Riot-garbed Boston police clash with demonstrators

BOSTON (UPI) — Riot-garbed police clashed with hundreds of rock and bottle throwing demonstrators near Charlestown High School today and 62 persons were arrested near South Boston High as the city began its second year of court-ordered classroom desegregation. An estimated 400 antibusing demonstrators gathered in front of a housing project a block downhill from Charlestown High School, hurling rocks and bottles, shouting epithets and throwing the burning effigy of a black man from the top of a building. Charlestown High was not involved in the opening phase of desegregation last fall.

The arrest total for the morning reached at least 67, according to an unofficial count.

Teams from a task force of 300 police guarding Charlestown High broke up the demonstration under the personal direction of Police Commissioner Robert J. diGrazia. Police in formation swept along neighborhood sidewalks to keep crowds from forming. There were no immediate reports of injuries, but at least one person was arrested.

When the Charlestown crowd refused to disperse, 40 members of the tough Tactical Police Force, 40 metropolitan police and 30 officers on motorcycles moved in.

They were joined by a squad of U.S. marshals who shed their neckties, donned black gloves and riot helmets and armed themselves with clubs. Police mounted on horseback were called into the historic area.

A police cruiser near Charlestown High School was hit by a single .22 caliber bullet in the left door, but there were no injuries.

Police rolled back their original announcement of two mass arrests totaling more than 100 persons in the tense South Boston area. A spokesman said there was confusion in the reporting process and a total 62 members of the Committee Against Racism and the Progressive Labor Party had been charged.

Three persons were arrested for disorderly conduct at a Roxbury playground before school began. A 19-year-old youth at Hyde Park High School was arrested with a 14-inch tape-wrapped bamboo stick in his pocket.

The arrested demonstrators chanted "Power to the Working Class" as they were being booked.

The overall opening of classes was quiet and there were no incidents in the "safety zones" established around schools by some 1,650 police and U.S. marshals. Six hundred National Guardsmen remained in reserve at a building near South Boston High. Police showed up in strength despite a contract dispute and officials said the guardsmen would "not be used at this time."

Attendance at South Boston, Hyde Park and Charlestown high schools was believed far below their projected enrollments.

A spokesman said about 300 students — 200 white and 100 black — showed up at Charlestown, out of a possible 900. This compared with 655 whites, two blacks and 19 other minorities on the first day of school last year when Charlestown was not part of the busing plan.

There were no incidents at Charlestown High, adjacent to the obelisk commemorating the Revolutionary War battle of Bunker Hill. A police sharpshooter with a rifle and scope was stationed atop the gray granite building built in 1848. Two motorcycle-escorted buses containing approximately 60 black students and a half-dozen whites and orientals arrived between lines of helmeted Metropolitan District Police. About 300 reporters and photographers representing news media from around the world recorded their arrival.

Predicts Senate will back oil price control veto

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House Speaker Carl Albert today predicted the Senate would uphold President Ford's veto of a six-month extension of domestic oil price controls.

Albert briefed reporters following Ford's White House meeting with Democratic and Republican congressional leaders in the Cabinet Room to discuss energy policy. Ford met earlier with a group of nine Senate Republicans on the same subject.

Ford is expected to veto the six-month extension by midnight Tuesday. The Senate have scheduled a session Wednesday to vote on the anticipated override. If the Senate does vote to override, the House will also vote on the issue, either Wednesday or Thursday.

Albert agreed with two Republican senators who earlier said the Senate would uphold the veto. But he said if the Senate does override, the House probably would too.

According to Albert, House leaders have the votes to override but the Senate leaders have not made similar claims. "I assume the Senate leaders don't have the votes to override."

Albert said he expected some kind of compromise, between Congress and the White House would be worked out on a phase-out of controls.

"The use of the meeting (with the President) was ... to see if we could work out a compromise," Albert said. "All we could do was talk about a compromise."

Sens. Lowell P. Weicker of Connecticut and William V. Roth of Delaware predicted the President's veto would be upheld. The controls expired Aug. 31. Ford has until midnight Tuesday to veto a six-month extension.

"In my judgment, we will be able to sustain the six months veto," Roth said. He said his personal tabulation came to around 34 votes to sustain — the exact amount needed to uphold the veto if all senators vote.

"I think real progress is being made on extending controls for 45 days," Roth said. "I'm optimistic we'll get it through. By getting a 45-day extension. We'll be able to get an energy program."

"I would expect a veto will be sustained and after that Congress is going to have to talk turkey," Weicker added. "I expect Wednesday is going to be a turning point."

House Republicans propose own goals

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House Republicans today attacked the "miserable record" of Democrats in running Congress and proposed their own legislative goals they said would prevail if voters made the GOP the majority party.

"We've been doing something wrong," House GOP leader John Rhodes told a news conference after noting Democrats have controlled both Houses of Congress for 38 of the past 42 years.

"There is no legislative identity of Republicans in the public's mind and we believe the miserable record of this Congress should be brought to the attention of the people," he said.

"That's why we have drafted this policy program to show the public what Republicans stand for rather than what we are against."

The programs were only given in general terms without details but called for a national health insurance plan, tax reform, liberalization of Social Security benefits and heavy emphasis on job training.

Rhodes said the program, drawn up independently of the White House, was designed not to put House GOP members on a collision course with a Republican President but rather "to provide the American people with a solid notion of what a Republican-controlled Congress would seek to accomplish."

New proposals not yet mentioned by President Ford include an unemployment benefits program that would pick up when current jobless benefits run out and tax incentives for private retirement programs that would be on top of Social Security and private pension benefits.

The jobless proposal would provide benefits pegged to cost-of-living levels for an undetermined length of time but conditioned on a person's willingness to learn a new trade if his old profession has become obsolete.

Tax incentives are now provided to persons who do not qualify for Social Security benefits or cannot enroll in group pension plans and who earmark some of their earnings as a retirement fund. The GOP program would extend those incentives to everyone who wanted to bolster Social Security or group pension benefits with an individual retirement income.

Additionally, the Republicans called for revision of Social Security regulations that would allow for unlimited earnings without a cutback in benefits as now required.

They cited the current budget deficit of nearly $60 billion and predictions it will hit $80 billion or more.

Proposed wetland rules public hearing tonight

Proposed regulations governing inland wetlands and watercourses are the subject of a public hearing scheduled tonight at 7:30 by Manchester's Planning and Zoning Commission. The hearing will be held at the Municipal Building Hearing Room.

The regulations, drafted by Town Planner J. Eric Potter, would give authority to the PZC to regulate activities which remove material from; deposit material in; construct, build or erect upon; obstruct, alter, or pollute a wetland or watercourse.

Included with the regulations is a map showing Manchester land which, according to specified soil types, is classified as wetlands.

