteen OAS nations, including the United States, agreed Wednesday night to support a "freedom of action" resolution to circumvent the organization's 11-year-old sanctions against Cuba.

The countries, which have the necessary two-thirds majority for approval, decided to vote in favor of the resolution Tuesday at a meeting of Western Hemisphere foreign ministers in San Jose.

The resolution, initiated by Mexico and endorsed by the United States, would decide whether to maintain diplomatic and economic relations with Cuba.

Highway Compromise

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The two houses of Congress have agreed on compromise legislation to circumvent federal appeals court rulings which have held up highway construction projects in several New England states due to improper environmental impact statements.

The legislation, authored by Rep. John J. LaFalce, D-N.Y., would allow federal highway funds to go to projects even if environmental impact statements had been prepared by a state agency or official.

Israel Denies Raising Obstacle to Peace Pact

United Press International Israel denied today it had raised a new obstacle to a Middle East agreement by demanding face-to-face talks with Egypt. An authorized government source said today Israel's demand for face-to-face negotiations with Egypt in the final phase of interim peace talks had not been brought up with Cairo before because it was "self-understood." He denied that Rabin's statement constituted a new obstacle to the signing of an interim peace pact.

"In the course of the clarifications, such a demand from Israel did not exist," the source told correspondents in an authorized briefing. "This matter, being self-understood, never needed to be a condition."

"The Americans knew this as we do but whether the Egyptians understood this I don't know," the source said. "This is not a change in the government's position," the source said. "We have not in-

Atheneum Stays Open For Month of August

The Wadsworth Atheneum in Hartford will remain open this August for the first time in three years. Director James Elliott has announced.

The August closing was begun as an economy measure in summer 1972 and continued through August 1974. Elliott said the decision to remain open this year is based on the success of the volunteer admissions program instituted last fall.

A provocative range of contemporary works by young Los Angeles artists will be on view during August, and current exhibitions of "Victorian Furniture" and "Trees" will continue through the summer.

A major fall exhibition of videotape art will be previewed in late August, Elliott said. Annual exhibitions of the Connecticut Academy of Fine Arts and the Connecticut Watercolor Society are still on view.

Three Charged in Burglary

Police arrested three young men near the scene of a burglary into the Kwick Food Mart at 234 Oak St. today at 1:21 a.m.

Charged with third-degree burglary are: William F. Shala, 18, of 14 Arch St.; Gordon E. Horton, 22, of 26 Birch St.; and Thomas Ferrer, 19, of 35 Glenwood St.

The arrests followed a call to headquarters from an area resident that three suspicious persons were near the store.

Patrolman Gary Minor was checking the east side of the store when two males walked out from behind the store. He called for them to stop.

Just then, a third male ran from the rear of the store across Minor's path. He pursued him catching Shala at the rear of an Oak St. home.

Sgt. Orville Cleveland arrested the other two accused soon after on School St.

Nothing appears missing from the store. A cellar window screen is ripped open, police said.

All three were being held this morning in lieu of $500 bond each for appearance in Common Pleas Court 12 in East Hartford today.

POLICE REPORT

MANCHESTER

Bryan J. Topolski, 16, of Hartford was arrested Wednesday on a Common Pleas Court 12 warrant charging him with third-degree burglary (two counts) and third-degree larceny.

The charges stem from recent breaks into the Exxon service station at 408 Tolland Tpk. and the Hollywood Shell station at 342 E. Center St., police said.

Topolski was released on a $1,000 non-surety bond and his case continued to September after he appeared in court in East Hartford Wednesday.

Damian Todone, 18, of 289 Cooper Hill St. was arrested Wednesday at 10:15 p.m. on Garden St. and charged with reckless driving, failure to obey an officer's signal, and failure to wear protective headgear while riding a motorcycle.

The arrest followed a high speed chase from E. Center St., police said. Court date is Aug. 12.

Meissa B. Dumois, 22, of Lebanon was arrested Wednesday on a court warrant charging her with issuing a bad check. She was released on a $100 non-surety bond for court Aug. 11.

A 10-year-old boy was arrested Wednesday at 8:30 p.m. and charged with third-degree criminal mischief.

The charge stems from his breaking a window on the east side of the Waddell School on Broad St.

He was referred to Juvenile Court and released to his mother.

Edward Lumiere of Springfield, Mass. told police Wednesday he saw two wallets fall from a car at 4:30 p.m. as it passed him on Adams St. He picked them up and brought them intact to Police Headquarters.

At 5 p.m., Ray Park Jr. of Trenton, Mich. called headquarters to report his wallets missing. He had left them by mistake on his car's fender when loading shopping purchases.

Park was impressed with the police's honesty. The loss of the $193 in cash in the wallets would have ruined his vacation here with relatives, he said.

He planned to thank Lumiere.

The wallet of an East Hartford man was found by a Broad St. resident Wednesday at 3 p.m. in front of her home. It contained personal papers and a check.

A wallet of a nurse at Manchester Memorial Hospital was reported lost from her purse kept at her nurse station. It contained personal papers and $8 cash.

Someone placed an explosive in a light fixture on the front of a West St. home Wednesday. It exploded at 9:17 p.m.

It broke two panes of glass on either side of the door and sent glass bits into the front woodwork.

Valley Y Schedules Swim Classes

The Indian Valley YMCA will conduct a beginners' synchronized swimming class from July 28 through Aug. 8 from 3:15 to 4 p.m. at Rizzo Pools, Vernon Circle.

In addition, students will learn stunts including shark, marlin turns, the oyster, the dolphin, the sailboat, the tub, and tack somersaults.

Mrs. Garrott was a member of the varsity synchronized swimming team at the University of Connecticut, for three years.

Museum Closes Through August

The Lutz Junior Museum, 126 Cedar St., will close Friday through Sept. 6 for exhibit renovation. It will reopen Sept. 7 at 2 p.m. with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Conde, museum trustees, as host and hostess.

New exhibits will include "Let's Go To a Restaurant," "Water and What is it?" rugs and shapes.

Manchester Evening Herald OPINION

We Agree, Matt

We agree with what Matt Moriarty had to say about the name change for the athletic facilities across Spring St. from Globe Hollow.

Matt said, "I'm not sure it's right to change the name. It's been Mt. Nebo for over a hundred years."

The question arises because of language in the resolution adopted by the Town Board of Directors at its Tuesday, July 1, meeting.

Did the Board of Directors intend to rename the entire Mt. Nebo site or did it intend to give the baseball field the name Matthew M. Moriarty Field?

We think the board intended to name the field in Matt's honor.

The resolution says, in part: "...that the field now designated as Mount Nebo Field be hereafter known as the Matthew M. Moriarty Field, and that a plaque be placed thereon for this designation."

