Lebanese war spreads

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI)—Moslem leftists today besieged the northern village of Zghorta, hometown of Lebanese President Suleiman Franjeh, but failed in heavy fighting to penetrate the defense of Christian militiamen, a security forces statement said.

Casualties in the bitter sectarian strife which spilled over from the port city of Tripoli topped 300 dead and wounded since fighting began nine days ago.

"There has been heavy fighting in the area, but there has been no occupation of Zghorta by any other group," the statement said.

Rumors that Zghorta had fallen to the Moslems spread through Beirut after newspapers published unconfirmed reports that a force of 3,000 leftists had descended on the village, nine miles from Tripoli.

The Christians in Zghorta mustered a defense force of 2,000 from neighboring villages, the newspaper reports said.

"The situation is deteriorating very badly," said Interior Minister Camille Chamoun. "Things are very grave."

Latest reports from Tripoli said hundreds of Moslem leftists had descended on the Christian villages of Zghorta about nine miles to the east and Majdlaya, about five miles away.

Reporters trying to get to the scene of the fighting could only reach a point about half-way between Beirut and Tripoli before being stopped by a roadblock of huge boulders and burning auto tires.

Local citizens said they had blocked the road to keep out marauders following the kidnaping Monday night of a bus driver and three passengers. The bus was found with a bullet-splattered windshield but the fate of the four was not known.

Beirut Radio said the situation around Majdlaya was "extremely tense."

Tripoli is the hometown and political stronghold of Premier Rashid Karami and Zghorta is the home village of President Suleiman Franjeh. Some of the heaviest fighting was reported raging between supporters of the Christian president and Moslem premier.

Police sources said hundreds of shops and businesses in the mainly Moslem city of Tripoli, the second largest in Lebanon, were blown up Monday.

Witnesses said the city was a chaos of rubble, flame and death.

Roadblocks manned by Moslem and Christian militiamen cut off access to the city. Thick columns of black smoke could be seen spiraling upward in a dozen places.

Police said the Tripoli home of Tony Franjeh, the son of Christian President Suleiman Franjeh, was doused with gasoline and set ablaze by Moslems Monday. The fire was one of dozens that raged unchecked in the city.

On the streets, militiamen attacked each other with rockets, mortars and bullets. Police reported bomb blasts at the rate of one every two minutes.

PZC adopts regulations for town's wetland areas

By DOUG BEVINS
Herald Reporter

With little discussion after a short public hearing Monday night, Manchester's Planning and Zoning Commission (PZC) adopted the town's first Inland Wetlands and Watercourses Regulations.

The PZC voted unanimously to adopt the rules after Chairman Alfred Siefert said it appeared the regulations were received well. Only two people spoke at the public hearing; one was concerned about his property and the other favored local control of wetlands.

PZC members had apparently expected opposition to the regulations, which will become effective after the state Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) gives final approval, in about two weeks.

Speaking at the public hearing, Town Planner J. Eric Potter, who drafted the rules, told townspeople there's nothing to fear in the regulations. He said the PZC—which has been designated Manchester's inland wetlands agency—can't deny the right to develop land but to regulate certain activities.

Potter said the state DEP has been regulating Manchester's wetlands because the town hadn't adopted a set of rules.

"I would be quite happy to tear these up," Potter said, "but we have to have it because without it we'd be putting the town at the mercy of the state and its bureaucracy."

Included with the adopted regulations is a map of Manchester's wetlands and watercourses, drawn with information provided by the state. Wetlands are classified according to soil types.

In other business Monday night, the PZC:

• Approved application for a roof sign sought by Dairy Mart Inc., 368 Spencer St. The firm's representative told the PZC that its existing wall sign wasn't adequate.

• Approved a zone change from Industrial to Residence B for a tract comprised of several parcels on Knighton and Pearl Sts. The rezoning was sought by Frank Adams, who said he wants to build a home on a vacant lot at 37 Knighton St.

Also affected by the change are 41 Knighton St., 31-33 Knighton St., 158-160 Pearl St., and 154 Pearl St.

• Approved resubdivision of land at Green Rd. and Woodbridge St. to create an extra lot on a tract owned by Stanley Bray.

• Decided to ask applicants for the Glode Industrial zone change for an extension to make a decision on the matter heard last month. PZC members plan to visit the parcel, off Tolland Tpk. near the East Hartford boundary, later this month.

• Approved minor changes in plans for Green Manor Condominiums at Lydall St. and Greenwood Dr.

Board told schools opened without any major problems

By JUNE TOMPKINS
Herald Reporter

Manchester public schools opened this year with no major problems, but a "host of small problems," Dr. James P. Kennedy told the Board of Education Monday night.

He said there were a number of transportation problems which are being ironed out. He noted this year was the beginning of bus service to East Catholic High School. There were some overloads on buses to Bennett Junior High School, and as of Monday morning there were still a few buses running late.

Dr. Kennedy publicly thanked Theodore Fairbanks, superintendent of maintenance and grounds, and his assistant, Wilfred Dion, and the custodial staff for the long hours of work spent in preparing the schools for opening day. "They did sparkle on opening day," he said.

The total public school enrollment as of Monday was 9,779 students. The enrollment came in just about as the board projected last spring, Dr. Kennedy said.

Broken down, the enrollment is as follows: Pre-kindergarten, 74; kindergarten through Grade 6, 5,277; Grades 7 through 9, 2,136; Grades 10 through 12, 2,171; special education, 121.

Considering the major building renovations at both junior high schools, the openings there went surprisingly well, Dr. Kennedy said. The cooperation of the building contractor with extra men and the school staff contributed to the school's successful openings. However, Dr. Kennedy said the few days' strike in August did hurt the schools' progress.