Connecticut municipalities were given the authority to regulate activities in wetlands by act of the 1972 General Assembly. The Manchester PZC, designated in February 1974 to administer the act, hasn't assumed control yet.

The proposed regulations are expected to be adopted by the PZC after Oct. 1, the effective date of legislative amendments which have been incorporated into the Manchester rules.

In other public hearings tonight, the PZC will consider:

• A request for rezoning from Rural Residence to Industrial of an 18-acre tract off Parker St. The application was filed by Robert W. Agnew.

• Approval of a roof sign application filed by Dairy Mart Inc., 368 Spencer St.

• A request for rezoning from Industrial to Residence B Zone of parcels on Knighton, Pearl and Harrison Sts. The application, filed by Frank Adams et al, would affect property at 37 Knighton St., 41 Knighton St., 31-33 Knighton St., 158-160 Pearl St., and 154 Pearl St.

• A subdivision application filed by Stanley Bray, affecting a lot at Green Rd. and Woodbridge St.

Board to be given details on adult training program

A state sponsored adult occupational training program will be described to the Board of Education tonight by School Supt. James P. Kennedy. The board will meet at 8 in the administration building at 45 N. School St.

There are some state funds available for an experimental program to train adults in occupations for which there is a market, said Dr. Kennedy. Manchester is one of five areas in the state invited to participate. Dr. Kennedy said the program here will involve instruction in industrial sewing machines.

Dr. Kennedy will present to the board for its consideration a draft policy concerning the silent meditation law which becomes effective Oct. 1. The board will be expected to act on the superintendent's draft at the next board meeting on Sept. 22.

The board will also discuss its position on the school building program in light of the news from the state that its reimbursement program has come to a halt as there are no more funds available at the present time.

Dr. Kennedy will also report on the latest school enrollment figures and the results of the first few days of school opening.

Steve Lauzier's 'chopper' is world's longest bike

When 11-year-old Steve Lauzier says he's going for a long bike ride, he really means it.

With the assistance of neighbor Joseph "Jolting Joe" Allevo, Steve, of 148 Farnham Rd., is the proud owner of a 13-foot 8 "chopper bike" — a vehicle which put him smack in the Guinness World Record Book on Saturday.

Along with a 200-inch (16 foot 8) cigar — officially the world's largest — the bicycle which the seventh grade Ellsworth School student readily admits is hard to corner with, took its place among record-breaking items, at the 85th annual Wapping Fair this weekend.

Steve made the bicycle last year "because he liked the chopper motorized bikes he saw at the Colchester Drag Strip," according to his dad.

Only after he heard that someone from Springfield, Mass., was claiming a world record with a 7 1/2 foot chopper bike did Steve realize that he had put together a world's record for South Windsor.

Heat, smoke damages Fiano home in Bolton

The single-family ranch home of Francis Fiano on Water Lane received severe heat and smoke damage from a fire Saturday night. The home was unoccupied and shut up tight when neighbors thought they smelled smoke in the evening. They called the fire department at 9:15 p.m. but could not tell exactly where the smoke came from, said Dan Rattazzi, Bolton chief.

BICENTENNIAL FACTS

Early in 1776 British Gen. Sir Henry Clinton led an expedition down the Atlantic coast to cooperate with the strong Tory factions in the southern states. The command got off to a late start and, by the time Clinton reached an appointed rendezvous, Tory forces in Virginia and North Carolina had been defeated and dispersed. He then decided to capture Charleston, S.C., for use as a base of operations, but a four-week siege, beginning on June 1, was beaten off by the determined resistance of Col. William Moultrie's small force on Sullivan's Island.

Item: An offer amounting to about $1 million to cover overtime pay for psychiatrists in our state mental hospitals can be, according to Finance Commissioner Jay O. Tepper, raised by economizing in other areas.

Idea too materialistic

Sen. James L. Buckley, R-C.N.Y., is promoting a tax break for families that take their parents or elderly friends into their homes to live.
The senator says society has too long tended to "put older Americans on the shelf" and thinks a $1,000 income tax deduction for anyone who houses without charge in his or her home anyone 65 years of age or older.

Is college a bust?

There is a cheerless item in the news for this college-opening season. The American assumption has been that if you can get a higher education and a college degree, they will more than pay off in a better job. Now we are told by a pair of professors at Harvard and MIT, Richard Freeman and J. Herbert Holloman, that it isn't necessarily so.

Would-be assassin says attempt was made to get some attention

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Lynette Alice Fromme, leader in a cult, told a judge she had tried to assassinate President Ford because nobody paid attention to what she was saying. The tiny, red-haired Miss Fromme, 26, nicknamed "Squeaky" by convicted mass murderer Charles Manson because of her high-pitched voice, was held today on $1 million bail in an isolation cell at Sacramento Jail. She was reported in "good spirits" and maintaining a vegetarian diet. Miss Fromme pointed a .45 caliber pistol at Ford Friday and became the first woman ever to try to assassinate a President. The weapon did not fire. A jailer told of a conversation with the 5-foot-3 woman after she was wrestled to the ground by a Secret Service agent when she aimed the pistol at the President. "Well you know," he quoted her, "when people around you treat you like a child and pay no attention to the things you say, you have to do something."

Federal investigators said they had no evidence "at this time" of a conspiracy in the assassination attempt Friday at the state capitol. Agents interviewed Miss Fromme at San Quentin Prison after Miss Fromme's arrest but said Manson would not respond to specific questions. The U.S. attorney planned to present full charges against prosecuted Manson and members of the "family" for the Tate-LaBianca murders in 1971, told newsmen during the weekend. Miss Fromme was sort of "executive officer" when the family was in full flower. She was chief spokeswoman during the Manson trial in Los Angeles. In a book about the "family," Bugliosi described "Squeaky" as "the undisputed leader of the family while Charlie was in absentia." Friday's action was "completely within their lifestyle—to kill or attempt to kill people, and in such a way as to shock the world. I'm not surprised. Not at all." Miss Fromme is kept in a cell without television surveillance, her jailer said. He said she turned down jail meals contrary to Manson's wishes because of a vegetarian diet. "She's in good spirits. She has a peanut butter and jelly sandwich," he added. It was reported that Miss Fromme and her roommate, Sandra Good, 31, had tried this year to get on the accepted visitors list at San Quentin prison to see Manson, serving a life term for influencing Charles "Tex" Watson and several young women in his sex and drug-oriented cult to commit at least seven murders. Officials said Fromme and Miss Good tried to get a lawyer to help them obtain visiting privileges. The lawyer contacted police, who warned the women possible legal action could be taken against them. "There is no evidence at this time indicating a conspiracy in the threat to Ford's life," said U.S. Attorney Dwayne Keyes. Miss Good, released by police after questioning, said Miss Fromme wrote every day to Manson but that "Squeaky" acted totally of her own volition.