The several paragraphs of the resolution point up the support Matt Moriarty has given to Manchester athletics, but in all of the "whereas" paragraphs, emphasis is placed upon baseball. This one, for instance: "...Because of his personal and financial interest in the game of baseball for the past forty years, he has earned the reputation of being the patron angel of baseball and is affectionately referred to as Mr. Baseball in the Town of Manchester..."

Let none underestimate what Matt Moriarty has been to the Manchester sports scene. What he has done publicly is indelibly inscribed in history; only Matt and the benefactors are aware of the things he has done that escaped public attention, by Matt's own choice.

He truly is the guardian angel of Manchester's sports scene in general and baseball in particular.

We join the entire Manchester community in extending to him a public "thank you."

And we share his views on the name: Let the complex forever remain Mt. Nebo, but the baseball field be the Matthew M. Moriarty Field.

Perhaps the Board of Directors will clarify its intent at its Aug. 5 meeting.

Marilene Dyer of Manchester baked up a batch of Bicentennial cupcakes for the SAM (Summer Activities in Manchester) Crafts Fair last Saturday.

The Real Losers

The Postal Service strike has been averted with the tentative agreement reached over the weekend.

It appears the real loser is the system's patrons.

Almost in the same breath with the announcement of the agreement was the statement that, if ratified by the workers, will necessitate a postage increase.

We could go along with a postage increase if it were not for the fact the Postal Service apparently lost the biggest issue involved in the talks — the right to make layoffs if necessary as it progresses with plans to mechanize the mail distribution system.

Unless the Postal Service has this power, there seems little logic in investing huge sums in mechanized equipment.

The unfortunate victim of this is the patron who will pay more for the same service at best and his alter ego, the taxpayer, who will make up the deficit caused by keeping postal operations in the 19th Century.

We think the Postal Service and the Congress must face up to the fact that at some point in time the handling of mail must be streamlined or it will become too costly for patrons to use and taxpayers to subsidize.

We fear the time is drawing near when it is not the matter of protecting a few jobs but the very concept of national mail delivery system.

In the meantime we are all assured we will be paying more for a service which has been declining rapidly because the Postal Service is a limbo enterprise that is neither fully public nor fully private but one that has the handicaps of both and the freedoms of neither.

The Lighter Side Everything You Wanted To Know About Rocks

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — It recently was my good fortune to spend a week going through the Grand Canyon on a pontoon raft with a group called the Arizona River Runners.

One of the fun parts of the trip was learning all about the interesting rock formations in this gorgeous gorge.

"You wouldn't believe how little I know about rock formations when first I was pushed off on the Colorado River."

By DICK WEST

But, thanks largely to the intellectual curiosity of my fellow passengers, by the time we left the canyon 228 miles later, I was a veritable font of geological data.

The lessons started even before we hit one of the canyon's famous rapids.

"What's that funny looking rock up yonder on that big ledge that looks like it's about to fall on us?" cried one of the passengers, a shrill for knowledge.

While some of us craned our necks for a better view, and others lifted arms to ward off falling ledges, our boatman began what proved to be a seven-day series of absorbing lectures on the history and composition of funny looking purplish rocks.

For any readers who might like to know more about interesting rock formations, I have prepared a short geological monograph that you may find instructive. Basically, the groundwork for what we now call the Grand Canyon was laid 600 million years ago, late on a Tuesday afternoon.

During that period, which geologists refer to as the Archaean Age, the region now known as Arizona ran through an intense collision with the region now known as Colorado.

The result was mighty upheaval of the earth's surface — a sort of terrestrial whiplash. Rocks were tossed every which way.

Some of the rocks were molten. Some were molting. This is an important point to keep in mind.

About 200 million years later, during what geologists call the Age of Consent, there was a long spell of damp weather. The molten rocks became pliant and the molting rocks became rheumatic, which slowed down the molting process and in some cases brought it to a screeching halt.

The net effect was a loss of oxygen that caused the rocks to turn purplish.

This brings us to what geologists refer to as the Jazz Age. Under the stress of constant syncope, the purplish rocks gradually assumed funny looking shapes.

And thus we find them today — geological conversation pieces that add so much to the enjoyment of a raft ride down the Grand Canyon.

Congress Caught Up In Emissions Issue

By Congressional Quarterly

WASHINGTON — Congress, caught up in a crossfire of conflicting arguments from the Ford administration, auto makers and environmentalists, is facing a difficult decision on auto emission standards.

The final tailpipe controls established in the 1970 Clean Air Act already have been delayed three times. Now they are scheduled to take effect in the 1978 model year.

But the administration and the auto industry contend that fuel shortages and other unforeseen problems have made that deadline unrealistic. They want to keep the existing, less stringent "interim" emission limits in effect until 1982.

The Clean Air Coalition, an alliance of environmental groups fighting to retain the 1970 deadline, contends that the industry has no valid reasons for further delays in meeting pollution regulations urgently needed to protect the public health.

Committees in the House and Senate are wrestling with this issue, and appear likely to recommend some sort of compromise that will not please either side. These are some of the arguments members are hearing on the question: Should strict auto emission controls be postponed again?

Auto industry spokesmen say that without the five-year delay, they will face an impossible task — to meet strict emission standards and improve the fuel efficiency of their cars at the same time.

"They point out that Congress, in an effort to reduce dependence on oil imports, is seriously considering legislation setting mandatory fuel economy standards for all domestic cars. And consumers are demanding better fuel economy because of soaring gas prices."

"There is an inherent loss of fuel economy for each tightening of emission control standards," Elliott M. Estes, General Motors president, told a Senate panel in May.

Another witness, Ford Motor Co. president Lee A. Iacocca, stressed unemployment and other economic woes of the auto industry — and consumer resistance to higher car prices. "We just don't have the money it would take to get the fuel economy job done, quickly and well, and at the same time meet statutory emission standards," he said.

"Even if we could raise the money," Iacocca added, "we couldn't move it all speed ahead on both jobs at the same time because both goals require the same kinds of engineers and scientists."

Industry spokesmen say auto pollution has been reduced greatly in recent years, and that the delay they are asking for will have little effect on public health. It may even improve air quality, they argue, by forcing car prices down so that more new, cleaner operating cars will be bought to replace older models not equipped with emission controls.

Another reason offered for the proposed delay in final emission standards is the need for new research and technological adjustments in light of the recent discovery that the catalytic converters in the 1975 cars emit potentially dangerous sulfuric acid pollution.

"We cannot afford to ignore the sulfuric acid problem," President Ford said in June, announcing his decision to call for a five-year freeze in auto emission controls.

Con

"I must confess to a certain amount of skepticism regarding the sincerity of the industry," says Rep. George E. Brown Jr., a California Democrat who opposes relaxation of the 1970 deadline.