As of Monday morning, the first floor of Barnard Building at Bennett Junior High School is in use. The Bennett library should be open about Oct. 1, and the gym by the end of October, says the building contractor.

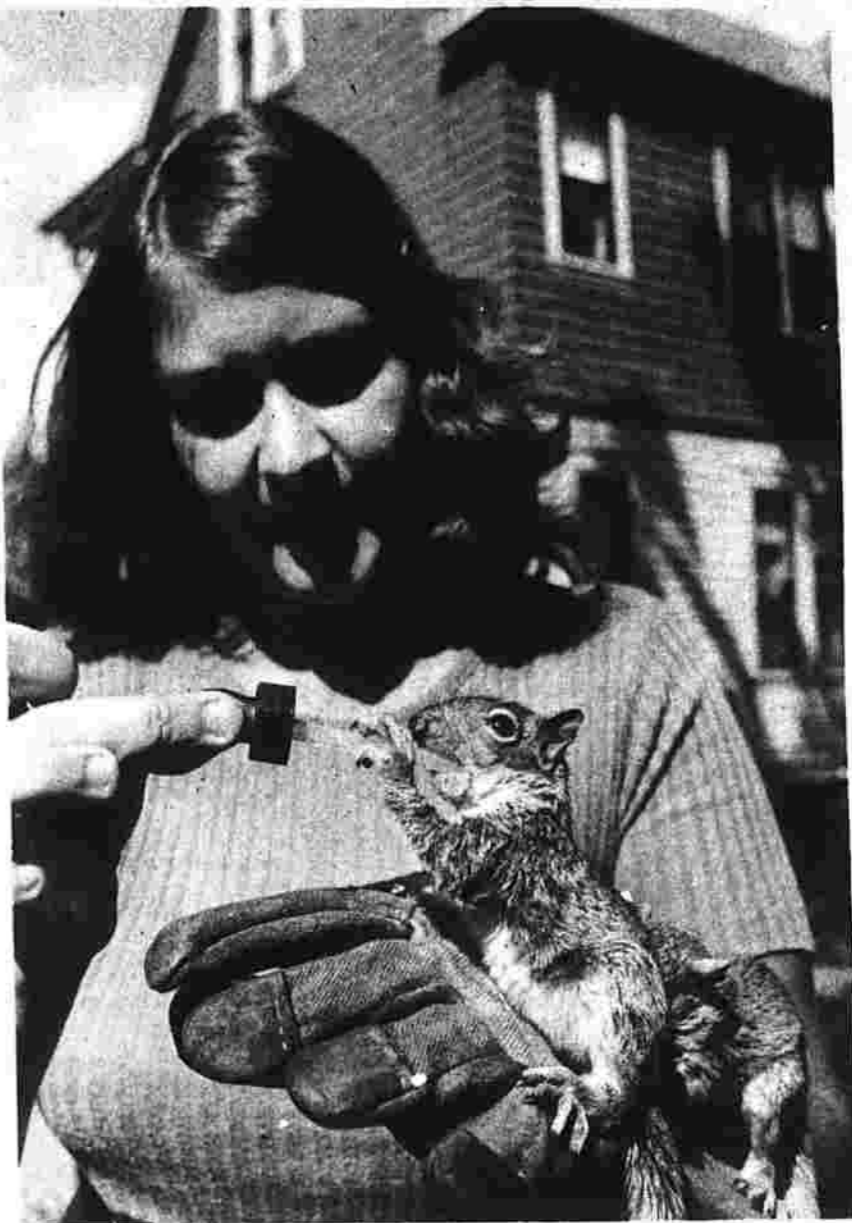

At Illing Junior High School, all the space promised for completion on opening day was accomplished except for painting and carpeting. The carpeting, which arrived with streaks, has been returned to the manufacturer.

The typing area is expected to be completed by the end of October, and until the home economics department is completed, the students are meeting in temporary quarters with mostly book and table work.

As for the gym, Dr. Kennedy said, "Physical education at Illing will be good as long as it doesn't rain." Until the completion of the gym, classes will be held outdoors.

Dr. Kennedy said that maybe by the first of October, the hot lunch program would be resumed. The kitchen area is still incomplete.

The board members are strong in the opinion that the community be impressed with the needs of the people in the

Feeding time

Mrs. Marilyn Meyers of 16 Centerfield St. feeds her seven-week-old squirrels liquified babyfood through an eye dropper. Her husband, Clayton, cut down a large oak tree in their yard. In the tree was a nest with the squirrels. Their mother would not return so the Meyers became their parents. They responded well and now frisk about their back yard. They cuddle in the arms of the Meyers two children. Clayton is setting up a large bird house in their maple tree for the youngsters to get through the winter. It is stocked with acorns. Attendance increases in Boston schools

BOSTON (UPI)—Student attendance increased at police-guarded Boston schools Tuesday following a troublesome night in which seven officers were injured and a firebomb hit the birthplace of President John F. Kennedy.

Two girls—one white, one black—in South Boston High School had what Headmaster William J. Reid described as a "racial" night.

Two arrests as school opened today brought to 89 the total number arrested during the first two days of the city's second year of degenerating its classrooms under a federal court-ordered busing program.

Gov. Michael S. Dukakis and Mayor Kevin H. White said they were pleased with the school opening. "Things went reasonably well," Dukakis said. "I hope that the days and weeks to come will be as peaceful and successful as yesterday."

Attendance was up at Charlestown High and South Boston High, and officials said a preliminary count showed almost double the number of black students are at South Boston High today as compared with Monday. "It does appear that overall our attendance is up today," said Associate School Supt. Charles Lettich. Monday, 58.9 per cent of the city's 75,000 students were in class.

Eight students walked out of Charlestown High for an undetermined reason shortly after classes began today.