Recollections on our Diamond Anniversary

It happened in 1900
U.S. track and field competitors captured 11 of 15 gold medals in the Olympic games held in Paris, France. "Old Satchmo" Louis Armstrong was born in New Orleans. And our government expressed its commitment to China's "Open Door" policy. The turn of the century also marked the establishment of the first retail jewelry store to bear the Michaels name. It was opened by Abraham L. Michaels in Halifax, Nova Scotia, Canada. With its gaslit fixtures, polished wooden floors and solid cherry counters it was the jewelry showcase of the town. Today, three quarters of a century later, in 14 towns throughout Connecticut and Rhode Island, Michaels stores still serve as showcases for the world's most precious gems, elegant crystal, sterling silver, distinctive time pieces and unusual gifts.

Miners begin returning to work in coal fields

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI) — Southern West Virginia coal miners began a massive return to work today despite prospects of picketing by dissidents demanding the right to strike without the threat of court injunctions. A month-old wildcat walkout which at one time idled up to 80,000 workers, rank-and-file miners held weekend meetings and voted to heed United Mine Workers President Arnold Miller's order to resume coal production. "Return to work, but if there are pickets out, return home," UMW Local 1302 President Roger Thompson told a gathering of miners Sunday in Logan County, where the strike started Aug. 11. Thompson said that as far as he could determine, all locals in Charleston-based District 17 voted to end the strike. In neighboring District 29, headquartered in Beckley, the same sentiment was voiced by 50 of 66 locals. Union officials cautioned against confrontations with pickets. But some miners said they intended to cross any lines set up by strikers who want a right-to-strike provision inserted in the UMW contract. Miller and other UMW leaders have maintained the right-to-strike faction represented only 5 per cent of the union's membership. Two leading strike advocates, Bruce Miller and Skip Delano, were scheduled to appear in Arnold Miller's order to resume coal production. Thompson said he felt the walkout had accomplished one of its goals — to protest use of court injunctions by coal operators to settle local disputes. He predicted the industry now would be more willing to try to resolve grievances at the mine site instead of in the courts. "We now have the respect of the courts, the companies and the international union," Thompson said. Thompson, whose dismissal by Amherst Coal Co. triggered the walkout last month, warned operators to avoid reprisals against strikers. "If anyone gets fired," he said, "that's when we start pulling me again."

Clear weather greets fair

SOUTH WINDSOR
Judy Kuehnel
644-1364
Saturday morning showers gave way to clearing weather in time for the parade marking South Windsor's 85th Wapping Fair, an annual event since 1890. The fair, which opened Friday night, offered exhibits, contests, races, rides, demonstrations and music as well as an opportunity for local political candidates to mix among the fair-goers. Saturday's parade at noon opened the day's events. The South Windsor Exchange Club placed first for its float depicting a giant size Minuteman. Democrats constructed an elaborate reproduction of Concord Bridge. Children, in handmade costumes, recreated the battle scene as the float made its way into the fair grounds. The Republican float consisted of two large flags — one with the stars of the thirteen colonies and the other the present day 50-star flag. Steve Cooney, petitioning candidate for the South Windsor Board of Education, spent about 25 hours over the weekend perched on a seat over a tub of water. Balls, thrown on target, released the seat and sent Cooney into the tub of water. The sign in front of the cage in which Cooney sat read "Dunk Partisan Politics." The Beer Garden — where fairgoers consumed 18 kegs of beer on Friday night alone — featured rock, bluegrass and polka bands throughout the weekend. A Nuyway Tobacco Co. 300-inch cigar — one inch for each year since 1776 — put South Windsor in the Guinness Record Book. Until this weekend the British held the record with a 64-inch cigar. The cigar was presented to the town and will be on display in the Town Hall, said Town Manager Terry Spreken. Demonstrations by a magician and Karate experts as well as bicycle and foot races were featured among Sunday's activities. Winners of exhibits are expected to be announced Tuesday. Meets Tuesday The first fall meeting of the Abe E. Miller Unit 133 American Legion Auxiliary of South Windsor will be Tuesday, at the home of Janice Stewart, 968 Foster St., South Windsor at 8 p.m. Senior citizens The South Windsor Senior Citizens will meet Wednesday at 1 p.m. at St. Margaret Mary's Church, Hayes Rd. Rounds will be cued by Russ and Anita White. All club level dancers are invited to attend. Fun Night will be Wednesday, Sept. 17, from 7:30 to 10 at the Wapping Elementary School with Don Swift, lessons caller. Fire inspection of homes offered by department

On request, officers and men of the Town Fire Department will make home inspections, said Chief John C. Rivoso. "Our object is to help the family improve their safety," he said. Fire fighters did home inspection on request last October during Fire Prevention Week, he said. These inspections this year will be done the same way but can be done at any time agreeable to the resident. An officer with one or two men in a fire engine will make the inspection, he said. They will be in full, dress uniform with badges. They will never come alone or unannounced, he said. The inspection teams will be sure to look at the basement and the home's electrical system. They will also check out any garages. "They want to check out places where there might be paint or combustible clutter stored," the chief said. They will suggest good escape routes in case of fire and make other suggestions for the safety of the residents. "The men will only make suggestions. No pressure will be used at all," he added. The men making the inspections will be on duty at the time. The engine they drive will also be on line pieces of equipment, Rivoso said. With radio contact, he is sure they will be just as able to respond to calls as if they were in a station house. Maybe better, he added. A mail-in form is printed below today in order to assist people in contacting the chief about a home inspection.

Improvements made at Rockville High School have been applauded by the New England Association of Schools and Colleges (NEASC) Commission of Public Schools.

A letter from the commission, sent to Martin Fagan, principal of the school, informed him that a preliminary report concerning the improvements made at the school has been accepted.

Recommendations for improvements were made in a NEASC report filed after a committee visited the school two years ago, prior to the time new construction started.

Many of the recommendations concerned the lack of space at the school. High school students have been on double sessions for the past year and will be on them until February when the addition project is far enough along so they can be eliminated.

The letter from the committee commended the officials for the "large number of visiting committee recommendations which have been implemented or are in progress toward completion in the two years since the original evaluation."

The letter also commended the townspeople for approving the appropriation of more than $5 million which made the addition possible.

Polls open noon to 8 p.m.

Voters to decide Tuesday on fire department funds

VERNON Voters will go to the polls Tuesday from noon to 8 p.m. to act on a request for an appropriation of $75,000 for the purchase of equipment and other facilities for the town's two fire departments.

The items concerned were priority items recommended in a report of the Fire Study Committee appointed by Mayor Frank McCoy.