Brown and other environmentalists point out that while the administration proposes delaying auto emission standards partly because of possible health hazards from sulfuric acid, it also endorses delays of up to 10 years in imposing air quality standards on some coal-fired industrial plants that are a major source of similar pollutants.

Sulfuric acid emissions could be controlled simply and cheaply in the short run by forcing oil companies to "desulfurize" the gas used by newer cars, environmentalists contend. The government's failure to require this is a result of the Ford administration's coziness with the oil industry, the Clean Air Coalition charges.

"It is all right to raise gasoline prices 20 cents per gallon and create windfall profits but it is not all right to raise gasoline prices a mere penny or two per gallon to protect public health," the group says.

The environmentalists are equally skeptical of the industry argument that tighter emission standards make fuel economy improvements impossible.

"There is no inherent relationship between emission standards and fuel economy," the coalition contends. They point out that small cars in Japan, because they get the best gas mileage, are required to meet tougher emission standards than are larger cars.

"Delaying the standards for five more years will mean that a total of seven model years of cars will be emitting three to four times the level of pollution called for in the Clean Air Act," Clarence Ditlow of the coalition testified in May.

When President Ford endorsed the five-year delay proposal, consumer advocate Ralph Nader wrote to him in protest: "It is well to recall the estimated 4,000 deaths and four million illness-restricted days each year from automotive air pollution, not to mention the property damage and waste that is incurred."

"On Praying"

There are many people who have given up praying because they think they have to use the words of a minister, priest or rabbi. Or it may be because they are afraid to let the searchlight of God's Spirit shine in the heart.

As Mark Twain once put it, "It isn't what I don't know about the Bible that bothers me; it's what I know so well." I know I have sinned against God and others and therefore cannot pray.

The Psalmist made it clear that words cannot take the place of attitudes. For it's in the attitude that one begins praying. It's in being sorry for imperfections and being sorry for using words instead of relationships that one rediscovers prayer.

As Mark Twain once put it, "Have mercy upon me, O God, according to your loving kindness."

Who Will Pay These Fees?

To the Eighth District Voters and residents:

I first would like to state that I am speaking only as a resident and taxpayer and not in any manner as an official of the Eighth District.

Thursday, July 31, 7:30 p.m., will be a most important time for all of you. A special meeting of the residents of the Eighth District will be conducted at the District Firehouse concerning the inclusion or exclusion of the "Buckland Section," into the Eighth District.

A petition has been delivered and accepted, as dictated by the District Charter, for a special meeting. This petition has been signed by the required number of District residents. It calls for a vote by the residents of the Eighth District on that night to accept or reject a petition by the majority of the property owners of the "Buckland Section" to become an integral part of the Eighth Utilities District and by so doing, paying a two-mill tax to the District instead of the six-mill fire tax levied by the town of Manchester.

This petition, it seems to me, brings up several important questions, morally, legally, and most importantly, financially. I agree that the "Buckland Area" residents have the right to petition the board in this manner. In fact, Special Act 200, of the 1963 General Assembly, gives them this right.

I am sure the reasons for this petition are many, not the least being a much less expensive method of fire protection. I cannot blame them for trying to stretch their resources in this manner. I am sure there are many other reasons for this petition, including the growing question of the intelligence of the town building a firehouse in the Buckland area now serviced by the Eighth District.

The residents of the Buckland area have received excellent fire protection from the District Fire Department, at a cost of $250 per call to the town. The number of calls are relatively few, and it seems to me, a less expensive method of providing fire protection.

It therefore seems that I have no question concerning the acceptance of this petition. However, I find myself in a very compromising situation. If, and you vote to accept this petition, what will be the reaction of the Town of Manchester?

The legal question brought up by Assistant Town Counsel, (Victor) Moses, also remains. There is, in the Manchester Town Charter, Section 20-9, a statement that the authority of the town shall prevail in any conflict between said town and the district within. This section seems to be in direct opposition to Special Act 200, mentioned previously in favor of the "Buckland Area."

The question is: "Will the town quietly acquiesce and not fight the inclusion of the Buckland Area into the Eighth District?" I personally do not believe so. There are two sides to the question and the town has a right to its opinion. A legal battle will ensue and lawyers and court fees are not cheap.

Who will pay these legal fees if the petition is accepted and is legally fought? The answer is simple—the present taxpayers. This is what I am unalterably opposed to. None of my tax money or yours should be spent in this battle if it occurs. We raised our taxes this year and have a bare bones budget. Where will the money come from? Do we borrow it? This is what you and I must decide.

To sum up I am in complete favor of accepting the "Buckland Area" into the Eighth District for fire protection, but only if the residents of the "Buckland Area" agree to incur all possible costs prior to their inclusion. I have reiterated this for the past two months and wish to do so most vehemently again. I am not foolish enough to think that other problems will not occur if this petition is accepted, for example, long term development in Buckland, but by prudent management and direction, I believe those problems may be overcome.

Lastly, be at the special meeting on July 31. Speak your piece. Ask questions. Put the Board of Directors, and Buckland residents to question and task. Most importantly, cast your most precious American freedom—your vote.

Shriver's Candidacy

WASHINGTON — Over poached salmon at the Watagrace Terrace, a bunch of the Republican establishment were discussing the just-about Presidential candidacy of Sargent Shriver, former boss of the Peace Corps and the Poverty Corps, and former Ambassador to France and member by marriage of the Kennedy clan.

The conclusion was enunciated by one of Ford's official political advisers: "Shriver will run, all right, and that means we're going to have to work our tails off to elect our tiger."

At present, Shriver is one of those unannounced candidates. He's given his blessing to a committee of 102, registered with the Federal Election Commission, whose job it is to raise the money to get strength around the country and raise the $100,000 in donations of $250 or less from 20 states necessary to qualify for federal matching funds.

Shriver's expected to announce he will make his candidacy official in September.

Ford's folks are wise to view Shriver's activities with concern. Not to derogate such other candidates as Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., Shriver still is the only Democrat on the horizon with the brand of pizzazz — or charisma, if you will — that appeals to both Democratic and independent rank-and-file voters. His committee is packed with the type of people who worked for Jack Kennedy and then for Bobby.

That is to say, the organization includes movie stars like Paul Newman and James Caan; Arthur Ashe, the tennis star; Aaron Henry, director of the Mississippi NAACP; and a clutch of other celebrities and relatively obscure "poverty workers." There isn't a conservative in the bunch, and it makes sense according to the Democratic book of ideology.

In short, Shriver will be what the media likes to call an "exciting" candidate. Translated, this adjective means he'll use phrases like "getting the country moving," and will emphasize the need for social programs to improve life for the underprivileged. Shriver will not waste much time on such dreary subjects as the fiscal deficit and high taxes.