Seven policemen were injured during a series of rowdy incidents in the South Boston area overnight. One officer was hit with a dart, but was not hurt. Police arrested one person in the case on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon.

New York City teachers go on strike

Striking teachers picket in front of Central Commercial High School today when contract talks failed to produce an agreement. The old contract ended at midnight last night. The teachers are angered by layoffs, increased class size and demands they work longer hours. There are 1.1 million students in the New York City public school system affected by the strike. (UPI photo)

Variety of proposals on directors' agenda

By SOL R. COHEN
Herald Reporter

The Board of Directors tonight will consider action on a variety of proposals—from authorizing "Welcome to Manchester" signs at 16 locations to backing proposals to tow and impound vehicles declared parked illegally.

Tonight's meeting is at 8 in the Municipal Building Hearing Room. The "Welcome to Manchester" signs would require a $1,600 allocation from revenue-sharing funds. The proposal for towing and impounding vehicles would require a public hearing on amendments to the parking ordinance. It appears the board will authorize both.

Among other proposals to be acted upon are:

• The construction of sanitary sewers in about half the length of Linwood Dr.—to service seven properties.

This marks the third request for sewers on Linwood Dr. and it appears the board will authorize them.

Assessments against 32 property owners on Erie St., Garden Grove Rd. and part of Keeney St.—for sanitary sewers already constructed.

Action tonight depends upon replies from Town Manager Robert Weiss and Director of Public Works Jay Giles to claims by several of the property owners they were promised deferred assessments. The board is on record as opposed to deferred assessments.

funds for paving the area to the west of the Municipal Building parking lot, for constructing ramps at polling places and for constructing concrete sidewalks on E. Center St. (from Plymouth Lane to Pitkin St.).

• The purchase of a strip of land at Adams and Hilliard Sts. (for the Adams St. reconstruction program) and the sale of a town-owned parcel and dwelling at Oakland St. and Sheldon Rd.

• The transfer of $28,300 from the Contingency Account to the Sanitation Account—to provide twice-a-week garbage pickup to the end of the fiscal year (June 30).

• Allocations for improving the basement level of the Senior Citizens Center and for constructing a refreshment stand at Charter Oak Field.

• Allocating $35,000 for purchasing a quantity of new water meters, to replace some dating back over 50 years.

At the conclusion of the board's business items, the meeting will be opened to electors wishing to be heard on any item in the board's jurisdiction.

Rev. Bubar linked to plot to firebomb Shelton factory

BRIDGEPORT (UPI) — One of the men charged with the $14 million firebombing of a Shelton factory told authorities the self-styled psychic minister who predicted the fire drove the arsonists to the factory and let them in, a Superior Court judge said today. Judge Irving Levine denied a motion to dismiss charges against the Rev. David Bubar, 47, of Memphis, Tenn., a Baptist minister charged with a key role in an alleged plot to destroy the Sponge Rubber Products Co. factory. Levine's ruling, based on statements by John Shaw, 28, of Pittsburgh, Pa., for the first time detailed events leading up to the March 1 blaze that leveled the plant and left hundreds jobless. Shaw is charged with arson and burglary. Levine said Shaw told authorities he and Dennis and Michael Tiche of Boyers, Pa., met four men, one of whom was later identified as Bubar, at a restaurant in the New Haven area the day of the arson. Shaw said Bubar, wearing a white suit and trenchcoat, drove he and the Tiches to the factory, signed them in, and told them their alibi was to be that they were installing telephone equipment. Levine's ruling said Shaw told police that Bubar learned from security guards that no rounds were made in the plant until 8 p.m. and between 8 p.m. and 7 p.m. the conspirators placed barrels containing gasoline and paint thinner around the factory. Between 8 and 9:30 p.m., Shaw said, Bubar appeared with two other defendants, Anthony Jung of Greenburgh, Pa., and Ronald Betres, 32, of Butler, Pa., and said they would get the guards while Shaw and the Tiches completed placing the materials for the destruction of the plant. Shaw's statement said after placing the materials he and the Tiches set a timing device for 25 minutes and left the plant in a car belonging to one of the guards. Levine said Shaw told authorities that on Feb. 17 Dennis Tiche offered him $2,500 to assist in burning a building. Three days later, Shaw said, he received $1,000 from Tiche and purchased 50 large fiber barrels. Levine said Shaw described to authorities how the barrels were filled with gasoline and placed in a rented truck together with dynamite and detonating cord. On Feb. 28, the day before the fire, Levine said, Shaw and the Tiches flew from Pittsburgh to New York and then took a train to New Haven, near Shelton. Levine said Shaw told authorities he and the Tiches were guided around the factory by Bubar before beginning to work. After rigging the plant, Shaw's statement said, the three men left and met two other defendants, identified in the statement as "Tony" and "Al," at a point several miles from the factory where they had taken the kidnaped men, two security guards and a welder. Shaw said the men were released from handcuffs and their car keys thrown into the woods.

Of Consumer Concern

Here's the update on aerosol story

By State Department Of Consumer Protection. A lot of confusion, misunderstanding and anxiety has developed over the last few months about aerosols. The major consideration right now is that some aerosol cans release a certain kind of propellant gas that some scientists feel may be damaging the upper atmosphere ozone layer which protects the earth from the sun's harmful ultraviolet rays. The particular aerosol propellant under question is fluorocarbon. Fluorocarbons are chemicals used as propellants in most personal aerosol products such as hair sprays, deodorants and some shaving creams. Scientific investigation is being performed, but no conclusive evidence is available at this time. A task force representing 12 federal agencies recently concluded that fluorocarbon in the environment is a legitimate cause for concern. If the National Academy of Sciences, currently conducting a study of man-made impacts on the atmosphere, concurs with the task force assessment, federal regulatory agencies should initiate procedures toward the restriction of fluorocarbon uses. The NAS study should be completed by the spring of 1976. Meanwhile the task force recommended labeling aerosol products containing fluorocarbons, legislation to control the substance and international cooperation in this regard. Additional investigations are being sponsored by aerosol manufacturers and suppliers and some manufacturers of products used in the home have already announced their intention to switch over to other types of propellants. In the meantime, it is important to note that not all aerosol products sold in this country contain fluorocarbons. Many, almost half, use other kinds of propellants, including hydrocarbons and carbon dioxide. Answers to questions of general interest will appear in this column. Opinion

Will the wound heal?