Some 13,000 registered voters are eligible to vote in the referendum. Also eligible are those having property valued at $1,000 or more on the Oct. 1, 1974 Grand List, as long as they are American citizens.

The polling places are as follows: District 1, Sykes School; District 2, Maple St. School; District 3, Skinner Rd. School; District 4, Lake St. School; District 5, Vernon Elementary School.

School board meets

VERNON Dr. Raymond Ramsdell, superintendent of schools, will report on the opening of schools at the meeting of the Board of Education tonight at 7:30 at the Sykes School.

Assistant Supt. Albert Kerkin will discuss tuition costs for special education students which involve the town paying tuition fees to schools outside the town.

Because of the special type of education needed for some students such as the blind or deaf, which cannot be provided in the local schools, it is necessary to send some to schools in other towns or other states.

Charles Brisson, business manager, will give a report on insurance coverage for the school system. A recommendation was made by John Mason, head of the town's insurance advisory commission, concerning a change in liability coverage.

The recommendation was reviewed at the last meeting of the board and board members asked for more information before making a decision.

Dr. Robert Linstone, assistant superintendent, will advise the board on the status of the guidance program at the Sykes School. The school, for the second year, just houses all of the town's sixth grade students.

The cultural education program will be discussed by Richard Tingley, athletic director for the school system.

The program involves students going on trips to other countries. Last spring a group visited Russia and the year before another group visited Italy.

The board will be asked to take action on requests from two sets of parents concerning possible early entry for kindergarten.

Official vice presidential home has modern art bed

WASHINGTON (UPI) - A $35,000 modern art bed was the hit of Nelson Rockefeller's first party at the nation's new official residence for the vice president.

President Ford said he thought the bed was "tremendous." Secretary of State Henry Kissinger raved that it was "marvelous." His wife Nancy said less enthusiastically it was "very pretty."

First Lady Betty Ford wouldn't comment on it. Happy Rockefeller admitted she and the vice president had not yet "inaugurated" the bed. She told a reporter, "You have to give us time."

"I think it went over very well," Rockefeller said. "They realize that it's a true work of art."

The Rockefellers threw the first of nine housewarming parties at the new vice presidential mansion Sunday night. About 200 members of the cabinet, Congress, the diplomatic corps and other dignitaries viewed the bed and other furnishings and munched a buffet dinner that included lobster, shrimp, roast beef, turkey and ham.

The bed is the creation of 20th century surrealist American artist Max Ernst. The king-sized bed, with its pink cover, has cage-like bars on both ends, two circular paintings and a large modern painting on a screen at one side.

Because of the special type of education needed for some students such as the blind or deaf, which cannot be provided in the local schools, it is necessary to send some to schools in other towns or other states.

Charles Brisson, business manager, will give a report on insurance coverage for the school system. A recommendation was made by John Mason, head of the town's insurance advisory commission, concerning a change in liability coverage.

The recommendation was reviewed at the last meeting of the board and board members asked for more information before making a decision.

Dr. Robert Linstone, assistant superintendent, will advise the board on the status of the guidance program at the Sykes School. The school, for the second year, just houses all of the town's sixth grade students.

St. James reopens kindergarten after lapse of 25 years

After a 25-year shutdown, the kindergarten at St. James School reopened this year with 50 students. It was begun 53 years ago and planned by Sister Mary Felita who trained the first kindergarten teacher and taught there herself for three years. Sister Mary is serving as a consultant in the reopening of the kindergarten.

She is a member of the staff of St. Joseph College, West Hartford, and has recently completed 15 years as director of the school for young children at the college.

Mrs. Carol S. Kuszik of Ellington is the new kindergarten teacher. She received her B.S. and master's degrees at University of Hartford.

She has taught in Hartford at the Vine St., Waverly and Rawson Schools.

Mrs. Kuszik was a workshop coordinator for the model cities preschool program in Hartford and was a guest lecturer for several workshops in early childhood programs. She also served as a consultant for educational programs in Westchester County, N.Y., and in Pennsylvania.

In Hartford, she has served on the language curriculum committee, the principals' committee on released time for in-service, and the match curriculum revision committee.

Much of the work done in the alterations needed to provide room for the kindergarten was supervised by Sister Mary Felita, planner of the original kindergarten that opened at St. James 53 years ago, watches. (Herald photo by Bevins)

Are they learning to count? Are they learning a game? Or are they learning the difference between a thumb and a finger? Whatever it is, Sister Mary Felita is instructing a group of children in the kindergarten class at the recently reopened St. James school kindergarten. The newly refurbished kindergarten had been closed for 25 years.

At the same time the kindergarten was re-established, the St. James Parish Board of Education instituted the St. James School Foundation, Inc. The purpose of the foundation is to provide financial assistance on a long range basis for the maintenance of St. James School.

Soviet agriculture trails ideology

MOSCOW — (LENS) — Just how bad is the Soviet harvest this year, and how serious will the consequences be? American experts have now revised their estimates of the Soviet grain crop downward yet again, from 185 million to 180 million tons. That is 35 million tons lower than planned, and 45 million tons below the record harvest of 1973; and it could still turn out even worse.

The Russians, apparently hoping that a bumper crop in the virgin lands of Kazakhstan and Siberia will make up for losses in the drought-ridden western regions, still claim that the harvest will be better than this. If they are wrong, the Russians will have to buy more grain in the west, with at least some effect on world inflation. But a harvest failure will also have political consequences in Russia itself.

It is unlikely to cost Leonid Brezhnev his job, as the disastrous 1963 harvest partly cost Khrushchev his; Brezhnev's other policies are doing better than Khrushchev's were in 1963-64. But the Russians have already ordered some 14 million tons of Western, mainly American, grain (and have now been warned off buying any more until the Americans know what their own total crop will be). Even if this year's Soviet harvest proves a bit better than the American estimates, the grain already ordered will eventually add about $2 billion to the already large deficit (maybe another $2 billion) Russia is expected to have in its trade with the West in 1975.

This will tarnish Brezhnev's record at next February's party congress, when he was given honors and announced his retirement, the only totalitarian leader in living memory to do so voluntarily.

Nature has everything to do with harvests: ups and downs must be expected and climatic conditions will probably never permit the Soviet Union to achieve a productivity approaching that of America or China. But the Soviet Union should be able to meet its needs in the worst of years and produce exportable surpluses in better times. The fact that it cannot is one of the worst of Soviet failures.

The Soviet Union has admittedly solved one major social-cum-political problem while failing to solve the economic one. Until the early 1960s the Soviet leaders saw their massed peasantry as a reservoir of collectivization, and banking after private property — as the main threat to their regime. In 1960 farming accounted for about half of Russian manpower. As recently as 1960 the Soviet population was still slightly more rural than urban, and 37 per cent of the labour force worked on the land. Now town-dwellers make up 50 per cent of the population, and less than a quarter of the labour force is working in agriculture — and only 18 per cent on collective farms, as distinct from the pure state farms.