But, as though anticipating a Shriver candidacy, President Ford has indicated in recent weeks that his campaign will be in sharp contrast to that of any Democratic candidate of the Shriver persuasion. He is all for moderation, steadiness and keeping cool, and makes it a point to remind audiences that his approach is "not exciting."

Ford is in favor of helping the poor, but he talks a lot about self-reliance, a term which has low priority among Shriver liberals. "Some people are outside the

Irish Test To Challenge Columbus' Claim

By DONAL O'HIGGINS

DUBLIN (UPI) — When Christopher Columbus landed in America in 1492, chances are the local Indians thought he was just another Irishman.

At least that's the way they tell it down in County Kerry, birthplace of Ireland's seafaring saint, " Brendan the Navigator," who set sail from there on many an epic voyage.

Local tradition holds firmly to the belief that St. Brendan and other Irish missionaries met the American Indians 800 years before Columbus arrived.

There have been several attempts to prove it. Now the scene is being set for yet another. Five men have built a leather boat, patterned on the 6th-century craft used by Brendan and his fellow voyagers, and they plan to test the theory next May.

They will follow a course from Brandon Creek on the west coast of Ireland to North America by way of the western islands of Scotland, the Faroes, Iceland, Greenland and Labrador, a voyage of some 6,000 miles.

Tim Severin, leader of the venture, told a news conference the trip would test the seaworthiness of their ancient-type vessel and would try to find out whether the legends surrounding St. Brendan were based "on sound geographical knowledge."

"It is well known that the distinctive Christian culture of the Celts which flourished in Ireland in the 6th century was carried remarkable distances by Irish monks," he said.

"We hope to test if they reached North America."

The saint is referred to in several ancient chronicles, including the 10th century

"Navigatio Brendani," which sets out in detail the Atlantic voyages made by Brendan.

The first one, according to the manuscript, was made to North America via Iceland and Greenland, and the second to Florida and the Gulf of Mexico. Certain artifacts, such as sculptures discovered in parts of North and South America, only be reinforcing what Severin and his crew show that it can be done, they will find out whether the legends surrounding St. Brendan were based "on sound geographical knowledge."

Ford Thinks He Can Beat Kennedy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford said Wednesday he believes the polls indicate at the present time he could defeat Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., in a presidential election.

He also said that he does not "talk about allegations concerning an opponent" when asked whether the Chappaquiddick incident involving Kennedy would be a liability for the senator particularly after Watergate.

Ford made the statement in a wire ranging interview covering both domestic and foreign policy issues with William F. Anderson of the Chicago Tribune Press Service. Columnist George F. Will, and Godfrey Spering of the Christian Science Monitor.

On the political front, Ford said he thinks Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, Henry M. Jackson of Washington and Edmund Muskie of Maine are among the most formidable contenders for the 1976 Democratic presidential nomination.

"I think the polls indicated at the present time I could," replied Ford when asked if he could beat Kennedy. "If the Democrats draft the Massachusetts senator over his objections."

Kennedy has repeatedly stated he would not accept the nomination for president and Ford has said previously that he took Kennedy at his word.

"Do you think that Chappaquiddick would be a liability for him, particularly in the wake of Watergate?" Ford was asked.

"I don't think that I should pass judgment on his assets or liabilities," Ford said. "I said down here on the lawn (at his news conference), that whether I was running before the convention against a Republican or running against a Democrat when I was nominated, I run my own campaign, and I don't talk about the allegations concerning an opponent."

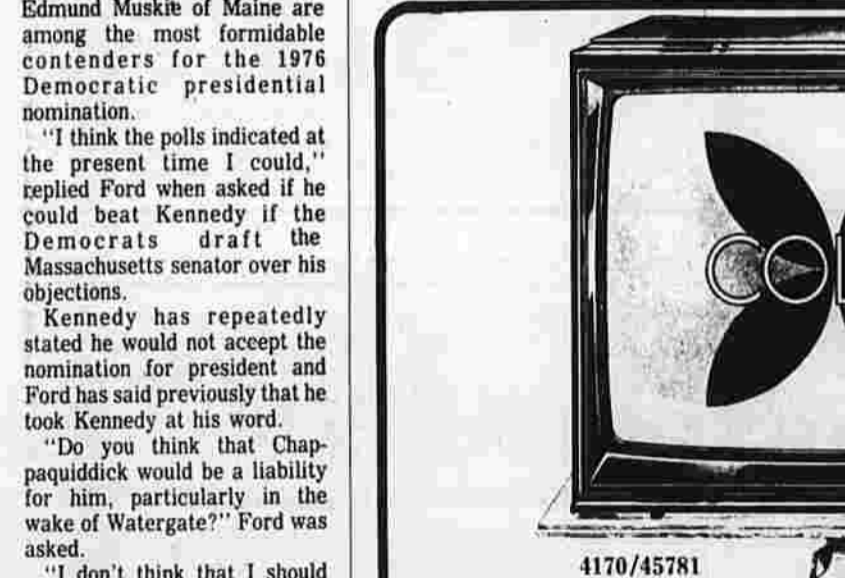

When asked who would be the most formidable candidate, including Kennedy, Ford said: "Again, you can look at the polls and they certainly indicate that Sen. Kennedy would be the most formidable opposition, and I think that is probably right."

Andover Takes Hard Line on Bill For Bolton's Use of Town Dump

Donna Holland
646-0375

J. Russell Thompson, selectman, told the Board of Selectmen he feels strongly that an ultimatum should be issued to Bolton over use of the Andover Disposal Area.

After discussing the situation the board agreed a letter would be sent to Bolton saying Andover wanted the contract for Bolton's use of the area returned within 30 days, but that Andover would not sign the contract until all charges owed by Bolton were paid in full.

The letter will be sent immediately discontinuing Bolton's use of the area.

At the selectmen's meeting Wednesday morning Thompson interrupted a discussion on changing the hours and possibly the days the area is open to voice his opinion on the conflict between the two towns.

Andover's charges to Bolton for its use of the area from January until June 1975 have not been fully paid.

Bolton claimed Andover would not give it the information it sought so the charges could be verified.

There was no contract at the time as the two first selectmen of the towns were operating under a verbal agreement.

At a town meeting in April, Yeamans said he hasn't heard

Andover residents voted to cease Bolton's use of the area as of June 30, 1975. They voted to have the two towns operate under a contract until Bolton's use terminated.

Thompson told the board as long as the present situation continued — the unpaid bill — he was sure Andover residents wouldn't accept Bolton back after June 1976 if it requested an extension.

He said by now Bolton knows it's going to be very difficult for it to get an area to use for disposal.

Thompson said he's sure if Andover cut Bolton out, the most the Department of Environmental Protection would do would be to say it had to keep Bolton.

David Yeamans, first selectman, said if Andover explained the situation, the DEP would probably go to Bolton and tell it that if it didn't pay Andover it (the DEP) would collect Bolton's garbage, dispose of it and charge the Town of Bolton.