The words of Robert I. White, who was president of Kent State University at the time of the shootings on the campus on May 4, 1970, probably sum up the feelings of a great many Americans regarding that tragedy.

Interviewed by reporters after a jury in Cleveland absolved him, along with Ohio Gov. James A. Rhodes and 27 Ohio National Guard officers and men, of civil damages in the deaths of four students and the wounding of nine others, he said that he was "pleased and relieved, but no, I cannot say that I am happy. It is not possible to be happy."

It is not possible for any American to be happy over the outcome, for nothing can ever restore to life the two young men and two young women senselessly cut down that day, or restore to full health the one student who will be confined to a wheelchair for the rest of his life.

But at least it is possible to hope that, at long last, the dead will be allowed to rest and the nation to put the Kent State tragedy behind it. The parents of the students and the other complainants have had their day in court — indeed, many long days in a trial that lasted 14 weeks.

"My daughter will never rest in her grave," cried the mother of one of the slain students, however. Anguished, unbelieving of the verdict, newly embittered, she and the other parents immediately claimed that the trial was unfair, the judge biased, the jury "ignorant" and vowed to appeal.

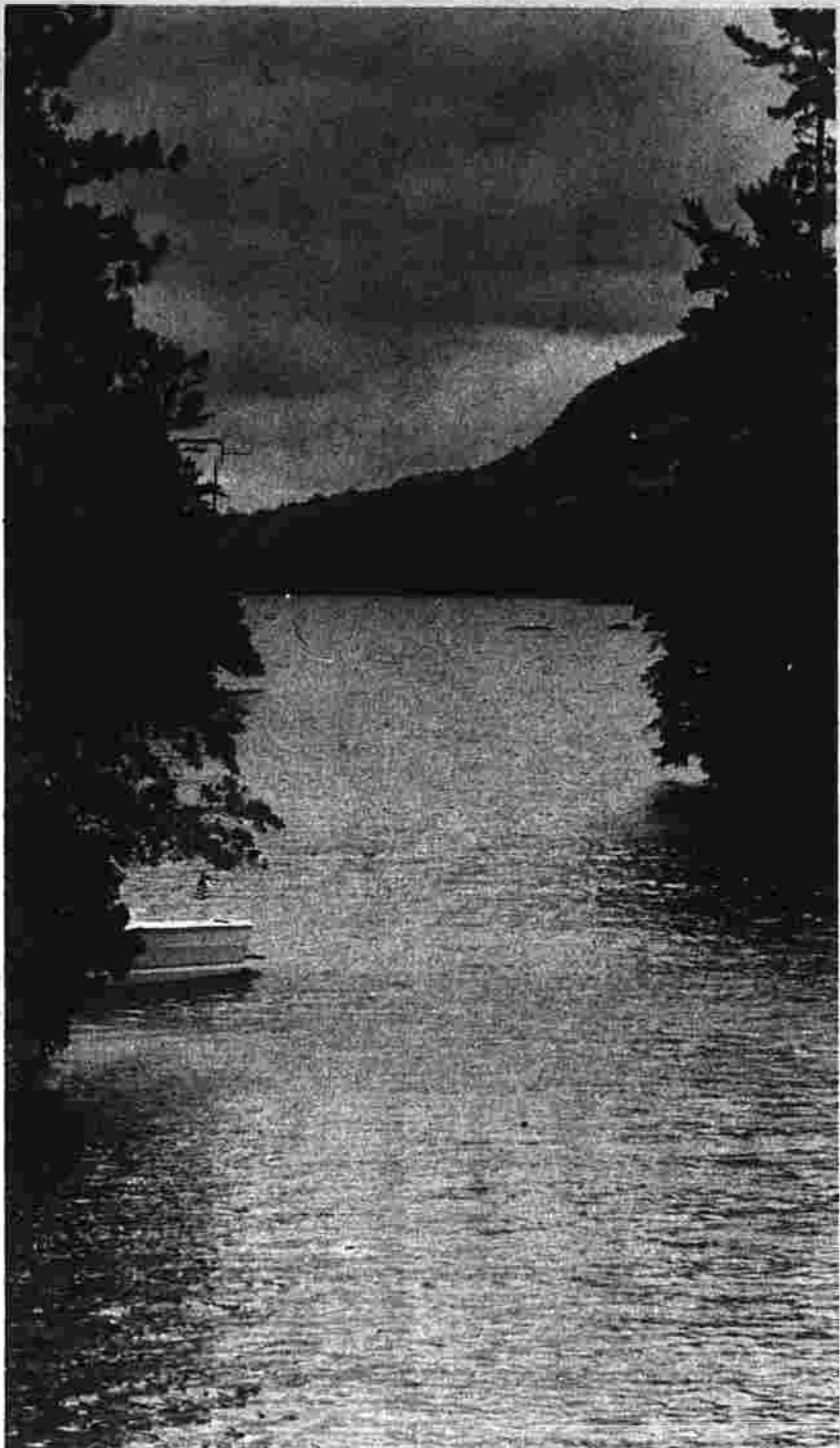

Who, really, can blame them? They have been living with this thing for five years, hoping for the day when their children's killers would be brought to what they considered to be justice — but also ignoring the fact that it has not been easy for the accused to live under a legal shadow for five years, and steadfastly refusing to acknowledge that the guardsmen, as much as their children, were the victims of a series of events they had no part in starting.