The peasants' private plots, the last vestiges of private property in the countryside, now account for a mere 15 per cent of marketable farm output. Solzhenitsyn's constituency, the rural Russia that looks

Labor unions biggest backers of Durkin try
CONCORD, N.H. (UPI) — The largest contributors to Democratic Senate candidate John Durkin's special election effort were labor unions or their political action committees, according to Durkin's financial report for August.

The Manchester lawyer filed the report with the Federal Election Commission and the New Hampshire secretary of state. He listed total contributions of $155,836 with $90,830 worth of expenses from July 30 to Sept. 1.

Nine of the ten $5,000 contributors were listed as labor unions or their political committees. The Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee also contributed $6,000 to the Durkin campaign.

Electrocuted lineman once lived in town

Gary Bedford Meacham Sr., 59, of Eastford, formerly of Manchester, was electrocuted Saturday after coming in contact with two live wires while working on a power line in Dartmouth, Nova Scotia, police said.

He was pronounced dead on the scene after the accident shortly before noon, police said. Resuscitators were used, but Meacham never regained consciousness, police said. He was on a utility pole when he either fell or hit upon two crossed wires. He had been working for Henkels and McCoy Inc. of Portland in Dartmouth for three weeks, authorities said.

He was born Aug. 15, 1916, in Hartford and lived in Windsor and Manchester until moving to Eastford last December.

Mr. Meacham worked for the T.D. Bros Co. Line Construction of Bloomfield for nine years until joining his last employer three weeks ago.

Survivors are his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Tilden Meacham, three sons, Gary B. Meacham Jr., and Jason W. Meacham, both at home; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Meacham Sr. of Manchester; a brother, James D. Meacham Jr. of Colchester; three sisters, Mrs. Raymond Tilden of Manchester, Mrs. Richard Obrias of Williamette and Mary Meacham of Hartford.

The funeral is Wednesday at 8 a.m. from the Holmes Funeral Home, 400 Main St., with a Mass at 9 a.m. in St. James Church. Burial will be in East Cemetery.

Friends may call at the funeral home Tuesday from 3 to 5 and 7 to 9 p.m.

Simon says no action needed to aid economy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Treasury Secretary William Simon says the administration does not need to take any special action to keep the economy on its righted course.

He said Sunday current monetary and fiscal policies can reduce inflation and increase employment without additional steps by the administration.

He also said it is too early to decide whether this year's $22.8 billion tax cut should be extended into next year as recommended by Labor Secretary John Dunlop.

In a broadcast interview (NBC's Meet the Press), Simon said he is optimistic the nation will continue to have positive real growth in 1976 and a declining unemployment rate, and it's going to decline a lot faster than the budget projects.

UPI's monthly barometer of economic indicators bears out predictions of a rising economy, except for static unemployment statistics, but indicates inflation is rising at an annual rate of 14.4 per cent.

Here is a summary of the latest figures:

UNEMPLOYMENT: The unemployment rate held in August at 8.4 per cent, the same as in July.

INFLATION: The Consumer Price Index jumped 1.2 per cent in July, the steepest monthly rise since last September. The annual rate was 14.4 per cent, higher than predicted by administration officials who warned of a new increase.

REAL EARNINGS: The average worker's "real" income — wages plus fringe benefits after allowing for inflation — fell 0.5 per cent in July and is now down 0.3 per cent in the past 12 months.

WHOLESALE PRICES: Paced by sharp price rises for fuel and other energy products, wholesale prices rose 0.8 per cent in August. Combined with July's 1.2 per cent surge, the increase marked the biggest two-month advance in wholesale prices since the recession of 1974.

PRODUCTIVITY: Productivity increased 0.5 per cent in the June quarter, its highest quarterly gain in more than four years.

TRADE — The U.S. balance of payments, bolstered by less foreign investment, less foreign travel by Americans and more exports, scored a $1.23 billion surplus in the second quarter of the year.

INDICATORS: The index of leading business indicators rose 1.7 per cent in July to sustain the longest upward climb in 2 1/2 years.

GNP: The "real" Gross National Product — with inflation removed from the figures — rose 1.6 per cent in the second quarter of 1975 for the first increase since the recession began.

OUTPUT: Industrial production increased in July for the first back-to-back month since the end of the Arab oil embargo in January.

HOUSING STARTS: Residential housing starts rose to a 1.238 million unit annual rate in July compared to 1.077 million in June. It was the fastest pace since a year ago, when the annual rate was 1.314 million.

Manuel Orantes, the smiling Spaniard who took Jimmy Connors' Forest Hills title Sunday.

John Newcombe, who took Jimmy Connors' Australian title by beating the American in four sets in the final.

Jimmy Connors, who despite losing all three of the titles he won in 1974, annihilated double grand slam winner Rod Laver and his Aussie conqueror, Newcombe, in the televised challenge matches.

The debate among establishment people, Connors' supporters, and unallied fans can go on from now through the fall and winter.

But at this moment, it is Manuel Orantes who has captured the imagination, for he wrote a permanent, impelling chapter in Forest Hills history by coming from three match points down, 0-5 in the third set under the lights on Saturday against Guillermo Vilas.

Orantes, who overcame a nagging back difficulty by resting during the winter, had studied Connors' style long and well. He employed the tactics used by Ashe at Wimbledon to bring down Connors, 6-4, 5-8, 5-3, Sunday in his second of his most stunning Forest Hills finals in recent years.

This was against the same Connors who had embarrassed ancient Aussie Ken Rosewall at Wimbledon and here last year, but the surface this year was clay, not grass.

Connors was no stranger to clay, or Orantes. He had beaten Orantes six times in seven previous meetings on all surfaces, but Orantes denied his moment of opportunity to use his power, sloping balling him to death, never letting him attain his rhythm, and either passing him or lobbing him with exquisite precision.

The Spanish ace, only the second of his nation to win here — Manuel Santana won over Cliff Drysdale in 1965 — approached the set as often as Chris Evert does, and admitted later he never really felt in danger.

Connors had broken him at love in the very first game, but from that point on, Jimmy Miller in 1971, and was unable to cope with the delicate touch, the patience of his opponent.

There might have been one in his hotel kept him awake — but still said he had slept soundly for eight hours, and was more than ready for the challenge Connors presented.

But who is the Number One now?

In his three defenses, Connors failed in the finals of each — to three different men.

But the gutsy Orantes held, and was home free.

"I was so excited after beating Vilas," he said, "that I didn't feel tired. I could have played four, even five sets."

The new champion had not gotten to bed until three in the morning after beating Vilas — a broken bathtub fixture in his hotel kept him awake — but still said he had slept soundly for eight hours, and was more than ready for the challenge Connors presented.