Yeamans said Bolton might as well face up to the situation and pay.

He said the contract for Bolton's use of the area for the fiscal year July 1, 1975 through June 30, 1976 was sent to Bolton July 3.

Yeamans said he hasn't heard one word about it even though he verbally offered to discuss the situation with Bolton's selectmen David Dreselly and Norman Preuss.

Yeamans said he was told by the Board of Finance that it was the selectmen's responsibility to collect the overdue money from Bolton.

The balance owed Andover is $8,310.87.

Thompson said they thought things would be different when the new Board of Selectmen took over, but it appears they aren't. He said even though Bolton's board is new it is aware of the entire situation.

The selectmen unanimously approved closing the area to the public at 4 p.m. instead of 4:30 p.m. daily in order to give the area operator time for cleanup.

Yeamans asked the board if it would consider closing the area on Mondays so the operator could have a two-day weekend.

Percy Cook, selectman, objected to having closed two days in a row.

The board agreed to research the matter before making any decision.

The area is open daily except Thursday and Sunday from 8:30 a.m. until 4 p.m.

Thompson raised objection to the fact a commercial collector has a key to the area and told the board it should get the key back.

Cook explained the reason, saying several years ago the state Department of Health didn't allow restaurants to leave its trash outside its building overnight.

He said there would be no problem getting the key returned.

South Windsor

South Windsor's new Health, Education and Human Development curriculum, said the board, has watched the Board of Education very closely. She is a former teacher and newspaper reporter and member of four children.

Frank Derrick, an eight-year resident of the town said he has complained about board politics and would now like to do something positive to improve situations.

John Giordano, chairman of the new Human Relations Commission, said that while he has no children and is not a long-time resident of South Windsor he nevertheless feels he has a great deal to offer the board.

MaryAnn Morrisette said she wants "to help and work and do what I can." Mrs. Morrisette is a mother of three sons and is a grandmother.

Pat Sprenklemyer, critic of

Board of Education member Dave Cohen, claimed four successful years on the board and asked for the opportunity to serve on the council. Cohen is former vice-chairman of the board.

FAMOUS FOR SERVICE SINCE 1937

FROM YOUR NEIGHBOR'S KITCHEN

By VIVIAN FERGUSON

Leah McNally has baked bread since she was a small child. A resident of Portland, Ireland, she is visiting her niece, Ellen Zinsser of 178 Ralph Rd.

At the age of eight, Leah made all the bread for her entire family. "In those days, we made it right over the open turf fire. We had a special griddle for the soda farl."

The word "farl" means "quarters." The flat Irish soda bread that is made on a griddle or a heavy frying pan is traditionally made in four wedges cut from a circle of dough. Leah used to do it that way when she was a child but now she bakes it in eighth.

"We like it for breakfast, freshly made and served warm with butter," Ellen suggested that her aunt also give us her wheat bread as well as her recipe for brack. The latter bread is made with mixed rye, brown sugar and tea. All three breads are very old Irish recipes. "They go away back," says Leah, "and they have been handed down from one to another."

Baking bread is no great chore to this charming Irish lady. "We do have bake shops and many of the young people don't want to bother. But bread is so dear - 2 1/2 pence for loaf bread." We estimated that this is 35-40 cents.

Homemade bread is one of the great traditions of Irish cooking. Notice how easy the recipes are. No waiting for the dough to rise...just mix and pop into the oven with the brack being an exception as to time but still easy to make. The leaving in the soda farl and the wheat bread is the mixture of soda and buttermilk. The bread is made and popped into the oven before you know it with that beautiful aroma wafting about the house.

In Ireland, the main meal comes at mid-day. Most shops and businesses close their doors between one and two o'clock when many people go home to eat. The teapot is on the stove all day long, from morning until late at night with fresh pots being made several times a day. "Yes, we do use tea bags," Ellen interjected. "You know, tea time begins at breakfast in Ireland. There will be two or three cups between breakfast and dinner, some more at dinner, another two or three cups until six o'clock supper. There will be more tea later with perhaps a cookie at bedtime."

"One of Aunt Leah's biggest treats here," continued Ellen, "was the sidewalk sales. The last time she came (which was two years ago on her first trip) she bought so many things that she left her other clothes behind and we had to mail them to her."

Apparently, there are no such similar sales in Manchester. Ellen thinks this is because there is not such a drastic change in climate calling for different weights of clothing. "For example, you never see a snowsuit over there." Leah knows three of the 28 Irish Manchester visiting teenagers this summer, but does not know where they are staying. Irish youngsters, call Leah on the telephone as she would be delighted to talk with you.

Ms. McNally is the mother of five sons whose father passed away many years ago. Her husband Tom is employed at the Portland Foundry while Leah works as an examiner for Ulster Cardigan. Her only bachelor son and one grandchild (she has six) are visiting Ellen and her husband, Carl Zinsser, a local real estate agent and a member of Manchester's Board of Directors.

Leah is the sister of Ellen's mother, Evelyn, who is Mrs. Samuel Watson of 84 Summit St.

Irish Griddle Soda Farl 10 oz. plain flour 1 level teaspoon baking soda 1/2 level teaspoon salt 1/2 pint buttermilk

Steep overnight 1/4 cup mixed fruit and a cup of brown sugar in a cup of cold tea. Next day, add a beaten egg and 2 cups self-rising flour, a pinch of salt. Add cherries and walnuts and mixed peel if liked. Bake in moderate oven for one hour.

Registration will be July 29 and 30, from 9 to 10 a.m. at the West Side Rec or by calling 646-6442.

Carnival To Benefit Muscular Dystrophy

A neighborhood carnival to benefit muscular dystrophy will be conducted Saturday, from 10:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. at 51 Avondale Rd. Mr. and Mrs. William MacGillivray, at whose home the event will take place, will serve as ringmasters, assisted by Jen and Jimmy MacGillivray, Paul, Sue, Colette and Renee Lessard, Kim Merz, Bruce and Mark Giggie, and Jennifer Sullivan. The carnival will feature such games as knock-down bottles, basketball, marbles and balloon football, telling, lucky string, raffle prizes, refreshments, white elephant booth and more. The children conducted a similar event last year with good results.

Many neighbors and area merchants have donated items or money for the drawings. The public is welcome.

DEAR R: I contacted the Society for the Hard of Hearing, and they suggested an alarm clock with a flashing light. They are sold for around $15 at SHH offices. I was told that these are very popular because deaf people are highly sensitive to light.

DEAR ABBY: After 30 years of marriage, my husband and I are no longer in love. We have not shared the same bed for the last 10.

I know that for five years he has been in love with another woman who would marry him if he were free, but he is staying with me out of a sense of duty.