Neither in this trial, nor in a previous criminal trial of guardsmen that ended in a directed acquittal, nor in other hearings and inquests, was clear and unmistakable proof of guilt and premeditation on anyone's part brought forward. To have found the defendants liable for damages would not have been justice for the dead but injustice to the living.

If the Kent State parents continue to press the issue, is there anything real to be gained other than a deepening of their sorrow?

Statistics are not always dull reading. Sometimes they are frightening fare. Since 1969, the crime rate has increased across the country by 158 per cent. It's up 82 per cent since 1966, when President Johnson promised to "banish crime from the United States of America." All the polls show that residents of America's largest cities regard crime as their community's top problem. It is no longer scare talk to state that the Republic is under siege.

I make that deposition because in recent weeks this office has received a number of letters from various parts of the country chiding me for what most of the correspondents call "overemphasizing" the crime problem.

The solution rarely ends it right there

DON OAKLEY

"We can never do merely one thing," says University of California biologist Garret Hardin, formulating another of those "laws" our more and more complex society seems to be colliding with more and more frequently.

Hardin refers specifically to the dire social consequences he foresees should a constitutional prohibition of abortion ever be adopted. While the scientist's position on this question is a matter of much dispute, there is little doubt about the validity of his "law when it comes to the consequences of a whole lot of other human activities, particularly in regard to the environment.

Unfortunately, evidence soon began to accumulate that, along with harmless CO₂ and H₂O, the catalysts were also producing sulfuric acid. To meet this new and unlooked-for threat to the environment, it was suggested that sulfur be removed from gasoline at the refinery — at an additional cost to the consumer.

Now comes a warning from three scientists with Bell Laboratories in Murray Hill, N.J., that to do this could create yet another major problem — deadly hydrogen cyanide gas.

In the presence of sulfur dioxide, the formation of hydrogen cyanide (HCN) by platinum catalysis is reduced to insignificant levels, they told the recent 107th annual meeting of the American Chemical Society in Chicago. However, the proposed removal of sulfur from gasoline to reduce the sulfuric acid emission hazard could increase the HCN emission hazard.

The scientists caution that their experiments for the partially sighted, laboratory conditions and the results "cannot be used to draw conclusions concerning the chemical products of far more complex gas mixtures in actual auto exhausts."

Their preliminary findings suggest, nevertheless, "the need for more extensive study of the chemical interaction of auto exhaust gases with catalysis."

We can never do merely one thing...

Several New York restaurants now provide braille menus.

Dallas airport has braille signs on doors.

A blind person can play cards, Scrabble and Monopoly with braille versions of these games.

The New York subway system has braille maps and the Chemical Bank of New York has introduced braille checking statements.

The Internal Revenue Service allows braille editions of books and magazines to be deducted as a medical expense for the amount exceeding the cost of regular editions.

Unfortunately, says the Foundation, only about 25 per cent of legally blind people are familiar with braille, and only some 12 to 15 per cent can read it with ease.

"Optacon" (short for Optical Tactile Converter), a device with a small camera attachment which converts printed type into raised letters that can be read with fingers, has been called a major breakthrough. But the device is still very expensive — almost $3,000 — and slow to use.

Reducing the handicap

Braillegrams for the blind and Large-Print Messages for the partially sighted, innovations announced the other day by Western Union, were much reported in the news.

These are just two, however, of a number of recent developments aimed at making life a little easier and more convenient for the 6.5 million Americans who suffer from some form of severe visual impairment, says the American Foundation for the Blind.

In the midst of the short debate, Representative Bauman, (R-Md.) observed in a session with his colleagues "...you know what is happening in this circle of canary-eating girls."

But the ayes had it. Sen. Hiram Fong (R-Hawaii) argued that the Congress had to do something "to help those members who are barely getting along with their $4,500 salary."

Congressman Peter Peyser (R-N.Y.), on the House side, said that the economics of being a congressman "are murder." He indicated that coming to Congress had been an economic disaster for him, but that he was willing to make this sacrifice in the public good. However, he wanted more.

One representative emphasized that even the boost being voted would not catch congressmen up with the 40 some per cent cost of living increase since their last raise.

A number of congressmen, who will remain nameless, piously argued they did not want or need the increase but were going to vote for it. Since other officials were getting increases, they said, it would be unfair for Congressmen not to vote equal benefits for themselves. It would smack of discrimination.

It was also argued that if congressmen didn't vote raises for themselves, they might in due time have some staff members earning more than congressmen.

But the ultimate rationalization was put forward by Rep. Amer J. Mikva (D-Ill.), who, noting that only 15 per cent of those questioned in a recent poll approved of the way Congress has been acting, argued that

Capital's crime rate frightens citizens

ANDREW TULLY

WASHINGTON — "My home town scares me to death," writes a reader from Gary, Ind. "And yet I'm relatively safer here. I wouldn't let any member of my family step foot in Washington or New York."

It is a poignant letter, full of a citizen's sorrow that he can't take his children to the capital of the United States to join the Bicentennial fun. But Washington is not the only offender; crime and violence have now become a national epidemic.

Folliester George Gallup tells us that nearly half of Americans are afraid to walk in their own neighborhoods at night. The figure is 56 per cent for cities of 500,000 population or more. Gallup pollsters found that one household in every four in the United States has been hit by crime at least once in the past 12 months. For the bigger cities one household in three has been victimized.

Well, say the usual apologies, naturally crime would increase when the population has increased. Maybe. But the incident of crime has also increased in proportion to the population. The number of robberies per 100,000 has risen more than tripled since 1960. Rapes per 100,000 have also tripled. The murder rate has doubled.