But who is the Number One now?

In his three defenses, Connors failed in the finals of each — to three different men.

But the gutsy Orantes held, and was home free.

"I was so excited after beating Vilas," he said, "that I didn't feel tired. I could have played four, even five sets."

Mrs. Francis A. Laing, Mrs. Helen M. Laing, 71, of Deerfield, died Sunday at Manchester Memorial Hospital after a long illness.

She was born March 17, 1888, in Hartford and lived in Manchester the past 34 years.

She was a member of the Daughters of Isabella, the Ladies of Assumption, and St. Agnes Guild.

She was formerly a teacher of confraternity of Christine doctrine at the Church of the Assumption where she was a communicant.

Other survivors are a son, Robert, of California; a daughter, Mrs. Ethel Prior of Manchester; a sister, Mrs. Anna McCabe of Hartford; six grandchildren.

The funeral is Wednesday at 9 a.m. from the F. Tierney Funeral Home, 219 E. Center St., with a Mass at 9:30 at the Church of the Assumption. Burial will be in St. James Cemetery.

Friends may call at the funeral home tonight from 7 to 9 p.m. and Tuesday from 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p.m.

Those wishing to do so may make memorial gifts to the Building Fund of the Church of the Assumption.

Mrs. Leo Rowe, Mrs. Florence Robbins Rowe, 57, of 18 Earl St. died Sunday at her home. She was the wife of Leo Rowe.

She was born Oct. 4, 1917, in Hartford and lived all her life here.

She retired seven years ago from Pratt & Whitney Aircraft Division of United Technologies in East Hartford where she worked as an inspector.

Mrs. Rowe was a member of the Manchester Association for Retarded Citizens and the Marine Corps Auxiliary. She was also a member of Community Baptist Church.

Other survivors are two sons, Gary J. Rowe of Enfield and Gunnery Sgt. Robert J. Rowe, USMC, stationed in Rouse, Va., two daughters, Mrs. Walter Fryko and Patricia J. Rowe, both of Manchester; two brothers, William Robbins of Sylmar, Calif., and Theodore Robbins Jr. of East Hartford, and two grandchildren.

Earliest title clinching date for Cincinnati Reds

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Cincinnati Reds have set a record for the earliest clinching of a title in National League history—and now want to round out the season with one of the best all-around performances in major league annals.

The Reds clinched the NL's Western Division title Sunday when they defeated the San Francisco Giants 8-4 and the Atlanta Braves 8-4 in the Los Angeles Dodgers' 5-4. The feat surpassed one day the old Brooklyn Dodgers' clinching of the 1955 NL pennant.

"This is the best Reds team ever managed," said Manager Sparky Anderson during the Reds' clubhouse victory celebration. "It's the best in every department—speed, defense, power and pitching."

The Dodgers tied the score at 4-4 in the top of the ninth but the Braves won in the bottom of the inning when Marty Perez' bases-filled single with two out drove in pinch-runner Rod Gilbreath. The Braves had filled the bases on a walk, a single by winning pitcher Bruce Dal Canton and an error by second baseman Lee Lacy.

STOP & SHOP in MANCHESTER 263 Middle Turnpike West • EAST HARTFORD 830 Silver Lane. 8:00a.m.-10:00p.m., Mon.-Sat.

"the way we do things around here..."

Since the early beginnings of Stop & Shop, and throughout our development over the years, we've managed and guided our business on a policy rooted in common sense and anchored to enduring values. We have always been firm believers that any business, in order to survive and achieve success, must have a sound set of principles on which it premises all its policies and actions... and for 60 years, there's been a faithful adherence to those beliefs by those who have shared in the management of your Stop & Shop. These beliefs are demonstrated in practice and have taken firm root in the minds of our people, providing a solid foundation for "The way we do things around here."

It all started with a pretty simple idea: "If we wouldn't want to serve it on our tables, in our homes... we don't want it in our stores... we must treat our customers as we would want our own families to be treated". Which means, do what is honest, fair, sincere and in the best interest of every customer. Give every customer the most good food for her money. Extend friendly satisfying service to everyone. Cheerfully refund a customer's money if for any reason any purchase is not satisfactory. And this simple idea grew! From one store, to two, to four, to six, to almost one hundred sixty (we'll reach that number before this year's end). And along the way, we've attracted some very fine people. Because we've built a business of high principle, we attract high-calibre people more easily... because people prefer to associate with people they can trust. They know we can be counted on to try to do the right thing at all times. That's why you'll see so many generations and families working together at Stop & Shop. It's our earnest aim from the moment you walk into the store, that you'll know this is not just another supermarket... for this is your Stop & Shop—you have a right to shop in a place you can really enjoy. Because at Stop & Shop, we're determined to make that extra effort never leaving well enough alone, to be a family of families, caring for your family. This family aura seems to prevail among our customers as well, so much so... that you find folks showing a decidedly possessive air about their local Stop & Shop. You'll hear, over and over again, "It's my Stop & Shop". You have never hesitated to talk freely with the people in our stores or, any one of us, about whatever may be on your minds. And we appreciate your useful suggestions, which we take seriously and try to implement. We know we are not and cannot be perfect, but—where we fail to give full satisfaction—it is not for the lack of trying. That's... The Way We Do Things Around Here — — — we're committed to living up to our good name... giving you the full measure of your Stop & Shopworth... knowing that those of you whom we serve well will prefer shopping at Stop & Shop.

BICENTENNIAL FACTS
The widely publicized legend that Betsey Ross made the first Stars and Stripes in June, 1776 at the request of a committee composed of George Washington, Robert Morris, George Ross and her uncle, was first made public in 1870 by a grandson of Mrs. Ross. Historians have never found records of such a meeting or committee. There is documentary evidence that Mrs. Ross was paid in May, 1777, for "making ships colours, etc." but no direct documentary evidence has been found to link her with the flag description adopted by the Continental Congress on July 14, 1777 as the national emblem. The World Almanac notes.