We are both miserable this way, but I still need him for security since I have never worked and couldn't support myself. Also, I am used to his company and an afraid to start a new life for myself at my age (61). I don't know which way to turn. Can you advise me? LOST IN L.A.

DEAR LOST: First, just because you've never worked doesn't mean you can't. Hanging on to a man who keeps an in-name-only marriage intact out of a sense of duty is unfair to him.

Why not talk it over with him? Perhaps, with his help you could find a job in interesting surroundings that would offer many prospects for new friends. If your husband feels as strongly about the futurity of your marriage as you do, he might supplement your income or otherwise contribute to your security. If nothing works out, what have you lost?

DEAR ABBY: Thanks for the exchange on fancy church weddings for young couples who have been living together. You're right; it is in poor taste and an unnecessary expense to parents.

It is also a rip-off of the guests invited to the shindig, since they are supposed to show up with gifts in hand to avoid rupturing family and friend relationships.

I don't care if young people want to kick over my traditions, but I think they ought to try to live with the consequences.

The traditional wedding, and the party after it, has always symbolized a new beginning for a new family. So, if the family began two years ago, why throw a party now? And why ask friends to furnish the house? TIRED OF THE RIP-OFF

DEAR TIRED: Those who feel as you do (and there are many) should decline invitations to such weddings and feel no obligation to send a gift.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

For Abby's new booklet, "What Teenagers Want to Know," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20¢) envelope.

Defense attorneys for two of the four men charged with conspiracy in LaPolia's death said they wanted the dismemberment to see whether his fingerprints would be on the bomb that killed him.

Police said LaPolia was slain while cooperating with federal authorities in seeking evidence in the theft of 30 M16 rifles from the Westley, R.I., national guard armory in November, 1971.

Police said LaPolia was slain while cooperating with federal authorities in seeking evidence in the theft of 30 M16 rifles from the Westley, R.I., national guard armory in November, 1971.

However, new trials were granted Joost, Guillette and Zimi when a federal judge ruled the prosecution withheld key information from the defense. Prior to the ruling, Marrapese withdrew his appeal and is expected to be a major witness against the defendants when their trial begins Monday in Hartford.

Fingerprints of the four defendants did not match those taken from the bomb and although LaPolia's fingerprints are available, the exhumation is necessary to obtain prints of the sides of his fingers, which is the type found on the bomb.

By a 19-0 vote, the panel included an amendment by Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Calif., limiting the next postage rate increase for all classes of mail to 20 per cent.

Stand Gets A Break Today

Painting the Mt. Nebo stand a hamburger brown are some of the workers at McDonald's restaurant and SAM Coordinator Dave Jacobs (on ladder). McDonald's runs the stand during SAM's Saturday night concerts and Tuesday night movies. Jacobs said McDonald's is donating all proceeds beyond basic expenses to his summer youth program. So far, he said, it appears Mike Walsh, McDonald's owner here, will be giving SAM $1,000 or more by the end of the summer. Tom Galvin, assistant manager of the restaurant and the man holding the paint can, said the crews of McDonald's workers at the stand thought it needed repainting. So Walsh bought some paint. Galvin got some workers together with Jacobs, and the stand became brown and clean in time for the band, "Again," playing Saturday night. The McDonald's workers are, from the left, Kyle Sibrzyns, Jim Lombardi, and Jim Buyak. (Herald photo by Pinto)

Weicker Favors Brooke For Vice President

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Sen. Lowell P. Weicker, R-Conn., said Wednesday that Ford-Rockefeller ticket next year would be "strictly the Republican Party of the last 20, 30 or 40 years."

Weicker said Sen. Edward Brooke, R-Mass., a black, should be given consideration for the vice presidential nomination.

Weicker, interviewed on CBS Radio's "Capital Clockroom," said the GOP convention should be "open."

"I think Gerald Ford should lay hands off of the Republican Convention when it comes to selecting a vice presidential candidate," he said.

"I am not against Nelson Rockefeller," Weicker said, "but I think there are a lot of other Republicans that he ought to be set up against so that you end up with the best man or woman."

Asked if Rockefeller has lost his political usefulness, Weicker replied: "I want to project a new image and what you are talking about with this ticket of Ford and Rockefeller is strictly the Republican Party of the last 20, 30 or 40 years."

Thoughts ApLEnty

By Len Auster

Will Not Repeat - With a 7-7 record going into last night's game with Enfield, it appears most unlikely the Manchester American Legion baseball team will be able to defend its Zone Eight title.

One can look no farther than Coach Jack Holik's roster and understand why. He has a very young club, almost as young as the expansion South Windsor team, which has been outclassed by many of the veteran-led outfits.

John Koepsel, who will be attending Division Two national championship Florida Southern in the fall, and lanky right-hander Bruce Ballard are solid pitchers but after that it's sporadic at best. Foriers such as Pete Daigle, Scott Eagleton and Kevin Hanlon have shown the potential to be good pitchers but that's it.

Eagleton, Hanlon and Daigle have had stretches where they've hurled well but then lost their control and composure on the mound. Against veteran clubs, that cannot occur without damage being done and more times than not that's been the case.

If there is a silver lining behind the dark clouds, it's that these youngsters are gaining experience against top-flight competition which will serve them well in the 1976 high school season. Manchester High Coach Hal Parks has only two starters, Tony Barrett and Ballard, returning leaving gaping holes to fill elsewhere. Somebody has to plug the gaps and maybe players like Pat Irish, Ray Gliha, Ed White and Butch Kinney will take starting berths on Parks' club.

Surprise Outfit - How the high schools do is usually a good indicator on how the Legion nine will perform. Zone One champ Bristol, which went to the national championship a year ago, is composed of Bristol Eastern and Central players, each school fielding a line club in 1974.

The leader in Zone Eight and looking like a sure winner is East Hartford. Although it improved vastly over a year ago, Penney High of East Hartford still managed just a 4-14 ledger and East Hartford High was a 500 level nine. Legion coaches Mike Lappes and Wally Widholm, however, have produced a winner with many performers off those two high school teams.

The East Hartford Legion has also been aided by three members of the State Class B champion East Catholic diocesan outfit. Mark McMahon and Mike Furlong have seen plenty of service and Keith Lamb has been the regular centerfielder along with being the No. 2 pitcher.

Date to Remember - For local football fans, one date to remember is Sept. 13 when Manchester High and East Catholic meet for the first time ever on the gridiron at Memorial Field.

Last year, Manchester High won its first two games and everything was looking up but then the record cave in and the Indians lost their final seven starts. East was en route to its fourth winning season since 1969 but fell victim to arch-rival South Catholic, which had lost 21 straight, and finished up 5-1.

Including the contest with East, Manchester High will play seven of its 11-game schedule at Memorial Field.