Statistics are not always dull reading. Sometimes they are frightening fare. Since 1969, the crime rate has increased across the country by 158 per cent. It's up 82 per cent since 1966, when President Johnson promised to "banish crime from the United States of America." OPEN FORUM

An insult

Dear Sir:

On a recent trip to your state, I think that I received the insult of insults. Since when is Canada classed as a foreign country. Not only did stores and garages refuse to accept Canadian money — but banks also.

Any place in Canada that an American travels and uses money from his country, it is immediately accepted — no questions asked. It may be worth more or less than the face value, but we must remember that the Canadian dollar remains stable; the American dollar fluctuates. We accept change at face value — in the United States, it seems that the current discount is taken even from Canadian change.

I went into a bank in Rockville to ask to have some Canadian currency changed into American, and the teller informed me, quite bluntly, that they do not accept foreign currency. I have travelled extensively about the world, and this has never happened before.

I do not only accept this as a personal insult — but an insult to my country, and my Queen.

Sincerely,
 Eugene C. Campbell

100 fewer than estimated in South Windsor schools

Judy Kuehnel
644-1364

Projected school enrollment for South Windsor Schools is low by about 100 students according to a report being presented to the Board of Education tonight.

With the exception of Orchard Hill and Pleasant Valley schools, projected enrollment for the town's eight schools was down in virtually all cases.

Overall, the school department estimated enrollment for 1975-76 at 4,190. Actual enrollment as of Sept. 5 was 4,091, 99 less students than had been projected.

Dr. Goldman, in his report to the school board said "We are carefully watching several classes to make sure enrollments do not reach a level that is too high."

Dr. Goldman said between the opening of school last year up to Oct. 1, enrollment increased by about 75 students. He said high school enrollment, in all likelihood, will increase by "some number from among the 80 who have not shown up yet."

The following is the list of schools, their projected enrollments, their actual attendance and the difference.

Avery, 476, 474, minus 2; Eli Terry, 498, 483, minus 15; Orchard Hill, 499, 508, plus 9; Pleasant Valley, 511, 523, plus 12; Wapping, 462, 458, minus 4; Ellsworth, 221, 217, minus 4; Timothy Edwards, 1,197, 1,094, minus 103; South Windsor High School, 1,214, 1,134, minus 80.

Other items for consideration at the school board's first meeting of the season, slated for 7:30 p.m. at Avery Street School, include reports on personnel for the school year, transportation, in-service training and a theme for the school year.

The South Windsor Sewer Commission will meet tonight at 7:30 in the Town Hall for a public hearing regarding the addition of streets to be included in November's referendum. To be considered are Barber Hill Rd., a section of Miller Rd., Saganaw, Greenfield and Bourbon. All residents wishing to be heard on this matter are urged to attend.

School opening went well, Ramsdell says of Vernon

The school year opened smoother than any previous year, Dr. Raymond Ramsdell, superintendent, told the Board of Education Monday night.

Dr. Ramsdell credited the smooth opening to the two-day orientation sessions conducted for the school staff prior to the Thursday opening last week.

He also cited the custodial staffs for having the schools in sparkling clean condition.

He said he especially noted the lack of chaos in the kindergarten classes with very little of the usual crying on the part of the young students. He said he feels this is due to children attending the Hockanum Valley Day Care Center, the Living and Learning Center, and the Headstart Program.

At Rockville High School, where there is extensive construction work going on, Dr. Ramsdell said he was there about five minutes after the morning session started and reported that the fire in an athletic storage building at the high school a few days before school opened, Dr. Ramsdell said the estimated extent of damage is $16,000 but it is felt that insurance will cover not only the cost of replacement of the baseball backstop that burned but also that of the building itself. The building value is estimated at $3,000.

The football equipment which was destroyed will be replaced, and in the meantime the team has equipment which was loaned by Trinity College, the University of Connecticut, and several other schools.

Of the construction work, Dr. Ramsdell said there is still a lot to be done but "from now on it will be downhill, good progress has been made."

Kerkin warns of high cost for special ed in Vernon

While the state mandates that each student be provided with the type of education he requires, it is up to the local school boards to pick up the tab. Vernon's budget fell short about $25,000 in this area last year, Albert Kerkin, assistant superintendent told the Board of Education Monday night.

Kerkin, who did not ask the board to take any action but rather wanted to alert the board to the problem, said last year $45,000 was budgeted and $70,000 was expended to send students outside the Vernon school system.

Because of state laws the number of students in this category has mushroomed over the past two or three years, Kerkin said.

Kerkin said he sent a letter to the state explaining the budget problem and he was told that it is the local board's obligation to fulfill its responsibility even if it means going to the town for additional funds.

Silent meditation started in Vernon

VERNON
While not having any intention of creating a "test case," Dr. Raymond Ramsdell, superintendent of schools, instructed teachers to implement a silent meditation period when school implementation has religious content.

The board did not object to Dr. Ramsdell's action in implementing the program right away.

Dr. Ramsdell told the Board of Education Monday night that each teacher has been instructed to use his or her own judgment as to the time limit for the meditation period. He said he will go into effect Oct. 1 but Dr. Ramsdell said he feels it was best to start it as soon as schools opened so the students will get into the pattern.

The state law requiring that a moment of silence be set aside at the start of each school day, does not go into effect until Oct. 1 but Dr. Ramsdell said he feels it was best to start it as soon as schools opened so the students will get into the pattern.

High school enrollment pushes up Vernon total

Schools in Vernon closed last June with a population of 6,696 and opened last week with a population of 7,018 with the increase at the high school level.