Quake survivors

Toll exceeds 1,700 in Turkish quake

LICE, Turkey (UPI) — A somber young boy grimly led his little brother by the hand through the rubble-strewn streets of the ruined town. "Uncle doctor, please look after my brother," he said to a physician at an emergency hospital set up in Lice. "I must find the bodies of my father and mother."
Turkish officials said Sunday at least 1,700 were killed in a weekend earthquake that rocked eastern Turkey. Nearly a third of the dead were in the devastated town of Lice. The officials predicted the death toll would rise to 3,000 when reports came in from rescue workers sent to outlying areas of battered Diyarbakir province.
Army helicopters whirled over the disaster region to pinpoint damaged areas cut off from communications and lead rescue workers to stragglers. The quake, which registered just below the "severe" seven-point mark on the Richter scale, rumbled across 13 eastern provinces Saturday, injuring at least several thousand persons and leaving up to 30,000 homeless.
Lice, a town of 9,000 persons at the center of the quake, was demolished by the tremor. Rescue workers reported only a handful of partly damaged buildings still standing.
"We should have counted the living in order to know the real number of dead," one rescue team leader said in Lice.
A thousand Turkish soldiers joined several thousand civilian volunteers in a search for survivors in the debris of wrecked buildings. But the searchers mostly found mutilated corpses.
Premier Suleyman Demirel flew to Lice by helicopter Sunday and said the Turkish government would finance reconstruction of the battered town.
Reporters accompanying Demirel watched as survivors moved like robots amid the rubble, corpses and wounded of the once-prosperous town.
Rescue workers prepared big cauldrons of food for the survivors but the stench of death overpowered the odor of cooking. No one would eat. No one could sleep.
Hospitals in the stricken areas overflowed with injured. Many victims lay on stretchers on lawns and streets outside the hospitals waiting for room inside.

Bridgeport University faculty starts picketing

BRIDGEPORT (UPI) — Striking faculty members at the University of Bridgeport began picketing on campus today while school officials asked for a federal mediator to intervene in the dispute.
Meanwhile, school officials announced an apparent settlement early today of another labor dispute involving the school's 175 services and maintenance personnel.
A spokesman said details of the agreement with Local 1199, National Union of Hospital and Health Care Employees, AFL-CIO, will be presented to the members tonight for ratification.
The teachers' walkout began when members of the American Association of University Professors voted 107-59 Sunday night to implement an earlier plan to strike unless a new contract agreement was reached by Sunday.

SEC lets employes accept expenses

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Most federal regulatory agencies forbade their officials from accepting expenses from private interests. But the Securities and Exchange Commission lets business groups pick up the tab for SEC officials who attend their conventions, according to congressional records.
Information supplied by the six major regulatory commissions to the House Commerce Committee's subcommittee on oversight and investigations — reviewed by UPI — showed all but the SEC regard such reimbursements from businessmen under their jurisdiction a potential conflict of interest.
"It's better to be like Caesar's wife — you know, above suspicion," an Interstate Commerce Commission spokesman said. "Other agencies said its officials either use their own money or get reimbursed by the agencies for attending conventions."
But SEC Associate General Counsel Paul Gosson told UPI, "The SEC has always felt it is useful to get its message across to the industry it regulates." Therefore, he said, the commission often allows the host groups to pay travel, food and lodging expenses of commissioners invited to appear at their conventions and meetings.
The SEC reported accepting expenses ranging as high as $2,021.88 for a 1974 business trip to Tokyo by SEC chairman Ray Garrett Jr. and his wife.

Schools add spice to lives of Seattle's elderly

By MARTIN HERWALD
SEATTLE (UPI) — Variety, it is said, is the spice of life, and a year-old Seattle program called SPICE is adding some to the lives of several hundred elderly residents.
SPICE is the acronym for School Programs Involving Our City's Elderly.

Science today: Preparing handicapped for the real world

By ROBERT MUSEL
LONDON (UPI) — It is a difficult and often poignant human problem. A mentally handicapped boy or girl completes a special school course and now faces the daunting task of coping with a world from which he or she usually has been shielded by parents and teachers.
There are terrors in facing the unknown for those of limited intelligence, fear failure foremost among them. And since this is a situation common to all countries, the Pengeron Hall Plan has brought behavioral experts from all over to a remote country house in Wales.
Pengeron Hall calls itself a "transitional unit" which, as Martin Weinberg, its director, described it, is intended to develop self-confidence, independence and new skills that will carry some of the security of the school into the adult world.
Weinberg developed the Pengeron Hall Plan as director of the institution for the past seven years. The hall, a historic Georgian mansion, was acquired by the National Society for Mentally Handicapped Children in 1966.
Weinberg said he started with the obvious necessity of introducing the youngsters sent to him to the normal processes of living.

"But there was a difference," he said. "Man, as the saying goes, is shaped by the tools he uses. And here were youngsters who probably could not use the tools common to all of us, so we started with the tool of commerce and the most universal of them all, money."
As part of the training program, the former stable block was divided into five self-contained, four-bedroom houses with the help of those who common to all countries, the Pengeron Hall Plan has brought behavioral experts from all over to a remote country house in Wales.
Pengeron Hall calls itself a "transitional unit" which, as Martin Weinberg, its director, described it, is intended to develop self-confidence, independence and new skills that will carry some of the security of the school into the adult world.

Clarence Roedell, a participant-recruiter, says he finds many who are unaware of the program.
"Then many have told me it sounds fine but there are a lot of things there that I probably can't eat," he added.
Some have visions of eating pizzas, sloppy joes and other spicy foods popular with children. Instead, they find either lightly seasoned dishes or a separate combination of foods prepared specially for them.
The SPICE idea came from the office of Mayor Wes Uhlman. The program is administered by the city school system with the help of many of the senior citizens themselves.
During the 1974-75 school year, it used school lunchrooms throughout the city. This year, the program will use schools and other facilities chosen for their easy access via city transit.
"We are very confident we can expand the program this year," says Ken Camper, who is taking over as SPICE director. "In addition to improving the midday meals and lowering the cost to 65 cents, we will have other services, including weekly health clinics, guest speakers, discussion groups, field trips, bingo, dances and instruction in arts and crafts."
"We are putting the emphasis on individual services. Our goal is a quality program. Numbers the way a lot of people thought it would."

Wylie said he left the program when it dwindled to about six to eight persons at the site he attended.
SPICE apparently perked up later at that site, which Mrs. Barbano and her husband also used.
Both the Barbanos are organizers and recruiters as well as participants. She said the program's momentum carried through the summer, minus the lunches. It grew into almost weekly field trips for 30 to 40 persons. Youthful volunteers serve as tour guides and bus drivers.
"We rarely are looking forward to a full program again this year," Mrs. Barbano said. "We have had a wonderful time with them. It gets people together. There are so many widows and widowers. It gets them out when they wouldn't go otherwise."

Religion in America
commentary:

The search for evangelical Methodist seminaries

By DAVID E. ANDERSON
UPI Religion Writer
Evangelicals within the United Methodist Church, unhappy at what they consider the denomination's liberal drift, have floated a plan for making two of the church's seminaries evangelical.

The proposal was suggested by the Rev. Edmund Robb, pastor of St. Luke's United Methodist Church, Lubbock, Tex., at the annual Good News Convocation, a gathering of United Methodist theological conservatives.

"United Methodism is a sick denomination," Robb told the convocation, adding later that: "I am convinced that our seminaries bear a major portion of the responsibility. 'If we have a sick church it is largely because we have sick seminaries.'"