ALUMNI JUNIOR - Plating seven runs in the fourth inning, Parkade Lanes romped past Manchester Cricket Union, 14-5, last night at Cheney Tech. Steve Pyka, Dave White and Gary Marinac provided the batting punch for the winner, while John Shackett and Bill Herlich each had two hits for Credit.

Behind the two-hit 13-strikeout performance of Brian Matre, Krause Florist-dressed Liggett Parkade, 6-2, last night at the West Side Oval. Lou Kalsiak had three hits and Matre and Chris DeCantis two apiece for the Florists.

At the dual meet with the Germans at Concord, Calif., West Germany took second in the relays on the wind on the home stretch. Bill's Pan-American Pool, Bruce Furniss, Jim Montegomery, Andy Coan and John Murphy swam the 4 x 100 meters freestyle in the record time of 3:24.85.

Shirley Babashoff, the experienced 18-year-old from Mission Viejo, Calif., took the silver medal in the women's 200 meters freestyle in 2:02.50.

The second-place time of 15-year-old Miss Ender was 2:02.83, almost one-half second slower than her world record time of 2:02.27. Third place went to Enith Brighita, a 20-year-old native of Holland.

Marcia Moiny, 19, of Decatur, Ill., finished third in the women's 100 meter breaststroke and captured a bronze with a time of 1:15.00.

That event was won by another East German girl, Hannelore Anke, in 1:12.72, while a Dutch girl, Wilma Mazerewu was second for the silver with 1:14.29. Miss Mazerewu reached her prime relatively late at the age of 22.

The American men's coach Ron Ballatore of Pasadena, Calif., had predicted that world relay records were the most vulnerable at the Cali meet and he was proven right in the 4 x 100 meter freestyle relay.

The American team's time of 3:24.85 was a fraction of a second faster than the 3:25.17 performance of the American time last year.

Disqualified Yugoslavians Won't Leave - CALI, Colombia (UPI) - The Yugoslav Waterpolo team was still angry over the expulsion of one of its players in a doping scandal and its demotion from the winners tournament today, but the team won't walk out of the Cali swimming championships as had been threatened.

Team leaders confirmed late Wednesday night that the Yugoslav polo team, one of the pre-tournament favorites, will jump into the water today against the west host team of Colombia in the losers competition.

If they had carried out their threat to walk out and take the Yugoslav polo team, one of the pre-tournament favorites, will jump into the water today against the west host team of Colombia in the losers competition.

The locals have a non-zone clash tonight against Natick at Veterans Memorial Park in Natick. Friday, Manchester hosts Windsor at Moriarty Field in zone play.

The three Enfield runs were unearned as Manchester committed six errors, three errors and single by Joe Dippel produced the tallies.

Nothing Shorter Than the Truth

Three-and-a-half year old Jennifer Ogden holds the sign which pointed the way for the Youth Division in last night's summer series of cross country races at the MCC campus. Pointed directly at her year-old brother, Brian Ogden, it tells nothing but the truth.

They Compliment and Kid McCaughey

By MAL BARLOW
Herald Reporter

Compliments and sharp kidding rained on George F. McCaughey Wednesday night during the testimonial honoring him for over 29 years of service with the Manchester Police Department.

McCaughey, 53, retired July 1. He served as captain of the patrol division for the last 12 years.

Many of the compliments were through stories about "Big Red," as he was often called.

One story was told during the reception before the more than 250 guests sat down for dinner in Willie's Steak House on Center St. The tellers were several of the patrolmen now on the force.

The newest recruit, Audrey Paradis, came into the station Nov. 4, 1974 ready to begin her first day as the first woman patrol officer of the town.

McCaughey came out of his office, saw Audrey, and said something like, "You're not going out dressed like that."

She is under five feet and had a hard time getting proper police clothing.

The captain said, "Come with me."

"Big Red" took her to a police clothing store and got her clothes that made her look more like a patrol woman.

Then he let her go on the road. Ms. Paradis is still on the force and doing fine today.

The story brought out McCaughey's compassion, basic courtesy, and his great respect for the police uniform.

William Thornton, president of Manchester Sand and Gravel, was master of ceremonies. He gave McCaughey many compliments and kiddings in between speeches.

"Red has done a great job for kids in this town," he said of McCaughey's work with youth in sports.

Kenneth Smith, president of the Manchester Junior Athletic Association, told of the many years McCaughey worked with him on the concession stands at Mt. Neba and Manchester High School during sport contests.

With his help, the association gave over $25,000 to the town for youth sports.

Thomas Blanchard, past district deputy of the Elks, told of McCaughey's work building the Elks program in Manchester and the state. He said McCaughey was the state's Elks of the Year in 1971.

Atty. John LaBelle, retired state's attorney for Hartford County, said, "George always acted with good common sense."

He told of McCaughey's handling the arrest of a suspect in a criminal case. McCaughey talked and talked to the man but could not get him to "come clean."

Finally, the man asked to call his lawyer.

McCaughey took him into a room with a phone. Then he (McCaughey) sat quietly and listened.

The lawyer must have said on the other end of the phone, "Why are you there?"

The man said, "Because I robbed the package store on Tolland Tpk."

LaBelle said, "That was a pretty good confession for us. We had a case then."

McCaughey said, "George led by his example. His conduct was exemplary in his professional and personal conduct."

"He has a warm and abiding interest in youth. He made youth like and respect police," Town Manager Robert Weiss told McCaughey. "You represent the best."

Retired Chief James Reardon said, "There is no more loyal a man than George McCaughey."

At the end of the evening, McCaughey recalled he was at the Babson Academy in Westley, Mass. for advanced police training when he compared notes with another captain about their towns.

"The captain told me the kids and citizens in his town could not stand him," McCaughey recalled.

"I told him police in Manchester were liked and respected."

"He called me a liar. He could not believe it."

"I thank God I had 30 years in the police profession in the Town of Manchester," he said.

Youth Charged with Murdering Hartford Dairy Merchant

HARTFORD (UPI) — A 17-year-old youth has been charged with murdering an elderly merchant found in his Hartford Paint and Wallpaper Co. in the North End section for more than three decades.

The arrest Wednesday of Jose Alfredo Chaigas, 17, climaxed one of the most intensive homicide investigations in the capital city's history, police said.

Chaigas was held in lieu of $100,000 bond for a court appearance today.

Police charged Chaigas with the July 15 murder of Louis Mostow, 73, who operated the Hartford Paint and Wallpaper Co. in the North End section for more than three decades.

Mostow's death occurred as businessmen in the section complained to city hall over a rash of robberies the past several months.

The slaying was the second murder to occur in the victim's family this year. Mostow's nephew was slain in April during a holdup attempt at a parking lot in nearby Bloomfield.

In another crime this year in the section, Hartford businessman Robert Lewtan, 47, was shot to death beside his automobile after leaving the In-door Racquet Club where he worked out regularly. A juvenile has been charged with the crime.