Dr. Raymond Ramsdell, superintendent, told the Board of Education Monday night that there are always dropouts at the high school level when some students reach the age of 16 when they are allowed to leave school.

He said, however, the dropout rate has been decreasing and hopes this will be the case this year.

The population in the elementary schools dropped slightly from that of June. September enrollment was 3,242 and June, 3,263.

At the Sykes School, which houses Grade 6 students only, the population dropped from 566 in June to 547. The number of the students at the Talcottville School for special education students decreased from 100 to 89 and at the Middle School it dropped from 1,122 to 1,073. The high school enrollment was 1,895 in June and 2,067 when schools opened in September.

Dr. Robert Linstone, assistant superintendent, said Vernon is about the 25th school district, in size, in the state. The kindergartens in the system have an enrollment of 600 which is exactly the number predicted for this year, he said.

Auditor disagrees with Sen. Houley on state grant

HARTFORD (UPI) — A state auditor has told the chairman of the legislature's Appropriation Committee the state is not legally committed to reimburse communities for school building projects.

Democratic Auditor Leo V. Donohue challenged the position by Sen. Robert D. Houley, D-Vernon, that the state is obliged to pick up half of the cost of school projects already under way.

Donohue said commitment is not binding until the spending is authorized by the state Bonding Commission.

The state attorney general's office is currently preparing a formal opinion on the question of the state's obligation to local communities sought by Gov. Ella T. Grasso.

Funds for reimbursement of local communities for construction projects were found to have run dry and no new monies will be appropriated at least until February when the legislature convenes.

Charges against two legislators are dismissed

HARTFORD (UPI) — Two state legislators who were the first to be charged under Connecticut's new code of ethics law have been cleared of conflict-of-interest charges.

The legislature's Ethics Committee announced Monday that charges against Rep. Harold G. Harlow, R-Litchfield, and Rep. Howard M. Klebanoff, D-Hartford, were dismissed for lack of evidence.

Harlow was accused of voting for banking measures that could affect his livelihood as an assistant vice president of the Colonial Bank and Trust Co. in Waterbury.

Klebanoff was accused of using his post as head of the legislature's Education Committee to seek special education for a friend's child from the state Board of Education.

Charges against two legislators are dismissed

HARTFORD (UPI) — Two state legislators who were the first to be charged under Connecticut's new code of ethics law have been cleared of conflict-of-interest charges.

The legislature's Ethics Committee announced Monday that charges against Rep. Harold G. Harlow, R-Litchfield, and Rep. Howard M. Klebanoff, D-Hartford, were dismissed for lack of evidence.

Harlow was accused of voting for banking measures that could affect his livelihood as an assistant vice president of the Colonial Bank and Trust Co. in Waterbury.

Klebanoff was accused of using his post as head of the legislature's Education Committee to seek special education for a friend's child from the state Board of Education.

High school enrollment pushes up Vernon total

Schools in Vernon closed last June with a population of 6,696 and opened last week with a population of 7,018 with the increase at the high school level.

Dr. Raymond Ramsdell, superintendent, told the Board of Education Monday night that there are always dropouts at the high school level when some students reach the age of 16 when they are allowed to leave school.

He said, however, the dropout rate has been decreasing and hopes this will be the case this year.

The population in the elementary schools dropped slightly from that of June. September enrollment was 3,242 and June, 3,263.

At the Sykes School, which houses Grade 6 students only, the population dropped from 566 in June to 547. The number of the students at the Talcottville School for special education students decreased from 100 to 89 and at the Middle School it dropped from 1,122 to 1,073. The high school enrollment was 1,895 in June and 2,067 when schools opened in September.

Dr. Robert Linstone, assistant superintendent, said Vernon is about the 25th school district, in size, in the state. The kindergartens in the system have an enrollment of 600 which is exactly the number predicted for this year, he said.

Vernon to review policy on age for kindergarten admittance

BARBARA RICHMOND
Herald Reporter

The Board of Education has voted to review its kindergarten entry-age policy since 1970 but last night it decided to have the Curriculum Committee re-evaluate the policy and come back with a recommendation to the next board meeting.

Child entering kindergarten should be pre-screened for group placement. Mrs. Robert Menard, one of the petitioning parents, said she feels the pre-school screening procedure could be used to determine if a child, who does not fill the age requirement rule, is ready for school.

There should be other criteria besides age and he agreed there is no valid criteria and also admitted that entrance age varies from school system to school system. "I admit there are exceptions but how are we going to agree on them," he said.

The state law just reads that a child doesn't have to go to school until age seven if this is the wish of the parents. Albert Kerkin, superintendent in charge of special education, said the pre-screening program doesn't include psychological examinations but rather tests developmental levels, motor coordination and such.

He said it has been found that children who are in the younger group entering kindergarten do not do as well, as a rule, as the ones who are a little older when they enter. He said there are always exceptions.

Trip to Greece approved

VERNON

A request of the Rockville High Cultural Organization to take a spring trip to Greece was granted by the Board of Education Monday night with the stipulation that final plans be presented to the board, when ready.

The trip would be made during the April school vacation and would probably mean the cost per person will be $650, all inclusive. The cost would drop if 145 people go and a plane can be chartered.

Chaperones with the majority to be from Vernon and the remainder from Ellington. There will be one chaperone for every 20 students and the cost per person will be $650, all inclusive.

Students at East Catholic to ride Cheney Tech bus

BARBARA RICHMOND
Herald Reporter

As long as there is enough room on the Vernon school bus going to Cheney Tech in Manchester, East Catholic High School students will be allowed to ride.

While the board is required, according to state law, to provide transportation for the children of students who are not mandatory that it do so for those going to private high schools such as East Catholic.

This is the first week that schools are in session full time and Dr. Ramsdell said bus routes are still being adjusted. A complaint was received, by those going to private high schools such as East Catholic.