According to Robb, most United Methodist seminaries—there are presently 14 seminaries and a recommendation from a denominational study group to cut back to 10—

"are committed to contemporary theology." "We have seen them evolve from orthodoxy to classical liberalism, to neo-orthodoxy, to existentialism. With the bankruptcy of theistic existentialism, came the advent of secular theology..."

"Then later came the theology of hope, realized eschatology, the theology of liberation and the theological and moral confusion of situation ethics." In addition, Robb said, Methodism's pluralism—the idea of the church as an umbrella for liberals and evangelicals—is a one way street: graduates of evangelical colleges are told to go to a liberal seminary "for balance."

Robb also suggested, as alternative proposals, that theological faculties be truly inclusive, including evangelicals as well as liberal or radical theologians, and that more support be given to independent seminaries not associated with the denomination. If all of these proposals fail, he said, evangelicals should begin thinking about establishing their own seminary.

"If the denominational leadership is unresponsive to our need, we have no alternative but to provide adequate training for our future ministers," Robb said. "Let us serve notice," he concluded, "...that we will no longer turn over our converts to the theological liberals who neither understand or teach the biblical faith."

New Hampshire race recalls ghosts of Huey Long, FDR and Watergate

By STEWART POWELL
CONCORD, N.H. (UPI) — The race is so close neither side talks numbers.

The campaign recalls the ghosts of Huey Long, FDR and Watergate.

And voters are lured to make a second trip behind voting booth curtains with the assurance they're voting this time for history, not just a junior senator.

To some, the rerun of American history's closest Senate election represents a national test of political parties, either a late breaking installment of the 1974 off-year Democratic landslides or the first chapter of a GOP comeback.

But to date, the contest remains largely a debate about state issues and personalities colored by the economy. Two events the coming week may change that.

A televised debate tonight is expected to draw more exchanges between candidates than two earlier appearances at which they addressed the audience, not their opposition.

And the arrival Wednesday of ex-California Gov. Ronald Reagan in support of the GOP candidate may color the campaign with national issues.

Reagan's appearance on behalf of Republican Louis C. Wyman is expected to trigger a matching presidential visit, Wyman aides say.

New Hampshire hosts the nation's first presidential primary in six months and Wyman aides say a decision on President Ford's trip awaits a Federal Election Commission ruling on who pays the bill. The commission says candidates can spend $150,000 directly on the campaign, a figure quickly being approached by the two major candidates.

Guarantees of a presidential visit by Wyman aides continued last week despite state Democratic Chairman Laurence Radway's warning that Ford stay out of New Hampshire.

The Dartmouth College

government professor told Ford to "stand clear of unresolved Watergate questions," saying Wyman remained under investigation by the Watergate prosecutor for his actions during the alleged sale of an ambassadorial appointment by the Nixon administration.

A second election day Sept. 16 has been set to decide the outcome of last fall's disputed election, a contest in which almost 223,000 persons voted in a virtual tie between Wyman and Democrat John A. Durkin. Two state recounts and seven months of Senate review failed to select a victor.

Also campaigning in the runoff is the American party's C. Carmen Chimento, an unemployed 45-year-old technical writer who has raised $517 the past 10 months in an effort to expand his 1,300 vote tally last Nov. 5. Chimento often leaves the campaign trail to look for a job.

Aides to major candidates maintain visits by outsiders will have little impact on the election, although the headlines may generate the voter interest strategists say has been lacking. With less than two weeks to go, candidates balance campaign attacks on their opponent with a defense of their record.

A former state attorney general, Wyman, 58, deflects assaults on his decade in Congress with criticism of Durkin's stormy five-year record as state insurance commissioner. Durkin, 39, broadcasts reminders he blocked insurance companies' demands for $15 million in rate hikes.

"Do you know what it takes to tackle the big insurance companies and win?" Durkin's advertising asks. "Isn't that the kind of new blood we need in Washington?"

The political newcomer, pledging to "rock the boat in a responsible way," criticizes oil companies' hold on the well head and the gasoline pump, a line borrowed from Huey Long, the controversial governor of Louisiana who built a reputation in the early 1930s battling

There's no time like the past

NEW YORK (UPI) — From the speaker came the chilling sound of the creaking door of "Inner Sanctum." A campaign button proclaimed "Happy Chandler for President." And there, in the flesh (albeit 67 years old), was Tarzan himself.

For those at the "First Annual Nostalgia Convention," there's no time like the past.

While others fled to the beaches and mountains and elsewhere to escape the torments of the present, nostalgia fans collected during the Labor Day weekend for another of those conventions dedicated to the preservation and peddling of the "good old days."

For the convention's chief creator, 16-year-old Paul Saryian of Brooklyn, and 2,000 other old-Hollywood fans, it was a chance to view old movie serials such as "Captain Marvel" and "Captain America" and some television programs of the early '50s.

And as guest of honor, they had Buster Crabbe, best remembered for his roles as "Flash Gordon," "Buck Rogers" and "Tarzan" in serials and so-called "B-features" of the 1930s and '40s. Crabbe, now 67, answered questions, signed autographs and conceded he enjoyed keeping his name alive by appearances on college campuses and at nostalgia conventions.

Many conventioners were drawn by tapes of old-time radio programs. Said Adam Richter of Rockaway, N.J.: "I just like the bygone era. When I was a child, old time radio was big—very, very big. And I used to enjoy listening to 'Gangbusters,' 'Inner Sanctum'—programs of that type—and I just get some kind of vicarious pleasure from them."

Others weren't that easily impressed. Adrian Schanler of Edison, N.J., went because her fiance wanted to go. She described nostalgia as "something past and dead, something some people unfortunately want to resurrect."

Dominating the convention was a thriving marketplace of memorabilia—everything from "Hopalong Cassidy" movie posters to "Happy Chandler for President" campaign buttons, available for purchase or trade.

Andrew Naudus of Lake Ronkonkoma, L.I., one of the busiest of the nostalgia wheeler-dealers, was forthright in his analysis of the phenomenon.

"Nostalgia is, to me, a means of supplementing my income," he said. "I buy books that I know will catch on. Then I go to these conventions and I profit by it."

Nostalgia, almost by definition, used to be known as a pleasant—and perhaps not altogether accurate—yearning for the past.

If the New York Nostalgia Convention was any indication, though, that past may no longer be so far removed. Among the more popular items available were Richard Nixon memorabilia and a magazine called "Shark Silent Messenger of Agony and Death."

special interests. Durkin also likens himself to Franklin D. Roosevelt as a "solution oriented realist." But Durkin mutes criticism of the massive Democratic-spawned Washington bureaucracy by the conservative Republican, saying "the New Deal is over."