Detectives called Mostow's slaying one of the city's most brutal murders. Friends and relatives contributed toward a $5,000 reward for information leading to arrest and conviction in the case.

Police said Mostow, who ran the store by himself, was found by a policeman in a rear storeroom. The merchant's hands were tied behind his back with clothline and one officer on the scene said Mostow's throat was slit "from ear to ear" and he was stabbed several times in the chest.

Friends of Mostow said he always carried little money on him, although a desk was left untouched on a desk in the storeroom.

Police said they found "cer-tain physical evidence" at the murder scene, including a straw hat, that led them to looking for two other persons for questioning who may have fled the city.

Opposition Voiced at Bill Hearing

By MARK MILLER
HARTFORD (UPI) — The City and Town Development Act, once more revised, had still another hearing Wednesday, an hour after it was back from the printer. The legislation was expected to vote on it today.

Sen. Richard F. Scheller, D-Essex, co-chairman of the State and Urban Development Committee, outlined the changes in the controversial bill but ran into criticism over content and procedure as he pleaded for support.

"The cities are in very serious economic plight," Scheller said. "We just can't walk away from this for six months."

The measure, which has gone through a number of drafts since Gov. Ella T. Grasso vetoed the original bill last month, would give local communities broad borrowing powers to rebuild blighted residential and industrial areas.

House Minority Leader Gerald L. Stevens, R-Milford, opposed a line-by-line analysis of the bill in debate today.

Sen. Harold Hansen, D-Sherman, said he was "embarrassed" by the lack of time other legislators and the public had been allowed to study the completed bill.

"I can't help but think that 80 per cent of the people in the House don't even know this hearing is going on," Hansen said. "You say you don't want to walk away from it. I don't want the people of my district to walk into it."

He termed "undemocratic" a provision to let a city council's development resolution pass if 15 per cent of all registered voters don't vote in the referendum. A thorough development program need not be presented.

He predicted that "businessmen, whose sole motive is profit," would out-bargain municipal officials in development programs, wasting tax dollars.

Scheller countered that many large cities have little choice as private capital is no longer attracted to develop in them.

Heaviest backers of the measure are Hartford Democrats who say the city's charter so restricts borrowing it inhibits revitalization of the state's capital city.

Democratic leaders, including House Speaker James J. Kennedy, D-Hartford, and Senate Leader Joseph J.

Fauliso, D-Hartford, have worked to overcome rank and file resistance to the proposal.

Rep. Donald Esposito, D-Danbury, House co-chairman of the committee, who led the committee last week to vote 73 to defer the measure, took a back seat at the Wednesday hearing. Leadership had taken over the bill's redrafting.

Spokesmen for organized labor said they would only support the bill if it required prevailing rates of pay for construction workers, similar to those on state and municipal projects.

A Connecticut Conference of Mayors and Municipalities spokesman advised against complete bidding, saying it increased prices an average of 20 per cent.

A Greater Hartford Chamber of Commerce spokesman said the bill represented "a fair balance."

Youth To Stand Trial For Murder of Boxer

HARTFORD (UPI) — A Hartford youth has been bound over to Superior Court on a murder charge in the slaying of New England lightweight boxing champion, Donald L. "Donny" Nelson.

Pedro Arroyo-Ortiz was bound over Wednesday by Court of Common Pleas Court Judge Joseph A. Cherauskas who reduced the suspect's bond from $100,000 to $50,000.

Arroyo-Ortiz did not post bond and was placed in the Hartford jail.

Nelson, 24, was shot to death on a Hartford street July 15 in an argument that stemmed from a dispute over a bicycle between a black man and a Hispanic youth, police said.

Arroyo-Ortiz was arrested shortly after the shooting. Police said later bullets taken from Nelson's body were fired from a .32-caliber revolver taken from the suspect at the time of his arrest.

Nelson gained notice for his boxing ability in winning 94 of his 100 amateur fights.

He turned professional last year and under the guidance of former assistant U.S. Attorney F. Mac Buckley, registered 11 straight professional wins, including the New England lightweight crown.

Nelson overcame an early drug habit and recently moved to East Hartford as he developed his professional skills to such an extent that it became difficult to find suitable opponents. Buckley said they just came from a workout and he dropped off Nelson who wanted to visit the old neighborhood when he was shot.

NU Reports Net Earnings

North-east Utilities officials reported last month for the 12 months ended May 31, 1975. The decline in earnings is attributed to the continued effect of the recession on industrial KWH sales and the high cost of energy required to replace the output of the Connecticut Yankee nuclear plant which was out of service for refueling for the month.

ABOUT TOWN

When anyone wanted to have their horses shod they had a choice of nearly a dozen blacksmith shops in Manchester. Not so with oxen. O.C. can remember only one shop that was equipped to handle oxen. That was known as "Murray's" (the man with a different name was operating it just before it was abolished. It was located on the south side of Highland St. about a hundred or more yards east of Gardner St. and opposite a saloon which has since been converted into a dwelling.

There was a heavy frame made of 6" x 6" timbers in which an ox was trussed up for shoeing. Of course an ox hoof is cloven and requires a shoe in two pieces instead of one as a horse has.

The horse's hoof is what has developed from the nail on his middle toe when his ancestors were dinosaurs or some such three-toed monsters. You can feel what is left of the other two toes by putting your palm against a horse's shin with thumb and fingers feeling the sides of the shin bone as you slide it down to the hock. Feel those two bumps, one on each side? That's um.

Compare the side view of a horse's head with the pictures they show us of the prehistoric creatures. Not so different are they? And the whole general design. Smaller weaker forelegs and larger powerful hind legs. Why even we haven't developed entirely away from it yet.

Blacksmith shops were very interesting places for us "young fry." There was much to learn besides some language not so desirable. How deftly the smith could hold up the horse's foot while fitting and nailing the shoe! And the choice names he could call a horse that bore down heavily on him!

Most horses were docile enough but occasionally one would get rambunctious. Then a helper used a short stick with a rope loop through one end. The loop was put around the recalcitrant's upper lip and twisted until he learned that the pain in his lip was directly related to his unruly actions. Horses are very intelligent and soon learn what is best for them, and try to avoid punishment. That's the theory some people use training animals.

O.C. believes there is a better way. It probably takes more time and patience to impress their limited intellect that pleasing their master brings rewards. Just a kind word and a pat seem to be appreciated.

A year-old mare came to O.C. to have if he could "break" her. He didn't try to. He trained her. She had run free without a strap or rope ever touching her. At first she was frightened. Then she became trusting. And then apparently eager to please her best friend. She never felt a whip or was panicked by harsh shouting.

The parting was hard for O.C. when he was leaving her with other people who he fervently hoped would be kind to her.