11 more children admitted to Silver Lane kindergarten

EAST HARTFORD

Sheila Tuller
289-4283

The Board of Education voted Monday night to place eleven more children in three kindergarten classes at Silver Lane School.

According to the day care director, her budget could not stand the transportation costs and the board did not wish to set a precedent transporting day care center children to school.

With the 58 children presently attending kindergarten at Silver Lane, the new children will be divided into three groups making three classes of 26, 26 and 26 children.

Police chief urges school route safety

EAST HARTFORD

Sheila Tuller
289-4283

Hundreds of East Hartford children are back to school and for the safety of these children, East Hartford's Police Chief Clarence Drumm has made some suggestions.

Chief Drumm is asking for complete co-operation of parents, drivers, and also the children. The chief hopes the following information will help prevent accidents and injuries to East Hartford students.

Children who walk to school should be instructed on using the safest route.

Parents should be certain that their youngsters are skilled in the proper handling of a bicycle if they are allowed to ride in traffic to school.

Drivers must stop when a school bus has stopped in either direction and flashing red lights. Drivers should know and fully understand their responsibility regarding school buses.

Without trying to sound inquisitive (after all, let's face it, I'm tickled if they do anything at home even if it is, down, up, down, I said, "Getting ready for your gym class, honey?")

Dear Abby
 By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: All I can say is, "thanks a whole bunch" for giving a husband a few tips on how he can tell if his wife has been out with another man: "I gets all dressed up to go shopping, come home late, out of breath, with no packages, and her pantyhose inside out!"
 Well, there have been times when I got all dressed up to go shopping, come home late and out of breath with no packages, and maybe my pantyhose was inside out because that's the way I put it on, but it didn't mean I had been with another man!
 I have a very jealous husband, and that item in your column sure didn't help matters much.
 Since you gave me tips on how to tell if their wives are cheating, how about giving wives a few tips on how to tell if their husbands have been fooling around?
 CAMILLUS, N.Y.

DEAR CAM: A cliché: When a husband suddenly starts wearing his best clothes to work, says he's working "overtime" but doesn't have the money to show for it, puts extra miles on the car, sometimes gets lost all day Saturday, smiles and whistles a lot and starts telling you what a great, understanding wife you are—watch out!

DEAR ABBY: I am a 52-year-old widow. I have a good job, my home is paid for and I'm able to take care of myself. I've been keeping company with a 34-year-old man for two years. (We are not living together.) We get along very well, but I can't see this relationship leading to marriage. I was very lonely before I met him, but when we are in public, I feel uncomfortable. I'm afraid people will think I am his mother. The age difference never seems to bother him, but it bothers me.
 Also I'm afraid my daughter and son (they are 30 and 27) think I'm making a fool of myself. Other widows my age would give their right arm to be in my shoes.
 TOO OLD FOR HIM

DEAR TOO: Your signature is the tipoff. If you feel that you're too old for him, you are. If you can't rid yourself of that feeling, try an older model for comfort.

DEAR ABBY: "Warm in Georgia" asked if there was a dress code for church.
 It seems a young married woman came to church in a halter with her bare middle showing. You said, "Common sense and a little old-fashioned respect for a house of worship are all the dress rules necessary."
 Well, I'm only 17, but I could have given a better answer than yours. What the heck difference does it make what that girl wears to church? The point is that she's there worshipping God.
 I'm sure it makes no difference to God if she was stark naked or wearing her Sunday best.
 WORSHIPPERS IN CUTOFFS

DEAR WORSHIPPERS: It may make no difference to God, but how about a little consideration for the other worshippers?

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 89700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Win at Bridge
 Bad players misplay bad cards

Thus, it never occurred to him that when his partner bid all the way up to four clubs on his own that four spades the queen-10 would warrant a four-spade bid.
 Furthermore, West's hand fulfilled one requirement for a sacrifice bid. He was pretty sure that South would make four hearts.
 South did just that, but look what would have happened if West had pulled himself together and bid four spades bid. North and South might have gone on to five hearts—down one. They might have doubled four spades or let East play there. If they had they would have been sorry. East would make four spades with no trouble at all.
 An Oregonian asks what sort of hand South should have. North has opened one diamond, East has doubled and South has bid one notrump.
 The answer to this one depends on partnership understanding, but in common with almost all experts and bridge teachers we play the bid to show eight or nine high-card points, a balanced distribution and certainly no five-card major suit.

For Wednesday, Sept. 10, 1975
ARIES (March 21-April 19)
 The actions of one you're very fond of will disappoint you today. However, she'll soon be back in your good graces.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
 Early today you won't take your commitments as seriously as you should. Later you'll rationalize your reasons.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
 Though it may be a little inconvenient, shop a bit to get better prices today for even the little things.
CANCER (June 21-July 21)
 Shun stores carrying luxury items that might tempt you today. Your will is far weaker than your whim.
LEO (July 22-Aug. 22)
 You find dozens of flimsy reasons for not handling an unpleasant situation today. It will have to be resolved eventually. Why not do it now?
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
 Be careful of your little fixations today could cause you some embarrassment. Though they may be harmless, they could offend a third party.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
 This can be a profitable day if you keep your mind on business. Forgo pleasurable pursuits till serious matters are attended to.
SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)
 Lots of little interruptions early in the day will sidetrack you temporarily. Later you'll get in high gear.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)
 You won't be able to call the shots as independently as you'd like today. Another will have some control over your comings and goings.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
 Don't expect more from friends and associates today than you would be prepared to give. If the roles were reversed.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)
 Goals important to you can be attained now, if you don't saddle yourself with an ally lacking initiative.
PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)
 Rather than be inactive today, do something to get the blood circulating a bit. You'll feel better for it.
